Hey, Fellows! Look What's Here: Dehydrated Beer

LONDON — (AP) — Science came up today with a new occupational hazard for the man in military uniform: dried beer.

All you add is water to the packet of starch, hop oil and favoring there'll be beer galore when and where wanted.

It can be transported easily to the fighting fronts when shipping is at a premium.

But the men of science who perfected such wartime products as powdered eggs and dehydrated milk conceded there's a difference in the taste of this one too.

The new product, they said, has a "reasonable drink."

They neglected to announce the alcoholic content of their new discovery.

Area Men Called Before Grain Group

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senators probing shortages in stored government-owned grain shifted their attention today to two Texas cases reportedly involving well over one million dollars.

C. M. Henderson, president of Henderson Grain & Storage, of Farwell, Tex., and Herman Dawson of the Plains Grain & Storage, of Pantex and St. Francis, Tex., were called as witnesses before a Senate agriculture subcommittee.

Wayne Marteny of the Garden City Grain and Seed Co., Garden City, Kan., also may be heard.

The general accounting office, in a report issued Jan. 11, estimated a $751,790 shortage of wheat and grain sorghums at Henderson Grain & Storage. The same report estimated the shortage at Plains Grain & Storage warehouses at $391,367.

Henderson was described by Smith Blair of the committee staff as a former president of the Garden City Grain and Seed Co. Blair said Marteny will be asked whether Henderson has disposed of his interest in that company.

Ward W. Walton of Upper Sandusky, Ohio, a big-scale farm and elevator operator, yesterday blamed wet corn for shortages in three elevators in which he is interested.

Walton who testified he is worth $996,000 "after all obligations," including claims of the Commodity Credit Corp. (CCC) growing out of the shortages, said the agency gave him high-moisture corn for storage in his elevators.

A. C. Christian, an accountant in the agriculture department's production and marketing office in Chicago, estimated the total shortage in three Walton elevators at 611,800 bushels.

Parole Board Probe Due In N. J. Riot

RAHWAY, N. J. — (AP) — Rebellious convicts at Rahway State prison won their chief demand — a probe of the state parole board — but held out today on the issue of disciplinary action after a flareup in their five-day mutiny.

A prison official said a "slight amount" of tear gas was used last night on the 231 rebel prisoners who took over a dormitory wing Thursday night and are holding eight guards hostage.

R. William Lagay, superintendent of the prison farm, said the gas was used to quell a new disturbance by the rioting convicts.

The mutineers want no reprisals for their action and prison officials said they could not guarantee there would be no disciplining of the prisoners.

Tax Grab In '51 Biggest Of All

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government collected more taxes last year than ever before — about $362 for each man, woman and child in the nation.

Individual income and social security taxes last year totalled about $30 billion dollars, compared with more than 21 billions in 1950.

Corporation income and excess profits taxes jumped to $16,964,712,955 last year.

Everglades Fire Under Control

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — Firefighters were reported today to be winning a battle with the biggest muck fire in the Everglades in 15 years.

Chief Guy Bender of the Everglades Fire Control district said the fire burned 390 square miles of wild land, mostly sawgrass, in the western part of Palm Beach county and predicted it would burn itself out in the next day or two.

"In 15 years, this is the largest fire we have had but not the most destructive," Bender said. "The big fire is not spreading, he added, and firefighters were sent to fight other blazes threatening the muck, which burns like peat. It started nine days ago.

FORD WINS AGAIN!

TAKES FIRST PLACE IN CLASS "A" IN THE 1952

Mobilgas Economy Run

New Ford Mileage Maker SIX Thriftiest in its Field!

Again this year... as in the past two years... Ford was first in gas economy over all other cars in its price class in the Mobilgas Economy Run. In this toughest test, a stock model Ford Six equipped with Overdrive (optional at extra cost) averaged 53.855 ton-miles per gallon and 25.463 actual miles per gallon.

This was a very special triumph for Ford's All-New Mileage Maker high-compression Six. For now, with its new design providing 101-horsepower and free-turning overhead valves, Ford is definitely pound-for-pound the most economical low-priced car to run! Yes... Ford's thrift was clearly proved by the 1,415-mile grind from Los Angeles to San Valley. And a very important factor contributing to this victory is Ford's Automatic Power Pilot which squeezes the last ounce of power out of every drop of gas.

*The AAA Contest Board determines the winner by a "ton-miles per gallon" formula to level-terrain classes for all cars in each class regardless of size and weight. Ton-miles per gallon equals the car weight (including passengers) in tons, multiplied by number of miles traveled, divided by number of gallons consumed.

NEW YORK — (AP) — The oil industry drilled 45,000 wells in the United States last year. But the one that made the greatest splash — in and out of Wall Street — was a wildcat on a farm near Tioga, N. D., just a year ago tomorrow.

It flows a nice 350 barrels of crude oil daily — an insignificant drop in the 1.2 million barrels the nation pumps in a day.

But in its first year that wildcat has turned the eyes of stock traders toward shares of a railroad; a match company, an electric utility, investment firms, and other seemingly unlikely companies, as well as a large number of oil companies, some who already have and some who haven't yet struck oil in the area but have paid out 50 million dollars to lease and there.

Stock traders here and in Toronto are interested because the successful wildcat showed — after 30 years of vain and costly search — that there is oil in the vast Williston basin, lying to the East of the Rockies and stretching from South Dakota into Canada.

And every corporation that owns land in that Basin, or owns stock in companies that do control land, suddenly looks good to Wall Street.

It is in that one-time dust-bowl that some of the most profitably leasing oil rights to their lands. Some farmers who offered during the dust storms of the thirties to sell their land for as little as 50 cents an acre, now sell oil leases for as much as $1,500 an acre in the St. Paul, Minneapolis and the Duluth Superior areas men are talking of the chance of these places becoming important oil refining centers. If Williston basin develops into the field some expect, and attains Alberta's 1950 production level, the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis says "about 10 million dollars would be paid annually in royalties" alone, not to mention additional money spent by the oil companies and workers.

Yet oilmen caution that, promising as it seems, Williston basin still must be classified as a hope, not yet a fulfillment. The oil information committee of the American Petroleum Institute notes: "There is a long, long way to go before the new field is established as a major producing center."

But the well near Tioga showed the way. And in the year since, 12 wells scattered from Montana through North Dakota and into Manitoba have found oil in the Basin — a sedimentary trough, 400 miles long by 300 wide, and as much as 14,000 feet deep in places. Geologists call it an old sea lake bottom and some think its formations are extensions of those that proved so oil productive in Alberta province to the Northwest.

Of the nation's 609 geological crews, 27 are working in the Basin, and 13 drilling rigs worked through the long winter.

Oilmen caution about too high hopes. Only one out of every nine wells drilled strikes oil in profitable quantities. Only one out of 44 wildcats in new territory hits pay oil.

That makes the Tioga discovery well the more remarkable. The year before 15 wildcats in the Dakotas turned out to be dusters, or dry holes, as was the first one drilled in the Basin 30 years ago.

Uncle Sam hopes along with the drillers that they'll strike oil. He wants 80,000 more wells drilled in this country by the end of next year and he wants refinery capacity raised from the present seven million barrels a day to eight million for defense of course, not to benefit those taking a flier in Williston oil stock.

Installment
Buying Controls
May End Soon

WASHINGTON — (AP) — An end to government control over installment buying is expected soon, informed officials say.

This would mean that there would no longer be any federal regulations over how much you would have to pay down on automobiles, radio and television sets, refrigerators, furniture and other items.

And, too, there would be no limit fixed on how long — or short — a time you would get to pay back your loans.

The officials pointed out, however, there is no move afoot to end government regulations involving down payments and mortgages on houses.

These officials said the federal reserve board is ready to suspend controls on installment buying of consumer goods as soon as it learns what Congress is going to do about control powers.

Two major reasons for an early end to the regulations were cited: (A) Removal of the restrictions might act as a stimulant to lagging sales, and B) inflationary forces have subsided, for the present, at least.

Electricity will flow through water better if a little salt is added.

Pampa Oilers Ready To Open Season Tomorrow Night Against Borger

Brown, Cooper Tied For Lead In Batboy Race With 555

The Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Giants went down to the National League wire last night, tied neck and neck, and finally were forced into a playoff. That was close.

But at 9 a. m. this morning, with the voting still in progress, the Oilers had 555 votes apiece, and pressing right behind them was Cecil Reynolds with 488.

The darkhorse in the field, Wayne Nolen, still remained in the lead. He has one vote, but is due to turn in a faithful of them tonight before the deadline hour.

The other two contestants, are in fourth and fifth, with Ramirez having 299 for fourth place and Teddy Vickers with 255 in fifth.

Votes are arriving by the basketful. All votes must be turned in by midnight tonight; anything received after that does not count.

Votes have even been received from College Station, where Pampa students are attending Texas A.M.

And the tempo of the race has picked up, also. The voting has already far surpassed the total vote of the last, majority race, and also passed the vote cast in the 1951 airport bond issue.

Cavaretta's Cubs Refusing To Get Into Old Cellar Position

By JACK HAND Associated Press Sports Writer Manager Phil Cavaretta is mixing a "mickey" for the contenders who expect to fatten up on his Chicago Cubs.

Nobody gave the Cubs a tumble in the pre-season pits. One brave soul gave them fifth place. But 93 of the 124 baseball writers stuck them in the cellar, a position they may yet merit.

In the first week of the season the Cubs didn't go down to visit their old basement quarters once. With a 4-2 record they're traipsing in a second-place tie with Cincinnati — of all people.

The Brooklyn Dodgers - surplus, gleefully unloaded on the Cubs in the past few years, is doing a big share of the job. Paul Minner, Tony Lovell, Bob Ramazzotti, Toby Atwell and the rest.

Three-Hitter Minner threw a three-hitter at Pittsburgh last night for a 7-1 victory while the Cubs racked up rookie Ronnie Kline and three successors. One of the hits off Minner was Jack Merson's second homer of the season.

The 20-year-old Kline got in trouble at the start by walking Ramazzotti. Before he got the side out, the Cubs had four runs, Minner's 4-2 record, Ramazzotti's single chased Kline in the second. The Cubs added the rest off Forester Main.

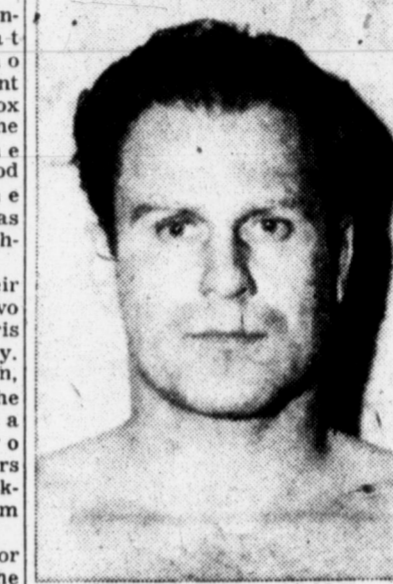

Bobby Thomson found the homer range for the first time since his dramatic pennant-clincher in the 1951 playoffs as the New York Giants' unloped Red Sox got the side out and breezed through the ninth.

Little Bobby Shantz gave only five hits, including Mickey Mantle's homer, but the boys didn't back him in. The A's left 30 on base and the Boston Red Sox got the seventh to fashion the triumph.

Lone House of David marker was manufactured in the last frame of C (Red) Dial, Bill Hair, once Borger, started and retired — nine men he faced during a first three innings. Marvin Halleman, lefthander, purchased conditionally from Texarkana over the week end, took the middle three cantos.

Cliff Pemberton with three hits, Virgil Richardson and Jim Matthews, with two each, paced the Pioneers at the plate. The Pioneers meet Eastern New Mexico University of Portales here Tuesday night in their final exhibition. They open the season at Lubbock Wednesday night.

Southwestern Belt At Stake Tomorrow

For the second time this season, the Southwestern junior heavyweight championship will be put on the line at the Southwestern Club, tomorrow night, Tony "Madman" Morelli vs. the diamond-studded $2,000 belt on the block for Sessie Oyama, the Jap with the "sleeper" hold.

Oyama gained the right for the title shot by defeating George Lopez at the Pampa arena, two out of three falls, winning both with his sleep hold. Wheeling or not he will be able to apply it to Morelli is doubtful, because he won't have the added advantage of the judo jacket worn last week, and also Morelli is a pretty tough character himself.

Morelli, who keeps winning despite his foul tactics, has been bolstering for tougher opposition. Promoter Howard Vineyard hopes that he has furnished that opposition in Oyama. The Italian from New York claims that the whole world is against him and like a man fighting for his life, uses any method he can to whip his opponent. He claims that the referees, sports writers and promoters are ganging up on him, and only recently issued a special challenge to Sports Editor Collier Perris of the Abilene Reporter for a "duel" with weapons, wrestling, footracing, golf or anything that the writer would choose. He did not like a writup by Parrish which allegedly inferred that the Italian wasn't completely on the up and up.

The main event is for 90 minutes, the best two out of three falls. It will be headed by two other matches, George Lopez, another of the ju-jitsu artists, goes against popular Tommy Martindale in a 45-minute two-out-of-three fall semifinal and Benny Tuddell and Johnny Pavich tangle in a 20-minute, one fall opener.

The bouts will start at 8:15 and will be broadcast over KPND. In the afternoon, at 4:45, the wrestlers will be interviewed from Studio A at KPND.

Marciano Kayos Buonivino In 1st. PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Rugged Rocky Marciano knocked out squat Gio Buonivino of Italy with a looping right to the jaw in 1:25 of the second round last night to run his undefeated streak to 40 bouts and 33 kayos.

Golfing Thrills: De Vicenzo's First Victory

By ROBERTO DE VICENZO As told to Frank Eck AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor My biggest thrill came in the Palm Beach Round Robin at Wykagyl (New Rochelle, N. Y.). It was my first victory in America and I beat some great golfers like Bobby Locke, Jim Ferrier, Lloyd Mangrum and Jimmy Demaret.

I'm what you call a veteran in American golf because this is my fourth trip here. But before I picked up the big $3,000 Palm Beach check the best I could do was finish second to Bob Hamilton in the New Orleans Open in 1948. I received $1,200 for that.

I'm 28 now and have been a pro since I was 14, but winning the Round Robin was my greatest thrill. I had played Wykagyl only once for practice. After that I told my caddy "never to give me a job, because sometimes I will use the driver and sometimes the 2 or 3 wood off tees."

I use dirt tees because with a wooden tee I hooked my shots and that is bad on a hilly course. On my best round, a 67, I used the driver on only the first, fifteenth and sixteenth holes.

(Roberto de Vicenzo is the Mexican, French, Dutch and Belgian champion and finished second to Bobby Locke in the British Open in 1949 and 1950. Two weeks after winning the Round Robin, de Vicenzo and Henry Ransom won the Inverness four-ball crown.) Tomorrow: Johnny Palmer

Convincing Case Against Controls

A short time ago a group of food retailers, representing the National Association of Food Chains, the National Association of Retail Grocers, and other major groups, appeared before the Senate Banking and Currency committee and presented the food distributors' case against price control. They described a record of maladministration of unsound, unequitable and unnecessary regulations which are putting retailing in a strait jacket and seriously interfering with essential service to price-conscious customers.

All of these expert witnesses asked that price controls on food and food products which are in ample supply be suspended. They emphasized the impossible task which confronts all retailers, and particularly the smaller ones, in trying to comply with OPS orders. One of the witnesses showed the committee two huge volumes, containing 525,000 words of OPS regulations, amendments, and supplements. Many are complex and confusing. All require careful study and interpretation. As the witness said, "There is no necessity for such controls — and they are totally unworkable."

The grocers are not the only ones who have petitioned this committee to suspend or change controls. Dairy farmers, poultry raisers, canners, and spokesmen for non-food groups also have appeared and taken a similar stand.

Today almost all foods and other consumer goods are in abundant supply. In some important fields production is well ahead of demand, and the retailers' problem is how to move the merchandise. Yet, in the face of this — and in the face of the fact that competition in the free market does more than anything else to hold prices down — needless controls are kept in effect and more are planned. That is control for the sake of control. That is the way totalitarian economies are created.

Another Adventure Into Wonderland

There is an amazing "Alice In Wonderland" touch about the American political scene these days—a quality that is rapidly dispelling the popular notion that government is a serious business.

The reluctance of the Senate Judiciary committee to permit Mr. Truman to appoint a member of his own cabinet is but a fragment of a fantasy of which one might say there is less in this than meets the eye.

There are so many inquiries underway in Washington that an investigation into the moral and ethical habits of Federal Judge James P. McGranery is hardly eyebrow-lifting in this Age of Accusation and Era of Acrimonious Ill-Feeling.

We wonder if there is the proper governmental economy in these probes "to the right of us" and probes "to the left of us."

Here we have McGranery being investigated to determine if he is fit to succeed J. Howard McGrath as attorney general after McGrath who is also being investigated had fired Newbold Morris who was hired as the investigator to investigate practically everybody in government and turned out to be a subject of investigation himself.

Do they use one staff of assistant investigators in these investigations or does each master prober have a staff of his own?

It all appears like a very bad stage play with the theme song an adaptation of that old lyric, "Who Takes Care of the Caretaker's Daughter While the Caretaker's Busy Taking Care?"

Of course, the script should be better with so many authors available. President Truman (by proxy through Bill Hillman), General Eisenhower, Senator Taft and Senator Kefauver are all authors of recent treatises on affairs of state. We suspect through collaboration they could whip up a more coherent plot.

However, all the authors except Mr. Truman who is planning to become an Elder Statesman are pressed for time in their current maneuvers to become occupants of the White House.

There is one advantage of the average citizen—that is, an American of voting age who is not being investigated—in all this high level hullabaloo.

It provides marvelous ammunition for an evening of political argument in this extremely political year of a presidential election.

As every rough and tumble debater is aware it is not necessary to understand things in order to argue about them. Almost all professional politicians demonstrate the validity of this principle every day and there is no reason why amateurs or dilettantes cannot follow a procedure so well outlined in the pages of the Congressional Record.

The art of political argument is like the art of missing in that you don't have to be good at it to enjoy it.

Certainly, the American citizen should get benefit out of this fantasy of government muddle—even if it is only entertainment or material for argument. The price of admission is steep enough.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOLES

Read School Civics Textbooks To Know What The Youth Will Believe

I have been commenting on and quoting from the civics textbook "American Government," endorsed by every one of the 48 State Boards of Education.

It is easy to see why we are so socialistic when one reads the civics textbooks used in so many public schools. As the Religious Conference Department of Spiritual Mobilization pointed out in its News-letter, the men who embrace the theory that government should actively intervene in a positive fashion are the ones who write our books, edit the magazine, comment upon the radio, teach the youth and hold government jobs.

If anyone can find a civics textbook that advocates a definite limited government that is endorsed by a single State Board of Education, let alone 48, I would be glad to know the name of that book. I have not been able to find any such book. I, of course, have not read all the books that are endorsed by the state boards.

We at least should try to find a book that would do the least possible harm in influencing the youth of the land to believe in a collectivist form of government. That is the least we can do in order to be the half-way fair to our children.

The Magruder textbook of course constantly emphasizes the importance of "education" by government. It contends that we must have state education in order to have better government, but it seems the more we spend on state education, the more corrupt and tyrannical our government becomes. And that is the natural result because state education cannot teach religion—cannot teach moral principles, because it is based on no moral principles.

The book makes this statement: "The success of a democracy depends upon the intelligence, education, moral stamina, and patriotism of its people. For much of this we depend upon our schools."

Notice the word "we." The majority certainly does depend on schools—but those who believe in moral principles do not depend on tax supported schools because they know that tax supported schools cannot teach moral principles.

Of course, this book advocates higher salaries for public schools. It implies that if we had higher salaries, they would get better teachers. Was there ever a better teacher than Jesus? Did He refuse to teach because He refused to be paid? He would have received in other lines of work?

The book makes this statement: "In the long run it is more economical to invest in education."

In heavy traffic I was edging past a woman driver who was trying to reverse into a parking space that was clearly too small. Suddenly her car swung out and she hit me. Flashed with exasperation, she tapped out of her window. "You could see I was going to do something stupid," she said. "Why didn't you wait to see what it was?"

Jack—My uncle had an accident with his car. The doctor said he could have him walking in a month. Friend—And did he?

Jack—Yes. When the doctor sent his bill my uncle said his car.

The guest was greeted at the door by the enthusiastic hostess. She did not notice him gazing down self-consciously at his muddy shoes as she said: "Welcome to our home."

Hostess—I'm so glad to see you. Won't you come on in?

Guest—I'd rather not. My feet are dirty.

Hostess—Oh, that doesn't matter. Just keep your shoes on and no one will notice.

Plot For Gardner

Henry Needs Help In Solving Case Of Missing Pig Hearts

By HENRY McLEMORE

Unless I can break the case myself in a day or two, I'm going to call up Ray Schindler.

Besides being a good friend of mine, Ray is generally recognized as far and away the best private detective this country has ever had, and if you don't believe me, read Rupert Hughes' "The Complete Detective," which is but a fine retelling of the crimes that Ray has solved.

The case I am trying to break appears very simple on the surface. It does not involve an international financier club floundering to death in a poker, or an atomic spy through of the Orient, Express, or a beautiful snowdrift done to death with only her vacuum smile left to identify her.

It involves two cats, and if I were Erle Stanley Gardner I would call it "The Case of the Missing Pig Hearts." The two cats are my own. They are named Bidey and Duffy. Like everyone who owns animals, and loves them, I try to give my pets a treat every once in awhile, a "treat" being a special little dish to break up the normal fare of canned food.

A couple of days ago, after telling Della Avenue where she could reach me in case I didn't show up for three years, I went to a market on Lexington Avenue and bought three pig hearts for Bidey and Duffy. I want the best pig hearts, I said as I cuffed the clerks and the customers around. Then I went home and put the hearts on a stew in a pan with water and salt in it. Then I called Paul and told him to put a tail on every pig in town to see if I got the hearts from the best ones.

Della called up and said "What's cooking?" I said, "The pig hearts."

When the hearts were done I took one out, sliced it, and gave it to Bidey and Duffy in their bowls. I put the lid back on the pot to keep them from reaching in and taking out the other two hearts. Then I lit a nomical to provide worthwhile public work than to pay unemployment compensation.

The implication is it is necessary to have long periods of unemployment, and that private industry cannot furnish employment. Of course, they do not know that public training is bringing about unemployment, and that it makes it impossible to have full employment. Public schools are making it more difficult for people to get an education in moral principles, and if we have moral principles, we will have full employment, with only seasonal unemployment.

The book of course has a lot to say about democracy, but never defines what it means by a democracy. It resorts on page 610 to the requirement of democratic institutions is a high standard of general social intelligence and morality. Democracy has recognized this fact and has fostered the growth of agencies for free public schools, free press, and freedom of speech.

But it does not explain why the juvenile delinquency has risen so rapidly in proportion as we spend more money on public education. Is it because we have had more money spent on public schools that the President arbitrarily seized the steel industry? Is it because we have been properly educated that we put people for not producing, for ploughing under cotton and killing pigs, that we have labor unions that are willing to strike and thus are willing to enslave all those people who are not producing the necessities of life?

On page 611 the book says: "Our citizenship in a democracy carries with it many privileges. It guarantees us the right to live our lives without burdensome arbitrary restrictions. We may speak our thoughts freely, worship as we please, and hold our property free from fear of confiscation or invasion."

Our property is not very free from confiscation when the President can arbitrarily take over the railroads and the steel industry.

The book all the way through tries to make the youth of the land believe that the state comes before an individual's conscience. It is always preaching that the individual must obey the law, and by law they do not mean moral law, but civil laws made by man.

The greatest benefactors of the world have been men who did not obey the civil law—men like Jesus, Socrates, Milton, William Lloyd Garrison, and Henry D. Thoreau are all men who fought for freedom and refused to obey civil law that conflicted with moral law. The book even tries to make putty out of the youth of the land. They try to teach him that he must be subservient to the state and that the state does a great deal for him. The book even contends that the state gives him social security. They eulogize the employment service, unemployment compensation, collective bargaining rights, and "social security" for old age as a few of the many ways in which the government serves its citizens.

They of course neglect to say that the government has nothing to do to serve the citizens that it does not take by force from some other citizens. And "social security" is the greatest hoax ever perpetrated on the American people. It is not security at all—it is simply a tax called security. By the time the youth is old enough to get old age assistance the dollar will be of no way little value that it will be in no way the aged salary he is entitled to. The government gets for "social security" all spent and anything the beneficiaries get will have to be taken out of the hides of their fellow citizens.

The Nation's Press

TRUMAN A SYMPTOM, NOT THE DISEASE

(The Dallas Morning News)

When he stepped aside voluntarily Saturday night, President Truman can not have thought that this was a gesture for party unity. He has turned out to be a weak choice for the job he holds, but he is not what is wrong with the Democratic party. The only charge that can be laid at his door is that he lacked either the courage or the capability to check corruption and ineptitude in his administration. The conservative wing of the party is warring on graft, waste and inefficiency as a matter of course. But the sincere effort to return to the principles of the Democratic party has a much more important basis than that. Gov. Allan Shivers, designated to head the Southern Governors' revolt (less Arkansas), made that clear Monday. This is a war for principle that can not be won by accepting some other Truman and his doctrines. So far, it is a revolt of leadership. The hope is that it will become a revolt of all our people.

Had Alexander Hamilton elected to label his Federalist party Democrats, the present Fair Dealers would have been right at home in it. Thomas Jefferson would have had to call his party something else. The best that the Truman Democrats can do today with that paradox is to contend that Jefferson's ideas of government do not fit a modern economy. The fact remains that Jefferson opposed exactly what Truman stands for: centralized power. It is rank label or a Texas Loyal Democrat to call himself either a Jeffersonian or a Jacksonian. He is an F.D.R. Democrat, a Truman Democrat, maybe a Kefauver-Stevenson-Barkley-Kerr Democrat. But he has nothing in common with any Democratic President prior to Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Democratic party, argue the old New and the new Fair Dealers, has always stood for the common man. That is quite true. It will still be true when the Democratic party reverts to its basic principles. And it is not true of either Roosevelt or Truman socialism. Most parents love their children but do not express it by stuffing them full of lollipops or committing the family budget to underwriting a gargantuan of toys. True democracy expects to maintain national solvency in the interests of men and women who work for their living. It expects to protect them in the property they have acquired and not tax them into bankruptcy to preserve a horde of officeholders.

Nothing would be more welcome to the South and to the nation than reform in the Democratic party with which it grew up. Governor Shivers speaks firmly for that. It is seen clearly that Harry Truman is only the surface symptom of a deep-seated disease that is sapping the life of the United States.

It would not be surprising if the relatively stable and conservative Venezuelan were the next to explode. Postwar inflation, based partially on our heavy purchases of petroleum since Iran's oil resources were closed to Britain and other purchasers, has begun to pinch. And Iran's nationalization of its petroleum properties may become contagious there.

Secretary Acheson is not altogether blameless in the Bolivian affair, however. While Symington was forcing down the South American price, Acheson's boycott, Acheson agreed to pay $1.8 a pound to British, Belgian and Dutch producers in Africa and Southwest Asia.

He did so without consulting the former RFC head. Although the higher figure was eventually granted to the Bolivians, the concession came too late to appease them or checkmate the Peronists.

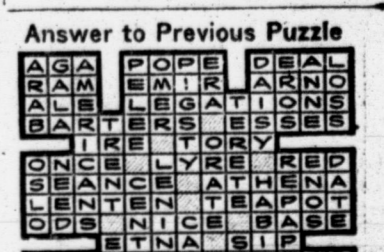

President Truman has found it almost impossible to obtain an economic mobilizer since he sided with Philip Murray, CIO president, against Charles E. Wilson in the steel wage-price dispute. Several outstanding names in industry have declined White House offers, especially in view of recent efforts to blame the former General Electric executive for the deadlock.

John H. Steelman, White House labor adviser, has been holding down the position since Wilson's resignation. Truman would like to keep him there permanently, for it would mean that the President would be running the show himself. As a career man owing his advancement wholly to the Missouriian, Steelman is simply an errand boy.

With several more resignations expected soon, it is probable that the rearmament effort will eventually be controlled by politicians and the military instead of industrialists and business executives.

The king of Libya rules from two capitals, Bengasi and Tripoli.

PAMPA NEWS, TUESDAY, APRIL 22, 1952 Page 7

Johnnie Douglas And Ray Thompson To Wed June 15 In Shamrock Church

The engagement and approach of Miss Johnnie Douglas and Ray Thompson, both of Pampa, was announced at a recent coffee given in Shamrock in the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mayor and Mrs. R. F. Douglas.

Mr. Thompson is the son of B. A. and B. S. degrees from Texas State College for Women, where she was a member of the Adelphi club and Beta Beta Beta, national honorary fraternity.

Guests were presented miniature wedding invitations which revealed the June 15 wedding date, Misses Alice Ann and Linda Sue Douglas, both of Sunray, nieces of Miss Douglas, presided at the register.

Piano Auditions Are Conducted Here In Methodist Church

Piano auditions for some 100 piano students of the area were conducted Monday in the First Methodist church when Mrs. Lilla Gray Mallard Parker, Atlanta, Ga., served as a judge for the National Guild of Piano Teachers.

Local members of the Guild include Mrs. H. A. Yoder, Mrs. Ernestine Holmes Scott, Mrs. W. H. Fuller, and Mrs. Willie Boyett of McLean.

Pampa is one of the 375 centers in the United States and Cuba offering the piano auditions. About 175 well-known, qualified judges were selected by the Guild to serve as adjudicators.

Thirty-two points are being considered by the judges including such things as accuracy, rhythm, tone-quality, phrasing, and pedaling. From two to 20 numbers were played by the local students.

Auditions here were being conducted privately and achievement awards were to be presented.

Did you know that is from the Bible? Leviticus 25:10

in carrying out the purpose of League of Women Voters to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government, our members work hard for an understanding of the structure of government at its levels... local, state and national. We urge every eligible citizen to vote, and we offer to public information on voting procedures. We publish facts out candidates for public office, using as our yardstick their ability, their educational and background, and their opinions on governmental problems.

Some people can stay longer an hour than others can in week.

—William Dean Howells

The success of representative government depends upon the individual citizen, on what he does or doesn't do, on decisions he makes or fails to make. The League of Women Voters alerts citizen to the fact that politics is his job, and shows the citizen how he can be effective politically.

League Landmarks
The League was founded in 1909 by leaders of the suffrage movement, under Carrie Chapman Catt, as a "living memorial" to the women who helped win the vote.

After a congressman has served a term he should be made to pack home and try to make living under the laws he has passed.

—Josef S. Chevalier

2. What building houses the original documents of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States?
3. What was the first outside territory of the United States?
4. How many amendments to the Constitution have been made since it was adopted in 1789?
5. Equal voting rights for men and women have prevailed in the United States since when? 1775, 1800, 1920

League members realize that they cannot solve all problems, or this reason they concentrate on obtaining and disseminating information to the community. The League does nothing outside the field of government.
