Enemy Presses Hard to Sever Railway Lines

By J. B. KRUEGER
Associated Press War Editor
China's armies fought desperately on four points today to thwart the most ambitious Japanese offensives in seven years of warring against the Chinese. The Asiatic fighting overshadowed all other Pacific war fronts, including the progressing American invasion of the Schoutens, because it was the most ominous. Changing air battles felt that China, beset in the north and east, may be entering its most critical period of the conflict.

Japanese troops pushed down the Hankow-Cantons road to within 80 miles of Changsha, a city the Chinese have seen fit to defend with great effort on three previous occasions, all successfully. Four enemy columns pushed southward toward Changsha, apparently to gain full control of the rail line, which would help set up a great segment of China fronting on the Pacific.

Coupled with Japanese drives to win control of the Hankow-Peiping or northern section of the railway, the enemy objective could be to seal off all of eastern China—richest part of the country—against future Allied use as a base to bomb Japan.

Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's 14th U. S. Airforce rushed into the Changsha fighting, strafing the road from Yoyang to Puchi, destroying trucks, troops, warehouses and barracks. Farther north his airmen attacked barracks at the Yangang on the Hankow-Peiping section.

Fighting in Honan to the north raged on, at last report, but Chungking reports gave no news of the Chinese counteroffensive. The Japanese crowded that in capturing Loyang, key rail city, they had dealt Allied plans for a China-based air offensive a mortal blow.

On a third front Chinese troops sloped through rain, fog, mud and sleet in Yunnan province, pursuing Japanese retreating toward the Burma frontier. The Chinese, within a junction with Allied forces in Burma Myitkya, assaulted prepared mountain positions eight miles west of captured Talangung village.

Committee Moves To Delay Trial Of Two Officers

WASHINGTON, May 29—(AP)—Accompanied by a demand from Rear Admiral Henshaw C. Kimmel for an "open" trial soon, legislation allowing more time for court martial action against the men in command at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese struck moved swiftly forward in both houses today.

The House rules committee approved a measure extending for one year from June 7 the time in which the proceedings might start, and "directing" that the trials be held rather than merely permitting them.

The Senate Judiciary Committee voted to act next Monday on a resolution fixing Sept. 8 as the deadline for action against Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short.

The Senate group also named a subcommittee, headed by Senator Hatch (D-N.M.) to meet in closed session Wednesday with high military and justice department officials and discuss the resolution. Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.), author of the measure, was named on the subcommittee along with Senators O'Mahoney (D-Wy.), Chandler (D-Ky.), and Wiley (R-Wis.).

Ferguson disclosed receipt of a letter from Kimmel in which he said he wanted a "free, open and public trial" at the "earliest practicable date."

Association Is Formed to Bring Musicians Here

Formation of the Pampa Community Concert association to bring internationally-famous concert artists here next fall and winter was announced today by Miss Marion Evans of Columbia Concerts, New York City.

At a meeting in City Hall yesterday plans for the organization and a campaign for membership were discussed following election of these officers: Mrs. Marion Evans, president; Rev. Robert Roshen, president; Mrs. R. E. McKernan, first vice-president; Mrs. Carl J. Wright, secretary; Floyd E. Imel, treasurer; Mrs. Maurice P. Garner, headquarters, secretary and Mrs. Raymond Harrah, dinner chairman.

Winston Savage was elected general chairman of the membership drive for which plans are to be announced later. Miss Evans said.

350 Workers Needed In War Plants Here

Gray county war plants—refineries, carbon black plants, and machine shops, are still in need of employees. At least 350 workers could be hired right now, Otis R. Terry, manager of the U. S. Employment service here, said today.

Despite appeals, workers in less-essential jobs have been slow to respond. Terry said he will fill the gaps in the labor lines. Number of placements within the past two weeks had increased to 70, but this is only a fifth of the total number needed.

There have been many applications from high school boys for summer jobs. This is the biggest potential field for filling in the gaps in the essential industries, it was announced.

Author and Retired Minister Succumbs

WACO, Tex., May 29—(AP)—Dr. William Tyndale Lowery, 86, a college president in Mississippi for 47 years and an active Baptist minister for 59 years, died here yesterday, following a long illness from active work six years ago.

He had made his home with a daughter, Miss Sara Lowery, head of the speech department at Baylor university.

Dewey Now 'Willing To Express My Views'

(By The Associated Press)
To the long-standing fact that Governor Thomas E. Dewey has not come out for the Republican presidential nomination was added today the news that he is willing to "express my views" on platform matters and is doing exactly "nothing" to discourage talk of his long pre-convention lead.

The new developments came in a press conference on the eve of the national conference of governors at Hershey, Pa., where the New York governor told reporters that whether he would accept the nomination, if tendered, is "a hypothetical question."

The pre-convention delegate listings show that Dewey to date has at least 386 pledged and claimed delegates to 64 for Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio, his nearest rival.

Indiana Republicans head the week's state activity, meeting in convention Friday to select 29 delegates expected to be uncommitted, and also selecting nominees for a senator and governor.

No Regular Edition Of The News Tuesday

Tomorrow, May 30, being Memorial Day, The Pampa News will not publish its regular edition. The next regular edition will appear the following day, but any sensational break in the news tomorrow would necessitate the publication of an extra edition.

Radio Station KPND, operating on a regular schedule, will present the news at the regular intervals.

Post Office And Banks Will Close On Memorial Day

Pampa will close shop tomorrow in observance of Memorial Day. The city hall and court house departments, the banks and the post office will be closed all day. The post office, of course, will receive and dispatch mail, as usual, but otherwise will be closed.

Taking advantage of the fact that yesterday was only two days before Memorial Day, Pampans held their regular ceremonies Sunday afternoon at Fairview cemetery.

Participating in the ceremonies were members of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, auxiliaries of these two organizations, the Pampa field band, and Company D, 14th battalion, Texas State Guard.

Political Upheaval Reported in Ecuador

QUITO, Ecuador, May 29—(AP)—A revolution broke out today among military forces and civilians.

The movement was led by supporters of Velasco Ibarra, former president who is in exile and has been living near the Ecuadorian border in Colombia.

Encouraged by a heated presidential campaign, with elections scheduled June 2-3. Some groups opposing the present regime desired Velasco Ibarra to be elected.

War In Brief

By The Associated Press
EUROPE—Thousand American bombers streak across Germany to hit factories in Poland, eastern Germany.

INDIA—American and Chinese troops penetrate deeper into base of Japanese north Burma base of Myitkya.

ITALY—Fifth army storms toward four Rome-line strongholds, thrusting one wedge within 7 miles of eternal city; American bombers hit Vienna.

RUSSIA—German broadcasts reflected increased tension in Marshal Von Rundstedt's entire invasion front facing the troop-packed island of Sicily as temperatures over the glassy Strait of Dover reached an unofficial 100 degrees shortly before noon.

Nazi commentators asserted that Gen. Eisenhower had missed one favorable invasion date when the tides and weather were perfect and cried out: "Germany would prefer for the invasion to come today rather than tomorrow."

That suggested that enemy defenses at least once already had been brought to a nerve-racking peak of alertness, only to find that Hitler's command had guessed wrong.

DNB, the official enemy news agency said: "There can be no doubt that the original date fixed for invasion has passed, but there are so many symptoms and speculation in connection with the next date that Germany cannot possibly be taken by surprise."

The Swiss newspaper, Gazette de Lausanne, gave a new clue to the defense problem of Von Rundstedt, complicated by railroads tangled and snarled by profusions of Allied bombs. The newspaper said there was increasing fear of a general 12-day strike of French railroad workers and that the Nazis were sending in more key transportation officials and workers for key posts.

Nazi propaganda broadcasts asserted the Allied high command already had passed up its most favorable invasion opportunity because it had found out its legions of men and stupendous array of equipment were not as ready for the great event as it had thought.

Berlin made a wild guess, also, that Gen. Eisenhower is waiting for fresh troops from America before giving the go-ahead for the western assault.

Flame-Throwers Fail To Stop Soldiers from Dozen Nations

By RICHARD McMURRAY
Rome reverberated to battle thunder 16 to 17 miles away today as the advancing Allies captured the dead factories of Aprilia, drove through flame-seared poppy fields within a mile of Valmontone and Compeleone, and virtually destroyed three more German divisions of up to 45,000 men.

Great air fleets from Italy and Britain were reported by the enemy to be striking the Berlin and lower Danube areas, possibly Vienna.

Smooth seas and hot summer weather invited Gen. Eisenhower's massed invasion armies. The restive Russian forces of war gear, great area of decision, remained calm save for repulsed German attacks on the lower Dnepr and in White Russia.

All along the Italian front approaching Rome, the Allies of a dozen nations pressed forward, sometimes through desperate flame-thrower defense. Prisoners totaled more than 15,000 and headquarters said the German 71st, 94th and 715th divisions had been hacked into bloody insignificance. Coupled with the winning of enormous stores of war gear, the picture was one of steady destruction of the 18 German divisions originally comprising the German 10th and 14th armies below Rome.

Lt. Gen. Sir Oliver Leese's eighth army moved six miles west from the main front through the Liri and Sacco valley, bridging both rivers. Area was invested when the Allies surrounded dominating Monte Ceco. Ceprano was left six miles within Allied lines.

The beachhead troops, paced by naval fire from a French cruiser, moved steadily across the creased gullies of the west coast below Rome toward the mouth of the Tiber. They cut the Anzio-Albano road. See GERMAN, Page 6

Nazi Broadcasts Reflect Growing Invasion Nerves

LONDON, May 29. (AP)—German broadcasts reflected increased tension in Marshal Von Rundstedt's entire invasion front facing the troop-packed island of Sicily as temperatures over the glassy Strait of Dover reached an unofficial 100 degrees shortly before noon.

High Court May Adjourn Until Next October

WASHINGTON, May 29—(AP)—A momentous eight-month Supreme Court term that produced decisions upholding war-time powers of the federal government and revealed elements of discord among the justices may come to an end today.

The tribunal made known recently that it would adjourn today for the summer unless otherwise ordered. However, a backlog of 14 undecided cases led to speculation that one additional session may be held next Monday to permit the court to dispose of all argued issues before closing up shop until the new term in October.

The court in the expiring term has handed down numerous 5-4 and 6-3 decisions. It reached unanimous agreement on only about one-third of its cases and among the other two-thirds were sharply worded attacks on findings which various justices dissented.

In one of its 6-3 opinions, the court held constitutional the price-fixing provisions of the Emergency Price Control Act. All but Justice Roberts agreed in a decision upholding the rent-control program of the Office of Price Administration.

An OPA order restricting sales of a retail fuel dealer for violations of oil rationing regulations was upheld and the restricted lower tribunals from passing on rate orders by the federal power commission unless the total effect of the orders might be unjust and unreasonable.

In another OPA case, however, the court decided an injunction to prevent a dealer from future price regulation violations need not be issued until the price administrator requested it.

Greatest public reaction during the term came from the 8-1 decision that Negroes have the right to vote in Texas Democratic primary elections. Justice Roberts protested that the court's opinions were getting to be like a railroad ticket good only for one day in one train.

The finding reversed a unanimous opinion by the court in 1935 which was written by Justice Roberts.

Texarkana Negro Is Charged With Woman's Death

TEXARKANA, Texas, May 29—(AP)—George Johnson, 30-year-old Negro, today had been charged with murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Minnie Mae Boatwright, 22, whose battered body was found two miles south of here.

Johnson last night was held in a nonannounced jail, said Bowie County sheriff Monroe P. Watts, who added the woman had been clubbed to death and raped as she lay dying. Branches and oak leaves covered the body, discovered in a shallow ditch.

Watts said Jack Boatwright reported to police last night his wife had been missing since Wednesday night. Boatwright is employed at the Texarkana mail terminal.

Officers Ed Cheatum and Harvey Sherrer immediately arrested Johnson at his home here. Watts quoted Johnson as admitting the slaying. Johnson's body was found shortly thereafter.

The sheriff reported the negro as saying he went to the Boatwright home to talk to her about doing the laundry. Johnson Boatwright asked him if he knew where she might get some blackberries and he replied there was a blackberry patch three miles away and in his truck.

Quick Death Is Dealt Japanese

AP REGIONAL SERVICE
WASHINGTON, May 29—(AP)—It took Marine Captain John L. Morgan, of Arlington, Tex., just 90 seconds to knock out three Jap zeros in a dogfight over Kahili in the Solomons.

The 22-year-old fighter pilot's exploit was revealed today with release of a presidential citation accompanying award of a Distinguished Flying Cross.

"His display intercepted a flight of approximately 50 zeros and, in the ensuing violent action, Captain Morgan completely destroyed three zeros within a period of 90 seconds," the citation read.

It also credited him with shooting down three other Jap aircraft, a bomber, a float biplane and a fighter between June 18 and July 18, 1943, the period covered by the citation.

Week-End Death Toll Now Stands at 118

(By The Associated Press)
A week end death toll from traffic accidents, drownings and other mishaps stood at 118 today as the nation began the third day of a four-day Memorial holiday.

Only 31 of the deaths reported today in an Associated Press survey resulted from automobile accidents while 45 were from miscellaneous causes and 33 from drowning.

California, with 11 deaths, led in the number recorded. Illinois, Massachusetts and New York had 10 deaths each.

Massachusetts, with 13 deaths, led in the number recorded. California had 11 dead and Illinois and New York 10 deaths each.

(Accidental deaths in Texas by a late count totaled four.)

Memorial Day

Throughout most of the states tomorrow, Americans will do honor to the men whose lives have brought us so far along the road to victory. There is no need to urge the solemnity of this Memorial Day, for no one can be insensible to the debt that we owe to the nation who, with tragic certainty, must follow them to the end of that road is reached.

It is a day of American homage to American fighting men. But it does not seem inappropriate that we should remember at the same time the soldiers and sailors of Allied and occupied nations who have died in the common cause.

Let us look back at other Memorial Days of this war: May 30, 1940, was perhaps the blackest day of the blitzkrieg. The retreat from Dunkirk was at its height. The Allied armies were still at the bottom of the sea. Nazi planes were bombing the transports that rescued the remnants of the defenders.

The next Memorial Day would America and Russia in the war. That day one Japanese submarine had sunk another American ship off Seattle another had shelled Australia. The Nazis were completing their occupation of Kharkov and the Kerch peninsula.

But that day, too, the 1000 British planes bombed Cologne. On May 30, 1943, great fleets of American bombers were over France. On Attn, American soldiers fought with rifle battalions, bayonets, grenades and fists. By the end of the day the Jap defenders were annihilated.

The men who fell at Dunkirk and Crete, at Pearl Harbor and Bataan, at Kharkov and Sevastopol, died in desperate, bitter fighting for what may have seemed a hopeless cause. But the bayonets, grenades and fists they had made possible the turning tide and the victory that will come.

Let us remember them, all of them, and the men who must give their lives today and every day until the enemy is finally crushed. And let us honor them with honest efforts to speed this war to its end to secure the world from the horror of its return.

At Long Last
After nearly two years of red tape, WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson has gone over the head of the WPB requirements committee and approved a $2,000,000 project for a wood-hydrolysis alcohol plant in Oregon. This is the process of making industrial alcohol from wood waste long used by the makers of other foreign countries, and convincingly proved by pilot-plant tests here.

This one plant will not do much toward saving the millions of tons of wheat and sugar that have gone into alcohol production while equally effective wood waste has been burned to get rid of it. The plant will continue long plants such as this one could ease our food problems immensely.

In far more specific detail than is common among prophets, the prophet of the headlines has given the outlines of the air-commuting age to aviation writers. Within fifteen years after the end of the war, according to Oliver Parks, 5,000,000 Americans will be flying small, fan-winged airplanes regularly, these planes will be enclosed models, with two engines for safety; they will carry 400 gallons of gasoline and have a speed of 125 miles an hour; they will be able to land in a space smaller than two city blocks; and they will sell for about $1700. The air commuter will be able to learn to pilot such a plane after five hours of instruction.

THAT CIVILIANS MIGHT CONTROL
(Daily Oldhamian)

Citizens who are so fond of referring to the president as "our commander in chief" would do well to consider why the president of the United States ever was made commander in chief of the army and navy. That provision of the constitution was designed to protect the people from the man on horseback. The wise men who framed the constitution had had a bitter experience with an army commander and directed by a tyrant. They knew mighty well what some ambitious Caesar could do with an army that was subject to his will and orders. They knew that the republic they were founding would have to have an army and a navy, but they were determined that the army and navy to be created never should be free from civilian control.

Wages by Collective Bargaining

No one has ever been able to explain why that majority in any plant can take away from the minority or any individual in that plant his right to make his own bargain with the employer. By what right does the majority deprive him of his right to sell his services for more or less as his judgment and conscience dictates?

There is nothing in the world that can do more to destroy individual responsibility and conscience and the idea that man has a moral duty to society than to relieve him of that duty under the guise of collective bargaining under the guise that the majority need not respect the natural rights and conscience of each individual.

If there ever was a pagan god, it is the belief that the majority makes right. It is beyond comprehension how a person who is really a Christian and believes in the inherent rights of every human soul can believe these rights can be taken away by a collective bargaining group which the majority refers to with the minority's right to get more or less for their services as their ability to produce would merit on a free market.

And invariably after the majority establishes minimum wages, it establishes maximum wages. Printers in some plants have already instituted this practice. In fact, the government under the leadership of union labor is now establishing maximum wages that people may receive.

So long as the people continue to believe that collective bargaining has a right to take away from the individual his conscience, his very soul, we can have no progress. All progress comes from individual morality. Doing a thing because the majority makes the act right, no matter how often it is claimed nor by how large a majority it is claimed.

Government by Bayonets

This column, in season and out of season, has been trying to get you to understand that our trouble is that we have departed from a government of laws and substituted for it a government of men.

Probably a better expression would be to say that we want a government of law rather than a government of bayonets. A government of men is nothing but a government of force—a government of bayonets.

Now that we see the army in our own country carrying out the head of a private business concern, in violation of the Constitution or a government of laws, we should better be able to see the end results of the meaning of a government of men—of bayonets.

When we have a government of men, or a government of bayonets, instead of eternal, impersonal laws rules, our businessmen cannot plan, our farmers cannot know what to count on. Since all business of any consequence needs long-time planning, a government of men, or a government of a dictator, how can the government of bayonets greatly retard production and thus reduces the real wages of all workers.

What we need is to approach as nearly as possible something we have never known—a government of laws—instead of what we are now rapidly approaching—a government of bayonets.

that the civilian head of the government should be commander in chief of the army and navy. No matter how good the army and navy might become, they always would be commanded by a civilian official who would be under an official oath to protect and obey the constitution of the United States. Those men want that we men can force the servants of the people and to keep the armed forces from helping some ambitious leader to make the people the servants of the armed forces.

Recently, the idea has developed that the president has vast civilian powers by virtue of his constitutional position as commander in chief of the army and navy. Even the attorney general of the United States believes, or professes to believe, that the president has immense powers in civilian affairs because he is the official head of the army and navy. He has the power to confiscate any non-war, civilian business in America simply because he is commander of the army and navy. And this is the very thing that the writers of the constitution had in mind when they made the president the commander in chief of the army and navy.

Now we hear on every hand that a civilian president should be kept in office because he is commander in chief. It is even said that a vote against a civilian president is an act of disloyalty to the commander in chief in his military capacity. And a prominent senator has gone so far as to say that a vote against the civilian president would be the same thing as court martialing the commander in chief of the army and navy. In a country whose constitution made the military subject to civilian authority we are told that we must keep the civilian population subject to the military authority.

Of course the belief that the president is commander in chief of the people is based upon sheer ignorance. He is not commander in chief of the people and he never has been. Any soldier or sailor who refused to recognize the president as commander in chief would be guilty of a crime against military or naval authority, but any citizen who recognizes the president as commander in chief of the people is betraying a vital principle of the constitution.

MAYBE IT'S HERE: Leaves From The Editor's Notebook

It is natural that after all the controversy over the Montgomery Ward case the government's dealing with strikes in war industries should now be followed with closer attention. It might be interesting, therefore, to compare procedure in the Ward case with that in the recent strike of Detroit foremen.

Attorney General Biddle, in his Ward case argument, echoed the President's assertion that Ward's wages were impudent. (In a later dispute involving a similar firm, the Chicago district War Labor Board ruled that the "Sears Roebuck & Co. man on horseback" should not be classed as essential to the war effort.) Mr. Biddle stated that "after the machinery of the WLB is flouted by either employer or employee, the President must support the order of the board."

There is no need to rehash the Ward case. A recourse to orderly court procedure probably would have avoided the whole thing. Let both sides were impatient. One day after the 13-day Ward strike had ended, the attorney general and an assistant to the secretary of commerce moved in the President's order, with soldiers and G-men.

Now consider the foremen's strike. That was 20 days old when it ended. It began because the National Labor Relations Board refused to order employers to bargain with the foremen. The WLB had twice ordered the foremen back to work. Their president, Robert H. Keys, told the national WLB that "we do not wish to strike, but we do not think it right from a patriotic standpoint, but frankly we cannot blame anyone but the government."

Was that not "flouting the WLB machinery" according to Mr. Biddle's definition? But there were no presidential orders. No soldiers reversed the Ward procedure and carried the foremen back into their plants. Instead, WLB Chairman William H. Davis talked to Mr. Keys like a patient Dutch uncle: "You can't win. If you insist on going on, the strike will be broken."

A WLB labor member promised that this group would assume the responsibility of seeing to it that the employers would recognize the foremen's bargaining rights as against the NLRB ruling.

That did not move the strikers. They did not return to the Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, told them that their strike had already cost 250 fighter planes on the eve of our most critical military operation.

The foremen's strike is not the only recent one in defiance of WLB orders. We simply offer its brief history, in contrast to the Ward affair, as evidence that the government's standard of penalties is too often inconsistent with the emergencies.

An agreement coming out of the conference between Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Lin Tso-han, the Communist leader, could mean much in the war against Japan. This bitter and long-standing difference has immobilized two fighting forces that are badly needed—the Communists themselves and the "cordon sanitaire" of Chinese Nationalist troops around Communist-occupied territory.

Dr. Edwin G. Zabriskie of New York, speaking before the American Neurological Association, said that an American soldier "has learned while on campaign to conserve energy, food, and materials. At home he sees an appalling amount of extravagance—a waste around him and a kind of optimism about termination of the war."

Well, that's what he sees, all right, and as Dr. Zabriskie points out, it makes him angry. All our brush aside the inconvenience of "using it up, wearing it out, eating it all" with the impatient remark that "you're people do it right. Next time YOU feel that way, consult your conscience, not your conscience."

News Behind The News The National Whirligig

By ALBERT LEMAN
PARALYZE—Even Axis saboteurs admit that bombing and sabotage are badly disrupting the railroads.

Their too-obvious laments may be a trick to make us think the job is already completed and that therefore we will call off the pound-dog. But General Eisenhower is too smart to rise to that bait.

The current campaign is far more serious than the early sporadic raids by flying "train busters" and guerrillas. We have embarked on an ambitious program to paralyze the enemy transportation system in Europe, especially the sections in the potential battle zones.

Not only are tracks attacked, but harbors, rivers, canals, truck highways, transport plane airfields and the various installations which service these mediums of conveyance as well.

MENACE—An enormous amount of freight normally flows between the Bay of Biscay and the Baltic along the shores or through the inland waterways.

American Liberator bombers and British Lancasters now show these routes with mines. Formerly, craft types were used exclusively, today two per cent of the old-fashioned models and more than a dozen different new kinds are distributed. Only shallow areas could be utilized by modern designs, but they can be used to great effect and even fall from high altitudes without exploding.

So successful are our tactics that last week all Baltic ports except the Bay of Biscay and the Baltic were closed. The most dangerous spot for Axis shipping is the strip joining the Skagerrak and Kattegat. One day thirty-two vessels were held up in Trondheim, Sweden, the skippers afraid to attempt the narrow passage.

Stockholm marine experts are the only ones who have solved the mine problem. They pilot gyroplanes over possible fields. The slow-moving contraptions hover above a spot until sweepers are summoned to remove the menace. Belligerent nations cannot use this method as the machines would be caught by swift aircraft.

HAZARD—Our flying mine-layers have made the five-hundred-mile stretch of the Danube between Vienna and Bratislava a dangerous, delaying oil, grain and bauxite boats.

The underground reports that German authorities in the region fear that one or another of the mines will hit the famous Iron Gates. Here the river follows a narrow channel; a cargo vessel sunk in this bottleneck would plug the passage.

The Nazis boast that to hamper our invaders they have strewn the waters of Europe's beaches with two hundred thousand mines. But their protection is also a hazard for their own ships. They are urged to keep the safe courses and cannot dodge our planes. Mines often break "adrift" and float unnoticed into the paths of Axis freighters.

DAMAGE—The railroad situation is even more of a dilemma. Berlin, doubting the loyalty of French conductors and engineers, was to acknowledge that reports on equipment of English and American cruisers and auxiliary production were definitely correct.

LITTLE WILD
When U. S. combat planes began to hop the Atlantic, the news went to Germany via South America clandestine radio. As early as July 1941 an intercept revealed "Nine Boeing planes" flew with mixed crew consisting of Englishmen and Americans. Within the next few weeks 20 are to be flown across. Details follow.

about gasoline. Some people have plenty, others are hitch-hiking. Theaters, of course, are booming. Yes, Ken Murray's "Blackout" is still running. Starting it's third year. And after all these years, the extras are cleaning up too, Warner's sent out a call for 1500 just last week.

Betty Grable hasn't lost any of her glamour since becoming a major. The Form casts the same shadow as before.

HAM ON EVERY CORNER

Meat, butter and eggs are plentiful in the stores again. Only limit is customers' ration points. Of course, there's still ham on every corner. The liquor stores have everything except Bourbon or Scotch. You can buy a case of either from the black market for $125. Which is too much.

The 20th Century-Fox studio still serves the best lunch in town. The price has been upped from 75 cents to $1.10. The food at the RKO and Paramount cafes is worse than ever. Billy Wilkerson, the trade paper publisher, has opened a swank restaurant since Ciro's burned. He calls it the LaRue. Plenty expensive, too, but the best people in town are there.

There's not a room or a house in town for rent. Limit on hotel rooms is five days—and there's always a waiting list. Houses which cost $5000 are selling for $12,000. But homes which cost $50,000 are being sold for $35,000. People don't want the big places any more. Can't get servants.

Everyone has a Victory Garden. Even glamor girls like Dorothy Lamour and Ann Sheridan are getting dirt in their fingernails. All the studio messenger boys have been recruited by the military and most prettier than the stock exchanges. Several have landed contracts.

Swiss travelers disclose that commuters in important German stations enter cars through windows rather than fight their way through tightly packed platforms and corridors.

Nazi railroad executives have told Scandinavian businessmen that lack of material and experienced personnel constitutes a problem even worse than the dangers from Allied strafing.

Branch lines have been discontinued wherever possible and the rails and equipment utilized to repair trunk damage. Boys as young as fifteen are now serving as locomotive firemen.

To replace switchmen, special signals were installed. But this labor-saving arrangement was a shortsighted measure. Anglo-American aviators, tipped off to the change, directed their attacks at the automatic mechanisms and snarled everything.

TREASURES—United States Servicemen in India, China and the South Pacific are frequently bothered by greedy local shopkeepers.

The boys pay exorbitant sums for small shrines, statuary, chests and other "rare Oriental" pieces of furniture. Both the boys and the recipients think they have treasures, but the objects are usually mere junk, trash not even worth the price of mending.

In other words, racketeers feather their nests at the expense of soldiers and sailors who have saved them from the Japs.

Well, the town's still perking. Especially Hollywood and Vine. The corner looks like a De Mille mob cover, but you can't get a table on Saturday nights. If you do you'll pay $4 for a tired steak and up to $150 for watered drinks.

People are still screaming, too.

JITTERBUGGERS BOWED
The Hollywood Canteen is still jumping. But since that actress sued the Canteen for $8000 and collected, claiming she was injured by a drunken man, the Canteen has had to take it easy.

Myrna Loy is back in town for a new Thin Man picture with William Powell. Her marriage to that New York advertising executive didn't take.

Bob Murphy has added another room to his restaurant. Grapes hang from the ceiling and he calls it the Grapevine Room. You see people wearing slacks and Lockheed buttons in fashionable restaurants. Like Murphy's these days. They can afford the ariffs, too.

There's still a gas station on every corner, but most of them are closed for the duration.

Associated Press War Analyst
German-held Valmontone astride the great Casilina highway twenty miles southeast of Rome, was the outstanding strategic prize for which the Axis had fought so hard today, as the allied offensive from the Anzio beachhead continued to surge forward.

Nazi retention of Valmontone was a matter of death or capture for a host of their badly mauled troops which are falling back towards the Adriatic City from the shattered Adolf Hitler Line. This town forms a barrier across Via Casilina (frequently referred to as route No. 6) which is the chief remaining avenue of escape for the retreating enemy since they lost the Apennian Way to the south.

But possession of Valmontone meant even more than that. Its loss by the Hitlerites would be a heavy blow to their defense of Rome—if indeed they intend to defend it to the last.

No wonder then that as dawn broke over the battlefield the Germans were counterattacking furiously from Valmontone with flame throwers in an effort to hold open this route for their comrades, and the Fifth Army Beachhead troops were driving straight through this hellish assault until they were close to the outskirts of the town. Valmontone decidedly was point worth watching as a key to allied progress.

Via Casilina isn't, however, the only avenue of escape for Nazi Field Marshal's a Kesselring's retreating legions about 25 miles along this highway to the southeast lies the strategic town of Prosignone and from there another highway, and this one is the main route to the north and then turn towards Rome above Via Casilina. This Prosignone thoroughfare also divides after a bit, providing still another route to the ultimate winds in towards Rome.

Thus the wily Kesselring won't be out of even if he loses Via Casilina. However, that is his chief avenue of escape, and he has only a few miles of mountains of equipment. So while he may be able to save many of his soldiers, he already has lost heavily through death and capture, and his losses in material already are grave.

Less than half of us know this country was not a member of the League of Nations. Two-thirds of us do not know that Britain is now providing us with military supplies under reverse lend-lease.

—Hadley Cantril, director, Princeton Office of Public Opinion Research.

Two reasons," said Link grimly. "First, her nerve is slipping. She gave herself away to me, and she may give herself away to Azaraski any minute, and eventually she is sure to. When she tells the Japs there wasn't any meaning to Kip's message, they'll give her hell. I know she can't stand up under that. The second reason is that Azaraski already suspects her, and he is planning to kill her along with you and me."

In a voice in which horror began to show, Norma said, "Link! Oh, Link! What will you do?"

"I'll talk to Courtwright," Link said. "And try to buck her up. And think of something."

"Right now?"
"Yes. We'll go to Courtwright's room now."

They found the door. Then they felt their way with infinite care through hallways and rooms. At last, Norma breathed, "This is Courtwright's room."

The door was a sliding one. Link nudged it open a bit at a time. They felt their way inside. And they entered the premises throatily by the sense of touch.

Norma whispered, "I can't find her."
"She isn't here," Link said.

Tilda Courtwright had not re-entered the inn. She had walked to the inn, but had not gone inside. She stood in the dark shadow of the building, waiting for the Azaraski and Baldwin could not see her. They would naturally think she had gone inside.

She stood beside the inn but a short time. Not more than a minute. But many thoughts were through her mind in the minute. "Are thoughts were plunging wild animals."

She knew now that she could not go through with her original plan. She simply did not have the brazen nerve. This thing she had undertaken called for a professional courage, the trained nerve of a soldier. Her business, the profes-

There was only the one alternative. Escape. To try to run away. If they, the three of them, could only reach Norma's fishing boat.

Tilda Courtwright worked her way toward the road. She was very careful, and no one saw her. She searched for whatever one of the Japanese soldiers happened to be posted as guard at the road. Soon a soldier, stirred in the darkness near her. He was one of the road sentries.

"Are you?" Courtwright whispered. "Be quiet. And listen to me."
She spoke Japanese fluently. She could even imitate its dialects, the Satsuma, the Aizu, the Yonagawa, the dialect of the Nagasaki district.

And the lid dissected the minds of too many Japanese boys, tried to find a cranny that would hold some education, not to know how to bribe one of them deftly and surely.

"WAIT a minute," Link said.
"Hold it. Listen to the rest of this: Courtwright has been trying to help us and she's got herself in a spot, where she's going to be killed."
"Courtwright!" Norma gasped.
"Killed!"
"We've got to help her," Link said.
"But I don't understand!"
"Link realized he was getting ahead of himself. He would have to go back and straighten out details."
"I know this is the way it must have happened," he said. "The plan was to get you and me and Courtwright together in the country and we would realize the meaning of the message and discuss it. Courtwright would then tell the Japs what the message meant. That's the way they put it up to Courtwright."
Norma said quickly, "But she could have refused to have any part of it, Link."
"That's exactly the point," Link said. "She could refuse. Then they would torture us. Torture me to get the message. Torture you to get its meaning. Courtwright knew how tough they would treat us. She knew maybe they would kill us. So she pretended to fall in and let them take us. Then she was going to tell them there wasn't any secret message. That would save us."
"But Link, why did she push us into finding out about the message ourselves?"
"So we would keep our mouths shut. So we would pretend there wasn't any message. She would pretend there wasn't, too. And the Japs would be fooled."
"Why won't her plan work?"

Drilling was, and still is, my passion.
"FOR Pete's sake, Miss Pendleton, don't tell them that," my instructor had told me, "only a very low mentality wants to drill; tell them you want to rivet like all the others."
"That is, if you won't apply for inspecting as you ought to," he had added. Inspecting, it seemed, was pretty much white-collar, and therefore desirable. It was also likely to be "sitting-down work" and altogether more elegant than manual labor. That I didn't want an elegant sitting-down job, that I might possibly have been able to get one without taking a six weeks' course in Aircraft Mechanics, seemed beside the point. I could read a micrometer without being baffled by the ten-thousandths, and I should be an Inspector. Simpson had it all clear in their minds. So did Curtis-Wright. Now, waiting here in Personnel, I had an uneasy feeling that Kerry Kraft had it too.
I was right. When at last the guard came out from the inner office and called my name, when I was "native-born," that I almost signed up. But fortunately I remembered, pen in hand, that inspecting propellers wasn't drilling.

Peter Edson's Column: FERRETING OUT THOSE SPY RADIOS

By PETER EDSON
Pampa News Washington Cor.
First chapter in the story of how clandestine Axis radio stations in Latin America were run down and put out of business has just been revealed by George E. Sterling, an Army Signal Corps radio operator in the last war and now chief of the Radio Intelligence Division. RID today maintains a network of over 70 monitoring stations all over the United States. They constantly "cruise" the ether to discover unlicensed radio stations; long-range radio direction finders it is possible for them to locate clandestine stations in any part of the world.

It was the spring of 1941 when this RID network first picked up German outlaw stations operating from Latin America. Before that time the radio stations were set up to Pearl Harbor there was no particular need for the Nazis to use secret radios, as commercial cable and radio telegraph and telephone communication channels were open to them.

But on this particular spring night, a monitoring station at Mills, Mass., outside of Boston, picked up signals from a station at the same time every day two stations identifying themselves as REW and PVL kept calling each other in an apparent effort to communicate. All the RED stations were alerted and by radio direction finding they established location of REW as Hamburg, Germany, and PVL as Valparaiso, Chile.

The interesting detail is that RID picked up and located both stations before they were able to communicate with each other.
A GIRL SPY IN U. S. EMBASSY
Intercepts from this and other Nazi clandestine radio stations in the United States, were sent to Department of State, FBI, Army, Navy and other agencies.
In July, Hamburg queried Valparaiso: "Can you place suitable man for us among students going to U. S. for air training?" A messenger Valparaiso to Hamburg concerning activities of a German agent named Clarke. It was reported: "Daughter of Clarke, secretary in USA Embassy, Quito, since November."

These messages showed how the German spy network was operating, but later intercepts revealed transmission of information that was to endanger American lives. Ten days after Pearl Harbor, this message was picked up: "From trustworthy confidential agent it was learned that all armed steamships are to be equipped with torpedo safety nets upon arrival at Trinidad, Freetown and all English ports. Nets being delivered partly from USA. My congratulations that was to endanger American lives. # Glass-Enclosed Miracle House

NEW YORK—For your house of tomorrow scientists are dreaming up plastic rugs as thick as Persians; upholstery and draperies that can be hoisted clean; stainless, mar-less and indestructible furniture, smudge-proof wallpaper; unbreakable table and cooking ware; knives with edges which will never grow dull; and magic appliances that will banish the word "drudgery" from the American vocabulary.

Many of these dreams are in the embryo of blueprint. Others have emerged from the crucibles of experimentation—war babies with a postwar career ahead of them.

But even the most dreamy-eyed visionary warns that post-war miracles will not be ready for the kitchen van on V-Day. Maybe not for many years thereafter. The reason? It took this country a year and a half to fool up for war-time industry. Reconversion cannot be expected to beat a record which was considerably accelerated by the urgency of war.

IMPROVED APPLIANCES
What you can expect after V-Day—as soon as the signal is given to start peacetime production—are 1941 and 1942 model mechanical refrigerators, vacuum cleaners, kitchen stoves, radios, washing machines and all of the household et ceteras on which production was slowed down or stopped during the war and for which there will be a pent-up demand. Because tremendous strides in wartime technological research have been made, from which better methods of production have been developed and more adaptable material have been discovered, replacement furniture and appliances of the 1942 vintage will doubtless be improved and are expected to cost less money.

Great white hope for transforming the interior of the postwar home is plastics, which have contributed so dramatically to the winning of the war. Wartime experimentation proved that flooring for naval vessels, aircraft and homes can be made of tough, non-abrasive plastics that look like wood, grain like hand-polished mahogany, and best of all resist foot-prints, scuffing and stains.

PLASTIC PLUMBING
There is also proof that walls can be made of plastic and that transparent coatings on wall paper can keep in smear-proof; that rugs with a pile in which each strand is made deep can be made of synthetic fibers; that non-freeze pipes, plumbing and bathroom fixtures can be made of plastics, and because they absorb room temperature will be warm and comfortable.

Upholstery and draperies that can be hoisted clean; decorative lamp bases and shades; fireplace tiles, keyed to the decor of a room; and furniture molded in one piece that can't be scuffed, chipped or stained—all promised for the house of tomorrow—will owe their exceptional attributes to plastic in one form or another.

Kitchens of tomorrow will be lighter, airier and have glass-enclosed cooking units that will permit you to watch your cake rising and roast browning.

GLASS KITCHENS
There will be new and dramatic use of glass and ceramics. Non-porous and non-absorbent vitrolite glass makes a kitchen sink which only needs a swipe or two with a damp cloth to clean. A now-you-see-it, now-you-don't sink and dishwasher of glass slides in and out of a wall, and puts on a performance with electric lights and food pedals worthy of a "Buck Rogers" movie. There is a glass-hooded (for visibility) cooking unit, scheduled for modern kitchens, containing among other things a rotary barbecue and recessed glass utensils in which to cook and serve a meal.

Thanks to wartime necessity of keeping defense-paint cutting tools keen-edged without re-sharpening, a chrome-alloying process will one day do as much for kitchen cutlery, scissors, pocket knives and lawnmowers.

But even when the times come to pinch yourself to make sure that these miracles are real, you'll still be surrounded by the old things that you like. The best authorities promise that no matter how streamlined and functional the interior of your home becomes, there will always be a place for traditional furniture and for a period decor that matches.

Plastic drapes, furniture and flooring of the future will be hoisted clean. Slightly sloping floors and gutters along the baseboards will carry off the water.

We, the Women

A married American soldier has quadruplets by an English girl—and there is no great hue and cry against him. His children are even entitled to support by American taxpayers.

News columns are full of stories about people in Hollywood and cafe society circles whose marriages, remarriages and divorces are so frequent that you can hardly keep up with them, but public opinion does not condemn them as immoral.

Yet, when a group of people believe it is all right for a man to have more than one wife, they are hauled into court and convicted of unlawful cohabitation, the maximum penalty for which is five years in prison. They are condemned as criminals, despite the fact that they are living quite happy and quietly, according to their own confirmed belief.

Society has very good reasons, of course, for condemning polygamy. Certainly church leaders have been conducting an active fight against divorce abuses. Yet the public exhibits a strange blank spot in its attitude toward violators of marital morals.

PUBLIC DISAPPROVES
Society considers it all right for a man to have as many wives as he wishes—so long as he lives with them one at a time. But decency is outraged when a man, with the full consent and approval of the women themselves, is the husband of several women and the support of their children. He could marry the same woman and it would be all right, legally and in the public's eye. If he finished with one before he took another. Or he could be married to one and have affairs with the others, and a large segment of the public would pass it off lightly as none of its business. But he says, "Look here, I want to be married and stay married to three women, supporting them and their children," and that becomes everybody's business. That is immoral. It's a fine distinction I'd hate to have to try to explain to a wondering adolescent.

SUMMER GRIDIRON CAMP

There aren't any shipyards in Pampa, but there are shops here that make parts for boats. There's refineries and carbon black plants, too, as well as a score of other places where the 1944 Harvest football squad can put in some profitable time this summer and keep in excellent shape for next season and the Target for November 3, the game with the Amarillo Sandies on Butler field. Featured above is Lou Novikov, Mad Russian of the Chicago Cubs, leading a hand in the war effort while keeping in condition, in advance of the current baseball season, working as a rigger in a Wilmington, Calif.

Browns Lose Two Games To McCarthymen

By TED MEIER Associated Press Sports Writer It seems to be double or nothing for the world champion New York Yanks whenever they play a doubleheader. Manager Joe McCarthy's Bronx Bombers have played four twin bills so far this season and have swept all of them. Their latest double success came yesterday at St. Louis where they whipped the Browns twice, 6 to 3 in 11 innings and 6 to 2 in a three-game lead in the American circuit.

By STEVE OWEN Football Giants' Coach Ken Strong couldn't keep their footing against the Chicago Bears on a slippery, ice-covered Polo Grounds gridiron in 1934. The field favored the heavier Bruins, who led, 13-3, at the half. A messenger was dispatched to Manhattan College where we borrowed rubber-soled basketball shoes. Instead of giving the men a pep talk like you see and hear in the movies, I had them change shoes. Owner Tim Mara considered me nuts, but his eyes popped out with those of the spectators as Ken Strong and the rest of our swift backs ran wild in the second half to score 27 points and prevail, 30-13.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR. NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Information, please? About ten years ago, when the award for the leading hitter in minor league baseball was established, the National association considered putting up a similar trophy for scholastic baseball leaders. But after learning how many headaches they could expect, the minor league bosses dropped the idea. Now this corner, with no prizes to hand out or axes to grind, would like to know who are this year's leading high school and college baseball performers. To keep the field within bounds, how about nominations for the No. 1 men (or boys) in hitting, base stealing, pitching (both won-lost and earned run averages) and the best double-play combinations? It may not prove anything, but if we can get full season records and pick the leaders, we'll give them whatever recognition this dept. can offer. At least it ought to provoke a few my-boy-can-lick-your-boy arguments.

June 24 Deadline On Texas Sectional Tennis Registration

AUSTIN, May 29.—(AP)—Dr. D. A. Penick reminded today that June 24 is the deadline for entries in the annual Texas sectional tennis tournament slated for the University of Texas here June 26 to July 1. Fourteen events are scheduled and no player may enter more than five including singles, doubles and mixed doubles because the schedule must be maintained scrupulously, said Dr. Penick. Drawings are slated for 8.30 a. m., June 26.

Collegiate World Series Proposed By Rolfe of Yale

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 29.—(AP)—If Red Rolfe, the Ex-New York Yankee third sacker, has his way, there's going to be a college baseball world series. "And why not?" argues the popular red-head, now coaching at Yale. "The major leagues would cooperate and, since the games would be played in June after the war, of course, there shouldn't be any reason for academic conflict." Rolfe doesn't expect his idea will see fruition until after the war, of course, but the former big-leaguer who gave Yale one of its snappiest names in modern athletic history last summer in his first crack at college coaching, says the groundwork should be laid now. "We should have our plans formulated and ready as soon as possible," suggests Rolfe, "so that we can get going when the boys return to college from the war."

All-America Dobbs Wins Military Prize

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., May 29.—(AP)—Glen Dobbs, Jr., All-America college football player at the University of Tulsa and chosen on the Associated Press All-America service team when he played for Randolph field last fall, made history at the army air forces officer candidate school here by fining both the military and athletic awards upon graduation. The 23-year-old native of Frederick, Okla., was selected for the military award for his performance as OCS corps commander during the final month of training. He won the athletic trophy by compiling the best record in his class for all-round physical performance. It was Dobbs who threw the pass that was caught by Doyle Aults of Pampa in the 1944 Cotton Bowl game at Dallas, to score the first touchdown of the game, which ended in a 7-7 tie Rams 7, Texas 7.

New Mexican Wins San Angelo Rodeo

SAN ANGELO, May 29.—(AP)—Callit roping Troy Port of Lovington, N. M., took final money in San Angelo's 12th annual fat stock show rodeo by requiring 87.4 seconds to rope five calves. In second place was Andy Bode of Delrio, whose total time was 91.4 seconds. He roped his calf in the final performance yesterday in 128 seconds, best of the show which was equaled by Toots Mansfield of Big Spring, who placed third in the finals. Port took 19.4 seconds in his first roping performance. Fourth in the finals was Ted Powers of Ozona. Mansfield took the money in the matched call roping of the five-performance catch which ran calves in 250.1 seconds. His opponent, Royce Sewall, Priddy, required 273 seconds to tie the same number of animals. M. A. Pitcock of Aspermont, won from Lanham Riley of Concho Field, San Angelo, in a six-calf matched the cluo.

Waco Wolves Beat Bowie Tankers, 7-0

WACO, May 29.—(AP)—Waco air field Wolves downed the 13th armored division team from Camp Bowie in a baseball game here yesterday 7 to 0. Sid Hudson, WAAP hurler, allowed five hits, fanned seven and walked none. The Wolves meanwhile were pecking away at Lou Bevil, manager Washington Senator teammate of Hudson's combining three hits with a walk and an error for three runs in the sixth, icing the game. Ken Hill got two hits for Bowie as did right fielder Gil Turner and shortstop Bob Stone for the winners. 13th Arm. Div. 000-000-0 5 3 WAAP: 000-114-10x-7 2 Bevil and Hill; Hudson and Popovich.

While on a mission over enemy bases, Lt. Fletcher's B-24 Liberator bomber was badly hit by flak, machine gun bullets, and 20mm shells.

GOVERNOR

(Continued from page 1) name the party's nominees for presidential electors than Tom Dewey himself. The law provides for a convention in September to declare the party's nominees. Governor Stevenson referred to it in yesterday's paper as the 'governor's convention.'

Some time ago the governor said it was silly to talk about Texas not going Democratic; and it is if the people get to vote on it. I have not discussed this matter with the governor, but I feel sure that he will not want his convention in September to nominate men for presidential electors who might throw the state's vote to the Republicans.

JAPS

The Myitkyina battle was a vital part of the China battle, for Stilwell needs it to link the Ledo and Burma roads for a supply line into China.

On Biak Island in the Schoutens American troops moved from captured Bosnek, principal port, to within two and a half miles of Mokmer airfield against increasing enemy fire.

GERMANS

The Germans announced abandonment of Aprilia, which has changed hands five times since the beachhead was established. Daniel de Luce of the AP said the roofless, shell-punctured town fell without a hand-to-hand struggle.

British night bombers struck heavily at the northwest French rail center of Angers, at the German poison gas center of Ludwigshafen and military targets on the invasion coast.

One plane was lost. The greatest fleet of U. S. daylight raiders ever dispatched destroyed 93 German fighters but lost 34 heavy bombers and 13 fighters yesterday in bombing synthetic oil plants in central Germany near Leipzig, a tank ordnance depot at Conigsborn, and targets at Cologne.

One engine was shot out, most of the control systems were damaged, the guns had been hit, and the B-24 was riddled with bullets.

All told, this bomber suffered more than 300 hits. One of his crew was dead and several were injured. It looked like an impossible task to keep the heavy bomber in the air.

But Lt. Fletcher's magnificent flying skill enabled him to not only pilot the crippled plane out of enemy territory, but he also made a safe landing at a friendly air base. His skill as a pilot, in the face of almost overwhelming odds, saved the lives of his crew, and saved his plane.

In the words of the citation, "Lieutenant Fletcher has upheld the highest traditions of the Military Service, thereby reflecting great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States of America."

"Fletch," as he is known to friends here, in a letter to Tex De Weese, editor of the Pampa News, said: "Focke Wulf 190s and Messerschmitt 109s jumped us after we were crippled by flak and we had quite a time of it for awhile. I headed for the nearest landing field, because our gas was leaking pretty badly, and made a crash landing. The nearest place happened to be Naples. That's about all there was to it without going into details. We were very fortunate on casualties having only one crew member killed and three wounded."
