Americans Observing Thanksgiving

City, County Join Holiday Celebration

By LARRY HOLLIS
Most Pampa and Gray County residents planned to spend the day at home or to visit relatives during the national observance of Thanksgiving Day today.

With mild weather in the forecast, families will be gathered around their tables this afternoon for turkey and all the trimmings as they take time to recount their blessings.

Schools and most businesses are closed today to allow students and employees to spend the time with their families.

With heavy traffic expected on the roads, the police, sheriff and highway patrol departments have issued warnings to motorists to use caution in driving.

City Hall and Gray County Court House offices are closed today and will not re-open until Monday morning to allow a long weekend for employees.

No regular mail deliveries will be made by the U.S. Post Office today as postmen join others in observing the holiday.

The Post Office will resume regular service on Friday.

The police, sheriff, highway patrol and fire departments will continue their operations during the day.

Some churches will be conducting short special sessions today, but most will let families celebrate the day in their own ways.

Most college students with a long weekend off from studies will join their families for the day before returning to school next week.

Public and private schools in the city let out Wednesday afternoon and will resume regular hours Monday morning.

With special fare offered on the television, many will be sitting in front of their sets. The day will provide good viewing for football games, with special interest in Texas centered on the University of Texas and Texas A&M game during the afternoon and the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco Chargers tonight.

Legislator Fined $3,000 On 3 Counts

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Tom Holmes of Granbury pleaded guilty Wednesday to three misdemeanor counts involving alleged misuse of postage stamps from his House expense account.

Holmes was fined $1,000 on each count.

He is the sixth legislator to be convicted this year on criminal charges.

His trial on a felony charge of theft by false pretext was scheduled to begin next Monday, but the misdemeanor convictions eliminate the possibility of a felony trial on the stamp transactions.

GATHERING TOGETHER — With the spirit of Thanksgiving Day prevailing, people are gathering together today in their various homes for a big meal and the fellowship of family and friends. In preparation for the day, students at St. Matthews Episcopal Day School re-enacted the first Thanksgiving, dressing up as Pilgrims and Indians. Getting ready to partake of the "meal" are, from left, Byron Hulsey, 4, son of

Parades Slated In Many Cities

By Associated Press

It was D-Day for the turkey Wednesday as Americans across the land loosened their clothing a bit in anticipation of the annual Thanksgiving Day feast to commemorate the blessings of the past year.

President Nixon and his family, spending Thanksgiving at Camp David presidential retreat in Maryland, were to sit down like many Americans to the traditional turkey dinner with all the fixings.

But not everyone planned to celebrate with turkey. The 1,800 prisoners at Indiana State Prison in Michigan City were allowed to vote for their Thanksgiving menu. They opted for T-bone steak.

In Plymouth, Mass., while persons in costume were to celebrate Thanksgiving in the manner of the Pilgrims who landed there in 1620, a group of Indians were to conduct a symbolic fast in what they call a "day of mourning."

The United Americans of New England said in a statement, "These Indians are fasting to mourn the loss of Indian life, land and culture, which for them began with the arrival of the Pilgrims."

The National Weather Service forecast a day that would be mostly sunny for much of the nation. Places of worship across the country planned special Thanksgiving services.

In Ohio, in an unusual departure from the traditional, the altar at Heights Christian Church, Shaker Heights, was to be spread with the products of nearby Cleveland industry, instead of the traditional cornstarks and pumpkins, to illustrate an "urban cornucopia."

Parades were to be held in many cities and merchants planned to use the occasion to usher in the Christmas season with the unveiling of decorations and the welcoming of Santa Claus.

In Hobbs, N.M., however, the city council, spurred by public opinion against overcommercialization of Christmas, voted this year to not allow merchants to put up Christmas displays until the day after Thanksgiving.

Those Americans who decided to celebrate with turkey, found they had chosen an economical feast. The Agriculture Department in Washington said turkey was among the best buys in the supermarket.

Nixon Lifts Ban On Travel To Red China

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President Nixon lifted today a rigid government ban on travel of U.S. aircraft and ships to Communist China.

The action, announced by a spokesman at Nixon's Camp David, Md., retreat, is a first step toward eventual establishment of scheduled air and sea service to the long-isolated Communist superpower.

The changes in government regulations do not automatically, however, clear the way for scheduled service. A complicated set of details still must be worked out before U.S. airlines can routinely land in such cities as Peking, said press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

In a brief statement, the White House said "these changes are made to facilitate development of trade and contacts between the American and Chinese peoples in the spirit of the joint communique issued in Shanghai on Feb. 28."

Pampa United Fund Hits Its '72 Goal Of $94,250

The Pampa United Fund topped its $94,250 goal Wednesday, successfully ending an intensive three-month campaign.

"We of the Pampa United Fund and the directors of our member organizations have a special reason for being grateful this Thanksgiving Day," said David Fatheree, 1972 drive chairman.

"Once again, the citizens of Pampa have shown that despite substantial increases in the cost of living, they are still more than willing to provide the health, welfare and recreational services that are so essential to this community."

"We are particularly grateful," Fatheree went on, "to our group chairmen and to the many volunteer workers who gave their time to this year's drive."

"Without their determined efforts, reaching our goal would have been impossible."

Serving as group and division chairmen for the 1972 drive were W.L. Loving, Jim Stallings, Art Aftergut, Jerry Sims, Benny Kirksey, Melvin Kunkel, Jack Skelly, Gene Hanks, Dr. James Malone, Milo Carlson, Ken Burgener and Mrs. Carl Brugger.

Outgoing officers are Frank M. Culbertson, chairman; E.L. Green, Jr., president; Fatheree, drive chairman, and Hagaman, executive secretary.

Agencies participating in the Pampa United Fund are the Salvation Army, the Red Cross, Quivira Council of the Girl Scouts, Adobe Walls Council of the Boy Scouts, the Pampa Welfare Index, the Pampa Milk Fund, the Texas Rehabilitation Center at Gonzales and the USO.

SAIGON (AP) — The United States lost its first B52 Stratofortress of the war to enemy fire Wednesday, military sources reported.

While the U.S. Command declined to say what caused the loss, it confirmed that the eight-engine bomber crashed in eastern Thailand while trying to return to base at Utopia. It said all six crewmen were rescued.

Military sources here and in Washington said the bomber was hit, apparently by a SAM missile, on a bombing run near Vinh during the heaviest raid of the war on North Vietnam. Vinh is about 11 miles inside North Vietnam.

The crippled B52 was able to fly about 100 miles before the crew was forced to abandon the plane.

Since the B52s began raiding North Vietnam in large numbers last April, North Vietnam has claimed periodically that they have shot one down. But U.S. military sources said none has been lost to hostile fire previously. At least 10 of the Stratofortresses have crashed due to operational failures.

The crash came at the end of a day that saw B52s carry out their heaviest bombing raids of the war against North Vietnam and after the U.S. Command announced the loss of the fourth F111 swing-wing fighter-bomber Wednesday in less than two months.

Military sources said the plane was being listed as a combat loss, meaning that it was hit by enemy fire.

The B52s fly in threes on bombing missions, each carrying up to 30 tons of bombs and dropping them from altitudes of 38,000 feet and higher.

The planes carry a variety of defensive gear to protect themselves against attacking fighters and ground to air missiles.

Nor are the cattlemen the only agricultural people hit by too much wetness. Unharvested grain fields sodden with moisture in their drooping heads dot the area.

Many grain growers have not cut a single acre of milo which appears to be the hardest hit of the grains. It was already suffering from an early freeze that damaged both the dryland and the double-cropped stands.

Few growers who managed to get grain out of the field before the snow report any great yield or condition that promises much profit.

U.S. Loses Its First B52 Of War To Enemy Fire

$3,000 AMENDMENT 6

Local Officials Studying Homestead Tax Exemption

By TEX DEWESE

Indecision on the part of Pampa city and Gray county officials has popped up over Amendment 6 to the Texas Constitution approved by voters statewide in the Nov. 7 election.

Amendment 6 provides that the various political and subdivisions of the State may exempt not less than $3,000 of the value of residence homesteads of all persons 65 years of age or older from ad valorem taxes under certain conditions.

Texas and Gray County voters left little doubt about their concern for the aged when they went to the polls and approved Amendment 6 by a wide margin.

The amendment comes under the head of permissive legislation. The governmental units may or may not enact the provisions. If no action is taken, voters may petition for an election to decide the issue.

City Manager Mack Wofford said the city is studying the matter and has asked State Rep. Phil Cates for more information about the amendment's constitutional provisions. It is understood the Gray County Commissioners Court also is awaiting further information.

There has been no word from the Pampa Independent School District on which way it intends to go.

The State already has in force a $3,000 exemption on the assessed valuation of all residence homesteads owned by people 65 or over for state tax purposes.

This amendment as adopted, would allow political subdivisions within the state, such as counties, cities, towns, and school districts, to have the option of extending the $3,000 property tax exemption.

The amendment provides for two alternative procedures for getting the exemption passed. If the governing body of a political subdivision does not choose to enact the provisions, the voters of that subdivision could call for a vote through the petition process.

The amendment stipulates that the exemption will not pertain to any ad valorem taxes already pledged to pay debts.

State Rep. Price Denies Report On Appointments

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Price Daniel Jr. of Liberty countered rumors of several possible appointments to house committee chairmanships Wednesday by saying he had made no final decisions.

Daniel apparently has all the votes he needs to be elected House speaker when the legislature convenes Jan. 9, and there is no organized opposition to his election.

"I am not going to make any final decision on any appointments until after the election," he said in a telephone interview. "If I made any decisions, that would come close to violating the oath of office I have to take."

The most persistent report is that he will name Rep. Neil Caldwell of Alvin chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. Caldwell was an early supporter of Daniel and is a member of the committee now.

A liberal who has served some 12 years in the legislature, almost entirely under conservative speakers, Caldwell has held to major house chairmanship.

"He is one that is being considered a lot of people have suggested him," Daniel said.

Rep. Joe Allen of Baytown is another longtime Daniel backer mentioned for a major chairmanship. Allen has "expressed interest" in the House Revenue and Taxation Committee, "but I don't think it would be fair to say he is being considered."

Daniel said Allen's "big interest" was in the House Administration Committee.

Another name that has come up for administration committee chairmanship is conservative Rep. Ben Bynum of Amarillo, and Daniel said he is one of several who are "being considered."

The name that occurs most often in speculation about Daniel's committee appointments is that of Rep. W. S. "Bill" Healy of Paducah, crony, sometimes domineering former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

When former Speaker Gus Mutscher resigned and Rayford Price—a Healy enemy—took over as speaker, Healy resigned the chairmanship. He later endorsed Daniel for the job.

As various rumors have it, Healy will serve on the appropriations committee, be a member of the conference committee that writes the next state budget or serve on the Legislative Budget Board.

"Healy has not asked me for a thing ever, at any time," Daniel said. "I am not going to let his experience go down the drain. On the other hand, he will not play a prominent role in my administration."

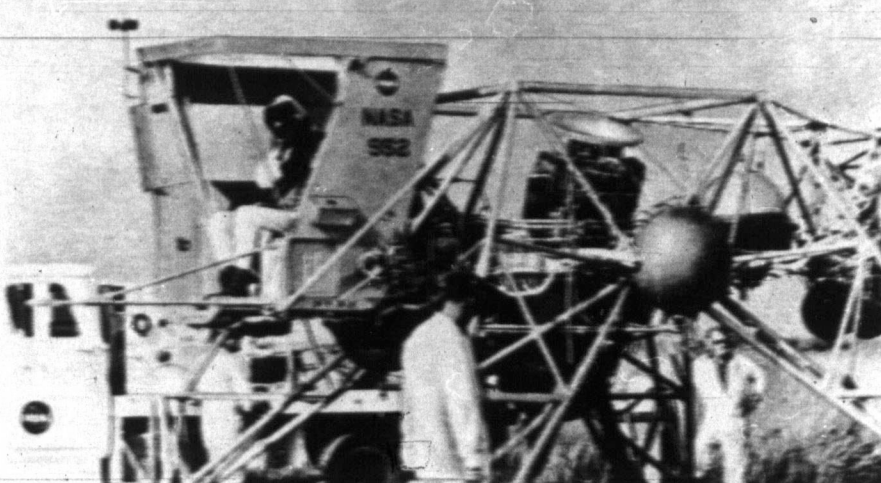

Daniel said Healy was "too controversial" to be given an important role.

He said Healy has enough seniority to go on the appropriations committee if he asks to.

Daniel said he is thinking about committee assignments "without making any particular decisions." He said he expects to name committee members essential before bills can be considered—about a week of 10 days after the session starts.

He also said he expects the House to decide quickly on new rules that he has proposed.

"I doubt there will even be a fight," he said.

Texas Supreme Court Upholds Decisions On Insurance Firm

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court agreed with lower courts Wednesday that International Security Life Insurance Co. had accepted an old couple's premiums without intending to honor their legitimate claims.

In other decisions, the court rejected a Tyler hair dresser's attempt to collect $25,000 in life insurance on his wife, who was shot to death shortly after applying for a policy.

Upheld a charter granted by the state savings and loan commissioner for the Baytown Savings Association to go into business.

The court affirmed decisions of a Plainsview, Tex., jury and the Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals that International Security Life owed Mrs. C. F. Finck $76 in actual damages and $2,500 in punitive damages.

Mrs. Finck said she and her late husband, who was ill at the time, bought a hospitalization policy from agent David Cockrell in 1969. She said Cockrell told them the policy would "cover everything that Medicare didn't cover" and that the company "would always pay their claims promptly," and that they believed him.

Later, the company refused to pay for Finck's hospital stay, contending it resulted from a condition that existed before the policy was purchased.

Witnesses at the trial said the company had a bad reputation for refusing claims and never paid them unless lawsuits were filed. One witness said that when an 89-year-old policyholder fell and broke his hip, International Security Life denied his claim on the ground that it resulted from a pre-existing condition.

The circulating of misleading fliers and brochures, which the company did not deny supplying, and the representations to prospective policyholders that claims were paid promptly, when in fact they were never paid without engaging the services of an attorney, created strong circumstantial evidence that the company participated in the fraudulent acts of its agent and, in fact, accepted the money for the premiums with the intention not to pay legitimate claims when they arose. The insurance company has presented no evidence whatsoever to contradict this testimony and the reasonable inferences arising therefrom," the high court said.

In another insurance case, Wade Earl Robertson, a Tyler hairdresser, sued South Coast Life Insurance Co. after it refused to pay him $25,000 following the shooting death of his wife.

But the Tyler Court of Civil Appeals reversed the verdict, saying Robertson had produced no affirmative evidence that Teresa Robertson, on the date in question, was insurable under (South Coast's) underwriting standards and practices.

The Supreme Court said it could find "no reversible error" in that decision.

Nine days before Teresa Ann Robertson, seven months pregnant, was shot in the couple's apartment, she applied for a policy with a South Coast agent. A receipt was issued, saying she was covered, provided the company found her insurable and acceptable for the coverage she wanted.

Four days after Mrs. Robertson's death, a notice was delivered, saying the company would not accept her application for insurance.

A jury found she was insurable, however, that the policy was in effect when she died and that her husband did not willfully cause her death.

But the Tyler Court of Civil Appeals reversed the verdict, saying Robertson had produced no affirmative evidence that Teresa Robertson, on the date in question, was insurable under (South Coast's) underwriting standards and practices.

The Supreme Court said it could find "no reversible error" in that decision.

'Runaway' Girl Sent Back From Miami

Patty Stokes, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Stokes, 708 N. Zimmers, was returned to Pampa from Miami yesterday and released to her mother by Roberts County authorities, according to local police.

The incident ended several anxious days for the parents who had, with police, made exhaustive efforts to find the runaway.

The case took a peculiar turn last night when Canadian officers went to a birthday party in that city on a tip that she was present. She was not found but another missing Pampa girl was and was held for her mother to pick her up.

Still missing are a Pampa youth 20 years old and a teenage girl, both of them fugitives from home.

Police Probing Burglary Case

Pampa police are investigating the burglary of a service station Tuesday night in the 800 Blk. of E. Frederick.

After gaining entry to the building, the burglar or burglars rifled the cash drawer, taking $25 and then garnered an estimated $8 to $10 from a soft drink machine, according to the police report.

The investigation has yielded a number of prints and police are optimistic since such prints solved another burglary in the city a few days ago.

Burglar Steals Turkey, But Story Ends Happily

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—A criminal intrusion will not prevent a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner in sightless Carlotta Castillo's household after people with "gold hearts" came to her aid.

The police blitzer showed a burglar or burglars entered the east side three-room residence of Mrs. Castillo Tuesday while she was waiting several hours in an office to see a doctor.

For prosecution's sake, the value of the missing goods was set at $46. It included two quilts off her beds.

Besides normal foodstuffs, the intruder took the Thanksgiving turkey and the trimming and is still at large.

The story of the crime appeared in Wednesday morning papers here.

At mid-afternoon Wednesday, Mrs. Castillo, 52, had three turkeys and "a man said he wasn't going to bring me turkey but he was going to bring some deer meat. Yes sir, I like it," said Mrs. Castillo.

Speaking in broken English, she said, "Even the tears run down in my face that God has shown how nice people are to me."

Police transported goods to Mrs. Castillo's home from donors in other parts of this South Texas city.

One person donated a pumpkin pie and another a shopping trip.

Nixon Family Celebrating Thanksgiving

THURMONT, MD. (AP) — President Nixon has given White House Chef Henry Haller the day off, but the family still will have the traditional turkey dinner on Thanksgiving Day.

This will be the first time that the Nixon family has celebrated the Thanksgiving holiday at Camp David, one of the favorite weekend vacation spots. The cooking chores will be in the hands of stewards from the Navy mess at the White House.

The Navy stewards, supervised by Cmdr. Ronald Jackson, provide food for White House officials and do the cooking at Camp David, a military installation, when the President is there.

Thursday's dinner will be a private family affair with only son-in-law David Eisenhower missing. He currently is on Navy duty in the Mediterranean.

The Nixons' dinner menu will be: roast turkey, bread dressing, giblet gravy, whipped potatoes, green peas and onions, fresh cranberry salad mold, minted pears, hot dinner rolls and pumpkin pie with whipped cream.

Steel Firm Announces Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's No. 2 steel producer has joined the largest in announcing a broad price boost which could push up costs in the construction, machinery and automotive industries.

Bethlehem Steel Corp. on Tuesday announced price hikes of from $6 to $25 a ton on a variety of steel products, including heavy structural products used in the construction industry. The increase was equivalent to an across-the-board price hike of about 1.8 per cent, Bethlehem said.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel firm, had announced a series of similar price boosts last Friday.

The U.S. Steel price increase was said to be equivalent to a 2.7 per cent across the board hike, but — like Bethlehem's — took the form of larger increases on selected products composing about 55 per cent of the product line.

Bethlehem raised prices of steel shapes, piling plates, rails, bars, rods and tubular products. All of these increases, it said, had been approved under a blanket Price Commission authorization about a year ago and would take effect Jan. 1.

Bethlehem also said it would apply to the Price Commission for permission to raise by 4 per cent the price of tin mill products, which make up a relatively small percentage of sales. These increases, if approved, would take effect next Feb. 16.

Left untouched were the prices of sheet and strip products, which make up about 40 per cent of shipments industry wide, according to analysts. Bethlehem had said in October that it would hold the line of these prices at least through April.

Bethlehem, however, concentrates more than other companies on structural steel, used in heavy construction. One analyst said that Bethlehem had apparently executed a neat end-run by pledging to hold steady strip and sheet prices, thus forcing its chief competitor to raise structural steel prices — the very ones that would do Bethlehem the most good.

The steel industry in general is trying to recover some of the added costs it has incurred as the result of an 8 per cent wage hike granted steelworkers in August.

Brownsville Voting Machines Prove To Be Legitimate

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — A Republican Party complaint that a voting machine at a Brownsville precinct during the general election operated in a faulty manner proved to be legitimate Tuesday.

Frances Lipe, ballot security chairman for the Republican Party in Cameron County, had forwarded a list of complaints of voting irregularities to U.S. Atty. Anthony J. P. Farris in Houston. One complaint was that at Precinct 8 in Brownsville, U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., received no votes at all.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Raul A. Gonzalez and FBI agent Jim Wilson Tuesday checked the machine and determined that no matter how many times the lever was pulled for Tower the machine registered no votes.

Some memories for happy Thanksgiving

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR READERS: If I were to set down all the things for which I have to be thankful this Thanksgiving Day, I could fill this page. But I would like to share with you a few unpublished letters. And for these, I am truly thankful:

DEAR ABBY: Because you answered my letter I have regained some of my confidence in people in general. I had my doubts about an answer from you; I guess you showed me.

You wouldn't believe what a difference your few words of advice have made in me. I am much more sure of myself now, and maybe that was the trouble all along. I think I must have just wanted someone to listen to me.

I have decided to try very hard to become a happy, carefree person and enjoy what is left of my senior year in high school. Now that I am meeting people halfway, I find they want to be friendly as much as I. Thank you so much, Abby. And may God bless you, too. Peace. Love, GINNY

DEAR ABBY: Thru your column, I discovered ALANON—the organization which helps the families of alcoholics learn how to live with an alcoholic.

My husband was an alcoholic for many years, but he wouldn't admit it to himself, so of course he had no reason to go to a meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Thru my association with ALANON, would you believe my husband agreed to attend an A. A. meeting, and now he is sober and has been for seven months?

Don't tell me miracles can't happen. It happened to us. May God bless you. MORE THAN GRATEFUL IN L. A.

DEAR ABBY: I am a Vietnamese woman. I read your column every day in Stars and Stripes. I want to thank you for the help you have given me with learning to read English. Many other Vietnamese people find that reading your column is a good way to improve their English in an interesting and easy way.

I never studied English in school. I have a basic knowledge of French; but thanks to your column, I can have many more words of English.

I will be proud if you print this, and let everybody know you have helped me and lots of other Vietnamese people. Thank you, Dear Abby.

NHIEU: DANAG, SOUTH VIET NAM

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column signed "TOO LATE." It was from a woman who had time to go everywhere but to visit her elderly parents who sat alone night after night. Only after they died did she realize how selfish she had been, and she went to visit their graves and wondered if God would ever forgive her.

Well, thank God, I am not too late because I, too, was too busy to visit my elderly parents, but that letter woke me up, and now I am trying to make up for my selfishness. Bless you for printing it. NOT TOO LATE IN SEATTLE

DEAR READERS: If you have no special "grace" for your Thanksgiving meal, please use mine:

"O, heavenly Father:
We thank Thee for food and remember the hungry
We thank Thee for health and remember the sick.
We thank Thee for freedom and remember the enslaved.
May these remembrances stir us to service
That Thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen"

Have a happy, healthy Thanksgiving. ABBY

NY Bridge Story Told By Writer

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) —

For most people, the Brooklyn Bridge is what hayseeds buy and daredevils jump off.

But for writer David McCullough the great span hurdling New York City's East River has "a curious magnetism — people have gone to it on their honeymoon, have carried newborn babies across it, and have scattered the ashes of their dead over its sides."

McCullough, whose recently published, 636-page "The Great Bridge" tells the story of the building of the bridge, first felt its magnetism when he and his wife moved into an apartment in Brooklyn Heights some years ago.

"We used to go out on it on Sundays and walk," he recalls with a smile. "It was a marvelous place to get out of the city while still being in the city. It's the only bridge with a promenade above the traffic, its builder intended it that way. It was designed for people to enjoy."

McCullough, a former magazine writer and editor and the author of "The Johnstown Flood," says it was while he was enjoying the bridge that "I realized here is this very famous bridge — but how did it get here, why was it built, how long did it take to build? And, most of all, who were the people that built it? My book, you see, is really a story of people and not just a bridge."

McCullough began work on his bridge book some five years ago — working as a magazine editor by day and on the book at night and on weekends.

"I did that for about two years," he says, "and then I realized that I'd chosen a subject that was so big and the material for it was so far ranging and plentiful that the only way I could do the job properly was to concentrate all my efforts on it. So I quit my job — which isn't easy when you have five kids ranging from 16 down to 3 — and a lot of people thought I was mad. But I believed this was an important story, and I had a compulsion to do it."

Researching the book meant digging through a lot of old newspapers as well as through a vast amount of material in the libraries of two colleges. McCullough says, "but having such abundant raw material to work with gave me the chance to bring my characters alive."

McCullough, 39, who now lives with his family in West Tisbury, Mass., says the five years he spent on the book was about evenly divided between research and writing.

"On a book like this you gather much more than you use," he says with a laugh. "As long as this book is, it could have been a great deal longer."

"I worked very, very hard on this book. At one point, I tore up 50,000 words and threw them away because they weren't right and started over again."

Door prizes were awarded Mrs. Mae Hatcher and L.E. Henderson.

A Thanksgiving card was received from Mrs. Stella Wagner, a former Pampan and faithful Altrusian, now residing in California.

Cards were mailed to Mrs. Grace Ford and J.R. Stephens, both in Highland General Hospital and to R.W. Tucker, who is convalescing at his home.

Varietas Study Club Program On Fashion

Mrs. H. Price Dosier Sr. presented the program for Varietas Study Club on Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Clyde Ellis. The president, Mrs. N.B. Ellis, presided.

The afternoon's topic was "Fashion" and carried the sub-title, "Women's Styles May Change, But Their Designs Remain The Same". Mrs. Clyde Ellis, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Dosier first presented the part of the program prepared by Mrs. Aubrey Sprawls, who was unable to attend the meeting.

Her topic was "Fashions Streak Into '73". Mrs. Sprawls' paper stated that a woman chooses the color and style of clothes that make her happy. She said, "Hem lines are settled nicely around the knees. Many designers say that dresses are replacing pants' suits. White clothes may be worn all year. Accessories, such as hats, envelope purses, stockings with seams, and other departures from last year's fashions are being shown. Many women are making their own clothes these days."

Mrs. Dosier exhibited an array of dresses made from patterns and materials at Sands Fabrics.

For the second part of the program, Mrs. Dosier spoke on the topic, "Resolved-For The New Year" and gave a humorous list of possible resolutions for any year starting on any date. She closed with a prayer for the coming year.

She then asked the secretary to call the roll. Each member responded with a brief talk on her favorite color or dress or accessory.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. S.C. Evans on Nov. 28. Members are to bring gifts for the Wichita Falls Hospital.

Miss Teenage Pageant Deadline Approaching

The Alamo, oil wells, if Texas was also the home of the next Miss National Teen Ager? Well, here's your chance, girls! San Antonio will again

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, NOV. 24
Your birthday today: Evolve—anything that worked before continues with attention and revision. Today's natives are sympathetic, sensitive to the general welfare, physically active.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Family affairs promise to improve as long-hidden secrets emerge and are found not so terrible after all.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Consider the side effects and repercussions of current issues before acting. It's a fine day to digress from habits.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Social activity dominates your schedule. Business, if you must attend to it, must include close attention to facts and figures.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Purely personal goals take first precedence. Do the minimum feasible in work, making no specific promises.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: In a survey of your home situation you find many reasons for change, but no ready channel for expressing yourself.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Asking advice brings more confusion than it resolves. Relations suffer from excess reference to past errors.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: However you manage it, the easiest course you can find is the best under present circumstances. Social activity comes to a high.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Nothing contributes directly to your progress thru a complex low-key day. Find patience for a philosophic mood.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Do no more than you must on serious business. Where you've kept something secret, it pops out quite easily.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Factual information is incomplete, with little prospect of quick correction. Make it a tidy closing out of the week.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The questions you ask reveal mainly flaws in plans needs for things beyond ready reach. Let people find their own direction.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Peacekeeping turns out to be a valuable talent among your regular associates. You have the knack—use it!

MRS. TIMOTHY ALLEN CHOATE
...nee Miss Cheryl Christine Hart

Hart-Choate Vows Exchange In Enid

The St. Matthews Episcopal Church of Enid, Okla., was the setting Saturday, Nov. 18 at 4 p.m. for the exchange of nuptial vows by Miss Cheryl Christine Hart and Timothy Allen Choate.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Barnett H. Jackson. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Hart, of Stillwater, Okla., formerly of Pampa and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene G. Choate of Enid, Okla.

THE CEREMONY

The background of harvest, bronze mums in altar vases and seven-branched candelabra, formed the setting for the wedding. The bridal aisle was covered with a white cloth.

A musical prelude was presented by Marty Meier, organist. He played, "Color My World." For the processional, he played, "Trumpet June," by Henry Purcell, and for the recessional, he used "Psalms XIX," by Benedetto Marcello.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of bridal taffeta, designed with a panel front, modified scalloped neckline and Bishop sleeves. Alencon lace complimented the neckline, bodice, sleeves and hemline of the gown that extended to chapel length.

The floor-length skirt was designed with a detachable sanctuary train that fell from a bow at the back waistline. Her elbow-length mantilla of illusion fell from a tiara accented with seed pearls, and she carried a golden glow design, bouquet of white gladioli florettes. The bride carried out the tradition of something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Beth Hart, sister of the bride, Stillwater, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Cindy Scott, Austin, and Mrs.

Dale Duncan, sister of the bridegroom, Oklahoma City. They wore identical empire styled, floor-length gowns of tangerine plaid taffeta skirts, and with a brown velvet long-sleeved bodice. They carried colonial bouquets of bronze pom pons fern.

Bill Morgan, Norman, Okla., was best man and groomsmen were Dale Duncan, Oklahoma City and Dennis McIntyre, Norman, Okla. Jerry Kempf, Stillwater, Dan Langford, Norman, and Larry Jantz, Enid were ushers.

Serving as Acolytes were Danny Hart, brother of the bride, Stillwater; Robert Plank, Stillwater; Joel Derington, Denton; and Wesley Herzberg, Enid.

RECEPTION

For the reception at the church, the bride's serving table was centered with a pyramid design of tangerine mums with graduated candles.

The three-tiered white wedding cake was decorated with tangerine flowers.

Mrs. Mike Healy, Enid, and Mrs. Kirk Owen, Denton presided at the punch bowl and cake was served by Miss Debbie Denum, Stillwater, and Mrs. Chris Kenney, Lubbock. Guests were registered by Miss Linda Herzberg, Enid.

Miss Heidi Herzberg, Enid, and Miss Jan Derington, Denton, presided at the bridegroom's table.

For a short wedding trip, the bride traveled in a red, black and white sports ensemble and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

BAPTIST PRAYER GROUP
The Mission Prayer Group of the First Baptist Church met in the parlor of the church at 10:00 a.m., Wednesday, Nov. 8.

Mrs. Owen Johnson, chairman of the group, presided. She opened the meeting with scripture from John 17. This scripture tells how Jesus Christ prayed for humanity.

Mrs. Ed Langford read a letter from the Dean of International students of Wayland Baptist College listing the five international students now attending Wayland and indicated needs of these students in which the group is interested.

There are nearly 500 million Moslems in the world.

Huskers Vs. Sooners Is Top College Game

NEW YORK (AP) — What a difference a year makes! Just one Thanksgiving ago, the Nebraska-Oklahoma game at Norman, Okla., was being touted as the Game of the Century, featuring as it did the 1-2 teams in the country.

This time, just the Big Eight championship—and a lot of personal pride—is at stake at Lincoln, Neb., since 8-1 Oklahoma is only ranked fourth and defending two-time national champion Nebraska, 8-1-1, is no better than fifth.

Nevertheless, Oklahoma's Chuck Fairbanks says it "doesn't look a lot different than last year. Nebraska's style of play, though, is a little bit different. Their offense is more wide open. Last year, there were times when they'd just keep running straight at you and it was difficult to get the ball away from them. Now, they're more of a big play type of team and they're utilizing Johnny Rodgers in many different ways.

"Defensively, the thing that's so impressive about them is their great team speed. At times, you'll see an opening, but if you don't hit it right away, suddenly, it's not there any more."

As for Oklahoma, the Sooners "have been kinda stopping ourselves," Fairbanks says. "We move the ball up and down the field, but we're not putting it in the end zone like we're capable of doing. But over-all we're so much more balanced than a year ago. Our defense is vastly improved."

Oklahoma ranks second nationally in total offense, first in rushing, fifth in scoring, eighth in total defense, fifth in rushing defense and second in points against.

Nebraska is third in total offense, fourth in passing, second in scoring, tops in total defense, eighth in rushing defense and third in scoring defense.

What do you know ... it just might be another Game of the Century. But it's also Coach Bob Devaney's last home game and it says here ... just like it did last year ... Nebraska.

Michigan at Ohio State—Another one of those all-out wars for the Big Ten crown and the honor (?) of facing top-ranked Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl. Defense usually tells the story in this match-up and no one's scored more than nine points on Michigan all year; four opponents didn't score at all. The banged-up Buckeyes, on the other hand, have yielded 20 points to Wisconsin, 19 to Minnesota and Michigan State and 14 to Northwestern in their last four outings. Despite the home field advantage ... Michigan.

Texas A&M at Texas—A&M's Emory Bellard devised much of the Wishbone offense while coaching under Darrell Royal for five years at Texas. Louisiana State at Florida—It took LSU three periods last Saturday night against lowly Mississippi State to recover from the emotion-packed loss a week earlier to Alabama. Now, with a bowl bid assured, the Tigers might be ripe for an upset against the improving Gators. Resisting the temptation ... LSU.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Friendsville Academy's losing basketball streak was extended to 122 games Tuesday night when the Foxes lost to Knoxville Webb 86-41.

The Quaker academy, which has an enrollment of about 35 boys and 25 girls, now is 0-4 this season.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars of the American Basketball Association announced Tuesday they have given future draft considerations to the Utah Suns in exchange for Ira Harge, a player the Cougars cast away 23 months ago.

Six-foot-nine Harge, 31, is a 1964 graduate of New Mexico. The Cougars sent him to the Floridians in 1970, and Utah acquired him last January.

DENVER (AP) — Bobby Anderson, running back for the Denver Broncos of the National Football League, underwent surgery on his left leg Tuesday night, a team spokesman said.

Anderson, a 6-foot, 215-pounder, was injured in the Oakland game last Sunday. The injury was first believed to be a sprained knee, but proved to be more serious.

He will be lost for the season, the team said.

Kansas at Missouri—Four of Kansas' last five opponents have been ranking teams: Nebraska, Iowa State, Colorado and Oklahoma. But five of Miz-zou's last six foes were Nebraska, Notre Dame, Colorado, Oklahoma and Iowa State. Missouri.

Iowa State at Oklahoma State—Pooped-out Cyclones have just come through an Oklahoma-Nebraska-Missouri stretch without a win, but Oklahoma State's looking ahead to Oklahoma. Iowa State.

Arizona State at Arizona—Last week, it didn't look as though Arizona State could win the Western Athletic Conference title. But Arizona and Utah obligingly lost last Saturday and all the Sun Devils need is one more win. They should get it. Arizona State.

Dartmouth at Penn—A Dartmouth triumph means the Ivy League crown for the Big Green. A Penn win assures the Quakers of at least a share of the championship, depending on what Yale does against Harvard. Frank Navarro of Columbia, an impartial observer, likes Dartmouth, but Navarro's having an off week ... Pennsylvania.

Yale at Harvard—Elis' two defeats were on the road at Cornell at Penn, both of which have artificial turf. Harvard at least has grass. Yale.

GMO Staff Active During Deer Season

AUSTIN — The 302 game management officers of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department will be hustling in November to keep up with the state's 500,000 turkey and deer hunters.

Consequently, there will not be much time for patrolling the thousands of miles of lakes and rivers to enforce the Water Safety Act.

In addition to the 1,100 game and fish laws in Texas, all GMOs have the responsibility of enforcing water safety laws.

The primary purpose of the law is the reduce the number of drownings and loss of property on our waterways.

To enforce the law, the Parks and Wildlife Department has added $1.6 million to its annual law enforcement budget for water safety equipment and operation expenses.

An additional phase of training was added to the Game Management Officers Academy at Texas A&M University in 1965. The extra, but necessary, responsibility expanded the GMO force by 50 men an increased the annual budget by some $175,000.

Dallas, Detroit Favored To Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Spurrier, in pro football mottoballs since winning the 1966 Heisman Trophy at Florida, has suddenly become an overnight success.

Given an opening when old pro John Brodie was injured, the San Francisco quarterback has the 49ers in a first-place tie with Los Angeles in the National Football Conference West.

Spurrier and the 49ers meet world champion Dallas at Texas Stadium with the Cowboys, 8-2, a game behind high-flying Washington in their division.

The prediction here is that Steve won't quite make it. Dallas should win it by something like 28-20 and say "your move next" to the Redskins, who face National Conference Central leader Green Bay Sunday at Washington.

In another Thanksgiving Day offering, the Detroit Lions are my 34-24 choices to whip the injury-plagued New York Jets.

Detroit, 6-4, is under pressure since it trails the Packers, 7-3, by a notch in the NFC Central with Minnesota, also 6-4, closing hard with four straight victories.

As for the Jets, their 6-4 record has eliminated them against 10-0 Miami in the American Conference East, but New York clings to the hope that it can be the AFC wildcard playoff team.

A 10-3 record last week hiked our prediction total to 72 percent with 54 right and 21 wrong. The best guess last week was that Baltimore would upset Cincinnati, the worst that Kansas City would beat San Diego.

Sunday's schedule will have Green Bay at Washington, Los Angeles at New Orleans, Philadelphia at the New York Giants, Cincinnati at Chicago, Denver at Atlanta, Minnesota at Pittsburgh, Buffalo at Cleveland, Houston at San Diego, Kansas City at Oakland and New England at Baltimore.

Next Monday night's TV matchup presents unbeaten Miami against the 2-7-1 St. Louis Cardinals.

Penn State's football stadium seats 57,538 persons.

Rice's Bruce Henley
SWC Player Of Week

HOUSTON (AP) — Bruce Henley says interceptions help a football team.

The soft-spoken but rugged Rice Owl defensive specialist has a record to back up his belief. Some Owl followers believe Henley, a year from now, will be threatening the Southwest Conference career record of 18 interceptions set by the great Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian in 1936-38.

Two fourth period interceptions against Texas A&M last Saturday ran Henley's season total to six, increased his two-year career total to 12, and earned him for the second time this season Associated Press recognition as the conference's defensive player of the week.

"I didn't realize I had played that well," Henley said when advised he again had been selected for the honor first won on Sept. 30 by returning a punt 52 yards for a touchdown in Rice's 36-36 tie with Georgia Tech.

Lance Van Zandt, Rice defensive secondary coach, disagrees with Henley's self-analysis.

"He graded 97 per cent after the coaches checked the Aggie game film," said Van Zandt, who coached defensive backs at A&M last year.

"We've never had a grade that high," Van Zandt added.

Henley's performance included six unassisted tackles, each at a time it appeared an Aggie runner was in position for a long gain—except for one potential tackler, Henley.

While six short of O'Brien's 18 interceptions, Henley, barring injuries, has 13 remaining regularly scheduled games in which to challenge the record.

Lance Rentzel and Jim Duncan:
What Price Failure in Sports?

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK (NEA)—"When All the Laughter Died in Sorrow" is the title of Lance Rentzel's recently published autobiography (Saturday Review Press) and could well serve as Jim Duncan's epitaph.

Although Rentzel was a rich white boy from Oklahoma City and Duncan a black boy from a small Southern town, both had much in common. Both were high school football heroes, college all-stars, pros. Both had a certain degree of success and failure. Both lived happily with the first, were shattered by the latter.

Duncan, the former National Football League cornerback, is an apparent suicide at age 26. "Apparent" because not all the facts are known. We know Duncan walked into the police station in his hometown, Lancaster, S.C., one late October morning and, according to testimony at the inquest, shot himself in the head. The Duncan family, like some other blacks in the South, are suspicious of local police.

What we do know is that Jim Duncan, who felt the soaring joys of being a starter on the Baltimore Colts' 1970 Super Bowl team and being AFC kickoff return leader that season, was terribly depressed from failures during the last year.

He had lost his starting job, was traded to the New Orleans Saints, then was sent to the Miami Dolphins, where he was cut from the squad in September. His marriage of 19 months had broken up; he had suffered a loss of between $22,000 and $58,000 in a wig business; he had a bleeding ulcer and had undergone psychiatric treatment in Lancaster and with the Saints.

"He was afraid of failure," said Harry Hulmes, Saints' vice-president. "And pro football gave him an identity."

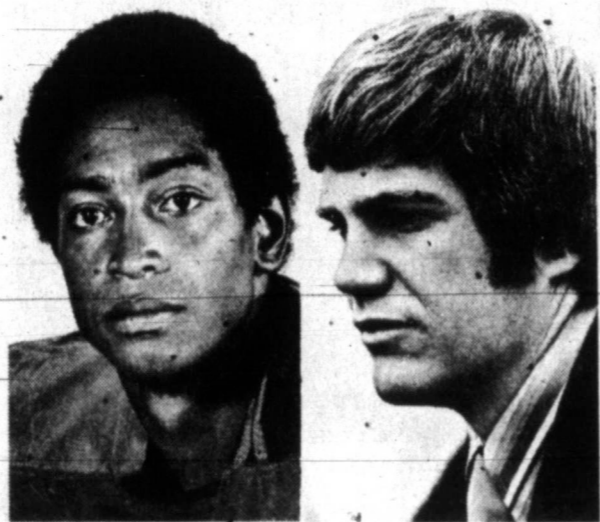

After Miami, Duncan no longer had that identity. He returned to a town of 10,000 that had been proud because of his pro triumphs, to the home of his mother, to no job, to drugs perhaps (he was under police investigation) and to his grave.

Rentzel, now 29, has been a fine wide receiver for eight seasons with Minnesota, Dallas and currently Los Angeles. His recent history has been highly publicized and notorious. He was convicted in 1966 and in 1970 of indecent exposure.

Each time he was suffering from deep depression. The similarities to Duncan are striking. In 1970, for example, on the day before he exposed himself to a 10-year-old girl Rentzel felt that he and the Cowboys were doomed to failure (after losing 38-0). His marriage to entertainer Joey Heatherton was precarious. He had spent almost two years and $25,000 on a "classy" Dallas night club that flourished. He said he couldn't face his friends, family, coaches "or myself in the mirror."

It is all too simple to lay so antisocial an act as Rentzel's exhibitionism on one depressive moment. Rentzel's book, in fact, discusses the story of a man who was not allowed to grow up, who now is finally facing this fact.

He was overly protected by his mother as a child (and adult), sheltered as a gifted athlete, worshiped by fans. "The star performer can't be a normal person," Rentzel writes. There is the sad, insistent striving to prove one's masculinity, thus accepting the "pure drudgery" and virtual sadism of some practice sessions ("They tried to eliminate the softies.") and being crushed by defeat.

Jim Duncan

Lance Rentzel

"The role of defeat or loss is often found to play a major part in the appearance of self-exposure as a symptom," writes Dr. Louis Jolyn West, Rentzel's psychiatrist, in the epilogue. "It is as though the patient (nearly always a man) suddenly needs to be certain that his manhood is intact, and is impelled to demonstrate that fact to a female."

"And while other elements compounded the problem, his preoccupation with being a winner as a football player (and the tremendous emphasis on winning of the American culture today), was always involved. Needless to say, the tremendous focus of public attention upon star performers like Lance Rentzel, the intense scrutiny given their every move and particularly their mistakes, serves to exaggerate the strain. The pressures by coaches, fans, and the media upon outstanding athletes are almost beyond the comprehension of ordinary citizens."

So we still wonder, are Duncan and Rentzel the only aberrations? Alan Miller, former attorney for the NFL Players Association, told Rentzel: "There are some guys playing in the NFL who've done worse things than you," like taking off their pants and walking bottomless into laundromats, others defecating on automobiles. West adds that "the need to be brutal or punitive towards one's sexual partner is not uncommon among professional athletes."

Rentzel, after thoughts of suicide, appears to be meeting his problems. He is strong enough to remain in the public eye. And by legal decree he is "under constant psychiatric care."

Rentzel writes: "The first thing I had to admit to myself was that I really had an emotional problem. It is only through admitting weakness that one can become strong." One doubts that Duncan ever came to grips with such a realization.

After reading Rentzel's book and learning of Duncan's background, one may have a new and disturbing thought: the next time he sees glorified football heroes in action: "There but for the grace of God go I."

Stevens
MVC Pick

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—Louisville's Howard Stevens may have lost his chance for the national football rushing championship because he gained only 67 yards last week against Memphis State, dropping to third place nationally with a 132.7 per game average.

Stevens, a 5-foot-5 running back, will need more than 177 yards this week against Drake, the Missouri Valley Conference leader, to have a shot at the national crown.

But he still paces the country in all-purpose running with an average of 221.4 yards per game, almost 30 yards per game ahead of Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers.

In scoring, Stevens dropped to fourth place but remains in contention for the national lead. He needs two points to become the top all-time collegiate scorer.

Stevens leads the Valley in scoring with 15 touchdowns, and leads in punt returns—28 returns for 359 yards and a 12.8-yard average.

Four new leaders appeared in the latest MVC statistical rankings. Tulsa flanker Drew Pearson took over the receiving lead from New Mexico State's Hank Cook with 633 yards in receptions. John Potts of Wichita State, who booted two crucial field goals Saturday, took over the top spot in kick-scoring from Drake's Bob Smith. Potts now has 54 points.

Don Burford, also of Wichita, climbed into the No. 1 spot in punting with a 39.4 average.

Stevens is tied in scoring at 90 points with Drake's Jerry Heston.

The Cincinnati Reds failed to score a run in 13 innings during which their leadoff man reached base.

Dallas And 49ers
Are Similar Teams

DALLAS (AP)—The offensive and defensive systems of Dallas and San Francisco are so similar the teams could switch jerseys in their National Football League joust Thanksgiving Day and it would be hard to tell the difference.

"If you want to impress your wife, just tell her that it's like looking in a mirror when these two teams play—particularly on defense," says Cowboy assistant Eral Allen.

"On offense both teams use multiple sets and on defense they don't vary from the 4-3 alignment."

Of course, San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan was an assistant under Dallas Coach Tom Landry. Nolan carries out Landry's theories to the letter.

Nolan says "Tom must know me better than I know him" because the 49ers are 0-2-1 against the Cowboys with Nolan at the helm.

The 49ers lost 14-3 and 17-10 to Dallas in the 1970 and 1971 National Conference playoffs.

Thursday's game before a sellout crowd of 65,000 in Texas Stadium and a national television audience is of vital importance to both clubs.

The 49ers can take the lead in the NFC West with a victory while the Cowboys must win to stay within one game of NFC leader Washington. Dallas is 8-2 and the 49ers are 5-4-1.

"It's always a big game when we get together," Nolan says. "There are no little ones."

Besides his personal jinx against Landry, the 49ers will be going against the fact the Cowboys have never lost in Texas Stadium over a span of 10 regular season, three exhibition and one playoff games.

Landry said the defending Super Bowl champions have yet to reach the mental peak they had last year "when we were driving for a championship we had never won."

The game could turn into a wild offensive struggle. Both teams have sagged defensively this year but the Cowboys own the top overall offense in the NFC while San Francisco is the No. 1 passing outfit.

But Nolan doubts it. "We've never played each other when it's been a high-scoring game," Nolan says.

The game features opposing quarterbacks who were on the bench the last time the teams met. Steve Spurrier is the quarterback for the 49ers while John Brodie recovers from an ankle sprain. Craig Morton has taken over as the Cowboy quarterback because of Roger Staubach's shoulder separation in August.

Dallas is a seven-point favorite.

According to Packard, if land is too swampy for building purposes, it just might be ripe for a golf course. Men Shine in Decorating Contest

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Men may be better than women at refurbishing homes. That idea emerged at this year's judging of the Burlington House Awards, an annual event judged by prominent women, a board of governors under the chairmanship of Mrs. Albert Lasker of New York. Homes entries in 26 categories are submitted by newspaper and magazine editors.

"It may sound anti-Lib to say it, but somehow the men's houses seem to be the best. They don't seem precommitted to anything. Even if they clutter, they do it eclectically," observed Mrs. David Skinner of Seattle, as she held up a picture layout of a man's house. That one was a rugged masculine-looking interior with rough wood walls. Part of its decorative charm included a big ship's wheel.

"It is funny," she added. "These awards really started out (1969) as a dedication to the American female's decorating talents, but it may not be turning out that way."

In addition to "man's home," one of the categories of the 200 finalists, men could enter other designations — "build it yourself," "unusual dwellings," "the special room" and so on. And they did.

Mrs. Peter Dart of Boulder commented she "couldn't believe that men decorated some of these houses without help" (professional). She was looking at a beach house interior of wood and glass.

In decorating, men seemed to prefer materials like wood and glass — and they liked throw rugs, porcelains, good fabrics. And floors seemed to be very important whether they were shiny wide wood or herringbone brick.

Men remodeled many of the abandoned old barns, carriage houses and a livery stable — everything but the wiring — submitted as entries.

One house in particular — a squash house — caught the fancy of the women. Mary Lou Paxton of Fort Worth thought "the two chaps who did it had made very good use of space." The formal house had been converted into living, dining and sitting areas and the squash court became a terrace.

"The building was in good condition," observed Mrs. Kenyon Bolton of Cleveland, studying the entry, "but it really needed to be furnished with good things which they obviously had."

People are remodeling every kind of building in these days of high-cost houses. They do not always worry about preserving the character of old farm buildings to provide more livability. Fireplaces, decks and screened porches are added.

A three-room log cabin that had been moved from one town to another was converted into a studio with walls of wood and stone. Leaded glass doors and slate floors provided a fresh approach.

One entry, a remodeled bunk house, formerly a fruit pickers' dwelling, was handsomely furnished with innovative additions such as a chandelier — made of carved Balinese fish. (The owner did not know what to do with them.)

An old school house, 27 by 32, was gutted and remodeled with big windows and porches.

But 19th century dwellings were beautifully restored by many young people who maintained the original beauty of the Victorian and revival styles. While there were fine old homes in the Midwest, many elsewhere were in run-down areas requiring a lot of authentic research. The category was one of the largest submitted. Twenty-five entries were culled from the original 75.

Young couples also showed great flair in do-it-yourself enterprises such as furniture-making, refurbishing and built-ins. All the judges commented on one room where an Afghan of squares (grandmother pattern) had been put over a floor-length yellow cover. Other do-it-yourself tricks included putting light bulbs in vegetable baskets and bordering mirrors with sea shells. Yacht chairs often served as low-cost seating.

A sparsely furnished room with large pillows on the floor, baskets, a mask and other wall art caught the eye of Mrs. William McCormick Blair Jr. of Washington D.C. While vivid color was popular with most of the judges, she prefers soft colors and doesn't like rooms that come on too strong. A "do-it-yourself painter of doors, pots and other containers," she found most of the do-it-yourself enterprises "very exciting."

"One handsome decorating job by a couple in a run-down area included touches of grandeur — gilded mirror, fireplace, ornate chandelier and windows. Another couple had applied a patchwork motif, which matched the quilt on the bed, to a red-painted chest. In that room a window of plants had tendrils crawling up the panes. It charmed Mrs. Eugene Grace of Philadelphia who commented that she particularly liked flowers and hoped it wasn't influencing her judging."

As usual the ladies judging the event found ideas they would use themselves. For Mrs. John Swearingen of Chicago, it proved to be a needlepoint rug like one seen in one of the 19th century houses. "I'm already at work on it," she said, triumphantly.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"To reverse, or not to reverse," thought Hamlet to himself. The Melancholy Dane was too ethical a player to soliloquize out loud during the bidding.

Then Hamlet decided to respond one diamond rather than one heart. He had almost enough for an immediate jump response, but decided that slow bidding would work best with his 17 high-card points.

When the fair Ophelia rebid to one spade, Hamlet was able to force with two hearts. Ophelia jumped to four diamonds and after checking for aces by use of an old Danish form of Blackwood Hamlet contracted for the diamond slam. It was a very wise move. There was no defense against six diamonds since Hamlet was able to ruff his deuce of hearts for his 12th trick.

The game was team-of-four and at the other table the final contract was six no-trump. West opened the jack of spades and while declarer tried desperately to develop a squeeze there was no way to work it out and he had to go down one trick.

Hamlet's decision to reverse had not necessarily led to the right contract, but had certainly made the rest of the bidding easy.

Coming & Going

the going can be tough in a burgeoning sport, All Terrain Vehicle (ATV) racing. With six wheels and plenty of power, the low-slung vehicles plow up the track, left, and sometimes leave it momentarily, below. Photos are from this year's Grand Nationals competition at Monroe, Mich., won by defending champion Scott Slonaker, of York Haven, Pa. Below left, Scott, 17, receives a congratulatory bottle of champagne over the head from his father with runner-up Danny Stevens, 18, of Pontiac, Mich., standing by.

Salt Mine In Poland Lures Tourists As Museum

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS
Associated Press Writer
KRAKOW, Poland (AP) — The gray-haired Polish guide gazed up with the others and said: "I know what you're thinking. Everyone gets that feeling when they're down here."

Above them, stretching endlessly from left to right and seemingly as high as the night sky, was one large expanse of nothing.

They were standing in what is probably one of the largest underground chambers in Europe. It's so enormous that Nazi troops even managed to install an aircraft factory inside to protect it from Allied bombing.

The cavern's walls, their craggy surface marked by massive salt slabs of irregular shapes and sizes, shoot crazily up to a height of 138 feet and then disappear into the darkness of the awesome void.

But the sight is no freak work of nature. It was caused by human hands — thousands of Polish miners who over the centuries axed one gigantic hollow from a solid layer of salt.

The chamber is part of the Wieliczka salt mine which has been preserved by the Polish government and turned into a museum.

Every year nearly a million tourists visit the complex, close to the ancient royal city of Krakow, southern Poland.

Its wonderland of treasures includes several huge 17th and 18th century chapels whose altars and holy effigies are entirely carved out of salt.

On one chapel wall is an intricate 12-foot-long picture showing Christ at the last supper. All the figures have been cut in such a way as to give them a three-dimensional effect.

The miners' permanent fear of death created a strong religious life at Wieliczka, said one official. Most of the carvings are the work of miners who had an unusual artistic flair.

Perhaps the most staggering sight is the Chapel of the Blessed King. It is located hundreds of feet below ground, and the onlooker has to keep reminding himself that it's made out of salt.

The chapel's floor measures 177 feet long, by 48 feet wide.

All its silver-gray salt walls are adorned with beautiful sculptures representing Biblical scenes.

But the greatest surprise occurs when one looks up at the ceiling. There, hanging 35 feet above the ballroom-size temple, are five giant chandeliers made of crystalline salt.

For the technical minded, there's an array of priceless wooden machinery dating back 400 years. Horse-driven cap-stans and iron carts are all shown in their original working positions.

Undoubtedly Wieliczka is today one of Poland's top tourist attractions, with its three levels and 125 miles of corridors.

Black Political Power Increase In State Legislatures

WASHINGTON (AP)—Black political power increased in state legislatures in the Nov. 7 election, a survey by the Joint Center for Political Studies shows.

There are now 227 black state legislators in 38 states, compared with 206 in 37 states before the election. Black candidates ran for office in 31 states and also held seats in an additional seven states in which no legislative election was held Nov. 7.

Coupled with an increase of three in the U.S. House of Representatives, blacks now have more political clout than at any time since Reconstruction following the Civil War.

According to the survey, blacks were elected in three states—Arkansas, Minnesota and Oregon—where none have served recently.

Other sizable gains were achieved by blacks in Arkansas, Texas and Indiana.

Voters in Arkansas elected blacks to three seats in the state's house and one in the senate. Although Texas lost its lone black state senator when Barbara Jordan ran successfully for the U.S. House, the black contingent in the Texas House rose from two to nine.

In Indiana, there are five new black representatives where only two sat in the last legislature.

The largest loss of black legislators occurred in Illinois where redistricting of multi-member house districts contributed to the defeat of three incumbents, reducing the number of black representatives from 14 to 11.

States with the largest number of black legislators are Maryland with 18, Illinois 16, Georgia 15, Michigan 15, New York 15, Missouri 14, Pennsylvania 12 and Ohio 11.

The only black incumbents in Arizona, Alaska and Iowa were defeated. Nine other states—Hawaii, Idaho, Maine, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, South Dakota, Utah and Vermont—are believed to have never elected blacks to either house of the state legislature.

All but five of the blacks elected Nov. 7 are Democrats. Three state representatives and one senator are Republicans and another senator ran on both Republican and Liberal tickets in New York City.

Another senator in New York ran on the Democratic, Republican and Liberal tickets.

Besides Mrs. Jordan, two other black newcomers and all 13 black incumbents to the U.S. House and the only black in the U.S. Senate—Edward Brooke of Massachusetts—ran successfully.

Straight Facts About Arthritis

I. It Can Be Helped

EDITOR'S NOTE: Despite the fact that 17,000,000 Americans have arthritis, the truth about it is still shrouded in misinformation, misleading advertising and old wives' tales. For example: Nothing can be done about arthritis. Only old people get arthritis. The minor aches and stiffness of arthritis... The author is a well-known medical writer, former science editor of the Detroit Times, whose articles have also appeared in national magazines. He is a regular contributor to the Detroit News Magazine and is a collaborator with Dr. G. C. Thosteson on the syndicated column "To Your Good Health." This is the first of a three-part series.

By JACK PICKERING
Of all common diseases, arthritis is most misunderstood. It is repeatedly dismissed as "just rheumatism," yet it can rob victims of the ability to earn a living, condemn them to life in a wheelchair or in bed, make their days and nights a constant misery. An enormous folklore has grown up around arthritis, full of false notions about what causes it and what will cure it—beliefs that it can be "cured" by diet, pills, climate, charms such as metal bracelets, or sitting in abandoned mine shafts.

There is the opposite misconception that "nothing can be done for it; you just have to live with it." This is also false and dangerous.

There is a somewhat similar belief, which oversimplifies the problem, and is often heard expressed in the words, "Why go to the doctor? It's arthritis and all he'll do is tell you to take aspirin."

There is a grain of truth in some of these remarks and none at all in others.

The facts are these:

Dismissing it as "just rheumatism" can be disastrous. "Arthritis" isn't just one disease. It is a group of many. The most common arthritic diseases are rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, rheumatic fever and gout. Bursitis is also a form of arthritis.

Some arthritic diseases and conditions are relatively innocuous.

Others progress rapidly and explosively. When unchecked, these account for most of the crippling of patients.

Still other types now can be so effectively treated, once correctly diagnosed, that treatment can usually put a permanent end to the trouble. So find out what kind of arthritis, and protect yourself. It can keep people out of wheelchairs.

No Miracle Cure

Patent medicines, "secret remedies," jewelry charms, diet, eating certain things or not eating certain things, none of these will cure arthritis. Some of the old "home remedies" are harmless—except that they delay patients in getting really useful help.

Unfortunately, a vast business has grown up of preying on the hopes of arthritis sufferers, abetted by theories, unscientific "science," and come-ons in print. The "take" from such quackery now is approximating $1,000,000 a day in the United States. None of it reduces the amount of arthritis.

It is just as misleading to believe that "nothing can be done for arthritis." Something can be done for every arthritis patient. Cases that used to progress inexorably to crippling now can be halted. A growing number of disabled patients now are being restored so effectively that they go back to work. Pain can be eliminated in many instances; sometimes all symptoms can be suppressed. But everyone can be helped to some degree.

William E. Reynolds, M.D., medical director of The Arthritis Foundation, asserts without qualification:

"No case is hopeless. Something can be done for arthritis now."

Refusing to go to the doctor "because all he'll do is tell you to take aspirin" is a defeatist attitude.

Exact Diagnosis Vital

First, it deprives the patient of exact diagnosis which is vital to choosing the correct treatment.

Second, in the right cases, aspirin is superior to any other known medication.

Third, the "just-aspirin notion" is wrong because it bypasses all the other aspects of treatment now available. These range through surgery, orthopedic appliances, proper balance of rest and exercise, changes in daily living habits, heat, physical therapy and even implantation of artificial joints.

The most effective treatment for arthritis combines everything that will help, from very simple to elaborate measures.

Arthritis and its treatment must not be oversimplified.

But word must reach all arthritis sufferers that effective treatment programs now exist.

Today's therapy isn't perfect—but it is better than it has ever been in the past. It must be used. Every weapon which now exists must be employed to combat the devastation caused by arthritis.

The give-up attitude of arthritic patients has to be eliminated.

Will Apollo 17 Crew Find A Wet Moon?

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Water on the moon? The Apollo 17 astronauts will carry two space age "divining rods" to sound for water below the surface during their moon mission which starts Dec. 6.

If water is locked inside the moon, it would greatly simplify the task of establishing a base on the moon at some later date.

Explorers and colonizers would not have to lug their own supply from earth. They could use the lunar source for drinking and cleaning and could tap it for vital breathing oxygen.

Until last year, most lunar scientists agreed the moon was probably waterless. Then two Rice University scientists reported that an instrument left on the surface by the Apollo 12 astronauts had detected evidence of water vapor, perhaps venting through cracks.

Most researchers are skeptical, believing the water detected more than likely came from the lunar landing craft or that it was waste water dumped from the orbiting Apollo 12 command ship.

The Apollo 17 astronauts, including Dr. Harrison H. Schmitt, a geologist, feel their chances of finding water are slim, but don't rule out the possibility.

Commander Eugene A. Cernan said, "I think that when you have something as exotic as the moon, something we have much to learn about... there's always the possibility of finding anything, anywhere.

"With our experiments, we're going to get a good idea whether there is water on the moon," he said. "The probability is pretty low, but we can't discount the possibility."

Cernan and Schmitt will operate a new experiment to measure electrical and mechanical properties of the subsurface down to a depth of more than a half a mile, including matter that might be in the form of ice or permafrost.

Astronaut Ronald E. Evans, who will orbit the moon while Cernan and Schmitt explore the surface, also will operate a water detection device called a lunar sounder. It is to transmit three electronic beams to examine the moon to a depth of almost three-quarters of a mile. Besides searching for water, the beams will map metallic deposits, determine geological composition and locate subterranean caverns or hollows.

TOO MUCH PLASTIC

HONOLULU (AP)—Hawaii's agriculture director, Frederick Erskine, says the state is suffering from "plastic pollution."

He told an organization of nurserymen that there is too much display of "tough, lifeless, artificial flowers and plants when our islands are world famous for an abundance of fragrant blossoms and for bright, lush vegetation."

Young Texans Urged To Register With SS

AUSTIN, Tex. — Colonel Melvin N. Glantz, the State Director of Selective Service for Texas, has again reminded young men of their obligation to register with Selective Service within 30 days of their 18th birthday.

Glantz stressed that the requirement to register will continue in full effect whether the all-voluntary military force becomes a reality or not.

Every native born and resident-alien young man is required to present himself for registration from 30 days before to 30 days after his 18th birthday. If, for any reason, a young man has failed to register, he should do so immediately to escape the penalty of Federal law.

Failure to register may result in a fine, imprisonment, or both, under provisions of the Military Selective Service Act.

WHAT AMERICANS THINK

Did Apathy Win 1972 Elections?

By STANLEY C. PLOG, Ph.D.
President, Behavior Science Corp. (BASICO), Los Angeles

© 1972 by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

In the recent elections, only 56 per cent of the potential electorate bothered to vote. It might be assumed that this low voter turnout (the lowest presidential vote since 1948) resulted from the widespread belief that the presidential race had already been won because of President Nixon's continuing lead in the polls, but recently completed research by Behavior Science Corp. (BASICO) points to the general apathy about politics among Americans.

Dr. Plog

A majority of the voters have never actively supported a party, contributed to a political campaign, performed any volunteer work or even written to their representative in the U.S. Senate or House of Representatives. In fact, a minority of all adults in the United States really decides what our next government will be.

These and other conclusions grew out of research completed by the BASICO staff on the issues and problems which confront American society. The research consisted of a series of encounter-type discussion groups and 1,500 in person interviews with adults in major metropolitan areas throughout the United States. In addition, a self-administered questionnaire, covering more sensitive items, was completed by all respondents after their personal interviews.

Since the recent election has been widely interpreted as representing the voice of a "comfortable" middle America, which does not want change because of its affluence, the research was conducted entirely with persons who earn at least $9,000 family income or $7,500 a year single income.

The results are startling. They reveal an America which is largely unconcerned about politics. Although the lifeblood of a democracy is, theoretically, the involvement and dedicated interest of all its citizens, only a minority of our citizens participate in the political process.

A series of questions about political involvement brought the following results:

QUESTION	PER CENT RESPONDING
	YES NO
Are you an active supporter of any political party?	32 68
Have you ever performed any volunteer political work?	25 75
Have you ever made a political campaign donation?	34 66
Have you ever written to your senator or congressman?	46 54
Have you ever written a letter to the editor of a newspaper or magazine?	33 67

Two-thirds of our "affluent" Americans have never donated money to a political campaign and an equal number do not consider themselves even active supporters of any political party. Three-fourths of the voters have never performed any volunteer political work, either for an individual candidate or party. Letters to the editor are seldom used as a method for communicating personal beliefs about politics or government. Only when asked whether they had ever written to a senator or congressman did a sizable percentage (46 per cent) respond affirmatively.

It is obvious that relatively small numbers of people, effectively organized, can change the direction of American political life.

The only consistent trend seen in the data that relates to participation is connected with persons of greater wealth who tend to be more active participants in the political process. This can be clearly seen from the question on campaign contributions.

HAVE YOU EVER MADE A POLITICAL CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION OF MONEY?

	(BY YEARLY INCOME)
	$10,000	$15,000	$20,000	$25,000
Yes	27	34	42	50
No	72	66	58	50

Those who earn $25,000 a year or more are nearly twice as likely to contribute as those in the $10,000 to $15,000 income bracket. It might appear obvious that people with better incomes can afford to give more to a party. But that is not our concern here.

Even a one dollar contribution at some time in his life would have qualified an individual as a contributor! It is not a problem of income; it is a lack of concern or involvement on the part of most Americans.

A variety of explanations can account for voter apathy. Our encounter-type discussion groups revealed some possible answers.

A large segment of the electorate feels that nothing ever changes after elections. So why should they bother to vote or get involved? An even larger percentage feels that candidates, in their efforts to get elected, make many promises which are never meant to be kept; therefore, who would want to work for them or even contribute to their campaigns?

These feelings are evident in the statement of a male office worker from Boston: "Nothing is changed by elections. These guys (politicians) will say anything to get elected, but from then on they listen to the lobbyists, not the voters. It makes you want to stop voting—just in protest."

Or, listen to a housewife from Lincoln, Neb.: "You can't believe a politician. They've been promising things for years that never happen. And they say different things to different people. It really turns me off."

Many Texans Have A Lot To Be Grateful For This Thanksgiving

By RENA PEDERSON
Associated Press Writer
Most Texans—from housewife to politician—say they have a lot to be grateful for this Thanksgiving. Some others are just glad things haven't been worse.

"It sounds corny but I do feel very grateful for my blessings," said Mrs. Wissie Thomson, a 25-year-old Austin housewife with a beaming smile. "I'm most thankful for my good friends, good health, a loving husband, my family—oh, I could go on and on."

"This year has been almost too much," she admitted. "I'm particularly grateful for the prospect of peace. I'm going to have a baby in January and I don't want my child to grow up with the Vietnam War."

The hope of peace was mentioned by many as a blessing of a kind.

"I am already thankful about the war being over because I want so much for it to be over. I do have a feeling the overseas hostilities are about through. Even with the doubts in the air, I am still hopeful," said actor King Donovan of Dallas.

Donovan and wife Imogene Coca will be spending Thanksgiving in Amarillo, where they are appearing in a play.

"We take our holidays where we can and we're always grateful we're together," he noted.

Bill Bailey, a radio newsmen in San Angelo, knew right away what his big blessing was: "I'm grateful to be out of the Army. I got out in March and I still can't believe it. That's about it right now. That's more than enough."

Then he added, "I'm glad they're trying to get that thing over there in Vietnam. I don't relish any guys having to follow me."

Politics seem to bear directly and indirectly on most Texans—

"I'm sure thankful that George McGovern didn't get elected," said Mrs. Jean Schmidt with a good laugh.

Mrs. Schmidt, who works at the Plate and Platter shop in San Antonio, said she doubted if she and her husband would have the usual big turkey dinner because three of their children are "grown up and gone."

But we still have a 14-year-old and we're thankful for him. He's a joy," she said.

Mrs. Nancy Barnes, wife of former lieutenant governor Ben Barnes, reported they have settled "quite comfortably" in a Brownwood home now that the elections and special legislative sessions are over. She said they and their four children—Scott, 20, Brian, 16, Greg, 14, and Amy, 10, will spend Thanksgiving in Austin "so we can see the Texas-Texas A&M game. We're big fans."

"We have a lot of things to be grateful for. We are very pleased and excited about our new life in Brownwood. It's been a hard year, but a good year. We have a lot of friends and people that we enjoy knowing and we are most grateful for them. We've had the opportunity to meet a lot of people in this year and win or lose we'll always remember them and be grateful."

Miss Barbara Jordan, who just won a seat in the U.S. House of Representatives from Houston, said, "I am so grateful for life, for reasonably good health and the opportunity that people have given me for national service."

She said she will be attending a political seminar at Harvard University and may celebrate Thanksgiving with some friends in Boston. "It's been interesting to note—I think people are generally solemn this Thanksgiving," she said. "Most of them have a sense of gratitude that things are as well as they are."

Jackie Rascoe, 20, stopped work at Jim and Les' Texaco station in Amarillo to think about Thanksgiving. "I guess I'm thankful just to be alive."

Just being here able to work," he said.

Rascoe said he and his wife, who is expecting a baby, will be getting together with their families for the holiday. "I guess I've got a future to be grateful for. Things look pretty good this year if we can clear up the war situation. It could be worse."

"I can't find much to be thankful for this year," said Ginger Lanclos, 26, of Port Arthur. She said she could still laugh about it, but her luck was wearing thin. "My car's broken and I can't find a job and my boyfriend—? I guess I'm thankful I have all my senses intact."

Lynn Rogers, 21, said she was grateful she at least has a job selling animals at Paradise Pets in Dallas. "But I'm lonely. I miss home—I just moved here from Virginia. Right now, I've just got my health. I'm grateful for that."

Mrs. Jan Amos, a mother of three, said she was delighted to be in Texas for Thanksgiving this year: "I am back in the United States after living in Europe seven and a half years. You know, the United States is the only place in the world you can have Thanksgiving."

"Thanksgiving doesn't mean so much if you're the only one in town celebrating it," she said. "I mean, have you ever tried a bowl of pasta for Thanksgiving dinner?"

9 Americans Prisoned In S. Viet

SAIGON (AP) — The nine American men behind bars in a South Vietnamese prison because of criminal charges wonder whether a cease-fire will bring them freedom.

For up to two years, they have lived on a daily diet of a loaf and a half of French bread, two bananas and half a can of milk. They count on packages from home to survive.

While the cease-fire talks have dealt at length with American prisoners of war held by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, there are no announced plans for these nine Americans held by the South Vietnamese.

They are among the 7,000 other criminals and political prisoners at Chi Hoa prison, an overcrowded colonial-era fort located in one of Saigon's seedier slums.

They fear going out of their own cellblock alone because of what they describe as a growing anti-American and anti-foreign feeling among some of the Vietnamese prisoners.

"The Vietnamese are down on Americans now because of this peace thing," said James Sutherland of Chicago, serving the last year of a three-year sentence for LSD possession. "The Vietnamese feel the Americans are leaving them hanging."

All but one of the Americans are ex-GIs who fought in the Vietnam war. Most were arrested on drug charges or for possessing an unregistered gun. Nearly always, they were picked up by American military police and turned over to South Vietnamese police because they were then civilians.

Their sentences range from one to three years. One claims he doesn't know the charges against him.

"For an American in here, if there's a cease-fire and we're not released, it's going to become very dangerous," said Rich Bueb of Denver, Colo., also serving the last year of a three-year term for LSD possession. "If there's a cease-fire, there's going to be a lot more anti-American feeling."

Robert Sanchelli of New York, serving a one-year sentence for possessing six souvenir guns, said, "If the American Embassy intervened, I think there'd be a great chance we'd be released. But it would have to amount to a strong suggestion."

American Consul Harry M. Carter, official liaison with the prisoners, said: "It's a matter entirely up to the Vietnamese. I don't see how a cease-fire will have any bearing on their cases necessarily. We help as much as we can. We helped Bueb and Sutherland with their application for amnesty and as a result, their sentence was reduced one year, from four years to three years."

Sutherland said he and another American were attacked by 10 knife-wielding Vietnamese several days ago while walking through the prison to get some ice. He said they were not stabbed, but they blamed the incident on anti-Americanism.

For the Americans, life in Chi Hoa is a continuous battle for survival—physically and mentally.

"There's nothing to do," said Paul Nadeau, arrested last week for carrying an unregistered .45-caliber automatic. "I just sit down most of the time and read. I sit down and do anything to make the time pass."

"It's just days on end of boredom," said Robert Gladky of New York, who has spent three months awaiting sentencing on charges of possessing half a kilo of marijuana and 50 empty vials of heroin. "I won't go out alone—quite often, I just won't go out."

All but one of the Americans live in the same cellblock, sleeping in bunk beds against mildewed walls. They have a radio and access to the prison library. The lone exception is Joseph Berger, a middle-aged American soldier-of-fortune type who was arrested recently in Vietnam as an alleged kingpin of the dope traffic.

Every Wednesday, the routine for the Americans is broken when a representative of the U.S. Embassy comes to deliver mail and packages and hear their complaints.

"You can't even buy rice here, but you can buy as much opium or heroin as you want," Sutherland said. "It's much more available than on the outside. The only way I've survived is on the 150 packages my mother has sent me from home."

Carl Brown of Little Rock, Ark., a plant manager for ITT Federal Electric Corp., said he was cleared of an unregistered gun charge and immediately rearrested on a charge he hasn't been told about.

Panhandle Water

By Felix W. Ryals
(Editor's note: This column is a regular feature of the Sunday Farm Page in the News. When the meeting reported herein took place, the speaker was a candidate for governor, Felix Ryals felt his speech is of particular significance now that he is governor-elect and reports it verbatim.)

The membership kick-off meeting of Water, Inc. was held in Lubbock Oct. 28. John Spearman, Gray-Wheeler County director of Water, Inc.; Howard Lane, director from Carson County and myself as director-at-large, attended the meeting.

The Board of Directors of Water, Inc. re-affirmed its pledge to back efforts to import water to the High Plains and Panhandle of West Texas. They also voted to update the West Texas portion of the Texas Water Plan.

The panel was privileged to hear an address by Dolph Briscoe, the then democratic nominee for governor of Texas. Briscoe left no doubt in anyone's mind as to where he stood concerning the Texas Water Plan. We are carrying his address intact as you need to know what he said.

"I am honored to be here with you today. I certainly appreciate the opportunity to meet with a group dedicated to building a better Texas. You represent the leadership of many communities throughout this area, and I want to pay tribute to you for your dedication and your determination. I know of no other group that could do more to influence the course of our great state than those of you assembled here today.

"What we do in the next few years will determine not only the future of the Plains of Texas, but will also determine the kind of State, and the way of life, that we will pass from our hands to our children's in not too many years.

"You have spent many thousands of man hours in promoting the goals and the ideals of Water, Inc., and certainly you have earned deep gratitude and respect. All of these efforts could, however, be for naught if we just sit back and assume that the importation of a supplemental source of water from outside the State to this area, is for certain and all we have to do is to be patient and wait. Certainly, we can well remember that apathy in 1969 was almost fatal. And I would like to encourage you today to re-dedicate yourselves to the goals of Water, Inc. and to a great ideal whose time has not only come, but could very well be past due.

"Our dedication is not just for ourselves, or for this area, but as fellow Texans dedicated to building a Greater Texas through meeting the water needs of the water deficit areas of our State. To do this, we must have a supplemental source of water from outside the State. And certainly, at the same time, we must work toward the proper utilization of the precious water resources that exist in Texas.

"The strength of this Nation is largely based upon a tremendously productive and efficient agriculture. The Texas High Plains make up a very vital part of the Great Plains Area of America. Stretching south from near the Canadian Border to near Old Mexico, this wide belt of Central America has long been described as 'America's Bread Basket.' Nowhere in our entire nation is the prolific Great Plains agricultural production rivaled.

"In more recent years, the efficiency of the production of agricultural products in this area has provided the backbone for our Nation's foreign commerce. And in the years ahead, this area may well be designated the Global Bread Basket.

"Playing a major part is the highly mechanized agricultural productivity of the High Plains of Texas. Extending 200 miles south from the Texas-Oklahoma State Line, and over 100 miles east from the Texas-New Mexico State Line, the High Plains of Texas comprises the largest, the most productive part of the Great Plains Area. The combination of the most favorable range of relatively insect free climatic conditions, fertile and easily tilled soils, and inexpensive, prolific and widely available groundwater supply, have all been combined by the one major catalyst...the expertise of the High Plains agriculturist...to form an agricultural complex of indisputable economic importance to Texas, the Nation and the World.

"This area has only one limited asset...Groundwater supply. That problem with which you are dealing today. You well know the limits of this area's groundwater reserves. And you well know that groundwater is the foundation of the area's agribusiness economy; and that this foundation is being pumped out of the ground at a measurable and predictable rate. Certainly, it could be said, in respect to groundwater in this area, people live upon it and prosper because of it. It is a part of our heritage, it is a part of our environment.

"Accepting the reality of the water supply situation in the High Plains, and for that matter in all of West Texas, without defeatism may appear to be our first real obstacle. However, history has demonstrated time and time again that realism has never defeated the West Texan, and your presence here today demonstrates that an apparent obstacle is just another challenge, to all of us to rise to the occasion.

"I commend you for your farsightedness when you worked together over two decades ago, to organize and support a local governmental unit with broad powers for regulating groundwater. It shows your concern and your willingness to work together. You have pioneered in the field of proper conservation and utilization of our groundwater resources.

"In a few months, three Federal Agencies will be submitting extensive feasibility reports. We know that the job will not be simple or easy. But certainly, these reports should point the way towards which a supplemental source of water from outside the State can be made available to this water deficit area. Our job will be to carry the facts and to work to see that this becomes a reality. It is not can we afford it? But, we can't afford not to."

THP Reports 14 Accidents On Rural Hyws

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 14 accidents on rural highways in Gray County during the month of October, according to Sergeant J.L. Dalrymple, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in no persons killed and two persons injured. The rural traffic summary for this county during the first ten months of 1972 shows a total of 196 accidents resulting in six persons killed and 96 persons injured.

Region 5 of the Texas Department of Public Safety shows a total in October of 605 accidents, resulting in 29 persons killed, and 280 persons injured as compared to the same month in 1971 with 595 accidents resulting in 19 persons killed and 294 persons injured. This is 10 more accidents, one more fatality and 14 less injured in 1972 at the same period of time.

It's Thanksgiving Day

Give the Pilgrims credit for celebrating the first Thanksgiving back in 1621. But these hardy people had absolutely nothing to do with establishing the day as a national custom.

That particular honor belongs to Sarah Josepha Hale.

Mrs. Hale was a woman's magazine editor—the nation's first—in the mid-Nineteenth century who involved herself in a number of burning issues, in addition to Thanksgiving Day, whose effects are still being felt, no matter if Mrs. Hale herself ranks near the top of the Forgotten Great Americans list.

This New England editor dictated fashions for nearly 50 years (including the hoop skirt, hour-glass figure and triple-padded petticoats), wrote that immortal poem, "Mary Had a Little Lamb" and brought about the completion of Boston's Bunker Hill monument.

But making Thanksgiving Day a national holiday was the "most famous effort for which she is not known."

For 36 years she badgered presidents and governments and legislatures and Congress until finally in 1863 President Lincoln—perhaps only to get Mrs. Hale out of his hair—gave in and proclaimed a national Thanksgiving Day.

Up to then, Thanksgiving Day was a pretty irregular affair. In 1644 the Dutch governor of New York issued a Thanksgiving proclamation. Congress recommended one every year during the Revolution, but after the peace in 1784, nearly everybody forgot about it until 1789. In that year, President Washington ordered a Thanksgiving Day for the adoption of the Constitution. In 1815 President Madison proclaimed one and that was it until Lincoln—and Mrs. Hale—got together in 1863.

Although Mrs. Hale spent much of her time editing "Godey's Lady's Book," she still found time to push for Thanksgiving. She felt that a national Thanksgiving Day would be a step toward a better understanding between the North and South. War came before she had her way.

In "Godey's Lady's Magazine," as it was later named, Mrs. Hale had the perfect propaganda weapon. Regularly, the magazine's 150,000 readers would find among the crinolines and bustles inspirational tidbits about the need for a national day of Thanksgiving.

And collections of mouth-watering recipes—"Lafayette Ducks with Snowballs," "Oysters Etiquette," "Indian Pudding and Fruity Sauce"—especially designed for Thanksgiving dinners.

And essays on the role of women.

"God gave to man, authority; to woman, influence; she inspires and persuades. He convinces and compels. It has always been my aim to use my influence in this womanly way."

But the magazine wasn't enough. Mrs. Hale wrote thousands of letters to influential politicians throughout the country, asking them to endorse a national Thanksgiving Day. So when she started her campaign to persuade Lincoln, she knew how to cope with all negative responses. Besides, President Lincoln never could say "no" to a woman.

When Lincoln issued the first national Thanksgiving proclamation, Mrs. Hale knew his word had special meaning.

"It has seemed to me fit and proper that they (the gifts of God) should be solemnly, reverently and gratefully acknowledged as with one heart and one voice by the whole American people."

Lincoln could have added, "and, besides, Sarah Josepha Hale would never give me a moment's peace if I didn't find it fit and proper."

Will Nixon Get Help To Cut Budget?

By ARCH BOOTH

WASHINGTON — Two days before the election, President Nixon discussed his political philosophy and his plans for a second term with a reporter for the Washington Star-News. It is a remarkable interview.

The President noted that he may be the first candidate in history "who didn't go out with a whole bag full of goodies." He said, "This is a case where the American people were confronted with a choice of one candidate who promised to spend billions more of their money, basically, as they put it, to help them, and the other candidate (who) said, 'No, we are not going to promise to do that; we are going to promise to give you the chance to help yourself.'"

Mr. Nixon observed that some people felt he would "advocate some massive new social programs" if he won the election, since he could not run again. "Nothing could be further from the mark," he said. "I honestly believe that government in Washington is too big and it is too expensive."

He said, "The debate, really, is not whether we do something about problems, not whether they exist, but what we do. What we have to realize is that many of the solutions of the 60s were massive failures. They threw money at the problems and for the most part they have failed and we are going to shuck off those programs and trim down those programs that have proved to be failures."

"Significant Reform"

With "proper support in the Congress," he said, his second term would be known for "more significant reform than any Administration since Franklin Roosevelt's in 1932; but reform in a different direction. Roosevelt's reforms led to bigger and bigger power in Washington. It was perhaps needed then. The country's problems were so massive they couldn't be handled otherwise."

"The reforms that we are instituting are ones which will diffuse the power throughout the country and which will make government leaner, but in a sense will make it stronger. After all, fat government is weak, weak in handling problems."

He also promised that "there will be no solutions to problems that require a tax increase. I am convinced," he said, "that the total tax burden of the American people, Federal, state and local, has reached the breaking point."

Can he do it? Let's hope so. But it won't be easy. Nearly 75 per cent of the Federal budget is "relatively uncontrollable." The government can't very well cut back on things like Social Security or veterans benefits, or payments on the national debt, or payments due contractors.

Cuts anywhere in the remaining 25 per cent of the budget are guaranteed to set off howls of rage and anguish from the special interest groups most affected. And before casting the first stone, let's ask ourselves how many of these lobbies are merely doing our bidding. Farmer? Union worker? Businessman? Teacher? The fact is, almost every one of us is represented by at least one—often many—lobbies in Washington.

So, before writing our congressman that angry letter about cuts in our favorite program, let's all give a thought to the alternative: A tax increase.

Congressional Cooperation? Even without the heat that cuts always generate, there is already ample evidence that our congressmen will be reluctant to cooperate in any economy effort. And it's difficult to blame them. We have an unfortunate tendency to measure the effectiveness of legislators by the number and scope of the new government programs they initiate, not the number they cut.

What it all comes down to is the truth of the observation that, by and large, people have the government they deserve.

We have a President who is committed to trimming the federal budget. But, powerful as he is, he cannot do it without our help. Will he get it?

"An attitude of permissiveness is becoming more and more evident in our society today, leading to the progressive relaxing and discarding of all forms of restraint and discipline. This attitude has actually been fostered and, in effect, promoted by too many educators, sociologists, clergymen, public officials and parents."

—J. Edgar Hoover

RAY CROMLEY Its Ponderousness Dams Government

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—President Nixon's problem is that the government has become too large and too complicated for any one man to manage.

On leaving office as deputy secretary of Defense, David Packard told associates it was impossible to get the department's vast civilian and military bureaucracy under control. The same problem exists at Commerce, State, Health, Education and Welfare, Labor and Agriculture.

Mr. Nixon is, of course, not the first president to be frustrated by this problem. Presidents Kennedy and Johnson were deeply disturbed by their inability to get a handle on the bureaucracy. They complained that permanent civil servants in the major departments had come gradually to follow independent courses without regard to policy of the administration in power, be it Democratic or Republican.

President Kennedy made a determined but only partially successful attempt to insert his own men at key points throughout the system. Mr. Nixon, less aggressive in this regard, found he had relatively little control over major departments at the working level, and so drew more of the decision-making directly into the White House. In the past four years he has built a sizable staff at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue loyal to him, subject to immediate transfer or firing and responsible directly to his own key aides.

But the result of this build-up has been the development of a White House staff so large, and involved in so many detailed tasks, that internal coordination has become increasingly difficult. There is growing worry within the staff itself that the left hand is not certain what the right hand is doing. Members, in fact, are known to have gone to friends in State and Defense to find out what others on the President's personal staff were doing.

Mr. Nixon's problem can best be understood by looking at foreign economic policy, which could be the thorniest problem he faces these next four years. The serious consequences of our continued unfavorable balance of payments (insofar as it is due to lagging exports) shows up in higher unemployment. We are becoming perilously dependent on international sources for raw materials. Rising barriers threaten to cut off more world markets.

Despite the attempt at White House coordination, foreign economic policy is so poorly organized as to invite chaos. For one thing, it is split among State, Treasury, Agriculture and Commerce departments and several independent agencies, often working at cross purposes.

Witness the bungles in the important Soviet grain negotiations. Also note that in the very period the White House was making better relations with Moscow a major priority, with special emphasis on trade and economics, the State Department research division dropped or transferred a third of its Soviet specialists, including all of its Soviet trade-economic experts.

Former Treasury Secretary John Connally put it succinctly: "...The conduct of foreign economic policy today is characterized by traits of ponderousness, division of responsibility, rivalry... New organizations—and new missions for old organizations—are clearly required."

BRUCE BIOSSAT Politically, McG Still in the Dark

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Nothing Sen. George McGovern said in the aftermath of his defeat suggests he learned very much from it, or indeed that he understands very much at all about the real nature of politics in the large.

Evidently he still sees the 1972 campaign as a great morality play in which Good (McGovern) surely would have triumphed over Evil (President Nixon), had not the drama been upset by distracting offstage noises, principally the May 15 shooting of Alabama's Gov. George Wallace.

Purely as an aside here, it does not seem to have struck McGovern what sad commentary it is upon the Democrats as the nation's majority party to argue that they can win the presidency only when there is a third party effort (such as Wallace might have mounted) to assist them in holding down the opposition.

But the apparently ineradicable flaw in McGovern's political understanding as his persistence in viewing politics fundamentally as a test of moral principles.

Politics in reality is the arena in which men confront each other in the inevitable human conflict over what to do, how to get it done, and who to entrust with the great tasks of making society function and, hopefully, advance.

The political arena is not a church where immutable truth is heard and accepted. It is a town meeting hall where differences are voiced, at least some of the conflicts resolved, and leaders chosen to take the participants from discordant conflict to some kind of effective action.

Most often, conflicts are resolved by mutual accommodations made by the spokesmen for conflicting interests. The word for this, of course, is compromise.

But moral principle, by definition, is pure. To compromise, to be in fact political, is thus automatically to be immoral. It is therefore unmistakably clear that morality, meaning rigid adherence to pure moral principles, has virtually nothing to do with politics.

This is not a cynical view. It does not commit politics to immorality. It does not bar politicians from giving voice to their own, their party's, or their country's moral ideals.

What is being argued here is that politics is man's natural battleground for resolving his inescapable differences, and morality, conceived as a set of unchanging guidelines fervently sustained has no major place on that battlefield.

Morality, if thought of as a system universally (or nationally) accepted and observed, is perfectionism. But people are imperfect, and in the bargain greatly diverse in views, attitudes, talents, energies, and opportunities.

Politics arose in this world as the crucial human means of dealing with these differences and imperfections.

George McGovern's narrow-gauge tactical shrewdness served him well in winning his party's nomination. But it tended to conceal his grave misconception of politics as moral evangelism. Perhaps we should not be surprised that he has learned nothing. His mind has a preacher-set. It is no wonder he is talking now as if, in voting overwhelmingly for Nixon, the nation has deserted the church.

RESPONSIBILITY

THE DECLINE OF THE exercise of responsibility of the U.S. Congress in the past quarter of a century has been one of the deplorable chapters in our history. All too frequently we have seen the Supreme Court and the office of the Presidency usurp the powers and decisions of the legislative body, the agency that is rightfully the closest to the people. The wheels of the democratic machinery of this Republic should be set in motion first by the Congress. It has the power and the duty of making the laws of the land, of appropriating money for the operation of government and of acting as watchdog on all agencies.

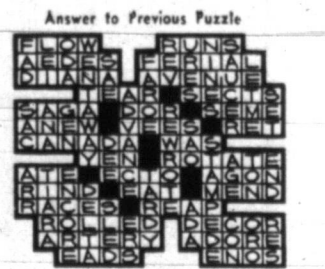

Much of the law-making is now done by the Supreme Court through judicial decision, often by split, 5-4, margins. The men and women who founded the nation never intended it that way. Congress in effect has relinquished its power to decide on war or peace. This has brought us to some dangerous dilemmas, as witness the Korean conflict and the fiasco in Vietnam. A Gulf of Tonkin Resolution should never be allowed to happen again. It gave the executive branch carte blanche power to wage war in Asia, and the administrations that used it had neither the foresight nor the determination to win. We are extricating ourselves but it is not exactly with honor.

The General Accounting Office, an agency of the Congress, has done a good job of exposing fiscal irresponsibility but that is not enough. The various committees of Congress should resume their roles as watchdogs, then ferret-out corruption in all government agencies. The voters who name their own representatives should insist, yes demand, that the Senate and the House of Representatives again become our primary voice in government.

Most men believe that a woman's place is in the home. They expect to find her there immediately after she gets off work.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Tad is like many do-gooders who lack "horse sense." Every day should be Thanksgiving Day here in "free enterprise" America. For the desire to keep what you produce is inherent in human nature! It will soon destroy Russian Communism from within!

CASE V-552: Tad G., aged 32, teaches high school Civics.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "why do you oppose Communism so constantly?"

"For isn't the idea of sharing, a basic concept of Christianity?"

"And didn't the early Christians organize a Communist cell?"

IMMOVABLE OBJECT

Don't you remember the old debate topic about what would happen if an irresistible force met an immovable object?

Well, Christianity is deemed an irresistible force.

But it bumps into an immovable object in our natural desire to enjoy the fruits of our own labor.

Private property rights will always transcend forced Communist sharing!

True enough, the early Christians established a Communist cell.

But it was ruined when Ananias and Sapphira held back part of their capital gains when they sold their property.

Despite the fact that Ananias and his wife died, apparently of heart attacks when Peter reproved them, the Communist cell soon dissolved. Jesus also placed the seal of approval on business competition and our "free enterprise" type of economy.

For his story of the men with the talents illustrated his praise for thrifty, hard workers.

And he showed disgust for the Communist who hid his lone talent in the earth, fearing to compete in the open market.

So Jesus had the Communist's lone talent taken away from him and then given to the capitalistic worker who had doubled his 5 talents (Matt. 25:28).

Back in 1621, when Gov. William Bradford headed the Plymouth Colony, Communism was in vogue.

For all titled their jointly held land and put their products into the common granary.

Then they took therefrom, every man according to his need.

That is the professed humanitarian rule glibly spouted by the modern Communists.

But it didn't pan out well.

For the unmarried men grumbled at letting a married man with 5 children take out 7 portions, whereas the bachelors obtained only one.

So Gov. Bradford changed over to our capitalistic system.

Thus, he gave every man his own private plot of ground.

And permitted him to retain the entire harvest therefrom.

Cyclists See Country On Trip for Charity

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

When there's nothing between you and the pavement but two thin bicycle tires, you notice things — things like flowers, animals and beer cans.

And when you pedal those thin tires 6,300 miles up, down and across the United States, you collect memories.

You remember the 65-year-old cyclist in Louisville, Kan., who weekly pedals the 100 miles to Cincinnati and back. And the motorist who pulls alongside you on a steep stretch of Rocky Mountain road just to tell you how fast you're coasting.

And the kids at every town who beg to join you.

Four cyclists had these experiences as they spent the last 2 1/2 months riding across the United States for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

Accompanied by a van and a dune buggy, the tour rode 15-mile shifts from Washington, D.C. to Los Angeles, stopping in 60 cities along the way to symbolically collect money raised for the hospital by local groups.

The trip was sponsored by Epsilon Sigma Alpha, a 33,000-member international women's service organization. The cross-country ride was made to publicize the project.

Taking part in the ride were Alain Pinto and Coleen Davis, both 17, of Fairfax, Va.; Ruben Leon, 20, of Phoenix, Ariz.; and Larry Keith, 29, of St. Louis. A young couple, Mark and Cheri Estes of Ottawa, Kan., directed the trip and took turns on the bike.

They slept in the van, ate on $6 a day and suffered through rain, heat, wind and injuries. But the trip had its rewards.

Strangers stopped them in the streets to give them money. "Nobody else stops and looks at flowers, but we did," said Leon.

Weldon Bates Of LHS Attends Tour Events

Weldon Bates of Lefors High School was in Amarillo Nov. 16 to tour the Texas State Technical Institute and Amarillo College.

The tour was sponsored by the Greater Southwest Vocational Technical Training Committee of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

The purpose of the tour was to acquaint counselors, principals, superintendents and veterans officers with vocational training in general and TSTA and Amarillo College facilities in particular.

Bates and 39 others attended the tour event. Included on the tour were several demonstrations and visitations of classes and facilities.

Every person who uses shellac has his own method of handling it, whether it be in the application or in the proportion that is mixed with denatured alcohol.

One of the most remarkable features of shellac is that it has retained its popularity since the earliest days of civilization despite the introduction of many other finishing materials. Also, it is very versatile, being used sometimes as a sealer, sometimes as an undercoat and sometimes as a final finish.

For virtually all work that the home handyman is likely to do, shellac must be thinned with denatured alcohol in a 50-50 mixture. Later, as he becomes accustomed to using shellac, he can experiment with different proportions and join the ranks of those who tell of their preference for a particular mixture.

While shellac dries dust-free in a few minutes, it is not wise to apply a second coat for at least three hours and even longer than that before a third coat. Like all finishing materials, shellac is best applied in a series of thin coats rather than one thick coat. Sanding between coats should be done lightly with a fine grade of paper. Waxing the final coat gives a good sheen as well as extra protection.

The most common forms of shellac are white and orange. The white is actually clear. The orange imparts color without obscuring the grain of the wood. Purchase only as much shellac as will be required in less than six months. It has a tendency to deteriorate after that period.

Occasionally, someone will apply shellac only to discover that the finish has clouded or whitened. Known to professional wood finishers as "blooming," this results from applying the shellac to a damp surface or in a moisture-laden atmosphere. Shellac should be used in a room which is comfortable to human beings; that is, with a temperature of between 70 and 72 degrees. However, if there is too much moisture in the air, it is better to postpone the task to another day.

If water is left on a shellacked surface a long time, it may cause a white stain in that area. This can be eliminated by flowing on a coat of denatured alcohol with a brush.

A brush used for shellac should be cleaned with denatured alcohol as quickly after use as possible. Keep one or more brushes specifically for shellac, never using them for paint or varnish. Don't rely on your memory. After a brush has been used for shellac, write the initial "S" on the handle with a permanent marking pencil.

Price Offers Support To Nixon's Spending Plan

WASHINGTON — In a personal letter congratulating him for his overwhelming victory, Congressman Bob Price of Pampa offered his full support and cooperation for President Nixon's announced plan to seek greater efficiency and economy in government spending as a first-priority goal of his second Administration.

Price, who has received the "Watchdog of the Treasury" award from the National Association of Businessmen on three different occasions for his fiscally conservative voting record in Congress, praised the President for taking a "courageous step in the name of sound government."

The congressman emphasized the importance of bringing under control runaway government spending promoted by a liberal dominated Congress which has been the primary cause of high taxes and inflation suffered by American working men and women.

Price told the President: "Several news accounts since election day have reported your expressed intention to set a high priority during your second Administration on arresting runaway government spending and trimming the overpopulated and unwieldy Federal bureaucracy. I want to assure you of my full support in this endeavor, and speaking in behalf of my constituents, I wholeheartedly agree that this action would be in the best interests of our Nation."

Cost of Safety Violations Can Be High for Employer

By SECRETARY OF LABOR JAMES D. HODGSON

A. C. of Arlington, Va., writes: Are heavy fines imposed on employers found violating safety regulations? Dear A. C.: Yes, but evidence of an employer's good faith, his safety record and steps he has taken to comply with the Occupational Safety and Health Act will reduce the amount of penalty proposed. Proposed penalties July through November 1971 averaged less than $70 per violation. This is evidence that many employers are voluntarily complying with safety and health rules. To assure worker protection, the act sets mandatory civil penalties of up to $1,000 for violations that could result in death or serious injury, and up to $10,000 for willful or repeated violations. Criminal penalties can be up to $10,000 or six months' imprisonment for willful violations causing the death of an employee.

O. S. of San Francisco asks: In general, what is the responsibility of employers under the Federal Safety Regulations? Dear O. S.: Employers must comply with the specific standards under the Occupational Safety and Health Act and, additionally, must furnish each of their employees a place of employment free from recognized hazards that are causing or are likely to cause death or serious physical harm.

A. B. of Milwaukee, Wis., asks: Do employees have the right to point out safety hazards to Labor Department inspectors? Dear A. B.: Subject to regulations under the law, representatives of both the employer and employees will be allowed to accompany the Labor Department inspector on an inspection tour. If the employees have no authorized representative, the inspector will consult with several employees on safety and health conditions in the workplace.

R. P. of Oak Park, Ill., writes: I am planning to modernize my button manufacturing plant. Where can I obtain a list of equipment and machinery that is certified by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) as meeting its job safety and health standards? Dear R. P.: OSHA does not certify equipment or machinery. Some manufacturers may claim their products meet OSHA standards, but the responsibility for compliance with standards is yours. If you are uncertain whether equipment or machinery will meet OSHA standards, check with your nearest OSHA Regional or Area Office for advice.

M. R. of Buffalo, N.Y., asks: What responsibilities does a person have in connection with Veterans Re-employment Rights? Dear M. R.: He should take no more time than is necessary to travel from the induction center or examination station to his home. He should report to work the next regular working period after he returns, or within a reasonable time if delayed through no fault of his own. Failure to report promptly subjects a person only to such conduct or disciplinary rules as apply in the case of other unauthorized absences from work.

B. J. of Long Beach, Calif., asks: What happens if a person is rejected in the draft? Dear B. J.: In that event, the protection of the Military Selection Service Act of 1967 applies. He has a right to return to his job.

Musician Recalls Television Entry

By VICTOR STANTON TORONTO (AP) — Gordon Robinson found his "niche" in the world of music 20 years ago.

It came about while the Toronto-born musician was watching the 1952 New Year's Day Rose Bowl game on television at his Los Angeles home.

"I'll never forget it," Robinson said.

The phone rings and it's a friend of mine calling to say he had played a dance the previous night and met a man who was looking for an arranger for a piano player who was going to start a television show.

He told me the piano player's name and I didn't even know him.

The piano player was Liberace.

A couple days later we met and framed and built that first television show.

He was given four shows to make it in Los Angeles without a sponsor. After the second show, the biggest bank chain in Los Angeles bought it and I sat on the sidelines and watched this thing develop over the years from absolutely nothing to a starbook showbiz story and I've been part of it ever since and it's been marvelous.

As well as arranging music for the orchestra that plays behind Liberace, Robinson has conducted the orchestration for all of the pianist's television and personal appearance shows for the last two decades.

"I know I could have never found a more favorable niche in the world of music than the one I have for many, many reasons," Robinson, whose family moved to the United States when he was a young boy, works only for Liberace, a six-months-a-year job that allows him half a year to catch up on the work around the home and social activities that are neglected during concert tours and nightclub and television engagements.

Government Seeks Refunds From 8 States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government wants eight states to refund more than $10 million they were supposed to have spent toward offsetting the educational disadvantages suffered by poor children.

Letters went out just after the Nov. 7 election from the U.S. Office of Education seeking repayment of funds allocated under Title I of the 1965 Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Combined with previous requests for repayment, the $10.2 million disclosed Monday brings to $19.5 million the amount the government has asked to be returned from 18 states and the District of Columbia over the last 14 months.

In Monday's list were: Alabama, $589,546; Arkansas, $615,548; Kentucky, $295,378; Mississippi, $3 million; New Mexico, $5,429; South Carolina, $2.8 million; Tennessee, $2.3 million, and Texas, $630,155.

Most of the federal money was used to supplant rather than supplement state and local spending, federal auditors said.

The auditors, who acknowledge that the guidelines for the program were weak during its early years, say nearly $10 billion has been spent in some 18,000 school districts since fiscal year 1966.

The money was intended to help overcome learning handicaps brought on by poverty, racial isolation, neglect or delinquency.

British Designer Turns Skulls Into Art Objects

By ALISON LERRICK LONDON (AP) — A grotesque environment, not a macabre. There's a great difference, Redmile says. "Besides, people like to have something real around them."

After art school, this designer began his career by restoring old and priceless porcelain, including the plate from the Kremlin when it came over.

Now, his mini-ceramic factory turns out baroque objects from lions' head cachepots and life-size jeweled reindeer to erotica salt and pepper pots. "They're on all the best tables," jokes their creator.

Los Angeles is the home of his staunchest supporters, "since the houses are bigger." It would take a big one to do justice to the giant water-buffalo skull, with silver balls dangling from its horns and a chunk of malachite between the eyes.

But New York socialites aren't far behind the film stars, especially when it comes to horns. They arrive in cartons from Scotland and can be twisted into anything from a stool or coat rack to a mirror or chandelier.

"For the past three months, I have been working on the really opulent shell scene," Redmile says with satisfaction.

You can have a "Chippendale" sideboard covered in them. Friends of Princess Margaret snatched up the huge shell cabinet for their house in Barbados.

It must have taken about 20,000 shells," says the designer, who feels that at $1,900 it was a steal, considering all the glue.

Next to be shelled are the high-back Renaissance chairs, with silver and agate here and there. "They are just fan things," he says. "They'll cost a fortune."

Also from the seashore, and a trifle by comparison, is a sawfish sword. A giant fishbone, looming up four and a half feet high on a silver hilt, it's only $180.

"The most beautiful space age object" goes for $290. A gleaming blond tortoise shell on a silver stand, it originally arrived in England on foot. The contents went into the soup.

"Ostrich eggs are the only things I use from live animals," Redmile apologizes. "But I don't feel guilty, because they come from farms."

Fortunately, since he demands them by the thousand, at $10 apiece. One can stand alone on a jeweled foot — which is as close as most people will ever come to Faberge. Sixteen of them, mixed with ivory and jewels, make a dressed-up chandelier, at $1300.

As for feathers, the designer arranges them in geometric forms by color and puts them under glass to make table tops "inspired by Mexican head-dresses."

His ancient Chinese wedding headdress — all in pearls and blue kingfisher feathers — he plans to put on a stand, as soon as he can locate all the pieces floating around the cellar.

Also buried among the antlers are a few incongruous, if equally bizarre, objects: an 18th century Norwegian sleigh, to be overlaid in ivory, and a hog-killing bench, which Red-mile plans to combine with an oxen-yoke. "They're both pretty useless as they are," he explains.

But his chef d'oeuvre is still in the making. A miniature "Saint Basil's of Russia," the cage is 12 feet high, with little gold towers around a central dome, the whole to be encrusted with leather, enamel and jewels.

For whom is this treasure destined? It's for Redmile's pet boa constrictor, who is nourished on hamsters from Harrod's.

GET THE LEAD OUT

THE LEADED GASOLINE CONTROVERSY

LEAD ADDITIVES WERE FIRST USED IN GASOLINE FOR AUTOMOBILES ALMOST 50 YEARS AGO. THOUGH IT HELPED CURB ENGINE KNOCKING, ITS USE IN THE MOTOR CAR WAS NOT UNIVERSALLY APPROVED, ESPECIALLY BY THE WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION.

EARLY RESEARCH SHOWED THAT TETRA-ETHYL LEAD WAS POISONOUS. ITS EFFECTS ON WORKERS IN FACTORIES PRODUCING THE SUBSTANCE WAS OFTEN TRAGIC. BUT WHEN THE U.S. BUREAU OF MINES RELEASED A REPORT STATING CAREFULLY CONTROLLED USE OF THE ADDITIVE WAS SAFE, THE FUROR DIED DOWN.

TODAY, LEAD IN GASOLINE IS CAUSING ANOTHER CONTROVERSY — THIS TIME, FOR POSSIBLE EFFECTS ON THE AIR WE BREATHE. AMERICAN OIL COMPANY IS URGING MOTORISTS TO GET THE LEAD OUT OF THEIR GASOLINE, THEREBY HELPING TO ELIMINATE AIRBORNE LEAD PARTICLES.
