

'Dollar Bacon' Seen in Future

CHICAGO—A pork chop may cost $1.00 a pound at retail butcher shops as a result of the sharp advance in prices for live hogs in recent weeks, an agriculture department meat specialist said today.

"Dollar bacon" also was seen as a possibility as pork-on-the-hoof soared to all time record prices in the nation's markets. Live hogs sold yesterday at a top of $29.00 a hundred pounds at Chicago's market.

Livestock experts explained, however, that even last autumn's crop was not large. Pigs fattened were estimated at 26,627,000 head, 11 percent lower than the preceding year and 3 percent below the 1933-44 average. It was the smallest pig crop since 1940.

Sale, Show Described as 'Tops'

Grand Champion Of Show Owned By Wheeler Man

The third annual Top of Texas Hereford Breeders Show got off to a bawling good start yesterday afternoon in spite of chilly winds and threatening skies, when 44 head of the best registered Hereford stock in the state lined up for show, and closed last night, with a huge chuck wagon feed, that left those who attended gorged with barbecue and beans.

Maddox Re-Elected Association Head

All officers and a large number of the directors of the Top of Texas Hereford Breeders Association were re-elected at a special call meeting, late yesterday.

Described as 'Tops'

In what was described as a "record breaking" show, young stockmen of the Pampa area sold over $10,000 worth of calves, pigs and lambs to free-spending bidders at the third annual Chamber of Commerce Junior Livestock Sale at Recreation Park this morning.

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your drugstore and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcenate (formerly called Barcol Concentrate). Pour this into a pint bottle and add to your dressing the following: 1/2 cup lemon juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful, anearning and active.

10 ways you can help yourself to good telephone service

- 1. Before you call, make sure of the number. If you're not sure of it, look in the telephone directory, and thus avoid wrong numbers.
2. Give the called party time to answer. He or she may be some distance from the telephone. A minute isn't too long.
3. Speak directly into the mouthpiece. About an inch between it and your lips is right for best results.
4. Move the switch hook slowly up and down to recall or signal the operator. "Jiggling" the hook rapidly often won't cause a signal to come in and is useless.
5. Replace the receiver carefully when you have finished talking. A receiver partly off the hook puts the whole line out of order.
6. Answer calls promptly. It's courteous to do so and often keeps the caller from hanging up—thinking you're not at home.
7. Identify yourself when you call or answer. Not everyone recognizes you by your voice. Telling who you are saves time and sometimes embarrassment.
8. Space calls on party lines. If you have a series of calls to make, allow a few minutes between each one so others can use the line to call or be called.
9. Keep calls brief on party lines. Other folks on the line will appreciate your thoughtfulness and—who knows—may follow your good example.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE

NORTH MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—The only man I know who can make a tiger say "mama" by playing it like an accordion is Capt. Roman Prosko, the internationally known wild animal trainer.

He does it by working a full grown tiger's jaws back and forth with his bare hands which produces a reluctant "ma-a-a-a—ma-a-a-a" from the striped murderer.

Prosko also dances with some of his tigers—he says he's the only man in the world who can—but has given up putting his head in the mouths. One clamped shut on his face once, and since then the captain has specialized in other feats.

"The people didn't appreciate it any way," he said. "They like flashy acts with the animals running and snarling and a lot of blank pistols being fired."

Son of a staff officer for Emperor Franz Josef, Prosko was born in his Vienna home at 14 to go with a circus. For 34 years now the "big cats"—lions and tigers—have been his love. Stripped, his powerful back and a number of hand grenades had gone off in his pockets. The scars are souvenirs of seven major maulings by his pets, for which he holds no grudges.

Prosko says he dislikes most American circus wild animal acts because he believes the trainers control their beasts only through fear and brutality, and because circus audiences appreciate only showy stunts.

"The captain calls animal trainers who work with either tigers or lions alone than to mix them together in a cage. When lions and tigers are in a cage together they watch each other instead of looking for a chance to leap at you," he said.

Prosko also deflated the use of perches in circus acts, which he said look spectacular to outsiders—but actually are there to make the trainer feel safer.

"Any trainer knows that a tiger or lion can't crouch and leap at him from a small perch because it is physically impossible," he said.

The captain has a unique stunt in which he gives fresh meat to two tigers, then forces them to back away while he picks it up and hands it to a tiger. Audiences only applaud mildly at this feat. Prosko considers his masterpiece—ten times harder than to teach an animal to leap through a flaming hoop.

Prosko said no full-grown wild animal could ever be trusted because "the Creator gave him the hunting instinct and only the Creator can take it away."

"A bear is less to be trusted than a tiger or lion. The cats always give some indication before they spring—they had to bunch the body. But a bear—no. His head always moves back and forth and when he wants you he just sticks out his paw and grabs you."

Prosko said no full-grown wild animal could ever be trusted because "the Creator gave him the hunting instinct and only the Creator can take it away."

Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of American forces in Korea, said last night he has given up trying to negotiate with Russia for unification of the country under a provisional government.

"I have done all I can over there and have come back for discussions at higher levels," Hodge told a news conference after a visit with President Truman.

"What further is done is up to someone higher up."

The general declined to say whether he has suggested that Marshall tackle the problem at the Big Four conference in Moscow March 10, but he said the Koreans favor this course.

Under the Moscow agreement of 1945, a joint Korean commission is supposed to set up a provisional government over both U. S. and Russian zones. The commission broke up in a deadlock last year over Russian insistence that no Koreans who opposed the Soviet plan for a five year trusteeship over their nation should take part in the government.

A passing Greyhound bus was utilized as an ambulance and took about 45 persons to a hospital. Dr. W. T. Cox, Tippecanoe County coroner, identified two dead students as Roger Gelhouse, 24, of Garrett, Ind., a freshman Navy veteran killed instantly last night, and William J. Feldman, 20, of East Chicago, Ind., who died of a skull fracture in St. Elizabeth Hospital.

"I heard the stands shake and tremble and a terrified murmur go up from the persons in them," said Police Lt. Joseph Clark. "The students that weren't injured were magnificent. I imagine most of the fellows were ex-GIs and they seemed to know exactly what to do in helping the injured."

Haynes Sleeth, principal of Roosevelt Junior High School in Kokomo, seated across the floor from the stretcher-bearers, said, "I was an experience that will haunt me all the rest of my life. The screams coming from crumpled debris, and the sight of hands rising out of spreaded bleachers, said, 'I was some sort of support that wasn't there,'" was horrible.

Betty Jo Roberson, 17, of Indianapolis, sitting in the collapsed bleachers, said, "I was so scared at first everybody got panicky, then they calmed down. I could see legs bent in strange positions and I knew they were broken. People were crying in pain."

NO PRYING SAY THE RUSSIANS

Unless something happens, the foreign ministers will meet at Moscow March 10 with even less hope of concrete results than when the conference was first scheduled.

For one thing they are going to have to do themselves a great part of the spadework usually performed at lower levels.

The expected recommendations of the German peace from the four-power administrators in Berlin apparently will be no recommendations at all, consisting primarily of an innocuous report on the history of the occupation.

Negotiations there have fallen to the stage where the lie is being passed, and instead of a real report to the council, each delegation will be reporting home blaming the others.

The situation in the deputy foreign ministers meeting at London is similar with regard to progress and only slightly more polite. The deputies haven't even been able to make up a good catalog of the points where they disagree.

They started out with the idea of drawing up a peace for Austria and arriving at recommendations on Germany, but apparently will close without succeeding in either.

The situation is further clouded by the dispute over press coverage in Moscow. When the United States agreed to the Russian Capital as the site it was with assurance from Moscow that correspondents would be able to report from Moscow just as from Paris or New York.

Now the Russians are requesting that press delegations be restricted to a fraction of those accustomed to attend in the other cities. They give their housing shortage as an excuse.

Anyone accepting this, of course, would be entitled to draw the conclusion that if Russia cannot house a few hundred people for such a meeting she is not the power which her diplomats would have us believe. Actually, of course, Russians just feel unhappy under the searching eyes of foreigners. It is one of their Asiatic qualities which plays an important part in all of their international relationships.

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The new battle of Britain—this time economic—renewed fresh impetus yesterday when 1,000,000 employed streamed back into factories in the Midlands, thereby breaking a country-wide industrial blackout which had lasted the fortnight because of the disastrous shortage in coal production—life blood of the nation.

Some 4,000,000 workers remained idle in other parts of England. But coal was moving in appreciable quantities again.

Last Friday Britain's Socialist government, defying the bad luck which the superstitious attributed to the sixth day of the week, backed to the already austere-weary nation for further sacrifices in an all-out effort to meet the economic crisis threatening the foundations of John Bull's way of life.

It was a call to arms equalled in our time only by the immortal declaration of Winston Churchill in the black days of May '40: "I have nothing to offer but blood, toil, tears and sweat." Indeed, Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said that the present government "offers the British people toil, tears and sweat. Blood alone they are spared in these piping days of peace."

But that was a blunt but accurate way of putting up a situation without precedent in modern English history. Britain is fighting for her life.

The government's appeal declared have not enough resources to do all that we want to do and barely enough to do all that we must do. Therefore, it said, Britain must attend to "financing the first" strictly control imports, get production into high gear and sharply increase exports before the fast-dwindling American dollar loan runs out. Unless the country concentrates on the really important things, "we may never restore the foundations of our national life."

"This is a grim situation but I believe the economy will find that it isn't mushroom growth. It has been developing over a long period. This crisis has been precipitated by the drain of war but it has its own life. We are back before even the first world conflict.

I believe we will find that Britain's present crisis is a logical development which has its roots in the fact that the country is so lacking in natural resources. The corollary to this would seem to be that John Bull is faced with the problem of readjusting his entire economic structure—in what way I do not know. We are witnessing a major transformation.

FEEDING 20 MILLION

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—A little staff of 10 people headed by Maurice Pate is now embarked on the job of trying to find ways to feed one 700-calorie meal a day to 20 million children and nursing mothers in war-ravaged Europe and Asia.

Seven hundred calories is one piece of bread, a potato, a pint of milk, bowl of soup with meat.

Six-foot, white-haired, blue-eyed Maurice Pate worked with Herbert Hoover in the feeding of 15 million children after World War I. In World War II he worked on Red Cross prisoner-of-war relief.

Last year he made the survey on children's needs for Hoover's food mission. Now he is director of international Children's Emergency Fund—a United Nations organization, set up last year by 55 nations apportioned to it, but only 29 are members. UNRRA will inherit whatever UNRRA has left after it goes out of business. How much that will be, no one knows till the end of 1947. It won't be much, for UNRRA will spend every cent it can do as much good as it can.

The figure of 20 million children needing aid is the new problem. There are 40 million children under 18 years of age, including 11 million orphans and half-orphans in continental Europe. Children are better off, but an estimated 20 million children

NATIONAL AIRLIGIC

WASHINGTON
By RAY TUCKER
PERTINENT—Secretary of State George C. Marshall received, for him, a fairly sharp lecture on the need for greater military economy and efficiency when he appeared before Congressional committees to discuss foreign relations in executive session.

The exchanges were conducted in friendly fashion, in view of the respect and admiration which the former Chief of Staff commands, but the interruptions reflected the legislators' suspicion that more systematic management of the peacetime establishment would permit at least a billion-dollar cut in Army-Navy costs. Original plans for reduction of the executive budget contemplated a billion-dollar lowering of military expenditures and $750,000,000 in the Navy's appropriation.

The Senatorial critics explained that they thought the question of national defense finances was pertinent to their examination of Mr. Marshall because of his insistence that a powerful military machine is necessary to implement and strengthen our foreign policy.

"REBEL"—The questioners, who were mostly Middle West Republicans, argued that the generals and admirals would show more common sense if they insisted to accept a small reduction now, instead of insisting on an $11,000,000,000-plus budget for 1948.

"LEVEL ROAD?"—The questioners asked what would happen if we keep our military costs at the present high level. The taxpayers will stand for it, they insisted, but in a year or so they will rebel and demand too great a reduction. That is just what happened in the case of our clothing and Hoover Administrations.

"But if you agree to a cut now, when taxes are so high, you will fare better from us over a long-range period. You won't be starved again, as you were when our Army was down to only 125,000 men."

"ADVOCATE"—General Marshall, at the Senators' insistence, called him, listened quietly, and raised no objections to this suggestion. Several members thought that they had made an impression on him.

But only two hours after he quit the committee chamber, he called a press conference and reiterated his request for Congressional approval of President Truman's national defense budget.

The inside fact is that Mr. Truman himself is more insistent on fighting the military budget than at full length than even his Pentagon advisers—Generals Eisenhower, Handy, Spaatz, Eaker etc.

As a man who tried to make West Point and served well in a Missouri battery overseas, who would prefer to win the Congressional honor than sit in the White House, the Army advocate, in fact, the Navy "braid" mildly resent his partiality toward the rival branch.

"WASTEFUL"—Several conscientious students of the many hallowed halls insist that at least $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 can be saved by the military through introduction of more efficient management and control systems.

Their field investigations convinced them that present peacetime methods of housing, hospitalizing, training, feeding and transporting—assumed by Harold Lloyd. It's a baseball yarn about a fortune-teller.

"They discovered that neither the Army nor Navy has a businesslike, cost accounting system. So far as a camp, a quartermaster depot, an airfield—operate at a very high rate of expenditure, although performance of the same functions as economically. These seem to be no attempt to check up and standardize expenditures on the lower level.

The great obstacle to equipping commercial airports with beam or radar landing systems has been the high cost. It is estimated that the bill will run to almost fifty million dollars, and the private lines cannot afford this expenditure.

In recent years the Budget Bureau has backed exactly this amount from the Civil Aeronautics Administration requests for funds for this purpose. Until the recent series of airplane accidents, Congress showed to replace the money in appropriation concern, and made no attempt to take any measures.

MODERNIZE—Now Senator Brewster proposes to supply the missing funds by shifting money allocated for construction of highways to making safe the present fields. It is understood that about $35,000,000 in this amount remains unexpended.

Local communities and politicians will probably howl over the plan to postpone the building of local airports. In a burst of civic enthusiasm and patriotic fervor, many cities have drawn blueprints, issued bonds and incurred some expense for elaborate fields. But the Maine Senator feels that it is more important to modernize existing facilities than to build new graveyards.

QUICKIES—By Ken Reynolds
Unless the United States leads the way in official government grants for this world child-feeding, there is slight prospect that other governments will contribute heavily. The United Nations has sent invitations to all its 55 member nations asking for aid. But it may be several months before any governments can act.

In spite of these obstacles, Maurice Pate and his little staff, aided by advisers from UNRRA, hope to get going in May.

In Hollywood

By BRISKE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent
(Johnson on KFDD)
Monday thru Friday, 3 p. m.
HOLLYWOOD—Now that "Lady in the Lake" is a boxoffice hit, Bob Montgomery laughingly said he could tell me the story.

As director and star, Bob introduces a new screen technique in "Lady." The camera's eyes are his eyes. You don't see Bob as he tracks down a killer. You see what he sees.

One scene—you may remember it—calls for Bob to enter a deserted house, look around downstairs, open a couple of closed doors, go upstairs, and look up and down a hallway. Then he sees a lady's handkerchief on the floor, stoops down and picks it up.

For the scene, the camera was mounted on an 11-ton boom on wheels. You can't get an 11-ton boom through a standard doorway. So as Bob (and the camera) reach the doorway, they were whisked out of camera range by an intricate arrangement of ropes and pulleys and wires.

Just before Bob started the scene, a group of M-G-M's Eastern bankers arrived for a "look-see." Naturally, they were rather startled as Bob yelled "action" and the camera started a grand tour in a deserted house without Lana Turner or Clark Gable or Lassie or someone in sight.

Then the set started falling apart as Bob cued workmen to jerk away whole walls and doorways as the 11-ton boom crunched on like one of Patton's tanks. Finally, Bob yelled "cut," and the bankers, now practically swooning, rushed over to him and said:

"WHAT did you just do, Mr. Montgomery?"
"Gentlemen," Montgomery smiled sweetly, "I just photographed a lady's handkerchief."

NO MAN'S FAMILY
Family ties usually are severed professionally in Hollywood.

When Joan Fontaine, for example, started out on the screen, she had it in her contract that she couldn't be billed as the sister of Olivia de Havilland. There have been many other cases of husbands and wives and brothers and sisters avoiding "family" publicity.

With the advertisements saying that the film introduces Joanne Dru. Then, in small type, appear the words: "Confidentially, she's Mrs. Dick Haymes."

Confidentially, Mrs. Dick Haymes isn't too happy about it.

Inflation note: You can get a nice steak in a newly opened Hollywood Cafe for $4.85. Mitout potatoes, yet!

Love Has Two Faces

XXVII — XXVIII

"I HEARD you told that first day," Cassie told Parker. "And it sounded awfully nice. If only he wouldn't look at her in that infuriatingly calm way."

Leni's voice, speaking to Mike, rose in the quiet. "Oh then you will stay for the week-end? We're going to have a party tonight—here, Parker and I planned it last week. Lots of radio and show people. We'll have loads of fun, and then tomorrow morning we'll go riding. Parker and I used to rent horses over at the stables nearby. How about it, Parker, do you want to ride along the river tomorrow?"

Parker nodded. "Be fine," he said.

"What about Cass? Doesn't she ride too?" Mike said, laughing a little.

"I'll have things to do," Cassie said hastily. "Especially if we're having a party tonight."

She felt left out completely. Parker had never wanted a party. She'd suggested a house-warming when they'd first gotten the farmhouse modernized, but he hadn't wanted it.

"And now if you want to see Papa we'll have to go out to his workshop above the garage. That's where he always is," Leni said to Mike.

They went out, arm in arm, Leni and Mike, their voices trailing away as they went toward the back of the house.

Parker struck a few more resounding chords on the piano, and Cassie went and stood by the fireplace.

"So that's—your Mike," he said slowly and without expression.

"There was a long silence.

"Have you told your mother yet?"

"No—not yet," Cassie said. "Another silence.

"Did you find a place to live?"

"Her voice went up crazily, in spite of her efforts to keep it steady.

"Yes. A very nice apartment. Leni happened to know some people who were giving it up."

"That was lucky. You really ought to have some more white shirts, Parker. Perhaps I could find some over at the Fair."

"Don't bother. I can pick some up in Indianapolis."

"Your other blue suit ought to be cleaned. I'll see."

Parker stood up, suddenly, strik-

FUNNY BUSINESS

BY HERSHBERGER

"He keeps it up hour after hour—he figured his income tax and found the government owed him two cents!"

So much poise, and ambition too.

"Have you heard Leni sing?" she asked politely. Leni and Mike were dancing, their heads close together.

"Have I heard Leni sing? Why, of course. I've signed her for a night club engagement in New York. She leaves next week. I'm surprised she hasn't told you."

"I don't see much of her. I have a job, you know," she sipped her cocktail.

"And Parker's new show in New York is bound to be a wonderful success. He's only signed for 13 weeks, but if things go as I think they will there'll be a renewal. Your husband is all set to go places, Mrs. Hamilton."

"He is very talented," So Leni and Parker were both going to New York. How odd that he had not even mentioned it. But then why should he? She sipped the rest of her drink, put down the empty glass with a hand that wobbled slightly.

MR. BESON kept on talking.

"You'll find New York an exciting place to live, Mrs. Hamilton," he said.

And then suddenly Cassie saw Mike coming toward them. He was having a wonderful time, but he'd had too much to drink. His mouth looked loose and his eyes were a bit bloodshot.

"I was just telling Mrs. Hamilton, she'll love New York," Mr. Beson said.

"New York?" Mike said thickly. "Parker's going to New York, you know—a network job. Certainly go—up fast! Why, that fellow has more talent than he knows what to do with!" Mr. Beson went on.

"Maybe Parker's going to New York," Mike said, "but you got things mixed up, because Cassie's not going. She's going to stay right here, and as soon as she gets her divorce we're going to get married—and hit for old San Francisco, and are we going to have us a time!"

"Please—Mike!" Cassie whispered. Everyone was staring, and the room had grown very still.

"Come on, Mike. You're just a bit tight, aren't you?" Parker said suddenly at her elbow.

Mike laughed. "You stole Cassie away from me—while I had my back turned. But you couldn't keep her, could you? Eh? All the time she was married to you it was me—"

Parker's fist shot out and the next thing Cassie knew Mike was on the floor and she was kneeling beside him.

The party broke up abruptly, and it was Parker who drove Mike to a hotel in Mortoville. Cassie saw the last good off, and then she and Leni moved silently about carrying glasses to the kitchen straightening the room, emptying ash trays.

LENI'S dark face wore a smug expression, her eyes that look of mockery Cassie remembered from way back—Leni's expression of secret triumph whenever she'd gotten her own way after an argument with Mama.

"Mr. Beson told me you're going back to New York, Leni," Cassie said at last. The room was all tidied up now. Mama and Papa and Sid had gone upstairs to bed. Parker had not yet returned from taking Mike to Mortoville.

"Yes. Isn't it wonderful?"

"And Parker's got a job there, too."

"Yes."

"Why didn't you tell me, Leni? Parker didn't mention the new job to me, either. After all—"

"After all? After all what?" Leni cried. "Parker probably thought you weren't in the least interested in what he was going to do. Sometimes I think, Cassie, that you and Parker never were actually married. You didn't love him. That's a cinch. Oh I know, you had the proper words said, and everything was legal. And you even had little Ellen. But you never gave him your whole self."

"I suppose you're in love with him?" Cassie said. She didn't want to say it, but the words were out almost before she knew it.

"Yes. Yes, I am!" Leni blazed. "I'm in love with Parker! He smiled. "As soon as your Mike-Cargill-financed sojourn in Reno—"

"Who told you I was going to Reno?"

"Mike did. He said you didn't like the idea, but that he could talk you into anything."

"Mike discussed me with you?"

"Sure. I'm the kind of a gal man confide in, Cassie. That's just

Market Brics

WALL STREET STOCKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The direction was downward for most stock market leaders today although pressures were lacking and tendencies the slowest of the week.

Retreating tendencies ruled after a fairly active opening. While the ticker tape frequently showed many pivots yielded market fractions to 20-40, medium and good fat cows were reduced here and there by heavy and scattered orders appeared. Minus signs, however, were widespread at the close with many issues at the day's low.

Transfers ran to about 300,000 shares, smallest for a full session since Jan. 22.

Parochial wave: American Johnsonville, North American and Standard Oil (Ind.).

Casualties included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Am. Pac. Great Northern Railway, Paramount Pictures, Schenley, Goodrich, Eastman, DeLuxe, Douglas Aircraft and Sears Roebuck.

Pleasant dividends and earnings reports provided a bullish argument, but the fact that most stocks continued to trade at a discount from their previous levels tended to accentuate pessimistic and investment cautions. Generally, trading counteracted, with some prices touching record highs, served as a measure of the market's division and restricted selling.

Bonds were narrow for the most part.

Armed Leaves for California Tonight

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Calumet Farm's Armed, third greatest money winner in turf history, will leave tonight—weather permitting—for an overnight flight to California where he is entered in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap on Saturday.

Armed Leaves for California Tonight

Capt. C. A. Ryan, veteran of 175 Atlantic crossings, planned to take off in the four-engine cargo plane last night, but postponed the flight 24 hours because of bad weather along the 2,500-mile route. Armed added $43,000 to his earnings Saturday when he won the Widener at Hialeah Park and brought his total winnings to $459,775.

Q's AND A's

Q—How much sap does it take to yield a standard 11-pound gallon of maple syrup?
A—A barrel (32 gallons).

Q—What is the dollar-yen ratio in Japan?
A—15 yen to the dollar, officially, but its actual purchasing power is only 75 to the dollar.

Q—Are many Russians likely to hear the newly launched broadcasts to them from the United States?
A—Probably not many, since it is estimated only 500,000 of the 197,000,000 population have radios.

Q—What is the financial worth of Emperor Hirohito?
A—His tax return, first ever filed by a Japanese ruler, showed 2,000,000,000 yen, officially $200,000,000.

Q—Is the Army still developing poison gas?
A—Yes, at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., headquarters of Chemical Warfare Service.

Starches and sugars are close relatives in the chemical family and starch can be changed to sugar in industrial processes.

AMERICA LEADS IN Quality OF MEDICAL CARE

PERSPECTIVE... is very important in everything we do, say or think. Sometimes we sort of lose our proper perspective, in the "confusion of tongues" going on around us. We listen to people on the radio arguing about things on which they are often not well informed. We hear conversation about "Congress should pass such and such a 'Health Bill'."

When pinned down, the majority of the loudest talkers have not read the Bill, have not the remotest idea what is in it, or how radically it would affect their lives, the quality of Medical Care, and all health services.

Keep the high standards and skill of our medical men and women. Become informed and get the proper perspective.
