Bodyless Head Stumps Police

NORFOLK, Va. — (A) — Police redoubled their efforts Monday toward solving one of the strangest cases in their memory —that of the bodyless head and the beaten and strangled widow. Should the head turn out to be — as police believe it will—that of Walter Barr, 34-yearold carptenter missing since Oct. 3. officers are sure they have a louble-barreled puzzler on their

The severed head was found Saturday by a small Negro boy in a patch of honeysuckle in adjacent Princess Anne county. An all-day search Sunday failed to turn up any body or parts of a human torso.

It was only about a mile away that fishermen on Oct. 6 discovered the beaten and strangled body of Mrs. Mamie Smithwick; 57-year-old widow of Worley Smithwick, for many years superintendent of a Methodist orphanage in Raleigh, N.C.

When Mrs. Smithwick's body was found floating in a lake, police immediately launched a hunt for Barr, last seen three days earlier. He and the widow were headed for a drive-in movie

TWO WERE FRIENDS Police learned Barr and Mrs. Smithwick had lived at the same boarding house here and went to the movies together frequently. They had been planning a trip to a church function Oct. 6 in Washington, N.C., where Barr's wife works in a laundry. On Oct. 10. police found Barr's car parked in Norfolk, Blood was smeared on both seats, a bullet hole was found in the roof and there were fragments of human teeth on the floor. But nothing was heard of Barr until the youth made his grisly discovery on Saturday. Police still are not certain the head is that of Barr. Absence of photographic records prevented positive identification yesterday by a dentist who had filled some teeth for Barr.

The head was on its way to the state chief medical examiner's office in Richomnd Monday for further checks while police re-sumed their search for the miss-

You will recall that some time ago General Eisenhower pooh poohed the idea of the importance of social security and the necessity of pensions, and he thought we were pampering people by trying to provine for them when they reach the age where they were too old to work and too young to die. "Why Taxes Won't Some readers of this column Stop Inflation" have been writing to me about

I am continuing to quote from Dr. V. Orval Watts' article in The Gold Standard News on the subject of "Why Taxes Won't Stop Infla-

Under the sub-heading of 'Causes and Preventives of Inflation", he makes the following observations:

"Oddly enough, when we ask about the meaning and immediate cause of inflation, we find pretty general agreement among economists-about as much agreement as we find among doctors concerning the nature and causes of the cold. They generally agree that inflation means that the supply of money and of money substitutes is increasing faster than the output of goods, with a consequent decline in the purchasing power of money.

"Right here, however, when the term 'money' is mentioned, I think we must probe a little deeper. When we ask what money is, we find the beginning of a cleavage between those economists who clamor for an increase of taxes and a group of skeptics, like me who believe some other remedy for inflation may be called for.

"In the view of many economists today, money is anything that people present in payment for goods or in discharge of debts, and this means mainly paper money and bank checks, or deposit currency. These economists, moreover, argue that one kind of money is as good as any other as long as it is ac-

"Others of us, regarded as rightwing 'reactionaries', cling to the old-fashioned distinctions between standard money, legal tender money, and deposit currency (or bank credit).

It. is a claim against à bank, not legal tender or standard money. It does not merely take the place of money. Instead, as bank credit increases, it increases the demand for money, that is, for gold, silver, or some form of legal tender.

"These distinctions between standard money, legal tender, and deposit currency are important. Both the causes and the results of an increase in standard money are quite different from the causes and results of an increase in other kinds of currency, which are forms debt. Increased production of gold may make it more plentiful and cheap, bringing about a rise in prices such as followed the gold discoveries in California a hundred years ago. McKINNEY, Tex — (P) — The Democratic party will base its campaign on pointing out "the greatest prosperity this na-tion has ever known," Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn said. The Bonham congressman, speaking at a flood control celebration, said the people of the nation are more prosperous than ever before.

"They don't want to give up this prosperity," he said, "and I don't believe they are going to give it up. I don't believe there will be a change of administration for a long time."

Rayburn was principal speaker at a meeting of flood control and soil conservation boosters from the Trinity river basin. They met to inspect the first eight of 107 flood control dams planned on tributaries of the east fork of the Trinity.
