Housing Shortage Is No Lifetime Problem, It Extends to Dead

By HAL BOYLE
HAVANA (AP)—The housing shortage is so acute in Cuba's capital it affects even the cemeteries. The dead as well as the living must contend for space. Only the bones of the rich or eminent persons are accorded the permanent luxury of the six feet of earth that death traditionally bestows in other lands.

In crowded Colon Cemetery most tenements get only a three-year lease. When it expired they are removed to make way for newcomers and they wind up in the final democracy of a common bone pit. The Colon Cemetery, one of the great graveyards of the world, is misused by the type of tourist who sees Havana through the Dalkuni glasses at Sloppy Joe's Bar but is sought out by many students of Latin architecture.

The huge sprawling, cemetery riotous with tropical flowers and the carved monuments with which the Latin races memorialize their dead, is a place of beauty rather than sadness. The inhabitants dwell pretty much in death as their financial resources permitted in life. Old Miguel Gonzalez, one of 400 caretakers who earn a living polishing decorative brass handlings on the marble tombs expiated the burial system to me.

"In the wealthy sections people pay $75 for a lot which is theirs forever. They build a tomb above ground which costs them from $300 to $150,000. Most families have a plot with four places."

"In another section," said Gonzalez, "people pay $80 to rent a cement tomb above ground in which they lie for three years. "In the third section people pay $9 and are buried in the ground for three years. Paupers who die in government hospitals are buried free."

At the end of three years survivors are notified by newspaper advertisements that unless other provisions are made, the bones will be disinterred and put in a common pit. Usually there is no response to the ads the cheap wooden crosses are taken down and the earth is ready once more.

Civilians May Offset Lack of New Inductees

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman today recommended that Congress let the draft law expire on March 31.

In a message to the legislators, Mr. Truman advised that the War and Navy Departments will request reenactment of a selective service act later if they are unable to keep the Army at a strength of 1,070,000 men and the Navy at its authorized 571,000, through voluntary enlistments.

He requested that the services be authorized to hire—from funds already appropriated—the necessary civilian help to offset any shortage of inductees if strength falls below the required levels.

The White House dispatched the message to Capitol Hill while the President himself was flying to Mexico City for a three-day good will visit. (See Column 8.)

Last spring, Congress extended the draft law until March 31 of this year and raised pay scales of enlisted men. The idea then was to see whether the armed forces could get all the men they needed as volunteers.

New Gas Line Would Start Near Dumas

Barring the rescinding of a Federal Power Commission grant, an $5-million-dollar natural gas pipeline will be constructed within the next year, starting at a point near Dumas and extending to the Austin gas field in Western Michigan.

The FPC has granted a tentative permit to the Michigan-Wisconsin Pipeline Company to build the line, but strenuous objections have been made by the Panhandle—Eastern Pipeline Company.

The line, to rival the famed "Big Inch," in some respects may be started by the end of the year, provided that legal hurdles are cleared by the fall of the year, according to the Associated Press.

If these timetables are adhered to, the company hopes to start gas flowing through the main 26-inch artery by January, 1948.

Victorious thus far in its hard fought legal struggle with Panhandle Eastern, Michigan-Wisconsin already has been given the green light by the Federal Power Commission to build the line.

FPC approval, technically known as a "certificate of public necessity and convenience," was granted in a 3-2 decision last Nov. 30. The majority justified the decision on the basis of the "great public need" for gas in the four-State area the company proposes to serve—Missouri, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Executive to Visit Latin State 3 Days

MEXICO CITY (AP)—President Harry S. Truman arrived here today for his three-day visit with President Miguel Aleman.

"The Sacred Cow" which left Kansas City at 2:59 a.m. CST landed at 9:37 a.m. CST. President Truman was welcomed on the airfield by President Aleman, his cabinet, the Governor of the Federal District, Fernando Casas Aleman, not a relative of the President, and other dignitaries.

Truman came in seven hours from the cold and snow of Kansas City into the summer warmth and sunshine of Mexico. The airport was transformed for the visit. A great platform flanked by high columns was erected for the unprecedented official session of the Consultative Council which made President Truman a "guest of honor" of the city. Governor Casas Aleman presented the President with an inscribed gold medal and a parchment.

"The Sacred Cow" circled the field for five minutes before landing. Then it taxied toward the buildings and stopped before the platform and the balcony where the receiving party was assembled.

As artillery fired a 21-gun salute, the two presidents advanced and shook hands. Then there was a round of introductions among the several score of officials and the U. S. Embassy Staff.

State Getting Used to Visits Of Presidents

By WILBUR MARTIN
DALLAS (AP)—When Harry S. Truman flies to Waco Thursday to receive a degree from Baylor University, he will be the fourth president to visit Texas while in office, best available records show.

Four other former chief executives saw the Lone Star state before or after serving their terms. The Roosevelts—Theodore and Franklin D.—dropped in on Texas while president, as did William H. Taft.

Each time the nation's titular head came to Texas, the folks outdid themselves. Dallas, Waco, San Antonio and several border points have decked themselves in Sunday best for the occasion.

The late Franklin D. Roosevelt holds the record for number of trips. He popped into political limelight when he nominated Al Smith for president at the National Democratic Convention in Houston in 1928. That was the year traditionally Democratic Texas voted for the Republican candidate, Herbert Hoover.

The Texas Centennial in 1936 brought him back as president and he delivered an address at Dallas. In 1938, he put into Port Aransas on a fishing trip. He did not touch land, however, but fished Texas waters as far as Port Isabel.

In the middle of World War II, April, 1943, Roosevelt and then President Roosevelt's son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., met at Monterey, Mexico. On the return trip, Camacho accompanied him through Brownsville to Corpus Christi. But this wartime visit was a very quiet affair.

Total 22 Dead in Palestine Riots

JERUSALEM (AP)—Deaths by violence in Palestine mounted to 22 in three days when the shooting of a Jewish curfew violator in Tel Aviv today as the British Army maintained martial law over a third of the Holy Land's 700,000 Jews.

British officials reported that Isaac Poli, 30-year-old Jewish ex-serviceman, was shot and killed while bicycling in Tel Aviv when he failed to heed a soldier's order to halt.

His death was the second traceable to control measures imposed to facilitate a hunt for Jewish underground fighters. Ketti Shalom, four-year-old Jewish, died in a hospital yesterday. Officials said she was hit in the back of the head and her mother was wounded in the leg by bullets fired at Ketti's father, leaving the house in violation of a curfew.

Martial law was in force for more than 250,000 Jews in Jerusalem's oldest and biggest Jewish district, the Mea Shearim section, and in a northern coastal plain area measuring some four by 10 miles and embracing Tel Aviv, Ramat Gan, Petah Tikva, Be'er Zeraq and other Jewish communities.

A curfew keeping residents to their homes was lifted at dawn today in the coastal section. In the Jerusalem martial-law area, housing some 15,000 Jews, inhabitants were allowed out for the first time since 7 p.m. Saturday as a daily three-hour suspension of the curfew became effective at 10 a.m.

Ninth-Brigade Infantrymen began a search for Jewish extremists today in the Mea Shearim section, cluttered alleys and rabbit-warren homes of the poverty-ridden vicinity of Mea Shearim, "the place of a hundred sorrows." By invitation, Rabbi Moshe Goldman went along as observer in searches of religious institutions.

The Army reported that soldiers searching Tel Aviv had found a "considerable quantity" of arms and ammunition last night.

House Committee Drafting Strong Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Hartley (R-N.J.) today ticked off ten points the House Labor Committee may put into a new labor bill, including bans on the closed shop and on union membership for foremen and some communists and radio commentators.

They are intended to reduce or eliminate such things as jurisdictional strikes, secondary boycotts, and strikes ordered by only a small percentage of a union's membership.

Hartley told a reporter he thinks there is a "good chance" the committee will agree that radio and newspaper reporters who "make public opinion" should be forbidden to join unions. He said reporters who do "straight away" news writing should be exempt from the ban.

It would be in line with a suggestion by former Publisher J. David Stern, who earlier this year suggested that radio and newspaper reporters be treated as "public opinion" and "not public opinion."

None of Hartley's ten points deals directly with the issue before the committee at the moment—charged Communism in the labor movement.

'Close the Door, Tell Us All the Secrets, George'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Tobey, (R-NH), proposed today that Secretary of State Marshall tell Congress behind closed doors exactly how the crisis presented in the troubled Mediterranean and the near East before the lawmakers are called upon to vote for bigger cash outlays abroad.

Tobey, who heads the Senate Banking Committee charged with passing on foreign loans, told a reporter he thinks the crisis presented by possible withdrawal of British military and economic aid to Greece can be "met only by an informed Congress."

"I think General Marshall ought to come before Congress in an executive (secret) session and tell us the actual situation in all of its grave aspects," the New Hampshire senator said. "This will be a severe test but an informed Congress will meet it if it and the American people are told the truth."

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the Republican whip, said that in his view if any "political loans" are to be made they should be discussed frankly on the floor of the Senate. Marshall outlined the state department's financial needs for the next fiscal year at the Moscow conference.

Chairman Stefan (R-Neb.) told news men the committee called General Marshall out to turn to permit the secretary to present the department's needs before leaving this week for the Moscow conference.

Bill for Negro School in State Gets Senate OK

AUSTIN (AP)—The Senate today gave final passage to legislation setting up a system of higher education for Negroes in Texas.

The vote was 23 to 2 concurring with the final passage of legislation setting up a system of higher education for Negroes in Texas.

The House amendments were given quick attention immediately following the Senate's morning roll call. There was no open opposition on the floor. Only Sens. Howard A. Carney of Atlanta and Charles R. Jones of Bonham, who have consistently opposed the bill, voted negative today.

Jester has advocated establishment of such a system, and his quick signature to the bill, making it law, is being hailed as a landmark. Before the Legislature as emergency business, was expected. The Board of Regents of the University of Texas Sunday adopted a resolution to set up an emergency law school for Negroes March 10 when the bill becomes law.

UN Committee to Probe Charges Against Albania

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. (AP)—A three-man subcommittee of the United Nations Security Council today sitting in London, will probe charges today on Britain's charges that Albania committed "a crime against humanity" by sowing mines in Corfu Channel.

As representatives of Poland, Australia and Colombia took up their task, Great Britain prepared to intensify her bid to force a decision in the Council on the long-hanging mine-laying complaint against Albania.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate to the Council, will appear before the subcommittee to elaborate and clarify London's complaint. British sources said he would attempt to block any move to detain the case to the International Court of Justice without a prior Council finding against Tirana government.

Some delegates said they expected a controversy to develop over whether the subcommittee should make specific recommendations to the Council in its report, due March 10.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Opponents of the bill which would legalize pari-mutuel betting at Texas horse race tracks today defeated today when the House voted down an attempt to tie the bill back to committee.

The vote was 64-72 against Rep. Jim Wright's motion to recommit the bill to the House. Wright's motion was defeated 64-72. The House vote was 64-72.

The House chairman's list of things likely to go into his committee's bill is based on suggestions from the group has received in a series of hearings and on reactions of committee members to them.

WE, THE WOMEN

Husbands Are Now Household Partners

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

Talking to a New York audience on "What Women's Changing Role Does to Marriage," Dr. Janet Fowler Nelson, family consultant, reminded her audience that man's role in the family—as well as woman's—is undergoing changes. That is something that modern women, who like to pat themselves on the back for being able to combine marriage, children and careers or community welfare work, often overlook.

They give themselves all the credit for being able to do more than "just a housewife." Actually, man's changing role in the family helps to make it possible for a woman to have some work or interest besides house-making.

Today's young husbands—much more than their fathers or grandfathers—are real partners in the job of home-making. Instead of being household tyrants whose meals must appear on the dot, who must be waited on and catered to, they are more often than not understanding partners who not only don't demand housekeeping perfection from their wives, but are willing to lend a helping hand with the kids and the household chores.

MEN APPLAUD WIVES' ZEAL
As husbands are becoming increasingly tolerant of "outside interests" in the lives of their wives, instead of believing, like Grandpa, that women have no business galivanting around and trying to run things, today's husband usually takes pride in his wife's accomplishments outside the home.

It is interesting to note that the bride and groom at the wedding of Miss Ruth Millett and Mr. Leon Martin, Thursday evening at 7 p. m. in the home of the bride, were dressed in the traditional white of the bride and groom. TOO MUCH HISTORY

Every few months, it seems, somebody discovers the answer to "What's wrong with America?" Not long ago Philip Wylie diagnosed "momism" as the single cause of most of our individual and national ills. Now Prof. Garrett Mattingly of Cooper Union in New York City has a new one.

The trouble, he says, is that we overemphasize the teaching of American history in our schools. He perceives a distorted nationalism and cultural isolation as a result. Professor Mattingly said this to a group of leading educators at Princeton University's international conference on educational problems. Nobody contradicted him, so maybe he's right. But we can't help recalling the questionnaire on American history which the New York Times submitted to a nationwide selection of high school graduates three or four years ago.

Though we don't remember any specific instances, the results were appalling. Some of the answers were howlingly funny until one stopped to realize the pathetic ignorance that had produced them. As a result of this poll, several states made the teaching of American history compulsory.

Perhaps the emphasis has now swung the other way. But even so it seems unlikely that it could have produced these dire results. We doubt that American minds are growing more distortedly nationalistic. Nor is there any dead level of thinking among our youth on the subjects which Professor Mattingly speaks.

Furthermore, isolationism and twisted nationalism are not chiefly products of the history classroom. They are affirmed or denied by home teaching and environment. These in turn are shaped by many influences—the neighborhood, the section of the country, the parents' occupation, economic position, racial origin, and so on. These are surely as important as the sketchy instruction which grade and high school pupils necessarily get in so vast and complex a subject as world history.

Professor Mattingly seems to feel that this major emphasis on American history is bad in itself. But does it always produce the bad results he describes, no matter how excellent the textbook or teacher may be.

It seems quite possible that an intelligent presentation of American history could combat distorted nationalism and culture isolation. It seems equally possible that world history could be presented in such a way as to encourage these misconceptions.

Professor Mattingly must agree that the evils of which he complains have been more prevalent in past years than they are now. They are still strong, of course. But they seem even stronger as the world draws more closely together, and the United States assumes a more important role in world affairs.

World history must be taught to the youngsters who will help shape future history. It scarcely seems dangerous if they devote even more time to learning of their own country and its people.

You Can Bet On It

Texas Today

Presidents have come and Presidents have gone, and Waco was almost blasé when the announcement was made not long ago that President Truman would visit there March 6.

There had been President Teddy Roosevelt a couple of times, President Taft . . .

But a new generation is learning all over again what a headache playing host to a President can be. The secret service moved in and in a brief week or two learned more about Waco than most of its natives know.

For example: Everyone who comes in contact with the President in any way must be accredited. They're investigated well in advance.

All cars must be off the streets to be used by the President. People may stand on the sidewalks, but they can't stand in the streets.

Maybe they can't even use their cameras to take the President's picture. Secret Service Agent Coy Lewis, formerly of Groesbeck, Texas, warned that there's no telling what would happen if someone stepped up and pushed a little black box at the President and snapped.

"We wouldn't know for sure what he was doing. And we wouldn't have time to stop and find out," he said. No one will be allowed on the roofs of buildings overlooking the parade, and at Baylor University campus, all buildings the President will pass must be completely emptied.

No private flying will be allowed at the time. The airport must be cleared of all civilians. The route to the city, six miles of winding highway, will be guarded by 300 soldiers from Camp Hood. Officers from most of the nearby towns will be on hand to help Waco's 70 officers.

The food the President eats will be tested. Just what will be done about the weather hasn't been announced. But President Taft and Neff of Baylor, who started the whole thing by granting the degree to President Truman, has said flatly: "The weather will be good Thursday."

It's better bet on the secret service.

In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD—We're back home again in Hollywood after our junket trip to Salt Lake City and premiere of "Ramrod." Enterprise's western starring Veronica Lake and Joel McCrea.

Crossing the desert, the sole surviving celebrant of the three days and nights was Sonny Tufts, who didn't go to bed for three days and nights. "Sonny likes to celebrate. But I sleep sometimes, too," Sonny said. "Why after a party at Jack Oakie's house I went to bed and slept all day and all night and all the next day and the next night. I woke up feeling fine. But I was a little confused. I couldn't remember what month it was!"

We can report that the junket of 150 stars and members of the press was a big success. The whole town turned out for a big parade, the premiere, receptions, and dinners.

The stars were mobbed everywhere they went by screaming fans and autograph collectors. It was a three-day holiday. Naturally, Joel McCrea took the biggest applause.

Well, I see that the Japanese sent a bunch of Geisha girls into a charcoal district where their singing and dancing was supposed to persuade the workers to increase their production.

Since we've given Japan a lot of new ideas about government, I don't see why we shouldn't borrow that idea from them.

A line-of-precision dancers like the Rockettes might do wonders in a factory where the workers were getting careless. And I'm sure a group of Carl Carroll cuties would do much to brighten the lives of the men who work down in coal mines. Although it would look strange to see a sign outside a coal mine saying, "Through this hole in the ground pass the most beautiful girls in the world!"

However, I don't think chorus girls would help on a construction job. If one bricklayer made an appreciative noise, all the other bricklayers would think it was the five o'clock whistle and quit for the day.

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

One of the most far-reaching and delicate international issues of the post-war period has been raised by Britain's unprecedented proposal that a big part of her obligations in Greece be assumed by the United States, and the U. S. State Department's reply which is reported to be "favorable in principle"—contingent on Congressional approval and British agreement to maintain troops there.

That John Bull should find himself unable to meet his obligations to his little Balkan protégée is easily understandable. He is in the midst of a life-and-death economic crisis which renders him incapable of providing the money necessary—said to be some $250,000,000 for the current year. What some folk may not find quite so clear is why Britain (and the U.S.A.) should feel it necessary to maintain Greece in this relationship.

The answer is that Greece is the keystone of Britain's important zone of influence in the Eastern Mediterranean. Greece is England's last toe-hold on the Balkan Peninsula. Should the British be compelled to withdraw there, there's small doubt that Greece, already small pressed by communistic neighbors, would be wallowed by the Red tide. Athens would take orders from Moscow.

The result of such a development might easily render Turkey—now a friend of the Western Allies—vulnerable to Soviet pressure so that Russia would at long last gain her heart's desire of controlling the Dardanelles Strait—a strategically one of the most important water thoroughfares in the world.

But that's not the whole story. Western Britain, knocked out in the Eastern Mediterranean, the dyke which has been acting as a deterrent to the sweep of the Red tide across Western Europe would have been breached. Italy might be the next communication right through to the English Channel.

The present position poses two problems for America and Britain in particular and for the Western democracies in general: (1) Is it wise from the standpoint of world peace for any one great power to control all of continental Europe? (2) Do the Western democracies intend to combat the encroachment of communism on their territories or do they just intend to let nature take its course?

WASHINGTON—(P)—Add the name of Senator Overton (D-La.) to those who say it pays to use want ads.

The Senator advertised for a stenographer in a Washington newspaper and yesterday nearly 100 women and two men formed a long line leading to the locked doors of Senator Overton's quarters in the Senate Office Building.

Reached by telephone, the Senator asserted that "I had no idea so many people wanted jobs. They've swamped me."

He added that the post would net the winning applicant $4,500 annually.

COMPETITION

by Upton Close

For the first time since the New Deal began supporting the monopolistic trend of unionism the public and Congress are forced to recognize a split between "labor" and labor union heads. The word "labor" today cannot be used for blanket application to both—if it ever could.

So They Say

President Truman's budget is as heavy with lard as a pig at slaughter time.—Sen. Edward Martin (R) of Pennsylvania.

One of the things nurses resent bitter but quietly are the bad manners and general boorishness of some members of the medical profession who regard themselves as something sacrosanct.—Dr. Fred Carter, superintendent St. Luke's Hospital, Cleveland, O.

It is one of the axioms of a free society that special privileges, legal immunities and irresponsible power corrupt even the best of men, and human leaders are quite human in this respect.—Sen. Joseph H. Ball (R) of Minnesota.

* THOUGHTS

Heaven's help is better than early rising.—Miguel de Cervantes.

Anger seeks its prey—Something to tear with sharp teeth and claws.—George Eliot.

Keep A Balance

These thoughts may explain why not all of labor has been willing to get behind the banner that "industry can afford a 25 per cent general wage increase without raising prices." The American Federation of Labor has reported its findings that in 1946 an 18-1-2 cent wage increase brought increases in living costs of equal amount. The balance of wages and prices is just that close in our economic structure.

Now is the time for each American to understand, along with Mrs. Pennythrift the housewife, that all of us must cooperate in order to use these fundamental economic facts to the advantage of the whole nation. We cannot hope to maintain for long this free America which we love, unless we seek long range cooperation and understanding, rather than short-sighted group advantages which in the end are destructive to all.

As a rule, either type of regimentation runs much too far in denying head-room for the individual, leaving him no incentive, no chance to get ahead under his own steam.

A December survey, sampling many unionized industries including some of the most controlled of the CIO, found that more than half the card-holders objected to the drastic methods of their union leaders. Specifically, the majority held that they had lost more by strikes than they had gained.

Such a repudiation of unionizing by the persons who were promised the greatest gain from it, is one of the more encouraging signs of this post-war period. It indicates that in the same industry the laborer has kept his head despite the avalanche of propaganda hurled at it since war's end.

Congress in shaping legislation is virtually forced to take cognizance of the wishes of labor, as distinguished from the wishes of union heads. It's time to ask the man who works.

"Certainly I could find someone in the News Want Ads. to fix the roof—but then I couldn't charge you for bath privileges!"
