GUY MILLS

In Pampa yesterday conferring with salvage committee members of the Pampa Civilian Defense council about plans for the saving of waste fats was Guy Mills, above, of Amarillo, of the Lipton Tea company. Mills' territory is the Panhandles of Oklahoma and Texas and part of New Mexico. Lipton has leased its entire sales forces in Texas and Oklahoma to work in the campaign to save fats.

U. S. Allocations In Latin America Flayed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) — Senator Butler (R-Neb) who recently made a one-man survey of Latin America, declared that the United States is stirring up bitter jealousies among some of the smaller South American nations through unequal allocation of lend-lease supplies, especially military airplanes. Added to reports of lend-lease discontent in other parts of the world, laid before the senate by its special war inspection committee in two days of secret sessions, Butler's statement underscored the difficulty faced by senators anxious to write a formal statement of America's postwar aims. "The Nebraska senator said lots of 'disgusting and nutty' projects were being carried out in South America with American money, and that one of the greatest potential trouble-breeds involved the military planes."

Paint Depends Upon Containers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) — Adequate industrial paint supplies depend on conservation of paint containers in five-gallon and larger sizes, the war production board reported today. J. Newton Hall, transportation officer in WPB's chemical division, said damaged metal containers can be salvaged and used for other production schedules. A growing shortage of paint containers will limit shipments unless present supplies are returned promptly and in good order, Hall said.

Britain Surprised At Senators' Charges

LONDON, Oct. 12. — (AP) — Last week's "secret" report of five battle-front-visiting U. S. senators, some of whom were critical of lend-lease dealings particularly with Britain and of immediate foreign policy commitments, came as something of a shock to the British public and press. There was little official or no official comment on the off-the-record report made by Senators Russell (D-Ga), Chandler (D-Ky), Mead (D-NV), Lodge (R-Mass) and Brewster (R-Me), but the keen interest was signified by the prominent display it received in the wartime restricted press. The only newspaper to comment editorially was the conservative Daily Telegraph which termed the criticism as relating to Great Britain "childish nonsense."

Thermofor Catalytic Cracking Units Start

BEAUMONT, Oct. 12 — (AP) — The first two thermofor catalytic cracking units in the world went into production at the Magnolia Petroleum refinery here Monday when D. A. Little, of Dallas president of Magnolia, pulled a switch. The TCC process is a new method of producing high octane aviation gasoline and butylene for synthetic rubber manufacture by use of a synthetic catalyst. Socony-vacuum developed the process and W. F. Burt of New York, Socony Vacuum director in charge of manufacture, said here that production began after a test period of three days. Col. Walter H. Reid, commanding officer of Ellington Field, Texas, and others took part in an inspection party were Lt. Col. P. G. Bell of the eighth service command petroleum division; Rear Admiral Percy W. Foote, Houston, in charge of navy building in Texas and Lt. Col. John M. Paine, attached to the office of Gen. H. H. Arnold in charge of the air training program. Colonel Paine made the principal address at a luncheon following the inspection.

Torpedo Squadron Eight in Action Aboard Carrier

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) — Torpedo Squadron Eight, virtually wiped out in the Battle of Midway, then reorganized to claim vengeance against the Japanese in the Solomons, again is back in service aboard an aircraft carrier. The navy revealed this in announcing the squadron has become the first command in the navy to receive two presidential unit citations for valor. The first citation came from the Midway battling. Then, under command of the late Lt. Cmdr. John Waldron, Pensacola, Fla., the squadron went out from its carrier with orders to "intercept and attack."

Florida Growers See Small Crop

CLEWISTON, Fla., Oct. 12 — (AP) — Truck farmers of the Florida mucklands, who produce almost half the nation's winter vegetables, met here over the week end to determine if they could equal last year's record crop. They predicted that when the figures are in next spring, they will fall short. How far short was a matter of individual opinion, but Nathan Mayo, Florida's commissioner of agriculture, declared "it will be a miracle if the expected quota is reached."

Air Fight Was Like Battle of Britain

A UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION IN ENGLAND, Oct. 12 — (AP) — The Flying Fortress "Eight Ball" was behind same for quite a spell during the raid on Muenster. "We did a good job bombing," the pilot, Lt. William Cabral, Spokane, Wash., said, "but we were knocked out of the formation after crossing the target when our aileron controls were shot away. The bombardier, Lt. Dean Ferris of Wilkesburg, Pa., put out the fire with his hands." The tailgunner, Sgt. Thomas Griffie, Six Mile Run, Pa., got two twin-engined Messerschmitts from the great swarm that made the attack and one filler commented, "it was like the battle of Britain packed into 25 minutes."

Texan Destroys 7 Jap Zeros

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Oct. 12 — (AP) — First Lt. Jay Robbins, of Coolidge, Limestone, Co., Texas, a Lightning pilot who shoots down enemy planes in bunches, was credited officially today with destroying seven Japanese Zeros in two engagements. Robbins got his first three Zeros in a short, fierce battle near Bogadim, New Guinea, last July 21. He destroyed four more over the Huon Gulf, Sept. 4. In the Huon Gulf engagement, P-38 Lightnings attacked 25 Japanese fighters which were escorting five divebombers. Lieutenant Robbins cut off the left wing and rudder on one Zero by firing from the rear. He saw the enemy pilot bail out.

The Texan immediately got a broadside burst into a second enemy fighter, which exploded. Then Robbins raked a Zero below him. He saw one wing fall off and the plane spin toward earth. Several fighters attacked Robbins. He shot the wing and rudder assembly off one. Robbins led three Lightnings in the Bogadim attack. He set one enemy plane afire with a long burst, intercepted a second and saw it crash, then shot the wing off a third.

Robert R. Brown, Houston, Texas, pilot of the "Cabin in the Sky." Others who destroyed one each included: "The bombing looked excellent," said Lt. Col. Henry W. Terry, Ossining, N. Y., who flew in the Fortress "Romance," piloted by Capt. Robert O. Frick, Atlanta, Ga., and co-piloted by Lt. Col. Woodrow Dunlop, San Antonio, Texas. "The bombing was good," commented Maj. Clinton Breeding of Waco, Texas, who led one group. "When I looked into the sky over Germany today and saw all those B-17's I thought: 'what a difference from last winter when we had only a few.'"

Cards Beat Themselves, Says Feder

By SID FEDER ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The scattered pieces of the busted St. Louis Cardinal bubble were being swept up for shipment to the nearest museum today as Frankie Crosetti was handed the bouquets and half a dozen Redbirds tried on sets of new horns from the late lamented World Series...

All agreed no blockbuster ever went off any louder than the explosion of the Cardinal myth. When the New York Yankees wound it up on Bill Dickey's homer to win 4 games to 1 for the tenth world championship in their history the Cards were well beaten—the same Cards, mind you, who had been built up as the runniest, fightingest, never-say-dyingest collection to come down the pike in quite a piece...

If ever a club beat itself, this year's Cardinals fit the picture. Mostly, they missed Terry Moore and Enos Slaughter in the outfield. After the second game, which Mort Cooper won with a magnificent competitive performance, they folded like a straw hat that's been sat on...

In yesterday's conclusion they had Spud Chandler on the ropes in six of nine innings, yet failed to throw a pig punch and were put on ice for keeps by a 2-0 score on ancient Dickey's two-run sixth-inning homer, which gave him a record of having been on eight series winning clubs since 1928...

Regardless of their standing, this encounter is always one of the main games of the season for these two teams, but this year they seem to be more even matched than usual. Panhandle started off with victories over Friona and Hereford, dropped their first conference game to Canadian, 25 to 0, then came back last week to down the McLean Tigers 13 to 0. Their first game was Wellington, then downed McLean, 25 to 0, and last Friday eked out a 14 to 13 win over Hereford.

Phillips Next Opponent For Pampa Eleven

Phillips the miracle team of the Panhandle, will be the next opponent of the Harvesters. The Pampa High school football team will play the Blackhaws at the local field at 8:30 Friday night.

Neither Phillips, Class 2-A, nor Pampa, Class 1-AA, have yet played conference games. Phillips has won two games, lost none, tied one, so far this season. Playing on a muddy field, Shamrock tied Phillips 0 to 0; last week, Phillips blanked Dumas 25 to 0. The Harvesters have played three games, losing two, winning one. They beat Weatherford, Okla., 27 to 7 then last week lost to Lawton, Okla., 21 to 0. So few games have been lost by Phillips in the past few years that it keeps sports fans busy trying to recall when a Phillips team has been beaten. Phillips uses a double wing back formation from a balanced line, the same tactics as used by the Weatherford, Okla., Eagles.

Errand for Q-74

By Malcolm Taylor

THE STORY: Capt. Raymond Imhof, Q-74, U. S. Army Intelligence, was assigned to follow a low-level trail of Enzeli, Q-4b, leading to certain important information which Enzeli has been unable to bring out of Germany. The plane first took off to parachute into enemy territory if forced down. He discovers the way toward Boppard.

THE CLEW

CHAPTER XIV WITHOUT Pat the next two days would have seemed interminable to Imhof's patience, but she made them pass agreeably, almost swiftly. They had slept in barns, in sheds, she made it fun, an adventure. By deft little feminine touches that he appreciated but could not analyze she added grace, even savor, to their rough meals.

When they did reach Boppard, Imhof went straight to the postoffice, soon followed by Pat. They ignored each other. He queued up on the proper line, she wrote at an adjacent table. Her warning signal was to be a loud tearing up of her paper.

When his turn came at the window Imhof's jaws worked, like a confirmed stutterer's, over a senseless Yo-Yo for the first syllables of Johannes, then exploded in a triumphant HANN'S. "Tsay-Tsay-Tsay," he stammered painfully, stumbling over the German Z. "Tsay-Tsay-Zellen, Zellen, Zellen," he got out then stuck, tongue cleaving to palate, jaw quivering convulsively, eyes goggling with the effort of speech.

"What name?" the clerk asked sharply, looking at him no less sharply. Imhof missed the sharpness of neither look nor tone. For all his pretended absorption of the stutterer in the labor of articulation he noted the clerk's half turn towards an open door on the left. Cleaving tongue loose from

Born in Bourne-mouth, Hampshire, Miss Hall first wrote poetry, switching to novels in 1924 when she wrote "The Unlit Lamp." "The Well of Loneliness," which became her most widely-read novel, was written in 1928 and soon ran afoul of the British censorship. The book, theme of which was the attachment between a young girl and an older woman, was seized in New York in 1929 in an action started by the American Society for the Suppression of Vice.

A court test ensued and the publishers were acquitted on a charge of selling an obscene book. The novel became an American best seller.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Calling for a "real investigation" of the Pearl Harbor attack at the first opportunity, Rep. Mansfield (D-Mont.) has told the house he intended to see to it the "whole shame-ridden tale" was told.

islands, with a total population of about 225,000, are an integral part of the Portuguese republic and not a colony.

The immediate effect of Portugal's action was the subject of hot speculation in London. The first and most important result for the Allies will be to give them one more valuable base from which to combat the Nazi submarine warfare which abated this summer but which is expected to be resumed in full scale to beat off the coming Allied invasion of the continent.

The Azores will afford added protection for one of the most vital sea lanes from the United States to the future fighting on the continent.

Lying at a crossroads of Atlantic shipping, 1,000 miles from Newfoundland and 1,400 miles from Britain, the Azores can be used to complete the air umbrella which was raised over the Atlantic and drove the U-boats to desperate new tactics.

(In Washington, the United States state department issued the following statement: "With reference to the statement made by Prime Minister Churchill concerning the use of facilities in the Azores, the agreement on which the statement is based was concluded by virtue of an ancient Anglo-Portuguese alliance. The United States government has been informed and has approved the arrangements made.")

The possibility was mentioned in common that the Axis might regard the cession of Portuguese bases as a hostile act. This brought no response from Churchill. Portugal has no land frontier with the Axis, but its shipping industries and harbors might be opened to long-range German attack in case war was declared upon her.

No Portuguese declaration of war against Japan is expected here (there have been rumors of Portuguese-Japanese dissension over Portuguese Timor).

Beginning his statement to commoners, Churchill elicited loud and appreciative laughter when he said solemnly, referring to the 500-year-old alliance between Britain and Portugal:

"I have an announcement to make to the house arising out of the treaty signed between this country and Portugal in the year 1373."

At the conclusion of his statement, Commander Sir Archibald Southby promptly asked whether Portugal's example would be called to the attention of Eric, which although still regarded as a member of the British commonwealth, consistently has refused naval and air bases to Britain.

Churchill made no response. Churchill disclosed that the Portuguese neutrality was adopted at the beginning of the war with "the full agreement" of the British government "with a view to preventing the war from spreading into the Iberian peninsula."

But, the prime minister added, "the Portuguese government, however, frequently stated that the above policy in no way was inconsistent with the Anglo-Portuguese alliance," and on the basis of this alliance, Britain requested facilities in the Azores.

Arrangements for these facilities "enter into force immediately," he said, in return for which Britain will give "assistance in furnishing essential material for the Portuguese armed forces and the maintenance of Portugal's national economy."

The latter provision of the agreement obviously is intended to aid Portugal in remedying her wartime food and supply situation, which recently has caused public demonstrations for more food in Lisbon and other cities and resulted in drastic reorganization of Portuguese rationing.

Implementation of the British promises presumably has already begun, because of the biggest convoys of coal ships to sail up the Tagus since the start of the war was recently unloaded at Lisbon, continental reports said.

Nothing in the agreement, Churchill declared, "affects the continued desire of the Portuguese government to continue their policy of neutrality on the European mainland and thus maintain a zone of peace in the Iberian peninsula."

Recent dispatches from Madrid have suggested that Spain, united with Portuguese government, and the two nations will stand together for peace unless attacked.

of several coastal batteries, only one attempted to fire at the cruisers and it was silenced in short order.

The enormous flotilla, commanded by peppy Rear Adm. Alfred E. Montgomery of Seattle, who made the decision to stay a second day, consisted of several hundred thousand tons of ships. Most of these men-of-war were of Post-Pearl Harbor construction.

After the surface ships completed their bombardment, land-based navy four-engined bombers came over and dropped their destructive loads on an already bleeding, burning and shell-shocked Wake. Although combat losses among all American forces involved were 12 carriers, seven of their crew members were rescued.

Good weather favored the operation. There was no rain to prevent landings and takeoffs. On the other hand, there were a brisk 16-knot wind to help the planes lift from the carriers and cloud patches in which the bombers could take cover from the much swifter Japanese Zeros.

Enemy planes were in the air as soon as the first alarm was raised, but almost from the beginning our air control over the island was absolute. The initial blow stunned the enemy air force, and subsequent reinforcements brought in from the Marshalls in dribs and drabs, six and eight planes each were knocked out of the air as fast as they arrived, when they did not beat a hasty withdrawal.

Commenting on the destruction effected, Admiral Montgomery said merely that "the results obtained by our bombing and bombardment and strafing justified the effort expended."

While the action was at its hottest—with loaded planes roaring off the deck and shot up planes returning and pilots reporting destruction to the admiral's headquarters—Montgomery scanned still-wet photographic prints.

He took particular interest in displaying a picture of 17 Japanese planes destroyed on the runways and in revetments. One Zero's tail assembly was about 20 feet from the fuselage.

"A good explosion must have done that," the admiral said, and smiled. As the raids succeeded one another into the second day, each set of photographs showed progressively greater damage to the Japanese installations. This was explained by Montgomery's chief of staff, Capt. Herbert S. Duckworth of Cape Girardeau, Mo.

"At first bombs don't do much damage," he said. "Then as damage control equipment is knocked to pieces and essential personnel is wounded or killed, the destruction multiplies nicely."

The men on this carrier long will remember the tenseness of the first launching. After the takeoff came the waiting. Captain Duckworth looked at his wristwatch and said "we ought to be giving them the works now."

Within minutes the carrier's loud-speaker system spread the good news to the crews below: "The first air group has completed its attack. The attack was a complete surprise. The AA (anti-aircraft fire) was heavy."

The men cheered, then sobered as the speaker added "we believe two of our planes were lost." Our first objective—as it always is—was to knock out the Japanese air power by destroying air facilities and grounded planes. This was achieved, and our dominance of the air resulted. Succeeding raids started two large oil fires which cast off big, black rolls of smoke as guides to the target for our pilots.

whose sons are missing in action. The group of 40 decided to send to their congressmen, the army, the navy, the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A., names of 127 Kansas City boys in uniform, hoping for some additional word.

The war department has discontinued giving the exact geographical location where a man disappears. This is to protect those who escape capture.

Those captured or killed in enemy territory without the knowledge of their fellow Americans can only be listed as "missing" until some definite report on their status is received from the enemy, said Herbert.

In the case of Germany—and formerly of Italy—these reports usually are forwarded through the International Red Cross in most cases within a few weeks, but occasionally taking as long as four months. The Japanese, on the other hand, make little effort to supply such information. A year, and a half since the fall of the Philippines, the army still has not received reports on all the men on Bataan and Corregidor.

reader to one particular code of ethics, principles or doctrine. The position of the newspaper is clear on this point. The newspaper is representative of the whole community, and while its editor or publisher might be an Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian, United Churchman, or Roman Catholic, it would not be fair to give undue prominence to the doctrines of the sect to which he personally belongs. News is another matter. If more news comes from the United Church because it has more organizations, or because its press secretaries are more wide awake than naturally that church would receive more space in the paper than the Anglican or Baptist if those churches were not so well organized or did not possess good press secretaries.

Weekly newspapers depend to a very large extent upon correspondents and press secretaries for news items, and this being the case it is timely to remind correspondents and secretaries that the newspaper is interested primarily in the news, and not in acting as an agency for the dissemination of however does not preclude the newspaper drawing attention to any special effort made by any organization or institution within the community.

To run up the attitude of the press toward propaganda, it should be clearly understood that the press is interested in the events concern-g organizations, rather than the ethics or principles which attract one to membership in these groups.

of Colletorto, hitting some vehicles on the roads.

The Volturno river has overflowed its banks in some places, covering the nearby fields with water and making fighting there virtually impossible. The Fifth Army continued to consolidate its positions for an eventual big drive to crack the Volturno line.

The Fifth Army and the Germans face each other across the narrow, twisting river awaiting the signal that will touch off one of the biggest battles of the war, a front-line dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Reiman Morin said.

American artillery blasted continually at Nazi positions on the north bank of the river, Morin said, adding: "The site of the coming battle is a cup-shaped valley almost completely ringed with hills. We hold the southern and southeastern slopes. The Germans are entrenched solidly in the north. They probably
