

American Policy Around World Bound Up in Aid-Greece Issue

Message by Truman May Be Revealing

WASHINGTON—P—An assertion by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), that the United States may shoulder world-wide obligations by helping Greece sharpened Congressional attention today on President Truman's promised report on the Mediterranean diplomatic crisis.

The President goes before a joint session of the House and Senate at noon (CST), tomorrow for a policy statement which members seem certain to weigh word by word before they reach any decision to pump American dollars and prestige into Greece and Turkey.

These were strong indications that the form in which Mr. Truman couches any proposal to help the two countries may tip the scales for or against American intervention at the strategic backdoor of Europe.

From what they learned at White House conferences, legislative leaders have concluded that the President will recommend a loan of $250,000,000 for Greece and a credit of $150,000,000 for Turkey to bolster those two nations' economies at home, help meet the cost of maintaining their armed forces and pay for military equipment they need.

Vandenberg, who heads the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and has served as a state department advisor at World Diplomatic Conferences, pointed up present Congressional intention.

Vandenberg told a news conference after a meeting of the Senate's 51 Republican leadership members at the White House last night that he hoped to see GREEK ISSUE, Page 5

Oil Companies Hike Crude Purchase Price

An increase of 25 cents per barrel in crude oil prices of three major oil companies has been announced, effective March 10.

Companies making the increase were Standard Oil of Indiana, the Phillips Petroleum Company and the Standard Oil Purchasing Company.

The price increase applies to Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, the Mid-Continent and Rocky Mountain areas.

The announcement was made by Frank Phillips, chairman of Phillips, Ralph DeWitt, Standard general manager, and E. F. Bullard, president, Standard Oil.

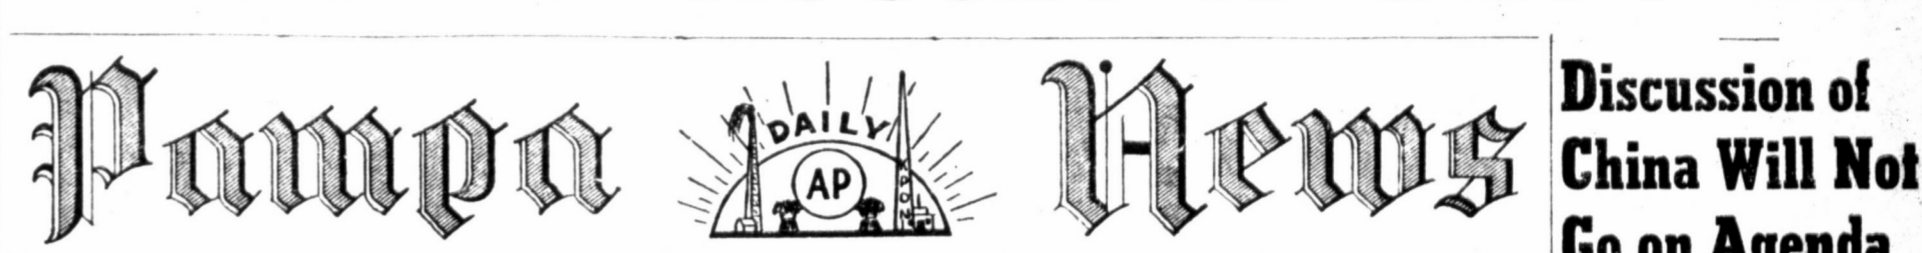

A 10-cent increase was made last November and a 25-cent increase last July.

Colquitt Gibson had repeatedly denied implication in the death of Pat Templeton, young Tyler man and father of one child.

Officers said Templeton had been stabbed 45 times and his throat cut. His body was found lying in a pasture July 14 in the Noonday Community near here. Officers said he had been dead about three days when found.

Officers said several domestic quarrels had preceded the slaying.

Six Believed Trapped As Building Collapses

CINCINNATI—P—A five-story building collapsed in the bottom area of downtown Cincinnati today and Fire Chief Barney J. Houston said he believed six men trapped in the debris were still alive.

At least six persons were injured. They were taken to General Hospital, where they were identified as: Nate Tomkovic, hurt around forehead and legs.

Frank Hamborough, hurt in stomach. Red Williams, 51, hurt about the head and possible internal injuries. Richard Gilday, face lacerations and body bruises.

Chief Houston expressed doubt that five of the trapped men could be reached in time to save their lives.

Houston, whose firemen still were digging two hours after the collapse of the brick structure, said: "I talked with two of the men who were trapped on the first floor but their voices are getting fainter by the moment. I believe there are four others under the wreckage in the basement."

The fire chief said all buildings in the area had been weakened by recurring Ohio River floods.

Sam Ostrov, head of the Western Fixture and Bar Supply Co., was trapped in the basement and pinned by debris. He was able to tell firemen that another man was near him and alive.

A search was being made for Willie Teskin, stockkeeper. Ray Bell, and Al Rudd, of Covington, Ky., after fellow workers said they were missing.

Fire Chief Barney J. Houston instructed firemen to start tunneling through the elevator shafts after he was told three men were riding in the elevator when the structure crashed.

Before the building fell, escaping water had undermined a 40-foot section of Pearl Street and flooded the basement of the building.

Several men were said to have been working in the flooded basement of the building.

The building was 50 feet wide and 85 feet long. All but a portion of the top floor collapsed.

As a safety measure, occupants of several nearby buildings were evacuated.

Howard Benjamin, 44, foreman of equipment for the water works, said he arrived at the building in time to see it sway and then fall.

"I sounded like an explosion and I was lucky to escape with a little dust and debris on my clothes," Benjamin said.

Benjamin identified one of the persons injured as Richard Gilday, a water works employee, who was taken to a hospital.

"Gilday saved his life by quickly leaping under one of our water works trucks and about 30 tons of brick and debris landed on one end of the truck, fortunately leaving space for Gilday to come out," Benjamin said.

Prisoner Fails In Escape Plan

TYLER—P—Colquitt Gibson, 27, one of two brothers charged with murder in connection with the knife slaying of their cousin, made a dramatic but futile attempt to escape from a crowded Tyler courtroom yesterday.

As Gibson's case was called in District Court, officers said he leaped toward his brother and whispered, "Let's go!"

"Get out of my way before I hurt someone!" he shouted to spectators. The courtroom was thrown into confusion.

He was tackled by Deputy Sheriff Walter Jernigan near the front door, but managed to escape the deputy's hold.

Detective Jim Adams went to Jernigan's aid and subdued Gibson. He was returned to jail after Judge Otis T. Dunagan reset his trial for June 9.

Ex-Marines to Live With Lonely Couple

PARISHVILLE, N. Y.—P—A Texas ex-marine from Alpine, Texas, has said he will be one of two veterans who will live on a New York farm with the lonely parents of a marine lost two years ago near two Jima.

Richard Daniels of Alpine and Angelo Vignare of Brookline have agreed to live with Mr. and Mrs. Tanley Christy who have searched two years for two ex-marines to live on their farm home.

The couple had been corresponding with former members of the Marine Corps since their son's death on a hospital ship.

U.N. Estimate on Aid to Austria Slashed by Hoover

WASHINGTON—P—The question of whether Congress wants a long or short range foreign relief program was raised today by a report from Herbert Hoover urging that $155,000,000 be spent in Austria during the next 15 months.

The former president said relief in Austria must continue at least until July 1, 1948, and "I have felt it better to face the fact now rather than propose 'renewed appropriations later.'"

But Rep. Bloom (D-N.Y.), top Democrat of the House Foreign Relations Committee told a reporter he believes the group will prefer to take a new look at foreign relief later and make a supplemental appropriation than the rank and file workers.

Hoover explained in his report to President Truman his proposal would provide Austria with less aid than a United Nations program contemplates but said he has in mind "world supplies and the drains upon the American taxpayer."

The United Nations estimates provide more food than Hoover's, he said, and include some help for industrial reconstruction.

The United Nations proposal would involve spending $148,000,000 from a fund of $610,000,000 of which the United States has been asked to contribute $350,000,000.

Hoover said the program he recommended would provide "a food level that, while austere, is, I believe, sufficient to maintain health and vigor."

"The United Nations estimates contemplated a higher food level than that which I have felt possible or necessary during the emergency, and they include certain industrial reconstruction aids in addition to food, medicine and such agricultural supplies as seed, fertilizers and insecticides."

While the program recommended by the United Nations is admirable and desirable, I have felt it necessary, in view of world supplies and the drains upon the American taxpayer, to make estimates only for food, medicine and such agricultural supplies as seed, fertilizers and insecticides.

He described Austria's nutritional condition as somewhat improved over last year and said "the present food levels appear adequate to prevent any disaster but must be regarded as emergency maintenance" which cannot be continued over years.

The house has passed a measure calling for $55 per capita and the Senate is considering the bill.

Laycock and Kinnard were accompanied to Austin by C. A. Cyster, Berger superintendent.

Schwellenbach Predicts 'Drastic Reduction' in Strikes During '47

WASHINGTON—P—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach predicted today that strikes this year will be "drastically reduced" but he declared that major labor law changes might foster "strife" and "chaos" instead.

The processes of free collective bargaining, dormant during the war are being re-learned, Schwellenbach told the House Labor Committee. He said it may be asserted safely "that the number of stoppages in 1947 will be drastically reduced from the number that occurred in 1946."

In another statement prepared for the committee, Paul M. Herzog, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, said Congress may get "mounting industrial strife" rather than great industrial peace if it tampers with the Wagner Act.

That is the law guaranteeing workers the right to bargain collectively with government labor experts were on the witness list at hearings on a pile of bills proposing broad changes in labor laws. Both took repeated pot-shots at the proposals and called for emphasis on round-table bargaining to curb industrial unrest.

"There is every reason to believe," Schwellenbach said, "that if labor and management are given a reasonable opportunity to work out their problems between themselves, we will not have a petition of the tens of thousands of the last quarter of 1945 or the first three quarters of 1946."

But some of the bills before the committee, he said, would bring about "complete atrophy" in collective bargaining.

And there would be "industrial chaos" for months, he continued, if Congress ordered immediate outlawing of the closed shop and other forms of "union security." The bills are in the Senate.

Congress Has 3 Choices in Foremen Issue

WASHINGTON—P—The Supreme Court left a broad hint with Congress today that if it wants foremen excluded from unions it will have to write a new law on the subject.

A 5 to 4 decision by the tribunal presented these choices to the lawmakers on the controversy over unionization of the men who boss the nation's plants, mills and mines:

1. To write a provision in the Wagner Labor Relations Act relieving employers of the obligation to bargain with a union; their supervisor. This, in effect, would cancel out yesterday's Supreme Court decision.

2. To amend a provision specifically extending collective bargaining protection to unions of supervisors which are not affiliated with rank and file organizations. This would spell out by law the interpretation of the present statute which the court handed down.

3. To grant or withhold those privileges which the bosses are members of the same union as production workers. This point has not yet been passed on by the Supreme Court, but probably won't be before next October.

A case involving John L. Lewis Mine Foremen's Union is still headed toward the tribunal but is headed toward lower courts.

Significantly, the court's decision yesterday involved supervisory employees who were not in the same union as the rank and file workers. It concerned the Packard Motor Car Company of Detroit and the Foremen's Association of America, an independent union for supervisory workers only.

The high court gave no inkling how it would rule if the foremen had belonged to the same union as the workers they supervised.

The Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, which passed on the case first, said it might have seen the issue in a different light if the union were tied in with the production workers.

The Lewis case would put that issue squarely before the tribunal.

It admittedly is a test case to determine how the Supreme Court will interpret the Wagner Act on that point. The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation is fighting recognition of the Lewis union by the National Labor Relations Board and a contract Lewis negotiated with the government covering J. and L. supervisors in four Pennsylvania mines.

Waco Paper Raps 'The SS Guards'

WACO—P—The Waco Tribune-Herald in a two and a half column article headed "The SS Guards" Sunday sharply criticized the Secret Service for what it termed misuse of its authority during President Truman's visit here last week.

The article, written by Murray Neal of the Tribune-Herald staff, said "if there were 200,000 people in Waco, the Secret Service would be safe but that 175,000 of them didn't see any more than Truman's car—thanks to the Secret Service."

The article said the SS "saw, those initials have a familiar ring, don't they?" certainly "didn't make any Democratic votes in Waco when they shepherd President Truman around."

As an example, the paper said several thousand school children waiting in the drizzle to get a view of the President saw nothing but "big black limousine" sweep by with the top up.

"Somewhere back in the dark caverns of that car was the President. It was so full of brass that the plain people—the school kids huddled in the rain, the plain mothers and fathers standing in the mud and shivering, the farmers from the forks of the road—the plain people couldn't see him."

"All they wanted was to shout that 'him.' It would have made them happy to say: 'I saw the President.' They would have talked about the event for years."

"They saw the Secret Service men; they didn't see the President. They didn't care anything about Senator Connally (D-Tex.) or any of the rest—there was just one man in the car for their eyes, and he was wedged in the dark back-end of the kids' car," he told them from Charlie McCarthy.

Discussion of China Will Not Go on Agenda

MOSCOW—P—France and Britain sided with the United States today in the Four-Power Foreign Ministers meeting to block a Soviet proposal to place a discussion of China on the conference agenda.

The Western Powers held during the long discussion that if China was to be discussed, then China must be represented.

(China's foreign minister, Wang Shih-chieh, issued a formal statement in Nanking announcing that his nation "will not in any manner agree to inclusion of its problems" in the agenda.)

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov brought up the Chinese question yesterday.

In an attempt to save his proposal, he suggested that the Ministers meet informally and then put a communique since this question was of such "great importance" to public opinion.

Authoritative sources said U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall would reject the Russian proposal, advanced yesterday, unless Chinese representatives were called to the conference.

Marshall, who was the first of the four ministers to arrive for the first meeting yesterday at the house of the Soviet aviator, also was the first to arrive today for the opening at 4 p. m. (7 a. m., central standard time).

Second to arrive, Molotov was dressed in civilian clothes rather than in his official foreign office uniform. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault was third on the scene, and once again British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was the last to appear.

A group of Soviet Security Police who arrived behind Marshall fanned out across the street as he left his car and entered the building.

It was not generally believed that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov would be present.

Strikeback Rail Company Official Slain in Ambush

PEORIA, Ill.—P—George P. McNear, Jr., president of the Rock Island and Strife-Town Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad, was slain last night by a burst of gunfire from a speeding automobile.

The 45-year-old executive, who since 1941 had defied 13 striking brotherhoods in one of the nation's longest and bloodiest labor disputes, was shot from ambush in gang style near his residence in a fashionable Peoria district. He died 9 1/2 hours later.

As police searched for the assassin, they said the slayers' identity and motive were not determined.

The 239-mile feeder railroad across Illinois from Effner, Ind., to Keosauqua, Ia., has been crippled continuously for the last 17 months by a strike. The company-union dispute has been marked by litigation, shootings, fires and destruction of trains. Two pickets were killed and three were wounded at Gridley, Ill., Feb. 6, 1946. Four railroad guards later were acquitted of manslaughter in that shooting.

McNear, father of four children, was wounded by six shots. Police said pea-sized pellets from an automatic type weapon were found in the chest, neck and right arm of the 6 foot, four inch railroad president.

His crumpled body was found between the sidewalk and the curb on 23rd Street, a block from his home on a bluff overlooking the Illinois River, by a physician, Dr. Robert Sutton.

The current dispute began Dec. 28, 1941, when 104 engineers and trainmen among 600 employes quit work in protest against a new wage scale and new working rules. During government wartime management after March, 1942, operation was normal, but negotiations failed and the strike was renewed Oct. 1, 1945.

Commission Studies Plumbing Regulation

The first problem, requiring a final decision, came before the City Commission this morning when a request from a local contractor was received to continue building homes with a smaller inch pipe than is required by ordinance.

The contractor requested that he be permitted to continue use of a three-inch soil pipe, in homes now under construction, leading from a bathroom to outside sewer connecting lines. The city ordinance sets the minimum pipe size at four inches.

During the war years the U. S. Government set up an emergency plumbing code that superseded any city ordinance and set the minimum size of such pipe at three inches due to shortages of materials and based on government findings that the pipe was adequate.

City Plumbing Inspector R. R. Jones told the Commission that the city had gone along and passed several building projects on this basis, but that he was now informed the four-inch pipe was again available for home construction. He added that the three-inch pipe must be used with extreme care to prevent clogging and that he has had several complaints from persons now living in three-inch piped houses as to their inadequacies.

No action was made during the morning session.

Customer Quirks Age Saleswomen

By ALICIA HART, NEA Staff Writer

Guess what tops the list of feminine inconsistencies which make salespeople want to retire to a nice quiet attic where there are no woman customers?

Asking for a size 14 garment—the size is hypothetical—when a customer wears a size 16. When this happens, the saleswoman has to go back to the racks, and begin her routine all over again.

Customer behavior that's hard on the nervous system of the fitter, when alterations are made, is that of the woman who wears one type of girdle when alterations are sized up, another type of girdle when she comes for a fitting. The figure changes that two girdles can make are enough to make a fitter want to quit her job.

No one would think that a woman would radically change her hair between the time she orders a hat and the time she returns for a fitting. But milliners, pointing to their gray hairs, explain that they're called by customers who wear an up-do for one visit, a down-do for the next. This switch requires an adjustment of head-size and sometimes of the hat's entire design.

Broil Cod for Finer Consistency

Broiled cod has appealing flavor.

BY GAYNOR MADDOX, NEA Staff Writer

Most good eaters enjoy broiled fish. So broil your quick-frozen fillets for tomorrow's dinner and serve with a butter sauce.

Broiled Quick-Frozen Fish Fillets

Use 1 package quick-frozen fish fillets (frozen or thawed). Separate fillets and spread with slightly softened butter and sprinkle with salt pepper and paprika. Place on well-greased broiler and broil 15 to 25 minutes, turning to brown on both sides.

Butter Sauces for Broiled Fish

Tart Lemon Butter: Cream 4 tablespoons (2 ounces) butter, add 2 to 3 tablespoons lemon juice and cream well. Makes enough sauce for 4 to 6 servings of fish.

Lemon Parsley Butter: To Tart Lemon Butter, add 4 tablespoons minced fresh parsley.

Cod Baked With Tomato Sauce (Serves 4-6)

Two packages quick-frozen fillet of cod, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons finely diced celery, 2 tablespoons shredded green pepper, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 cups canned tomatoes, 1-2 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1-2 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 bay leaf, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley.

Put fillets—frozen or thawed—into servings and place in buttered shallow baking dish. Sauté onion, celery, and green pepper in butter until tender; add flour and mix well. Add remaining ingredients and cook slowly 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Pour over fish and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) 25 to 30 minutes, or until fish is tender.

Exercise Keeps Chin-Line Young

By ALICIA HART, NEA Staff Writer

A cameo-cut picture of line from the tip of the chin to the hollow of the throat is an unmistakable sign of youth. Yet I know a woman of 60 whose chin looks as young as that of an 18-year-old.

This woman's exercise to keep her chin line from slipping began, she says, 25 years ago. At the first signs of blurring, she started hanging her head over the side of her bed and slowly raising it until it was level with her body.

Doing this five or six times nightly is the exercise to which my friend has been faithful through the years.

Try her method if you want to build strong muscles which will keep cushions of flesh as stably braided against gravity's tugs. The best time to take your exercise, of course, is after you have creamed your face and neck and skin is supplied up for the muscular workout.

PIANO CARE

Piano experts warn against keeping your instrument near any heat source, such as the direct rays of the sun. Like any fine furniture, the wood surface needs occasional cleaning to remove all accumulated wax and polish. Use a soap cloth, well wrung out and follow with a damp cloth wrung out of clear water, covering only a small area at a time until the entire surface is completely dry before applying new wax or polish. A small bag of camphor hung inside the piano helps prevent moths from deterring the felt. Have your instrument tuned and checked by a good service man at least once a year.

You can "lower" a too-high ceiling by painting it a warm color—pink or yellow—or papering with a boldly patterned wallpaper to give the illusion of less height.

Marriage Is a Challenging Partnership

By RUTH MILLETT, NEA Staff Writer

If the book by Rudolph Dreikurs, "The Challenge of Marriage," is as chock full of sound, mature advice as are pre-publication excerpts from it, it is the best marriage guide you could buy a young couple.

Even the title will probably be something new to young folks who have grown up in an era when marriage is commonly regarded as the romantic ending of a love story. Ruth Millett rather than the beginning of a challenging lifetime partnership.

Certainly, these are pointers any young married couple might well take to heart.

Religions in Texas Are Studied by White Deer

WHITE DEER—(Special)—Observing Texas Day, the Venado Blanco Club presented a program on "Religions in Texas" Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Emmitt Smith.

Miss Mildred Cole discussed "Religious Education in Texas." She stated that most of the higher educational institutions in Texas were founded by some religious organization. The religious schools carried the burden of education throughout the early history of the state, since it was not until 1876 that the first state college, Texas A and M, was founded.

The oldest college in Texas is Baylor University, which was established by the Baptists in the era of the Texas Republic. The Methodist institution established during the Republic was Rutersville University in Fayette, the predecessor of Southern Methodist University, Austin College, founded by the Presbyterians, is also one of the oldest in the State. The present Texas Christian University grew out of the early Add-Ran College owned by the Disciples of Christ.

The Catholics established more schools than any other religious organization, the leading two being St. Edward's University at Austin and St. Mary's University at San Antonio.

There are 40 denominational colleges in Texas. Not only do the churches support these colleges, Miss

Behind him was a picture of a jammed Cotton Bowl. In front was one of the Sugar Bowl. Besides it was an action shot of all-American John Kimbrough. I recalled those days in the early forties when Norton was the toast of the nation's football fans as an Aggie team. I recalled, also, just a few seasons ago when he was acclaimed as the coach of the year for what he did with the Kiddle Corps—that group of youngsters just out of high school who scrapped their way into the Orange Bowl.

But lean days came to Aggie land. Into the records went seven straight defeats at the hands of arch-rival Texas; last fall the Aggies reached a weary season close with only four victories in a schedule of ten. The crescendo of alumni caustics spread throughout the state. There came a demand that Norton be paid for the remainder of his contract and dismissed.

Norton, however, stood pat. "They thought I would resign, wouldn't want to pay it," he said sadly. "They wanted me to retire. But I am not going to retire. Coaching is my work and I am not going to quit."

And so Homer Norton had a showdown with the alumni. It was almost like the one in 1938 when it required a second vote of the Athletic Council to keep him in the driver's seat. The very next season Norton carried A. & M. to a national championship. The night they held the annual football banquet, it required hours and hours just to pass out the individual honors.

Norton last week won his second fight with the ex-students. This time it was a legal victory. The attorney general ruled the Board of Directors couldn't use the funds, which are as much the property of the state as those used for administering the college program, to pay a man for services unrendered. So he will be Aggie head at least until 1949, unless he should accept a coaching job elsewhere.

The veteran coach knows what is ahead; he realizes that it's going to take a lot of courage and patience to stand up under the pressure from the stands. Already the fans are asking: "Well, since he knows he will be coach for at least three and one-half years and nobody can do anything about it, do you think he'll make much effort to produce a good team? Don't you think he'll be better at them and want to strike back?"

The answer, in the opinion of this writer, is emphatically "No!" I think Norton will make the greatest effort of his career, that he will give everything he has to show the fans he considers a contract sacred—that fulfillment of it entails producing the best team it is his ability to produce.

There is no doubt but that he will be handicapped, not only by the sniping from those who sought his removal but the fact that all the hullabaloo has resulted in A. & M. not getting its fair share of athletes. You can't blame the boys who would want to go to a school where the coach was kept so busy holding his job that he couldn't hold spring football training?

But the theme of this treatise isn't whether A. & M. is to return to the glory it knew in 1939, 1940 and 1941; it's just passing on the conviction that Homer Norton will not let down in his efforts and desire to give Aggie land winning football teams. We seriously doubt that there will be the material to warrant even small hopes of a Southwestern Conference championship next fall. But the philosophy of Homer Norton is this:

"I give my football teams everything I know how to give them. I prepare them to the best of my ability. When I am clear in my mind and my heart and I have no regrets no matter what happens."

Which is to reiterate that I believe Homer Norton will not only give to the best of his ability next fall but will put that extra ounce into his effort. And I can foresee some dramatic moments as a man wages his battle under conditions no coach ever before faced.

Marcus Freiburger, whose claim to basketball glory came not only from the fact that he is a giant among boys but because he developed abilities to go with the natural advantages of being a foot taller than the rest of the guys, indirectly calls attention to a slight error on the part of the sports writers in last season's campaign.

In 1946 they spoke of him as the 6-foot 10-inch schoolboy from Greenville. It was carried that way when he made the all-state team. But Marcus in answering a question of whether or not he had grown any since 1946 said:

"Yes, I have put on a half-inch."

"Well," I said, adding on my fingers but worrying about the fraction (sports writers you know have trouble with mathematics), "that means you now are 6-foot-10½."

"Oh, no," smiled Freiburger. "I'm just 6-foot-10. I was only 6-foot-9½ last year. The sports writers got it wrong."

It's a little late, but we hereby make this correction. Or maybe we should say we got it right the year later. After all, Freiburger is all-state again this year and he's 6-foot-10.

DALLAS—(AP)—Football fans, particularly the alumni of a school, are a study in contradictions. When the team wins, their praise for the abilities of the coach knows no bounds; when the team loses they will tell you "I knew he couldn't do it all the time; I said we wouldn't win when they hired that guy."

In a little office just off Kyle Field at Texas A. & M., Homer Norton, a soft-spoken man who kept his equilibrium while all was topsy-turvy in Aggie land, told me not in the words he spoke but in the way he said that that a coach has some deep feelings, too.

Behind him was a picture of a jammed Cotton Bowl. In front was one of the Sugar Bowl. Besides it was an action shot of all-American John Kimbrough. Kentucky Named Tourney Favorite

By MURRAY ROSE
NEW YORK—(AP)—In a small, select to-do anything can happen, but nevertheless the experts prepared to boost themselves high on the limb for old Kentucky in the National Invitation Tournament at Madison Square Garden.

The NIT's committee, after examining the records of the eight teams, had the same idea and yesterday they made the mighty Wildcats winner of 32 out of 34 games and defending champions, the top seed with West Virginia (18-1) second, Duquesne (21-1) third, and North Carolina State (24-4) fourth.

Seeding, however, haven't meant much in this court carnival and it wouldn't be too shocking if any of the other four, Bradley (25-5), Utah (16-5), St. John's of Brooklyn (15-6) and Long Island (16-4), emerged as the winner. The last two were named to meet yesterday.

While the NIT was filling its field yesterday, the National Collegiate A. A. committees came close to rounding out their tournament. Wisconsin, Big Nine member, was picked for the district four berth, leaving only District Two a dark secret at the moment. Oklahoma and St. Louis are slated to square off March 17 for the right to represent District Five.

The District Two (Mid-Atlantic area) choice is expected to be made shortly. Looking for the berth are Columbia's Ivy League champions (14-5), City College of New York (14-4) and Syracuse (19-5).

The draw for the Eastern NCAA championships to be staged at the Garden March 20 and 22 will be by Thursday. Besides Wisconsin, the other two teams all ready named to the Eastern show are Holy Cross (23-3) and Navy (16-1).

A western draw already has been made. Texas (24-1), Southwestern Conference titleholder, goes up again Big Seven champion Colorado (24-4), and Oregon State (27-4), Pacific Coast Conference winner, meets the survivor of the St. Louis-Oklahoma playoff. That end of the NCAA show will be the Kansas City Auditorium March 21 and 22.

After that the first two teams in each section will tangle in the Garden March 25 for the overall NCAA title, with the winners meeting for the crown and the runners-up for third place.

But lean days came to Aggie land. Into the records went seven straight defeats at the hands of arch-rival Texas; last fall the Aggies reached a weary season close with only four victories in a schedule of ten. Two Records Broken In First Night of Kansas City Tourney

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Anything that might happen in the remaining five days of competition in the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament (N. A. I. B.) likely will be an anti-climax to the record breaking proceedings of the first eight games.

Nate DeLong, 6-foot-6-inch freshman center of Wisconsin State Teachers, River Falls, plunked in 22 field goals and 12 free throws for 56 points, breaking the N. A. I. B. record of 58 points by Pete Felo of George Peppercorn College in 1942.

Marshall College of Huntington, W. Va., set a new team scoring mark by beating Wisconsin State, DeLong and all, 113 to 80.

Point making wasn't limited to the Marshall-River Falls contest however. Cliff McNeely, the little Texas West-yan forward who tops the nation's scorers, brought his total for 31 games to 710 points as he scored 31 points in leading his team to an 84-50 victory over Linfield College of McMinnville, Ore.

The defending champion Southern Illinois Normal Maroons of Carbondale, bowed out of the tournament as Dakota Wesleyan, Mitchell, S. D., handed them a 44-10-39 licking.

The University of Houston (Tex.) defeated Montana State 60 to 58 on a last-second side court shot by Pete Selay.

8 Teams Left in ABC Tournament

ATLANTA—(AP)—Eight well-balanced teams, survivors of 22 amateur outfits from 14 states, were paired for the fourth session tonight in the second annual American Basketball Congress tournament here. Only one seeded squad was still in the running.

Attention was focused on the upper bracket at the eastern edge of the Tupelo Legionnaires from Mississippi were matched in the opening game.

The Tupelo five put on a remarkable exhibition of passwork and long range shooting to win over the Greenville (S.C.) AAB last night, 79-46, after leading 46-21 at the half.

The Greenville team was walloped in the last minute for the Waco, Texas, entry when the latter failed to arrive. The Texans were fourth seeded.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLETON, JR.
NEW YORK—(AP)—Wonder what happened to all those college basketball teams that figured to be "loping" when this season started?

Looking over the lists for the invitation and NCAA tournaments we can find only Kentucky, Utah, Wyoming, West Virginia and Texas that were highly rated last December. Could be the schedules had something to do with it.

COOL RECEPTION
Gen. Bob Neyland, Tennessee football coach, was watching the Southern Conference Basketball tournament and rooting hard for the Volunteers when a woman behind him remarked: "You certainly are for Tennessee, aren't you?"
The general gallantly replied: "Lady, I'm for everybody but Kentucky."
Neyland wondered why the atmosphere became so chilly until a kind friend tipped him off that the woman was Mrs. Adolph Rupp, wife of the Kentucky's coach.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Denver U. likely will follow Colorado out of the "Big Seven" conference and they couldn't change the name of what's left to the "Little Five" because there already is a group with that name. Shorty McWilliams is just one of three talkbacks who have been sharing the heavy duty at Mississippi State during spring practice. And a freshman named Chester Henley had looked so good that he may beat all three of them out.

END OF THE LINE

Welterweight Shelton Bell has had five different managers in five years, counting two terms with Chick Wergeles, who sounds like a dozen. The Eastern States Catholic High School Basketball tournament invited Mount Carmel High of Los Angeles to play in the Newport, R. I., event. What is geography coming?

O'Neill Calls Kell Top Third Baseman

LAKELAND FLA.—(AP)—Without batting an eye, Manager Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers declared that his young George Kell, from Swifton, Ark., was the greatest third-baseman he had ever seen. "I've seen some pretty good ones in my time, too," Steve pointed out. "Back to Buck Weaver; there might have been as good a third-baseman as Kell is before I came along, but not since. That kid is the top."

The 2,500 telephone employees in the Houston district were casting their ballots today, following a meeting last night attended by 1,500. Each of Houston's 11 locals will hold a separate vote. Officials said it may be Thursday before the voting is completed there.

Members of San Antonio's seven locals are to cast their ballots from noon to 1 p.m., and from 4 to 8 p.m. today. Decision to place the matter before the membership was made last night by officials.

The 1,000 members of Fort Worth's seven locals will vote during their off hours tomorrow. P. J. Beasley, city union chairman, said the vote is to determine if workers are prepared to support the Odessa walkout. A mass meeting will climax the voting tomorrow night.

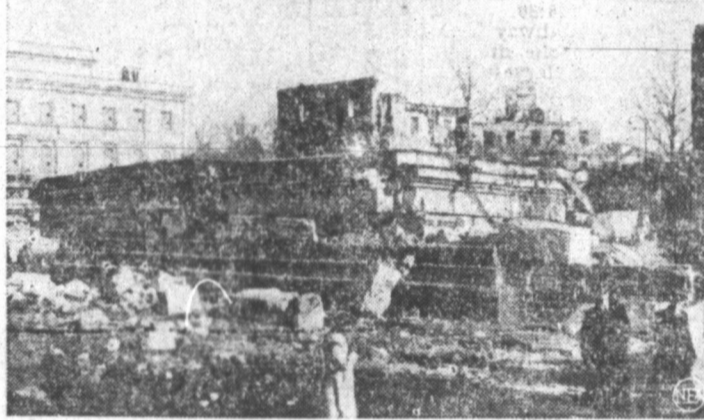

Dallas' 2,000 telephone workers will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow, according to Jim Ferguson, chairman of the Dallas General Council of the Southwestern Telephone Workers Union.

Mrs. Bessie Shelton, vice chairman of the Traffic Workers of the Northwest Texas Division, Abilene, said no walkout is expected there today. However, members voted last night to hold the continuous meetings, which mean curtailment of service, when a deadline is set and notice given.

Discussion

otov, who presented the Russian proposal at the opening session of the Foreign Ministers Council yesterday, would agree to have Chinese representatives invited here.

It was understood that Marshall already had given the Chinese assurance on this point.

At the time of the Moscow conference of 1945, the Chinese protested bitterly that decisions by the Big Three with respect to China's future infringed upon her sovereign rights.

Informed sources said the Chinese were perturbed that Molotov had brought up the Chinese question again and that they had expressed anxiety that further decisions might be made without China being represented. Marshall's position was said to be that China is a full-fledged member of the United Nations and the Foreign Ministers' Circle, and as such should be consulted on questions which concern her.

In any event, the issue appeared to be shaping up as a test of strength between Marshall and Molotov. Diplomats of the Western Powers agreed that Molotov again had seized the diplomatic offensive which Marshall had preferred to keep to himself—in raising the China issue, just as he did at Paris with an opening blast against British and American policies in Italy and at New York with his disarmament demands.

In view of the American attitude

there was much interest as to what Molotov would reply with regard to Marshall's suggestion that the agenda include discussion of a plan for progressive reduction of occupation forces in Europe.

And while Molotov and Marshall sparred on these questions, Foreign Minister Georges Bidault of France plugged away with some suggestions for getting ahead with the German peace treaty. He was reported ready to press for adoption of a system of keeping all the other wartime allies informed about the German treaty and of giving them a chance to express their views.

He would have the Council create a committee of either 12 or 18 smaller countries, represented by their ambassadors here, to cooperate with the Council in this work.

Russia has expressed belief that the number be limited to 12, the countries adjacent to or invaded by Germany, while the British and Americans want 18, all the countries actively engaged in the fight against the Nazis.

Education as Related To Economic Welfare Is Speaker's Subject

Education as an Essential Tool for Developing the Economic Welfare of the Nation Economic Welfare of an address by H. J. Dollinger at the Pampa Rotary Club luncheon tomorrow at noon in the Palm Room.

Dollinger, assistant manager of the Southwestern Division, United States Chamber of Commerce, will describe a special study recently made by the National Chamber to determine what effect educational levels have on standards of living in various parts of the United States.

A graduate of the National Institute for Commercial Organization Executives at Northwestern University, Dollinger is a veteran of over 20 years experience in Chamber of Commerce work.

He served overseas in World War II as a major in the Air Corps and was awarded the Air Medal and Bronze Battle Stars.

The bill provides that the manufacturers must pay current market prices for the sweet gas. At present they are required to use only sour gas which sells ordinarily at prices substantially below the market price of sweet gas.

The attorney general has held that the price feature of the bill is constitutional.

the "total implications" of any American economic intervention in the Mediterranean will be explained to Congress and the people by the President.

"So far as the Greek loan is concerned," he said, "I simply indicated to my colleagues my opinion that it is not an isolated phase but may prove to be symbolic of a general policy which may have to be pursued around the world, inasmuch as the same fundamentals are involved in so many situations."

Vandenberg was said by some of his colleagues to have posed at yesterday's White House conference the question whether the United States could help Greece repel Communist forces while denying such assistance to the Chinese Nationalist Government.

Some diplomatic authorities have suggested that Iran—focal point of a diplomatic crisis with Russia last year—might be the next country to bid for American economic aid in the face of Soviet pressures.

The Iranian Majlis, or Parliament, is scheduled to consider shortly a Russian proposal for joint development of that nation's oil resources, with the Soviet Union in firm control of the program.

Diplomats said the non-Communist regime may tell this country that without American credits to bolster its economy and to strengthen its army it will have to submit to the Kremlin's demands.

He said he could see nothing to promote industrial peace in bills that would forbid bargaining on an industry-wide, plant-by-plant basis. Instead, he said, this would destroy a powerful weapon the Labor Department has used to prevent local conflicts.

closed shop requires employers to hire none but union members, as dogm, bchmfwyptwypmfwmnm

If Congress should decide to enact such legislation, he said, it ought to be continued to new contracts between labor and management. He contended that if closed shop provisions in existing contracts should be cancelled by law unions would say the entire contracts were repealed.

"If the Congress wants to start out deliberately to create industrial strife for a period of about six months," Schwelienbach declared "it could choose no better course than

THE STORY: Sherry and Mona find a cottage together in one of Holly wood's bungalow courts. Mona is sleek and sophisticated, she works in an insurance office and is making a play for her married boss, George Roberts. Sherry keeps house, wants to write, worries about Mona's interest in feathers. After supper one evening, there is a knock on the door. A strange young man is standing outside. He wants to borrow an onion. Sherry says: "Of course. Won't you come in?"

III

HE nodded gravely and stepped in and closed the door. In a moment Sherry returned with the onion.

The young man accepted it.

He said, "I thank you very much for the onion, from my heart's bottom," very gravely. "But I should have told you I am Sandro Duval. We live down at the end."

Sherry smiled. "Oh, of course! And you have three cats and a dog. The manager told me that."

Sandro looked pleased that they had been discussed.

"I'm Sherry Lynne," she said. "You're French, aren't you?"

Sandro said yes.

"I have been here 14 months though," he went on. "My father taught English at the university at home. That is why I speak it so good."

Sherry wanted to laugh, but she said, "You do speak it splendidly."

Sandro said, "But I have been told that. Further, I have been told that except for my slight accent one would think me an American."

He seemed very pleased about that.

"My name is Allesandro," he explained, "but here in America one does not have time for it."

He sat down on theavenport.

It was 10 minutes later that the knocker banged again and Sandro sprang to his feet.

"That will be for me," he said, "I have a feeling." And Sherry opened the door. Tony.

"What happened?" she wanted to know "It sounded like the League of Nations."

Sherry smiled.

She said, "They wanted an onion. They live at the end. One's Tony and one's Sandro. They're the ones who have three cats and a dog."

Mona said, "Sounds fascinating," and bit off her thread.

LATER, when they were in bed, Sherry moved near Mona in the dark.

"Mona—" she began slowly—"don't you think it was funny that Mr. Brothers didn't get out and open the car door for you?"

There was silence for a minute, and in a rush of panic Sherry wondered if Mona was going to be angry. Then Mona's voice came cool and impersonally through the darkness.

She said, "Of course not, darling! It'd been silly in the rain." There was an almost imperceptible pause, then, "After all, you know, a business woman isn't accorded all the little attentions from men she works with."

Sherry agreed quickly.

"That's just it! You work for him. Besides, he knows you know he's married and if you see him—have cocktails and things with him—don't you think he's going to think he can sort of—well, treat you differently?"

There was a silence again. When Mona spoke it was lightly.

She said, "What you're trying to say in your own quaint way, darling, is that he won't respect me. You're right—I didn't work in his office—if I'd had good clothes and a few diamonds and sent my chauffeur home so I could ride with him, he'd have got out to open the door, all right! Well, those are the things I'm going to have! But you've got to start somewhere."

Sherry lay still. Mona had said things like this before, but then there hadn't been any George Brothers.

She said, "But if you marry some rich man—"

Mona made a little sniffing sound.

"Rich men marry rich girls. You've got to make the grade before you can do that, angel."
