Mussolini argues that two wrongs make a right in Africa—after claiming rather forcefully that England, France, and some other countries' have no record there which will bear analysis.

Times are improving; the gangsters are killing each other again.

The corn-hog program, we are assured, has no relation to liquid corn.

Frankly, the Harvesters haven't been doing so well when we were not looking at them. But just watch them when we accompany the squad to Plainview this week.

The honor rolls are appearing again, notes the West Foster group, proving again how dumb some teachers are in giving Mama's Darlings poor grades.

Musing of the moment: It may be easier for us to get into a world war than we imagine. Suppose Great Britain gets into a dog fight and loses her navy. With that loss would go victory, for her empire is far-flung. Would we remain idle and see Canada fall into new hands? We most certainly would not. To be unprepared for such an eventuality would be unthinkable.

Brevitorials

GETTING THE NEWS out of Africa is about the toughest job the newsmen have encountered. The world war was easy by comparison. The one radio outlet available at the start had to carry all kinds of messages, and it cost 27 cents a word to send the news to London—hours after it was filed and with many censorship deletions. Few of the Ethiopians can speak English. Many of them are so wild that they do not know an Italian from an American. They eat their meat raw in hunks. They are so devoted to shadow-boxing that it is dangerous to get very close to a mob of them.

Taking all the inoculations available against tropical diseases was one of the worst ordeals. Eating strange food, often poorly prepared without sanitation, and drinking impure water cause many stomach disturbances. One reporter, for the Chicago Trib, died of a fever within a few days after arriving at Addis Ababa. Reporters tell of having attacks of nausea, dizziness, and difficulty in breathing.

A STRANGE mental effect was noted by the newsmen. It was caused by the heat, sight of so many black men at every turn, necessity for working at slow speed, inability to find anyone who could speak English, and worry over difficulty of getting messages through. Hard as it was to send the news, it was even harder to decide whether it was going through. Myriad rumors, fear of air bombardments, and competition for news added to the chaos.

Bribery of news sources soon became a problem. English newspapermen pooled resources, formed a closed clique, and raised the price paid for news from out in the provinces. Soon selling of news became so profitable that it was invented when none was available.

MULE-BACK WAS the most available mode of transportation. Yet the few representatives of American press associations could not afford to leave Addis Ababa by such a slow method, they had to watch Hulle Selassie, who was fond of giving out statements every few hours. A few airplanes were available, but they were expensive and too dangerous to fly far. Italian fliers would not ask questions before engaging in combat. Getting money through to the correspondents is another problem. Writers at the front with the Italians have more luxuries and better communications. But all have to contend with 115-degree temperatures, choking dust, millions of flies, and, in some parts of Africa, altitudes up to 12,000 feet.

Just received by this writer are a dozen $10 glossy prints made by a newsmen cameraman at Addis Ababa. They include excellent shots of Emperor Selassie, the terrain in that rugged country, and the wild native soldiers who marvel at movie cameras and know little more of modern rifles.

Injury Is Fatal To Film Actor

The 31-year-old character actor died last night of a concussion at the base of the skull, an injury received last Sunday when a polo pony fell on him. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

At the same time deep anxiety was felt in the colony over the condition of Mae Marsh, former star of the silent screen.

Miss Marsh, dangerously ill from complications that developed from a burst appendix, remained "about the same" in Santa Monica hospital.

WPA Issues Warrant Allocating Funds For Park-Fairground Here

MARVIN JONES WIRES PAMPA OF GOOD NEWS

DROUGHT WILL SELECT FIRST PROJECT TO BE STARTED

A telegram from Congressman Marvin Jones received yesterday by Gilmore N. Nunn, general manager of THE NEWS, brought some of the best news of recent months—Pampa's park-fairground projects have been approved in Washington and the warrant allocating the funds is in the hands of the state administrator at San Antonio.

Mr. Nunn a few weeks ago went to Washington and saw the Pampa application go through several bureaus and departments, speeded by personal intervention of Lawrence Westbrook and other new deal officials. Only the allocation of funds remained to be made when Mr. Nunn left.

Yesterday, when the City decided to complete the purchase of the fairground site from J. R. Henry, Mr. Nunn wired the City for a report on the status of Pampa's application. It had previously been known that approval of the plans had been certified to the state administrator, who had telegraphed here for more complete details.

These details were readily furnished, inasmuch as the City some two weeks ago had employed Buster Kaufman, local architect, to draw plans for the fairground plant, including administration building, race track, stadium, display buildings, dams, and the Grand Street playground, as well as tennis courts and water extensions in the city proper. Not all of these projects can or will be started at one time. The state administrator has the authority to select those which are launched first.

As the projects are started, relief labor will be used and those receiving checks for their work will be taken from relief rolls and made ineligible to receive surplus commodities and direct relief. The president's employment program will be in operation.

Mr. Jones' telegram follows:

"WPA ADVISES WARRANT SIGNED NO. 769. THIS FINAL STEP IN WASHINGTON NOW IN HANDS OF ADMINISTRATOR DROUGHT."

Mr. Nunn had telegraphed as follows:

"CITY OFFICIALS ET AL TODAY REQUESTED I CHECK PRESENT STATUS WPA PARK PROJECT AND RESPECTFULLY URGE YOU PERSONALLY PUSH THROUGH JOHN EDY STOP CITY STOP WPA APPROVED PROJECT BEARING WESTBROOK'S RECOMMENDATION SENT TO DIRECTOR BUDGET MONTH AGO FOR PERSONAL ATTENTION JOHN EDY STOP CITY PURCHASE PARK SITE YESTERDAY STOP APPRECIATION AND SUPPORT ENTIRE TERRITORY YOURS FOR PASSAGE FOR THIS PROJECT STOP RE. Severe 'Quake' Shakes Helena; Damage Is Big

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 31 (AP)—The most severe earth movement since October 18 when Helena was jolted and sorely shaken, hit the capital city at 11:37 a. m. today causing estimated thousands of dollars of damage and turning the city again into confusion.

Whether there had been additional deaths could not be learned immediately.

Five deaths and damage estimated at upward of two and a half million dollars resulted from the previous shakes.

The new high school, badly split October 18, was believed to be a total wreck. Great rents appeared in the sides.

No immediate appraisal of the new damage could be obtained.

The Northern Pacific depot in the sixth ward, badly hit 13 days ago, was tossed to the ground.

The sturdy Placer hotel building was reported heavily shaken and persons rushed from offices there following the Red Cross disaster and city relief departments.

People rushed into the streets from all buildings and residences amid much terror and confusion. Children, hardly recovered from the October 18 scare, were in tears and huddled close to their elders.

Two men were reported buried beneath the falling smoketank under repair at a brewery west of Helena, but this could not be immediately confirmed.

Walker Will Arrive Back Home Today

Noise To Be Pleasant as Former Playboy Steps off Liner at 2 p. m.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—Entirely "unofficial" was New York's welcome today to its former playboy mayor, Jimmy Walker.

Walker and his wife, the former Betty Compton actress, were scheduled to step from the liner Manhattan shortly after 2 p. m., ending their three-year sojourn in France and England.

Their welcome had all the makings of a noise producer, with banners and friends carrying banners and banners friends down the bay to meet the ship. But it was "purely personal."

Inquiries brought few reports of city or democratic party officials who planned to be on hand. Most of them were reported "out of town" or "very busy." One began his "week-end" on Tuesday, his secretary said.

Police were assigned to the pier with the careful explanation that they were going to handle the crowd. No mention was made of a fireboat to send the conventional welcome of water toward.

But the enthusiasm of the faithful was undimmed. Lighters, tugs and yachts were to accompany the usual two revenue cutters to quarantine. Among the organizations chartering craft were the Friars, the Lambs club, and the Grand Street Boys association, which claims Walker as vice president.

Two thousand brewery workers planned to be at the pier.

It was Walker's return to "the lands of New York" in whose hands he said he would leave his care when he resigned under the fire of the Seabury investigating committee and an investigation of his affairs by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1932.

Hard Freeze Due On Plains Tonight

By The Associated Press.

Colder weather moved into Texas today, bringing with it scattered rains and overcast skies.

The temperature already was down to 40 at Amarillo and sub-freezing conditions were expected in the north Panhandle early tomorrow. The mercury was not expected to drop below 35 or 36 at Amarillo.

It was cloudy, with light showers at Corsican, but the temperature there had not started to slump at noon. The reading was 81.

Heavy rainfall was reported at Victoria, in south Texas.

Although skies were clear at Abilene, the cold weather forecast caused livestock warnings to be issued. At noon, the Abilene temperature was 77.

Shreveport, La., was cloudy, with probable rain expected tonight. The temperature may drop as low as 54 there, and it will be colder tomorrow.

Red Cross Roll Call Will Begin On November 12

Pampa's annual Red Cross roll call will be launched at 9 a. m. November 12, it was announced today by Tom Aldridge, chairman.

Civic club and other workers will be called on that date and given final instructions and supplies. The city is being assigned to various groups of workers by districts.

The drive will be planned and the city district next Wednesday at 10 a. m., when all workers will be called into a brief session at 10 a. m. at the city hall.

Mr. Aldridge has his chief assistants in the drive Allen Hodges and Oscar Savage.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Stroup returned this morning from a trip to Oklahoma City and Tulsa. They were accompanied by Miss Eda Brazell.

Burglars Loot City Grocery Store

Robbers worked fast and expertly in robbing the H. A. Marr Grocery company at 515 South Cuyler street during last night. The robbers were apparently frightened away before they had completed their plans, however, since a stack of merchandise was discovered at the place of loading operation.

Entry was made through a front window. The glass was broken above the window catch to allow unobstructed entry. A check this morning revealed the loss of 140 cartons of cigarettes, three cases of Prince Albert smoking tobacco, four cases of Bull Durham smoking tobacco, and a quantity of candy.

Several cases of tobacco, candy, gum, and other merchandise, had been piled under the window through which the stolen goods had apparently been loaded on a truck or in a car. The front door had not been touched, police investigating the robbery reported.

JONES SAYS SPENDING MUST END BUT THAT AAA PROGRAM WILL NOT BE DISCONTINUED

TOO MANY PEOPLE IN FAVOR OF IT, HE DECLARES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Continuation of the administration's farm program was predicted today by Chairman Jones (D-Texas) of the house-agriculture committee, even if other new deal innovations fail.

He said he believed the nation's farmers would not permit benefit payments to lapse, despite sentiment against high government spending.

"The farm program will stick," he said. "There are too many people in favor of it. At one meeting I attended in my district, a vote was called for on this work, and of the thousands there only one hand was raised in opposition. I believe that is the case all over the nation."

"Of course, the government can't go on spending like this forever and I don't think there will be another $4,880,000,000 appropriation for relief next year but the farm program will be the last to be jettisoned."

Jones declined to discuss possible changes in commodity programs but hoped to see Secretary Wallace, Chester Davis, Cully A. Cobb and other farm administration officials.

He said he came to Washington to seek approval of public works and works progress administrations for a long list of projects which he declined to name, "and also to get my hand in down at the agriculture department so I can spend Christmas at home this year."

Match This Hallowe'en Stunt

They're engrossed in a fascinating Hollywood Hallowe'en game, seeing who can heap the most matches on top of a bottle. And judging from the number of matches she already has piled up, Eddie seems to have what it takes.

Proposal To Tax Newspaper Gross Receipts Beaten

Eugene Worley Leads In Fight Against 'Spite' Bill

AUSTIN, Oct. 31 (AP)—The house today rejected, 83 to 53, a proposal to increase the sulphur production tax 50 cents per ton for old age pensions.

AUSTIN, Oct. 31 (AP)—The house today defeated 67 to 34, a proposal to levy tax of one per cent on gross receipts from newspaper advertising.

Rep. Eugene Worley of Shamrock protested the tax was offered as a floor amendment to an omnibus bill and that newspapers were not given an opportunity to be heard on its fairness.

"We are simply following the policy of taxing in the dark," Worley said.

Rep. A. M. Aiken of Paris asserted sponsors of the tax apparently were "not interested in determining if newspapers were already paying their just share of the tax burden."

"The picture shows gave us passes and we refused to place a small tax on them yesterday," Rep. Clarence Farmer of Fort Worth said. "I don't see why we should fall to tax motion pictures and then tax newspapers who render a great service to the legislature and to the people."

Senate Meets In Hotel

The senate today received a report of its rules committee that set a precedent. The committee met in a hotel room rather than in the capitol.

Unable to obtain a quorum, Senator Tom Deberry of Bogata, chairman of the committee, issued subpoenas to bring in absentees. The only one located was Senator Will M. Martin of Hillsboro, Ill in his hotel room.

Fortwith, the committee moved from a senate room to the hotel. There, in open session, it transacted its business, which was recommendation of a house resolution changing...

SAFE AND SANE HALLOWE'EN IS BEING PLANNED

Many Cities Move to Keep Kids Out Of Mischief

CHICAGO, Oct. 31 (AP)—Witches, goblins, snappers, and elves were outlawed today and supervised play substituted in innumerable communities for the usual malicious mischief of previous Hallowe'en celebrations.

Anoka, Minn., a suburb of Minneapolis, frequently is credited with the initiation 16 years ago of the safe and sane Hallowe'en celebrations, which spread to virtually every state.

Popularity of the idea has grown rapidly and leaders of the movement predict that soon the traditional pranks will be but memories.

The deeds of modern youth probably will fall, with a touch of wishfulness, how they put the cow in the belly of the old church, raided Farmer Brown's melon patch, gathered and suspended all the gates in town from the city hall steeple, and then the entire family will motor downtown to the big municipal festivities.

Adopting a page from the safe and sane independence day drives, many newspapers have sought to replace the old fashioned Hallowe'en rovelry by printing pledges to be signed by the youngsters and submitted to their school teachers.

To some cities, the motion picture houses agreed to accept signed pledges as tickets of admission.

The mummer parades, mardi gras, street dances and festivals were urged in hundreds of cities to keep youngsters out of mischief. Legionnaires, luncheon club groups, Boy Scouts, and police departments backed the new style celebrations in other cities.

McKellar Charges

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 31 (AP)—Senator McKellar (D, Tenn.) today charged cotton co-operatives with outright buying of cotton from farmer-members in competition with the private trade. Charles G. Henry, general manager of the Mid-South Cotton Growers association, who was on the stand at the time, denied the co-ops buy cotton at the time of its delivery to them.

THE WAR AT A GLANCE

(By The Associated Press.)

GENEVA—"Italy is willing to negotiate," said a Mussolini spokesman. The League of Nations met to set a deadline for economic sanctions against fascist Italy. Among delegates, Nov. 15 was regarded as the likely date. This would give the possible consequences of continuing.

PARIS—"Peace will be made," said Premier Pierre Laval as he left for Geneva.

LONDON—England virtually ended economic intercourse with Italy, without waiting for the league sanctions deadline. French and British military experts are working out a plan of mutual assistance in the Mediterranean.

At The Front

Italian forces on the southern front drew up artillery to bombard Gorrabel. On the northern front, Mussolini's legions occupied the fortress of Amba Sion, on a plateau 30 miles from Makale.

WIDE BOYCOTT HAS CHANGED ITALY'S MIND

BRITON FILES PROTEST AGAINST ITALIAN PROPAGANDA

BY R. N. HIPPLEHEUSER, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Fascist Italy, faced with the threat of economic isolation from most of the world, gave ground today and offered to negotiate peace with Ethiopia.

One of Mussolini's spokesmen at Geneva said:

"Italy is willing to negotiate."

This change of front, obviously was Italy's reaction to the ever-strengthening war of sanctions the League of Nations is waging against the aggressor in the East African conflict.

The league's sanctions staff of 52 nations convened today to lay down the deadline for the imposition of the drastic economic sanctions—the "buy nothing from Italy" boycott and the prohibition on exporting key products.

Another development, possibly contributing to the Italian change of front, was the renewal of British representations to Mussolini against continuing attacks upon Britain in the fascist-controlled Italian press.

Britain Protests.

In London, it was disclosed Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador, called on Il Duce yesterday and made verbal protest against anti-British editorials and against anti-British propaganda on the Italian radio.

Sir Eric, London sources disclosed, advised Mussolini Britain could not relax the strength of its fleet in the Mediterranean as long as the present situation existed between Italy and England.

The ambassador said the withdrawal of one division of troops from Italian Libya, bordering Egypt, was satisfactory; but added the concentrations still there were unwarranted.

Today, after this disclosure, Italian students demonstrated outside the British embassy, shouting: "Down with England."

They marched about the streets of Rome and frequently were cheered by the populace.

The banners they carried denounced the British leadership in the imposing of sanctions against fascist Italy.

At Geneva, among the delegates of the league, there was the feeling the deadline for sanctions would be around November 15.

Il Duce May Reflect.

While some, including Anthony Eden of England, wanted the deadline earlier, the two weeks deadline was in favor. This would give Il Duce two weeks to consider the possible consequences of continuing.

LAW OF AVERAGES AND HEALTH

A press dispatch from Washington carries facts of challenging applicability to every community. The U. S. public health service has made a survey and is able to predict that of every 100 persons living on opposite sides of a city block, 8 will have influenza, ten will have colds, five will have bronchitis, and eight—mostly romping children—will have injuries in accidents.

Out of every 1,000 persons 823 will be sick, the report showed.

Using the data published in the current issue of public health reports, it not only is possible to tell what the chances of disease are, but even the age group that probably will fall sick.

Two persons will have high blood pressure or heart disease. Those of more than 65 are most susceptible.

Two will have diarrhea. Babies will outnumber older children and adults.

Two will have measles. Babies again will lead.

One will have appendicitis. Youth between 15 and 20 are most likely to be sick.

One will have whooping cough, a baby disease.

One will have chickenpox. Children between 5 and 10 will be victims.

"Of the communicable or infectious diseases, whooping cough and measles lead in incidence," the report said. "Rheumatism is the predominant affection, in frequency of cases, among those general ailments not included in the epidemic group. In the digestive class, indigestion and diarrhea are the most frequent, but appendicitis comes third in the list."

Elimination of many of these factors could be brought about if individuals' habits could be changed. And habits are slowly being changed, as indicated in health records. But it is a fact that science is moving faster in many respects than the habits of the people. The fact that cancer and the common cold are still beyond efficient control merely obscures the more accurate truth that most persons could attain health if they would and could follow the advice of good physicians.

Nurse Kidnaped To Cut a Bullet From Man's Hip

GALVESTON, Oct. 31. (AP)—A nurse's story of being abducted from Galveston island and forced to remove a bullet from the hip of a wounded man at an isolated spot on the mainland, was under investigation by the sheriff's department today.

The graduate nurse, whose name was given as Mrs. Essie Barthel, told Sheriff Franz Blagene a middle-aged man and a young, red-haired woman forced her to accompany them in an automobile to the place where the wounded man was waiting in another automobile. She said the man from whose hip she cut the bullet held a shawl over his head to prevent her seeing his face. A second, unhealed wound near his shoulder was seen by the nurse.

The sheriff and his deputies had been unable to locate either the gunshot victim or the couple who acted as intermediaries in obtaining medical attention for him.

Mrs. Barthel, who lives in Galveston, told the sheriff that a man about 35 or 40 years old called at her residence yesterday, explaining that he had noticed her newspaper advertisement for work. She said he made an appointment to meet her later at the end of a car line.

When she met him, she said, he was accompanied by the red-haired woman, who was described as being about 25 years old. They invited the nurse into the front seat of their automobile, saying they wanted her to ride to a house a short distance away. The red-haired woman was in the back seat.

"Just look straight ahead," the nurse quoted the man as saying to her after the car started. She said she was driven to a secluded spot on the mainland where they found the wounded man reclining in the back seat of a car, with his face turned to the rear and his head wrapped in a shawl.

INJUNCTION GRANTED

AUSTIN, Oct. 31. (AP)—The third court of civil appeals today awarded the Texas Power and Light Co. a temporary injunction restraining the rival Brownwood Public Service Co. from erecting electricity transmission lines. Reversing a lower court holding, the appellate court remanded the cause as to the T. P. & L. application for a permanent injunction.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

—BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The administration thinks it is still doing a rather spectacular job in driving down electricity rates over the country.

The other day it learned that a town in Texas had obtained a reduction of 67 per cent in the price of its domestic electricity and 55 per cent on commercial power.

That's a record to date. It happened in Wharton, Tex., where the city fathers had decided to build a $20,000 municipal plant and had asked PWA for a loan-grant.

The project was approved only to the extent of putting it on PWA's "B list", which meant it would get the money only if it could be substituted for a project on the "A list" which was withdrawn.

But that was enough to cause the private power company serving Wharton to offer to make that drastic rate cut if the city would withdraw its PWA application. Wharton has withdrawn.

Similar recent withdrawals of applications for approved power plant projects have been received from Seneca, Kan., where the rate was cut 26.4 per cent, and Jamestown, N. D.

PWA has approved loan-grant allotment of about $32,000,000 for some 46 municipal plants and about 60 projects for additions to public plants or power plants for institutions.

The work is under its power section, headed by Dr. Clark Foreman, who wouldn't be surprised at quite a few more rate cuts and resultant withdrawals.

After two years of criticism of the AAA program as it affected cotton sharecroppers of the south, something is going to be done about it. The sharecroppers will be given a break under the next cotton reduction program, now being worked out in secret.

Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel and other economists figured out that the sharecroppers, who usually cultivate crops in return for half the cotton they raise, had been receiving from 11 to 12 per cent of benefit payments, which average about $7 an acre.

Cully Cobb, chief of AAA's cotton section, and others of the "planters' bloc" here have always argued that cotton growers wouldn't sign adjustment contracts if much attempt were made to see that croppers received more.

Although the fight over the issue within AAA is still going on, insiders predict that from 25 to 30 per cent of benefit payments will be designated as for sharecroppers.

A method is being sought to make sure the croppers get the money and the government is likely to take responsibility for that, as its agents have found many southern landlords unwilling to make anything like a fair division with tenant.

It has been proposed to send AAA checks direct to sharecroppers and there's so much AAA sentiment for such a course—despite its administrative difficulties—that it's likely to be adopted.

Present cotton contracts require landlords to keep the same number of tenants and not to re-classify croppers as day laborers. It is planned to tighten up enforcement of those provisions.

Livermore, Calif., honors Max Baer as a leading citizen. The title undoubtedly originated from his habit of leading with the chin.

Instead of $12 relief check, New Jersey coal dealers, in error, got federal check for $250,000. Surprisingly, he wasn't told to keep the change.

Crowds storm New York planetarium. Many of them, having learned there were stars inside, undoubtedly were autograph hunters.

CHURCH WEDDING UNITES MISS BUCKLER AND R. G. ALLEN

RING CEREMONY IS READ IN SETTING OF STATELY BEAUTY WITH MANY FRIENDS PRESENT

Miss Margaret Buckler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Buckler, and Russel Greene Allen were married in a service of dignified beauty at First Methodist church yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Rt. Rev. E. Cecil Seaman of Amarillo, bishop of the Episcopal church in Northwest Texas, read the ring ceremony before an assemblage of several score of friends.

Tall white baskets of calla-lilies were placed on the altar and another on the organ, accents in the background of fern and palms. White candles burned in black and silver candelabra. Both aisles of the church were marked with white and silver bows on the ends of the pews.

Mrs. Walter F. G. Stein at the organ played as the guests were being ushered to their seats. Her solos were Serenade, Schubert; To a Wild Rose, MacDowell; Believe Me If All These Endearing Young Charming, Moore; Yepper Hymn, with choruses, and selections from the Episcopal Hymnal.

Mrs. A. H. Doucette sang Ab, Sweet Mystery of Life, Herbert, immediately preceding the service. The prelude to the third act of "Lohengrin" Wagner, was played by the organist, changing to the Bridal Chorus from "Lohengrin" for the processional.

The ushers, E. L. Green Jr. of Houston, Clarence Barrett, and Arthur S. Swanson, entered first followed by the junior bridesmaids, Ann Buckler, sister of the bride, and Harriet Price, Miss Marjory Buckler, bridesmaid, and Mrs. E. L. Green Jr., matron of honor, came next, then the tiny flower girl, Milnera Hobart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hobart of Canadian.

The bride's gown was of white satin, untrimmed, with draped neck line and long close sleeves. The skirt was fitted, extending into a long train. Her veil of bridal illusion floated from a halo cap of white tulle, covering her face and lengthening in the back to touch the floor.

Dresses of all her attendants were fashioned alike, of satin, and they wore matching halo hats of satin and tulle. Mrs. Green and Ann Buckler wore frocks of pale blue-green, made on rennaissance lines with bell-shaped sleeves, corded at

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Less Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets, Harsh, Astringent Salts or Weakening, Irritating, Habit-Forming Laxatives. There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, every pound takes on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace. Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way. Marmala Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So don't waste your time and money striving to reduce with methods that are hard, futile or depend on harmful, habit-forming salts and laxatives for the solution. Start the Marmala treatment today. Millions have used it and won!

Hallowe'en

By Helen Welshimer

SINCE Hallowe'en is almost here, When black cats, elves and snakes appear, A child who glances up the sky May find a dark witch passing by. Ah, any evening there may loom A witch who rides a flying broom; Whose teeth and nose and hat are pointed, Whose claw-like hands are double-jointed. Wise children know that if they smile Back at the witch a little while, Not any toad or snake or charm She has with her can bring them harm!

New Garments for Old Are Made by H. D. Club Woman

Mrs. A. R. Walberg's ingenuity in making useful and practical garments of old ones has meant an adequate supply of winter clothes for her 4-year-old son. She is a member of Priscilla Home Demonstration club.

In rummaging through the clothes closet she found a pair of old blue serge trousers. She used the good parts to make a pair of long trousers and a clever little vest for her son. A piece of blue pongee that she had purchased for 18 cents was found in a remnant box to make the blouse. By using thread and buttons already on hand, her son now has a full suit appropriate for almost any occasion.

Mrs. Walberg used good parts of her husband's worn shirts and made four every-day shirts, and by purchasing 57 cents worth of cotton print material and spending five cents for thread, she made her son seven shirts at a total expense of 62 cents.

MAJOR RELIEF DECISION IS FACING CHIEF

FDR'S ESTIMATE MAY BE ISSUE NEXT YEAR

BY NATHAN ROBERTSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt's decision on how to spend for relief next year may be a talking point in the 1936 campaign.

That decision is the most important now facing him in preparing next year's budget. Administration officials have already indicated that expenditures for normal government activities will be about the same as this year.

In his recent budget summary, the president said "the prevailing rate of recovery points to the speedy decline of expenditures for emergency activities." He said he was seeking to decrease "the spread between income and outgo."

The reply of the American Liberty League, one of the severest critics of the administration's fiscal policies, was that "beyond a general tone of optimism, nothing in the president's comments justifies confidence that the submission of the new budget next January will mark a return to sound fiscal policies."

Noting probable new demands for continued heavy spending, the league added "the head-on approach that unless underlying policies are sharply changed, there will be a strong tendency to spend as much in the fiscal year 1937 as in 1936."

Doubt that emergency expenditures would decrease next year also was expressed by Rep. Bolton of Ohio, chairman of the republican congressional campaign committee.

He said he hoped they do, Bolton said, "but I understand the administration is planning for new large emergency expenditures in the next budget."

Administration spokesmen say that the curtailment of emergency expenditures depends upon absorption of the unemployed by private industry. They agree that some of the relief spending will have to continue for years, but contend the treasury can stand that in view of expected increases in revenue.

Length of Dog's Hair Is Index To His Temper

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The length of a dog's hair is a good index to his temper, Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, said today in an article on control of rabies.

"It is well known that long haired dogs develop rabies less frequently than short haired because of the greater opportunity for the removal of infectious saliva by the coat of the former," the editor wrote.

"Female dogs are gentler with children than are the males," he said. Dog owners should be cognizant of these facts in order to protect themselves from bites, which are "not as uncommon as might be believed," Dr. Fishbein wrote.

"Despite the availability of satisfactory anti-rabies vaccines, the number of deaths from human rabies has remained virtually unaltered for the past 25 years," his article said.

Because the Pasteur treatment "does not invariably protect the patient," Dr. Fishbein said, "the logical procedure is the minimizing of canine rabies and its spread by biting dogs."

MORNING STAR

BY MARIAN SIMS

Chapter 38 HORSEBACK
Judith said slowly, "David belongs at Carrollton."

Aubrey began to understand. He grinned affectionately at his wife. "Going to play your God, eh?" "Not at all," Judith said severely. "God's not nearly so considerate of His children as that."

"But suppose David's gotten over Carrollton? It would be a miracle if he hadn't, after all these years." Privately, Aubrey couldn't imagine David's being quite that devoted to an ideal.

"He hasn't," Judith said confidently. "He'll never get over it, no matter how long he stays away; it's in his blood, as I've remarked before."

She turned on him. "Can you imagine being happy, or being at home, anywhere else in the world, no matter how long you'd been there?"

"No," he confessed, thinking nevertheless that he and David were different types.

"And so," Judith decided, "I'm going to cable him tomorrow. He'll tell me the truth."

"Suppose he can't swing it?" "Then we'll have to buy it and let him pay us."

Aubrey grinned again. "Using what for money?" "We'll have to do some mortgaging ourselves."

He said ruefully, "How many mortgages do you think this roof can support?" "Anyway," Judith's confidence was boundless. "I'm going to cable."

"What about Emily," he demanded; "going to mention that?" "No-oo, I don't think I shall. All I can do about that is to watch and pray."

"Particularly pray," Aubrey twinkled. "Where are those old corduroy breeches of mine? I want 'em for morning."

Judith had said, "Don't worry about breakfast; Aubrey eats at the barbaric hour of half-past seven and I have mine later, in bed. Just ring when you're ready and Dorinda will bring yours up."

But Emily couldn't sleep. She felt restless and excited, and at seven she gave up the pretense of sleep and arose.

Aubrey was at breakfast when she came down, wearing the corduroy breeches and a flannel shirt, and consuming quantities of honey and chicken hash. He welcomed her delightedly.

"This is fine! What sort of breakfast do you eat?" She looked at his plate. "One like yours would do beautifully." She hadn't eaten that much breakfast in years, but it looked delicious.

"With orange juice before and waffles afterwards?" She agreed. "Especially waffles. But please go on eating, or I'll never come down this early again."

She remembered her rides with David. "May I go with you some time?" "I'd be tickled to death. Feel like going today, Dr. Proctor?" She hesitated. Dr. Proctor had said she might ride now, but that she must take it gradually. "I haven't been very fit, but I'd love it. Are you going far?"

"No. And if you do get tired you can come back any time. Jude will be dragging you to field trials and fox-hunts before long, and this will be a good way to begin."

She finished breakfast and went up to change clothes, singing softly as she went. This life did get into your blood, if only there were someone to live it with you.

Judith's horse was saddled and waiting when she came down; not Starlight this time, but a sleek little bay with a white blaze and three white socks. Emily caressed the velvety nose and the little horse sniffed her companionably.

Aubrey smiled his approval and gave her a hand into the saddle. "She racks on the curb," he explained casually, "and carries on the snaffle. Better stick to the rack this time; it's easier."

She laughed. "It certainly is. If she were three-gaited I doubt if I'd be equal to her."

MORNING STAR

BY MARIAN SIMS

who lives here has been sick and I'm afraid it may go into pneumonia. Nobody, himself least of all, knows how old he is."

He disappeared into the tiny cabin and Emily looked about her with interested eyes. The cabin must have contained two rooms, at most; it crunched on the edge of a thickset of second growth pines.

A negro child, barefoot and without a coat, came out on the porch and sat motionless on the top step, watching her with round, unwinking black eyes.

About the steps several mongrel hounds and an officious, garrulous rooster scratched the hard ground with more energy than hope.

A disheartening picture, perhaps, to an outsider, but Emily guessed that there was more to the picture than its surface. The cabin was crude, but it was in good repair; a sound roof, and not a single pane missing from the windows—a really remarkable state for a negro cabin.

The old man must long ago have outlived his usefulness, but she guessed that his "order" still went regularly to the store, and that if the situation demanded it Aubrey would have a doctor there before the day was done. Their lot seemed hard, and yet, left to himself, the old man would have died like an outcast dog.

Aubrey lifted him into the saddle before him, where he beamed impartially upon them all for an instant and then began to rock back and forth. "Barn!" he ordered.

His father grinned at him. "Sorry, this car's not going there. You get one turn around the drive and that's all." They moved majestically around the circle, then Aubrey handed him down to Judith.

Davey stiffened and opened his mouth for the ear-splitting yell. Aubrey scowled at him. "Stop it!" Davey considered for a moment and then closed his mouth. Judith grinned at Emily. "Did you ever see such a superb parent in your life? I couldn't possibly do without him."

She put an arm around Emily. "Come on in and rest; we're having company for dinner tonight and I want you to look beautiful." (Copyright, 1935, by Marian Sims)

Pickford Would Leave State to Avoid High Taxes

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 31.—The "California, here we go" movement of William Randolph Hearst had a recruit today in Mary Pickford, veteran movie star.

"The decision of Mr. Hearst to spend most of his time out of California because of excessive taxes here is a decision I will be forced to make unless our law-makers give me a chance to possess a small portion of my income for living expenses," declared Miss Pickford upon her return from a trip East.

Bemoaning the possibility that "I won't be able to live in my beloved California much longer," Miss Pickford said the property she owns in this state is "taxed to death already."

She predicted that others in the film industry would move, possibly to New York or New Jersey, and said financing of a shift in movie-making activities "could be easily arranged."

MORNING STAR

BY MARIAN SIMS

He sobered. "Not so good. I'll send Travis out when we get back." He looked at his watch. "Almost ten. This is enough for your first dose."

She protested quickly. "But I can go back alone. Please don't come on my account."

"I'm not," he assured her. "I want to get Travis out here as soon as possible." The gravity of his tone filled her with pride at her own divination.

At the house Judith greeted them gaily. "I never saw such an ambitious pair in my life. I muzzled Davey and tiptoeed past your door for an hour before I found you'd gone."

Davey, hearing their voices, waddled out to the porch and sitting on the top step began to descend by the time-honored method of hitching himself down on his rear. "Ride!" he demanded.

Aubrey lifted him into the saddle before him, where he beamed impartially upon them all for an instant and then began to rock back and forth. "Barn!" he ordered.

His father grinned at him. "Sorry, this car's not going there. You get one turn around the drive and that's all." They moved majestically around the circle, then Aubrey handed him down to Judith.

Davey stiffened and opened his mouth for the ear-splitting yell. Aubrey scowled at him. "Stop it!" Davey considered for a moment and then closed his mouth. Judith grinned at Emily. "Did you ever see such a superb parent in your life? I couldn't possibly do without him."

She put an arm around Emily. "Come on in and rest; we're having company for dinner tonight and I want you to look beautiful." (Copyright, 1935, by Marian Sims)

EMILY MAKES ANOTHER FRIEND
