Last Draft To Be Less Than 10,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today that fewer than 10,000 men will be drafted in the next six months before Selective Service is phased out June 30 and the military shifts to an all-volunteer force.

Laird said there would be no draft calls in January and that inductions will be spread out between February and June 30.

At an unscheduled news conference, the secretary said he was confident of a smooth transition to an all-volunteer Army but he said he still expected some difficulties in recruiting enough men for the National Guard and Reserves once the pressure of the draft is ended.

The secretary said the armed forces had hoped to begin offering enlistment bonuses for the Guard and Reserves by Feb. 1 but Congress' failure to approve this program will not make this possible.

Unless the enlistment bonus is enacted, he said, Congress may have to authorize a limited draft for the Reserves after June 30 to insure they are kept up to strength.

Since the Pentagon began winding draft calls down, enlistments in the reserve forces have fallen drastically.

Laird recommended last year that Congress enact a bonus incentive program for the Reserves totaling $200 million for fiscal 1974. Under this program, a young man or woman signing up for a six-year enlistment in the Guard or Reserves would receive an $1,100 bonus.

Laird would not reveal who his successor would be, saying that would be announced by the President. However, he joked that while he may be a lame-duck secretary, he is "not a limping secretary of Defense."

PPC Opens Tomorrow

The Gray County Planned Parenthood Clinic's opening session, with a Pampa medical doctor in attendance, will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The clinic is at 615 E. Albert.

Women attending the clinic receive a physical examination and a Pap, or cancer, smear. Counseling on family planning is provided, as well as a birth control method, if desired.

All clinic services are free of charge. Appointments may be made by calling 665-2291. Outreach workers who staff the office from 9 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, are Mrs. Shirley Boddy and Mrs. Jane Kadango.

Those desiring transportation to the clinic should call before 5:30 p.m. today, or between 8:30 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. Information on clinic patients is confidential. Testing for venereal disease, with written consent, is done, also, on a confidential basis, regardless of age. The physical examination, Pap smear and birth control method are available to women 18 or over. For those under 18, these services are available if they are married, if they have given birth to a child, or with parental consent.

Celanese To Mark Anniversary Of Operation With Open House

The Celanese Chemical Co. with a plant west of Pampa, will commemorate 20 years of operation with several activities beginning Saturday, Dec. 2, with an open house and plant tours by employees and their friends. The plant tour will be from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. followed by refreshments in Pamel Hall.

Other activities are planned for Monday, Dec. 4, beginning with an 8 a.m. kick-off breakfast sponsored by Celanese for directors of the Pampa Industrial Foundation and the Chamber of Commerce. At noon, the Chamber of Commerce will honor Celanese at its December monthly luncheon to be held in Pamel Hall at 12 noon. Plant tours will be available after the luncheon.

At 6:30 p.m. Monday all Celanese employees will attend a banquet in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium. Employees with 20 years Pampa plant service will be honored. R.L. Mitchell,

President Will Meet Viet Envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon scheduled a meeting with a personal emissary from South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu Wednesday to discuss Vietnam cease-fire negotiations.

The negotiations between presidential security adviser Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho are scheduled to resume in Paris on Monday.

Nixon is to confer with Nguyen Phu Duc, described by White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler as Thieu's special representative.

In Saigon, meanwhile, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker provided Thieu with a report on Kissinger's most recent meetings with President Nixon.

Kissinger met with Nixon twice Monday, but Ziegler declined to say what was discussed, except to warn that the current break in the Paris talks is no cause for pessimism.

Duc's meeting was requested by the South Vietnamese, the top Thieu aide flew from Saigon on Tuesday, and was to meet with Nixon at either the White House or the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., Ziegler said.

A possible topic might be a report from Saigon that Thieu is seeking direct talks with the North Vietnamese before any peace agreement is signed.

Thieu has dispatched his closest adviser, Hoang Duc Nha to Paris, where sources said he would deal directly with Kissinger when the American returns Sunday for the new round of discussions. Thieu wants Nha to sit in when the secret talks resume, the sources said.

Also in Paris, North Vietnamese negotiator Tho met with Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, chief of the Viet Cong delegation to the public Paris peace talks.

Three Hijackers Indicted In Ala.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Three men have been indicted in the Nov. 10 Southern Airways jet hijacking, a 28-hour odyssey of terror that spanned three countries in eight landings.

The indictments charge aircraft piracy, kidnaping and interference with interstate commerce by extortion.

Indicted Monday by a special federal grand jury were Melvin Charles Cale, 21, of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Henry DeWilliam Jackson Jr., 25, and Louis Douglas Moore, 27, both of Detroit, Mich. They are being held in Cuba.

The maximum penalty on conviction of air piracy is life in prison, for kidnaping life in prison and for obstruction of interstate commerce 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Elliot Richardson Will Head Pentagon

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon announced today Elliot Richardson will be nominated as the new secretary of Defense and Caspar Weinberger, now director of the Office of Management and Budget, will be named to succeed Richardson as secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The formal announcement said Nixon expects OMB to assume a new, expanded role—to undertake a comprehensive examination of all government programs now in existence to determine whether they are actually meeting the purpose for which they were designated.

The personnel changes were described as "part of the President's broad plan to bring fresh perspective and new vitality to the second four years of his administration."

Nixon, who wants to draw Cabinet members closer to the White House, disclosed Monday that Weinberger will be leaving the management-budget post and will get another top position.

The new secretary of Defense would be Nixon's first Cabinet change for his second term. He said he hopes to announce all major personnel changes by Dec. 15.

Whoever is appointed as new secretary of defense and to other Cabinet jobs in the next few years, Nixon told newsmen Monday, they will be in "closer contact with the White House and, of course, with the President himself."

Nixon, who has devoted several days since his landslide reelection Nov. 7 to administration personnel changes, told newsmen that Laird would return to private life rather than take a government post in the second Nixon term.

The President Monday also accepted with "special regret" the resignation of George Romney, secretary of Housing and Urban Development. He said Romney, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would not figure in new administration appointments.

Laird and Romney had previously announced their intentions of leaving their Cabinet posts at the end of Nixon's first term.

But much of the President's 21-minute talk to the dozen newsmen at his Catactin Mountain retreat here Monday seemed aimed at discouraging speculation that he would rely less on his Cabinet in his second term than during his first four years.

"While there will be cuts in personnel around the government," Nixon said Monday, "the biggest cuts will be made in the White House staff itself."

He said "we are going to put greater responsibility on individual Cabinet members for various functions that previously had been that of the White House staff."

Nixon on Nov. 8 asked for standby resignations from the Cabinet, members of the White House staff, major agency officials, and other political appointees, perhaps 2,000 in all.

Besides announcing a Cabinet change, Nixon planned to meet today with Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, chairman of the Republican National Committee, House Republican leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, undersecretary of Commerce James Lynn and Charles Colson, White House aide noted mainly for political operations. George Romney's four-year crusade as secretary of Housing and Urban Development to make the government do more for the cities "do it faster," is ending.

At age 65, Romney announced Monday he'll step outside government to try to influence things in a private role by gathering round him a group of "truth seekers and communicators."

At HUD, Romney said he's learned there are built-in limitations in government which make "the achievement of fundamental reform too dependent upon a crisis."

Announcing his resignation effective with the confirmation of a successor, Romney stopped short of directly criticizing President Nixon. And he insisted he has not become disillusioned.

City Gets 1-Inch Snow

An autumn snowfall covered the city again yesterday as a cold front continued to head south, dropping temperatures toward the zero level.

With the amount of snow varying in different sections of the city, the average amount was one inch, which brought another 13 inch of moisture, according to Darrell Sehorn, Pampa weatherman. Overnight low in Pampa plummeted to 15 degrees but had climbed up towards the freezing point (32 degrees) by noon. High was expected to be in the 40s.

The new snow cover again made the roads slick and icy on spots last night and early today, but most roads were safe for cautious driving by forenoon.

Three inches of snow fell in the Dalhart area, which reported a low of 8 degrees above zero. Perryton, which received an inch of new snow to increase the snow depth to 5 inches, also reported 8 degrees.

Temperatures near dawn in other parts of the state included Amarillo, 15; Plainview, 21; Lubbock, 23; Childress, 27; Wichita Falls, 30; and Abilene, 31, according to Associated Press reports.

The cold front brought showers to the coastal plains as it headed over into Louisiana and out over the Gulf of Mexico.

A few clouds hung near the coast and a band of low clouds moved over parts of West and Southwest Texas, but skies were generally clear throughout the state.

Cold weather was expected to linger over most sections until Wednesday.

The local forecast calls for fair skies and cold temperatures tonight, with an overnight low near 20 High tomorrow, with considerable cloudiness, should reach in the low 40s.

SA To Take Applications For Baskets

The Pampa Salvation Army will take applications for needed Christmas baskets and toys from Tuesday, Dec. 5, through Dec. 13, Capt. L.Z. Sullivan said.

Applications will be taken at the SA building, 701 S. Cuyler, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m.

The purpose of taking the applications is to discover the needs in Pampa and to prevent duplication with other organizations.

Money for the food baskets and children's toys comes from the SA's letter appeal for funds and the Christmas kettles on the downtown streets of Pampa and at Gibson's Discount Store.

E.L. Green, Jr., is the Christmas Committee chairman, with Dr. James Malone and Marcia Wise as committee members. All are members of the Pampa Salvation Army advisory board.

Commission Offers Compromise To Phone Rate Increase Request

By TEX DEWESE
The City of Pampa today offered a counter-proposal to Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's request for a 16.9 per cent overall increase in basic telephone rates.

Gary Stevens, local manager for the telephone company, said he was not authorized to accept or reject the compromise offer for consideration to officials of Southwestern Bell in Amarillo.

As a result, action on the rate boost request was continued until the next regular meeting of the commission Tuesday, Dec. 12.

The compromise was presented by Ward 2 commissioner R.D. Wilkerson in the form of a city ordinance setting up new rates which varied in only three categories from the request filed by Southwestern Bell.

The compromise ordinance would affect the one-party flat rate for business phones, one-party residential phones and two-party residential phones.

The company had requested that business phones be increased from $10.75 to $13.50 a month, one-party residential phones from $5 to $6.25 a month and two-party residential phones from $4 to $4.90.

Wilkerson's compromise ordinance would reduce the business phone rate increase to $12.75 instead of $13.50, one-party residential to $5.85 instead of $6.25 and two-party residential to $4.70 instead of $4.90.

Those were the only three changes proposed in the utility's original rate request as filed with the city commission.

Members of the commission were agreed in belief that increased rates sought by the telephone company in the three categories were too high and constituted the bulk of the overall increase.

Southwestern Bell claimed in its request that the company was not receiving a fair return rate on its investment in Pampa—that the figure was only 2.9 per cent and that the increase asked would give it a 4.1 per cent return. An 8 per cent return is allowed by law, it was stated.

The crowded lobby expected at today's meeting failed to develop. This was attributed to the early morning icy conditions of city streets.

However, several women attended and voiced their protests to the rate increase. They included Mrs. Faye Monroe, 1004 E. Frederic, and Mrs. Mitty Sanders, 125 S. Wynne. They were spokesmen for the protest group.

It appeared for awhile the meeting might turn into a debate on the Texas Open Meetings Law.

Mrs. Sanders objected to Mayor Milo Carlson's statement commissioners had spent many hours studying the rate at informal meetings, Mrs. Sanders said she thought the public should have been "in" on those meetings.

John Gikas, a member of the Pampa School Board, also reminded commissioners of the Open Meetings Law, relating that members of the school board in Amarillo were prohibited from having "over the coffee cup" meetings where the public was not represented.

Gikas said he thought under the law all meetings that lead to a decision should be held in public. He also asked for a detailed public report on the telephone company's investment and profit figures.

"I think the public has a right to know," Gikas said.

Mayor Carlson said he didn't think there was any reason for inviting the public to sit in every time a couple of commissioners got together over a cup of coffee.

Gikas said, "if they're discussing business that leads to a decision, the public should be invited."

Mrs. Monroe said she thought the commission should have postponed today's meeting until later in the day—so more interested persons could have attended.

Government Claims Success In Nationwide 'Rent Watch'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government claims its nationwide "rent watch" has been a rousing success, preventing thousands of illegal rent increases while turning up only a handful of violations.

The Nixon administration put the rent watch into effect early this fall after Social Security benefits for retired people were increased 20 per cent. The watch was designed to prevent landlords from wiping out the Social Security gains by increasing rents.

The Internal Revenue Service investigated more than 90,000 rental units in a two-month period, finding only 24 minor violations and one violation that has been turned over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

In addition, IRS received 2-

178 complaints. It has completed investigations of 1,462 of these complaints, uncovering 404 violations, most of them so technical that they were corrected immediately.

IRS has assessed 15 landlords with penalties totaling $28,819. Four of these cases have been settled and collected and the remainder are on appeal.

Texas Oil Company Consortium Planning To Build Superport

HOUSTON (AP) — An offshore superport to dock huge tankers will be built in Texas despite a study by the Federal Maritime Administration which calls for such a port in the Gulf of Mexico only off Louisiana, an oil company official said Monday.

The federal study, released Sunday in Washington, said only two such ports were needed off the coasts of Louisiana and Delaware.

"We are proceeding with our project as diligently as we can," Robert H. Chitwood, a spokesman for a nine-company oil company consortium planning to build the Texas superport said Monday.

Another oil company executive, who would not allow himself to be named, said superports will be built off the coasts of both Gulf States.

"The way things are going now, I can't see a lag of more than three months in the completion dates of terminals off Louisiana and Texas," he said.

Shell Oil Co. and Humble Oil and Refining Co. are members of consortiums in both Texas and Louisiana planning to build the ports. "You can be sure that industry is taking both projects very seriously," a company source said.

State Rep. Ray Lemmon, who authored the bill creating the Texas Offshore Terminal Commission, said Monday there are no laws on the books that could stop the Texas project and no necessity for federal funds.

Texas has been deeply offended by the story suggesting only two locations off the Louisiana and Delaware coasts, Lemmon said.

This report is a callous disregard for the 300,000 to 400,000 Texans who depend upon the oil industry directly or indirectly for their livelihood," he said.

Col. Fred Anderson of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers office in Vicksburg, Miss., said the maritime report in no way will affect the study under his direction which also will recommend superport sites.

No one was as surprised as I was," Anderson said of the study announcement. "I just didn't know they had reached that point. We've been working with them on the study."

He said the Corps would have a preliminary report ready in the first half of next year.

The Texas group has an option on land for a tank farm terminal near Freeport and envisions a mooring buoy-type facility in 100-foot of water to

Slim's River Adventure Draws Varied Comments

SALMON, Idaho (AP) — Amarillo Slim may have collected a $31,000 bet for his run down the Middle Fork of the Salmon River, but some of the mountain men in the area weren't all that impressed.

"You could sit on an inner tube and come down the river," one oldtimer said.

Slim finished a five-day, 29-mile trip Wednesday, stopping where the Middle Fork joins the main Salmon River, known as the River of No Return. He made the trip with a professional river guide who has run the rugged river in the central Idaho primitive area before in winter.

T. A. Preston Jr. of Amarillo, Tex. — as Slim is known legally — is described as the world champion poker player. He said he took the challenge by fellow gamblers "who got together and raised the money and bet me that I couldn't go down the rapids in the wintertime."

Don Smith, a veteran river runner who says he made his first trip on the Middle Fork in 1934, said he's among the folk who believe the Middle Fork is actually easier to run in winter than at low water in August or high water in June.

"My 12-year-old can do it," Smith says of running the river. "My kids were over there running the river when they were that age."

The Middle Fork empties into the Salmon River about 50 miles west of here.

After his helicopter trip back to Boise from the confluence of the rivers, Slim said, "I surely wouldn't recommend it to anyone this time of year."

Slim's guide, Jere Chapman, of Boise, had expressed concern about the threat of ice and rocks exposed by the low water, which he said could rip out the bottom of the seven-passenger rubber raft the two men used.

Dick Estes, wild river ranger for the Forest Service in Idaho, had said Slim's trip began with the water so low that the upper stretches of the river were almost impossible to run.

Smith asserted that the water was higher than usual this year. Smith said of the news coverage received by Slim for his trip:

"If they are going to write about this, they should write the truth."

"You could set on an inner tube and come down the river. I've known people to come down the river in a wet suit. My boys used to use driftwood to float down the river," Smith said.

The statement brought agreement from one of five Salmon residents who said they came off the Middle Fork Nov. 15 after a five-day hunting float trip.

"If Slim wanted a challenge, he should float the river in mid-June during high water. Water conditions now are ideal," said Bob Bales.

Bales and his son, and his brother Maurice Bales and his two sons made the hunting trip.

Bales said the sons ran the boat most of the trip, except on larger rapids.

Dr. Walter Blackadar of Salmon is described as an expert with a kayak. He said that slush ice which slowed up in the river the third day of Slim's trip was not a problem.

"You float at the same speed of the slush, and I don't see where he could have had any trouble unless the river froze solid," Blackadar said.

L. L. "Andy" Anderson of Challis, Idaho, who claims to have taken the first paying customers down the Middle Fork in 1946, says the latest he had floated the river was a Nov. 22, and he never had trouble with ice.

"You only have certain channels in those rapids to go through then and you have to hit them about right," Anderson said.

"If Slim had done this without an outfitter in the boat with him, it may have been some adventure," Anderson said.

NO POLLUTION control in Brazil results in this—tons of dead fish in a big lagoon near Rio de Janeiro. Large sewage canals empty near the city's beautiful beaches, leaving dark patches of brackish water. Sludge and contaminated water are part of the price Brazil pays for the position that if pollution is necessary for industrial modernization, well, there will be pollution.

Houston Officers Kill Man Charged With Robbery

HOUSTON (AP) — Officers return fire killed a man they were trying to arrest after police Sgt. Ed Pavlock, 41, was wounded in the shoulder today.

They identified the dead man as Nathaniel Gibbs, 33, of Houston.

The shooting occurred on Houston's north side about 5:30 a.m. A police spokesman said Pavlock and his partner carried warrants charging Gibbs with armed robbery and assault to murder.

As the two policemen arrived, fellow officers said a man stepped from a doorway and started shooting. They shot back and he fell.

Two other persons were arrested after the shooting of Gibbs.

City Police Receive Reports On Prowl, Theft And Runaway

Criminal tendencies broke through the crust of the bad weather during the past 24 hours and the local police blotter was a potpourri of prowlers, petty theft and runaways.

Despite the slick streets reported accidents were held on one Monday and one this morning. Neither resulted in injuries.

Officers are seeking a 15-year old Pampa girl who is missing after she failed to enter the school building yesterday. Her mother drove her to classes but she failed to attend. The search started when school officials called her home to inquire.

The latest in the rash of prowlers was in the 600 Blk of N. Sumner where an unidentified man has been "cruising" the neighborhood both afoot and in an old model auto. Pampans are up in arms literally over these further people. A resident on Sumner was waiting at the door with a gun last night but the would-be intruder fled.

Money, credit cards and prescriptions are missing from purses in an office of a local department store after a clerk saw two teenage boys in the cubicle, yesterday. Police have an accurate description of the pair and are investigating a number of suspects.

Also continuing is the investigation into the burglary of a local appliance store on N. Hobart after closing Saturday when five television sets were taken.

Oven Death Case To Be Referred To Grand Jury

CONROE, Tex. (AP) — The case of a 4-month-old child who burned to death inside an oven will be referred directly to a grand jury, police here said.

The infant, Longlie Denise Young, was placed on the open door of the oven by her mother, Mrs. Gwendolyn Marie Young, Conroe police said.

Mrs. Young said the oven was on in an attempt to heat the kitchen and she placed the infant there early Monday while popping popcorn for herself and her husband.

Briscoe Man Goes On Trial

The trial of Thomas Edwin Puryear, Briscoe, accused of rape, began in 31st District Court yesterday.

If opening proceedings are any indication, the trial will be a lengthy one. Under the rules governing the trial, 32 prospective jurors must be qualified. From this number 12 will be empanelled. When court adjourned Monday only 12 had been agreed upon.

Puryear was taken into custody and indicated by the grand jury less than 24 hours after he allegedly assaulted an Oklahoma woman in the early morning hours of Feb. 4. He was arraigned before Judge Nat Lunsford who denied bond and Puryear has been in Gray County jail since that time.

During his detention he has undergone psychiatric testing at the behest of both the state and the defense.

Pampa attorney Ben Sturgeon is representing the accused man.

Houston Officers Kill Man Charged With Robbery

HOUSTON (AP) — Officers return fire killed a man they were trying to arrest after police Sgt. Ed Pavlock, 41, was wounded in the shoulder today.

They identified the dead man as Nathaniel Gibbs, 33, of Houston.

The shooting occurred on Houston's north side about 5:30 a.m. A police spokesman said Pavlock and his partner carried warrants charging Gibbs with armed robbery and assault to murder.

As the two policemen arrived, fellow officers said a man stepped from a doorway and started shooting. They shot back and he fell.

Two other persons were arrested after the shooting of Gibbs.

People In The News

TEL AVIV (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger has contributed money to help plant a grove of trees in memory of a schoolmate.

Reuven Assor, spokesman for the Jewish National Fund, said Monday that the grove of 300 trees in the Judean hills near Jerusalem will be planted in memory of Kurth Fleischman, a schoolmate of Kissinger's in his native town of Furth, Germany.

Fleischman, who escaped from Nazi Germany, died last year in England before realizing plans to settle in Israel.

MANILA (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos said today that he was "guided by God" when he proclaimed martial law in the Philippines to prevent a right wing coup against his government.

Addressing some 300 members of the Philippine Historical Society at the presidential palace, Marcos disclosed for the first time that he signed the martial law proclamation on Sept. 17, five days before it was put into effect.

Previously it was believed he signed the decree Sept. 21.

Marcos said he needed "the period to commune with myself and with God. I asked God for signs. He gave me several signs." It was "as if I was guided by some strange greater mind."

SAN MARCOS, Tex. (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson has presented the first J. C. Kellam football award to 180-pound cornerback Jim Stienke of Southwest Texas State University.

The presentation was made Monday night when Johnson and his wife Lady Bird attended a football banquet at the school, the former president's alma mater.

Johnson presented Stienke, a senior business administration major from Johnson City, Tex., a plaque and a $1,000 check.

Johnson initiated the award at last year's sports banquet with a $25,000 fund named in honor of Kellam, his longtime friend and business associate.

Ex-Cons Counsels California Parolees

'A VISTA Volunteer is in a hot, hot spot all the time, between the agent over there, the guy in trouble over here.'

By MURRAY OLDERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO—(NEA)—The call comes to Jim Lewis in the middle of the night. There's a frantic urgency in the strangled voice.

"I'm using," it pleads. "I need help."

So Jim Lewis gets in his car, with the State of California seal on the side, and races to the grimy part of town.

The guy's in trouble. He's done time. He can't contact his parole officer, who would have to turn him in for possession of narcotics.

But he trusts Jim Lewis. Why? Because Jim's not a peace officer. He's an ex-con, too. He's been there before, in trouble, needing someone to lean on.

Jim is 32 years old and was raised in Dallas, on the streets. At 16, he was sent to the School for Boys at Gatesville, Tex., for having a gun. At 18, "I graduated to purse snatching and went to the penitentiary." For three years, he drifted to California, and wound up in San Quentin for various felonies such as kidnaping, burglary and armed robbery. He's done them all.

"I was actually fascinated by being a crook," remembers Jim.

The awakening came when a member of the California Parole Board said to him, "You didn't learn too much in Texas, did you?"

Jim got his high school diploma in San Quentin and after his release last year veered dramatically to a new life. He would work in helping parolees adjust to the community after they leave prison.

The change was achieved through VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America), a branch of ACTION, the umbrella federal volunteer program which also includes the Peace Corps.

Half a dozen of these VISTA Volunteers are sitting in the office of Jay H. Hubbell, regional parole administrator for the California Department of Corrections. His office is in the historic Ferry Building at the foot of Market Street, and through the window you can see Alcatraz and imagine San Quentin a few miles to the north.

In a different time, a different setting, it would be edgy for an outsider. Because these men in the room have all been criminals, some of them desperate dope addicts.

Now they are consultants to the state Department of Corrections to help parolees adjust to the community. They get $300 a month. A couple, like Jim Lewis and Tom Clark, have graduated to state jobs at $550 a month as Parole Service assistants.

"I'm kind of proud of it," says Jim Lewis, who smiles easily and has a gold tooth up front, "not for going to the penitentiary but for being allowed to do what I'm doing."

When the idea of using ex-cons as VISTA Volunteers was first proposed to the Department of Corrections, several parole agents walked out of the meeting.

Seven years ago, notes Hal Hubbell, this department wouldn't even permit parolees to associate with each other.

"It blew their minds in Washington," admits Willie Hall, the ACTION director for California, "when they saw the records of these VISTA Volunteers. They thought they were getting some guys who stole a couple of hub caps."

Even the ex-convicts to be helped were suspicious.

"At first, the cat thinks the VISTA man, he's a snitch or a po-les-man," says Tom Clark, who works in tandem with Lewis. "I show up and I'm driving that old state car. They're scared of the car. But the good you do gets around. They don't run and hide no more."

"These VISTA men are an inspiration to other convicts," nods Hal Hubbell. "In addition to helping other people, they get themselves out of the criminal justice program."

Clark, a slim, fast-talking man of 36, spent 13 years in different penitentiaries on drug-related crimes. ("He's a drug fiend," says Lewis frankly.) Along with other carefully screened VISTA Volunteers, he took a special training program at San Francisco State. Now he and Lewis place three or four new parolees on jobs each week.

"I took Lindso Young," says Clark, "—he was unskilled, low-educated, just out of prison. I got him into the carpenter apprenticeship, four year program, certified through the union."

"In Marin County," adds Lewis, "I got two ex-cons hired at the housing authority— unheard of before."

But Clark also remembers taking a guy out of prison and getting him a job, depositing him there at 11 o'clock. "By 3:30 that evening," he notes, "the guy was already busted for pushing cocaine."

"I've placed about 80 people on the methadon program. About 25 per cent of the people on parole are drug addicts. They seldom commit violent sex crimes. They just want money to feed their habits."

Clark was on heroin for 17 of his 36 years. Cleveland Hammonds, a big, brooding man, is also an addict. His older brother had become hooked on drugs during the Korean War. "We took to gambling in my family," he recalls. "I won all the dope from my brother one day and decided to try it. My main thing now is working with drug addicts. Money is the big thing. Why, they have to steal just to be on the methadon program."

Warren Gomez, who works the Mission district, predominantly Spanish, is also an ex-junkie. He emphasizes the confidence the VISTA Volunteers must inspire. They can't wear a "snitch jacket."

The parolee must be able to contact his VISTA and say, "Hey, I slipped." Without fear of being turned in.

"There was this guy next door to me in the pen at Soledad," he recalls. "I saw him again when I got out and he ignored me. He was afraid I'd turn him in. The guy had been 'running' (on the lam) almost four years. We used to shoot dope together. Finally, I convinced him, 'Hey, nothing's going to happen. Go to your (parole) agent and they can straighten it out.'"

"They got him a driver's license, put him together. The guy was in the clouds." Lee-Ashford, burly and black, with a wool knit sockcap remembers a house call his first week as a VISTA Volunteer in Oakland:

"This cat ask me at the door. 'Are you an agent?'"

"No, a VISTA Volunteer."

"You from Soledad?"

"Yeah."

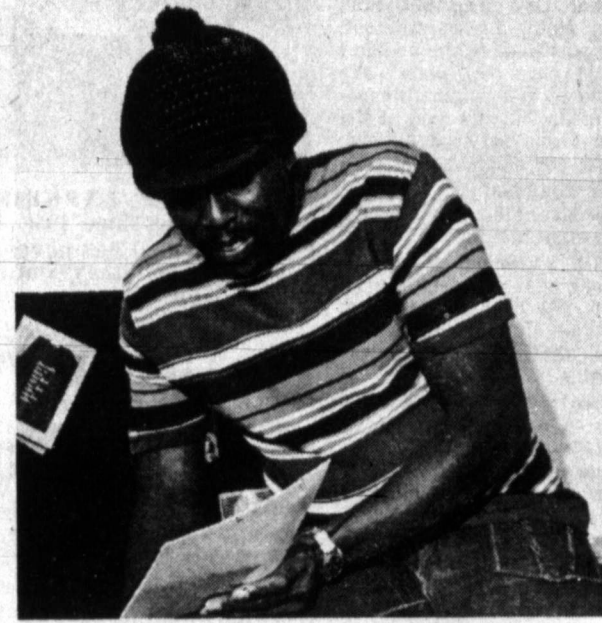

"He says, 'I goddam well don't like no ex-convict coming to my house.'"

"He's a big guy and he get his shirt off so I can see all his butter. I don't back down. I know all the answers. We talk for two hours and I cool him down."

"A VISTA job is a 24-hour job. Some guy call you 3 o'clock in the morning and he say, 'I can't deal with my old lady.' There's always the hidden thing, the other guy who's been making it with the old lady while he's in the pen. The love thing is a helluva thing."

"So I tell him to cool it while I get over there. Then I put the guy in the car and ride. That always cool them down. A VISTA Volunteer is in a hot, hot spot all the time, between the agent over there, and the guy in trouble over here."

"But it also allows a VISTA Volunteer to get himself together."

Warren Gomez (top), Lee Ashford (center), Jim Lewis and Tom Clark (bottom) . . . they've been there before.

At $300 a month, Lee admits, it's difficult to "survive— I committed burglary because I liked the money." But he has a wife who works, which helps, and he attends Grove Street College in Oakland.

Ray Wickliffe attends Merritt College in the same city. For his VISTA work he gets the equivalent of seven hours of credit. Besides his own case work, he participates in a training program for parole agents. He's an expert on the "streets" and leads the future agent to various community offices that can help him in his work.

"These guys," says Hal Hubbell, "are a real asset in dealing with years and years of delinquency. They do a lot more than just get the ex-cons jobs. They provide residence, clothes, food and tools in the case of certain job skills."

One VISTA graduate is on the verge of becoming the first former felon to be hired as a parole agent. He's already working as a consultant in the Department of Corrections, and a full pardon, expected in a year, will put him in line for the agent's job.

But there is another side. Not all ex-con VISTAs stay straight. One of them went off and committed a kidnaping in southern California. The others then had a meeting about policing themselves and imposing fines for delinquent behavior.

Since late 1970, when the program started, in the San Francisco area, there have been 35 former convicts in this VISTA work — 11 are still active, six were promoted to the Department of Corrections, six went back to jail, three finished their year and went elsewhere, nine resigned for personal reasons or became full-time students. There is one woman VISTA now and two in training.

"A guy gets 40 bucks and some clothes," says Jim Lewis, "when he goes on the streets. We want to do more for him than that."

"You're not going to save everybody," says Hal Hubbell. "But in our area the violation rate (of parole) has gone down from 45 to 25 per cent."

UNLESS LEGISLATURE GETS CONTRARY

Presidential And Statewide Elections Won't Fall On Same Year After 1974

By ROBERT E. FORD

Associated Press Writer
There are 1,401,177 Texans going about their business today in a perfectly normal way probably completely unaware of just how well they scrambled the political eggs.

These are the persons who put a check mark or pulled a lever or punched a card voting Proposition 8 in the general election.

They did themselves a lot of good, too: They no longer will be going around deafened from all that oratory each four years.

They now will be only half deafened each two years. That may be some progress toward clearing up noise pollution.

What these voters did was approve four-year terms for top state officers instead of the present two.

The really important thing, however, is that terms will start in 1974.

This means that never again will a presidential election and a statewide election fall on the same year except that the U.S. Senate race will overlap state campaigns each 12 years.

That is, they will not occur together unless the legislature gets contrary and changes things.

But if the people have spoken and changed the Texas Constitution—now patched with 211 amendments—how can the lawmakers upset them?

Easy. The legislature meets in 1974 to write a new Constitution.

The legislature could throw out four-year terms. It might especially be inclined to do this if more major scandals occur in the meantime and a demand to "throw the rascals out" faster arises. Or the lawmakers could reschedule elections so that they fall in presidential years.

There also is talk that the legislature may further shorten the ballot.

This could be done by removing such offices as treasurer, comptroller and various commissioners from the elective process.

Voting for these secondary state offices, cannot be called true democracy since the voter rarely knows enough about the candidates to make a choice.

As one very knowledgeable observer of the statehouse scene remarked, "Very few voters have any idea of what the officeholder does, and sometimes the officeholder himself doesn't know."

One of the great benefits of the new election schedule will be that the word, "coattails," may be removed from the political dictionary in Texas.

It was a very big word in the general election just passed. It means that many persons voting for president will ballot also for all other candidates of that party.

There can be little doubt that the "coattail" syndrome helped Republican Henry Grover scare Democrat Dolph Briscoe half to death in the race for governor Nov. 7. Grover was just not that well known and did not mount a major campaign, so he must have benefitted by the Nixon landslide.

On the other hand, Democrat Barefoot Sanders needed only about 10 per cent more votes to have won the U.S. Senate race and Nixon's avalanche undoubtedly helped Republican Sen. John Tower win.

With the memory of the 1972 election still happily or painfully sharp in the minds of voters and politicians, it would seem that the "off-year"—non presidential—election of state officers would doom the GOP party in state office races in generally Democratic Texas.

That isn't necessarily so. A Democratic candidate who can pull as many votes as Lyndon B. Johnson did is certain to draw a large number of liberals, brass collar Democrats and minorities who would be inclined to vote Democratic across the board, thus harming the GOP. Republicans might want to run without facing a Democratic landslide.

The off-year state elections also will remove some embarrassing circumstances which arose this year.

This centers on whether the state candidates will support the party's presidential nominee when the polls indicate that the smart thing to do is keep silent on the national election. It was obvious that none of the candidates for major state office was going to handcuff his campaign to the Democrats' George McGovern.

At the same time, each Democratic candidate had to give official sanction to the entire ticket. Otherwise he would have alienated many voters.

Ramsey Muniz of La Raza Unida ran into that problem. Early in his campaign he asked McGovern to support La Raza Unida's ticket.

This would have had McGovern opposing his own party at the state level. Naturally, McGovern didn't, and Muniz did not make a big issue of it.

Time will tell whether the new election schedule will create any more excitement than recent campaigns. To tell the truth, this year's electioneering was dull.

In fact, most recent elections have been rather pedestrian. This began with development of the so-called "position papers" written by the candidate at the start of the campaign and followed rigidly.

This means there can't be much free-swinging oratory or name calling or anything to arouse much emotion.

Other candidates who already have their names well implanted in voters' minds have refrained carefully from saying much. You recall that neither Dolph Briscoe for governor nor John Tower for Senator talked a lot.

There was a congressman in Texas fairly recently who somehow had gotten elected. But every time he opened his mouth he turned voters off.

There were reports circulating that party leaders finally told him that they would support him—but only if he never made a speech. He kept win-ing, too. And he made about as good a congressman as many who have golden tongues.

McGovern did try to electrify his supporters. It worked for the National Democratic Convention. But somehow it never really came off with enough people in the election itself.

Well, we can always hope. Perhaps another magnetic Farmer Jim Ferguson or W. Lee O'Daniel will show up in the future. Or another Franklin D. Roosevelt may be on the verge of arriving.

Now there were fellows who knew how to arouse excitement!

By CARLTON SMITH

To Mrs. Mount (let's call her), the "investment units" sounded like a better place for her modest savings than the bank account, where the interest wasn't accumulating very fast.

As the salesman explained it, an investment of $600 in two of these "units" would return dividends of $200 a year later—$100 on each unit. He recommended that she take one for each of her two sons, aged 9 and 13.

Since Mrs. Mount was a young widow who supported the family on what her office job paid, those very generous dividends did sound like a godsend. So she withdrew the $600 from savings, and the salesman came around to collect her investment.

Actually, he explained, there was a three-year

"plan" involved. It called for buying another two units next year; then her yearly dividend would double, to $400. The same the following year, after which the three years of dividends would add up to $1,200. If she were to leave her dividends "in the plan" each year, after three years it would "carry itself."

Well, Mrs. Mount wasn't sure she could scrape together another $600 next year. Nothing to worry about, she was told. If she couldn't continue the "plan," she could get her original investment back at the end of the first year—but no dividends, mind you, and only after a year elapsed.

So Mrs. Mount handed the salesman her $600. "Oh, by the way," he said. "Each of the boys is insured for $5,000. With the dividends paid on the insurance policies, that way they're not taxable."

Two or three weeks later, Mrs. Mount's "investment units" were delivered, at the office where she works. They were a pair of enormously overpriced 20-pay life insurance policies, on her sons.

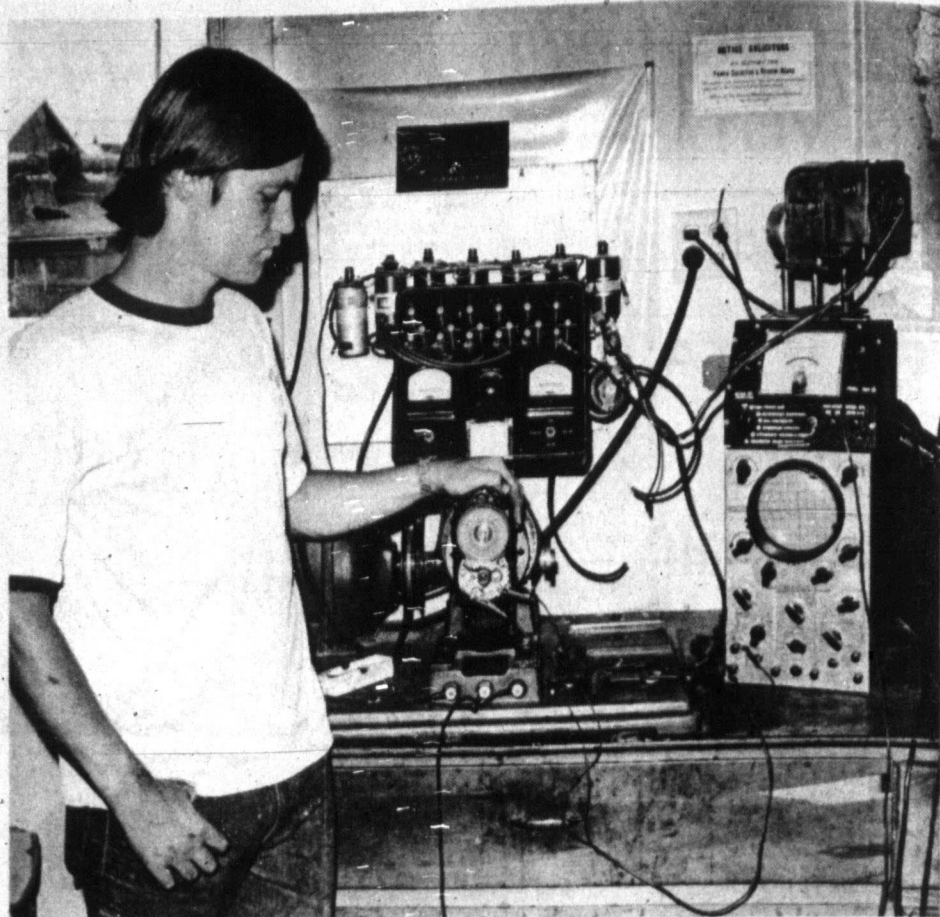

It was indeed true that her dividends wouldn't be taxable. Insurance dividends are not dividends in the sense of an investor's dividends—the kind that means your money is earning money. Insurance dividends are, by legal definition, simply a return of surplus premium which the policyholder has paid.

So it isn't difficult to promise "dividends" of $200 a year on a $600 "investment," when the $600 is buying insurance on which the normal premium would be about $250. The salesman simply collects $600 for $250 worth of insurance, and you get $200 back—a year later.

Mrs. Mount didn't need, and didn't want, life insurance on her children. What she wants is her $600 back, but all she gets from the company is a deaf ear.

We've warned, in earlier columns, against these "specialty policies" that are peddled in the guise of "good investments." But when the victim doesn't even realize, until after the money has changed hands, that it's an overpriced insurance policy that he or she is "investing" in, warnings against specialty policies are of no avail. The public needs a more positive kind of protection.

Mrs. Mount lives in a Texas city, and the home offices of the insurance company involved are in Oklahoma City. Perhaps you're moved to wonder, along with us, why the insurance commissioners—in those states, and in others across the country—aren't doing more to protect their constituents against the swindlers.

YEARS OF EXPERIENCE—John T. King and Sons, serving the Panhandle since 1930, has undergone changes in areas of service and name, but it has never failed to offer top-notch service to the oil industry. The company continues to lead its field with "first" and "best" in all departments.

Over 40 Years Of Top Service
Speaks For John King & Sons

John T. King and Sons, 918 S. Barnes, has been serving the oil industry since 1930—for over 40 years.

The company was then known as Stapp King Electric and Machine Co., where the first Pyle National Generators, run by steam, and the old Robert Obsch Magnets were repaired.

Old-timers will remember the type EK, type R and Oc Wice magnets that were rebuilt at this time.

Six years after its founding, the company became known as the King Chemical Company, with patent rights on the first paraffin solvents and paraffin scrapers that were popular in the oil fields for many years to follow.

Since the end of World War II, John T. King and Sons have been serving the Panhandle field in various capacities and have met challenging changes with the advent of future automation in the field of oil field production and products.

John T. King and Sons handle a complete selection of industrial magnets, pumps, skids and industrial electronic automation equipment.

One of the newer types of magnets stocked by King and Sons is the Altronic, a magnet used for larger industrial purposes.

The firm also has Frank Murphy safety switches and electronic control units for field installation.

Safety devices include United Engineer PKM and Keystone and Associated Well Sounders, Rockwell water meters and Worthington pumps. Fischer controls and natural gas regulators are also found at John T. King and Sons.

King is represented as an authorized central distributor for the latest type of ignition units that eliminates breaker point and impulse couplings, spark plug life extended, higher voltages available at low cranking rpm, shielded and low fire hazards—all are featured in the newest Altronic ignition system.

John T. King and Sons, more so than keeping up with changes that are sweeping our period of time, are finding newer and better ways of pleasing their old and new customers.

Ward's Offers Expert Repair Service

Having trouble with your color television set? Charlie Green at Montgomery Ward's customer repair service department can provide a trouble-shooting analysis of the circuitry of the set to see if the trouble is there. Montgomery Ward has the best equipment and the best technicians to give full service for all types of repairs. Currently the department has four factory-trained technicians ready to perform the needed repair services. The Montgomery Ward repair service department has the ability and the parts available to repair any product one might purchase at Ward's, though they also offer the same service for all makes and models of equipment and appliances.

The department technicians guarantee the work to the customer's satisfaction. Repairs can be done in the home or at the shop by the highly trained personnel.

Among the items which can be repaired in the department are televisions, appliances, lawn mowers, washers, dryers, refrigerators and other electrical equipment.

For repairs of televisions, appliances and air conditioners, ask for Charlie Green and Carl Sivals, television technicians, and Sid Lawless, technician for major appliances, refrigerators and laundry equipment. Service manager is Oscar Scott.

No matter what repairs are needed, expert service is offered on all equipment.

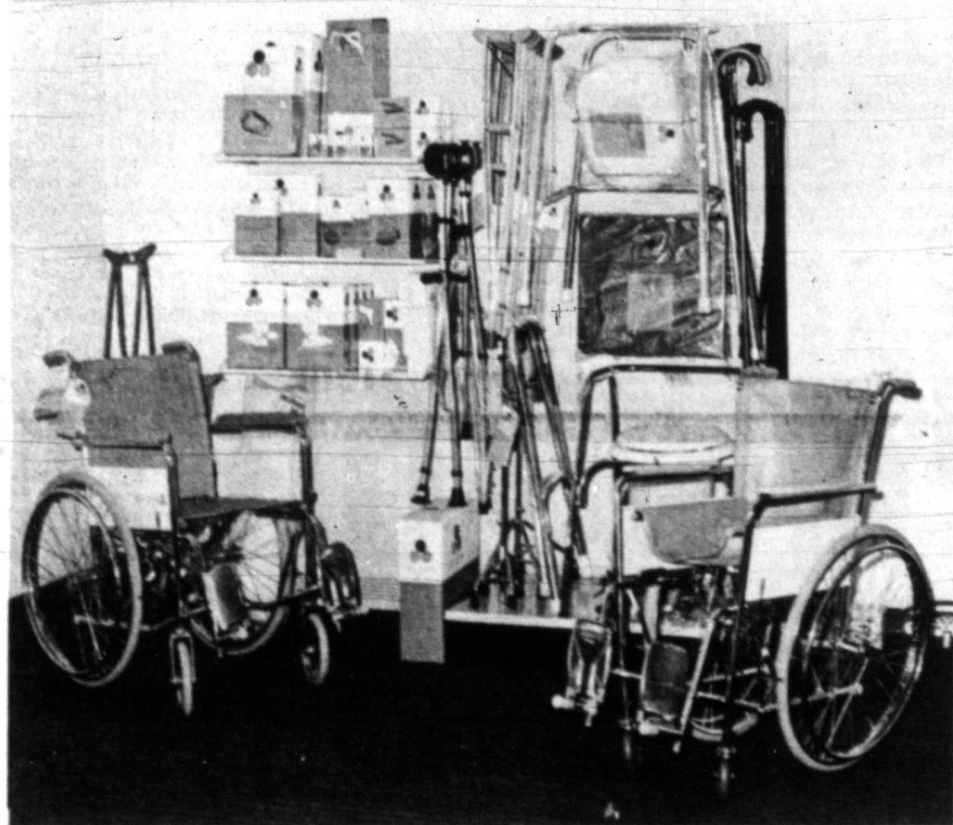

Montgomery Ward is set up so a person can buy and still maintain service almost anywhere. More than 2,000 service locations are scattered throughout the United States, with more than 5,000 service specialists.

And each service location has 400,000 replacement parts at its disposal.

In addition to its customer repair service department, Montgomery Ward carries a variety of goods and products within the same building. There are clothes, sporting goods, automotive accessories, boat motors, lawn equipment, televisions, radios, records, stereos, tape-cassettes and virtually everything in the department store line.

Montgomery Ward's success is due to its fine line of products and its prompt service department.

All of which are good reasons for shopping at Montgomery Ward.

NEW PATIENT-AIDS—B and B Pharmacy now offers a full line of Futuro Patient-Aids for sale and rental. Designed for the needs of the home convalescent, the handicapped and the elderly, the quality items are on stock to meet the needs of the customers at B and B Pharmacy. The firm still offers its others goods and services for which it has been known for years.

B and B Pharmacy Prepared To Meet Convalescent Needs

Always ready to serve their customers, B and B Pharmacy has now provided sales and a rental service for Futuro Patient-Aids.

These quality products meet the needs of the home convalescent, the handicapped and the elderly. Fully researched and tested, Patient-Aids carry the Futuro name, quality and reliability.

Those who know the Futuro name know it stands for excellence in design, engineering and manufacturing.

Among the items B and B offers for patients and convalescents are canes, crutches, walkers, wheel chairs, adjustable commodes, bedpans, urinals and many other items often needed for those needing special care.

In addition to this new section of goods, B and B Pharmacy continues to provide all the other goods and service for which it has been known through the years.

With Christmas fast approaching, B and B offers many gift items for the shopper. The firm has received a new shipment of costume jewelry in time for the early shopper.

And if something else is desired, B and B has a fine selection of candies, including Russell Stover chocolate candies and Pangburn's and Ann Raskas hard candies.

Featuring a fine selection of other small gift items, B and B offers various women's fragrances, including Nina Ricci, Lanvin, Crepe De Shine, Coty, Faberge and Vitabath.

And for those wanting good cosmetics, the store has Frances Denney, Dorothy Gray, Revlon, Bonne Belle and Allercreme beauty aids.

Other items include glassware, billfolds and goods for men's shaving needs. In men's fragrances B and B carries English Leather in the regular or lemon-lime scent, "That Man" by Revlon, Old Spice, Robert Denney, Black Belt and Signorcci.

And in case of illness, B and B features well-trained pharmacists to fill prescriptions.

The highly competent pharmacists at B and B have been filling the prescription needs for area residents to the best of their ability and to their customers' satisfaction since 1953.

Pharmacist R.B. Ragsdale and his assistants have filled well over a half a million prescriptions from their stock of 10,000 medicines since the store opened for business.

Two pharmacists are on hand at all times at B and B and are on call Sunday.

The firm also carries "over-the-counter" medicines and are equipped to meet all drug and first aid needs, including Dr. Schol's remedies.

And for a break in the routine of shopping or working, B and B has a short order restaurant to aid when hunger strikes.

The business is directed by F.L. Stone and Lucille Foster, co-owners, with other employees ready to serve the customer.

Widower wants widow to take holiday cruise

By Abigail Van Buren
 (© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: Widowed five years after a long and happy marriage, I've found a widow I desperately want to marry. And that's my problem. She refuses to marry me. I am about average in all respects except one. Financially, I am very well off, but that doesn't seem to influence her. We both have married children who are independent. I never knew this lady's husband, but understand theirs was a good marriage, so I know she's not soured on marriage.

—She says she wants her "freedom." I have tried everything to change her mind. My last attempt was a two-carat diamond, which she refused to wear, even on her right hand because of the "implications" (whatever that means). I want to take her on a cruise in December. She said she would go—sans marriage, but how proud and happy she would make me if she would accompany me as my wife. How can I persuade her to marry me by December? If any of your ideas are successful, I will send you a postcard from Rome—the first stop on the cruise.

DEAR HOPING: My advice to you is to go on the cruise alone. Send me a postcard anyway, if you have time to write one, which I'll bet against. No man should have to beg or bribe a woman to marry him, so get off your knees and survey the market. Your only chance for winning this woman is to play the field and show some dignified independence. And if that fails, you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any way a woman can buy insurance on her husband's life without letting him know about it?

I know he would have to take a physical and there's no way of tricking him into doing it.

My husband has a real hangup on this score and we can't even discuss the matter intelligently.

I can't shop around in my hometown for an insurance company that might have an angle on how to accomplish this as I have too much pride to admit to the world that my husband doesn't want to provide for his wife and children in the event of his death.

Please answer this in your column as I'm sure other wives must have the same problem.

DEAR ASHAMED: There is no way you can accomplish this without your husband's signature. Discuss this with your own insurance agent and ask him to suggest an approach that will be effective and inoffensive to your husband.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for "Out of Excuses" who recently wrote of her concern for her 69-year-old father who continues to drive even though he has failing eyesight.

My staff in the Department of Motor Vehicles handles hundreds of these cases each year, so we understand what "Out of Excuses" and her father are going thru. Since he refuses to go for a visual examination, you can arrange for him to take a test of his driving ability and knowledge.

Write to your State Department of Motor Vehicles outlining the problem and in most cases that department will send him a letter requiring him to appear for a re-examination of his driving ability. If it appears necessary, a visual examination by competent authorities will also be required. Your communication will be held in confidence.

A Century of Crowning Glory
Hair Today, Hair Yesterday

Times haven't changed all that much. Montgomery Ward surfaced some of its old catalogues to prove things are pretty much the same in the area of women's hair styles. The page (left) from a 1922 catalogue shows the wigs, puffs, ear puffs, switches and transformations that gave women the crowning glory of that era. The ear puffs are particularly nostalgic. Their detractors called them "cootie garages." From this year's catalogue the hair is smoother as in small wiglet (upper right). Still in 1972 the same desire for more of it is apparent. The long loose wiglet (lower right) dresses up even the dreariest day.

Not every woman has beautiful hair. But every woman can buy it. This isn't a new idea, however, and one well-known house, celebrating the 100th anniversary of mail order this year, has unearthed some of its old catalogues to prove it was offering women puffs, wigs, ear puffs, switches, transformations and other hair goodies several generations ago.

Those were the days when women realized they had to help their hair or they would lose it and they gave it 200 brush strokes every night with army discipline.

East's 10 and promptly led the 10 of clubs for a finesse. East took his king and returned the five of hearts. South rose with the queen but it was all over for South. The defense added five heart tricks to the club trick already in the bag.

"Nice shift," said South. "I was sure you would return your partner's suit."

East said nothing on the theory that it never pays to educate your opponents, but South's false-card of the spade ace had been a dead giveaway. East knew that West had not led away from king-queen-jack so that the ace play marked South with at least the king.

If South had simply won the first spade with his queen, East would have had a really tough decision. The queen play might well have been from king-queen-small in which case the spade return would have been the winning defensive play.

Poll Shows Age Gap In Driving Speed

Is the average teen-ager driver the typical "Hot Rod Harry" who rudely zooms through traffic, running red lights, speeding, and playing "chicken" with other drivers? Or is that stereotype image just another indication of the generation gap?

Results of a three week Mazda opinion poll show the generations agree in their view of the teen-age driver as having all the attributes of the "Hot Rod Harry" and maybe a few more.

The poll, sponsored by Mazda Motors of Texas, divided motorists into two groups. Drivers 21 years or older voted at one poll, while drivers under 21 voted at another. Participants were asked to decide which age group was most often guilty of certain driving faults.

On the question of speeding, motorists showed some signs of a generation gap, but the majority agreed that young drivers were more likely to break the posted speed limits. Eighty per cent of the older drivers said young drivers were speeders, and 69 per cent of the young motorists agreed.

But by far the biggest fault of young drivers, according to 80 per cent of the voters, is a tendency to drive aggressively rather than defensively. Eighty-five per cent of the adults and 75 per cent of the drivers under 21 agreed that young drivers were most likely to drive without thinking of the other motorists on the road.

Though the results of the Mazda poll characterize the young driver as impatient (64 per cent) and impetuous, youth picked up pluses in a number of categories.

Sixty-five per cent of the older drivers and 80 per cent of the younger drivers agreed that drivers under 21 were more cautious under hazardous road conditions. Young drivers, with their quick reflexes and fondness for rock music, were also voted to be the most likely to respond to emergency vehicles, the most able to tolerate noise inside the car, and the most likely to be good at parallel parking.

Adult drivers were voted by both age groups as most likely to be good overall drivers (72 per cent). However, the Mazda poll revealed them to be not without faults.

Seventy-nine per cent of both old and young drivers felt adults tended to "tailgate" the car in front of them most frequently. Parking was another weak point for adult drivers, with 60 per cent of the youth and 51 per cent of those over 21 deciding adults were most likely to take up two parking spaces with one car.

Adults also took the blame for too often turning without giving the proper signal. A whopping 91 per cent of the young voters thought so, and 72 per cent of the adults agreed.

Penalties for drunken driving revealed some difference of opinion between old and young.

but a surprising general agreement that the current tendency toward leniency was acceptable.

Under Texas law, first conviction of drunken driving means suspension of the driver's license for one year, although this penalty is not generally enforced. Only slightly more than half (56 per cent) of the adult drivers thought the law should be strictly enforced, and only 38 per cent of the younger drivers agreed.

Though both groups obviously tried to be fair in rating the other generation, there was one area where neither old nor young wanted to accept blame.

Fifty-five per cent of the young drivers were most likely to "roll through" a stop sign. Yet only 39 per cent of the adults wanted to accept this fault as their own, the Mazda poll found.

The use of seat belts proved another source of disagreement. Adult voters were almost evenly split on this issue, with 49 per cent saying young drivers were most likely to wear seat belts. But the young drivers had a better opinion of their performance in this area. Sixty per cent of the youth felt their age bracket was most likely to wear the safety straps.

Neither age group won a "gold star" for being most likely to keep their minds on their driving. Voting was split 50-50 by the older drivers, while young drivers gave the adults a scant 51 per cent edge in this area.

Interestingly, enough, neither teen-agers nor adults feel that young drivers are unfairly penalized by Texas car insurance rates.

Both parents and teen-agers have long been plagued by the high cost of insuring youthful drivers. But only 30 per cent of the older drivers and 31 per cent of the younger drivers feel the rates are unfair, the Mazda poll shows.

Both young drivers and adults favor a number of changes in Texas highway laws.

More than 60 per cent of all the poll participants thought the daytime speed limit on Texas highways should be raised from 70 to 75 miles per hour.

Other changes favored by both age groups include allowing drivers to make right turns on red lights after coming to a complete stop, requiring all drivers to pass the driving part of the license exam at least every 10 years, and requiring drivers 65 and over to pass the driving part of the license exam at least every three years.

Mazda Motors of Texas, distributors of both rotary engine and piston engine cars in Texas and four surrounding states, sponsored the 24-question poll at the 1972 Texas State Fair.

SAFETY RULES FOR PEDAL PUSHERS

SAFE BICYCLE RIDERS observe the rules of the road. Biking with friends? Drive single file; don't hog the road.

NEW YORK (ED)—More Americans are on the road today, but they're leaving their cars at home. The newest pleasure vehicle is that old favorite, the bicycle. There are 75 million bike enthusiasts pedaling some 53 million bikes, and they're not all children. Biking is great exercise, and it's fun, too. But you have to follow safety rules, and drive a well-built, well-maintained bike. Remember the following points:

- § Observe traffic signals. When the light is red, stop.
- § Biking with friends? Don't hog the road. Drive in single file.
- § Keep to the right. Don't weave in and out of traffic.
- § Look out for turning cars, opening car doors.
- § Don't drive at night without a headlight and a tail-light/reflector.
- § Remember the pedestrian has the right of way.
- § Choose a bike that displays the RMA/6 sign. This shows it was made by a member of the Bicycle Manufacturers Association according to rigid specifications for strength and durability.
- § Buy a bike that fits the rider. A National Safety Council report says "the child riding a

WORLD OF WORK

Laid-Off Worker Should Look into Aid Eligibility

By SECRETARY OF LABOR
 JAMES D. HODGSON

J. F. of Butte, Montana, writes: My brother-in-law was laid off his job in a food-processing plant a few weeks ago. He has been unable to find another job and is rapidly using his meager savings. Isn't he entitled to unemployment insurance?

Dear J. F.: The federal-state unemployment insurance system now covers almost 65 million jobs, and your brother-in-law may be one of them.

The largest groups of occupants not yet covered are farm workers, state and local government workers, and domestic household workers. If conducted on the farm, it may or may not be covered depending on several factors.

In any event, your brother-in-law should contact the local unemployment insurance office to find out.

The unemployment insurance program is financed by a tax on employers. It provides a weekly income, for a limited time—a maximum of 26 weeks in most states, including Montana—to qualified workers who are out of work through no fault of their own. This income is to tide them over while they are seeking employment.

G. S. of Pittsburgh, Pa., writes: I've heard that the United States is becoming a service economy. What does this mean? Will future jobs in manufacturing be eliminated?

Dear G. S.: The term service economy refers to those industries in the economy that produce services such as trade, finance, government, recreation and transportation and utilities and health services. This is in contrast to goods-producing industries such as agriculture, manufacturing, mining and construction. Though the service-producing sector of our economy is growing, manufacturing is still the biggest industry and is expected to remain the largest single source of jobs in the economy through the 1970s.

H. K. of LaPorte, Ind., writes: The company I work for makes a variety of products, but has a contract to sell only one type to the government. Does this mean only those workers employed on the government contract may benefit from my employer's program to recruit, hire and upgrade more women and members of the minority groups?

Dear H. K.: Your employer must have an affirmative action plan if he employs more than 50 people and if his government contract is over $50,000. Equal employment goals in your employer's plan apply to all his employees throughout his business whether or not they are involved directly in work covered by his federal contract for as long as the contract remains in force.

B. K. of Davenport, Iowa, writes: I'm a maid who earns less than janitors working in the same building. Our jobs are the same, except that janitors lift trash cans once a day. Is this legal?

Dear B. K.: Court decisions under the Equal Pay Act have said that jobs of men and women must only be substantially equal, not identical, for the law to apply. Extra duties of one sex may not justify higher pay if those duties are performed only occasionally. Check with Labor Department's Wage and Hour Division office in your area for more information. It's listed in the phone directory under U.S. Government.

Editor's note: If you have a question regarding job training and placement, labor-management relations, job health and safety, equal employment opportunity, wages and hours, employment and unemployment, prices and earnings and other matters involving the U.S. Department of Labor, send it to:

How the System Zaps Small Savers

By CARLTON SMITH

It's official policy in this land of the free to "discriminate against small savers by depriving them of the higher rate of return enjoyed by wealthy individuals and institutional investors."

That's the charge leveled by James M. Benham, who is neither a bolshevik nor a socialist, or even a populist. He was for several years, until recently, a senior account executive in one of the nation's largest brokerage firms. Earlier this year he became head of a West Coast bond fund.

Thus he occupies a fairly high level in the financial world—yet he's sharply critical of the short shrift given the average American, financially, by the world of which he's a part.

What does Benham mean by "the small saver?" Well, anyone with less than $100,000 in surplus cash is penalized to some extent, by the system. But he's talking primarily about the people with a few thousand in savings—up to, perhaps $25,000 or $30,000, or more.

Are they discriminated against? Top quality corporate bonds, he points out, currently pay 7 to 8 per cent. That's the cost of money, as set by the workings of a free competitive market—just as it sets the price of potatoes or pastrami. Yet the government, since 1933, has imposed ceilings on the interest that savings institutions may pay depositors.

Prior to January, 1970, the maximum interest that could be paid on passbook savings accounts was 4 per cent for commercial banks, 4½ per cent at mutual savings banks and savings and loans. At the time, in 1969 and 1970, U.S. government securities were being issued at yields as high as 8 per cent.

There was almost a "run on the banks" as depositors withdrew savings to put their money into such things as Treasury Bills—which you could then buy one bill at a time, $1,000 each.

This was alarming to the people who manage the system. For complicated reasons (what was happening is called "disintermediation"), the system needed those savings deposits in the banks. So, to drive money back there, the minimum purchase of T-Bills was raised from $1,000 to $10,000, and, to make savings accounts a little more attractive, interest rate ceilings were raised ½ per cent.

There was one exception. No ceiling on savings certificates of $100,000 or more, maturing within 89 days. Competing Treasury Bills, you see, matured in 91 days. The people with big money had to be allowed interest as high as the going rate in the open market. But the small saver was discriminated against with ceilings that reduced his return on savings by some 40 per cent.

That's Benham's case against the discriminatory system. As for trying to escape it by investing individually in government or top-quality corporate bonds, he says, just try it. Unless your stake is at least $100,000, you'll find yourself penalized by the workings of the market to the extent that your net return is about what you'd get in a savings account.

Miami Rips Cards, Wins 11th Straight

MIAMI (AP) — Young Otto Stowe streaked out of Paul Warfield's shadow to catch two touchdown passes for Miami's all-winning Dolphins and vowed not to remain backstage much longer.

"I love playing in Miami and winning is wonderful," said the sophomore pro from Iowa State, "but I'm not planning to sit on the bench for another season."

With the incomparable Warfield resting an injured leg, Stowe ran past befuddled St. Louis cornerback Norm Thompson to catch a 37-yard bomb from Earl Morrall and a 27-yarder from Jim Del Gaudio.

Miami bullied the Cardinals 31-10 in Monday night's laughable National Football League mismatch. It ended in a circus atmosphere with fans running amid players during the closing minutes while ABC-TV cameras worked at avoiding the exhibitionists.

"These fans are crazy," said sportscaster Howard Casell, who turned a threatening letter from a Miami follower over to the FBI earlier in the weekend.

"It took cops and police dogs to handle them. This town has gone mad, but we didn't show those nuts on TV. We don't want this to start all over the country."

The Dolphins are 11-0, three games from becoming the NFL's first undefeated regular season team since the 1942 Chicago Bears. Ahead on the schedule are New England, the New York Giants and Baltimore.

Stowe blazed past the napping Thompson and was as lonely as a hermit for the first touchdown shot from Morrall. Thompson later was carried bodily into the end zone from five yards out as Jim Kiick smashed for another score.

Then, with the second-year defenseman from Utah on the ropes, Stowe hit him again as backup quarterback Del Gaudio arched the football into his uncontended arms.

Morrall hit 12 of 19 passes for 210 yards against the 2-8-1 Cards.

The Dolphins, who began operations in 1966, reached a milestone Monday night. They hit the 500 mark at 46-46-1 in their seventh season, the earliest an expansion team has ever made it.

Shula, in his third season at Miami, is an incredible 31-7-1.

Shula admitted Monday night's effort "wasn't very artistic at the start, but the defense kept the offense in the game until we got our running game going in the second half."

Larry Csonka pounded for 114 yards in 16 carries. Mercury Morris made 55 in 16 and Kiick chipped in with 25 in eight as the three-back running offense mauled the Cardinals.

Ted Williams, manager of the Texas Rangers, played in only one World Series. That was in 1946 when he hit 200 on five singles in 25 trips to the plate.

THANKSGIVING WEEK CATCH—Ralph Sidwell, who lives at 2200 Aspen in Pampa, caught this 8', 69 lb. saifish November 24 in the Pacific waters at the southernmost tip of Baja California. Mr. and Mrs. Sidwell spent Thanksgiving week at the Hotel Cabo San Lucas on the Mexican peninsula with Mr. and Mrs. W.J. Fellers of Amarillo.

Harvesters Play Hereford Tonight

The Pampa Harvester basketball team hosts the Hereford Whitefaces tonight in the Harvesters' third game of the season.

Pampa sports a 1-1 record going into tonight's contest while Hereford is 3-1 for the year.

Both of the Harvesters' prior games were against Clovis, N.M. Pampa lost to the New Mexico team, 96-68, in its season opener last Tuesday and beat the Wildcats, 55-52, in Harvester Fieldhouse Saturday.

Hereford won three games in a row before losing to Levelland, 58-51, last night.

Slated to start for the Harvesters are guards A.J. Brewer and Ray Powell, forwards Steve Richardson and Bill Simon and postman Freddy Wilbon.

Starting for Hereford are Alan Cornelius, Dan Vanderzee, David Duvall, Luther Mays and Terry Scott.

The game is scheduled to get underway at 8 p.m. in Harvester Fieldhouse. The Shockers will play the Hereford junior varsity in an earlier game at 6 o'clock.

Johnny Miller Wins Heritage Golf Classic

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — The absence of Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Arnold Palmer made it easier for Johnny Miller to win the $125,000 Heritage Golf Classic on Monday.

Miller said so himself.

"Coming into the last couple of holes, you know, anything can happen," he said.

"But I felt I could handle those guys around me (the challengers), except maybe Tom Weiskopf. You know, most of them are young guys and I figured I could beat them."

"But it would be something else if you're coming into the last few holes and Arnold or Jack or Lee is there."

"Those guys—they're the best players in the world—they put the pressure on you."

But they weren't playing in this one, and Miller casually sauntered off with a front-running victory, his second on the pro golf tour and also his second, unofficially, in as many weeks.

He won an unofficial title in New Zealand just a week ago, a victory that the 25-year-old Miller said set him up for the triumph on the 6,555-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, one of the toughest courses the touring pros play all year.

"Winning in New Zealand gave me the confidence I needed," he said.

The blond Californian, now representing a club on this resort island, started the weather-delayed final round Monday with a one-stroke lead. He ran off three consecutive birdies en route to a one-under-par 70, and finished the 72 holes with a three-under-par total of 281.

The only drama came on the final two holes.

The veteran Weiskopf, who finished alone in second just one stroke behind Miller after shooting a brilliant 66 Monday that was built on a string of seven consecutive threes, was in the clubhouse with a 282 when Miller came to the last two holes.

He bogeyed the 17th from a bunker, and went to the tough 18th hole needing a par to win. He reached the green in two, but needed two putts to salvage his par from 35 feet—the last an 18-inch.

Former PGA champion Bobby Nichols, rookie Lon Hinkle and youthful amateur Ben Crenshaw tied for third at 283. Crenshaw and Nichols each had final round 67s and Hinkle shot a

USC, Alabama Rated 1-2 Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was Southern California and Alabama again No. 1 and No. 2 in the next-to-last Associated Press college football poll of the regular season.

The Trojans and the Crimson Tide, each unbeaten and untied in 10 games, were idle last week. The Trojans got 46 of 50 first place votes and 990 of a possible 1,000 points from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters Monday in this week's poll.

Alabama received the remaining four first place votes and a grand total of 890 points.

Oklahoma's 17-14 victory over Nebraska moved the Sooners to third place and Ohio State's 14-11 surprise conquest of Michigan jumped the Buckeyes into fourth from ninth place.

Rounding out the Top Ten, in order, were Penn State, Texas, Michigan, Nebraska, Auburn and Notre Dame.

De Pasqua Is Canned

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Carl DePasqua, who took the job as Pitt football coach when none of the so-called big names would risk it, has been fired, and the search is on for a successor with "impact."

Casimir Myslinski, Pitt's athletic director, made the announcement Monday, two days after the Panthers concluded a 1-10 season with a loss to Penn State.

"I hope to get somebody with a big name, somebody with impact," said Myslinski, who had the same aim four years ago before firing the relatively obscure DePasqua.

"If I can get a coach who can make people believe he is going to win," he added, "then I expect more people in the stands and I expect better recruiting."

Myslinski said he hoped to have a new coach within weeks and noted he had several prospects in mind, but he declined to identify them.

Record Set

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Herve Filion, harness racing's leading driver, set an all-time record of 544 victories in one year when he scored with Eden All in the fifth race at Roosevelt Raceway on Monday night.

The 32-year-old Canadian-born driver broke his own world record of 543 which he had set on Dec. 31, 1971.

Tulsa's Ed White Is Player Of Week

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Ed White came into his own as a fullback last Saturday as the University of Tulsa tromped North Texas State University 45-22.

White gained 107 yards on 17 carries, caught two passes for 43 yards, scored two touchdowns on runs of five and two yards each and made one run of 45 yards. That was the longest run of the season for the Hurricane.

For his efforts, White, a senior, was named offensive player of the week for the Missouri Valley Conference.

White led the Hurricane to its third victory in five conference games and a tie for fourth place in conference standings. Drake, Louisville and West Texas State tied for first place and Tulsa was tied with Memphis State.

"Ed has convinced me that he is a superb fullback," F. A. Dry, Tulsa coach, said. "He has that rare ability to run inside our outside with power and can catch the ball, too. He is a fine individual and will be hard to replace next year."

Also nominated for the honors of the week was Howard Stevens, Louisville running back, who gained 100 yards and scored two touchdowns as the Cardinals defeated Drake 27-0.

Stevens became collegiate football's all time leading scorer in the game, posting a career total of 418 points.

Tom Jackson of Louisville was named defensive player of the week in the conference Monday. He made 10 unassisted tackles, helped on two, recovered two fumbles and deflected a pass as Louisville defeated Drake.

PATERNO POWER

Joe Paterno of Penn State had the best winning percentage of active major college football coaches entering the 1972 season. Paterno's Nittany Lions had won 53, lost 11 and tied one for an .823 mark.

Leaks Is Apparent Winner

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' Roosevelt Leaks, barring a stunning day by Southern Methodist's Alvin Maxson Saturday against Texas Christian, will become the third sophomore in a row to capture the Southwest Conference rushing title.

Leaks completed his season with an average of 109.9 yards per game. Arkansas junior Dickey Morton finished second at 108.0 yards per outing.

Maxson must gain 270 yards in the Mustang finale against Texas Christian to regain the title he won as a sophomore. Texas Tech senior Doug McCutchen, the 1970 rushing king, completed his career Saturday and ranks No. 10 among the 1972 rushers.

Morton, playing in more games than Leaks, became the third-leading seasonal yardage gainer in SWC history, totaling 1,188 yards. His 272 attempts for the year fell one shy of the record 243 rushes by Rice's Stahle Vincent last year.

Leaks missed by a single yard gainer in the fifth 1,100 yard game in SWC history. He totaled 1,099 for the year. His seasonal total was the sixth best ever in the conference and the best ever turned in by a sophomore.

In team categories, Sun Bowl-bound Texas Tech averaged 368.5 yards per game to capture the total offense title.

College Basketball

By Associated Press

Ohio State's red-hot sophomores of 1971 hope to get the chance this season that they missed out on last season—that of dethroning UCLA as the national collegiate basketball champion.

A year ago the Scarlet and Gray, led by Luke Witte and Alan Hornyak, were given an excellent chance of ending UCLA's reign. They failed to qualify for the NCAA national championship postseason tournament when Minnesota beat them out for the Big Ten title.

Now seniors, Witte and Hornyak combined for 47 points Tuesday night in leading Ohio State to a 92-81 opening game victory over Wisconsin-Milwaukee. The 7-foot Witte scored 24 points and 15 rebounds for the Buckeyes, 10th-ranked in the pre-season Associated Press poll. Hornyak hit for 23 points.

"We did some things reasonably well, like playing about 15 minutes without an error, but it was a sometime thing," commented Ohio State Coach Fred Taylor. "Part of that might have been because of their zone. It destroyed our tempo."

North Carolina State, No. 8 in the AP poll, trounced Appalachian State, 130-53 with star soph David Thompson tossing in 33 points and snaring 13 rebounds. In other games involving the AP Top Twenty, No. 15 Houston trampled Southern Mississippi, 104-97 and No. 17, Kansas State favored to win the Big Eight, beat San Diego State 79-67.

Ronald Brown converted two free throws with 13 seconds left to give Oklahoma City an 82-81 squeaker over Texas-Arlington and Tulsa overcame Samford 100-86 with Willie Biles showing the way for the Hurricane with 41 points.

Soph Henry Williams hit for 35 points in leading Jacksonville to a 103-94 triumph over William and Mary. Oklahoma defeated Indiana State 94-84. Texas-El Paso edged New Mexico State 56-54. Georgetown, D.C., shaded St. Francis, Pa., 61-60 and Western Kentucky whacked Old Dominion 131-106.

In other games, Eastern Kentucky humbled Cent. 84-60. Denver defeated Northern Colorado 106-97. Oregon State whipped Navy SubPac 100-79 and Morehead State beat UNC-Charlotte 85-78.

Ray Fired

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky Athletic Board voted Monday night not to renew the contract of head football coach John Ray.

UK President Otis Singletary said that he will appoint a screening committee "right away" to begin looking for Ray's successor. He indicated the committee would be headed by Athletic Director Harry Lancaster.

"No target date has been set to name a new coach, according to Singletary. My view is that we ought to move as rapidly as possible on this, though," he said.

Ray's four-year contract is due to expire Dec. 12. During his career at Kentucky his teams compiled a 10-33 record. His 3-8 showings this season and last were his best.

Reviewing his four-year struggle Monday night, Ray said, "It's been a very trying experience and an educational one."

Yankees Trade For Powerhitting Nettles

HONOLULU (AP) — The New York Yankees made a big hit and the New York Mets completed a double play in the trading game at baseball's winter meetings.

Before the last man was out Monday, 18 players including such big names as Tommie Agee and Graig Nettles had changed teams as the free-swimming officials got the 71st annual session off to a rip-roaring start.

Even before the Major League draft led off official business Monday, the Yankees dropped an early-morning bombshell announcement involving Nettles and five others.

The Yanks, badly in need of a slugger, snatched the power-hitting Nettles from the Cleveland Indians along with catcher Jerry Moses for a covey of young hopefuls—catcher-first baseman John Ellis, outfielders Charlie Spikes and Rusty Torres and infielder Jerry Kenney.

"We traded tomorrow for today," New York General Manager Lee MacPhail said. "The fans have waited long enough for a pennant. We want to win it next year—Yankee Stadium's 50th anniversary."

Taking a cue from their cross-town neighbor, the Mets pulled off a double-barreled swap Monday with the Houston Astros and the Indians.

The National Leaguers shipped center fielder Agee to the Astros for outfielder Rich Chiles and pitcher Buddy Harris. The Mets then completed their day's business with the announcement that relief pitcher Phil Hennigan had been obtained from the Indians for minor league pitchers Brent Strom and Bob Rauch.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and Detroit Tigers got in the act with a four-player deal only a few hours later. The Pirates obtained two minor league pitchers, left-hander Jim Foor and right-hander Norm McEae, for outfielder Dick Sharon and an undisclosed minor leaguer.

The trade-happy baseball people weren't finished, however. The Cincinnati Reds then dealt outfielder Bill Voss to the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Pat Jaquez.

There was other business Monday, although anyone hardly noticed. The hierarchy of the major and minor leagues held several administrative huddles, including the draft of players from baseball's massive farm system.

Johnny Rodgers Tells Critics: 'I Think I'm an All-Right Dude'

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

"I don't think I'll vote for Johnny Rodgers (for the Heisman trophy) no matter how many yards he gains for Nebraska; no matter how many touchdowns he scores. Johnny Rodgers runs wild off the field, too. He has had several scrapes with the law, including a gas station holdup, for which he was sentenced to two years' probation after a plea of guilty." —Dick Young, sports columnist for the New York Daily News.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—I called Johnny Rodgers in Lincoln, Neb., and read him the above. Following are the comments of Rodgers, a 5-9, 160-pound senior runner-receiver and two-time All-American from the University of Nebraska:

"I see articles like that and I get letters from people saying things, like that. From people who don't know me. They talk about me having bad character and that the Heisman award should go to someone who is a credit to his school, to himself, and a model to youth. But the Heisman award is supposed to go to the best football player in the country, which I think I am.

"Guys write, 'Johnny Rodgers is the flashiest back, the best back I've ever seen, but I'm not going to vote for him for Heisman.' If it's a character award, they should specify that. And then go around and meet the leading candidates. Some of these guys who vote can't know no more about me than what they read or see on TV. But how can you be an All-American and not be eligible for the Heisman award?

"There are a lot of people on my side. One of my tightest friends is Greg Pruitt of Oklahoma, who is one of my stiffest competitors for best player in the country. He said, 'Johnny, quit worrying about it, they're just trying to mess you around.'"

"But I got to be fighting this bad character thing. What is a bad character? It's someone who constantly gets in trouble, who has detrimental things in mind. That's not me. I got into bad trouble one time in my life, made one bad mistake. The gas station thing. I was 17, I'm 21 now. The couple other things were traffic violations. It's surprising that someone from my background hasn't got in more trouble. I had to bring myself up, get up off my back from the beginning. I think I've shown good character.

"I grew up in the ghetto in Omaha. I didn't see my real father until I was 17. My mother had me when she was 16. So she was just a kid, too, when I was comin' up. I have a younger sister and brother. We were poor. We moved like seven or eight times before I was 13. I remember we lived in this big house, like an apartment house, but we lived on the sixth or seventh floor walkup. In the attic. We had two rooms. I had to sleep with my sister. My brother wasn't born yet. Then we moved to another apartment. One room, for four people.

"I was hanging around with all kinds of guys, playing ball with them. Some were better athletes than me. But a lot of them ended up in jail or reformatory or quit school. I could have got in trouble like 10 times, 11 times. Instead I got into one bad scrape. That's all. It was a mistake, and I'm sorry for it.

"But sports kept me from doing more bad stuff. And like after high school I wanted to go to college. My mother didn't understand. She wanted me to get a job. She said I wouldn't make it in college because I was too poor, too small and too black.

"Maybe she was right about the last, as far as my happiness in Lincoln. I've been made to feel like a nigger—away from football. It's a tough place for a black to live. There's no social life. It's dull. The boredom makes you want to do something. But I just stay in my apartment and watch TV every night. I feel like I'm being watched. Cops come to my apartment about four times a month, checkin' me out. They never come before 1 in the morning, and more like 2 or 3 in the morning, and get me out of bed. They say they're checkin' about some disturbance.

"I was busted last summer for possession of marijuana. But I wasn't booked, wasn't charged with anything. I was cleared, because there was no marijuana. But there was national publicity.

"I had a detective check on my phone. He found it was tapped. Lot of people here not really for me. They're trying to catch me in trouble. I don't know, maybe they think I'm uppity, getting ahead too fast. I think I was being followed, too. I'm paranoid all the time here.

"I actually feel that after the football season is over, after January 1, I'm going to be a very nervous person. They won't need me any more to win football games. I want to leave here and go to school in Omaha but my probation officer won't let me. No, I won't graduate in four years. Very few athletes do. Besides, how can I keep my mind on studies with all this happening?"

"I want the Heisman more than ever because so many people don't want me to have it. I have the stats for the award. I have the achievements. People gave me another chance to play. I played well, I kept straight. I think I'm an all-right dude."

Animate or Inanimate?

Once there was a boy who hated rocks. Perhaps, he had stubbed his toe on one, or had been hit by one. Whatever the cause, whenever he saw a rock, he would kick at it, curse it, or try to smash it with the most quickly available weapon. His father observed the unusual behavior, and sought to understand the reason for it.

"Son," he said, "you are wearing out your shoes and not getting your chores done. At best, your detestation of rocks is a waste of time. More than that, it is becoming expensive. Tell me why you act this way."

"Everyone of these rocks is a danger or a potential danger," the youth said. "Do you realize that a rock could kill you? What if a rock dropped off a cliff and hit you on the head? What if a car tire licked one through your window? Down with rocks!"

"You've got to understand," the father answered, "that a rock is an inanimate object. It has no power of choice. It is entirely bound by the physical laws of nature. It does nothing of itself, but must do precisely what it is caused to do."

The story is an absurdity cut out of whole cloth. Almost anybody above two years of age knows the difference between an animate and inanimate object. However, suppose the object under discussion is an organization and suppose the organization is comprised of human beings—is it animate or inanimate? The question is important. For if an organization of humans is inanimate, it has no power of decision. It must do what some force outside the organization causes it to do.

By way of example, take the political government. Is it animate or inanimate? If inanimate, there is no point in criticizing, advising, or attempting by persuasion to direct the pathway thereof. It has no capacity of its own for deviating from an inexorable course. Like a moon in orbit, it must follow a prescribed cycle. The man who blames the government for his ill fate merely wastes time and money. In the final analysis the bureaucrats within the government—they who are charged with decision making—have not any real choice but to arrive at that decision required by that organization. On the other hand, if government or any other organization is animate or semi-animate...

Well, it's an interesting problem. We will leave it there for some libertarian to meditate upon. It may be he has been scuffing his shoes.

The Next Four Years

President Nixon goes back into the White House with an unparalleled acceptance of the electorate. Except for that little has changed. He still faces the same problems.

Among these problems are the wind-down of the Vietnam war, the altered defense posture resulting therefrom, the maintenance of a dictatorship over wages and prices, and the consequences of the $100 billion federal deficit accumulated since 1969.

In large measure, the problems that President Nixon helped to create are what made him popular. History shows that, in a crisis, the people rally to a common standard, and in this country that standard is the presidency. The continued deficits led to the inflation that in turn brought a plausible pretext for imposing bureaucratic regulations over the results of inflation; that is, rapidly ascending prices. By seeming to rise to the occasion that he created, the President emerged as a popular hero.

He is not to be blamed for this. If it were not he that had done so, it would have been some other person with a like Keynesian commitment. The record of Mr. Nixon through his long career as Congressman, Senator and Vice President indicate that he is essentially a follower, not a leader. He is staying on the familiar path laid out by his predecessors, Hoover, Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson. He is simply a projection of the past into the future. He preserves the image of the benign protector, an image that has proved overwhelmingly acceptable to the higher fraction of the electorate.

So long as that protection remains benign, human freedom is only an academic issue except to the far-sighted. It will be interesting to watch the next four years of the Nixon administration unfold.

Nixon Trip: Japan Reds Holding Bag

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) —Curiously enough, President Nixon's visits to Peking and Moscow have dealt severe blows in a roundabout way to the Japanese Communist party, at least temporarily.

The Nixon trip led to that of Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, which led, in turn, to a marked improvement between Communist China and Japan's most conservative capitalists.

So far have these dealings progressed, in fact, that the Mitsubishi group, historically one of Japan's big-five semimonopolistic Zaibatsu, have now been termed as "friendly" firms with which China will deal. Their representatives have been personally welcomed by Chou En-lai.

Peking has in practice abandoned its attempts to blacklist those Japanese companies with trading interests in Taiwan. Further, in one way or another, the Chinese have made it clear the investments of Japan's major industrial firms in Taiwan are in no danger from them. In fact, through one hint or another, Peking has been at pains to assure the Japanese they do not plan a military invasion of Taiwan; and that any union must come through peaceful political means.

The Chinese government, by contrast, of late has seemed to ignore the interests of the Japanese Communists.

The Soviet Union, spurred by improving relations between Japan and China, has made a concerted drive for closer contacts with Japanese and American first-line businessmen.

In their eagerness for ties with the United States and Japan, neither Moscow nor Peking has insisted that Tokyo break off its close military alliance with the United States.

These moves have left the Japanese Communist party with its anti-American and anticapitalist platforms crumbling—and with nowhere to go.

The signs were visible even before the Tanaka visit to China. Though the Japanese party is one of the oldest in Asia, and it was founded by the Comintern, its 50th anniversary celebrations this summer were marked by the absence of representatives from the Soviet and Chinese parties.

The Russian and Chinese moves have convinced Japanese Communist leaders they have been sold out to the national interests of the Russians and Chinese.

The party had been making some progress in recent years (after the debacle of 1955). Ad hoc coalitions between the Japanese Socialist party and the Japanese Communists in local polls had put their candidates into the governorships of all major cities.

But Communist attempts to broaden the front have failed and the socialists are approaching other groups to increase their own chances for power, with indications the Communists could be left out in the cold in the future.

The Communists, in desperation, have been attempting to set up joint fronts with almost any group they could reach, even anti-Communist parties.

But thus far, the varied elements in the Japanese Communist party have been unable to agree on a platform or a program now that Moscow or Peking have effectively pulled the rug.

BRUCE BIOSSAT Coattails No Sure Pull at the Polls

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — You get into some pretty unsettled depths when you search for reasons why a man can win the White House big, as President Nixon did, and not pull a lot of his party's contenders for Congress along with him.

In a prior report, I cited the record of the last 40 years, involving 21 general elections, to show that no Republican presidential winner in that span, including the fabled Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, has had much luck with his coattails.

If anyone wants to argue that it's different with the Democrats, the answer is that even there it's a mixed bag and the record reveals erratic results.

Lynard Johnson's 1964 sweep over Barry Goldwater did add 38 more Democrats to the party's already commanding U.S. House majority. But Republicans in the Senate were so near their irreducible minimum that the Democrats picked up only a single new seat.

Four years earlier, John F. Kennedy edged out Mr. Nixon for the presidency but actually lost 21 House seats and two in the Senate. Obviously, one might say, narrow winners don't have coattails.

Oh? Harry Truman beat Thomas E. Dewey in a 1948 squeaker complicated by two other candidates. But with only 49.5 per cent of the total presidential vote, Truman brought in 75 additional House Democrats to produce one of the biggest turnovers in modern times.

The presidential coattail theory probably got its great boost from Franklin D. Roosevelt's days. His first victory in 1932 added nearly 100 Democrats to the House and began the party's era of ascendancy. By 1936, he had helped lift the total another 20—to a record 333.

Yet even Roosevelt's magic diminished with passing time. Republicans regained 80 House seats in off-year 1938, and FDR could pick off just five of those in winning his third term in 1940. Again, his party lost 45 seats in 1942, and he got back just 21 in 1944.

Clearly, it's risky to talk in simple terms of coattail effects. The jumble of evidence suggests many factors may be at work.

It's easy, and historically accurate, to say Republicans fell deep into minority status in the crisis of the Great Depression and have never really gotten out of the hole.

You can argue, too, that despite all the reapportionment of districts in recent years, a high proportion of House seats probably are relatively "safe" for one party or the other—mostly for Democrats.

In 1956, political analyst and author Samuel Lubell gauged that, over a considerable span, only about a third of the 435 House seats had changed parties. There are no recent exhaustive studies, but the "fluid" districts today may be as few as 20 per cent of the total.

It is often contended, furthermore, that the voters, growing in education and sophistication, are consciously using one party as a check upon the other, and one branch of government to balance off the other. This tendency has heightened, some say, as distrust of all government has mounted staggeringly among Americans.

Analyst Walter DeVries' studies of voters' widening habit of ticket-splitting support the notion that Americans are hopping all over the ballot list on big election days.

Lubell supplies a fresh rationale for this. He sees the voter as, in effect, acting on several elections at one, picking and choosing out of a mood of massive distrust and a desire to protect himself—and mostly against what he perceives to be the monumental and still enlarging power of the presidency—the real managerial center of today's society.

Your Health Immunity and Cancer Studied

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Some time back I read an article on cancer which stated that a substance could be injected into the cancer cell, arresting it. Is this process available to the public? I read the article with interest but did not know I would be personally interested. My husband is in his late 30s and we have a small child. He had a malignant tumor removed from his colon, but the doctor said it had already spread to two small spots on his liver. This has been three months ago. What can you say about this process and is there any possibility that this process could be available to my husband, and would it work on the liver?

Dear Reader — You must be referring to the work of Dr. Edmund Klein of the Memorial Institute in Buffalo, New York. He has been doing research on treating breast cancer and skin cancer. He did inject a substance directly into the tumor cells. The substance he used was tuberculin, the same substance used for skin testing for tuberculosis. The reason the skin test works is that a person who has been exposed to tuberculosis develops an immunity to it and when you inject the tuberculin material in the skin the body's immune system causes a reaction to occur.

Dr. Klein has taken advantage of this principle by injecting tuberculin into the tumor and then the body's immune system mobilizes and causes a reaction in the tumor. If the body's immune reaction is severe enough, it will literally reject the tumor cells. He has had some early success in the treatment of patients with breast cancer and skin cancer with this technique. It is still in the research phases and after the initial encouraging results in a small series of breast and skin cancers, it will no doubt be tested in other forms of cancer.

Cancer of the colon is a fairly common disorder. It is much more common in industrialized nations such as the United States than it is in undeveloped countries. Many investigators think this is due to the differences in our diet, pointing out that we tend to eat large amounts of concentrated foods such as sweets and bakery products and do not get as much roughage in our diet as is obtained by individuals who eat natural foods such as unprocessed cereals, vegetables and raw fruit.

One of the best signs of cancer of the colon is an unexplained change in bowel habits. If a person starts developing recurrent diarrhea or suddenly develops constipation, he should seek medical attention immediately. If cancer of the colon is detected before it has spread, it can often be totally removed and permanently cured. As in most other types of cancer the earlier the detection the greater the likelihood of successful treatment.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Losing Weight" booklet.

Paris Hoping for Col. Qaddafi Visit

By ROBERTS ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Libya's truculent 30-year-old strongman Colonel Muammar el-Qaddafi is thinking of doing some foreign traveling.

Specifically, he'd like to go to Paris—with a possible side junket to Britain.

The Pompidou government is strongly encouraging the idea of such a visit.

As they see it, it would neatly serve both their purpose and Qaddafi's.

The French already have sold Libya a lot of combat planes and other military hardware, and are busily engaged in peddling more. Also, with highly uncertain parliamentary elections due in February, the Pompidou regime is very eager to put on a spectacular to divert voter attention from numerous domestic grievances and complaints.

Similarly, Qaddafi apparently figures he has much to gain by a foreign trip.

He has never been abroad. With a limited education and speaking only his native language, the young Libyan ruler feels such a sojourn and fanfare meetings with heads of state would go far to enhance his personal and public stature.

Qaddafi has a burning ambition to fill the role of the late Gamal Nasser and be the acknowledged leader of the Arab world.

With Libya, vast in area and a population of only around 2 million, 90 per cent illiterate, but with an oil income of more than $2.5 billion, Qaddafi is in position to throw his weight around. And he has been aggressively doing it.

Breathing fire and brimstone against Israel, the fanatical Moslem is the financial mainstay of the smoldering war against Israel.

He is heavily subsidizing Egyptian President Sadat's deeply troubled regime, which he is trying to persuade to break the Suez cease-fire and attack Israel. Similarly, he is giving money and armaments to Syria, currently engaged in inciting guerrilla attacks against Israel.

Qaddafi also is providing most of the funds and a haven for the Black September and other extremists. Libya is now the main base of these terrorists and killers. The three liberated murderers of the Israeli Olympic athletes are living as "heroes" in Libya.

There is one hitch in Qaddafi's grandiose traveling plan.

Some of the important members of the 11-man Revolutionary Command Council, which nominally runs Libya, don't think much of it—and are saying so.

While Qaddafi is the top member of the council and generally exercises the greatest authority, he definitely does not have dictatorial power. He is the strongman, but other council members, all military officers, also have a big say.

On occasion, they say, they have been times when they have not only said no to Qaddafi, but yes on things he opposed—and made those stands stick.

Whether Qaddafi will have his way on a trip abroad remains to be seen. It's a far from settled question in the inner recesses of the command council.

Meanwhile, the Pompidou regime is vigorously pressing to unload another 50 Mirage supersonic jet fighters on Libya—for more than $125 million. Also being offered are late-model tanks, anti-aircraft missiles and an assortment of other weapons.

Libya has the money, and Paris is dangle attractive prices and terms.

Actually, Libya has no pilots capable as yet of flying supersonic jets. So the first 50 Mirages bought from France (originally sold to Israel, but withheld when the late President de Gaulle abruptly switched to being pro-Arab) are being flown by French-trained Egyptian pilots—with disastrous consequences.

The Egyptians have crashed some 10 of these expensive fighter-bombers—approximately one-fifth of Libya's Mirage force.

Quipped one French instructor, "The Israelis couldn't do much more damage than that."

On The Spot
Navy chiefs face tough grilling by the special House Armed Services subcommittee named to look into that rash of Naval disciplinary problems.

The three-member bipartisan panel was carefully selected for that purpose.

Not only are all World War II veterans, but Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., Armed Services Committee chairman, who hand-picked them, has strong misgivings about the policies of Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, Chief of Naval Operations.

Says Hebert, "I share the concern of many members of Congress over the apparent breakdown of discipline in the Navy. The subcommittee is under instructions to find out when and why discipline broke down, and how widespread the attitude is of individuals who thumb their noses at commanding officers, and decide for themselves whether they will follow order properly issued by superiors."

"The military is anything but a democracy, and was never intended to be. The whole operation will become uncontrollable if subordinates were allowed to take votes on whether they will obey orders. You wouldn't have a military organization; you would have a mob."

Hebert also made it bluntly clear that the subcommittee is to "get at the bottom of the situation and obtain the facts regardless of race, creed or color. We propose to find out what this is all about and why."

Subcommittee chairman Floyd Hicks, D-Wash., is a four-year Air Force veteran; Rep. W.C. (Dan) Daniels, D-Va., is former national commander of the American Legion; and Rep. Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y., a decorated World War II veteran who rose from private to colonel.

While carefully refraining from public comment on Admiral Zumwalt's controversial policies, it is known that Armed Services committee members are privately critical and consider them "too permissive."

"Navy authorities are saying discipline is unimpaired and everything is fine. If that is so, then why these incidents and outbreaks? Something is wrong somewhere, and it had better be remedied fast or the Navy will be in serious trouble."

Forecast: 18 Million Disabled 7 Or More Months

Eighteen million Americans of working age will be disabled to some degree for seven months or more this year.

The Health Insurance Institute issued this forecast today based on an analysis of a survey released by the Social Security Administration. The government survey broke the degree of disability into three categories and found each contained over 5 million Americans, as follows:

Those unable to work or unable to work regularly (over 6 million); those unable to work full-time or who had to change the nature of their job because of disability (over 5 million); those with limitations in the kind or amount of work they could do (6 1/2 million).

The survey revealed that 1 out of every 10 of those disabled needed help in personal care.

When help was provided, in 1 out of 2 cases it came from the spouse, in 1 out of 7 cases from a parent, and in 1 out of 10 from the disabled person's children.

The survey also noted that 2 out of every 5 disabled women needed some help with their housework with a close relative usually providing the assistance. However, one-quarter of these women used hired help, and 1 out of 25 who needed help did not receive any.

One of the key findings of the survey was that special adaptive aids such as supports for bath and toilets, ramps, broader doorways and the like can be of great value to many of the disabled.

"Perhaps 6 million chronically disabled persons would be far less limited if environmental barriers could be eliminated by the use of aids," the survey noted.

The Health Insurance Institute also pointed out that there is a special type of health insurance especially designed to provide cash when a working person becomes disabled and cannot work.

This insurance, called disability income insurance, is intended to provide a regular weekly or monthly income—usually between 50 to 60 percent of the disabled policyholder's gross income—until he can return to work.

There are two types of this insurance—short term, usually for coverage of up to two years, and long term, including benefits for two years or longer to age 65, sometimes for life.

According to the Institute, almost 59 million persons have short term protection while 12 million have long term.

Last year the public received $1.8 billion in benefits through these disability income expense policies.

Alcohol, Plants, Aspirin Poisoning U.S. Children

Children have surprisingly long reaches.

What do liniment, methadone, aspirin and cleaning and polishing agents have in common?

Taken in large enough doses they are poisons and can kill.

And all of them, according to the Health Insurance Institute, have killed and seriously injured children taking accidental overdoses.

Let's take liniments. As many as a thousand or more children under five years do just that each year. Many are hospitalized—some die.

Known Killers

The same applies to cleaning and polishing agents, a known killer of young children. Somehow the youngsters manage to get into household bottles and cans.

Aspirin, a leading child poisoner, has been killing less lately—probably, according to authorities, because of intensive campaigns to make the public aware, and because of greater emphasis on safety packaging.

Still, thousands of cases of babies swallowing too many aspirin are reported annually, while dozens of children still die of aspirin overdoses each year.

As for methadone, it has already killed a number of children. A 2- to 6-year-old child, who accidentally takes a full dose of methadone, 80-120 mgs., will probably die from it in three hours or less if untreated.

Other dangerous substances—all of them child killers—include alcohol, disinfectants, petroleum products and other solvents, pesticides, plants and kerosene.

CONSUMER CORNER

New Consumer Protection Law

A new consumer law is on the books—one that may be of great help the next time you go out to buy a new or used car. Just passed by Congress, the new law makes it a federal crime to disconnect or roll back a motor vehicle odometer—or mileage indicator.

New car dealers sponsored this tough federal law because, up to now, some states had odometer laws and some didn't. Cars are traded back and forth across state lines, and car buyers and car dealers in states with strong odometer laws had no assurance that cars brought in from other states had accurate mileage readings. As a result, they often paid inflated prices based on phony mileage. The new law:

- makes it illegal for anyone, car owner and car dealer alike, to disconnect, alter or reset an odometer or operate a vehicle with a disconnected odometer with intent to defraud;
- prohibits sale or use of any device to change odometer mileage, except for legitimate repair;
- permits legitimate odometer repair, service or replacement as long as the mileage reading remains the same. If this is impossible, a notice must be posted inside the vehicle that the mileage has been reset to zero, together with the date of repair and mileage at that time.

Construction Of Floating Superports Off Louisiana And Delaware Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special study for the Federal Maritime Administration has recommended construction of floating superports off the Delaware and Louisiana coasts for huge tankers to unload oil imported from abroad.

The offshore port facilities are necessary to accommodate the growing fleet of deep draft supertankers that require water depths of 100 feet, the report said.

The report, issued Sunday, is the first of several being prepared through federal agencies and by some states. In addition to the Maritime Administration, it is being studied by the Corps of Engineers and the Council on Environmental Quality.

It was prepared by Soros.

Inc., a New York consulting firm.

The mayor of Rehoboth Beach, Del., Lester Johnson, was quick to criticize the recommendation for a superport off the Delaware coast, warning of possible oil spills off the beach resort.

"I understand it's impossible to unload without spills," Johnson said Sunday. "And it's been proven that anything out there washes ashore."

The recommendation of the Louisiana site was welcomed by P. J. Mills, executive director of the Louisiana Superport authority.

"The study put Louisiana five or six jumps ahead of the nearest competitor," he said.

A group of oilmen announced in New Orleans last week they have formed a corporation to build a superport off the Louisiana coast if the state gets federal permission.

The report said the offshore ports are the best solution to the oil import problem from both an ecological and economical standpoint.

Both ports would soon pay for themselves, it said, since oil imports are expected to increase from the three million barrels per day in 1970 to 15 million barrels daily by 1985.

The report said the costs of dredging existing harbors to the necessary 100 foot depth and maintaining them would be prohibitive. At present, only ports in Puget Sound in the Pacific Northwest can accommodate the supertankers.

East coast refineries, which already depend on foreign crude for over 50 per cent of their production, currently are supplied by tankers docking at conventional harbors no more than 65 feet deep. These tankers are 65,000 deadweight tons while the supertankers are 250,000 to 500,000 tons.

SNOW BIZ

Now they have a new snowmobile oil that won't foul you up!

The 100 per cent synthetic Snowmobile Oil from Union Carbide Corporation is made for use in all 2-cycle, air-cooled snowmobile engines.

It's especially designed to provide the best possible performance. It burns cleanly in snowmobile engines and therefore prevents spark plug fouling. It reduces combustion chamber deposits, ring sticking and exhaust port clogging. All of which means that your snowmobile will run better and start easier.

Union Carbide Snowmobile Oil has a -25 degree F. pour point, for easy pouring in cold weather and it's completely soluble in all types of engine fuel including high-performance racing fuels. Snowmobile Oil is now available in a new light blue, one pint size.

Such Is Fame

Napoleon Bonaparte, who ordered the construction of Paris' world-famous grand boulevards, is commemorated by only one statue in the French capital. It stands atop a tall bronze column in the Place Vendome.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph.D., M.D.
Notice how this cute shocked young Edward into remaining a lifelong bachelor! His subconscious fear of another traumatic experience has thus made him "crawfish" out of literally hundreds of possible romantic unions. So use the Rating Scales below!

CASE V-556: Edward F., aged 21, was a brilliant college senior. He was attracted to a pretty girl who impressed him as being of a cultured, moral background.

It was late in May when many college couples were renting canoes for romantic rides on the placid lagoon.

So Edward asked this coed for a canoe date.

They returned from their 2-hour trip about 15 minutes early.

Frugal Edward ran the prow upon the shore about 100 yards from the dock where he was to return the craft.

Then he moved close to her in the prow of the canoe so they could hold hands.

But when it came time to paddle over to the dock, he started back to his end of the craft.

Alas, the canoe turned over! Both of them plunged into the water, fully clothed in their best apparel.

"Dr. Crane," Edward confessed to me years later, "I never was so shocked in all my life."

"And I don't refer to the cold water."

"For this girl started swearing and cursing at me like a drunken sailor on the wharf at San Francisco!

"I never had dreamed she even knew such 4-letter words, for I had idolized her as my 'dream girl.'"

"Well, I never asked her for another date."

"And I doubt if she would ever have accepted, anyway, for she was still so irate she wouldn't talk to me, even when I left her at her sorority house."

PSYCHIC TRAUMA
My purpose in citing this canoe accident, is to illustrate the indelible influence on personality of an early traumatic experience.

For Edward became an engineering expert and made a fortune by the time he was 33.

And he dated literally hundreds of beautiful debutantes at their "coming out" parties in Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

In fact, he was the most attractive bachelor you could imagine.

For he was not only handsome, wealthy and a superb ski addict, but he also was a champion dancer and "waltz king."

Now, at the age of 70, he is still a bachelor, though he consciously professes a great desire to marry.

But he always "crawfishes" when he meets charming women who seem compatible and congenial.

For he manages to find some little flaw in every eligible woman he dates.

Like many old bachelors, he thus professes a "conscious" desire for marriage but then "subconsciously" shies away via fabricated excuses.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Tuesday, Nov. 28, the 333rd day of 1972. There are 33 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1520, the Portuguese navigator, Ferdinand Magellan, reached the Pacific Ocean after passing through the South American strait which now bears his name.

On this date: In 1821, Panama declared itself independent of Spain and joined the Republic of Colombia.

In 1843, Britain and France recognized the independence of Hawaii.

In 1863, Americans observed the first Thanksgiving Day set aside by national proclamation.

In 1919, the first woman to be seated in the British House of Commons, Lady Astor, was elected.

In 1942, nearly 500 persons died in a fire that destroyed the Cocoanut Grove night club in Boston.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin and British Prime Minister Churchill met at Tehran, Iran, to plan World War II strategy.

Today's birthdays: Singer Rose Hampton is 63. Economist Arthur M. Okun is 44.

Thought for today: In quietness and in confidence shall be your strength.—the Book of Isaiah.
