Oil Strike Hinges On Wage Talks

DENVER — (AP) — A strike threat of three oil workers unions, on April 30 was voiced today by union officials as negotiators fail to produce a satisfactory wage settlement.

The threat was voiced in a joint statement issued by representatives of the CIO oil workers international, AFL oil industry locals and independent unions.

The oil industry's case for wage hikes was abandoned recently by the Wage Stabilization board and referred back to the companies and unions for further bargaining.

The strike could be expected to affect the defense effort, motor transport and general industry. The statement, issued by O. A. Knight of Denver, president of the CIO union; J. J. McKenna of Whiting, Ind., representing independent unions, and O. V. Clover of East St. Louis, Ill., of the AFL unions, said:

We have delayed a national oil strike three times since March 3 at the request of the government. The original March 3 deadline was set after five months of fruitless collective bargaining.

The WSB decision to return the dispute to the parties was the first case in history sent to the board by President Truman that had received no recommendations for settlement.

Two oil companies refused to attend a "pivot" hearing in St. Louis recently, demanding the dispute. The Standard Oil Company of Indiana and Sinclair Oil and Gas did not attend the hearing, contending the method used to set it up would lead to industry-wide bargaining.

The unions are demanding a 25-cent hourly wage increase and other benefits. The companies have offered increases of about 10 cents. The average wage is estimated at $2.10 an hour.

Elephant Learns About Civilization

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — Sir Anton, believed to be the only Anatolian sea elephant in captivity, is finding out what humans have to endure in civilization.

Since he was captured in his native habitat and stowed on the Danish scientific ship, Gatahea, Sir Anton has been fighting one affliction after another. Penicillin cured him of pneumonia, a switch in diet and a job of castor oil corrected an attack of acute indigestion.

But nothing could fix his claustrophobia. He doesn't like crates, simply pines away in them. So the Copenhagen zoo, to which he is assigned, decreed that he should desert ship and hop a plane for the Danish capital.

He's winging his way there today. With him is a veterinarian who has instructions to spray the 200-pound mammoth at regular intervals with water. The zoo doesn't want to risk losing its valuable animal. When fully grown the six-month-old pup will weigh 8,000 pounds, and won't those Swedish zoos be envious!

Oil Well Blows Top, Runs Wild

ELMOORE CITY, Okla. (AP) — A high gravity oil well, the Hensley No. 1 of the Anslow Oil Co., a mile west of Katie, blew its top yesterday and spinkled the countryside with gas, oil and mud.

The well ran wild for about an hour and a half before it was shut off at the master valves. Ralph Sathester, of Sathester, Towland and Reeves, said his workers were making a trip for the drill pipe when the hard sand in the hole broke into the casing.

"It was a pretty nasty mess all around the area," he said. His crewmen worked feverishly to plug the hole because of the fire hazard.

Wheat Prospects Still Dim As Showers Fall Over Area

A squall line sent thundershowers and rain over Pampa and the Texas Panhandle today. It brought .36 of an inch rain to the city by 11 a. m.

Though the rain was welcomed by wheat farmers, the prospects for area wheat continued to be dim.

Marvin Webster, wheat farmer and adjuster for the county wheat crop insurance program, said the wheat looked "very poor" prior to the rain.

He said he did not know whether the rain would stop insects which "are sucking the life out of the plants."

"A day of sunshine would dry out the moisture we are receiving today," Webster said.

In some county spots in the east and south there are good fields of wheat with little or no loss, Webster said.

Missouri Flood Crest To Hit Omaha Tonight

5 Midwest Rivers Burst At Seams

OMAHA — (AP) — There was watchful waiting on still-rising waters and speed in the rehabilitation job in the flood ravaged Midwest today as the forces of nature surged southward to spread more misery.

The Missouri, the Mississippi, the Milk in Montana, the Red River of the North in Minnesota and the Minnesota river all have hit with punishing blows and have a lot left to deal out.

At least two persons had died in the floods.

The Mississippi crested at St. Paul yesterday at 22.2 feet. Early today army engineers said it appeared to be falling slightly.

The misery dealing Missouri, having sent thousands of families fleeing for high ground in one of its worst rampages was heating at the metropolitan Omaha-Council Bluffs area, the biggest segment of humanity it has had a chance to hit in this outpouring of wrath. A record crest of 31.5 feet is due tonight.

It was a vivid fright with uncertainty that the huge force of Army engineers who built the walls and dikes, soldiers and civilians who raised them much beyond the original height, were keeping. There was nothing they could do but wait one of the hardest jobs there is.

They had built those walls and levees originally to stand a 26.6 foot crest of the river, a couple of feet over the best the wide stream had ever recorded before.

But the Missouri had a punch they hadn't reckoned on — the predicted 31.5 foot wall. Today it was up over 28 feet.

As it tore down the valley, dealing out mud and misery, the river built up this punch and gave out the challenge. There was a quick answer in men and machines—the building up of the walls and levees and the evacuation of everybody in the vicinity area that might be affected.

High on the hills of the two cities, most of the close to 40,000 persons evacuated waited for the answer.

Hesitated. And not far north of the area, the Missouri hesitated for a spell. As it to gather its strength, the Missouri slowed its downstream march and weathermen set the arrival of the crest back from this morning to tonight. This led to increasing dike pressure. But the river wasn't idle. It flanked its movement, overflowing rich farm areas on either side, both north and south of the two-city area.

So the forces of man and the forces of nature appeared to be sizing each other up. The rivermen were fairly confident they had the Missouri licked in this city area, and that downstream the government constructed walls and levees would hold.

But actually, the Missouri, aided and abetted by the Mississippi, the Milk in Montana and the Red River of the North in Minnesota, has already put in the history books the story of one of the greatest flood disasters of record.

The Red Cross estimates that in the flooded areas of the four (See MISSOURI Page 2)

Boy Scouts To Set Up Spring Camp

Santa Fe district Boy Scouts will set up camp for their spring Camporee Friday night at the H. L. Ledricks ranch 25 miles north of Pampa on Chicken creek.

Dr. J. C. Chase, Camporee chairman, said the week-end camp is designed to aid the Scouts in their advancements.

Instruction in second class compass orientation will be taught the first night. A flashlight race and round race will follow.

Opportunity for advancements will be given Saturday, in cooking, nature, first aid and hiking. Clifton C. Kelly of White Deer, chairman of the advancement committee, and other members will hold a board of review Saturday afternoon. Around the campfire in the evening, awards will be presented.

After rising at 6:30 a. m. Sunday the Scouts will eat breakfast, hold a religious service and return to their homes.

U.S. Aircraft Production Behind Reds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the House armed services committee said today "the Soviet is outproducing us in planes by three or four to one" and demanded an investigation.

In a joint statement, Representatives Norblad (R-Ore) and Nease (R-Me) suggested that the House Armed Services committee inquire into "the extreme lag in combat aircraft production."

"We don't pretend to know just wherein the fault lies," they said, "but certainly something is wrong with a system whereby the Soviet is out-producing us in planes three or four to one. Claims have been made that the Joint Chiefs of Staff have erred in their future scheduling; that there has been a lack of appropriated funds; that factory production schedules are lax; that strikes have hampered essential component parts; that there are material shortages and a half dozen other reasons.

Under the insurance program, farmers are paid $2.18 a bushel. Production is figured at 2.4 bushels an acre if the farmer puts in another crop before the harvest date. If the farmer does not put in another crop, production is placed at 4.2 bushels an acre.

Price was set by the department of agriculture, with the Jan. 15 parity as a basis.

The federal government underwrites the insurance program — in its first year in Gray county until the county can carry itself through premium receipts.

Continued mild weather was expected today and Friday with widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers in all parts of the state except East Texas.

Sawyer May Grant Steel Workers Wage Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philip Murray's CIO steelworkers were reported growing restive today under pay scales put into effect 17 months ago and the government was believed about ready to give them a raise.

How much and how soon were questions Secretary of Commerce Sawyer was not answering. Sawyer, boss of the seized industry, had a tentative date today with Murray and Benjamin Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corp. Sawyer met separately with the two men yesterday — presumably to lay the groundwork for a government-imposed wage boost.

City Hit By Power Cut - Off

Pampa was without electricity for 11 minutes today, from 7:55 to 8:06 a. m., when a defective insulator on the transmission line of the southwestern Public Service Co. caused a power failure.

Toast turned cold in the toasters, men with electric shavers went half-shaved and breakfasters finished their meal in semi-darkness.

Joe Key, district manager of the utility company, said the entire city was affected. He indicated the insulator may have been defective for some time but that today's moisture allowed the electricity to arc.

It was the first power failure in the city for nine months, Key said.

Kefauver Gets Demo Nod By Sen. Douglas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.) today threw his support behind Estes Kefauver of Tennessee as "the best available candidate of our party" for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Douglas' announcement came just 24 hours after Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois declared he could not accept top place on the Democratic ticket. Douglas had been supporting Stevenson.

At a news conference, Douglas also repeated what he has said before — that he would not accept the party nomination for President.

"I am in Kefauver's army," Douglas said, "I am enlisted for the duration."

The Illinois Senator said he believes Kefauver has a very good chance to be nominated.

Sergeant Gets First Korean War Service Ribbon

TOKYO (AP) — The Army said today it has started distribution of the United Nations Service Ribbon to veterans of the Korean War.

Sgt. Kenneth W. Boehm, 22, National Guardsman of Emmaus, Pa., got the first one as he passed through a rotation depot in Japan enroute home.

The new ribbon is striped in the blue and white of the UN flag. It was authorized by the UN general assembly in December.

Seniors To Give Play Tonight

Curtain time is 8 o'clock tonight for the senior class production of "Mr. Barry's Etchings."

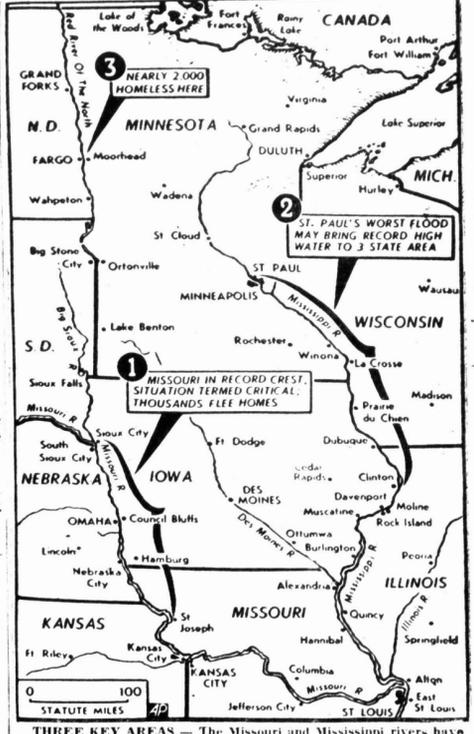

Another performance will be held Friday night.

Though the play is about bogus $50 bills, there is, very little to beget to the comedy situation created by Reuel Casey in the title role. Wednesday night's final dress rehearsal indicated three acts of laugh.

The play also has its serious moments and love interests.

"EARLY DELICIOUS" — This was the crazy comment DeWey Cudney, in the role of Tom Crosby, made after the embrace with Betty Kiff Isaacs. Betty plays the part of Evelyn who takes Tom to see her apple orchard. They are a romantic pair in the senior class production, "Mr. Barry's Etchings," played tonight and Friday.

Borger Teen-Agers Face Court Charge

Six Borger teen-agers, held in limited to run between $300 and the Saturday night destruction of $400 by D. P. Kilgore, concessions furnished in a Lake McClellan automobile at the lake. Furnishing cabin, were brought to Pampa and heading were destroyed and to face juvenile Judge Bruce Parker 33 pages in the door and window.

The group, officers said, is made up of four boys and two girls, all of them now in custody of the Gray county sheriff's office.

Walter J. Caserta, soil conservation agent, reported that the Bybee, 17, had been officially charged by 10:30 a. m. today. Damage to the cabin was estimated.

However, officers added that the youths gave "incoherent" accounts concerning reasons for breaking up the furnishings. By mid-morning officers had not learned whether the damage was caused through a fight or just willful destruction of property.

The group was to be heard sometime this afternoon in juvenile court in the county court room on their way to the state reformatory at Gearyville this afternoon following a hearing before Juvenile Court Judge Bruce Parker.

The boys, both previous offenders, went on a one-night burglary spree Saturday in three Panhandle counties that started in Borger and ended in Pampa.

Using one of the boys' parent's car, the law broke into service stations, feed stores and other business establishments in Borger, Phillips, Panhandle, White Deer, and Pampa. Their total loot amounted to less than $5 in cash and several cans of oil from a White Deer service station. In the Phillips feed store, a break-in at Pampa, the boys were unable to find any money in the store cash box.

They were held in the county jail over the week-end until their hearing. Juvenile Officer H. A. Doughty took the boys to Gearyville.

Rep. Bentsen Sees Shivers About State Senate Race

AUSTIN (AP) — Speculation over Allan Shivers' role in the Senate matter reached fever heat here today following Rep. Lloyd M. Bentsen's conference with the governor last night.

Bentsen said Baily he came to Austin to find out whether or not his old friend Shivers was going to get in the race following "Tom Connally's withdrawal."

The Governor said Bentsen he was not, that he had no intention of running for the Senate, that he was running for governor.

Bentsen, in an interview with the Associated Press, said that he has not made up his mind to run, but that he is very much interested.

Bentsen went to the mansion for his talk with the governor after dinner. It was not what might be called a secret conference, but neither the governor nor the congressman made any special effort to publicize it.

Bentsen reportedly saw a number of top political leaders here. There was talk he planned also to see Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) who is somewhere in this vicinity.

The support of either of both Gov. Shivers and Sen. Johnson would be a great help to anyone seeking to bring Attorney General Price Daniel in the Senate race. Political professionals believe it would be an uphill fight for anyone getting into the senate race at this late stage.

Jane Froman, Pilot-Husband Return Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Capt. John C. Burn, the airline pilot who twice escaped tragic airplane crashes, came home last night with his attractive wife, Singer Jane Froman.

All Burn had to say was that he was "just glad to be home." He didn't want to talk about last week's crash of his plane into the ocean off Puerto Rico. Fifty-two persons were killed in the accident. Burn was one of 17 survivors.

During the war, Burn was the co-pilot of a plane that crashed into the sea at Lisbon, Portugal. Miss Froman was a passenger on that plane.

Burn rescued her from the water. The singer was crippled by the crash — but recovered and later married Burn.

Dixie Navy Reprimanded; Yankees Rule

ROME (AP) - Four United States destroyers admitted today the Dixie division because their commanding officers all were from the South.

The four ships - Destroyers Haman, Purdy, Beatty and Bristol - were known as the Dixie division because their commanding officers all were from the South.

When they sailed from Hong Kong enroute home recently, the Bristol hoisted the Confederate flag. Quite a flap in Washington followed.

"We made a mistake, violated Navy regulations and quite properly were called on it," the division commander, Capt. William Government of Newport, R.I., said here today.

The four ships are now in Naples. Government and many crew members are sightseeing in Rome.

Government blamed an over-zealous public relations officer for the Bristol's hoisting of anything but the Stars and Stripes.

"Navy regulations directly forbid flying any other flag except that of the United States," he explained. "We were wrong and a stop was put to it after that one time."

"It's a very sensitive subject," he continued. "I can't discuss it further since the correspondence was classified 'restricted.'"

"In military parlance, 'restricted' is the lowest form of information which must not be communicated to unauthorized personnel."

Capt. Robert E. Lee surrendered his Confederate forces in 1865.

Actually, those Confederate flags were sort of false colors anyway. The four ships were from the South and the flags were their personal property.

But most of their crewmen were from New England.

Young 'Sheriffs' Arrest Three

BELLE FOURCHE, S.D. (AP) - Two high school boys who served as "sheriffs" during American Legion Government day got a taste of the real thing.

Marvin Fenton and Dan West were given a deputy sheriff's car and a "pickup" order for three faulty residents. The two youths made the arrests.

When they returned to the county jail with the trio, they were surprised to learn their "prisoners" were actually wanted. They were accused of failing to pay a cafe bill.

MINOT, N.D. (AP) - Pete Mastel, a shortwave radio fan, was mentioned over Radio Moscow recently.

Mastel wrote Radio Moscow asking for a complete list of frequencies and times for English-language broadcasts. He also requested information about a giant bell in the Kremlin.

Mastel's father had visited Moscow before World War I and described the bell as large enough to "drive a team of horses in through a crack in the side, turn around and come out again."

Dr. Logan's Wife

By Louise Gair

PETER lunged toward the desk and in the instant that Cota sprang back against the wall, Peter felt his outstretched arm hinged firmly against Pelletier's chest.

Braked less by Pelletier's restraining weight than by the sheer comfort of contact, Peter relaxed slightly. "You are a faker, Cota," he said, letting his arm drop.

"You haven't got a thing on me and you know it. Exactly what should I come clean about? Come on, say it, Dr. Pelletier's a big man, he can take it. And frankly, I'm curious, too."

Cota shrugged. "Surely you don't need me to tell you about yourself," he said with a confidence that shook both men. "Matter of fact, I don't think the FBI needed my assistance either. They have access to the Washington files."

"Washington files?" Peter echoed.

Cota sat down at his desk, moved a few papers, looked up. He addressed Dr. Pelletier. "I see no reason for detaining you further, Doctor. I have nothing more to say, and I have a great deal of work to do. The hospital doesn't run itself, you know. The problem of Dr. Surinoff's loyalty is in much more competent hands than my own. I am not responsible for his past nor am I interested in his future. Good day, please, gentlemen."

Peter's lips clamped like a spring trap. He felt Walter's glance and met it, expecting to find there commiseration at the rudeness of the dismissal. Instead, he saw worried questioning. He turned and walked out of the office.

He heard Walter's hurrying steps behind him in the hall, felt

Walter's fingers tight on his arm. "Peter, is there something you should have told me before?" He shook his head dispiritedly. "I don't know, Walter."

"Come to the office for a minute. We can talk there."

PETER followed Dr. Pelletier through the back entrance into the consultation room. He sank into a chair, absently flexed his fingers, made a fist, scrubbed the knuckles that had been held back from the superintendent's person.

The morning's expenditure of emotion had bought him nothing but a soggy sense of defeat. He said, "I suppose you have to be innocent to feel this guilty. It might even be safer to be guilty—at least you'd know when to throw your guard up."

Walter lit a cigarette, sat swiveling in the desk chair.

"What could he mean?" Peter went on, frowning. "The Civil Liberties Union? That's not on the subversive list. The N.A.A.C.P.—that's still okay as far as I know. Washington files, the man says. When I was in college I remember I sent $25 which was my entire bank account at the time to some Spanish Loyalist outfit. Maybe that puts me in the drawer marked 'premature anti-Fascist.' Do you suppose Cota could have tracked me that far back?"

Walter smiled then. "If it's that vague, then forget it. Cota had me worried there for a while. Listen, even if there's some organization you joined that's now verboten, they may discount it. Same thing happened to me. I had to be cleared on this thing, too, you know. I'd have sworn they could find my past and not come up with so much as a flake of dandruff. Then one night—funny how you begin to remember things—that clearance period is nerve-cracking—well, one night Stella tells me she remembers she sent a check in 1946 to some organization—Friends of the U.S.S.R. or some such name. She thought it was for Russian children's relief, but we looked it up on the attorney general's list, and there it is—a subversive outfit, a front. Can you imagine that? I tossed plenty, don't think I didn't. But if they did track it down my record must have outweighed it."

"It's a joke," Peter said, snorting. "The country is screaming for scientists but it won't let them in the laboratories to work. We're the most valued and most distrusted men in the country today. How can the government expect young men of intelligence and integrity to come into a profession where they're treated like criminals. You're not even granted a criminal's right of self-defense."

THE door opened a few inches and the secretary talked through the aperture. "Dr. Pelletier, the patients are standing all the way into the hall. Will you be free to see them soon?"

"Right away, my dear. Right away. I'll buzz you."

Peter got up. "I'm sorry, Walter."

"If he's trying to frame you, I'll tell you right now he won't get away with it."

Peter made no answer.

Walter stood up, put out his hand. "Keep me posted Peter."

"Yup."

And then, loath to let Peter go, Pelletier followed him through the back door, flung his arm across his slouched shoulders. "Peter, you're young and you're angry. I'm too old to be an angry man. But I beg you to sit tight for a while. As long as your conscience is clear, I'm not worried. Sit tight. The stakes are worth it. You may have the recipe for the antidote to atomic bombing—remember that. You may be the one to find the security the world is looking for. Let's hope the government won't bar you from that chance. It's a paradoxical situation, but there it is."

"Sure, I'll sit it out," Peter said. (To Be Continued)

Teacher Panel To Be Held In Amarillo

Representatives of Pampa schools will take part in a teacher certification panel to be held in Amarillo High School, April 28, it was announced yesterday.

Scheduled to attend the discussion are Superintendent Knox Kinard, Jack Edmondson, high school principal; and Mrs. Alta Lane of the junior high teaching staff.

The meeting, open to the public, is designed to give teachers and school administrators an opportunity to voice their opinions in raising teacher requirements in Texas. Similar meetings for school personnel will also be held later in other sections of the state.

The forums, now in their second year, are being sponsored jointly by Texas Council on Teacher Education, Texas Vocational Assn., Texas Education Agency, and Texas State Teachers Assn.

Walter stood up, put out his hand. "Keep me posted Peter."

"Yup."

And then, loath to let Peter go, Pelletier followed him through the back door, flung his arm across his slouched shoulders. "Peter, you're young and you're angry. I'm too old to be an angry man. More Rice Needed

SINGAPORE (AP) - The people of Asia have been warned that they face starvation unless they grow more rice at once.

The director general of the U. N. food and agriculture organization, Norris E. Dodd, who issued the warning, suggested two solutions: "Increase your production of rice, or cut down the number of people eating rice."

Dodd said FAO, since its inception, had taken steps to increase the rice production in this part of the world. It had boosted production by nine per cent, but meantime the population of rice-eating Asian countries had climbed 12 per cent.

so it was watch and wait, the patrol night and day, in the mid-west.

And while this war of attrition went on, there were two demands for speed. Speed that brought President Truman, Senators, Congressmen and Governors hurtling into Omaha to talk about the needs for stopping these rampages in the future and need for aiding those whose homes, in the cities or whose farms are already, or are to be, scenes of misery.

Rust Preventative Recently Perfected

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A new device has been perfected to help protect packaged military equipment from rust and corrosion while in storage.

A small, highly-sensitive humidity indicator is sealed inside the packages. The indicator has an outside connection. The moisture-content inside is determined by plugging in a small portable electron meter which activates a gauge.

Heretofore, a spokesman for the

There's One Way To Play A Hand

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Any sensible reader of this column will make six spades with the hand shown today. All you can lose is one club trick.

What about the hearts? Well, anybody who has normal eyesight can see that the queen of hearts is doubleton in the East hand. My readers are in the position of kibitzers, and the first rule of the kibitzer is "Never finesse when the queen is doubleton."

When this hand was actually played, however, the declarer did not have the advantage of seeing the cards held by the defenders. The South player happened to be Charlie Solomon, of Philadelphia, one of the country's great bridge stars.

Charlie proceeded to demonstrate that he can do as well with his eyes closed as most other players can do with their eyes wide open.

Charlie won the first trick with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the ace and it almost proved fatal for them. Having demolished the West, except for Britain, Hitler was then free to break the pact and take on Russia.

After the war Moscow saw rear. Stalin rescued him from some unprotected plums on the trees — the countries of Eastern Europe — which it was able to snatch with the help of local Communists and Moscow pressure.

But the main prize was Western Europe. It was broken. It could be a pushover with the help of a little economic chaos and the local Communists. Moscow braintruster the expected collapse.

Upset Tragedy

The U. S. upset the strategy with the Marshall plan, the Atlantic pact, and the re-arming of Western Europe. This produced a situation which the Soviet leadership apparently didn't anticipate at all.

They had taken control of Eastern Germany after the war, thus splitting the country in two. The Western allies occupied Western Germany. Russia resisted all efforts to let the two parts unite.

Worse Danger

But the Communists made an historic miscalculation in helping Hitler come to power. And their later non-aggression pact with him and their recent proposal to let a united Germany re-arm were acts of desperation.

In the early 1930's the Communists in Germany considered the Social Democrats a worse danger than Hitler. They helped him take control, thinking he wouldn't last long and then they'd move in.

Konrad Heiden in his book, "Der Fuehrer," shows this was the Moscow plan by quoting from a note by Stalin: "It is more advantageous for us that the Fascists (in Germany) should strike first; that will rally the whole working class to the Communists."

Hitler crossed them up. He not only stayed and rallied the German to him but practically wiped out the Communists. In 1939 he himself sandwiched between Russia in the east and the Democracies in the West, both of whom he wanted to attack but not both at once.

Dilemma

If he moved against one, the other might jump him from the this dilemma by signing a non-aggression pact with him, a desperate Soviet effort to escape destruction.

Main Prize

This deal with Fascism by the Russians, who had spent their adult years denouncing it, disillusioned a lot of American fellow-travelers and Communists who got off the Red bandwagon. While the pact did give the Russians time to re-arm a bit,

BEST AVAILABLE COPY

And, so long as Germany remained divided and unarmed, Russia could feel fairly safe. In the meantime it could exploit the Eastern Germans.

But the rearming allies, tired of Gussian obstruction, first let the Western Germans have their own government and then took the next step: They invited West Germany to provide troops for the Atlantic Pact army.

Half an Army

This was quite different from letting Germany rearm, for the troops it produced would not be part of a German army but part of the Western European army. Without German participation that Western army would be half an army.

That much was obvious to the Russians. If they could keep the Germans out of the Western Army they could well near wreck it. So they tried. They suggested Germany be allowed to unite and rearm, this was bait for all Germans to split them from the West.

Perhaps Moscow figured a united Germany, split away from the West, could be kept from re-arming by Russian pressure and the work of German Communists. Such figuring could be only a wish.

King of diamonds, and led the six of clubs from his hand. If West had carelessly played the nine of clubs, East would have been forced to win with the ten; and then any return from West would give declarer the slam.

West saw the trap in time, so he stepped up with the jack of clubs, winning the trick. He then exited safely by leading the deuce of hearts through dummy. Solomon won the trick with dummy's king of hearts and ruffed a club in his hand. East naturally discarded a diamond, so Charlie knew where the rest of the clubs were.

Oklahoma Osage Indians Happy With Rich Oil Lands

PAWHUSKA, Okla. (AP) — He estimates oil known to underlie Oklahoma's Osage Indians want the federal government to keep its hand on the rich oil business that once made them the world's wealthiest people per capita.

Their leaders have asked Congress to exclude the tribe from a resolution sponsored by Rep. Basore (D-Utah) to restore to various Indian nations the management of their own affairs.

In the case of the Osages, such a step would mean an end to Indian bureau supervision of their multi-million dollar oil and gas lease and royalty holdings.

The tribe, whose wealth has been shared among its members nearly half a century, probably would have to form a corporation rivaling in size some major oil companies.

And this, the tribal council fears, would expose their interests to graft and mismanagement.

Councilman George Labadie Sr. emphasizes his people are not fighting the resolution, they merely want to be left out of it. He points out the osages have paid the expense of their own tribal agency many years, and he declares administration of their affairs hasn't cost taxpayers anything.

Furthermore, Labadie contends Congress did not give the tribe its vast wealth. It was purchased, he says, and Congress has extended three times the tribe's common ownership of the minerals. The last extension expires in 1983.

"We will not be able to get all the oil and gas out of the ground by that time," Labadie adds.

"The old school is going from bad to worse, J. D.! First they tolerate communism and now they're de-emphasizing football!"

Old Sailor Establishes Aviary Haven

VANCOUVER, B. C. — (AP) — Jack Esworthy is an old sailor who spends his days feeding the birds. At night he works in a steel foundry to make more money to feed more birds.

For recreation he often sits in his living room under a scale model of his old ship, the Schooner Laura Whalen, and plays bird calls on his record player.

Aviaries now cover almost the whole acre of the Esworthy property here. The bird count is in the hundreds. It's impossible, he says, to keep an exact count.

More are on their way here from Australia, gobbling up 15 worth of tanked-oxygen-as they are flown.

Tropical birds have expensive tastes. Last year they ate $1,375 worth of food, which is more than Mr. and Mrs. Esworthy and their son, Michael, ate.

Occasionally they sell some of the rare tropical types to zoos or to other bird fanciers. But they'd rather not.

There are green Cardinals from Port, worth 300 a pair; Bengali finches who mix three or four families in the same nest; and a golden breasted Waxbill from Central Africa that isn't much bigger than the first knobby joint of Esworthy's thumb.

It being Spring, the contrary Australian birds have quit nesting. They still nest by the Australian seasons.

Uncle Larry Wages War On Loneliness

By GRAHAM BERRY (For Hal Boyle)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — (AP) — Convinced that "if enough people knew each other, war would be impossible," Uncle Larry Perkins is conducting a campaign against what he considers the world's worst sin — loneliness.

He is attacking it where it is apt to be strongest — on the battlefield and in rooms where sick people lie.

He does it chiefly by writing letters — thousands of them — and by inducing thousands of other persons to write to each other. He has 200 "relay" agents in the United Nations armed forces to help him distribute the mail.

Uncle Larry also stages vaudeville and variety shows at veterans' hospitals. He's an ex-vaudevillian and although he's 49 and his gray fringe looks a little sorry on top, he still can dance and roller skate on his hands.

Another project is his "cookie relay." He claims he's persuaded high school domestic science classes in every state in the union to make Easter cookies and send them to the UN forces in Korea and Japan.

Letters from shut-ins and the blind are given special attention. He introduces blind persons, via letters, to blind service men at Wadsworth Veterans hospital near here.

Perkins also entertains GIs at his modest bachelor's home; it is bulging with such items as 400 pairs of riding and cowboy boots, beautiful leather cowboy costumes which he designed himself, civilian clothes, uniforms, bobsleds, skis, mineral and stamp collections — and everywhere bundles of letters.

Although he's a bachelor and lives alone, Uncle Larry says he has found the cure for loneliness. It's simple, he says: Just try to help other people from feeling that way.

People Have A Fighting Chance

From today until the steel problem between management and labor is finally settled, there will be millions of words used to argue both sides of the question—and little chance that the real issues will be confronted by either side.

Certainly the seizure of the mills by Harry S. Truman will not settle the issue but only add to the confusion.

Unless the settlement desired is the complete nationalization of the steel industry as the start of nationalization of all our basic industries.

It appears likely that the entire discussion will bog down into a welter of figures over whether the "steel industry" can "afford" a wage increase or whether the "steel workers" are "entitled to" a wage increase.

It should be remembered that in all the discussion there is no such thing as "the steel industry" but that there are individual companies operating as individual concerns which make up the "industry." What may apply to one company may not necessarily apply to another.

And the seizure of the government of all the individual plants will not settle anything.

In the first place, should "the government" decide that the workers are not to get all of the demands they have made through the union there is no way that "the government" can force the workers to produce steel. By the same token there is no way that the government can force the owners of the steel companies to stay in business. Should such an issue be enjoined, then Harry Truman will find that "the government" will have to take the property of private citizens, many of whom are employees of the steel companies, as a government enterprise. Once such a step is taken, there is no way that Truman can avoid increasing government control over the lives of the people until we have a completely totalitarian system of government ruling us.

The only real assistance that may come to the American people as a result of the seizure of the mills under the "emergency" powers of the President will be to bring all such powers before a court of law. Here there is only a fighting chance that the courts will hold that the President is not entitled to such powers for the federal courts of the land are now in the hands of men who have been given their judicial powers by the existing administration and that of the previous administration. But such court procedure has the possibility of sufficiently airing the entire question that the public may become sufficiently informed that something will be done about the executive powers that have been turned over to the politicians.

The unemployed are getting raises, too. Twenty-four states have increased unemployment compensation benefits in the last fifteen months, while legislation for increases is pending in five other state legislatures, according to Commerce Clearing House.

These raises run from $32 to $280 for the maximum periods and include increases in the amount of weekly benefits and in the number of weeks in a year for which compensation is allowed.

Wisconsin continues to pay the highest benefits. Unemployed there may collect $30 a week for as long as 26 1/2 weeks, a total of $795. Earlier benefits totaled $689.

North Carolina granted the greatest increase, according to the CCH compilation. Its unemployed can collect a maximum of $30 a week for 26 weeks for a total of $780, up $280 from the former maximum.

Other states which granted important increases are: Idaho, up $250 to $650; Utah, up $215 to $715; Missouri and New Mexico, up $200 to $600; Pennsylvania, up $180 to $780; New Hampshire, up $153 to $728; Washington, up $130 to $780; New York, up $104 to $780; Kentucky, up $152 to $728, and Illinois, up $52 to $702.

New York and Michigan have bills pending for increases in addition to those recently granted, while proposals for higher payments are being asked in Massachusetts, Mississippi and New Jersey.

In addition to these higher state payments are before Congress proposals for federal aid when requested by states where unemployment due to a national emergency has become substantial.

Some of these proposals supplementary federal payments equal to an additional 50 per cent of whatever is paid by the state, but not to exceed 65 per cent of the beneficiary's wages.

In the nine states which provide additional benefits for dependents, the federal aid would be 50 per cent of the total state grant, but limited to 67 1/2 per cent of wages if there is one dependent, up to 75 per cent if there are four or more.

States where these dependent provisions would apply are Arizona, Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, North Dakota, Ohio and Wyoming.

We just thought you would like to know these facts the next time you consider your pay check and what it actually buys.

Read The Civic Textbooks To Know What Will Happen In The Future

I want to comment further on Magruder's "American Government" which is used in 65 per cent of the high schools in the United States. It is used in most of the counties in which Freedom Newspapers circulate.

As I said in my former article, if you want to know what is going to happen to the posterity of your country, read the civic textbooks in the public schools.

The textbook "American Government" is issued anew each year. It makes a wonderful racket for the publishers and of course is very expensive for everyone. It is fooling all who think children can get an education from this kind of a book.

In the 1951 edition of "American Government" we are teaching the children in public schools that: "It is more just to place all the burden of supporting those who have been unfortunate or even shiftless upon everybody instead of on some dutiful son or daughter who are not responsible for the condition."

What the writers of this textbook do not seem to understand is that the youth of this land were supported by their parents when they were not able to support themselves and it is only just and moral that the sons and daughters support their parents when they are unable to support themselves.

When the sons and daughters support the parents, then the parents can do some useful work which they do not require public assistance as when they think their votes will compel some stranger to support them.

There's a tubby little man around town these nights. His suits don't fit, he wears a weary grin, and he looks like a man who has been through a lot of things.

He is a Southern drawl from the top of the trees. But he can write like a whiz, and he is a play of sheer theater magic.

When New Orleans will be as proud of Truman Capote's typewriter work as it is of Lillian Hellman's.

This is a bizarre young man, a strange one who has a habit of carting around a vast amount of papers in manila packages and leaving the packages wherever he happens to light. If hat-check girls didn't constantly remind him to pick up his papers, I am certain that half of the better check stands in New York would be knee-deep in Capote bundles.

I would think that Capote has come at fame the hard way. I don't know anything about the man, but I am sure he may have come from a plantation home sky-high in vigorous magnolia trees or from an unpainted old house out at the end of town.

There was a time when Capote's own quaintness militated against his work. He had a habit of throwing himself into a languid pose whenever a photographer showed up with some film in the camera and he stumped his own book publisher a few months ago appearing with a suitcase containing six velvet coats with black collars, all the result of a visit to Italy and a wish to dress like a character in "La Boheme."

These coats were in six different colors and he wanted to wear them all. He also exhibited his disdain for the crew-cut set by wearing his hair in crisp bangs, but you can't shair a man for that. After all, there was a great editor named Van Doren who wore bangs and they seem to have been a popular thing.

There are a number of figures who have found them helpful. In what way, I don't know, but they seemed to think they had a function in life and maybe they did.

The other off-beat accountment used by Capote is a pair of midsize eyeglasses. The lenses of these are truly about the size of a dime and how he sees through them I don't know. But he hasn't walked off a building while wearing them, so I assume he can see through them. And it's an unusual world he sees. He sees a world in which the gentile manners and wit of individuality have importance.

If you take "The Grass Harp," as a signpost, you can be certain that Capote sees the gentile people of the world as the valuable ones. The grasping, the mean, the successful and truculent are all villains in his book. He has a nice sympathy for the slightly daff but winning souls, the kind of touched but charming people whom the Latin habitually treat with such concern and courtesy, believing them the true, chosen children of God. The Latins believe that God will note one's attitude toward them and reward those who are tender with them. Capote, I think, feels much the same way. In previous works he had given clues to this point of view, but it seems now that he is strong and plain. His tenderness for the simple but sublime is overwhelming, and he

National Whirligig.. Industrialists See No Harm In Discussing Russian Trade

By WHITNEY BOLTON

WASHINGTON — Secretary Dan Acheson's objection to American participation in the current economic and trade conference at Moscow has been questioned by many industrialists who hate and distrust the Stalin regime as much as he does.

They note that the British and French have sent representatives to listen to the Muscovite proposals, which envisage huge purchases of finished articles from the so-called capitalist countries.

They recall the old saying, although they reverse it, that "trade follows the flag." In this instance, they think, trade may precede.

They persuaded the directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to issue a public statement against participation by American firms. Although supposedly a secret, it became known throughout the industrial and business community that he had inspired the warning.

In view of the fact that most of these corporations look upon the United States government as their best customers during the rearmament period, none failed to heed Acheson's caveat, especially as he later reinforced it in his public statements.

DELEGATE — Oddly enough, the Chamber of Commerce followed an entirely different procedure in a controversy of similar nature. This dispute involved the question of sending an employer delegate to future sessions of the International Labor Organization, a subsidiary of the United Nations.

As recently related here, this body is an extremely radical group. Inspired by representatives from socialistic or communistic member nations, it frequently adopts recommendations hostile to our economic system. The labor and government delegates from the United States invariably support these ideas.

The employer delegate, Charles P. McCormick of the famous splicing corporation, has fought these ILO agreements. In fact, he was so disgusted with the proceedings that he recently wrote a denunciatory magazine article. He assailed the labor-government emissaries to the ILO's Geneva conference for their sympathy toward "European socialism."

DISAPPOINTED — In view of Mr. McCormick's criticism, and since he was then a member of the chamber's board of directors, he was asked to appear before that body after the 1951 session at Geneva. He was counted on to supply data to support the demand of several directors that the C. of C. refuse to comply with the government's annual request that it name an emissary to ILO meetings.

McCormick disappointed them, advancing the same arguments voiced by many industrialists against administration boycott of

The Doctor Says

By R. C. HOILES

The subject of heart attack, which is usually coronary occlusion or coronary thrombosis, has been often discussed in this column. Although this is an alarming condition which frequently seems to come without warning, and from which far too many persons die quite suddenly, I wish to emphasize the hopeful and encouraging features of coronary occlusion.

At present it appears that there are nine chances out of ten of a person recovering from the first attack of coronary occlusion. In a recent study of 412 patients, after an average of ten days in hospital, two-fifths of the patients made a complete recovery. Another quarter of the 412 made a satisfactory recovery except for occasional pain on exertion.

One quarter of the patients who had recovered completely had lived more than 10 years at the time the study was made, and four out of ten had lived more than five years. More than eight out of ten were employed and six out of ten at full-time work.

Among the patients in the group whose first attack occurred before they had reached the age of 45, there was only a slightly better outlook than in the older patients. Therefore, an older person who has an attack need by no means take a pessimistic view.

FEAR CAN ENDANGER HEART — In another recent discussion of heart disease and other physical ailments by a prominent and distinguished physician, it was pointed out that fear of heart disease may react unfavorably on the heart itself, and certainly on the other activities of the body.

In the course of the article, he mentioned several patients who had had heart attacks, but had been able to surmount the mental effects and had led long and active lives for many years thereafter.

Certainly, every experienced physician will endorse the need for an intelligent degree of fear in good health for many years.

At any rate, there is no doubt but that many who have suffered a coronary occlusion can recover to a considerable degree and stay in good health for many years.

DELEGATE — Oddly enough, the Chamber of Commerce followed an entirely different procedure in a controversy of similar nature. This dispute involved the question of sending an employer delegate to future sessions of the International Labor Organization, a subsidiary of the United Nations.

Steel Plant Seizures Forge Bitter Protests, Court Battles

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON — (AP) — Watching the steel dispute is like looking at a juggler who is keeping three Indian clubs in the air at the same time.

1. Negotiations between the steel industry and the CIO. They broke down last night, having arrived nowhere. Now the problem is to start them again.

2. Will the government, which has seized the plants, raise the workers' wages? Secretary of Commerce said last night he's considering the problem.

3. The legal fight and the criticism poured on the President for ordering the seizure in the first place.

Seize Many Plants
The first two can be watched day by day but the legal side gets more involved and hazy as time goes on. This will tackle the legal side.

In the past dozen years never President — Roosevelt and then Truman — seized a number of plants or industries, probably more than 60.

They acted under an emergency proclamation issued by President Roosevelt before we got into the war or under the Smith-Connally act passed by Congress in 1943.

That act gave the President power to seize a plant if he thought a work-stoppage there threatened the war effort.

And the Supreme court never ruled that the President didn't have the power to seize, under the emergency proclamation or the Smith-Connally act.

Protests Are Fierce
But that act expired in 1947. Now we are theoretically at peace.

Canadian CC Hears WTCC Area Report

CANADIAN — (Special) — The West Texas chamber of commerce had representatives at the regular meeting of the Canadian chamber of commerce here Monday night.

Jimmie Lovell of Plainview and Roy Bourland of Pampa met with the legal group and explained the aims and motives of the 128-county regional commerce organization by citing examples of work that has already been done for the benefit of the entire region.

One was securing the removal of the adverse differential in freight rates that formerly applied to the Southwest, and another was the working out of a more amicable agreement with the Republic of Mexico so that Mexican nationals may be brought in, legally, for seasonal labor.

Regular business of the Monday night session included advance planning for the C of C to cooperate with the Rodeo Association and the Roping Club to make the Fourth of July Rodeo an outstanding celebration.

Warren Huntington, local member of the Texas U. S. Highway 69 Association, reported on the membership drive of that group and announced that plans are in the making for a joint celebration with the U. S. Highway 83 Association for the formal opening when the new Canadian river bridge is completed here.

although engaged in a big defense program.

Some of those presidential seizures in the past received sharp criticism, fierce protests.

But the reaction to them was gentle compared with the outcry last week when a steel strike threatened and Truman seized the industry.

Truman didn't say he was acting under any particular law. He said he was acting under his constitutional powers as President and Commander-in-Chief.

His reason for the seizure: that he was acting for the national welfare because a steel strike would damage rearmament badly.

Critics and the steel industry jumped him. They said no law, and no part of the Constitution, specifically gave him power to seize private property in peacetime.

Republicans Differ
Sen. Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, spoke for a lot of Truman's critics when he raised the question:

"If the President can seize the steel mills, can he also seize the cattle on American farms to provide a steady flow of meat into homes? Can he seize any and all private property for any purpose whatsoever?"

A fellow-Republican, Sen. Morse of Oregon, cracked back that Truman would have been "derelict" in his duty if he hadn't seized the mills.

And Truman's government lawyers said: The critics didn't go far enough, that the Constitution-makers never intended to say the President couldn't do anything that wasn't spelled out ABC in the Constitution.

The lawyers argue that the President — by the very fact that he's President and responsible for the national welfare — has many broad powers not specifically stated in the Constitution that can be used when emergency arises.

The steel companies protested there is no precedent in American history for such a seizure of private property. The government lawyers say there's plenty.

Battle in Court
The steel companies went to court with their argument, asking a United States judge to order the government to abandon the seizure, thus creating a nice problem for him.

Does a judge have the right to rule against the President — thus imposing the authority of the judiciary on the executive branch of the government — particularly when the President says he's acting for the country's welfare?

The first judge who listened to the companies, Alexander Holtzoff, turned them down, saying it was "doubtful, to say the least, whether a federal court has authority to issue an injunction against the President of the United States."

Undiscouraged, the steel lawyers rushed to another judge for another kind of injunction, but he slowed them down. He said he wouldn't do anything until the government lawyers had time to answer, which might be as much as 20 days.

The government lawyers Tuesday filed a 69-page answer which, among some of their arguments given above, said a judge shouldn't rule against a President in a case like this.

They loaded their document with plenty of examples of what they said was support, all through American history, for the President's action. This ought to drag on in the courts quite a while.

Celanese Reports on 1951 to Employees and the Plant Community

A Message from the President

The year on the whole was one of sound progress for our Company although due to the poor conditions which prevailed throughout the textile industry it became necessary to curtail the rate of operations in our yarn and fiber and in our fabric divisions in the third and fourth quarters of the year.

In our chemical and plastics divisions we attained a high level of production and sales.

Under the highly competitive market conditions in the industries we serve, the best assurance of increasing our sales rests on the quality of our products.

We are making every effort to build our business through aggressive advertising and market development work designed to increase the sales of our products.

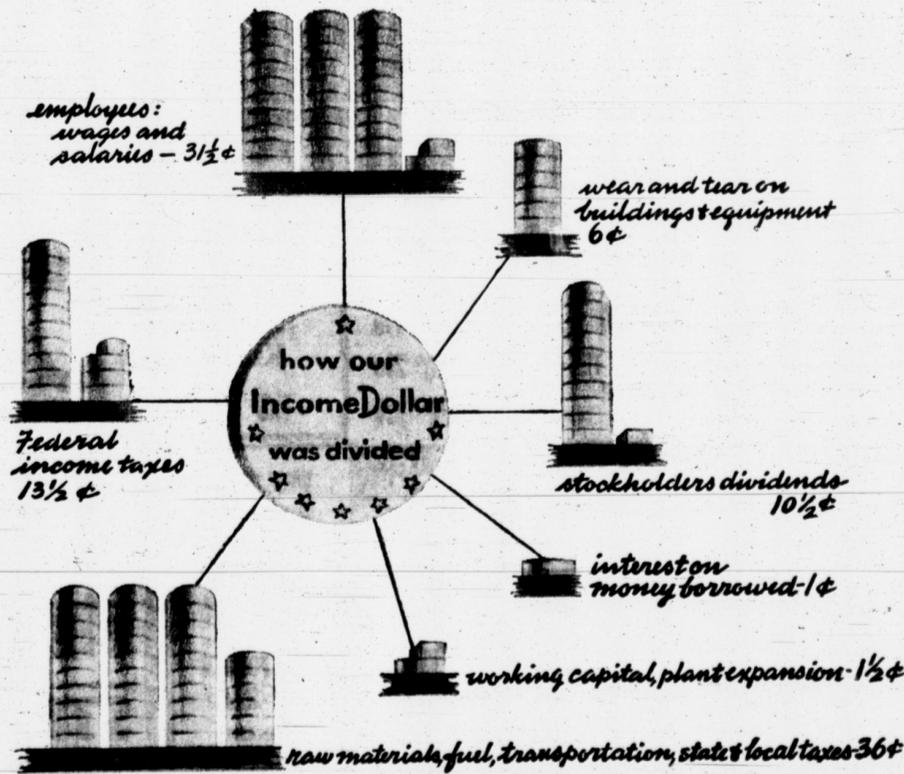

As conditions improve in the textile industry we should be in a strong position to take advantage of market opportunities. This in turn should be reflected in a higher level of yarn and fiber operations for the Company as 1952 progresses.

Violates Individual Rights

NEW YORK — (AP) — There are only two classes in the world — neat people and the people they criticize.

The thing that always has puzzled me about neat people is their intolerance. They are reformers at heart. They are reformers merely with being neat themselves. They want everybody else to be neat, too.

This is a violation of individual rights. A person is as legally free to be disorderly as he is to be neat, so long as he doesn't infringe on the liberty of others.

For my part, I can see more advantages in being disorderly than in being neat. Neatness isn't always a virtue. Most people aren't neat because they really want to be — they just can't help it.

Pigeonholes
Many neat people have a restless passion to put everything in pigeonholes. They believe there is a place for everything and everything should be in its place. They feel that life is like a bingo game: If they keep putting the right buttons on the right numbers — bingo!

The trouble with this theory is life just doesn't operate that way. To get the most out of living you have to be a connoisseur of chaos as well as an advocate of order.

There are some situations and experiences you can't solve with a platitude or tag with a label. They don't fit into patterns, and when a neat person is faced with such a situation he is defeated by it — and sometimes destroyed by it.

Wonderful
Life has a wonderful sprangling, aimless quality that only a disorderly person can appreciate. Take such common things as a

FHA, VA Home Loan Interest Hike Asked

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mortgage lenders called on the federal government to boost interest rates of "GI" and FHA home loans and ease the present down payment requirements on new houses.

The two steps were urged at an eastern regional conference of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America here as ways of unfreezing potential mortgage funds and spurring defense and veterans' housing.

Aubrey M. Costa, president of the association and president of the Southern Trust & Mortgage Co. of Dallas, Tex., told the kick-off session that present FHA and VA mortgage rates can not compete with interest yields available from corporate investments. They should be increased immediately to break the logjam in the market for government-guaranteed mortgages, he asserted.

Such an increase, he declared, would "produce funds from private sources to complete the present housing program and provide an opportunity for veterans to purchase homes."

The present FHA rate is 4 1/4 per cent and the VA rate is 4 per cent.

Costa said an increase of one fourth of one per cent would involve only a small additional cost to the borrower — about $112 a month — extra on an $8,000, 25-year loan.

He also urged that the government raise the interest rate on bonds which are exchanged by the FHA when it forecloses defense housing loans. The yield on such debentures should be hiked from 2 1/2 per cent to a rate which would assure their sale at par, Costa said.

Turning to general conditions Costa said prospects for a good home building year appear "brighter every day."

Wendell Cory Finds Jury Duty Worthwhile Experience

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — "It gave me a whole new faith in the Democratic process." That's Wendell Cory's reaction after serving as an ordinary citizen on jury duty.

Actor Cory created a stir in the Los Angeles civic center recently by reporting to serve on jury duty. No one could remember a Hollywood notable having appeared for jury service. Cory performed his duties without fuss and without press agent.

"If I had wanted to, there were 500 ways I could have gotten out of it," he remarked. "But I thought it would be a worthwhile experience, and it was. I was very impressed with the care and intelligence that my fellow jurors exercised in reaching a verdict."

"A lot of people make jokes about the 'housewife jury.' Well, I can tell you there's nothing wrong with housewives as jurors. I know, because I served with 10 of them on a murder trial. They were very serious about the whole thing, and they were not swayed by sentiment."

"If anything, they were tougher than the men. They felt an urge to protect the home; if the defendant was guilty of a crime, they wanted the punishment to be the maximum."

President," which has a lengthy trial scene. The actor started offering technical advice right away.

"They had a couple of the witnesses sitting right next to the prosecutor," he said. "That never happens in court."

He also discovered some other discrepancies which appear in courtroom scenes. For instance, most movies have the foreman of the jury delivering the verdict from the no. 1 seat in the box. "That's ridiculous," Cory scoffed. "The foreman isn't chosen until the jury begins deliberations. His seat might be anywhere in the jury box."

The actor is so enthused about his experience that he wants to launch a campaign to enable more citizens to serve on juries. "Most people fluff it off, because it's easy to find excuses," he remarked. "Also, a lot of working people cannot afford it, if their companies do not continue their salaries. I think it should be a general practice, as it is with many large companies, that the firms should make up the difference between the jury fee and the regular salaries of the jurors."

One-Act Comedy To Be Presented At Pampa Junior High PTA Meeting Tonight

A one-act comic operetta, "Dream Ranch," will be presented by a group of eighth grade students at the Pampa Junior High School Parent-Teacher Assn. meeting Thursday at 8 p.m.

Mothers and fathers of junior high school students are invited to the meeting, Mrs. J. M. Fitzgerald, PTA president, announced today. The group will observe the annual "father's night," and Ivan Noblitt will be in charge of the meeting.

The plot of the operetta centers about two brothers, co-owners of a large ranch, who are loafing in the sun, talking of inviting duces to their ranch, when suddenly the ranch is overtaken by city folks, dancing and singing. Everyone is having a happy time until a group of masked cowboys arrive on the scene, and have a part in the play's surprise ending.

Danny Johnson and Jackie Edwards portray Bill and Les, the ranch owners; Mary Pippen and Arlene Hazel, play Dot and Flo, two city girls in search of a thrill; Frank Outlier portrays Mr. City Bee, a middle-aged banker; Dixie Sue Rhodes plays the part of Lulu, a city girl who wants to ride a horse; and Melvin Romine portrays Wilderness Ike, an old-time prospector.

Others in cast include roving cowhands, dancers and the chorus.

The date for Memorial or Decoration Day first was set aside in the Southern states for the purpose of decorating the graves of Civil War veterans. On May 3, 1868, Gen. John Logan, then commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, ordered Grand Army services on May 30.

Merten Club Has Study Of Plastics

Mrs. T. G. Groves presented a program on plastics at the Merten Home Demonstration club meeting in the home of Mrs. D. A. Rife. During the business session, Mrs. Rife resigned as president. Mrs. J. C. Steward vice president, assumed that office.

"Plastic is economical," Mrs. Groves said, "and is pleasing in color and design. That is why it's being used so many ways. It is used for drapes, luncheon cloths, aprons, and covers of all kinds. It can be washed in a machine if the water is warm.

A detergent should not be used in cleaning plastic, and a cloth should be soft and clean when used in cleaning plastic.

"Plastic should never be placed on wood such as table tops because plastic is air-tight and will cause the table to be rough, or cause the wood to bleed.

"In sewing plastic on a machine a No. 4 needle should be used. Curtains should be hemmed on sides to keep the plastic from curling. Plastic will burn, but experiments are showing it can be made so it won't burn.

"Many new uses are being found for plastics which can be bought in sheets, tubes, bars, solids or liquids. Plastic is being used in the automobile industry, and in the near future it will be used in highway construction.

Paint is even being developed from plastic, and the medical field has found many uses for plastic."

Mrs. Groves explained that plastic can be heated and molded to any shape. It also can be sawed with a hand saw. No. 320 sandpaper should be used in smoothing the surface. In conclusion she said, "We know plastic is here to stay because it is so convenient and practical."

Mrs. Clyde Edmondson conducted recreation, and Mrs. Groves gave the 10-minute demonstration.

Coffee, cake and ice cream were served to Meses. Groves, V. Smith, W. E. McCracken, Steward, A. M. Nash, W. T. Cass, Jr., Edmondson, A. B. Whitten, Jack Prather, and P. J. Boyd.

Mrs. McCracken will be hostess at the next meeting May 6, at 1:45 p.m.

Twentieth Century Allegro Meets In Davis Home Here

Mrs. Harold Rinehart reviewed "Cattle Kings of Texas" by C. L. Douglas, and Mrs. James Evans discussed Texas laws affecting women at the Twentieth Century Allegro meeting this week in the home of Mrs. Mel Davis. Mrs. R. W. Karr and Mrs. Bill Davis were co-hostesses.

Mrs. Rinehart explained that in the beginning, the King ranch wasn't exactly Mexico, the United States or Texas, but it was rather a kingdom of its own between two nations, washed on one side by the Gulf of Mexico, touched on the other side by half-desert brush country. It's the sort of country that draws men back to it.

"The ranch," she explained, "is divided in to sections and these regions are swallowed up in the 1,250,000 acres of land which until recently made the King ranch with its 125,000 head of cattle, the greatest of all the world's ranches.

"Richard King, born in Orange County, N. Y. July 10, 1825, first heard about Texas through Miffilin Kennedy, a young Pennsylvanian of Quaker parentage, who was seven years older than King. King spent his early years near the boats he loved so well, and at the age of 15 joined the Army and served in a short-lived campaign. Following his army experience, he returned to the boats and met Kennedy, who told King of a new project he had in land. Some years later, the two became partners in the cargo business and by the early 1850's it had become such a success they had a score of boats and two new partners, James O'Donnell and Charles Hillman.

"King bought 75,000 acres southwest of Corpus Christi "for all-time" but Kennedy was doubtful of the venture. King set to work improving the wells, for the place lacked proper watering facilities, and then began stocking with Mexican cattle. The livestock market was small, but he was certain of better days. In December of 1854 he went to Brownville and brought home a bride, Miss Henrietta Chamberlain, daughter of a Presbyterian minister who was doing work among the Mexicans. The ranch then had a queen, so King set about building a Kingdom.

"By 1860 the ranch had become the major cattle enterprise on the coastal plains and it was then that Kennedy offered to buy half-interest. They began to import Durhams from Kentucky to mix with the Mexican stock, and a new stock began to appear. They set to work to experiment for their; boats were prospering because of the Civil War. In 1868 the partners decided on a division, each to share and share alike in acreage, cattle, horses and sheep.

"King died in April of 1885 in San Antonio, failing to fulfill his major ambition of someday owning all the land between Corpus Christi and the Rio Grande. When he died he held title to only 500,000 acres, which he left to his wife, Mrs. King asked the family lawyer, Robert Kieberg, to help her manage it. He was engaged at that time to a daughter of the Kings, and after their marriage he assumed active direction of the estate. He took up where King left off. He founded the town of Kingsville by donating land, helped build two railroads through Nueces county, helped put through a dredging project which made Corpus Christi a deep water port, and before Mrs. Henrietta King died in 1925, she saw her son-in-law build the ranch into a million acres," Mrs. Rinehart said.

"Bob Kieberg, Jr., in his late 30's, then became manager of the ranch with his mother, the founder's only living daughter. He was to hold the managership until the estate, under the provisions of Mrs. King's will, should be divided among the heirs of the old captain's five children.

The new ruler of the Kingdom followed in the footsteps of his predecessors and in some ways did better, for during his regime, he added more acreage, and busied himself with perfecting the ranch's own breed, the Santa Ger-

Telephone Committee Is Time Consuming

By RUTH MILLETT
One of the horrors of the modern age is the telephone committee. No matter what organization you join you are sure to wind up sooner or later as a member of the telephone committee.

If it's your first experience at the job you'll be amazed at how often you'll be expected to call your long list of names.

Every member may have a year book. Meetings may fall on the same date each month. Every meeting may be listed in the local paper to boot. But still you have to call that list of names to remind each member to attend a meeting.

It would be fairly simple if one call to each member would take care of the matter. But it's not that easy. Matching the average woman at home is hard work these days.

Once you catch your quarry she may be one of the following types:

The woman who doesn't just say she can't make the meeting—but gives you a twenty minute recital about all the illness in the family, the servant problem, or a long line about all the things that are going on in the other clubs she belongs to.

The woman who never attends a meeting, but wants to be called each time.

The woman who doesn't like the way the organization is being run and bends your ear with complaints.

And the woman who won't say "yes" and won't say "no" and takes fifteen minutes to say "Maybe."

So if you've never taken on the job of being a telephone voice for an organization don't be fooled if they try to enlist you with the assurance that it will only take a few minutes of your time. For you are sure to find all the above mentioned types on your list of names.

Hand Exercises Can Help Develop Poise

By ALICIA HART
NBA Beauty Editor

The next time you become involved in a conversation, watch your hands. Do they flutter and wave as if in accompaniment to the sound of your voice, or do they rest quietly in your lap?

One of the best ways to keep your hands under control is through relaxation. Actively think about their movements. Develop your voice to a point where you won't have to rely on your hands to punctuate and emphasize what you are saying.

Voter's Signature

The University of Arizona baseball team has won eight Border Conference championships and tied for two others. Slater Martin, pint-sized baseball star of the Minneapolis Lakers in the NBA, prefers to be called "Dugan" instead of Slater.

Ballotting Opens For Oiler Batboy

This voting time is here. The five finalists in the batboy contest have been named, a ballot on which to vote is on the sports pages today, and next Tuesday at midnight is the deadline. If these boys come around soliciting your vote, please help them out. They have a big thrill in store for them this summer if they can win this contest and the only way they can win is by securing more votes than the other boy. That means they need everyone's help, just like a politician does when running for office.

Yesterday afternoon the six finalists, Wayne Nolen, Rabbit Ramirez, Billy Brown, Cecil Reynolds, Earl Cooper and Teddy Vickers, all were given an opportunity to make a plea for votes over KPND. Now they must depend upon their friends to help them out. To vote for your favorite, merely circle his name on the ballot, sign your name across the face of the ballot, and mail it to the BATBOY CONTEST, c/o PAMPA DAILY NEWS, or else give it to the boy and he will see that it is turned in.

Oilers Return Home Today

The Pampa Oilers, 1952 style, were scheduled to arrive in Pampa late this afternoon following their two-day return trip from their South Texas training camp. Tomorrow night, weatherman permitting, they are scheduled to make their first home appearance of the season by hosting the potent Amarillo Gold Sox at 8:15. Thus far, the two clubs have met three times, the Sox holding one-game advantage.

Saturday night the Oilers return the game and then on Sunday afternoon host the Weatherford, Okla. collegians from Southwestern Tech. That will be the final tune-up game before the curtain on the 140-game schedule.

Oilers Seeking Houses, Apts.

The need is urgent, now! The Oilers need apartments and houses, furnished for the ball players. They will be permanent party until the end of the baseball season in September. Some have children; some don't.

If you know of a place, or have a place of your own that is for rent and would like to help the Pampa Oilers out, notify Ivy Griffin, Oiler business manager, at phone 1121.

That occurs on Wednesday night when the Oilers play the Berger Gassers, a club with one of the best spring training records in the loop. Tickets for the opening game are already on sale in the hands of Kiwanians, Lions and Rotarians.

Several of the Oilers are already in town, having arrived yesterday. Stan Barkowski, newly purchased outfielder, arrived with his family from Milwaukee and Pitcher Max Molberg, who had his family at Cuero, also arrived yesterday. Both are in search of homes for their family.

Manager Jake Phillips hasn't announced his pitching choices for the game tomorrow night, but chances are good that Pampa fans will get a look at some new faces on the mound, perhaps Juan Montero, Bob Votaw or Jim Haggard.

The Oilers survived their spring training tour without serious injury, and should be at full strength when the starting bell rings.

Harvesters Finally Complete Schedule

The addition of an Oct. 2 home game with the Duncan, Okla., Tigers completed the 1952 football schedule for the Pampa Harvesters. The game was announced yesterday by the School Business Office.

Originally, the October date was filled by the Pleasantburg Eggs. But the AAA school jumped the contract in order to schedule Amarillo at Amarillo with the expectation of making more money out of the deal. A contract jumping forfeiture, which hasn't been collected as yet, may result in a loss of money to the Pleasantburg school.

The complete schedule for the Harvesters is as follows: Sept. 19 (Friday) at Austin of El Paso; Sept. 26 (Friday) Vernon here; Oct. 3 (Friday) Duncan, Okla., here; Oct. 10 (Friday) at Amarillo; Oct. 17 (Friday) at Abilene; Oct. 24 (Friday) Midland here; Nov. 1 (Saturday) Lubbock here; Nov. 15 (Saturday) at Odessa; Nov. 21 (Friday) San Angelo here; Nov. 27 (Thanksgiving Thursday) Berger here.

The final seven games are district affairs, Midland having been voted into the district last fall, to round out the eight-team circuit.

Bob Elliott's crashing two-homer debut chased the Monte Irvin blues out of the Polo Grounds. New York Giant fans, dubious of the value of a 35-year-old Boston Brave "castoff" came to the Polo Grounds last night to be shown. Elliott sure showed them. He made Irvin's ankle fracture seem less tragic.

When the Giants bought big Bob from the Braves, April 8, for $50,000 and Pitcher Sheldon Jones, Manager Leo Durocher shouted "he'll be my crusher." Now the fans know what Leo meant.

First a home run deep into the upper left field seats in the fourth inning. Then No. 2 into the right field seats in the eighth. Elliott sprayed new optimism into the Giant cause.

Just a few hours before Elliott ruined opening night for Robin Roberts, the doctors sewed together Monte Irvin's torn ligaments. They said the 151 runs batted in champ might be ready to pinch hit in late July. Elliott's performance and this optimistic report on Irvin restored some of the glow of the miracle of '51.

Elliott's home runs plus steady hitting kept the Giants from being made New York's first night opener a success with a 5-3 win over the Phillies. It was Sal Barber's ninth straight over the Whiz Kids. He struck out eight and restricted his trouble to the first three innings.

If Elliott keeps it up, the Braves probably will swear off trading with the Giants. They gave them Al Dark and Eddie Stanky, the makings of a pennant winner. And now Elliott, who was being put out comes to life in a new uniform.

Ironically, the Braves staggered through a rugged afternoon, absorbing a 14-8 pasting from the slugger Brooklyn Dodgers. The Brooks-flattened Max Surkont in the eighth and kept it up all day for 20 hits, including five by Duke Snider and a homer, double and single by Roy Campanella.

Musial Hot That man from St. Louis Stan Musial got hot with three home runs and a homer and double in the Cardinals' second straight night victory over Pittsburgh, 6-5. The Cards ripped Howie Pollet, a former teammate, for five runs after two were out in the seventh.

Raschi got the world Champ New York Yankees off winging in their drive toward a fourth straight pennant with an 8-1 romp over the Philadelphia A's. Big Vic owns a lifetime 212-record against the A's. However, he needed help from Johnny Sain when he developed a wild streak and walked two straight in the ninth after pitching two-hit shut-out ball for the first eight frames.

Hank Bauer's homer in the fourth inning started the Yankees' lead. The Indians nipped Chicago, 1-0, on rookie Jim Fridley's homer and Bob Lemon's three-hit pitching while Rogers Hornsby's Brownies clipped Detroit, 5-4.

Floyd Baker, supposed to be a "good field, no hit" man, won a night game for Washington with a bases-loaded single off Boston's Ellis Kinder with two out in the eleventh, 4-3. Irvin Noren's double and two walks loaded them up. Julio Moreno went all the way for the Senators.

The Indians continued to get super pitching with Lemon doing the job but had to depend on a rookie from Dallas to do the hitting. Fridley's second-inning homer ruined Joe Dobson's four-hit job.

Hornsby got some help from Tommy Byrne, that good hitting pitcher, for the Browns' second straight win. Hornsby lifted two regulars for pinchhitters in the seventh inning but let Byrne hit for himself. Tommy doubled home for the first run as St. Louis rallied with three to tie. They won with two in the eighth on Tom Wright's single, a triple by rookie George Schmees and double by Hank Artt.

Cincinnati and Chicago had an open date in the National.

DiMaggio In Lineup At Corpus

Joe DiMaggio's name was in one lineup as the Class B Gulf Coast opened its season last night with about 11,000 fans at the four games.

The DiMaggio at Corpus Christi's opener, however, was not the famed Yankee Clipper, but a nephew making a hurrying start for Port Arthur. He had hectic going, yielding six hits in two and two-thirds innings, but his team won, Port Arthur, with Valie Eaves the relieving and winning pitcher, outlasted Corpus Christi 12-10 before 1,524 spectators.

At Laredo, home club Apache stopped Lake Charles 7-2 as 2,500 watched, Galveston won at home over Texas City 6-2 before 3,000, and Brownsville thrilled the largest crowd, 3,700, at home with a 6-5 win over Harlingen.

to round out the eight-team circuit.

MY ACHING BACK — George Lopez takes full advantage of the judo jacket worn by Sessue Oyama to use a judo slam to throw the big Jap judo expert to the canvas during last night's action at the Southern club. Oyama came on to win the event and with it a shot at the Southwestern junior heavyweight crown worn by Tony Morelli. (News Photo by Ken Hardin)

Oyama Wins Jacket Match With Sleeper

Tony "Madman" Morelli, the junior heavyweight champion, will offer a chance for Sessue Oyama, the Japanese judo expert, to win the junior heavyweight belt from him at the Southern Club next Wednesday night. This title match was decided last night when Oyama applied his quick arm bar and the jacket pressee sleeper hold to George Lopez twice to gain the win in the judo jacket match main event.

Oyama put Lopez to sleep in 13 minutes to gain the first fall after both boys had done a lot of slam-banging and a judo arm bar and the jacket pressee sleeper hold to grip. Both men wore long, coarse cloth jackets and matching full length pants with a black belt wound securely around their waist.

The middle fall went to Lopez after five minutes as he upended Oyama and applied a Japanese arm bar and then turned it into an arm and leg lock that forced the larger-than-usual Jap to give up.

The third fall ended after 12 minutes when Oyama again put Lopez to sleep with the use of his arm and the jacket pressee sleeper hold. Lopez was upped. But before it happened, Lopez received a broken nose which brought a flow of claret all over the front of his jacket.

Disqualification In the colorful semifinal event, billed Scotty McFarlin of Edinburg, Scotland, was disqualified with three minutes left in the match to give Johnny Pavich a crowd-pleasing victory. Scotty, who entered the ring dressed in his native garb, took the first fall in 23 minutes with a full Boston crab hold after Pavich applied to have it won following a terrific drop kick. Pavich took the middle fall, though, with a flying body plow to knot the match with six minutes remaining.

As the last fall reached the halfway mark, McFarlin draped Pavich over the ropes, tied his neck in the top two strands and refused to permit referee Gene Detton to unwrap the boy from Budapest, Hungary, until he had passed out. Detton immediately disqualified McFarlin and awarded the match to Pavich, much to the displeasure of the red-headed Scotsman.

The open event, a 20-minute affair, went to a draw when neither Benny Trudell or Ray Duran of Mexico City could gain a fall. A newcomer to the circuit, Duran quickly proved that he could take care of himself in the squared circle.

The Philadelphia Athletics will play 33 spring exhibition games. Nine of them will be against American League teams and nine against National League outfits.

Sugar Ray Ready To Seek Third Crown After KO Win

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP) — Middleweight Champion Sugar Ray Robinson, 32 but still a ring killer with a quick and paralyzing punch, today was ready for a shot at his third world title after a third-round knockout of challenger Rocky Graziano.

Robinson's execution last night of former 160-pound champion Graziano before a capacity Chicago Stadium crowd of 22,264 apparently was a stepping stone to a June New York showdown with Champion Joey Maxim for the light-heavy crown.

Sugar Ray confessed he went "head - huntin' early" to pulverize Graziano in a brief but blistering bout which paid $82,208 to Robinson and 68,507 to Graziano.

Miscalculation "Ah figured that against a fighter like Rocky, you got to hurt him quick to keep him from getting cocky," said Robinson. "You toy with a slugger like him and later when you clout him, he thinks it's accidental. So I sailed into him on every opening."

It was a miscalculation that dropped the curtains on eager, wild-swinging Graziano. "See, I bounced off the ropes in the middle of the third round and clouted Robinson good with a right and down he goes," groused Graziano in his dressing room. Robinson went down for no-count midway in the third round.

"So a little later, he drives me to the ropes with a left to the body and I figure to bounce off again and give it to him good. But, wham, he blasts that right and it catches me right on the button and the fight is over."

Sugar Ray, who still considers himself the welterweight king, the automatically vacated that crown when he beat Jake La Motta for the 160-pound title as well as the middleweight champion, reportedly will skip a scheduled middleweight title defense May 16 at New York against Paddy Young to take on Maxim.

Robinson declared himself not interested in tackling Maxim at 175 pounds. He weighed 157 1/2 against Graziano.

But George Gairford, Robinson's manager, broadly hinted that Sugar Ray considers himself capable of whipping much heavier foes and desirous of joining Bob Fitzsimmons and Henry Armstrong as triple ring champions.

Robinson, despite claims he is only a shell of his old fighting self, was a crafty butcher against Graziano, who had weighed in at 159 3/4.

The champion won the first round by a shade, booming a two-fisted attack to the surprise of most experts who expected him to retreat until Robinson hastily back-pedaled.

The third round found Graziano getting a little cocky. When he floored Robinson with a right that spilled the champion so quickly it looked like he slipped, Rocky had made a fatal mistake.

Robinson quickly uprighted himself and then squaring off for murderous range, pumped the left-right combination that put the lights out for Rocky. Graziano courageously tried to get his collapsed body upright, but he didn't make it until after Referee Tommy Gilmore had counted 10.

Disqualification Of Sooners Stands

AUSTIN (AP) — Disqualification of the Oklahoma one-mile relay team in the Texas Relays April 5 will stand.

Oklahoma had protested the decision which cut it out of first place and a new record of 3:13.1, but yesterday a reviewing committee ruled that disqualification recommended by Head Inspector Mac Umstadd, who said anchorman J. W. Mashburn of Oklahoma, Tex. SA&M runner, too quickly after passing him, would be upheld. Assistant Inspector Hamilton Love had agreed with Umstadd in the disqualification.

It was ruled that the incident caused Baker to break stride. A&M finished second but was moved up to first place and given a record of 3:13.5.

D. X. Bible, athletic director of the University of Texas, said motion pictures were not obtained of the mile relay. "In the absence of pictures, the committee ruled the decision of the meet referee must be final," Bible said.

Bible and Clyde Littlefield, relays director, expressed regret that Oklahoma's exceptional performance had to end with misfortune.

Quick-Change Artist Now On Come-Back Trail In Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — (P) — Sometimes there is more interest in the lesser players on a movie set than in the stars.

For instance, I walked onto the set of "The Plymouth Adventure," which boasts a full-scale replica of the Mayflower. Appearing before the camera were such well-known names as Spencer Tracy, Gene Tierney, Van Johnson and Leo Genn. But I passed them up to talk to two character players who were chatting amiably in a corner.

One of them was Owen McGivney, last of the quick-change artists. The other was Tom Moore, famed star of the silent days.

"I talked to McGivney about his profession, 'I am the last,' he remarked, shaking his head sadly.

In case the youngsters in the audience have never seen one, a quick-change act is one in which the actor performs a variety of roles by means of lightning changes of costume and makeup. McGivney's act was the most famous of its kind.

"I started it back in 1910 in England," he recalled. "I was playing in the legit and we came to a town where a man told me he paid 30 pounds ($150) for the entire legit troupe, but next door he paid as much as 100 pounds ($500) for a single performer. I decided I was in the wrong end of the business."

McGivney quickly became a headliner in London and the U. S. but disappeared from sight after the demise of vaudeville. He returned to England and served valiantly as a civilian rescue worker in the bombings. After the war, a doctor told him the English climate was bad for his lungs. So McGivney put in a call for Ken Murray, who was enjoying a long run in "Blackouts" in Hollywood.

"I've been looking all over the world for you," said Murray. "I want you to join the show."

"How long is the run?" the quick-changer asked.

"Two years," replied Murray. McGivney came to Hollywood and stayed in the show three years. He'd be there yet, if Murray hadn't decided to take the show to New York, where it flopped.

In recent years, McGivney has appeared on television six times. He has turned down many more offers because he doesn't want the novelty of his act to wear off. At present, he is returning to his first profession and has played a number of character roles in films. He got his first job through a director, since he feared the talent executives would say, "we don't need a quick-change artist."

Horse Tradin' Going To Dogs

GATESVILLE, Tex. — (P) — One of the last of the Texas horse traders says that the business is going to the dogs.

It was bad enough when old horses used to end up at the "glue factory," Walter Schaub opines, but it's downright humiliating for them to be consigned to modern day dog food plants.

During the past 12 years Schaub has owned 36,000 horses. Most of the 3000 horses he buys and sells each year come from the 15 counties surrounding McLennan. Years ago he bought them in the country but now most of them come from auctions.

Schaub learned to tell the good ones from the bad ones when he was a kid on a farm near Gatesville. Successful horsetrading, he says, is based on the old rule of "buy 'em cheap and sell 'em high."
