

Salvation Army Holds Meetings For Girls Here

Two special meetings for girls and young women will be held today at the Salvation Army citadel, 831 S. Cuyler.

Girls and young women between the ages of 7 and 21, who are interested in joining the organizations known as Life-Saving Guards and Sunbeams, are invited to attend the meetings to be held at 3 a. m., as well as to bring their mothers for the supper at 6 p. m. When Captain Louise Ayers, territorial guard, and Sunbeam organizer for the Salvation Army, will be the guest of honor.

Captain Ayers comes here from Atlanta, Ga. Sunbeams and Guards are the Salvation Army's organizations for girls that parallel the Army's scout troops and chum brigades.

Although characterized by many as a strictly "charitable" organization, the Salvation Army, through its corps, sponsors an extensive character-building program. The Life-Saving Scout and Guard, Chum and Sunbeam brigades, are only four of such programs now being sponsored by the local Salvation Army.

Life-Saving Scouts was organized in 1917, its counterpart, the Life-Saving Guards, in 1915; Chum Brigade, organization similar to the Cubs, 1917; Sunbeam Brigade, similar to the Brownies, 1921.

Outdoor activities, such as nature-lore and sports, from the major portion of the Scout and Guard programs. At specified periods each summer, the Salvation Army camps have their own camps which are considered to be among the finest in the country. The Texas Scout and Guard Camp is located at Irving, and is open during June of this year.

The Scout and Guard program, as well as the Chum and Sunbeam, is so arranged that there is some activity in progress to promote good sportsmanship and comradeship.

For their progress in Scout and Guard craft, Chum and Sunbeam projects, the boy and girl members are awarded special badges and other recognition. There are approximately 109,689 members of character-building organizations being sponsored by the Salvation Army throughout the world, and units of these organizations are in every nation in the world, with the exception of the Soviet Union.

All are cordially invited to attend the meetings conducted by Captain Louise Ayers.

McBrayer Funeral Held At White Deer

Special To The NEWS
WHITE DEER, May 6—Final rites for Mrs. Laura McBrayer, widow of the late V. B. McBrayer, were conducted Tuesday afternoon at the First Methodist church. Rev. Don Davidson, pastor, was in charge, and was assisted by Rev. Herman Coe of Spur, former pastor of the Baptist church here.

Mrs. McBrayer, who was 63 years old, died Monday morning after a long illness. She had been a resident of the White Deer community for about 20 years.

Survivors are a son, J. W. McBrayer, and a daughter, Mrs. Sam Bunker, and three grandchildren, Fay and Ray Buner and Bobby Mc-

You can still be an
AVIATION CADET!

• If you want to fight for your country in the air, where there's need for your skill and daring—if you want to be ready for a future career in aviation—the opportunity is still open to you.

- If you are 18 to 26 years old, inclusive, and have not yet been called for induction under Selective Service, you may apply at once at the nearest Aviation Cadet Examining Board to take your physical and mental examinations. No school or college credits are required. If you pass the examinations and are found acceptable, you will be given a letter to the Armed Forces Induction Station requesting your assignment to the Army Air Forces upon induction. You may then volunteer for induction through your local Selective Service Board. After induction you will be assigned for preparatory training, upon completion of which you will receive your appointment as an Aviation Cadet and have an opportunity to become a Bombardier, Navigator or Pilot—one of the "Three Musketeers of the Air!"
- If you have already been called for induction, you cannot apply direct for Aviation Cadet training. But, if you are assigned to the Army, you have the same opportunity open to every soldier, 18 to 26 years old, inclusive, to apply for Aviation Cadet training after you are in the ranks.
- If you are 17 but not yet 18, you can go now to your Aviation Cadet Examining Board and volunteer for enlistment in the Air Corps Cadet Enlisted Reserve. Air Corps Enlisted Reservists are called to active duty for pre-flight training at the end of the first school semester after reaching the age of 18.

New Guinea Is Like Home To Castaway Yanks

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—New Guinea is a long way from Baird, Texas. Or from Los Angeles, or Chillicothe, Ohio. But it must have looked as welcome as the lights of home to three bearded and haggard men who stepped out of a royal Australian air force flying boat on March 24, rescued after 10 months of hiding in Japanese-occupied New Britain Island.

They set out on May 24, 1942, in a Martin B-26 marauder medium bomber to share in a raid on the enemy. They dropped their bombs on an airfield, but a burst of anti-aircraft fire knocked out one of their two engines. They might have made it back if it hadn't been for a tropical storm in the surf a few yards offshore along the coast of New Britain.

The fact of the rescue was announced several weeks ago, but the army received the other day a report of some of the 10-month adventures of second Lieut. Marvin C. Hughes, of Baird, second Lieut. Eugene D. Wallace, Los Angeles, and Private First Class Dale E. Bordner, Chillicothe.

They got ashore, but Hughes and Bordner were unable to walk for six weeks, and the natives, living in daily dread of the Japanese who made irregular but frequent patrols through the jungles, were not exactly cordial. When fear finally outweighed sympathy in the first native village that took them in, the villagers ordered the three airmen to leave, and helped the process by making two litters and carrying Hughes and Bordner to a neighboring village while Wallace limped behind. A few days, and the process was repeated—village to village.

When Hughes and Bordner were able at last to walk again, the trio set out on their own across the mountains, eating roots and grass to keep alive, sometimes trudging from sunrise to dark without food or water. One village in the interior kept them until the villagers were almost starving from the necessity of feeding three extra mouths—and finally told them that one "master" could stay, but two "masters" just had to leave. Weakened by malaria, Hughes and Bordner set out. Four days travel, and they found a friendly village with plenty of food, but all one variety—taro, cousin of the sweet-potato, standard fare in the south sea islands, nutritious but monotonous. Occasionally there was a banana.

grubs and snakes, and "went out along with them on the snake meat," reported Bordner, "but the rats and the grasshoppers were too much." Wallace was having his difficulties, too. The entire population of his village simply vanished one night, apparently migrating in search of food. So Wallace moved on, and while searching for his two companions he found a small village in a region of plentiful game. They all went hunting—wild pigs, a wallaby, a pigeon and a cassowary were the bag. Wallace's mouth watered, and his hopes soared. Native custom decreed that the hunter did not consume his own game, but distributed it among neighboring villages and tribes. Wallace wound up with one tiny scrap of meat, and on Christmas day feasted on taro. Hughes and Bordner, however, were among the "neigh-

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 million of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with stinging and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep. When disorder of kidney function remains poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. ### This Year Time For Old-Fashion House Cleaning

By NEA Service

If you never gave your house a good old-fashioned, cellar-to-attic spring cleaning before, this is the year to do it. Overhauling everything in the house will help "Make 'Em Last," and you're going to have to make more and more things last for the duration. Also think of the scrap you'll probably uncover!

Because our fighters are using a lot of "cleaning" materials to sweep the seas of enemy subs and mop up the Axis generally, you'll find spring cleaning a bit different this year. The chart shown here pictures some of the familiar cleaning tools you can have, can't have or will find scarce.

Dust pans (1) for instance. No metal can be spared for them. If you haven't got one, though, you can get paperboard or molded fiber ones.

A wooden scrub bucket (2) like your pioneer grandma's may have to do you if you don't have a metal one. Take precious good care of your galvanized pails, wash tubs and other containers. Mend them when they spring leaks. Because when your hardware dealer's present stock (if any) is exhausted, it will be tough to get more.

You'll get a break on soap (3) for there'll be plenty of all kinds. Don't make your own. Turn in the fat that it would take for use in making essential war goods—explosives, for instance. Most water softening agents are plentiful, except household ammonia, of which there is very little available for cleaning purposes.

Steel wool (4) is out for civilian use, but there's no shortage of elbow grease, which, with scouring powder, will do the trick.

Sponges (5) are scarce. Even in peacetime the supply of natural marine sponges never filled the demand. Now the demand is multiplied. Rubber sponges can no longer be made. But those rectangular, Swiss-cheese-like rayon sponges still are being produced and are very efficient. You can also get chamolix skins for window washing.

If you have good quality cleaning brushes (6), treat them gently. They're probably made of Chinese hog bristles which can't be obtained now. Brushes made now are of horsehair, which is less satisfactory. Scrub brushes are not affected, as importation of the Mexican vegetable fiber used for their bristles still continues.

Vacuum cleaners (7) are, of course, out for the duration. Some dealers may have a pre-war cleaner or two on hand and you have a fair chance of getting a reconditioned second-hand one. If you don't have a vac or a carpet sweeper, you'll have to go back to the broom.

And one more thing you needn't worry about is a mop (8). There are plenty, but even if there weren't you could easily make one from a stick and some old rags or light rope.

Lunch Box Hints Worth Remembering

What Is a Good Lunch?

Once you get the "hang" of packing a nourishing lunch box, it's no more trouble than any other well-balanced meal, according to Mrs. Julia Rine, Head of the Home Economics Department at Westinghouse, whose idea of a "good lunch" is summed up in these three simple rules: (1) Box lunch must contain one-third of the daily food requirements; (2) must taste good and (3) must carry well.

A Surprise a Day

A lunch box can live up to all the rules of good nutrition and still be a bore. That's why Mrs. Julia Rine, Manager of Westinghouse Home Economics Institute, puts great stock in a "surprise a day" to break the monotony. The surprise can be any little treat, such as a dreg of cheese, a stick of gum, dried fruits, shelled nuts, celery hearts, favorite pickles, an apple polished till it shines or an orange scored in sections with the rind pulled back about half an inch for easy peeling.

Scald metal lunch box, especially the thermos, every day as soon as it is brought home and allow them to air until ready to use again. Plus that, according to Westinghouse home economics, you should scald thermos and cork at least twice a week in boiling water to which one teaspoon of baking soda has been added.

To Save Time and Steps

Save a corner of a kitchen cupboard for lunch box equipment, say Westinghouse home economists who have found from experience that a "work center" saves time and steps in packing a lunch box. Stock with all the accessories which are repeatedly used, such as wax paper, hot drink cups, jelly glasses with tight-fitting lids, paper napkins, two or three mixing bowls, a meat grinder, string, a sharp knife and several spoons of assorted sizes.

Pet Peeves

Starlight from the men on the "eating line," Westinghouse home economists have picked up some "don'ts" worth remembering: Don't skip on butter in sandwiches—spread generously, clear to the edge, and you prevent filling from soaking into the bread—Don't put wet lettuce into a sandwich—wrap separately in a piece of wax paper—

Don't cut sandwiches in two, unless requested, and they'll stay more moist. And when you do cut the sandwiches, cut diagonally and they'll be easier to eat.

Pointers on Packing

While you can't judge a lunch box solely on its good looks, still as Westinghouse home economists point out, an eye-appealing lunch box not only carries better, but usually is "better for you." For example, wrap each sandwich separately in wax paper, and it stays fresher; wrap pies, cakes, cookies, in fact almost everything, in wax paper, too, and it will keep the air from stealing the vitamins away. Put away fillings on bottom of lunch box so perishables won't get crushed.

Today on the Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Aloysius Marblehead, the economic quiz kid, came in and chirped:

"How come people say we still gotta worry about inflation even if we get prices and wages and profits all under control?"

We put in a call for the experts right away.

The experts called back with these answers:

Because so much is being made for war now, less is being made for civilians. At the same time more civilians now are working than ever before, generally making more money than ever before.

There will be an estimated 70 billion dollars worth of goods which Americans can buy, and because they are making so much money, they will not only have the 70 billion to do the buying but an additional 40 billion looking for a place to be spent.

It is that extra 40 billion which is would control it like putting it into a straight-jacket, the experts said.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—All this talk about international finance after the war, British plans and American plans, breaks down into three general ideas:

1. Stop international shenanigans with money values.

2. Help get world business going again when the war ends.

3. Promote world prosperity by building up the standard of living everywhere through increased production which would have to be financed.

All this is very much in the talking stage.

Let's take a look at the sort of thing that used to go on:

Country X, we'll call it, has a lot of manpower, figures it could keep all its people busy and get prosperity if it could sell enough stuff to other countries.

Let's say that Country X's money was dodo bones. In foreign exchange, an American dollar would buy 10 of these dodo bones.

Says Country X, we'll sell dodo bones at 20 to the dollar, so an American dollar will buy twice as much silk or iron or whatever else Country X had to offer.

This brings in orders for twice as much merchandise.

But this also switches a lot of business away from Country X, which used to sell its money, which we'll say was dinosaur eggs, at 10 the dollar. To grab back the business, Country X cuts its price, makes it 25 dinosaur eggs to the dollar.

Then Country X cuts its price again and so on.

That is what the experts mean by "competitive currency depreciation." It has various results: inflation, unbalanced trade, tariff walls and other retaliation.

Points 2 and 3—Getting world trade going again and stimulating prosperity from then on—are bound up with a question of financing for war-torn countries, particularly little ones, and comparatively undeveloped countries.

Getting the wheels turning takes money. Both British and American experts have ideas for providing it, but haven't announced them.

The British plan would divide votes on the basis of a country's pre-war foreign trade, as a starter. The experts here say this would give England more say than under the American plan, which would use a formula including countries' national income and how much gold and foreign exchange they hold—with no country to have more than 25 per cent of the total votes.

Presumably the United States which holds most of the world's gold, would get 25 per cent of the votes under this plan.

Also, under the American plan, important decisions would need an 80 per cent approval vote—which would mean a veto power for the United States, and perhaps too for Great Britain, or any nation which held more than 20 per cent of the votes.

WASHINGTON, May 6—If you've been putting off building that outside summer barbecue grill, you can't use a cement shortage as an excuse. This building material has recently been re-allocated to group three in the WPB supply list, and is available in sufficient quantity to use as a substitute for more critical materials. One of the reasons cement is available is that many of the biggest wartime jobs are finished. Last year about 185,000,000 barrels were used for airport runways, munitions plants, war workers' houses, arsenals. WPB estimates that only 108,000,000 barrels will be needed this year.

NOTIONS COUNTER
Silk thread has been out of production for a long time. You can still get cotton, although the deeper dye threads have disappeared. About 8000 tons of copper have been saved for war production by banning and manufacture of slide fasteners, hooks and eyes. Slide fasteners, in the new 10-inch maximum lengths, come in silver and plastic. WPB urges the use of pin-cushions in saving our limited supply of needles. Steel crochet hooks are out, together with steel knitting needs.

STUDY STOCKINGS
There won't be a ban or lace or lace mesh type stockings in rayon, cotton or the two combined, but lace garter bands and similar details are out. Stocking durability is expected to increase about 200 per cent due to sturdier heel and toe reinforcements, and recent allocations of imported long staple cotton that makes for a better weave.

Life Raft Released By Doomed Tail Gunner In Crash Landing Saves Lives Of Crew Mates

By OLEN CLEMENTS
 WITH THE U. S. AIR FORCE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, April 10—(Delayed) (P)—Capt. L. F. Krebs, of Ponda, Ia., pilot of a big B-24, looked anxiously out the plane's window for a place to land.
 Henderson field on Guadalcanal was closed in tight by rain and fog and darkness, and co-pilot Jack Nowell, Columbia, Mo., called out that there was practically no gasoline left.
 Krebs had but one choice—set her down and hope they were over water. He offered the radio antenna reeled out 200 feet as a feeder for water or jagged mountains that form the southern Solomons. Then he started down.
 Every man in the nine-man crew said a silent prayer and waited for death or a fighting chance in the water. They had donned life preservers and huddled together in the radio compartment amidship, ready to release life rafts and then crawl through the top hatch when the plane hit the water.
 The bomber descended a thousand feet a minute. Two engines quit. Out of gas. Rain and clouds obliterated everything.
 Suddenly there was a blinding flash below. The antenna had hit something and the bomber had but 200 feet to descend. Was it land or water?
 Krebs let her down ever so slowly. Nowell had his eyes glued to the instrument board. The men huddled in the radio ocm and Sgt. A. S. Hatfield, Salt Lake City, reached for the handle to release the big life raft. The tail gunner moved to release the small raft.
 Then she hit with a big splash. The bomber broke into three pieces. The tail sank with a blurr. With the tail went the gunner and the raft for which he was reaching when last seen.
 Hatfield was knocked out by the shock. The nose of the plane flipped downward.
 All of the bomber sank from sight. It was black as pitch and an hour before dawn. Krebs called to the swimming men. All were there but the tail gunner. He didn't get out.
 Then came the realization that none of the life rafts had been released. It was sink or swim and nobody knew where to go for help.
 Krebs called to the men to form a circle.
 One by one he rounded them up: Lieut. James Reed, Nashville, Tenn.; Lieut. J. D. Newman, Lake Charles, La.; Sgt. Gustafson; Sgt. M. E. Hatfield; Sgt. Sheehan; Sgt. A. S. Hatfield, and Lieut. Nowell. Only

Civilian Hospital Facilities Short

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—The War Production Board estimated today that hospital facilities for civilians in the nation's war areas are inadequate by more than 14,000 beds.
 The shortage exists in spite of the fact that more hospitals are functioning in the United States than ever before, WPB said, adding that it has approved construction of 260 new hospitals or extensive additions to existing ones since January 1, 1942.

School Feedbag A War Casualty

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—There will be no junior-senior banquet this year at Queens College, a girls' school here.
 The juniors were unable to find an eating place with enough food to serve the banquet and the seniors were short on escorts because so many young men had gone to war.

Shamrock Girl Weds In San Antonio

SHAMROCK, May 6—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williamson announce the marriage of their daughter, Jewel, to Pvt. Robert B. Haswell on April 22, at 8 p. m.

The wedding took place at the Westminster Presbyterian church in San Antonio, Texas, with the Rev. M. H. Applewhite officiating.

The church was illuminated by white tapers and decorated with fern, baby's breath and pink gladioli.

Pre-nuptial music was provided by Mrs. H. C. Fullerton, organist, and Mrs. Edna Price, vocalist.

The bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Mary Adele Roach served as maid of honor. They wore identical dresses of powder blue taffeta, fashioned with long fitted bodices.

Master Arthur B. Haswell, brother of the bridegroom, was the ring bearer. Marvin N. Broyles served as best man and William J. Boggus, as groomsmen.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. V. D. Haswell.

Miss Anna Louise Applewhite presided at the bride's book. Miss Kathryn Watkins and Miss Johanna Graef assisted with the serving.

The bride is a graduate of the Shamrock High school, attended T. C. U. at Fort Worth and is a civil service employee at Randolph field.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Breckenridge High school of San Antonio, Texas.

Pvt. and Mrs. Haswell will be at home in Oklahoma City, where he is now stationed.

MATEUR, Tunisia, May 4 (Delayed AP)—The retreating Germans left military stores and food supplies behind when they were forced to pull out of Mateur—including 300 cases of California prunes.

Although uncertain where the Nazis obtained the prunes—perhaps they were taken when the Axis troops followed the withdrawing Americans into Sbeitla last February—the Yanks lost no time breaking open a few cases and sampling the contents.

"We also found a bunch of kegs of good wine, but set a guard over that," mourned Staff Sergeant Harvey D. Williams, 32, of Farmington, Mo.

There Was Rationing In Old Days, Too

PLEASANT GROVE, Utah (AP)—"Rationing? That's nothing to be worried about," says Mrs. Mary B. Fage, 82-year-old pioneer.

When she came to Utah in an ox cart 75 years ago, everything in the way of food except sago roots and wild ground cherries was doled out carefully and strictly.

"I recall those first days in Utah when, as a little girl, I seldom saw sugar or bread, and a bowl of rice with a little molasses for sweetening provided a fine meal," Mrs. Fage said.

"And there were no vitamin capsules, either."

Bill Licensing Chiropractors Gets Approval

AUSTIN, May 6 (AP)—Bound for the governor's desk today was one of the legislative session's most bitterly fought bills—to license and regulate chiropractors in Texas.

The senate amended and finally passed the bill yesterday, with Lieut. Gov. John Lee Smith breaking a 12-12 tie by voting in its favor, and the house accepted the amendments after stormy debate, 70 to 58.

The bill gives legal status to chiropractic in Texas for the first time. As amended by the senate, more severe restrictions are provided than were voted in the house where the measure originated.

It sets up a nine-member state board of chiropractic examiners who must have college degrees and must have been Texas residents for five years.

Applicants for licenses must have completed two years of college and have studied four years in a reputable chiropractic school. Chiropractors now practicing must pass a state board examination before being licensed.

Practitioners are prohibited from advising against vaccination, anti-toxin or serum treatments, and from treating for infectious or contagious diseases.

Annual renewal of licenses and attendance at a four-day postgraduate refresher course are required.

The house in session last night passed more than two dozen senate bills. Among these were measures: Allowing commissioners courts to employ additional law enforcement officers in counties containing more than 5,000 cattle, sheep or goats.

Appropriating $15,000 to take up unused note stamps invalid since repeal of the note stamp law two years ago.

Authorizing commissioners courts to create a military zone adjacent to a naval base, camp, station or yard.

Permitting a discharged member of the armed forces to vote during the year without having paid a poll tax if his discharge occurs after Jan. 31.

CHICAGO—Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch suggested to Mrs. Margaret Riattman that he would order her estranged husband, William, to pay her $15 a month temporary support pending disposition of her separate maintenance suit.

Mrs. Farman, 63, mother of four children and grandmother of 12, said: "Oh, that would be too much, make it $6. I'm used to that."

The judge agreed.

front had thrust within nine miles of the key German-held Novorossiysk naval base, killed 7,000 more Nazis and captured 22 towns and villages.

Previously, an additional 8,000 Germans had been listed as killed in recent violent fighting in the Kuban bridgehead.

Soviet dispatches said the Red army's offensive to sweep the Germans into the sea was gaining momentum, with massive artillery barrage paving the way for fresh advances and blasting deeply-fortified Axis defenses. Roads in the Caucasus were jammed with Soviet trucks, tanks and troops moving up to the front.

Offshore, the flagship "Paris Commune" and other units of the Russian Black Sea fleet were reported keeping vigil against any attempt at a German sea-borne escape.

Hitler's high command said the Russians "attacked all day with strong forces" in the Kuban bridgehead, but asserted that the thrusts were repulsed and numerous Red army tanks destroyed.

colleagues did unsuccessfully in the house.

As the committee began public hearings on a house-approved bill the Republicans looked to senator Clark (D-Mo.) to take the lead in offering the Ruml principle. Clark told reporters he would seize the first opportunity to try to substitute his own bill, which would excuse the same full year's tax for everybody without reference to a windfall income, which the Missouri senator said ought to be taxed in a separate measure.

He said he was confident a majority of the finance committee would support the Ruml plan, or a modified version of it.

There was strong opposition to the "skip a year" plan, as evidenced in an article of Senator Connally (D-Tx.) that he was "not going to support any plan that will throw away $10,000,000,000 when we need $16,000,000,000 in new taxes."

Pfc. Onnie N. Lofton, son of Erastus B. Lofton of Alameda, has graduated from a course in glider mechanics at Sheppard field, Wichita Falls. He is now eligible to win a rating as corporal or sergeant.

Capt. L. C. McMurry, now overseas, was promoted to squadron commander shortly before his unit embarked, according to information received here by his mother. The captain was stationed at Ft. Bragg, S. C., before sailing overseas.

Cpl. Vincent Kersey
For the first time since he enlisted in the marine corps three years ago, Cpl. Vincent Kersey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs Kersey, 621 E. Francis, is home again, back on a 30-day furlough after 22 months service overseas. Corporal Kersey is only 20 years old but he's seen plenty of action. He was at Midway when the Japs bombed Honolulu on December 7, 1941. Corporal Kersey was a guest of the Pampa Rotary club at their meeting yesterday.

Pauline Olaska Johnson, 24, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Johnson, Route 2, Pampa, has completed basic training in the navy at the training school for WAVES at Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, Iowa.

With this class the school here completes its transition from a general school to an institution for yeoman training.

Consequently, trainees will remain in Iowa for further study actually taking over office jobs, thus releasing men for sea duty.

Upon graduation from a specialist school, WAVES are eligible for promotion to petty officer ratings.

Maj. Gen. Richard Donovan, commanding the 8th service command with headquarters at Dallas, today called on women of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas and Louisiana to enlist in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps.

There is the pressing need for a larger enlistment. The WAAC is beyond the experimental stage, says the general.

Gray county's quota of WAAC enlistments is 27. Locally, the campaign is being sponsored by the V. F. W. auxiliary WAAC enlistment committee, working in cooperation with Pfc. T. G. Webb, and Pfc. Charles E. Bunzer of the army recruiting station here.

Italy Would Like to Hide But Can't

By LEWIS HAWKINS

(AP) Features

LONDON—The question mark that is Italy looms large in invasion talk today even though most of the answers have already been given.

It seems obvious that, at least in preliminary stages of the second front, Italy will be a main objective.

It is equally clear, according to observers, that the great mass of Italy's people and a goodly share of her leaders have one really strong urge in life now—to get out of the war as quickly as possible with a minimum of further bloodshed and destruction.

But the time and exact manner of her going provoke speculations as numerous and varied as the kinds of spaghetti which the Italian loves.

Predictions divide into two main types: (a) that Germany will fight and will make Italy fight for herself, in which case the Mediterranean struggle presumably would be long and hard; (b) that Germany will be inclined to cut Italy away as an ally and then Italy would find some way out with nothing more than perfunctory fighting.

Italy's dependence upon the Nazis for any sort of effective fighting is illustrated particularly in air strength and armor.

Integrated With Luftwaffe

According to the best information available, the Italian air force could not currently muster more than 2,500 operational planes and the great majority of these are hopelessly outsped and outgunned by Allied types. Only the Reggiane 2001, a fighter, is regarded as good. The Italians are believed to have not more than a hundred or two of these in service.

In addition, the Italian air force has been integrated so closely with the Luftwaffe in operations and command that it would be almost impossible to separate the Italian units and rework them into an independent fighting force, airman believe.

In her peak strength army of 36 to 70 divisions Italy never had more than three armored divisions—and the remains of all these are in Tunisia where it seems certain that all heavy equipment ultimately will be lost even if any personnel can be evacuated.

In the naval department, Italy does have men and equipment to put up an effective fight without great German aid.

Unofficial figures set the present Italian fleet at four battle-ships, 20 cruisers including six carrying eight-inch guns or heavier, 60 destroyers and between 60 and one hundred submarines.

These forces must protect a peninsula with a coastline of about 2,000 miles, and face the almost squally imperative necessity of holding Sicily with its 600 mile coast.

Nature has provided defenses along much of the Italian and Sicilian coasts where mountains rise sheer and menacing almost from the water's edge and harbors are narrow clefts. But there still are enough hard, flat beaches and wide harbors for a determined invader to gain footholds.

From one foreign diplomatic source with good contacts inside the Axis, comes the report that the Germans are using thousands of workers to build a network of defense positions across the Italian peninsula from the naval base of Spezia on the Mediterranean through Bologna to Ravenna on the Adriatic, about 150 miles.

This would indicate the German high command is prepared to abandon southern Italy quickly under pressure.

Mediterranean Blockade

When it is suggested that Germany's bitter resistance in Tunisia doesn't indicate any readiness to withdraw into Hitler's European fortresses, this source argues the Tunisian campaign is being fought primarily to hold the Mediterranean blockade lines as long as possible and that when Tunisia is lost the blockade is broken even though Sicily remains in Axis hands.

Even those who believe the Germans are prepared to fall back to the Bologna line across Italy think a series of delaying actions will be fought on Sicily, along the Italian coasts and on Sardinia and Corsica.

Men who know Italy from long residence can keep in touch with her despite war's barriers, believe that when war comes to their homeland Italians will fight only as long as German pressure makes

This belief is based on the generally accepted fact that the war never was a popular one in Italy and that she already has suffered heavily.

Her losses in manpower cannot be estimated with great accuracy but the British know they have captured 300,000 of her soldiers—including a hundred generals—and killed and wounded 200,000 more in the African campaign. Russian estimates are that 175,000 Fascists have been killed or captured on the Soviet front.

One official describes Italians, insofar as this war is concerned, as "sentimental pragmatists." They are pragmatic in the sense that they want a practical means out of the war with a minimum of damage and they are sentimentalists about their ancient cities, particularly Rome, and would rather see them temporarily under a foreign conqueror than smashed by modern warfare.

Those who feel this way are believed to include many near Mussolini, and would be willing to re-

SERIAL STORY

DARK JUNGLES

BY JOHN C. FLEMING & LOIS' EBY

RENALDO CHAPTER XXVIII THE three men slid down one steep bank of the hillock and joined Allison, who had been waiting below. "Let's go back down the path a safe distance where we can talk without being overheard," Barry whispered. Without another word the little group retraced their steps a few hundred yards and stopped under a clump of tamaracs. Allison jumped from the mule's back. "I feel like a pretzel!" she whispered, stretching her legs and doing a routine of bending exercises. Barry's face was a study in thoughtfulness. Finally he said, "I think the next thing is to follow this trail down and see if we can find where they are treating the ore."

agreed. "But you told me yourself Renaldo is ambitious." "We, of course, have no right to condemn him—yet!" Allison said. "No, not yet." TONY was busy tightening the cinches on the two mules, getting ready for the trek to the village-of-the-market-place. "How far is it from here to the Quiche village?" Hall asked Tony. "The Indian scratched his black thatch of hair. "We be there before sundown." Hall shook hands with Allison and Barry and left. "We can't be far from the coast," Barry said, smiling apologetically. "If you can take it we'll push on." Allison was running a comb through her hair. She stopped and smiled up at Barry. "What do you mean—if I can take it?" Barry laid his hands on her slender shoulders and there was a twinkle in his gray eyes. "I guess I shouldn't ever question your ability to take it after the way you've come through hardship down here." He hesitated for a moment and then went on. "I keep thinking of the girl I met on the boat in New York. The girl who had never known what hardship was."

the sun and run away down the slope. The sinking sun was setting everything afire with its glow when the Caribbean finally loomed below them like a sheet of colored glass. The air grew warmer as they reached the lowlands and the sun had been swallowed up by the sea when Barry suddenly pulled his mule to a stop. He pointed ahead and spoke in a low voice. "See those fires down there? That must be where they treat the ore." ALLISON'S eyes were taking in the scene. A dozen fires were glowing through the dusk and the dark forms of men were moving in their light. "What do we do now?" Allison asked. "We'll get as close as we can and still be safe." They moved on slowly until they came to a clump of trees. Barry stopped and slid from his mule. He motioned Allison to follow. Together they watched. The glow from the fires showed the outline of huge clay ovens—Indians were shoveling in the ore to be roasted. Others were filling large earthenware jugs with the precious quicksilver and sealing the tops with wax. Two Indians were hoisting the heavy jugs onto a two-wheeled cart. "I think Hall was right!" Barry whispered. "They are loading the fishing boats and will probably wait until late tonight to sail out to a waiting submarine." They moved stealthily through the night, skirted around the flat promontory where the roasting was being carried on and didn't stop until they stood in the dark shadows on the narrow strip of beach. Two-wheel carts were coming in a steady stream down the slope and through the sand to the water's very edge. The heavy wheels cut deeply into the soft beach and Quiche drivers urged the mules on with cracking whips. A fire burned on the beach to cast an eerie light for loaders who were stowing the jars into boats no larger than dinghies! Suddenly from out of the blackness a man in white riding breeches and boots stepped into the glow of the flashlight. He was shouting orders to the Indians, urging them to hurry with their loading. Allison's small hand clutched Barry's arm. "Look!" Barry stiffened. Through hard-cleansed teeth he muttered, "Why, the rati! Renaldo!"

Parents Thank Pampans For Hospitality

Letters went into the mail today to mothers and fathers in 31 states from the Pampa Chamber of Commerce offering assistance in housing cadets at graduation time for the 43-D cadet class, Dan E. Williams, chairman of the army hospitality committee announced today. "This is the fourth graduation crowd for us to handle," Williams said. "The people of Pampa have been wonderful in helping these parents from all parts of the nation. From letters we have received, I am convinced this is one of the most appreciated things we could possibly do." A Texas coffee and informal reception has been announced for Sunday afternoon, May 23, Williams said. This will be held at 3 p. m. in order that the cadets, their wives, parents and other relatives as well as the Pampa hospitality hosts who will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce can be entertained before another reception that is scheduled for the high school cafeteria later the same afternoon. Williams expressed appreciation to the school officials for the use of the high school cafeteria and to Mrs. June Anderson, in charge of the cafeteria for the use of facilities and their cooperation. Special thanks were expressed for the use of the cafeteria this next time due to the conflict of having two events scheduled there in one day. Excerpts from a few of the letters from parents of 43-D cadet parents who were here April 20, 21 and 22 follow: "I think other chambers of commerce over the state should know what an outstanding piece of work is being done here," writes Mrs. George H. Lane of Waco. "It will certainly never be forgotten by those of us who are the recipients of such courtesy, nor by the boys for whose benefit you have done it." From Mrs. Nana Chase of Los Angeles, comes the following: "We have already heard of Texas hospitality and consider ourselves quite fortunate to have had the opportunity to enjoy it." Mrs. A. A. Geminder of Jolley, Iowa, writes: "Words cannot express the appreciation we feel for the grand hospitality that was extended to us during our stay in your beautiful city. Pampa will always remain as a bright spot in our memories. Also the fact that it was the first time we had seen our son in nine months and then to meet with him for the great occasion of his graduation was a proud moment to us."

Pilots Indulge In Double Talk While Downing Four Japs

WASHINGTON, May 6 (AP)—Four United States army air forces fighter pilots chatted by radio in double talk as they shot down four bombers out of a flight of 37 Japanese planes over the Russell Islands in the South Pacific recently, the war department has disclosed. The American pilots on Guadalcanal had nicknamed each other after characters in Damon Runyon's stories of Broadway. "Big Mig," "Harry the Horse," "Guinea Mike," "Handate John," "Dancing Don" and "Sororful" were some of the names used by the pilots. They used these names even in ordinary conversation on the ground, so they would be easily recognized as they came crackling in over the radio high in the sky giving directions for a dog fight. These four aircrafts were on patrol over the Russell Islands northwest of Henderson field, Guadalcanal Island, when they sighted 12 Japanese dive bombers and 25 fighter planes. The Americans faired high in the clouds until the bombers got out far enough in front of their fighter protection. Then down roared the aircrafts piloted by Captain Jerome R. Sawyer of South Pasadena, California; First Lieutenant Isaac L. Lallonde of Defiance, Ohio; First Lieutenant Wallace R. McClendon, Jr., of 2612 Arbor Street, Houston, Texas, and first Lieutenant Arnold M. Patterson, Hyde Park, Massachusetts.

Meeting Between Presidents Of Mexico Heralds New Era Ahead

(By The Associated Press) The Monterey meeting of President Roosevelt and Avila Camacho further strengthened the feeling of friendship that has been developing between the United States and Mexico.

The event was a sign post, accenting a neighborly trend; many mileposts of the new era are ahead.

Friendship along the border has been ripening a long while, and, as newspapers of the southwest have pointed out, the good neighbor policy begins at home—on the Rio Grande. Many Texans remember days when the banks of the Rio Grande held more ill-feeling than water.

The prohibition era helped to start a neighborly atmosphere, some would say, with every Mexican border town a mecca for thirsty Americans.

Then the magnificent highway to Mexico City was opened, about 10 years ago, and tourists from the United States streamed down it to find a friendly people and a modern, colorful cosmopolitan city.

Pan-Americanism became the vogue. President Hoover had hit the keynote and President Roosevelt developed it.

In Texas, newspapers gave echo, boosting Pan-Americanism editorial and often.

Spanish, as taught in high schools and colleges, took on a new significance. In many communities adults formed classes.

Chambers of commerce joined the movement with trade trips, unmindful of one of the little known historical facts that in another era Matamoras merchants traveled north on similar missions.

Latin-American societies eagerly repaid cordial advances from the U. S. A.

Good will trippers, sometimes whole trainloads of them, rolled across the border.

Laredo became the gateway to the South, via the highway, and the Laredo Times an enthusiastic voice for friendly relations with the Mexican people. Air lines touched Brownsville and later El Paso and other highways were planned and developed.

As a tourist city, Monterey boomed.

Signs went up in Mexico City shops: "We speak English."

Villagers got used to speeding automobiles and found there was money to be made. To them, the tourist dollar looked as big as a cartwheel.

A new era was definitely underway.

War, and the subsequent entry of Mexico against the Axis, gave the era a fuller meaning.

Then President Roosevelt went to Monterey, deeper into Mexico than any other American president had ever gone before. President Avila Camacho promptly repaid the visit, entering Texas and traveling north to Corpus Christi.

The El Paso Times commented: "As President Roosevelt of the United States and Avila Camacho of Mexico met to continue discussions of mutual interest to the two nations and the world, Texans in some parts of the state were celebrating San Jacinto Day."

"In celebrating San Jacinto, Texans were not celebrating the anniversary of the defeat of Mexico's army, but were celebrating the overthrow of tyranny, an evil against which the two great powers now are joined in a determined effort to destroy."

An editorial column, the Crow's Nest, in the Corpus Christi Caller, suggested:

"Why continue to observe or celebrate April 21, 1836? Why keep alive the reminder of a conflict more than a century ago between nations which today are moving heaven and earth to establish and make permanent a natural friendship that will inspire a peace-seeking world?"

"Continue to celebrate April 21, by all means. Continue to call it San Jacinto Day, but let the observance mark the anniversary of April 21, 1943, and not April 21, 1836."

In Mexico City, the newspaper El Nacional saw in the meeting of presidents, "affirmation of our common determination to fight against any eventualities forestalled by the Hispanic maneuvers of those who have delivered themselves to the Axis."

"British, Canadian and American eloquence has been expended in extolling the friendship that exists between the United States and Canada," an editorial in the Beaumont Enterprise declared.

"Not enough has been devoted to the friendship between Mexico and the United States."

It was in Monterey that the presidents met. A band of 60 pieces entertained and the seven-course dinner was described as "lavish."

"Good neighbors, good friends," President Avila Camacho said. "That is what we have always wished to be for all the people of the earth."

"In shaping of a common victory," Mr. Roosevelt responded, "our peoples are finding that they have common aspirations. They can work together for a common objective. Let us never lose our hold upon that truth."

To the border and through Laredo, the presidents travelled. At Corpus Christi they inspected the world's greatest naval air station, watched a dive-bombing exhibition and dined with cadets.

President Roosevelt proceeded on north from Corpus Christi and President Avila Camacho travelled down to the Valley, crossed from Brownsville to Matamoras, inspected irrigation projects, after 16 packed hours in the states.

"Viva Camacho," said a headline in the Brownsville Herald and an editorial observed: "The welcome which was given Mexico's president by his own people and by those who went there (Matamoras) from Brownsville, was genuine in every way."

Women in Service

Elizabeth Jane Schwind, 215 Sunset Drive, Pampa, was a member of the WAAC unit that left the first training center at Ft. Des Moines, Iowa, recently for duty at the fifth center at Ruston, La.

Recruits for the signal corps is now the objective of enlistments in the Women's Army Auxiliary corps, Pfc. T. G. Webb, Pampa army recruiter, said today.

Nine West Texas women will be offered the chance to become radio mechanics and operators. They must be between 21 and 45, with no dependents, pass a mental alertness test.

While training in a three-months signal corps course they will draw $85 a month. After the basic course, other courses will be given, and the pay hiked to $120 a month.

Women must pay for their own board and room while attending the basic training school, which may be located at San Antonio. Upon call to active duty in WAAC, all expenses, of course, will be furnished.

MUNITION SHIP BLOWN UP

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, May 6 (AP)—A large Tunis-bound Axis munitions ship was blown up and an escorting torpedo boat was sunk by light Allied naval forces Monday night, a headquarters communique announced today.

Lt. (jg) Philip T. McGrath, 33, of 1024 Christine, Pampa is a member of the sixth battalion, scheduled to graduate from naval reserve officers school at Tucson, Ariz., May 12, 1943.

Capt. Willard E. Cheadle, U. S. N. (Ret.), commanding, said that the May group will be the sixth to graduate since the school was opened last October.

The officers' indoctrination course here is of 60 days duration, and includes a study of basic naval subjects, a physical conditioning program, and military drilling and etiquette.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. McGrath, Sedalla, Mo., Lieutenant McGrath was a petroleum engineer at Pampa prior to entering the naval service. He is a graduate of the New Mexico School of Mines at Socorro, N. M.

CANADIAN—Mrs. Lee Anderson, nqw of Glazier, received word last week from the war department that her son, Corporal Von R. Anderson, reported a year ago as missing since December, 1941, is a prisoner of the Japanese.

Anderson joined the U. S. marines in November, 1939, had some months of training at a naval base in California; sent to Hawaii in 1940, and, early 1941, to the Philippines. The last letter his mother had from him was dated November 27, 1941 at which time he was at Cavite, thirty miles south of Manila. His mother has steadfastly maintained that her son would come home sometime.

Anderson is a brother of Mrs. Bertie Johnson, Canadian.

CANADIAN—On recent furloughs have been Cpl. Neulan E. Anderson with the medical corps of the U. S. Army, visiting his sister Mrs. Bertie Johnson; S/Sgt. Joe Hornbeck of California, visiting relatives; Sterling K. Oates of Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and Mrs. Oates visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Curtee.

VICTORY GARDEN HINTS

By Gray County Home Demonstration Agent

Well prepared soil, that is soil that has been dug six to eight inches deep, pulverized thoroughly and as much as 200 pounds of barnyard manure as on small garden 10x20 feet, worked well into the soil is ground that will produce any variety of garden vegetables if fertile seed is properly planted.

Help seed get started in the well prepared soil. Soak seeds overnight in refrigerator, especially the hard coated seeds. After seeds have been frozen, thaw them out by adding lukewarm water. Trench your soil with the end of the hoe handle, then gently water the dry trench. Plant the seeds in the wet trench and then press the dry soil over the seed with your foot or hoe. Your seeds will sprout quickly by this method.

If you have limited garden space and do not have vegetables already started or growing it's best to use dependable seed varieties that have already proven themselves for Gray county. Seeds that are adapted to the heavy rainfall section do poorly in the Panhandle. Let's not waste time, energy and seeds to experiment when we are in dire need of fresh vegetables.

April was the month to plant black seed Simpson leaf lettuce for summer. Head lettuce is planted in the cool of the season—if cool weather continues. Plant the New York varieties for heads and thin plants when two inches high to a space of six inches between plants. Continue to plant leaf lettuce every three weeks for a continuous supply through the summer and fall. It needs lots of moisture.

Beets: The Detroit Red is the one good colored red beet. It should be in every Victory garden. Crush your seed with a rolling pin, soak them overnight and plant seeds about an inch apart and in rows about 18 inches apart. Thin young plants to stand two inches apart in row. Cultivate lightly.
