De Marigny Freed, But Murder Still Unsolved

NASSAU, Bahamas, Nov. 12—(AP)—Alfred de Marigny is a free man today, and the mystery which surrounds the slaying of Sir Harry Oakes is more baffling than ever. A Bahamas supreme court jury decided by a nine to three vote last night that it was not the handsome de Marigny who beat the aged multi-millionaire on the head last July 3 and set fire to his bedroom and bed in an apparent effort to hide the crime.

Another Coal Crisis Is Feared by WLB

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12—(AP)—A majority of the war labor board believes another coal crisis is possible and, in effect, pleaded poverty of authority today to deal with it.

The three public members who approved the Ickes-Lewis agreement a week ago said in their formal opinion to the effect that the possibility of new labor troubles "together with the shock experienced by the whole country as a result of the United Mine Workers' defiance of the no-strike pledge, must of necessity bring into the forefront of consideration and discussion the whole question of the responsibility of unions for anti-social acts and of the capacity of government as at present constituted to prevent such acts."

Giraud Scoffs At Charge He Has Vichy Ties

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—(AP)—Delegates from the resistance movement in France who accuse him of Vichy ties are misinformed, Gen. Henri Giraud said in answers to questions submitted by the New York Times correspondent at Algiers.

WLB spokesmen said this was an expression of the board's feeling that it may need additional powers if another crisis arises.

Army Psychiatrist Speaks To Members Of Woodrow Wilson P. T. A. Thursday Evening

With Mrs. Rufe Jordan, vice president, in charge, the Woodrow Wilson P. T. A. met for a regular business meeting and "Father's Night," Thursday at the school auditorium.

The building was opened at 7:15 for parents to visit the entire school and to see children's work which was on display. There were 173 parents who registered for this room visitation.

During the business session a vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Emmett Forrest, hospitably chairman, and those who worked with her on the "Food-Pun-Frolie" night program.

Mrs. W. A. Rankin reviewed the minutes of the last two executive board meetings and Mr. H. A. Yoder was elected as a delegate to the state convention at Austin.

Mrs. A. W. Skewes, treasurer, reported that $209.72 was cleared on the "Food-Pun-Frolie" night held recently at the school.

Mrs. Carlton Nance, program chairman, presented Miss Jeanne Lively, who led a sing-song with Mrs. H. A. Yoder at the piano.

Captain D. P. Johnson, army psychiatrist, was the guest speaker using "Fear of Children" as his topic of discussion. Captain Johnson said: "If we have happy children who are free from fear and anxiety then we are going to have good citizens and a better civilization." He also spoke of the reaction of children in England to air raids and stated that most mental disorders start in childhood by some sort of emotional upheaval.

Mrs. A. Z. Griffin, membership chairman, gave the room count stating that Epper Stover's room won first place and second place went to Miss Anne Belle Cox's room.

Mrs. Griffin then introduced each room representative to the group.

Home Front Forecast

By ANN STEVICK
NEA Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—You may see some new styles in stockings. Bulkier yarn has been given to manufacturers to make up samples of stockings with knit-in elastic tops. These may be shorter, conserving materials now used in longer tops.

As price regulations are trying out men's shorter socks with elastic tops, and some models of women's stockings.

PRICE PRIMER
Higher accountability is needed if you are a conscientious housewife who has signed a Home Front Pledge to pay no more than ceiling prices.

As price regulations are trying out men's shorter socks with elastic tops, and some models of women's stockings.

Some frippieries, such as fabric gloves and scarfs that have escaped war curtailment, may soon disappear in order to keep up production of essential items WPB is conducting a campaign of critically short rayon to manufacturers in such a way that non-essential products will be eliminated. The War Manpower Commission has also threatened the necessity of closing down factories producing civilian luxuries. Among articles whose manufacture is already prohibited are lawn mowers, metal furniture, watering pots, coal scuttles, golf clubs, washboards, dish pans, fly swatters, funnels cannot be made if they contain any metal.

ODDS AND ENDS
Farmers and city gardeners are warned to early spraying and dusting supplies early this year in order to avoid a rush at gardening time.

You may eat your own fatted calf point-free if you have raised him from birth, or owned him for 60 days preceding slaughter, or if his weight has increased 35 per cent since the time you acquired him. Otherwise you are supposed to give up points.

Sunday School Lesson
Texts: Exodus 20:1; Matthew 5:27-30; Mark 10:2-12
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
We have studied a lesson on the sacredness of human life against a present background of wartime destruction of human life on a scale that we should never have thought possible in modern times. Similarly, we must consider the sanctity of the home in the face of conditions that increasingly tend toward the disruption of the home and the nullifying of independence that we have commonly associated with the home relationships of fatherhood, motherhood, and family life.
It is true that we have "Mothers' Day" and "Fathers' Day," and perhaps we should have "Sisters' Day" and "Brothers' Day." But the real emphasis must be placed on a symphony of loving regard for mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters, as an evidence of unshared affection. Most of us never needed a "Mothers' Day" to remind us of love and devotion to our mothers; every day for us was mother's day.
I have never forgotten a memorable occasion in Boston when the late Senator Borah spoke in Symphony Hall on the occasion of Russia. In contrast with what has happened today, that was not then a popular proposal. A young man of the super-patriotic sort whose patriotism took the form of criticizing the patriotism of other people had posed himself in a prominent place in the front of the first balcony, and at a strategic moment he demanded to know why an American flag was not displayed on the platform.
There was an angry outburst of protest against the interruption, but Mr. Borah silenced it, and turning to the interrupter he said, "Young man, I have had nothing to do with the arrangements for this meeting, but I want you to know that wherever I go, and wherever I speak, I carry the flag and the principles of the Constitution in my heart."
That is the way for us, and no amount of outward display of seal will compensate if they are not in the heart. It is the same because it is so true, also of all that applies to the home, and to family relationships. "Days," and outward symbols, good in themselves, will be inadequate to stem the tide that tends to undermine the sacredness of home and family life, if there is not in the heart the true reverence for the sanctity of the home.
The forces that are against that sanctity today are of two sorts. Some are in the nature of the world's development and "progress." Increasing attractions that tend to take people outside of the home in the hours that once were more commonly spent there are a powerful factor in the auto, the movie, the bowling alley, the club, the "social activities." All these things are legitimate and well enough in themselves, but they need to be watched lest they supplant the most important thing of all—the need of preserving home life.
Other forces are more definitely destructive, if not actually malignant. They unduly devalue the sacredness of marriage and the enormous increase of divorce in America. I am among those who believe that divorce has its legitimate and proper place in rectifying, as far as may be possible, unfortunate mistakes and hopeless situations. These do occur, and the sanctity of marriage is not upheld or furthered by perpetuating them. But divorce is widely practiced in America. Life today is little more than a pretentious cover for irresponsible relationships.
The Bible is our great textbook of the sanctity of home and family life. It is a great heritage from the Judaism of the Old Testament and the New Testament has only enforced with consistent teachings and great examples. Hence the importance of this lesson, and the study of it in the presence of all that threatens the sanctity of home and family life.

TAX BILL
The individual income levy, picking up $12,000,000 in the process by repealing the victory levy and raising the normal personal income rate from 6 to 10 per cent, and adjusting some surtaxes.
2. Boost some postal rates and hike excises, to bring in about $1,350,000 additional revenue—around $479,000,000 of which would come from consumers of liquor, beer and wine.
After about-facing four times, the committee decided to put the liquor tax at $9 a gallon, compared with the present $6 rate. The beer tax would be jumped from $7 to $8 a barrel and wine increased all along the line. There are no increases in cigarette or other tobacco excises.
The bill would raise the in-town letter rate from 2 cents to 3, leaving the out-of-town charge at 3 cents; jump the airmail rate from 6 cents to 8, double 3rd class mail rates, insured and COD mail, and increase charges for registered mail and method of computing excess profits.
3. It would raise the excess profits tax on corporations and readjust the method of computing excess profits.
4. It would add $140,000,000 by disallowing as deductions in personal income tax returns sums paid on excises, such as gasoline, cigarette and liquor taxes.
5. The law governing renegotiation of war contracts for recovery of excessive profits would be revised drastically.

Rev. Henshaw To Discuss "Fifth Freedom" Sunday
There will be two Celebrations of Holy Communion in St. Matthew's Episcopal church on Sunday, November 14. The first Celebration will be at eight o'clock and the second at the regular church hour of eleven o'clock. It is expected that those persons who were confirmed by Bishop Stephan on Sunday evening will make their first Communion this coming Sunday.
At the eleven o'clock service the Rev. Edgar W. Henshaw will preach on the subject, "The Fifth Freedom."
Said Mr. Henshaw in reference to the sermon subject, "The Atlantic Charter mentions four freedoms but does not mention of Freedom which is absolutely essential if the four which are mentioned are to be of any value, and that is freedom of religion. Without that freedom being guaranteed to every person in America the ones mentioned in the Charter become merely so many high-sounding words."
While under ordinary circumstances Mr. Henshaw does not choose popular subjects for sermons, he says that he feels so keenly that this fifth freedom is absolutely essential and for that reason will devote the sermon hour to a discussion of the matter.
The minister and congregation extend a cordial invitation to all who wish to worship with them to do so on this coming Sunday.

Christian Science Sunday Study Topic
"Mortals and Immortals" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Nov. 14.
The Golden Text is: "If ye live after the flesh, ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body, ye shall live." (Romans 8:13).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For in Him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain of your own poets have said, For we are also His offspring." (Acts 17:28).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Immortal man is not and never was material, but always spiritual and eternal." (Page 336).

ARABS
Said Sir Edward Spears, British minister, British interest in the Lebanese situation was described authoritatively as arising from two considerations:
1. Lebanon is a strategic area where British forces have responsibility and the British government cannot permit a situation of disorder to develop.
2. In 1941 the British ambassador to Egypt, Sir Miles Lampson, declared his government supported and associated itself with the assurance of independence given Syria and Lebanon by Gen. Georges Catroux on behalf of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. Catroux was then Fighting French commissioner.
The British government stands firmly by that declaration, it was announced in official quarters.

Ban on Christmas Vacations Requested
Joseph B. Eastman, director of the office of defense transportation has requested all government agencies and all private employers to refrain from granting vacation leave or time off to employees where travel during this period, wherever such travel could be deferred without impairment of the war effort. He likewise urged government agencies to refuse all requests for government speakers at conventions or similar group meetings held between Dec. 17 and Jan. 10.
In letters transmitting the foregoing requests, the ODT director recalled that earlier this year he had asked government agencies and private industry to schedule employee vacations throughout the year and in such a way as to avoid holiday periods. Maximum curtailment of all civilian travel that could be abandoned or deferred during the coming holiday period was necessary, he said, to prevent interference with the orderly movement on trains and intercity buses of the present huge volume of military and essential civilian passenger traffic.

PLAY SAFE With Your FOOD SAFE

With feeding the family a daily program, you need a food safe—your Electrical Refrigerator—more than ever. But if anything should happen to it now, you might have a lot of trouble in replacing or repairing it.

How To Care for Your Refrigerator

1. DEFROST OFTEN—Do not let frost get thicker than 1/4 inch.
2. KEEP CABINET CLEAN—Wash the outside with lukewarm water and mild soap. Wash the inside with a mild solution of water and baking soda.
3. KEEP CONDENSER FREE FROM DUST AND DIRT—This is easy to do with hand cleaner or nozzle attachment of floor cleaner.
4. DON'T OVERLOAD—DON'T put hot food in it. DON'T store in it food that does not need refrigeration. DON'T leave door open longer than necessary.
5. CHECK DOOR GASKETS, LATCH AND HINGES—If gasket is dry and hard, replace it. If latch or hinges are loose, tighten them. Make sure plug is inserted securely in convenient outlet.
6. OIL—If your refrigerator has an open type mechanism, it requires periodic oiling, to wear well and run smoothly.

Home Front Forecast

By ANN STEVICK NEA Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—You may see some new styles in stockings.

Butler yarn has been given to manufacturers to make up samples of stockings with knit-in elastic tops.

These may be shorter, conserving yarn to pay no more than ceiling prices. Testing laboratories are trying out men's shorter socks with elastic tops and some models of women's stockings.

PRICE PRIMER Higher accountability is needed if you are a conscientious housewife who has signed a Home Front Pledge to pay no more than ceiling prices.

As price regulations multiply and more fobbs go on rationing, it would be helpful to have a simple booklet giving points and ceiling prices. It also becomes more difficult to work out a plan for such a booklet, because there are different ceilings in different parts of the country, and in various types of stores. Therefore, as much as you need it, you may not see a price handbook for some time.

WASHING ACT Some frippieries, such as fabric gloves and scarfs that have escaped war curtailment, may soon disappear in order to keep up production of essential items. WPB is considering allocation of critically short rayon to manufacturers in such a way that non-essential products will be eliminated. The War Manpower Commission has also threatened the necessity of closing down factories producing civilian luxuries. Among articles whose manufacture is already prohibited are lawn mowers, metal furniture, watering pots, scuffles, golf clubs, washboards, dish pans, fly swatters, funnels cannot be made if they contain any metal.

ODDS AND ENDS Farmers and city gardeners are warned to order spraying and dusting supplies early this year in order to avoid a rush at gardening time.

You may eat your own fatted calf pain-free if you have raised him from birth, or owned him for 60 days preceding slaughter, or if his weight has increased 35 per cent since the time you acquired him. Otherwise you are supposed to give up points.

No Escape

Consumers throughout the country who are currently not getting all the dairy products they want, can fully appreciate a recent observation of Business Week: "By increasing the question is how to escape from the dilemma of whether to make a sacrifice at the production line or at the anti-inflation line."

As far as dairy products are concerned, the sacrifice has been made at the production line. Until prices are adjusted in proportion to costs, the dairy industry will not be able to meet the needs of the nation. Subsidies will not take the place of a fair price.

OPA Progresses Backward

"A blurb recently emitted by the OPA with intent to shame complainers about rationing," tells us that our forefathers did without sugar until the thirteenth century, without buttered bread until the fifteenth, without potatoes until the sixteenth, without coffee, tea and soap until the seventeenth, without gas, matches and electricity until the nineteenth. And that our forefathers also did without false teeth, safety razors, patent toilets, and thousands of articles too numerous to mention. They didn't have department stores, milk bottles, canned food or bath tubs.

Eddie Rickenbacker and his companions starved on the sea for nearly a month and still lived to tell the tale. But is that any parallel we should seek to follow? If our national economy has created shortages, we can do without as our forefathers did if necessary.

Our planning and energies, however, should be directed toward increased production and progress, the constant aim of our forefathers.

BUY VICTORY STAMPS

Fact, Not Fiction
One of the points stressed by the five senators who visited the world's battlefronts last summer, was the fact that the United States furnishes most of the oil for the fighting machines of the United Nations. To fill these war requirements, oil for our own domestic needs has been sacrificed. Either we must discover and produce more oil in this country or our domestic oil war needs will suffer dangerously.

The decision is not left to the oil industry. The increased production of "wildcat" runs, heading into the elaborate anti-inflation schemes of government agencies which decide whether inelastic price fixing rules are made or not, is not sufficient. Our motorized nation cannot run on low prices without gasoline.

The oil industry has asked for a very modest increase in the price of crude oil which would mean an increase in the price of a gallon of gasoline of about one penny. There is little question as to the choice which would be made by gasoline starved motorists and college home owners if the government gave the opportunity to choose. Of course a penny increase in the price of gasoline would admittedly breach the line against inflation—if there is a line to breach.

WHOSE MONEY IS HIS?

Hot money usually is defined as cash or bank deposits in the possession of persons likely to scramble for goods or services in diminishing availability or to move their funds about in unpredictable ways. The more extensive inquiry on deposits made by the Federal Reserve Board in July, and recently published in exhaustive detail, supplements the board's preliminary report made last March and sheds some light on who owns the less stable bank accounts.

The rise in the money supply, meaning both currency and bank deposits, is a nightmare to those who scent potential inflation. The survey shows that of $55,600,000,000 of demand deposits in all banks an estimated $38,700,000,000, or 70 per cent, belong to business. Those belonging to individuals totaled $14,300,000,000, or 26 per cent. The use of corporate funds is a matter of deliberate policy and the inflationary danger is less than in the case of deposits held by individuals.

The volume of deposits subject to the decision of individuals is somewhat smaller than was supposed, but whatever reassurance may come from that fact must be tempered by the thought of currency in circulation, something over $10,000,000,000, and the volume of savings bonds outstanding, something over $24,000,000,000, a total of more than $37,000,000,000, mostly controlled by individuals and spendable immediately or within a brief period after the war comes to an end.

The inflationary menace lies in possible efforts that may be made to spend before output of civilian goods gets into full swing; the good judgment of the people will be put to its severest test when the green light again shines for resumption of normal habits. Events of recent years have demonstrated fairly clearly that mere quantity of money—it will be much larger before the war is over—does not bring inflation; it is only what people do with their funds collectively.

The hopeful side is that good sense will prevail and that the accumulation of liquid resources may be a welcome addition to

Roosevelt's Subsidy Message

If a practical man was going to raise a crop of corn, he would not go to a man who had never raised corn to learn how to raise a crop of corn. He would go to the man who had demonstrated he knew how to raise corn.

President Roosevelt is telling the Congress and the people of the United States how to keep down the cost of living is just as absurd as the man who would let his corn crop grow up with weeds and spend his time telling his countrymen how to raise corn.

When Roosevelt contends that we can keep down the cost of living by a subsidy, by creating check-book money to subsidize the producers, he is demonstrating that he does not even understand the most basic principles of economics or even simple arithmetic. Either that or he is the worst kind of a hypocrite, making this statement only to delay the day of the people finding out why their cost of living is going up abnormally.

It is just as practical to keep down the cost of living by a subsidy as it would be to claim that a man could make a living by hiring a man to take money out of one pocket and put it in another. He would have just as much to take it from one pocket and put it in another.

If there has ever been a man in the United States who has done more to increase the cost of living, than Roosevelt has, I would like somebody to point him out. I can think of no one who has done as much to prevent increased production in the United States as Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He has even fined people for raising wheat. He fines the employer for permitting a man to work more than 40 hours. He fines men for rapid production of a graduated tax. He destroys the tools which make it possible for men to lower their cost of living. He compels workers to pay part of their wages to labor racketeers who turn part of it over to reelect him.

Will people have to learn through going hungry, through their stomachs, what causes living costs to go up before they get rid of a man who has never him doing anything to reduce the cost of living?

We had better follow the advice of people who have done something themselves to reduce the cost of living rather than the people who have done nothing but hold political jobs.

Planting Family Tree
A reader suggests that the tree-planting occupation which Roosevelt said was his occupation when he registered for voting was his family tree in the White House. Another reader would ask Roosevelt how many of the trees he had the government plant from the Panhandle to the Canadian border are still alive.

normal expenditure after the war. If the temperature of the individually owned money supply rises too rapidly it will precipitate efforts at new regulation and regimentation of private funds by the government. That is the less hopeful side of the question to think about.

REGULING THE BRICK

(The Wall Street Journal)

We read in this newspaper's Washington Wire that plans are afoot for a new parity formula for post-war agriculture. From the brief description it would appear to be a sort of free-wheeling affair in which farm prices would be raised or lowered at the will of someone in the Government. Of course, it would involve the close control and regimentation of the farmer; those plans always do.

When the farmers of the United States were sold the parity idea in the first place they were sold a gold brick. They did not get parity prices so long as the supply and demand situation of the products that they raised did not justify parity prices. When the supply and demand situation did raise the prices of their products the parity formula was called into play to restrain them.

What the farmers got was subsidies and handouts from the Government—that is, some did; others were fined because they raised too much. In return for the subsidies and handouts they had imposed on them a bureaucratic control. That is why they will get under a new parity formula and many of them foresee it to the extent that they are selling out and quitting while the quitting is good.

As for the agricultural planners at Washington, we cannot find hand think of a single instance where farmers who went directly contrary to the advice of the planners derived considerable benefit from their course.

The parity formula is based upon the thought that the demand for food in this country is limited; that people will eat so much and no more and that if farmers raise more than that there will be a surplus to depress prices. The experience of the war period when a great many people were prosperous enough to buy the foods they desired proves that theory wrong. The market for agricultural products is not limited and there is considerable margin for agriculture to reap the benefits of volume production.

News Behind The News

The National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

ORDERS How secrecy imposed on our naval and military spokesmen may have prevented the United States from preparing for the present war was recently revealed by Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, Chief, Bureau of Yards and Docks, his Missouri, D. Worth Clark of Idaho, Sheridan Downey of California and Homer T. Bone of Washington.

The other day in Baltimore, the officer disclosed for the first time how he and his mates were gagged by Herbert Hoover in 1931. He was broken by the former President's twelve-year-old restriction that he never make another Navy Day address until he appeared in the Maryland city.

In 1931 Admiral Moreell was public works officer of the Thirtieth Naval District with headquarters at Bremerton, Washington. For that year's celebration of Theodore Roosevelt's birthday he had ready a speech setting forth the grave need for strengthening the fleet.

But a few hours before its scheduled delivery he received a message from the Secretary of the Department warning all orators that, by command of Mr. Hoover, they must "not exhort listeners to support expansion of our naval or shore bases, or tell them what the Navy needs."

Admiral Moreell carried out orders but with tongue in cheek. Here was his conclusion: "Ladies and gentlemen, the history of the Navy is glorious; the traditions of the Navy are inspiring. Having said which, I now propose that we all join hands and sing one verse of 'London Bridge is Falling Down.' I thank you."

ENEMIES G.O.P. leaders

are confident that they will sweep both branches of Congress next year, giving them complete legislative dominance in the reconstruction program. They never had any doubts about winning the House, for they need only nine or ten additional seats for a numerical majority in that body. As they lost forty contests by less than five thousand votes in 1942, they are certain that it will not be difficult to make the necessary gain. In view of the November 2nd tidings, they think that the Senate may become theirs. They require only eleven more colleagues, providing they can hold the states they now control.

Eleven supposedly vulnerable Democrats will face the electorate in 1944; each one is worried about the outcome. They include such stalwarts as Robert F. Wagner of New York, Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Scott W. Lucas of Illinois, Greder Van Nuys of Indiana, Guy M. Gillette of Iowa, Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, D. Worth Clark of Idaho, Sheridan Downey of California and Homer T. Bone of Washington.

Three of the group may survive, mainly because they have fought the Administration on bread-and-butter issues affecting their constituents—Messrs. Tydings, Thomas and Clark of Idaho.

But even an opposition increase of only eight will enthrone P.D.R.'s enemies, because of the anti-New Deal attitude of several Democratic incumbents. The President may confront the same sort of coalition Woodrow Wilson faced when he brought back the Versailles Treaty, and League Covenant from Paris.

RECOVERY National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler's ruddy countenance glows every time he reads the roll of his Party's present incumbents in certain sections of the country. Even Democrats concede that it is an impressive list and perhaps a prophetic one.

G.O.P. governors sit in twenty-six of the thirty-eight states outside of the South. Only New Jersey and Kentucky fell into Republican hands, the latter was fifty-fifty.

The Spanglerites rule both houses in twenty-seven of the same thirty-eight commonwealths. The Democrats possess nine, and two are split. The electoral vote of these twenty-seven adds up to two hundred and ninety-eight, as compared with a total of two hundred and thirty-three for the Democrats. Number needed to win the White House is two hundred and sixty-six.

In this same area the opposition is in power in seventy-one per cent of the counties. The population in territory amounts to eighty-six million four hundred thousand, or sixty-six per cent of the whole.

INEVITABLE Ray Moley, who sired the New Deal's original brain trust, is now so hostile to the White House that he recently attended a powwow of Republican highrigger. He may even do some ghost writing for them in next year's struggle. The Columbia professor predicted that the G.O.P. will win easily in 1944. Reviewing Democratic losses since 1938, especially in congressional and gubernatorial contests, Mr. Moley concluded, "You can't beat a

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

NEA Staff Correspondent

The queen of burlesque—Betty Rowland—gave up the bumps and grind to concentrate on the grinding of Hollywood's motion picture cameras.

After eight years of burlesque stardom, the "Red-Headed Ball of Fire" is quitting the runway to become a legitimate actress. There's a three-picture deal cooking for Producers Releasing Corporation, and offers from other studios.

It's quite a grind, too, Betty said, un-learning everything she learned in burlesque. Not to mention an expensive nose job, which the movie-makers ordered.

"Nobody ever noticed whether I even had a nose," Betty said, "until I put my clothes on and stood in front of a mirror. I was shocked. The doctor said, 'You're a beauty. For the last six months, she said, she's been going to dramatic school preparing for this new career in Hollywood. Right away, she said, she didn't hesitate to put a few hundred dollars into a nose job."

"What happened in 1938 will not happen a second time. When many people must fall in battle, I will not hesitate to put a few hundred dollars into a nose job."

NEW ROUTINES

Then there was the business of striking a pose—the burlesque bender knee routine. Betty had to un-learn that. Also, in the movies you just sit down. You don't sit down and show your legs. She had to un-learn that. Also, when you deliver a line of dialog in the movies you don't read the line and then grin. Betty had to un-learn that.

"I'm taking motion pictures seriously," she said. "I've gone as far as I can go in burlesque. I want to play real roles and play them well instead of just trying to sink all over the place. I don't want to be another Mae West or a sarong girl. I want to act—with my clothes on."

In fact, Betty hopes she can be the first burlesque queen to make a name for herself in Hollywood. Any number of male burlesque stars have succeeded, such as Abbott and Costello, Betty's own husband, Gus Schilling, Phil Silvers, Rags Ragland and Bob Alva, who is now playing the title role in a film biography of George Gershwin. But the burlesque gals who have tried the movies have enjoyed little or no success.

Betty would much prefer to have some dramatic talent. Three years ago, in New York, Orson Welles wanted to take her out of Minsky's burlesque and cast her in his stage play, "Five Kings." Betty turned him down. "I was making too much money," she said. "I guess I'm the only person who ever turned down Welles for Minsky."

Until now, Betty has had only two jobs in Hollywood. Both were unfortunate experiences. The first time she played a strip tease in an REO picture. The censors eliminated all of her scenes except one brief line of dialog. The second time she was Goldwyn as technical adviser on the Barbara Stanwyck-Gary Cooper picture, "Ball of Fire." She was not only not paid, she says, but Goldwyn stole her title.

Whether he did will be decided by the courts soon. She's suing him.

War Today

It's taking a mighty lot of different materials to win the war and build our brave new world, and often in studying the current news in preparation for writing this column I feel like breaking away from the formal article and just sitting down some of the medley of impressions which one gets from this humanized daily history of mankind—and today we'll mix it up a bit.

What first—the war or the murder case in British Nassau? All right, I'll concede the mystery story. Red-robed and bewigged Chief Justice Sir Oscar Bedford Daly declared in charging the jury:

"No man in the empire, even in time of war, can be found guilty except on verdict of a jury."

Impression: That law applies in America, too. One of the things this war is being fought for is to sustain such rights. You have to distinguish between when you recall Hitler's savage threat in his Munich beer-all speech last week:

"What happened in 1938 will not happen a second time. When many people must fall in battle, I will not hesitate to put a few hundred criminals (people advocating peace) to death at home."

The Red forces thundering southwestward from Kiev are a hundred miles or so from the Rumanian frontier. That border is Hitler's lid which is keeping all hell from breaking loose in the Balkans.

Impression: The moment the fuhrer is forced to withdraw his control from this cockpit of southeastern Europe, the Balkans will blow up in his face. No wonder the Allies and the Turks are whispering anxiously.

War Production Board Donald Nelson, in telling a press conference about his recent trip to the Soviet Union, said the Russians had perfected the flow of materials in industry—"I mean the flow of material into a plant, and the flow of material out, much better than we have."

Impression: When you're fighting the greatest battles ever waged and are consuming more war material than ever before has been poured in, to conflict, you have no alternative but to perfect your flow of supplies. There can be no consideration in Russian industry of anything but to move supplies as fast as human strength and skill permit. That's a home-front job, and Russian civilians are a lot nearer the actualities of war than we in America.

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, gave the house of commons an accounting of his stewardship at the Moscow tripartite conference. He didn't make many disclosures, but he did say that the major success of the parley was in "the basis of good-will and confidence" which it established among the big three.

Impression: That's the foundation of all peace. Also, it does seem like a good idea for a foreign minister, or other members of cabinet, to appear before parliament and talk direct to the members. Do I hear someone saying "that gallant American eagle," Mr. Cordell Hull?

WARTIME HEALTH: Common Cold Is Best Defeated By Adequate Sleep

By DR. THOMAS D. MASTERS

Fall and winter temperature changes bring the common cold back into prominence. With wartime scarcity of doctors, it is important for the layman to inform himself of the correct routine to follow to rid himself of a cold and lose as little time as possible from war production.

Knowledge of the fever thermometer's uses and significance is of vital help here. It should be remembered that while the average figure is 98.6 degrees, there is also a normal range of temperature, and the body temperature of normal, healthy people may vary anywhere between 97 degrees and 99.4 degrees. Unless prolonged or very high, the body temperature should be the cause of no alarm. On the other hand, a very high temperature indicates something in need of investigation. Any temperature reading over 100 degrees is an absolute indication for bed rest.

There is no known way to prevent a cold, but it is almost impossible to resist the temptation "do something," and that something too often makes matters worse. It is doing nothing that brings the best results to the patient with a cold.

BEST INDICATED
Bed rest is the best treatment for a cold. It makes little or no difference what else is done. The duration of the illness will be reduced to the minimum with bed rest alone and it is absolutely imperative during fever and for 24 hours after fever.

All other treatment is symptomatic and usually does more harm than good. Aspirin contributes more to one's comfort than any single drug.

The duration of a cold is usually too short for the sufferer to be concerned with diet as a means of treatment. It is customarily advised, able, however, to increase the intake of fluids. A cathartic has no merit and frequently merely contributes to the general discomfort.

PROTECTING OTHERS
The common cold is a contagious disease and therefore the victim should try not to pass it on to others during the highly contagious period of the first three or four days after the onset.

The sufferer should prevent droplets from his own nose and mouth reaching the respiratory and alimentary tracts of those about him by covering his mouth, by not coughing carelessly and by meticulously washing the hands before preparing food.

New Employee—Sir, I'd come around, and tell you right away and not wait a month to kick up a fuss about it.

The Doctor's Daughters

By FAITH BALDWIN
COPYRIGHT, 1943, NEA SERVICE, INC.

THEY WERE WHEN Jim Thompson becomes Dr. Hall's assistant, he says, by Producer Samuel Goldwyn as technical adviser on the Barbara Stanwyck-Gary Cooper picture, "Ball of Fire." She was not only not paid, she says, but Goldwyn stole her title.

Miss Hall. The only other person I'd want is my aunt. But she's away, too. This—this just happened a little while ago," she said, he lips white.

A little later Emily opened the door for Jim and stood for a moment in the narrow hallway, giving him her report. Together they went back to the girl.

Presently Jim went next door to telephone. There was no phone in the Karsten cottage. He returned and smiled reassuringly at his patient. "The ambulance will be here very shortly," he said.

ON the way to the hospital, Emily sat beside Hilda in the ambulance, holding her hand. Jim followed in his car.

She waited while Hilda was admitted and taken to the ward. After a time Jim came out to her. He said, smiling, "She'll be all right. I'll look in on her later this evening. She's better off here with someone to look after her than at home. She'll have to stay in bed, perfectly quiet, for some time. He added, "I don't think she believes me. She looks upon me as a very poor substitute for your father, and, of course, she's right."

"If you'd wait a moment," said Emily, "perhaps I could persuade her—"

She went back toward the ward, and when she reappeared, she was smiling.

"You're wrong, she likes you, she thinks you're grand. And she's perfectly satisfied to remain here. She asked me to go back to Cedar Court, but I told her with the things she'll need and leave a note for Gus so that he wouldn't be scared."

"I'll go with you," he said. "I'm all through; this was the last call."

THEY went back to Cedar Court and let themselves in with Hilda's key, of which she was inordinately proud. While Emily packed, putting in the picture of Gus—showing him stern, large and very self-conscious in his wedding clothes, Jim stood around the house chewing on a cold pipe. "It's a crime," he announced, coming to stand before her, as she bent over the shabby little suitcase, "a kid like that getting married. And she hasn't any business having children, she's frail and undernourished and—"

"She's in love," said Emily calmly, "and Gus has a good job at the munition plant. Operates a punch press. He may be drafted but at present he's deferred. Hilda's had a pretty hard time. Her mother was a chronic cardiac, her father a drunken old creature who deserted his little family years ago. She has an aunt who is good to her after a fashion. But she's never had anything really her own till she acquired Gus and this little house. She'll be all right. She'll have her baby, she'll bring it up by the book and she'll make a home for it and for her father."

Someone was coming up the steps. Emily and Jim regarded one another. A heavy step but with youth and impatience in it. They had left the door open. Gus came barging through, shouting at the top of his voice, "Hilda," he shouted, "hey, Hilda . . ."

No good smell of dinner cooking greeted him. Emily came out and spoke to him quietly. He stared at her, his face blank. "You're square thick-featured face," he said, "My God, what's happened to her, Miss Hall?"

"She's perfectly all right," said Emily. "This is Dr. Thompson . . . he'll tell you more about it."

She went back to her bedroom leaving the two men alone. A moment later, the suitcase in his enormous hand, Gus was headed for the hospital. He declined their offer to drive him. He said, "You'll miss your dinner. It ain't very far, I'll take the street car."

He shuffled his feet a moment, and added, "I—Gee, thank you," he said miserably, and then with a great unashamed gulp—"if anything had happened to Hilda!"

He locked the door after them and went off at a furious pace toward the corner.

Germans Hunt Down Jews In City of Rome

By GUNNAR D. KUMLIEN (Copyright, 1943, Associated Press) STOCKHOLM, Nov. 12.—The battle of Rome has been going on now for weeks, but while the Germans need troops badly on the southern Italian front as well as in Russia they have been using soldiers to hunt down Jews in Rome.

The question being asked when I left Rome recently was: "How can the Germans afford to use soldiers to herd Jews together and carry them off?"

The Jews of Rome have a centuries-old tradition. Even before Christ the Jews had their own quarter in the eternal city.

Therefore, a few days after the Germans occupied Rome, it was no surprise when the president of the Mosaic congregation was advised by the German commandant that the Jews would have to pay over a large sum in gold.

The ransom was paid, and most Roman Jews thought they had bought peace and would be unmolested. Those who had gone into hiding when the Germans arrived returned to their homes. They ignored warnings from Jewish refugees from Poland and Germany, believing what they wanted to believe.

One morning at 5 a. m. the raids against the Jews began. They were conducted by small groups of German soldiers and S. S. men traveling in trucks. Men, women and children were loaded in cars and hauled away to an unknown destination.

There was tremendous indignation among the Italian population, who had never seen their former Allies work so brutally.

My next door neighbors were Jews, but had given up their flat for the summer. When two heavy, well-fed German soldiers came to the door they unfolded a large document and asked other neighbors if Jew so-and-so lived there.

"To Naples," one of my Italian friends said.

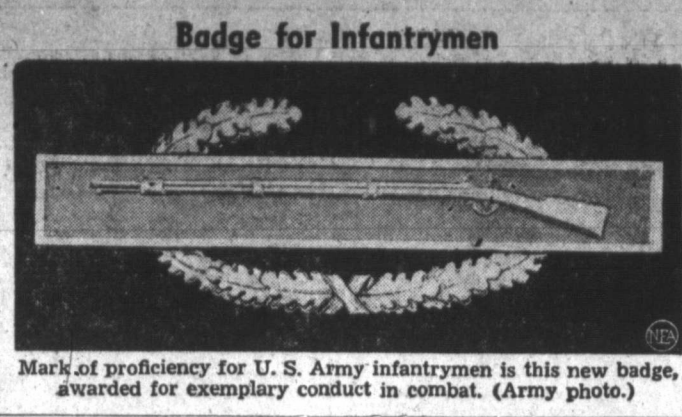

Of course, it wasn't true, but it was all for the best, for Naples now was in the hands of the Allies.

Undaunted, the Germans went on to ask for the Naples street address and other details. They received a detailed answer, while those present had difficulty to hide their laughter.

Why were the raids against the Jews regarded as necessary, in view of the fact that Italy, as Germany's Axis partner, had sponsored anti-Semitic measures since 1938?

The reason is that until the Germans occupied the country anti-Semitic measures were applied so moderately in Italy that it was one of the few European countries where Jews had at least a relatively safe haven of refuge.

A number of Italian Jews were drafted for labor service and some were assigned to dredge sand from

TODAY on the HOME FRONT

by JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

WASHINGTON—(P)—The 23rd annual observance of American education week finds the nation's school systems beset by wartime difficulties which leading educators say have brought a crisis in the schooling of a great many children.

School superintendents, unable to replace thousands of teachers lost to the armed services or better-paying war industries, report many schools closed, many taught by persons who in ordinary times wouldn't be considered qualified to teach.

Dr. Fred J. Kelly of the office of education told a house appropriations subcommittee, in the testimony reported last week, that there are about 20,000 teaching positions unfilled this fall.

"Therefore," he said, "either the schoolrooms are empty, or else classes are being doubled up in such a way as to run only part time, or something of that sort."

In addition to that, there are something like 50,000 emergency (teaching) certificates, which means that teachers are being employed who do not have what is ordinarily thought of as the necessary qualifications to prepare them for teaching.

"All over the country, the schools are using as teachers high school girls who have just graduated and other unqualified persons who are the alms of the river bed."

One day I decided to see how they were making out. I found the soldier assigned to guard them running up and down the bank getting them ice cream. The work of the Jews was being done amateurishly, for many had never touched a spade before.

After a while work was halted when a group of friends of some of the workers who belonged to a fashionable rowing club in Rome came rowing down the Tiber with cigarettes and beverages.

doing, I think, a pretty ineffective job."

This testimony was received in support of a request for $3,900,000 for short teacher-training courses, including "refresher" courses for former teachers wishing to return to the profession, and courses to prepare present teachers to handle additional classes in subjects given added importance by the war, such as vocational subjects, physical science and mathematics.

The house appropriations committee rejected the request, suggesting that offering increased salaries would be the best remedy for the teacher shortage.

WASHINGTON—(P)—Go easy on those tires, pal.

Drive your car only when necessary, don't speed, keep tires properly inflated, take it easy over the bumps, look out for rocks on the road, don't overload, ease up your stops so you don't slam on the brakes unnecessarily.

That, roughly, is what Rubber Director Bradley Dewey says in his progress report.

He says it particularly to truck and bus drivers, but the tone of the whole report carries a warning for every motorist.

Dewey's warnings aren't something new, of course. They've been repeated many times. But now, he says, the stockpile of tires is down to an "irreducible minimum."

When any rough treatment leads to a blowout of the tire carcass, there's no chance of retreading. Dewey reports that recapping material, at least, is now available in greater quantity than ever before.

"What about synthetic tires?" you may ask.

They're available now only to persons whose gasoline ration permits them to drive 601 or more miles a month: No new tires for "A" or "B" card holders.

And drivers using synthetic rubber tires get an extra order of cautions:

Buna S, principal synthetic rubber now being manufactured—standard for production of tires for passenger cars, smaller buses and trucks, motorcycles, industrial and farm tractors and bicycles—develops more heat than rubber when subject to strains.

So Dewey says of these: "Greater care must be given to synthetic tires than to crude rubber tires. If properly inflated, properly loaded and not abused, these tires can be driven at reasonably high speed over SMOOTH roads to give 90 per cent or more of the tread wear of first line pre-war tires."

"If hot, either as a result of hot pavements or high speed driving, these tires are more easily damaged than tires made with crude rubber, especially when driven under abusive conditions, such as hitting holes or rocks in the road, under-inflation

—then this is what Arthur Whiteside, head of the office of civilian requirements, says:

"The situation in that line should be safe in the next 30 to 60 days." But Roy Cheney, president of the Underwear Institute which claims membership of 85 per cent of the manufacturers, will go along with Whiteside's "safe" forecast only to this extent:

"If the war manpower commission declares the underwear industry essential to the war and, therefore, its workers essential, I'm hopeful that we can begin approaching production for minimum needs in the next 30 to 60 days."

Whiteside's word "safe" meant only enough garments to meet essential needs.

It did not mean enough to meet demands, for the difference between need and demand is something like this:

A woman, needing only two dozen diapers for her child, buys only that many. A woman, needing only two dozen diapers for her child but, fearing a diaper shortage, demands 12 dozen.

Cheney says that because the underwear workers have not been declared essential—and therefore given draft deferment—they have gone into the army or into other industries.

by the thousands. A second factor hindering production of infants' and children's low-priced garments, Cheney says, has been ceilings which, imposed by the office of price administration, the industry considered too low.

Those ceilings, Cheney says, have forced manufacturers to turn to other lines where the margin of profit is larger. He says it will continue that way unless the ceilings are relaxed.

Argentine Head Says People Oppose War

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 12.—(P)—President Gen. Pedro Ramirez of Argentina was quoted by El Mercurio of Santiago as asserting that "undoubtedly a great majority of Argentine people favor victory of the nations defending the democratic cause."

However, "the same people are not desirous of breaking relations with any nation which has not injured, offended or damaged Argentina," the president was quoted as saying in an interview with El Mercurio's representative. This was for "the simple reason that the people love peace and have no reasons of their own to enter the war," he said.

Mexico Receives Rubber Supply

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 12.—(P)—To relieve a critical rubber shortage, eight freight cars loaded with 300 tons of rubber will be attached to the Laredo-Mexico City express passenger train for quicker delivery, the national economy ministry said today.

The rubber from U. S. reserves has been delivered to Laredo but a short of locomotives delayed its transport here.

MISS P. U. HOW COME YOU'VE WRITING ON MISS B'S WRITING PAPER?

HONEY YOU'VE UP TO SOMETHING WHAT ADDS UP TO NO GOOD I BETS

LET ME TELL YOU THAT PISTOL DOWN, BABE.

HAS YOU GONE SOFT IN THE HAIR DANCY MAE?—JUST STANDING THERE INSTEAD OF DANCING TO THE LOL TO LOVES?

OH, AH FIGGERS IT'LL BE LESS STRENGTH WHEN THEY'RE ALL NIN-CHASE ME?

DON'T BE A MAD ROMANTICAL FOOL, CHILE. THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO GET A RUBBIN' IN BOOPACH—THIS WAY!! (Loud) UNDER WHAT THIS ONE LOOKS LIKE?—HOPE HE'S HE'S ROBIN!

JEST LIKE AN FIGGERED?

NO FEET-NO! DON'T TAKE ME BACK THER?—OH SOB! FEET?—DON'T TREAT ME LIKE THIS AFTER ALL THE YEARS WE'VE BIN TOGETHER?

THAT PUNCH ON TH' JOAN DIDN'T FAZE ME, RYDER? I TRAINED TO WITHSTAND YOU!

TRAINED? HUH?

YOU DID LEARN SOME THIN TRICKS, BUT YOU DIDN'T LEARN TO FAIR—HANLON!

WHEN YOU WHIPPED ME ONLY WHEN ONE-EYE HAD A GUN IN MY BACK—HOW DOES A SQUARE PUNCH FEEL?

PECHUM!

PECHUM! WORSE THAN PANIS SEAFUN!

YEZZIR IN TAKIN' EM BACK TO MOO, YOURS BETCHA?

BUT OOR THAT'S INHUMAN! EVEN IF THEY ARE JAPS I WON'T LET YOU FEED THEM TO THE DINOSAURS!

OH, YEP! WELL, HOW Y'GONNA STOP ME WHEN THEY'RE ALREADY ON THEIR WAY??

AN BECAUSE I GOTTA SEE THAT THERE'S NO HITCHES, SO AM I SO LONG! I'LL BE SEEN YOU SOON!

NOW LET'S RUN THROUGH THAT SCENE ONCE MORE!

YE NATIVES HERE MAY NOT BE FRIENDLY, SO I HAVE SENT MILES STANDISH ASHORE TO FIND OUT!

HE WILL RETURN—AND TELL US WHICH WAY THE WIND BLOWETH!

THOSE 'INDIANS' COME TOO CLOSE! CAN'T SOMEBODY ELSE BE THE WEATHER VANE?

ON ENGLAND EASY RECEIVES MYSTERIOUS ORDERS FROM COLONEL HARPER.

...AND SO, EASY, YOU'RE TO GO TO ITALY...THEY'VE GOT WORK FOR YOU THERE.

WELL, EASY, IF IT'S WITHIN MY POWER... I'VE QUALIFIED AS A SUNNER... COULD I FLY TO THE NEXT SHUTTLE RAID?

YOU'LL GET PLENTY OF ACTION ON YOUR NEW ASSIGNMENT, MY BOY! BUT I'LL SEE WHAT I CAN DO.

YOU SEE, COLONEL, I'VE WELL...STAYED PRETTY CLOSE TO A DESK AND A...

THAT'S SO! I FORGOTTEN TO TELL YOU ABOUT THOSE NAZI ACK-ACK GUNNERS... THEY MUST HAVE HEARD THE SMOKE WHEN YOU WIPED OUT VON SCHWITZ!

CO WHAT?—THEY HEARD SCHMEISSER'S? THEY'D RECOGNIZE AN EXCURSION TICKET TO NAPLES... AN' I WISHES YOU GOOD HUNTING!

GAT'S—HT, SKIPPER—WE ONLY FIRED A CLIP (APPEES?)

THEN THERE'S A FAIR CHANCE THAT YOU HAD MUCH TROUBLE WITH 'EM IF TH' NEWCOMERS HADN'T TRIED TO MAKE 'EM CLEAN UP THEIR WIG-WAMS!

IT'LL BE A PLEASURE! JUST LEMME TAKE DOSE SIX EYEBHS WE DOLLED UP IN LAST LUNARONS AN' I TREAT FRITZY BOY TO AN OLD FASHIONED MARINE CORPS SURPRISE PARTY!

EGAD, JASON! NOW THAT WE HAVE THE GOAT, HOW SHALL I CASOLE MRS. HOOPLE TO RECEIVE IT HOSPITABLY?—WELL, SHE HAS AN AVERSION TO ANIMALS ON THE PREMISES—PERHAPS I CAN CONVINCE HER THE GOAT WILL GIVE HER A BACK YARD A PICTURE-SQUE ALL-DAY TONGUE.

MISTAH MAJOR, THE OUTLOOK MAKE ME FEEL CHILLY AS AN ICEMAN'S SHIRT!—BUT YOU IS TH' SUPREME DIPLOMAT... YOU COULD SELL MUSSOLINI AN EXCURSION TICKET TO NAPLES... AN' I WISHES YOU GOOD HUNTING!

I DON'T THINK, EVEN AFTER CROWDIN' IN ON THE INDIANS, WE'D OF HAD MUCH TROUBLE WITH 'EM IF TH' NEWCOMERS HADN'T TRIED TO MAKE 'EM CLEAN UP THEIR WIG-WAMS!

I THINK TH' WORST TROUBLE CAME WHEN TH' NEWCOMERS TRIED TO MAKE 'EM CLEAN UP TH' NEWCOMERS' WIG-WAMS—IN OTHER WORDS, 'MAKE 'EM WORK FER USA!

Plainview Blanked By Pampa, 33-0

A story-book 102-yard dash by Billy Washington, scoring the final touchdown, made it a perfect day for the Pampa Harvesters at Plainview Thursday when the Pampa High school team blanked the Plainview eleven, 33 to 0.

Plainview was held scoreless in the first quarter, the Harvesters came back strong in the second period, getting a touchdown in the first play of the period...

Army camps. Why, in a recent report made by the government, it said the Army usually prefers its camps to be located in wet instead of dry communities. And there's a sound reason. In a wet community the Army can control drinking. In dry communities where bootleggers run wild it's almost impossible. We know that from our nearly 14 years of experience with national prohibition.

Return to Dust Bowl Is Feared

CHICAGO, Nov. 12 (AP)—H. H. Bennett, chief of the U. S. soil conservation service, declared today that the nation is risking a return to "dust bowl" conditions of the mid-30s.
He asserted that thousands of acres of land in the central and southern great plains have been seeded to wheat, despite the reported lowest moisture content in the soil in numerous localities since 1937.
Unless these lands are favored by substantial and widespread rain or snow this winter, soil blowing may again become prevalent, Bennett said in a speech prepared for delivery to the annual conference of friends of the land.

aided him in case after case, with his diagnoses and therapies, adding that Dr. Salmon "opened a new world" to him.

"When I undertook the pastorate at the Riverside Church, Dr. Salmon and I hoped to have a clinic there, where," he writes, "the resources of medical science and Christian ministry would be combined in the help of troubled minds, but his untimely death prevented that plan's fruition. Since then I have constantly utilized the increasing resources of psychiatric service in New York."

"I have never been able to give myself to this work as I once dreamed I might, but a steady stream of troubled minds and disturbed emotions seeking help has willy-nilly kept me at it, and nothing in my ministry gives me more satisfaction now than the memory of some of the results."

More than once in writing the book, Dr. Poedick said, he asked himself for whom the book was being written. He gives this reply in the introduction:
"I have pictured its readers in terms of the many, diverse individuals who have come to me for help. Here I have tried to set down what I have seen going on inside real people, have endeavored to describe their familiar mental and emotional maladies, their alibis and rationalizations, their ingenious, unconscious tricks of evasion and escape, their handling of fear, anxiety, guilt, and humiliation, their confusions and sublimations also, and the positive faiths and resources from which I have seen help come. As I look over my manuscript, I see that I have gone on trying to be a personal counselor in this book, habitually thinking, as I wrote, of typical individuals who have consulted me. They make up a fascinating company, and this book is altogether for them."

"So, for what it may be worth, here is the story of what one minister has found out about people's 'insides' and what can be done about them."

Paratroopers Feed Farmers
FORT BENNING, Ga., Nov. 12 (AP)—Alabama farmers watched wide-eyed yesterday as a pre-Thanksgiving feast dropped from the sky.

The full-course dinner was a gift from the Fort Benning parachute school to the farmers whose fields the paratroopers have used for training jumps. The group of some 100 rural residents had gathered to watch a demonstration of how isolated troops are fed from the air.

Baptists Urge Sex Education By Churches

DALLAS, Nov. 12 (AP)—Dr. T. C. Gardner, state director of the Baptist Training Union, has recommended that churches remain open seven nights a week and provide sex education for children and adults.

Addressing 5,000 Texas Baptists, who closed a three-day convention here last night, Dr. Gardner asserted "while the churches are dark, the places of vice and evil such as the honky-tonk and the beer tavern and so forth have glaring and alluring lights turned on most of the night."

As a counter-attraction, Dr. Gardner would have nightly programs of education and recreation in the churches—book reviews on Monday night; Bible study and personal witnessing, Tuesday; mid-week prayer, Wednesday; music, Thursday; study, Friday, and mission and visitation on Saturday
