Texans Lead In 43-G Class Of Pampa Cadets

To the Lone Star State of Texas goes the honor of having the biggest representation in the newly arrived Class of 43-G, now receiving advanced flight training at Pampa's twin-engine army flying school.

Texas has been a runner-up for honors in several previous classes, and crashed through in the 43-G to swamp the field and walk off with a strictly "no-contest" decision. A total of 30 Texas youths are now receiving their final training as pilots at this top 'o Texas twin-engine army aerial college. Second-place honors go to Illinois, with 12 cadets, followed by New York, 11, and Oklahoma, 10.

A total of 34 states, plus the District of Columbia, have representatives at the local field. No territories or foreign countries are listed as "home" by members of the new class.

With the Texas "state landslide" went an unexpected victory for the University of Texas as the top alma mater of the cadets. Seven future pilots listed the Longhorns institution as the university they attended. Oklahoma University was second in the race, with Texas A. & M. and Rice Institute tied for third.

Some other leading institutions of higher learning listed include: Maryland, Michigan State, Yale, Wichita U., Phillips, Baylor, Southern California, Oklahoma A. & M., Dartmouth, Illinois, Texas Tech, New York U., Florida, Arkansas, Kansas U. and Kansas State.

Members of 43-G took down one undisputed honor from the previous class here. It is the "merry-lingest" class of them all. Forty-four of the underclass cadets are married, with several others stating their intentions matrimonially in the very near future.

Pampa's Youth Problem Studied

R. B. Saxe, president of the Pampa Kiwanis club, was named chairman of a recreational council formed at a meeting of representatives of civic organizations Friday night in the committee room of the chamber of commerce.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss the increase in juvenile delinquency in Pampa and ways to combat it. The council was set up as a temporary group and another meeting is to be held on call to further any work outlined.

Juvenile offenses have increased 50 per cent in Pampa in the past year and the age of juvenile offenders has decreased from 15 and 16 to 11 and 12. It was brought out in the discussion at the meeting.

Principal angle on the problem is the question of improper relations between young girls and boys. As remedies, it was suggested that a curfew law be enacted, more police be employed, and a special juvenile officer named.

No definite action, however, stemmed from any of these proposals.

Southerner Will Fight 4th Term

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—Advocating an amendment to the constitution limiting a president's tenure in office to two terms, Senator (Smith) D-SC declared today he will not support any bill President Roosevelt may make for re-election to a fourth term.

"I didn't vote for Roosevelt for a third term and I'm not going to vote for him for a fourth term," Smith told a reporter. "With me it isn't the man, it's the principle. No president ever had more than two terms before and I think we ought to write a limitation of that kind into the Constitution."

Smith said he is prepared to give active support to a resolution which Senator Bailey (D-MC) may introduce next week proposing a Constitutional Amendment to restrict the tenure of any future president to two four-year terms.

The amendment, which would not affect Mr. Roosevelt's second term, is expected to be assigned to the Senate Judiciary committee, whose Chairman Van Nuys (D-Ind) will convene a subcommittee with instructions to hold public hearings.

A secret poll of the committee taken by proponents is reported to have indicated the measure would have majority support there, with at least seven Democrats joining with independent Republicans to support the proposal later for senate consideration.

FLEET

lied fighters supported the Retnes and St. Nazaire raids. The liberators were unscathed at La Pallice.

These operations were preceded by RAF bomber and fighter-bomber attacks, each with fighter escort, upon air fields at Caen and Mauthert in northern France.

"From all of these operations 12 bombers are missing."

First Axis broadcasts ignored the lattering of the U-boat bases but reported a rain of ruin was heaped upon the residential areas of Rennes, causing many casualties.

The newest sledge-hammer blows at Hitler's European fortress came at the end of an unprececeded week in which the RAF alone dumped nearly 5,000 tons of explosives on Germany's industrial Ruhr valley, winding up the first year since its original 1,000-plane raid on Cologne, May 30, 1942.

Even this mounting record of devastating heaped upon Germany and Italy alike from England and North Africa was described as only "chickened" by an air marshal Sir Arthur T. Harris, chief of the RAF bomber command, who declared that the "day is coming very quickly" when the American air force will be hitting with staggering power.

The RAF rocked the Ruhr valley, heart of the German war machine, with six of the war's heaviest blows during May, passing the 100,000 ton mark in the total weight of explosives hurled on Europe from the air since the war began.

Warning: Italy to be prepared for the shock of heavier and more frequent aerial assaults on her mainland which will dwarf the present batteries of her outer bastions, Lord Sitcher, deputy secretary for air, declared that 12,000 RAF bombers took part in the recent Dortmund and Duesseldorf raids alone.

In a speech at Dumfries, Scotland, he predicted that as many as 26,000 crewmen eventually will participate in a single week's raids on Germany.

Harris said in a "wings for victory" address that the growing strength of the U. S. army air forces in making use of the air quickly proved the key to victory throughout the war.

He said Germany knows that her air power never will catch up with the Allies again and that Germany fears air power more than anything else. Britain's memory is long, the air Marshall declared, and she knows who started the bombing.

Timid Italian Fleet Believed Held In Reserve

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—Failure of the Italian fleet to delay the reopening of Allied communications lines through the Mediterranean aroused speculation today over the possibility that the fleet is being held in reserve for some momentous development in the European war.

Two possible uses of the fleet, which may include as many as seven or eight battleships, were considered in informed quarters:

1. If the German high command has effective control of the force with its own officers in key spots, it might be employed at Hitler's direction to battle any Allied thrust across the Mediterranean into Europe. Properly fought, the fleet could offer considerable resistance to a British-French-American invasion armada.
2. If Italians still have effective control of their navy, they may be holding it not so much for its fighting powers as for its value as a force with which to bargain in case the Italians decide to try to make terms with the Allies.

Authorities here said that a battle in defense of their own shores probably would inspire the Italian officers and men to put forth more prodigious efforts in conflict than they have yet shown.

The exact makeup of the Italian naval force is a matter of speculation but there may be seven, at the outside eight, battleships capable of action.

In addition to their capital ships, the Italians are estimated to have about 10 cruisers, 90 destroyers and 70 submarines.

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—Timid Italian fleet units will become "sitting ducks" for Allied land based planes as the Mediterranean campaign progresses, qualified London observers said today.

A swarm of nearly 100 flying fortresses reached more than halfway up the Italian peninsula yesterday to attack L. G. 1, demonstrating how an Allied air barrage might creep up on surface ships unless they choose to come out and try to inflict some damage, as well as take it.

Allied naval and air units in the Mediterranean were declared watching Mussolini's ships every possible minute. Even the best informed London quarters declined to forecast what use may finally be made of the remains of the Italian fleet. The popular presumption is that they would attempt to resist invasion of the Italian mainland.

Some London quarters had information that the Italian fleet probably is concentrated mainly at the big naval base of Spezia, about 50 miles south of Genoa, and within easy reach of bombers from both Britain and Africa.

The African cheetah has been timed at a speed of 103 feet a second, or more than a mile a minute.

Drafting Farmers Flayed By Butler

Washington, May 29 (AP)—Senator Butler (R-Neb.) said today he can see any sense in drafting young American farmers into the Army and then bringing in foreign laborers to work on American farms.

"Why is it that certain of our allies seem to have surpluses of manpower particularly in the farm labor field, when we have a shortage of skilled men on the farms due to their being drafted for the armed forces?" Butler asked in a statement.

Stalin Pledges His Cooperation

LONDON, May 29 (AP)—Advocates of closer cooperation with Soviet Russia today urged that the Allies begin building immediately upon a new foundation of inter-Allied understanding which they said that Joseph Stalin had provided in a letter explaining the dissolution of the comintern.

Stalin's letter was sent to Harold King, Reuters Moscow correspondent, in answer to King's query as to the Soviet view of the order's effect on international relations.

In his reply Stalin saw four immediate results: "The organization of a 'common onslaught' against Hitler; the exposure as a lie of the oft-repeated Nazi charge that Russia sought to 'bolshewize' the world and also that communists within the labor movements in countries in the United Nations bloc are working against the war effort; clearance of the way 'to future organization of a companionship of nations based upon their equality.'"

"The first reaction to Marshall Stalin's statement will be the stimulation of partisan activities in every Nazi-occupied country and even in Germany itself," declared a London evening standard editorial.

"To this there can be only one reply from us," the paper continued. "We must seek to coordinate political warfare and to assist Europe's underground partisans in common effort."

A German broadcast recorded by Reuters showed that the Nazi party was continuing to try to cast doubt upon Stalin's sincerity, terming his letter a "new trick" caused by his distrust of Britain where the labor party's executive committee continues for affiliation with the party.

Governor Signs Money Measure

AUSTIN, May 29 (AP)—Gov. Coke Stevenson today chopped down 14 bills and resolutions passed by the 48th Legislature and signed into law the general appropriation bill providing for expenditure of $23,000,000 by state departments during 1944-45.

As finally enacted, the measure provides $8,126,804 less for departments than they have had during the current two-year period.

Among measures of statewide application killed by veto were bills that would have loosened restrictions on qualifications of chairmen or members of party executive committees; authorizing district attorneys absent in war service to name assistants to perform their duties; lowering the rate of interest on all bonds held by the state board of education to three per cent; authorizing commissions of 45 per cent by employment agencies on teaching and certain other types of employment.

Other bills in the same general classification included these:

- Removing small independent school districts from terms of the statute which provides that county school boards may abolish or subdivide common school districts or alter their jurisdiction, which have less than 10 resident scholars and have maintained no school in the district for five years preceding action by the county board.
- Permitting use of convict labor on privately owned farms.
- Fixing the same standard for credits and deductions from the term of sentence for a prisoner on parole as for prisoners not on parole.
- Setting up a schedule of pay for county school superintendents.

Previous bill, also passed by the legislature on the same subject, was filed without the governor's signature, thus becoming law.

Worst Of Flood Appears Over

(By The Associated Press.)
The crest of the mighty Mississippi rolled ponderously into the nation's Southlands Saturday and apparently the worst of the flood was over.

Below Cairo, Ill., a much broader channel and more massive levees are expected to tame the unruly waters.

At Beardstown, Ill., the flooded Illinois stood several feet above the town's level at 29 feet. Levees still were holding the falling water.

At Cape Girardeau, Mo., the Mississippi dropped to 41.6 feet, a nine-inch fall in 24 hours.

Still far out of its banks upstream, the Arkansas sent its 33.78 foot Pine Bluff, Ark., crest surging downstream between massive Mississippi river type levees which were expected to hold firmly. Previous record level was 33 feet, set in 1935.

'Notch' Tax Plan Explained

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—A "notch" provision for the protection of income taxpayers owing the government slightly more than $50 was explained today in a joint senate-house conference committee's report on the pending pay-as-you-go tax collection bill.

To put taxpayers on a current basis, the bill provides for cancellation of 75 per cent of the 1942 or 1943 income tax liability (whichever is smaller) if the amount is more than $50, and for complete cancellation of the lesser year's tax if $50 or less. However, it was forecast that this would result in inequities in cases where the liability was just above $50. For example, a man owing $52 would have to pay 25 per cent of it over the next two years, or $13.

To eliminate the difficulty, the conferees provided that the additional tax to be paid shall be 25 per cent of the lesser liability, or the excess of the tax liability over $50. The $52 man, then, would have to pay $2 additional.

The measure is expected to be called up for final approval next week, first in the house, then in the senate.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE—"I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Egocentricity

The larger one ponders the John L. Lewis' decision to bring his United Mine Workers back into the American Federation of Labor, the more possible explanations appear—and the less any of them satisfies.

One conclusion, however, does emerge with finality. Two, perhaps, though they are so intertwined as almost to become one.

Mr. Lewis is completely egocentric. He does nothing, at any time, without first deciding how it will contribute to the aggrandizement of John L. Lewis.

It is mere wishful thinking to imagine that such a man has backed water—has decided to subordinate himself to the one-time associate whom he hates with all the passion that is in his heart.

BY the same token, it would be inviting disaster to assume that Mr. Lewis' influence in Federation councils, whether he plans himself to take over the reins or merely to get a stooge he can dominate, will be exerted toward promoting peace and co-operation with the C. I. O.

What will come out of the current upheaval is anybody's guess. What Mr. Lewis is trying to get out of it is equally problematical. We can be sure, however, that his goal in the long run is the acquisition of new powers for John L. Lewis, and that he will not hesitate to bite, gouge, kick, destroy anything that he cannot conquer.

WHATEVER is the outcome of the struggle for higher pay for the miners, Mr. Lewis has so conducted that fight as to do grave injury to the cause of labor unionism.

Now that he is expanding his field to take in, again, the great A. F. of L. it is to be hoped that the members of that organization will not permit Lewis to lead them around by the nose as he has his miners—to lead them into striking against the security of the United States in time of war—to force them to discredit the intelligence or the patriotism of the labor movement.

Can't Equip Our Soldiers

WHILE the Army's high command insists upon dragging millions more men out of war production and into uniform Lieut-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Service of Supply, testifies publicly that, though our allies should be completely equipped by the end of 1943, "our own army will not be so equipped until late in 1944."

"In point of fact," he says, "we are still not free from difficulties in providing essential cargo for the shipping which is available to us."

The Nation's Press

One year has passed since our properties were taken by the Government, as a result of our stand for law, order and efficient operation.

Last July the Office of Defense Transportation (ODT) established "standard" featherbed rules in the train and engine service. In October we issued our Annual Report for 1941, containing an analysis of operations under our old rules and under the featherbed rules inaugurated by the ODT.

The wastes of manpower, equipment and materials under ODT's featherbed operations were obvious. The ODT claimed that our analysis was wrong, but declined our requests for impartial investigations.

The following figures of two four-month periods beginning in July, the month in 1942 when ODT established the featherbed rules, and ending in October, the last month of unhampered operations in 1941, are taken from sworn statements filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission:

Table with 4 columns: Item, 1941, 1942, % change. Rows include: Average mid-month count, Train Miles, Hours on Duty, Compensation Paid.

Records of the Interstate Commerce Commission thus reveal how ODT wastefully increased the number of train and engine employees 48.8%, and total hours on duty 19.4%, to produce only 3.3% more train miles.

The wastes of ODT featherbedding are shown in further detail by the following analysis of the I.C.C. statistics. They more than substantiate the ODT wastes set forth in our 1941 Report:

Table with 4 columns: Item, 1941, 1942, % change. Rows include: Compensation per Train Mile, Man Days per 100 Train Miles, Employee's Hours on Duty, Duty per Day.

Compensation per train mile is only one item in the cost of transportation. Unnecessary use of employees also involves wastes of motive power, fuel and other critical materials.

The prosecution of the war would be materially improved if private industry were permitted to operate efficiently, provide incentive rates for greater production, and eliminate all practices which retard output and waste materials and manpower.

A RATIONAL INTERPRETATION OF THE FIRST COMMANDMENT

Here is another presentation of the first commandment. Had I been one of the judges, I would have voted for this to receive one of the first three. One of the judges in the committee, judging from a rational or non-revelation standpoint, selected this as being the best presentation.

I am glad to reproduce it and only wish it could have been one of the prize winners. I think it very rationally explains the essentials of Christianity.

The rational approach to this subject is limited to a process of inductive reasoning, because we repudiate as untenable, irrational, unnatural and un-Christian the necessity or reliability of the revelation upon which the traditional deductions are based.

In order to understand the First Commandment it is necessary to rescue it from the misconceptions of traditionalism and restate it in present day terminology. The proposition can be stated as: What is the irreducible minimum, the essential norm, which governs man in his relationship with God and the universe? The answer Jesus gave was more rational than we have supposed, because he stated the eternal principle which governed God and His attitude toward the universe. Then he applied the same basic principle to man, namely: that man should entertain the same attitude of mind towards his neighbor as he does towards God.

The norm of right living becomes more rational when we recognize that the word translated "love" is derived from the Greek root "agape," which means a right attitude of mind, a rational process, an intelligent determined act of will, in contrast to an emotion, natural affection or passion. This being true, the First Commandment is the essential norm: that man must have an "agapathic" attitude of mind towards himself, his neighbor and his God.

If we translate this definition into terms of life, it implies man must always act rightly towards himself, his neighbor and his God. But how can a man know what is right without a norm by which he can judge what is right? Certainly, man can not legislate the rightness of his own actions towards his neighbor, much less towards his God. This necessitates a norm of right which is independent of a legislative or coercive act. That which is right must be based on an impersonal rule, an eternal norm, a first truth of reason. Because, whatever is right must of necessity be reasonable. Also, whatever is truly reasonable must be demonstrated by a right attitude of mind towards himself, his neighbor and his God. Therefore, the First Commandment as stated by Jesus: that man must be "agapathic" towards God, his neighbor and himself is an essential norm, a law of necessity, the most reasonable thing to do. And as such it is the irreducible minimum of right action, a first truth of reason.

However, we must not consider the law of necessity as an act devoid of an alternate choice. It merely implies that the alternate choice would be irrational, a violation of the essential norm. True reason is always based upon a moral act, i.e. freedom of choice, freedom of investigation, freedom of judgment. Yet freedom must have a norm of perfection, otherwise it would be impossible to judge when freedom became license or tyranny. And the norm by which freedom is judged is that of disinterested benevolence, an agapathic attitude of mind, i.e. the willing of the highest well-being of himself, his God and his neighbor.

It would be irrational to dissociate God from this essential norm, because God must of necessity will His own highest well-being and that of the universe. To repudiate this axiom of truth would be irrational and self-destructive. Therefore, the irreducible minimum of right action, the First Commandment of reason is: that God must by the law of necessity will the highest well-being of himself and the universe. He must be agapathic—disinterested in his benevolence.

This being true, the First Commandment as stated by Jesus can be recognized as the axiom of truth: Man must always will the highest well-being of himself, his God and his neighbor. It is a first truth of reason. To will otherwise is irrational and self-destructive. It is the principle of "laissez faire" applicable to both religion and economics.

It is even possible to condense the First Commandment into a mathematical formula as follows: Disinterested benevolence (B), plus Freedom (F), plus Reason (Rn), plus Rightness of action (Rt); or reduce it as: B, F, Rn, Rt—the essential norm of rightness.

POINTS ACROSS THE BORDER

Down East residents who go across the border to buy, on the New Brunswick side, foods which are rationed in the United States, are going to have to surrender ration coupons, anyway: United States customs men have been instructed to count out in ration points all such foods brought back by the border-crossers. And that may make sense—but it's hard to see just how it can.

The widely advertised purpose in rationing scarce commodities is to prevent the total disappearance of such articles from the market—as they would disappear if hoarders and panic buyers were permitted to dip in and help themselves.

But if a Calais, Me., housewife goes across the border and buys a pound of butter, for example, in St. Stephen—it would seem she was not contributing to the scarcity of butter in the United States of America; rather that she was thereby making an extra pound of butter available for some fellow countryman.

Now, thanks to this points-across-the-border ruling, any surpluses that may exist in New Brunswick apparently will continue to be surpluses; they will not be allowed to relieve any shortages existing in Maine, for certainly nobody's going to hike over to Canada to buy articles which are on sale at the corner grocery in Calais, so long as the "cost" in rationing points is to be the same in either case.

Bureaucracy wins again.

With a combination of pay-as-you-go and installment payments on the 1942 tax, everything should be thought of but an amusement tax for the few hours you hold the dough.—Detroit News.

THAT VAUNTED JAP TOE-HOLD IN THE ALEUTIANS

The National Whirligig News Behind The News

By ALBERT LEMAN REFUGEE—The open demand of the new Zionist Organization of America that Britain surrender the Palestine Mandate to the United States or to a group of powers embraces more than the affairs of the Near East, according to diplomats familiar with the situation.

They believe the move is the forerunner of a request that Tunisia be turned over to the Jews as a haven for their persecuted brethren in Nazi dominated lands.

Members of their race, despite the Cremlins' decree and the punitive laws established by the Vichyites in 1940, are in many ways more strongly entrenched in North Africa than in the Tel Aviv section. They have lived in this territory for generations and instead of being an outcast minority as they are in Palestine they are an important segment of the population in numbers, worldly goods and influence.

Baron Rothschild and other financiers invested money in this district and recently Herbert Lehman sent his relations agents into the country distributing aid to needy Jews and Arabs. Certain well-informed forecasters notify that the grounds is being prepared for a genuine homeland where the harassed Jewish refugees from all parts of Europe will find permanent security since as they failed to get on the eastern shores of the Mediterranean.

TROUBLESOME—The Jews have never been happy in modern Palestine. They were not satisfied with the original Balfour Declaration and now they are deeply offended because the London Colonial Office has reaffirmed the terms of its White Paper restricting immigration. Powerful leaders of Histruth labor organizations and the Jewish Agency charge that Britain always placed their interests second.

What seemed generosity, they lament, was almost wholly an oil and navy setup. A limited number of Jews were encouraged to take root in a narrow strip to provide law-abiding residents near the fleet's pipeline, which terminates at Haifa.

A few poor members of the Sephardics migrated from Greece but the most of the pilgrims were from the professional and commercial classes of Europe together with some from the U.S.A. Young Moslems sold their fields to the settlers and then flocked to Cairo and other pleasure resorts, where they lived on the fat of the land. Upon returning and trying to buy back their former properties they discovered that the parcels were not on the market and bitter feuds resulted.

British colonial officials will be pleased if Tunisia should be opened up to the Jews, for if they depart from Palestine the Zionists can dispose of their farms and orchards to the former owners. The English then will be rid of a troublesome Arab problem, which is bound to increase because the Mohammedan population doubles in twenty-seven years.

HEART—New York business analysts advise that, although farm machinery is now being pinched, with autos, washing machines and refrigerators it may be one of the postbellum bonanzas. Manufacturers are not compelled to convert their plants to military production, as most people believe. Their factories were idle until the Government allotted raw materials when the crop crisis became acute. Now the WPB has given the green light not only to reapers, binders and heavy contraptions but to pliers, fence wire and nails urgently needed by stock raisers and growers.

A marked improvement in tractor designs followed the First World War. Some pastmasters think the jeep will be the "plow horse" of the coming peace. Even today the Department of Agriculture is experimenting with it in Alabama, hauling grain, pulling cultivators and furnishing power for milking apparatus. But technicians say it will not supplant standard mechanisms.

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NEA Staff Correspondent

Film careers usually are launched with the aid of press agents, makeup artists, camera-men and voice coaches. But times have changed in Hollywood. Republic studio yesterday appealed to the War Production Board in Washington to help a $22 a week waitress become a $150 a week film actress.

A few weeks ago Mary Dillon, daughter of opera star Marguerite Sylva, was discovered working as a waitress in a restaurant across the street from Republic studio. They gave her a screen test, then a contract to co-star with Jane Withers and Mary Lee in a film musical, "Three Little Sisters." The picture will start sometime in June. Mary decided to keep her waitress job until then.

Just to be sure everything was all right—both films and restaurants are essential industries—the Republic studio legal department checked the local office of the War Production Board.

"No," said the local board, "Mary Dillon could not leave one essential industry for a higher paying job in another essential industry." So yesterday the studio appealed to Washington and demanded a review of the case. Until she's unfrozen, Mary Dillon will remain a waitress.

BALCONY BURLESQUE Milton Berle is getting plenty of laughs at army camp shows with a burlesque of the balcony scene in "Romeo and Juliet." He plays both parts. United Artists is urging Mary Pickford to consider filming "The Life Story of Mary Pickford," soon after publication of her autobiography. . . . Title of Mickey Rooney's next Andy Hardy film, "Andy Hardy's Blond Trouble," left Hollywood chuckling. His estranged wife, Ava Gardner, is a blond. . . . Producer Harry Sherman wants Lloyd Nolan to play the lead in one of those super-westerns after Nolan completes "Gundaloc's Diary." . . . Songwriter Jimmy McHugh's "Murder, He Says," has become a definite part of army jargon. It's how the boys describe an order to break into double-time after a tough day on the obstacle course.

Other day, in reporting that the Hays office had banned zoot suits from the screen, we expressed the hope that Will Hays would not entirely bare his sweaters. Writes Will: "All right. I won't." That's service.

SALVAGE SIGN It was bound to happen. There's now a "Rags for Salvage" sign from last month's Hollywood drive tacked up on the dressing room door of Raft Ragland on the "Girl Crazy" set at M-G-M. . . . Even on Bataan, the movies must have their glamor. There will be a bathing suit sequence in a Bataan stream, for the otherwise deglamorized girls who will play army nurses in Metro's "Cry Havoc."

Despite all the denials, Alexis Smith and Craig Stevens will list to wedding bells next month. . . . Simone Simon is trying to help John Huston forget Olivia de Havilland. . . . During a recent visit to New York, a lah-de-dah movie queen was in the elevator with Charlie Chaplin at the Hotel Pierre. She overheard a lovely blond say she was going to Hollywood in a few days.

The movie queen gushed: "My dear, you should meet Mr. Chaplin. He knows everybody in Hollywood and could probably get you a screen test." The blond kept a frosty silence until the elevator stopped, then walked out haughtily. "Who does she think she is?" asked the movie queen. "That," grinned the elevator boy, "is Congresswoman Claire Booth Luce."

Home Front's Real Danger

By PETER EDSON Pampa News Washington Correspondent

MAYBE it's about time to revive some of the "We can lose this war" talk which was current last August. The news from Tunisia and Attu is all to the good these days, but the news from home, if you'll take the trouble to read between the lines, is all terrible.

Last August, everyone was fearful we were losing the battle of production. War Production Board was in a sorry confusion itself, and its disputes with the Army and Navy procurement services seemed endless and impossible of solution. But WPB snapped out of it, settled the worst of its own internal rows, fired a few of its brass hats who were gumming up the works, established liaison with the Army on one flank and with the Navy on the other, reorganized its lines, brought in some new talent and started going places.

Elsewhere on the home front, however, we are taking a terrible licking. The battle against inflation has become a rout, almost any day, and when the history of this campaign is written the chapter covering the days in which you are now living can be identified as the period of great indecision and glorious inconsistency.

There is no apparent plan of battle, and the commissars, co-ordinators and congressmen in command don't seem to be able to decide what to do about it. His successor, Prentiss M. Brown, may have to follow him into exile because he is too soft.

When OPA does get firm about wanting to lower some basic food prices—livestock on the hoof for instance—the War Food Administration objects. Prices must be kept up to encourage production. Result? Stymie.

The only way in which selling prices may be kept down while production prices are kept up is through the granting of subsidies to producers, yet Congress will have no part of subsidies or incentive payments, and will appropriate no money to finance them. Stymied again.

Congress sees the need for greater aid, and aid to small business, yet threatens to cut off aid to small farmers through the War Security Administration. Justify that.

Congress sees the need for greater taxation to finance the war effort, yet argues five months to find a way to forgive a year's taxes. Add that up to make logic.

WLB SWAMPED THE War Labor Board, struggling to hold the front against wage increases, is buried under its own barrage of 17,000 unsettled applications for raises. It settles so few cases each week that strikes at key war plants like Boeing and Chrysler actually break out in protest over the board's inability to come to a decision—any decision. Meanwhile, one man with a name something like John L. Lewis, forces the War Labor Board into a corner, monopolizes its time for a part of every day for a period of over two months while other cases must wait.

Office of Economic Stabilization which is supposed to mastermind this battle against inflation, serves no useful purpose that anyone can see, save to deliver messages from the White House.

Before very much time goes by, it looks as though there will most certainly have to be some wholesale reorganizations, housecleanings, reshuffling of brass hats, changing of policies—just such as WLB has gone through in the past nine months—but any improvement can be made. If it isn't done, we can lose this battle of inflation, and we can lose this war at home.

Today's War Analysis

EDI THE WAR TODAY tittittittit DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer

One of the best press of news to come out of China in a long time is the formal declaration by the Chinese Communists that they will stand by the government "until Japan and her Axis partners are defeated and construction of an independent, democratic China is completed."

This announcement is tantamount to a pledge that the Red armies in the field—and there are several of them—will fight beside Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's forces to the end.

That's of the utmost importance not only to China but to the cause of the United Nations. Sooner or later there must be a show-down between the Reds and the central government to determine whether the Communist party shall be permitted to exist along with General Chiang's Kuomintang (Nationalist) party, which is the only one recognized officially.

Should this show-down come while the war is in progress it might easily produce a catastrophe. There have been many clashes at arms between the Communist-led armies and the Central.

China's gravest hour of trial in her conflict with the Japanese lies immediately ahead. About her only resources are manpower (for which she lacks equipment) and unlimited courage and determination. Her task is to keep herself from being knocked out pending the time when the Allies can give her adequate aid.

The period of emergency may last for some months before the United Nations can launch a major blow at the Japanese on the continent and thus relieve the pressure on the Chinese. The United Nations will have to open up a route to Chungking by ousting the Nipponese from Burma.

The minimum time that the Chinese will have to shift largely for themselves, except for increased help from the Allies in the way of air power, would seem to be some six months. The United Nations must undertake operations in the Southwest Pacific which will act as a deterrent to the Japs on the continent, but these operations can scarcely halt the Jap efforts to complete their conquest of China while the Allies are engaged in defeating Hitler.

Thus the solidarity of the Communist and the Central government forces at this juncture may be the link with victory.

It's interesting that the Communist declaration coincides with Moscow's action in dissolving the Comintern which years ago labeled it "the general staff of world revolution." The central executive committee of the Chinese Communist party endorsed the Moscow move as hastening the defeat of the Axis powers.

BUY VICTORY BONDS Old Age Pension Payments Delayed AUSTIN, May 29 (AP)—Payment of June Old Age pensions will be delayed a week or 10 days pending approval of the revised state plan to conform with the 48th legislature's old age assistance legislation.

June payments will go out, welfare department officials said, as soon as federal security officials act. This procedure is necessary under the law making available federal matching money. The June average payment will be $20.31 to 183,154 pensioners. While this is 84 cents more than the average May payment of $19.47, it is still $2.48 under the amount authorized by law and which would be paid if funds were available.

Since the appropriation of the 48th legislature is not sufficient to eliminate cuts in old age checks, a welfare department statement explained, "proportion this becomes an accepted system of distributing the old age appropriation."

Pro Grid Meeting Set For June 19

CHICAGO, May 29 (AP)—The National football league's second meeting of the year has been called for June 19 and 20 primarily to approve the new schedule and draft an additional 200 collegians, but there's an outside chance one or more petitions for club franchises will be presented then, too.

Commissioner Elmer Layden today named Chicago as the site of the encore meeting to the April gathering, at which time member teams were unable to agree on a schedule.

AUSTIN, May 29 (AP)—Speedy application of the revised liquor control act, especially provisions aimed at tightening up on honky-tonks, was urged today on local law enforcement officers by Liquor Administrator Bert Ford.

He mailed district and county attorneys, county judges and other peace officers an analysis and explanation of changes made by the Moffett bill passed by the 48th legislature, reminding them that it is not the same as the curfew law which does not become effective until August.

Cincinnati Whips Dodgers as Cards Win

Yanks Finally Go On Big Hitting Spree

CINCINNATI, May 29 (AP)—Lonnie Frey, who used to labor for the Brooklyn Dodgers without getting too many laughs out of it, had a great big chuckle at the expense of the Bums today.

Now serving the Cincinnati Reds, the veteran second-sacker broke up a ball game today by belting a single with the bases loaded in the 11th inning to give the Reds a 5 to 4 victory.

What made it especially funny for Lonnie—aside from the fact it nullified a ninth-inning three-run Brooklyn rally that tied the score—was that the defeat left the Dodgers with only a shaky half-game hold on first place in the National league. The win boosted the Reds into fourth place.

One of the signs posted in the Phillies clubhouse by Owner Bill Cox reads: "Players will be handed their last two weeks pay at the end of the season when they turn in their complete uniforms at the office." . . . Which seems to emphasize the point that this is the first time in many years that a Phillies suit would be regarded as a souvenir.

Gridsters May Play Against Own Colleges

DALLAS, May 29 (AP)—Question: If a star football player from Rice should be sent to Texas Christian University to train with the marines would he play for the Horned Progs? If so, would he play against the school for which he had given his all for a couple of years?

Such points are being raised as reports indicate Rice and Texas will lose most of their experienced gridgers because they are not to be designated as marine war colleges. The upshot is that Baylor, which was not expected to participate in Southwest Conference athletics this year, may be given a new lease, and Texas Christian and Southern Methodist will become the top teams, replacing defending champion Texas and highly-ranked Rice.

Texas Christian, Southern Methodist and Baylor are expected to be designated, meaning some of the star football players from Rice and Texas are likely to turn up at T. C. U., S. M. U. and Baylor.

Texas would lose seven veterans and Rice would lose 10 of 12 lettermen depart.

Regarding the question of whether these men would play football if sent to marine schools, two of those who would be affected gave these answers:

Bill Blackburn, Rice center: "I will play football at any school assigned, conference or non-conference, against Rice or anyone else. I believe that is the attitude of all Rice players."

Jackie Field, Texas backfield ace: "That's a pretty hard question. Naturally, I would like to play football but playing against Texas is something else. I suppose I'll do what the other fellows do and probably we'll get together and talk it over."

Observing 50th Wedding Anniversary, Bairds Of Miami Recall Old-Time Days In Texas Panhandle

By LORENE OSBORNE LOCKE

Monday, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Baird observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. And, most unusual, they have lived all 50 of them in Miami. They have lived in only four different houses and Baird has had only two different jobs, the last of these being in the First State bank, as cashier and president, for almost 36 years.

Baird was one of Miami's first railway agents, coming here in October, 1889. At that time Miami was the shipping point for old Ft. Elliott and handled more freight than any place between Woodward, which was the shipping point for Ft. Sill, and Panhandle City, which was the end of the line. The Miami depot was the largest between those towns, too.

Baird had apprenticed in the railroad business under Dick Powers who was agent at Elk City, Kans., his home town. The first agent at Miami stayed a very short time, and Powers was sent to take his place. Powers soon found that he needed a helper so he sent for the young man who had learned the railroad business his way.

When the fort was abandoned at Mobeetie the depot force at Miami was reduced and Baird was sent to Panhandle City where he stayed eight months as agent. That is the only time he has been employed elsewhere since coming to Miami.

In 1890 the young railroader came back to Miami to take the job of station agent, a position he held for 17 years. When asked if he wasn't quite young for such a position Baird replied that he had never voted anywhere else.

He told another amusing experience that happened during those early years. "Just to show you how different things were in those days," he said, "Pampa was only a flag station called Sutton. Twice a year in the spring and the fall at cattle shipping time was there enough business to justify having an agent there."

"Other seasons of the year Miami billed the shipping contracts. Well, during one of the times when they had an agent there he got on a big drunk. When he sobered up he found four messages on file that he had sent resigning his job. He immediately sent this wire, 'All former messages void. Am now ready for duty.' And do you know telegraph operators were so scarce in those days that he did not lose his job."

Before Baird came to Miami he had met the young lady who was later to come to the Panhandle as his bride. She was Miss Adah Heckard. Her family had moved to Elk City from another part of Kansas. They became interested in each other and kept up a correspondence after he came west. She had been out there one time on a visit with Baird's sister, Mrs. Edge.

In May, 1893, Wed., as every one calls him, went back to Elk City, and on the 24th they were married by a Methodist minister.

"Poor preacher," Mrs. Baird told me, "it killed him, I guess. At least he had never married anyone else, and he went right home from the ceremony and got sick and died sometime later."

"He must have done a good job if it did kill him. He tied a knot that lasted 50 years," her husband answered. "At that he wasn't scared as bad as I was."

There were not more than six or seven families living in Miami when Mrs. Baird came to make her home. She said that the thing she missed most was having no church. She had never lived where there were no churches before. At one time she did not hear a sermon for seven months.

So, with a number of Presbyterian families that had moved here in the meantime, Mrs. Baird set to work to build a church. "We got $1000 from the Presbytery," she related. "Samuel Edge gave the land on which the Presbyterian church and manse still stand. The Mobeetie church building had been blown away by a tornado, so we got the old bell, carpets, pews, pulpit and pulpit chairs from there."

"My, that little church looked like a million dollars to us when we got it finished," she remembered. "It looked so big inside. We did have a hard time paying for it but it was worth it. All the children in town came to Sunday School there."

Baird helped build the first school building. It was a two-room building about 20 by 35 feet. J. C. Seiber, father of the late C. S. and J. L. Seiber, pioneer business men, and J. O. B. Street, another oldtimer, with Baird were the school board.

In 1907 the First State Bank was organized and Hod Baird left the railroad job to go into the bank as cashier. In September he will have been employed in the bank for 36 years. He has been its president since the death of B. F. Talley some months ago.

The Bairds have two daughters, Mrs. Pauline O'Keefe of Panhandle and Mrs. Dallas George of Miami, and one grandson, John Baird O'Keefe.

There is very little been done in Miami of civic progress that the Bairds have not had a part in during these 50 years. In addition to the buildings mentioned above, Mr. Baird was one of the stewards who helped build the present brick build-

Should Labor Share in the Management of Private Industry?

MR. SHISHKIN OPENS: Denial to workers of any share in management means absolute control of work, labor's blind obedience to arbitrary rules. It is bad management; it bars growth and improvement. The worker who performs the job knows more about doing that job better. If the worker has a say about the improvement of his job, he has a share in management at the job level. If workers in a department have a say about production flow, labor shares in the management of that department. In a plant or a whole industry, such labor participation in management is essential to progress. To help achieve maximum war production, a joint labor-management War Production Drive was launched.

MR. SHISHKIN OPENS: Formerly labor unions did not interfere with management of industry. They bargained over wages and working conditions but usually were content to leave the running of the business to those hired for that job. Recent years have seen distinct evidences of a purpose to "muscle in" on the functions of management—the Reuther and Murray plans; strikes to enforce changes in operating methods; union demands covering subjects formerly considered under the sole jurisdiction of employers; persistent attempts to secure labor representation in policy-making levels of war agencies. Through closed shop contracts and in other ways unions attempt to take over authority for discipline. A different approach to the same end is the attempt of some organizations to unionize foremen.

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

Should Labor Share in the Management of Private Industry?

Moderated by FRED G. CLARK, General Chairman, American Economic Foundation

As debated by Boris Shishkin, Economist for the American Federation of Labor and Edward S. Cowdrick, Prominent Consultant in Industrial Relations

MR. SHISHKIN OPENS: Denial to workers of any share in management means absolute control of work, labor's blind obedience to arbitrary rules. It is bad management; it bars growth and improvement. The worker who performs the job knows more about doing that job better. If the worker has a say about the improvement of his job, he has a share in management at the job level. If workers in a department have a say about production flow, labor shares in the management of that department. In a plant or a whole industry, such labor participation in management is essential to progress. To help achieve maximum war production, a joint labor-management War Production Drive was launched.

MR. SHISHKIN OPENS: Formerly labor unions did not interfere with management of industry. They bargained over wages and working conditions but usually were content to leave the running of the business to those hired for that job. Recent years have seen distinct evidences of a purpose to "muscle in" on the functions of management—the Reuther and Murray plans; strikes to enforce changes in operating methods; union demands covering subjects formerly considered under the sole jurisdiction of employers; persistent attempts to secure labor representation in policy-making levels of war agencies. Through closed shop contracts and in other ways unions attempt to take over authority for discipline. A different approach to the same end is the attempt of some organizations to unionize foremen.

Of Cabbages and Queens

By Jane Bara

This is the time of the year when June brides break out like a rash in the nation's tabloids—and you can't walk within 3 blocks of a church without being tarred by the scent of the wedding party's corsages of gardenias and orange blossoms. Mothers will give mild imitations of Niagara Falls in action as they weep for joy. Fathers will wear the usual baffled look as they try to decide what they're supposed to do. But there is a difference this year. Formerly the bridegroom was considered part of the general scenery—if at all. Now with uniforms sparkling on every side he is shoved into the spotlight. It takes the play away from the bride a little—but remember what Sherman said about war, ladies!

On the whole humanity is pretty romantic at heart. Youth is especially so and in wartime extremely so. The glamor of a uniform plus the elements of separation, danger and "no time," are booming the marriage license business.

The role of the ole meanie who calls attention to the more practical angles of war marriages is unpopular. From the psychological angle, war marriages take good health, steady nerves, and fine digestion to bring to marriage the tolerance and good nature which will make a go of it. But this is all supposing you have a man—lets take a purely hypothetical case here, and suppose the girl is without a man (this is a hypothetical because nowadays a girl without a man is a novelty)—so— to quote Juliet Farnham, author of "How To Meet Men and Marry," published in N. Y.—"It makes no difference if you are tall, small, fat or thin; if you know your type there's a man for you. He takes all kinds of understanding, but once that is accomplished, you have practically got him hooked. If you are the intelligent type—the stay-at-home-type, the pipe smoker and the aloof intellectual are your "best bets." Even the most aloof of males can be man-aled if you've got the right technique and use it."

Also speaking of men, we steal this from the "Cautious Cat"—"How Modern Women Analyze The Modern Male"—"Men are what women marry. They have two hands, two feet and sometimes two wives, but never more than one dollar or one idea at a time. Like Turkish cigarettes, they are a little of everything. The only difference is some are better disguised than others. Generally speaking, they can be divided into three classes: husbands, bachelors and widowers. A bachelor is an eligible mass of obstinacy entirely surrounded by suspicion. Husbands are of three types: prizes, surprises, and consolation prizes. Making a husband out of a man is one of the highest forms of plastic art known to civilization. It requires science, sculpture, common sense, faith, hope and charity. Mostly charity. It is a psychological marvel that a small tender, soft violet-colored woman enjoys kissing a big, awkward, stub-chinned, tobacco and rum-scented thing called a man. If you flatter a man, you frighten him to death. If you don't, you bore him to death. If you permit him to make love to you, he gets tired of you in the end. If you don't he gets tired of you in the beginning.

If you agree with him on everything, you cease to interest him. If you argue with him on everything you cease to charm him. If you believe all he tells, he thinks you're a fool, and if you don't, he thinks you are a cynic. If you wear gay colors, rouge and startling hats he hesitates to take you out. But if you wear a brown beret and a tailored, stub-chinned, tobacco and rum-scented thing called a man. If you flatter a man, you frighten him to death. If you don't, you bore him to death. If you permit him to make love to you, he gets tired of you in the end. If you don't he gets tired of you in the beginning.

Whoever heard of anyone treasuring a potato? Other vegetables made their seasonal debuts in a flurry of popularity. But never potatoes. No one ever rushed to the market to see if potatoes were in. They always were. No one gave them a thought until the knife slipped them at the end of her grocery order, as an afterthought—"Oh yes, send me a peck of potatoes."

MRS. FRED ROBERTS
 Everyone who is interested in Red Cross aid to service men in hospitals and able-bodied men in the armed forces is happy to know that American Red Cross volunteers produced 3,192,972 articles for them during the past eight months. The articles were made according to Army and Navy specifications. The Midwestern area of which Pampa is a part contributed the greatest amount of hospital equipment with a total of 321,781 articles while the Pacific area led with its contribution of 720,570 items to the able-bodied of the armed forces. In the majority of cases, the areas either equaled or exceeded their quotas.

We are proud of Pampa's part in this production. This week under the direction of Mrs. L. L. Davis and Mrs. E. C. Hart, shipping chairman, and Mrs. J. B. Massa, production chairman, we sent out eight huge cartons containing a total of 827 articles. Mrs. Massa says that this represents 3,235 hours of work.

For U. S. Army and Navy Station Hospitals we sent: 251 fracture pillows, 143 pajamas, 95 bed shirts, 20 navy ditty bags, 157 fracture pillow slips, 4 toe socks and 7 beanies.

For the U. S. Armed Forces: 18 army sleeveless sweaters, 11 army turtleneck sweaters, 3 navy turtleneck sweaters, 18 pairs army gloves.

es, 8 pairs wristlets, 14 pairs army socks, 5 army mufflers, 1 navy helmet, 8 large quilts and 2 small quilts.

For Foreign War Relief: 2 children's sweaters, 5 women's blouses, 1 woman's sweater, 10 children's pajamas and 1 pair men's socks.

For Pampa Army Air School Hospital: 50 bedside bags.

Many hours were put in by the sewing, knitting and shipping chairman to get this large shipment off. One of the women said, as she pasted on labels and glued cartons, that she wasn't "frozen" to her job but "glued" to it. Joe Key, chapter chairman, was there to tie up the cartons. One of the men from the recruiting office helped, too.

Did you notice that the very first news article on the recent floods mentioned the Red Cross being on the job? Even the Pampa chapter had a part in it. There were soldiers home on furlough who couldn't get back to their camp and the Home Service department had to contact their commanding officers so that the men would not be AWOL. One soldier came in almost daily and once his mother came with him, for they were so worried about his having to overstay his leave. The Pampa chapter made a loan, too, to a soldier's relative who was stranded here because of the floods.

Adequate supplies of food, regardless of rationing regulations, will be made available to residents of disaster-stricken areas as a result of joint action by the Office of Price Administration, Department of Agriculture and the American Red Cross.

In Mrs. R. R. Harrah's absence from the city Mrs. J. B. White and her staff assistants have packed and shipped 200 comfort kits. They were going to wait for Mrs. Harrah's return but a card from the St. Louis office a few days ago said, "Because of the rapid movement of troops, we are asking all chapters to ship their quotas of filled kit bags by the end of May."

Of course the quota of 400 that we accepted last fall had long since been shipped but you will remember that because we collected some $200 more than we needed, the chapter agreed to send another 400. The other 200 will be shipped by June 15. Pampa will then have sent over 1100 kit bags thus far.

Mrs. Earl O'Brien, sewing chairman, wants to thank the group of Mexican women that quilted two quilts so beautifully last week. We are so happy to have groups of women like this to help us. Do feel free to come in at any time.

Are there some women who have a knowledge of sewing who cannot give much time in the production room, but could substitute occasionally when one of the officers-of-the-day cannot be there? Call Mrs. J. B. Massa or Mrs. Earl O'Brien if you could help in this way. Production room hours are from 9 to 11 and 2:30 to 4:30. An officer-of-the-day is on duty of course only half a day.

There are pajamas and robes to be sewed right now. We should try to get these finished before it gets too hot.

Mrs. C. P. Buckler, surgical dressings chairman, is still looking for more helpers. The surgical dressings room is on the first floor of the City Hall. If you can give one morning or afternoon a week won't you come in and enroll? It's hard to think of anything connected with service to our soldiers, more important than this.

Mrs. Sherman White, chairman of the emergency closet, needs still more blankets to be used as padding for quilts. Are you discarding some that you have used this winter? Here's a good place for them.

Certificates for the Standard First Aid course taught by C. A. Husted have been received at the Red Cross office. The following may get their certificates by calling at the office on the third floor of the City Hall: Louise M. Arent, Lucille Brown, R. C. Brown, Mrs. R. C. Brown, Mrs. W. S. George, Mrs. Joe Gordon, Mrs. D. W. Slaton, Mrs. E. L. Yeargain and Pat-tye Hollingshead. The course was completed May 7.

Last Tuesday a new Standard course was organized with H. M. One as instructor.

New Korda Picture Bomber Crew Saga

By BROWNWOOD EMERSON

Ever notice this line is a story of a bombing mission? "All of our planes, except one, returned safely." What happens to the crew of a missing bomber is told in an exciting and well-acted account of the escape of six Royal Air Force airmen from the Netherlands, titled "One of Our Aircraft is Missing", showing today, tomorrow, and Tuesday at the Rex.

This new Alexander Korda picture, which United Artists is releasing, was written, produced, and directed by Michael Powell, the man responsible for the successful "The Invaders."

The film deals with the exploits of six RAF fliers who are forced to bail out in Holland after successfully carrying out a bombing mission in Stuttgart, Germany. They are discovered by Dutch children, who take the fliers to their schoolteacher for questioning. It takes time, but eventually the teacher is convinced they aren't Nazis in disguise. How they manage to escape, aided by the Dutch provides the plot of the story.

Barbara Stanwyck and Michael O'Shea, who makes his debut in the film have the romantic leads in a drama of burlesque life, United Artists "Lady of Burlesque" current at the LaNora. Story is based on story by Gypsy Rose Lee, strip tease artist, titled "G-String Murders."

Movies Planned At Scout Meet

Rev. Robert Boshen, chairman of the Adobe Walls council advancement committee, announced Saturday that the public relation service of the Boy Scouts of America, has furnished the following visual education films for the regular Court of Honor next Monday night, which will be held at the county court room at 7:30.

The first picture to be shown will be on "Scout Methods of Waterfront Safety." This film gives the "do's and don'ts" of waterfront safety in a humorous and every day manner. This will be very helpful to those scouts that intend to take active part in the waterfront activities at Camp Ki-O-Wah, Rev. Boshen said.

The second picture is entitled "The Making of a Shooter." This picture, Rev. Boshen said is sponsored by the Sporting Arms and Ammunition Institute. It is a contribution to the safe handling of firearms by youth and will do adults no harm. The picture is endorsed by national and state game departments and the National Rifle Association.

The citizens of Pampa are given a cordial invitation to attend this special Memorial Day program, he said.

Wheeler Exceeds May Bond Quota

SHAMROCK, May 29—Frank Scofield, state war bond administrator, has advised R. J. Holt, Wheeler county war bond chairman, that $43,668.75 in bonds had been purchased by Wheeler county citizens the first week in May.

This amount is nearly $12,000 more than the $31,660 May quota placed on the county.

Texas' man in the street paced the entire nation in the purchase of war bonds in the Second War Loan Drive.

Holt explains that it is possible that report of sales of some of the bonds purchased in the recent drive may have reached the state office too late to be counted, and could have been included in the report.

Scotfield stated that this district had a goal of $400,000,000 for all bond sales in the war bond drive. It handed Uncle Sam $572,451,600 which means that the goal was over subscribed 43 per cent.

Jack Montgomery, chairman of the Second War Loan drive in Wheeler county, announced this week that the final figures on purchases of war bonds and stamps in Wheeler county revealed a total of $230,395.00 in the non-bank sales and $255,878.00 in the bank sales.

Frank Perry, Valedictorian; Don Loshier, Salutatorian

Awards Students

Frank Perry, valedictorian, ranked four points higher than the second student, Don Loshier.

Both these boys have been in Pampa Junior High for the past three years. Frank came from Sam Houston, entered Mrs. John Rankin's seventh grade room with the same teacher in the eighth. Frank was president of his home room here. This year Frank is in Room 218, Miss Madge Rusk's room. He is a calm, level-headed boy with a personality which suggests good judgment and executive ability. He has been an active member of the choir and belongs to the Boy Scouts. He attends the Presbyterian church.

Don Loshier has also attended school in Junior High for his past three years, in Mr. C. Hightower's room in the seventh grade, and in Mrs. John Rankin's room in the eighth. This year Don has been in Room 218, Miss Madge Rusk's room. He has shown special aptitude in dramatics and school programs and was the recipient of several top accuracy papers.

Honorable mention went to the following for coming close to high in grades: Elva Jean Anderson and Doris Barrett, tied for third place; Beverly Candler with two points less, and in Sharyn Rose Poock with five points less.

New Worlds To Conquer

BY MARY McMURRAY

Farewell to Junior High for the 600 students who leave this week for Senior High has its varying moods.

For the Eighth grader, he will imagine for awhile just what might have been had he remained at Junior High top of the pot. It will mean more than walking out of the front door and saying, "Boy, I am glad to be out of there!" It means starting life a little earlier as a Freshman with older students about. Farewell to the Eighth grader means excitement, new excitement, and new surroundings!

Farewell to the Freshman was expected. He will recall the memories of over-stuffed lockers and crowded halls. Goodbye to the struggle for a Courtesy Card and to be in the Victory Corps.

It means farewell to some very fine Freshman teachers. It will seem strange in the new building with new instructors, new rooms, and new setup.

No more overclassman domination.

As Freshmen and Sophomores next year the 600 boys and girls look back to Junior High, many pleasant memories will come up at first. Then the new home will be the best home and nobody wishes to remain unprogressive and growing. So farewell, Junior High!

22 Football Boys Receive Jackets In Assembly

When 22 football players on the Reaper team received their blue and white jackets in assembly last week, Coach Haskell Polson and Mr. Winston Savage, principal, also received jackets.

After all the boys had received their sweaters, the principal asked, "would you like to see the boys in their jackets?" You know the answer. The curtain was drawn. Present! The boys and their mentors had changed to the bright blues.

(Note: It was a cold day and the sweaters were comfortable even in the classrooms that afternoon!)

Examination Schedule Finished Wednesday

At the direction of the principal, Miss Betty Jean Tiemann reached in the hat or fishbowl or box to draw schedules for final exams last week. This was the schedule followed:

Monday: Mathematics and English Tuesday: Science and History, and Home Economics Wednesday: Music, Art, Junior Business, and Development.

Only on Wednesday was the period its full length of one hour. On Monday and Tuesday the homeroom hour was divided up among the afternoon classes, and the development classes were shortened in order to give more time to the main classes.

King and Burula

Ninth grade Extemporaneous speeches held lately under the direction of Miss Violet Durrett gave the best reports to Pat King and Beverly Burba.

Pat spoke on the North African Campaign, and Beverly chose the topic, Submarine Campaign.

Five students rated good: Kathryn Rose 211, B. J. Gillis 214, James Harrah 211, Anna Merle Cox 215, and Bill Cole 113.

Cooleen Voyles rated fair. Several other students failed to make a rating due to the time element of delivery.

Behind the Hump

By DON HUMPHREYS

Jimmie McTaggart is coming from Amarillo to pay a little visit. Gloria Jay will like this.

Couples attending the Freshman dance: Jack Hood and Marguerite Johnson; Randall Clay and Joyce Pratt; Libby Sturgeon and Jerry Nash; Don Warren and Sybil Pierson.

Jack Dunham and Billy Clay have been playing the swing shift. They are both impressed by Orma Jean McCarty.

Wanda Sue Campbell leaves for California next week where her father is stationed with the Navy. Nathan Lee Thomas will miss her.

Nathan Lee's brother, Duane Thomas, for the past year on European and American fronts is visiting his parents this week. Three years ago he was in Junior High.

Band students presented their director, Mr. Ray Robbins, with a parting gift this week. Doris Shackelford made the presentation.

A day of miracles has come. Willis Stark passed to Senior High. They did not have to turn down the school.

Bonfires in the paper basket are a little too much, stated Mr. Gallman.

Donald Rowe's final edition of his looseleaf notebook made a great show of Norma Dee Hall's name.

Charlie Beard and Jack Dunham will see that Miss Crossman and Miss Sparks get to the Freshman dance—if they have their way.

Russell Neef and Lucille Smith created an attraction at the show Sunday. Doris Flood and Basil Reichuber—also.

Charlie Beard says, "Wait'll you see me Thursday night, and then you will have something for your column." It didn't come in.

Confused Confessions Of Frightened Freshmen

Were you worried Wednesday night as you went home after the last, and most useless day in school?

One boy said, "No, I woke up in the night and couldn't sleep, and so I just played my harmonica. I had a friend staying with me, and we talked about it awhile, and then got sleepy enough after a walk around the block."

Another remarked, "No, I wasn't worried. I just never did go to bed—walked up and down all night."

This is the story of a third uncertain one. Up until 10 o'clock Wednesday night, he did all right. He talked on the street with friends and saw the show. But when he just lay there and thought about how he liked "them lovely" teachers. Finally, he tossed himself to sleep and woke with a start about 6 a. m. Hurdled, he dressed and had breakfast. Then he mounted his bicycle (sign says "Super Power," but not much power at that time—a sort of weak feeling).

Getting to town this unknown person parks his bike over at Patrick's and very cautiously moves around the north side of the gym and up the sidewalk. Suddenly all out of nowhere there comes a person across the street that resembles a Junior High student. Away this victim runs and ducks into the corner of the little Ag building on the corner. Sure enough, it was a fellow sufferer peering at the auditorium door which at this time was moving its course still empty of the list of graduates. He heads off into another direction. So the first fellow sneaks up to the door—no paper telling the names of the grads. To a second door he goes, but still no paper.

Relieved somewhat, but still scar-

Room 216, 2B Tie For School Plaque

Winner of the school plaque in intramurals for 1943 was found to be a tie between two rooms in the Eight Grade, Room 216 and Room 2B with 365 points each. This plaque as well as the Eighth grade plaque came as part of the assembly program as a final gathering in the auditorium Wednesday.

Other winners are listed:

Ninth Grade, 1st, rooms 211 and 213 with 340 points; 2nd, 218, 235; 3rd, 214, 295.

Eighth Grade, 1st, rooms 216 and 2B with 365 points; 2nd, 213, 290 points; 3rd, 117, 260 points.

Seventh grade, 1st, rooms 203, 300 points; 2nd, 221, 290 points; 3rd, 209, 205 points.

Sixth Grade, 1st, 108, 340 points; 2nd, 191, 320 points; and 3rd, 105, 292 points.

Forty Freshmen Receive Special Awards In Program

Registrar Finds Secret Method For Quietude

Everyone came into the office one day last week with a sociable look but left with freezing fingers and wondering what had happened to the heating system. The office was waiting for the freezing point. Every body had on coats and sat huddled at his work.

Secret? Miss Ollie Crossman raised all the windows so she would not have so much company. She had serious work to be done. That is one way! Free'em out!

Chatter

Everyone has run about all week with more than they can do and more waiting to be done.

Miss Burrett is eagerly looking forward to going home she says.

Sybil Pierson leaves June 2 for Camp Waldenmore for six weeks.

Betty Bruner is making her exit the thirteenth toward Kansas.

Many of the students are looking forward to a summer work. Randall Clay begins using a tractor Monday after school closes.

Donald Rowe and Basil Reichuber will work on the farm.

Colleen Voyles and Dolores Watson discovered some cute boys go up by elevator in the Combs Worley building at noon.

The Reaper office took on the look of the Union Station this last week except the folks who walked up and down were waiting to give someone lines. Did your memory lines total 100?

Many found the math tests were not so bad after all—if you know how.

Dee Griffin says he has a one-track mind. Is that why his memory comes so hard—his mind on something else all the time?

Don Warren says memory is the world's worst kind of punishment. But he muddled through.

Ninth grade staff will be watching the Reaper next year and will expect with all the trained personnel from the present Seventh grade Journalism class that a good paper will tell us the news in Junior high.

Billy Waggoner and Phyllis Parker were just a little bit late at getting started. Many love affairs just wait off on the summer breeze during vacation days.

Ray Priest haunts the Seventh grade hall. It may be Doris Taylor. Frank Perry can't take a hint. Beverly, you might as well just tell him.

Although Jimmy Terrell leaves for Reno Monday, he says it is not for a divorce.

Louise Clark seems quite thrilled since a recent party.

Mr. Morgan became rather lenient to the first hour science class Tuesday. He answered one-seventh of a question.

Betty Bruner was with Clifton Walker at the circus.

June Russell is looking forward to getting back to Oklahoma to visit her friends.

Is it the brown Chevrolet or the drive that intrigues Beverly Burba? He is from Abilene.

June Russell received an early graduation present from her brother.

All the Ninth grade girls in choir have a funny falling feeling where Jerry Jester and Bruce Lively are concerned.

Betty Myatt and Vesta Grace James escorted Jack Perry to the show Sunday—but it was only part of their Tri-Hi-Y initiation.

Another young lady escorting a young gentleman Friday was Miss Crossman sneezing Basil Reichuber through.

Hansel Kennedy ought to be an author. He writes Mrs. Rose some homeys.

Mary Jones had a birthday party at her home Friday night.

Judging from the studying Jack Dunham has been doing at sixth hour, he must not take anything but science.

Norma Dee Hall has received an invitation to the graduation night dance from Bill Hutchinson.

Nathan Lee Thomas and his vehicle at the track meet! Everybody took it over. Nathan Lee's brother in the service is due in this week end.

Maybe he will visit in Junior High as well as at Senior High.

Does Jerry Nash still believe what he wrote in Libby Sturgeon's autobiography?

Room 211 has gone in for love notes, as well as the two mentioned above from Room 218.

Several girls have new watches for graduation.

Jimmy Terrell: What are you going to do with the car?

Reply: Nothing. It's going to sit in the garage.

Everyone was beginning to feel helpless with new dresses and all and rain, rain, rain!

At least the Plains will not break a levee or get a flood stage and run all over the country. The lakes rarely ever get vicious.

Norma Lee Dewey went to Oklahoma this week and left Jim Wilson lonely.

Records From Files Of The Reaper

Journalism classes from the Eighth and Seventh grades have contributed material which has been of special aid to the Reaper staff this year. As part of the work of the Reaper staff, files have been kept of every student in school.

The students mentioned most often in each of the four grades follows:

Ninth Grade
Charles Beard, 83; Dee Griffin, 77; Charles Hatcher, 77; and Donald Rowe, 62.

School Music Lovers Bring Last Public Sing Song

Last Friday night was culmination for all music groups who sing in the Pampa schools. More than 650 students ranging from the lowest grade in the ward school to seniors in high school dressed for the occasion and gathered in one mass chorus on the stage in the Pampa Junior High auditorium.

An appreciative audience listened to the numbers directed by first one conductor and then another from the schools of Pampa public schools. Songs ranged from small singings groups in the pit and perched on the edge of the stage to great united choruses including the Senior High A Capella choir in robes of green and gold with bass voices.

The following directors produced these parts with Miss Marion Reichling Senior High supervisor; Miss LaVerne Schaefer and Mrs. Robert Carter, Junior High school; Miss Evelyn Thoma, Baker; Miss Mary Armstrong, Woodrow Wilson; Miss Marion Reisinger, for Horace Mann; Mrs. Paul Jones, Sam Houston.

Agriculture School Prepares Boys For Summer Farm Employment

The agriculture school which is preparing boys for summer work promises to be a great help in uniform training for harvest in the wheat fields in this section this season.

Farmers together with the Senior High Ag teachers and county agent have held lessons for boys with notebook in hand and tractor on the spot for 20 hours. After this session the boys are ready to take over tractor work.

Four main points stressed are these:

1. Change oil every 40 or 50 hours.
2. Grease every 6 hours.
3. Use clean gas, and keep it clean.
4. Water.

Some of the boys had lived on farms, had worked on farms before, had taken the agricultural course, and others found this new interest only lately when the call came for boys over 14 years old to report for study and experiment.

Says one boy, "first we looked over a little feed grinder and studied it. Then we went out to study the tractor. We learned how to change and drain the oil, cleaning out the dirt from each of the three filters before changing oil which is clean."

"Next came greasing the tractor. Sixteen places are important to be kept greased. Of course, we understood that gasoline was necessary for fuel, but we did not realize how much trouble it would spare the driver to pour the gasoline from the dirty barrel to a bucket and then into the tractor gas tank."

"All farmers agree that it is best never to run a tractor the last hundred yards for the water, but bring the water to the tractor. Shut the motor off and go for the water if signs have developed. Use only clean water."

"When starting the engine again, notice the oil gauge at the same time."

Victory Corps Swells To Score As New Grades Appear At Close

Randall Clay achieved the office of Vice Admiral when the grades came out and he had accrued more than 900 points in the Victory Corps. 18 others have won points and are in the corps. Betty Dulany, Drusilla Boyd, Margaret Jones, Don Morrison, Johnnie Sue Hart, Barbara Morrison, Mary Ann Davis, Connie Clark, Patty Williams, Alice Robinson, Patty Rutherford, Donna

Nensiel, Harbord Cox, Winnie Fleming, Joan Clay, Gordon Frasier, Mary Ann Davis, Carol Culberson, Betty Barrett, and Hansel Kennedy.

At each induction service red, white, and blue candles give the service a patriotic air, and note of solemnity pervades the audience as the appropriate speeches are given and the awards presented, remarkable one of the teachers.

Post-War Building Boom Predicted

WASHINGTON, May 29 (AP)—A post-war building boom was predicted today by the Commerce Department.
Because of the virtual elimination of private residential construction during the war, the department said there is "immediately in sight a post-war demand for 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 family dwelling units" in the nation.

Two South Plains Airmen Killed

LUBBOCK, May 29 (AP)—Lieut. Howard D. Rogers, Altus, Okla., and Staff Sgt. William C. Frederick, Detroit, Mich., stationed at the South Plains Army Air Field, were killed yesterday at Littlefield, Texas, on a routine training flight, the Public Relations office at the airfield announced today.
—BUY VICTORY STAMPS

Dear Editor

If we are to return to sanity in the post war world it will be necessary for us to do some constructive thinking and intelligent planning. It is evident we cannot long continue to tolerate the present New Deal communism, with its program of degeneration of constitutional government and ultimate serfdom, which savors more of bolshevism than Americanism, paganism rather than Christianity. I say Christian, advisedly, because many pagan practices and dogmas are prevalent in so-called Christianity.
If we dared to be truly Christian we would allow no power—human or divine—to restrict our freedom of thought, freedom of speech, freedom of individual expression. Any violation of these self-evident, unalienable rights of all human beings is the product of paganism, even though they may have the Scriptural sanctions of the Jew-Catholic-Protestant cult. Jesus proclaimed this democratic principle when he challenged the people of his age, who were drifting towards dictatorship of state and religion: "Why do you not know what is right for yourself?" This is pertinent challenge for these days when we are persistently surrendering our inherent rights to the despotism of the New Deal, with its bureaucratic form of government and the proposed federation of religion.
But how can we decide what is right for ourselves? The weakness of our educational system is apparent. We have never been taught the principles by which we could judge what is right for ourselves. It is true, they told us "what" to think, and "how" we think; but they never taught the norms by which we could judge "why" we arrive at a decision of what is right. In recent years we have become indoctrinated. We have allowed absolutism, positivism and bureaucracy to develop, either because we did not want to think for ourselves, or were not taught the principles by which we arrive at an intelligent decision of rightness.
In geometry it is impossible to draw a straight line unless there are two established points. But in economics or religion we have not applied the same principle. Yet, it is just as impossible to establish a correct line of conduct without the prerequisite of two established principles, or eternal norms. The straight and narrow way cannot be traversed unless there are certain impersonal, external standards by which we can judge whether we are on the right track or not. Therefore, we can rightly assume that the reason we are in the present chaotic state of ourselves and of our nation, is because we refused to recognize the essential basic principles which should guide us in our decisions regarding what is right.
It is imperative, therefore, if we wish to build a decent, equitable post war world we shall have to discover for ourselves the basic principles, the impersonal eternal norms, by which the right can be judged. We cannot trust the present educational or political set-up to guide us aright. This means, we shall have to dare to do our own thinking, taking the adventure in seeking the unadulterated Christian philosophy. This necessitates the right to begin all over again the search for truth, without limitation or condemnation.
If we continue to accept the misconceptions, pre-conceptions and irrationalities of the Jew-Catholic-Protestant cult, we are doomed to disillusionment, because the same cause insures the same effect. For instance, the Jews have attempted for 4000 years to build a permanent civilization based on a supposed divine revelation, but ended in national destruction. Christendom for 1900 years followed the same misbelief, the accepting by blind faith, without adequate reason, the reliability and verbal inspiration of the divine revelation as contained in the Holy Scriptures but have ended in a global war. The future is forbidding.
There is, however, one way out of the present chaos—if we are courageous to take the adventure. We must discard the traditional viewpoints and dare to judge what is right for ourselves. We must take the philosophy of Jesus seriously as the basis of our investigation. But who will dare to risk the condemnation of the priest-trenched bureaucrats? Has the Easter season no new meaning to this lost and darkened world? I believe it has!

SERIAL STORY Beth Carter, WAAC

BY LORETTE COOPER
COPYRIGHT, 1943, WEN SERVICE, INC.

BATTLE STATION CHAPTER XVIII

OVER her meal, Brit assigned Beth to new duties. He took from his pocket the American forces' tactical plan.
"Your problem in tactics was worked out long ago," he said. "Yes, I know."
"The problem now is one of logistics. You're right about every man helping—even the chaplain'll be out there, encouraging the men. We've got to get replacements fixed in a hurry—more replacements than we had yesterday by a whole lot. This island has only two defenses from an air attack: antiaircraft artillery and barrage balloons. We don't have a fighter plane, or, for that matter, an airplane of any sort here. They'll be here in time, but not in time to save us unless we figure out a way to survive the blasting we're undoubtedly going to get sometime soon."
"Can guns and balloons win for us?" Beth asked.
"I don't know what Washington has to say on that subject, but I think they can. Look what they did for London and a hundred other English cities. If they're good enough for a Britain battered by hundreds of raiders in a single night, we ought to be able to figure out a way to make them good enough for us against a raid of perhaps 20 planes."
"Who do you want me to do, Brit?"
"Just this: I want you to stay in headquarters, right on the end of that field telephone. You know what the tactical plan is. You may have to wait hours, but when the proper moment comes, I'll be depending on you to give the order that will put everything we have into the fight. Do you think you can do that?"
"Is a tremendous responsibility," Beth said. "Everything will depend on you."
"I'll do my best," she said. "That will be enough."
SHE turned her head and looked past him at the concrete wall which was designed to protect headquarters against bombs. She knew that it was thick but she also knew that it was not thick enough to withstand a direct hit. It was up to the Coast Artillery to see that no direct hits came. This nerve center of a future American offensive in the Pacific must come through. It must continue its work toward the day when victory could be advanced with one mighty thrust at Japan's heart.
"Where will you be?" she asked.
"It was not a doubting question, or a critical one. It was simply that she wanted to know, whether he knew it or not, her heart would be with him.
He did not answer for a moment. Then he made the longest speech she had ever heard him make.
"Out here in the war zone everybody does what he can. I'm responsible for everything that goes on here. I can delegate authority but I can never delegate responsibility.
"I'm going out and make my way from emplacement to emplacement, from foxhole to foxhole, from gun to gun, from balloon bed to balloon bed.
"If some place a man is needed right then, to help lift a gun into place, I'm going to be that man. If somewhere else a man is needed to swing a pick or hoist a shovel for five minutes, I'm going to swing that pick or hoist that shovel. I'm going out there and do everything I can to make sure we are prepared the best we can be."

He left her. She did not mind his going even though she wanted to talk to him. She knew how he felt. She had that feeling now, too. They were all one army, and whether they wrestled with training problems at Fort Des Moines or supply problems in Algeria or problems of bombs and bullets in some remote battle-ground like this, they were all fighting for the same cause and the same flag.

BETH finished her coffee. She smiled to herself. Then she said one sentence aloud, muttering, "I won't let you down, Uncle," she promised.
She balanced herself on the crutches that had been given to her. The pain was still in her ankle but it was nullified by an excitement and an exaltation in her soul. She went clumsily toward the major's office but no one noticed her clumsiness.
She sat down in Major Brit, Jackson's chair, at his desk. She laid the tactical plan he had given her atop the desk. She pulled the field telephone close and then placed a test call over it. She was reassured by the knowledge that she was connected directly with the island's switchboard, and that the phones from every major area on the island were plugged in so that she could talk to all of them simultaneously.
She sat, at first tensely, then a little by little relaxing. The hours passed. She did not want them to hasten by. She wanted every one to be long enough so that a mountain of work could be done. For it must be done.
Finally the message she was waiting for came.

This is truly memorable Decoration Day. For many years now, on this occasion we have honored those who fought valiantly in past wars. Today we honor those who fight TODAY, as well, under the glorious red-white and blue.
They are the men who love life and freedom—so much that they are willing to die in the name of liberty. They are the men who will keep the world unshackled for your own and future generations of children. They are the men to whom this Memorial Day is so reverently dedicated . . . they are our men in uniform to whom we wish Godspeed and Victory!

Woodson To Get Grandward Fortune

HOUSTON, May 29 (AP)—The vast E. F. Woodson fortune was left to an only grandson, Robert Woodson, 15, of Houston, in the will of E. F. Woodson and his wife, Mrs. Bessie Woodson, filed today in the county clerk's office for probate. Robert is the son of Mrs. Grace Woodson, Harley E. Woodson, her husband and the only child of the E. F. Woodsons, who was killed in an airplane accident in Arkansas several years ago.

Under terms of the will Robert will become independent executor of both estates upon attaining the age of 30.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Woodson, was fatally injured in a train-automobile accident last Saturday, May 22.

Jap Shops Closed By Mobilization

The Associated Press. The Eberlin Radio, broadcasting a report from Tokyo, said today that 11,464 shops had been closed down in the Japanese capital up to March 31 as a result of application of the law of national mobilization.

"This measure resulted in the release of about 15,000 workers of whom one-third were transferred to munitions factories," said the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

Some Occupation Tax Regulations Changed

AUSTIN, May 29 (AP)—Governor Coke R. Stevenson has signed into law, which takes immediate effect, a bill revising and repealing certain state occupation taxes.

Eliminated was a tax on lightning rod agents, principally because there are no lightning rod salesmen. The auctioneer's tax was reduced from $25 to $10 because most auctioneers work infrequently at this occupation and cannot afford the $25 levy.

Three classifications of brokers' tax were repealed and a general tax of $10 was substituted. The impost on insurance adjusters was reduced from $50 to $10 except for general adjusters who must pay $25. The ice dealers' tax was repealed because there were no ice dealers as defined by law.

Touring carnivals henceforth will pay a $200 tax in quarterly installments of $50 instead of $100 payable in advance. A carnival showing in only one county will pay $100 in two quarterly payments. The shooting gallery levy was reduced from $25 to $15.

Home talent rodeos were excluded from occupation taxes and $10 a day was required for professional rodeos. The bowling alley tax will now be $10 per alley to a maximum of $100. Until it was amended the law required bowling establishments to pay a flat tax of $100.

Melvin Downs Is Candidate At Shrine Meeting

Khiva temple will stage its biggest ceremonial in 22 years tomorrow in Amarillo when Shriners from all over the Panhandle gather in the Potter county capital.

Interest of Gray county Shriners is centered on the candidacy of Melvin P. Downs of Pampa as its ring candidate at the ceremonial.

A victory bond campaign of the Shriners will come to a climax at the gathering. Ross Rogers of Amarillo, chairman of the "Million in May" Victory bond campaign, last week was beginning to receive replies from potential subscribers in many of the 40 counties of the temple's jurisdiction.

Fred Rattcliff of Pampa is a potential aid in Gray county. Charter members of the Khiva from Pampa are B. L. Hoover, M. A. Graham, George B. Cree, and Dr. William B. Wild.

An increased interest is being taken by Khiva temple in the Mystic Shrine's most worthy objective, the treatment and cure of indigent crippled children.

Permanent contributing memberships are being sold by the temple. Super-salesman among Shriners of Khiva is W. W. Davis, Amarillo, purchasing agent for the Santa Fe. The Mystic Shrine of North America has invested $33,000,000 in 15 hospitals "strategically located and spends a million or more each year to maintain the institutions.

How it is done? The answer is quite simple. There are hundreds of thousands of nobles in North America and each pays an annual assessment to support the hospitals.

Noble Davis is selling the Shriners permanent contributing memberships, which relieves them of the annual assessment and the amount, $61.50, is deductible from their income tax. To each contributor goes a certificate and his name is placed on a rung in the "ladder of baby smiles" on the wall of Khiva Temple.

To individuals and organizations outside the order Noble Davis is selling voluntary contributing memberships.

At the beginning of the year there were only 74 rungs on the temple's ladder and now there are nearly 200, but the goal for 1943 is 300.

Crippled children, regardless of color or creed, are admitted to the hospitals only if their parents or guardians are unable to pay for treatment.
