faced an uncertain and rough fu-ture on Capitol Hill today. New as the result of a second democradeal democrats lambasted the sen- ic primary devoid of any national ate-passed unemployment compensation bill and government agencies assailed its companion measure proplus property.

The latter proposal, passed in different form by both the senate and house, headed for a joint conference that will seek to compose the ployment aid bill. At least two more days, and possibly more, will be required to dispose of a pile of amendments already drafted or in the preparation stage.

Indications that the administration would seek to liberalize the compensation provisions of the bill came from four staunch house new dealers, Representatives Eperharter of Pennsylvania. Lynch of New York, Forand of Rhode Island and Dingell of Michigan. In a minority report they condemned the measure approved by the house ways and means com-mittee as "utterly inadequate," complained that it failed to provide properly for millions of war work-ers and government employes, and said it did not give the proposed director of mobilization sufficient authority to do his job. They added that it is "nothing but a skele-

Republican committee members joined in a counter statement extolling the bill and criticizing the senate-passed measure as one that would have led to federalization of state unemployment programs.
Stiffest fight in the offing is a drive by a group of democarts to boost to perhaps as high as $35 weekly unemployment benefits, with the federal government supplement-ing state funds to make this possible. As it now stands, the does not alter state payments, which vary widely. At least three provisions of the surplus property measure were in sharp controversy as senate-house conferees prepared to seek an adjustment. They involve the senatevoted eight-man board to handle the program, a senate provision giving publicly-supported and non-pro-fit institutions 50 per cent discount on purchases of surpluses, and a requirement for continued stockpiling of strategic minerals.

The house turned down all three of these provisions and its leaders showed no inclination to bow to the senate. In the give-and-take of compromise, there was the prospect

Plunging across the historic Marne, American armor today swung a great attacking arc against German retreat routes to the Reich, and along the Seine the whole Allied onslaught was wheeling northward from four deepened and strengthened American, British and Canadian bridgeheads.

West of the Seine, 20,000 Germans were floundering in a newly established Allied tarp and were being slaughtered by ground and air bombardment.

The U.S. third army, stabbing ten miles beyond Lagny to a Marne river loop 23 miles east of Paris, seized Meaux on the north bank of the river, and for the first time in this war Americans were fighting on a great World War 1 battleground - the scene of the Kaiser's dashed 1914 hopes of taking Paris, which were smashed in the first battle of the Marne. Seden, great battlefront in 1940 and in 1870, was 105 miles away.

Third army tanks plunged beyond Meaux, and to the south, beyond Troyes, on the American right flank, another column stabbed toward Vitry, less than 100 miles from the German border Pilots returning from raids on Germany reported the Germans were pouring reinforcements and supplies into France from the Low Countries, and Mosquito bombers harassed these operations.

The new trap was sprung on an estimated 20,000 Germans in three loops west of the Seine river in the Rouen area. German troops were attempting madly to escape across the Seine to join the flight to the east.

100 Miles to German Border

In the south of France, as resistance on the waterfront of the great port of Marseille gradually was being annihilated, Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's seventh army smashed into Montelimar, in the heart of the Rhone valley, 100 miles to the north. Air assaults ahead of them were shattering German hopes for a flight north through the flat country.

aucratic jargon, Maverick calls "gobbledy gook" language, has finally proved too much for the bureaucrats them-selves. The Social Security board has launched a reform campaign, spurred on by the howls of baffled citizens and a rather embarrassing report from Columbia University's readability" laboratory.

The Columbia researchers arrived at the conclusion, by undisclosed but apparently sound methods, that a Social Security report is as much larder to read than a scientific ournal as the scientific journal is than love story magazine fiction. So the board has appealed to its employes, in the name of clarity and conomy of words, time, paper and ublic temper, to get off their rhe-orical high horses.

"We are usually normal when we talk," the board wistfully admits, "but put a pencil in our hands or a nographer at our side and a mysterious change takes place.'

The board doesn't attempt to explain why, and we don't know all the answers, either. But certainly "gobbledygook" isn't the invention of bureaucrats. It is a collection of all the pompous triteness and gold-toothed turgidity of expression found in the working vocabularies of law businessmen, social vorkers and the like.

And what makes lawyers, business en and the others talk that way Well, the lawyers may have a thread of excuse, since they have found hrough sad experience that ocuments can be shot full of holes everything isn't said a half-dozen different ways.

For the rest of them, it's probably ust a way of feeling important. The ordering of 100 pounds of beans can accomplished with heavy solemnby using a few standard phrases nich state the simplest thing in the longest possible way, and ma the transactions as secret as a lc

The Unseen Part Of Rent Control

The end results of rent or other price controls is something most people fail to see. The worst feature of rent control is the deterioration of Christian character and the American way of life.

Under present rent control laws. the renter who believes in the American or Christian way of life is subject to a $5000 fine and a year's imprisonment if he prac tices the principles on which this government was built. That is letting all people help establish Nothing could be more values. harmful to a people than to have the government fine a man for using his conscience.

As an illustration, if a renter believes that the only way to esa house is by a voluntary free contract made between the renter and the owner, and he finds an owner who is willing to rent his house at what he is willing to pay, if the renter pays the agreed price and the government has set a lower price, this renter is subject to a $5000 fine and a year's im-

The only way the renter can obey his conscience and not rob the landlord, but pay what the market establishes as the true value of the rent, is to give the landlord the difference in cash. Most landlords are afraid to take this cash money lest the renter be a stool pigeon and convict the owner of violating the rent law.

Another unseen thing that is bound to follow rent control is that in the long run the man who wants to rent a house cannot find a house to rent. So in the long run rent control is of no value but of great harm to the man whe needs a house.

Oh ves. I hear the usual argument that if it were not for rent control the rich could have things that the poor could not have. But when we analyze that statement and simmer it down to its end result, we find that it is the same thing as saying the industrious, frugal capable man should have no more comfortable home than the shiftless, incapable man or spendthrift. The unsect, part of that would be that there would be few thrifty, industrious people: if there were no advantages in owning wealth, there would be no wealth.

What the advocates of rent control see is that for the time being they can consume the wealth that has been produced, but they cannot see that it deteriorates characters and new wealth will not be produced. After the old wealth is consumed which was created under a competitive system, there will be very, very little new wealth created.

The unseen end of the rent control is that it makes a man who bee that is, the competitive system, either rob his landlord or violate the law. Every man of principle believes that principles should come before man-made laws, and that he should respect the ownership of property and choose the resser of two evils; namely, viowas formed.

Nazi propaganda, off on a new tack, now is conceding the inevit-able Allied victory. Broadcasts quo-tations from the publication "Ber-lin-Rome-Tokyo" heard in this country reveal that Dr. Goebbels' writers already are speculating on peace terms and the possibility of third world war.

The frank concession is new, but he thought behind it is a familiar one. Published quotations show the article as fore-seeing a certatin re-newal of hostilities if "participation in free access to the worlds raw materials," which it calls the funda-mental safeguard of peace, is not assured.

The article waves aside the ques tion of harsh or mild peace terms as war-breeders, but stresses "conflicting political issues." These, it develops, are the familiar bogey-man of a "Bolsheized Europe."

"It is absurb to believe that Eu-ope, which proved unable to bear tablish the value of the rent of Napoleon's domination and which denied Germany's claim to leader-ship, will bend its knee to Moscow for any length of time," the Nazi propaganda writer says. He pre-dicts failure of a "United States-Russia world police force" and a clash of Soviet and American power "so-called Chinese sphere of interest.

In other words, Nazi propaganda is building up the same old case for itself that it has used in the last decade. The article indicates that remnants of the Nazi Party will again weep over lack of "lebensraum" and cry for the stolen colonies. So long as these remnants are

All of a sudden it happens—your pug-nosed little girl with pigtails becomes a young lady. It's not too early for her to learn there are no short cuts to a beauther. H. D. Council Saturday

Delegates to the State H. D. meeting at Austin gave reports on the trip and meeting when the Gray County Home Demonstration council met Saturday in the office of Miss Millicent Schaub, county agent. The delegates were Mmes. Allan Saye, T. Anderwald, and Mrs. G. H.

A fresh and canned fruit and ve-getable display was put up in the hall of the Court house. All clubs contributed to the display.

During the meeting, each club gave a report on the party they atended in August.
It was voted upon to change the day in the month to the second Saturday. Plans were made to have the friendship tours in October, and club achievement days in November. The yearbook committee will meet again at 2 p. m. October 16.

Why can't get a t-lephone now? An explanation to the many people in Pampa who are waiting for service . . .

We'd like to install telephones immediately for all who are waiting, but we just don't have enough facilities to go

You see, our telephone system is being used to capacity. And we can't enlarge it because the factories that make wire, cable, and switchboards are busy turning out communications equipment and great numbers of electrical weapons for the army and navy.

The result is that we can in general fill orders for telephone service only when present customers ask us to discontinue their service, releasing the wires, instruments, and central office equipment they have been using. Then, as far as the location and type of equipment permit, we see that those who have been waiting longest get service first. Of course, we must, as prescribed by the War Production Board, provide promptly the telephone service necessary to the war effort, or to public health or security.

If you are one of those who are waiting, we appreciate the patience and understanding with which you have helped meet this wartime problem.

In stately, serene Dumbarton Oaks, once the social center of Washington, delegates of the United States, Great Britain and Russia, are holding an International Security Conference, whose objective is world peace.

By ANN STEVICK NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—Dumbarton Oaks, where the lot of the Common Man is now the subject of important discussions of the In-ternational Security Conference, was once the center of Washing-ton's social high-jinks.

The magnificent, rambling estate is headquarters for delegates of the United States, Russia and Great Britain as they meet to ponder the future government of the world. In its earlier history, Dumbarton Oaks was noted for stately musicales where visiting royalty was displayed prominently in army circles in Africa a poster showing a soldier digging a foxhole and betacally musicales where visiting royalty was displayed prominently in army circles in Africa a poster showing a soldier digging a foxhole and betacally musicales where visiting royalty.

"Informal conversations on the general nature of an international organization for the maintenance of peace and security" will go on for the next few weeks in the vast brick house which buzzes quietly during the school year with the scholarly historical delving of Harvard research experts. kind of play, possibly due in part to his temperament and his flair for the bizarre.

There is a lot of psychology connected with match play and Hagen undoubtedly had two strikes on many an opponent at the first tee

Th every fact he won the P. G. A. five times, more than any other man, testifies to his excellence in match play. Not that he wasn't equally at home in medal play, as he won the U. S. open twice and the British open four times. He just had the shots, that's all. Hagen would be the one to bounce up in defense of match play golf championships as he has had more than his share of success at that

In special matches down through the years he also won more than his share too, although he always had a tough time with Gene Sarazen, possibly because Sarazen himself is on the self-confident, arrogant order and would consider any of Hagen's psychological tricks. any of Hagen's psychological tricks as just so much hog-wash

Hagen's striking appearance and his casual, care-free manner, combined with a reputation earned early in his career, were enough to give him an edge to start with, and when he added such fantastic details as riding up to the first tee in a taxi, disembarking and starting play dressed in tuxedo and tumps, an opponent was liable to start thinking more about this crack-pot he was playing against than his own game.

The opponent was liable to get so darned mad at the idea Hagen considered him a soft touch that must be listed as just one of those Seeking to clarify questions It what is expected to be a hard an prolonged future contest between American Nationalists and Into nationalists, Senator Robert Reynolds, North Carolina Demo crat, today discussed the record of Nationalists and the Nationalist cause in a letter to the Cali fornia State Department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Senator Reynolds wrote there is no such person as an "isolationist" in the United States, and that the term was invented to smear those who stand for the protection of American integrity and resources from world dissipa

The letter said it is time to meet squarely the epithets "pro-Fasc and "pro-Hitler" as applied by I ternationalists to those who to to keep the United States out o the present war. Communists are the coiners of such terms, the Senato" asserted.

The communication went to M. C. Hermann, department quarter master adjutant of the California V.F.W. at San Francisco.

The department had adopted reserican Nationalists' C Independent Voters, which Senator Reynolds is organizing.

The V.F.W. resolutions said the

Provencals Reveal Meille of French

By EDWARD KENNEDY IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 24 (P) If the people of Provence are typical of all of France, it is certain that the French have come through four years of German ocunation as a vigorous people with confidence in the future and a determination to make the Fourth Republic something that will restore French prestige in the world. Not only have the ubiquitous re sistance forces waged a fullscale war against the invaders but they have taken over the local governments and have them working smoothly. They are maintaining orthroughut the liberated territry in southern France.

On the surface, at least, there is little to support the oft-heard prediction that liberation of France would be followed by Civil War. The French, at the moment, seem united as they never were in peace-time, and class bitterness, which marked the days of the people's front, seems much less now. Hardship apparently has made French men more tolerant of one another The anticipated clash between De Gaulle's provisional government and the resistance leadership inside France likewise has not materalized here invariably say they recognize De Gaulle as the man who gal-vanized the French into continuing the war and as head of the French

While the working classes seem to form the backbone of the French forces of the interior, there are also many aristrocrats, professional and business men in them. The bulk of the resistance people expect France's government to be "very much to the left" but unist. They say, however, that the com unists were the most zealous and most effective of all the elements in the resistance movement. "The proof is in the number of communists who were shot—120,000 of them," a flashing-eyed, pistoltoting girl fighter said.
