GIs Hide Behind Bodies Of Slain To Escape Death On Old Baldy

SEOUL, (AP) — Five American soldiers — wounded, hungry and without a drop of water lived through 72 hours of hell on the rugged Korean hill known as Old Baldy. When their buddies fled from the 2nd Division retook the height Sunday after savage fighting with Chinese Reds, the five stopped playing dead and crawled over their bodies from their battered bunker. They had huddled in the dilapidated log and earth cave under the earth-shaking pound-

WILL CHARLEY CHAPLIN RETURN? — Attorney General James P. McGranery has ordered the Immigration Service to detain famed movie comedian Charles Chaplin upon his return to the United States, until a hearing can be held on his admissibility "under the laws of the United States." The 63-year-old British subject is shown above with his wife, Oona, as they arrived in New York recently en route to England, first stop on an around-the-world tour. Chaplin, who has spent 46 years in United States, has never taken out naturalization papers.

Liquor Control Board Records Ordered Open

AUSTIN (AP) — Charges that bribery and corruption kept a multi-million dollar West Texas bootleg syndicate in business came under the exploring eye of the House Crime Investigating Committee here today.

The investigators subpoenaed records of West Texas wholesale and retail liquor dealers and banks and asked the state liquor control board to produce personnel files and other documents. These will be studied by committee members and the state auditor in executive session. Then, if what they find appears to justify it, a public hearing will be held in Amarillo where the Potter County grand jury initiated the charges.

The grand jury report charged that "general statewide corruption" has resulted from administration of the Liquor Control Act. It said that a bootleg syndicate was headquartered at Big Spring and Odessa, that some liquor board employees knew of it, but that it went right on operating through pay-offs and bribery to key employees of the board.

Liquor Board Administrator Calvin Stevenson Jr. replied sharply that of seven cases of bribery taken to court by the board in Amarillo last year, only one has been brought to trial by local officials there and that it resulted in a two-year suspended sentence. The board, Stevenson said, cancelled the licenses and permits of individuals involved and these administrative actions have been upheld in court. Stevenson said that all cases involving charges against board employees had been taken promptly to the liquor board and that all records would be laid before the house committee.

"We welcome an investigation from top to bottom," Stevenson said. Odessa wholesale liquor dealers under subpoena today were the Budger-Herring Sales and Drug Co.; Glazer's Wholesale Drug Co.; Meason Corp.; Inc.; Southwestern Drug Corp.; The banks under subpoena; First National and State National of Big Spring; First National and First State of Odessa, for records relating to financial affairs of Pinkie's Liquor Stores. The individuals under subpoena: Tom Roden, W. F. Roden, T. G. Roden, C. W. Coyle, F. C. Young, G. W. Wood, all of Odessa; Glen Gale and John J. McCullough of Big Spring; A. W. Edgington of San Angelo. Crime committee records listed as connected with Pinkie's Liquor Stores. Also, Hubert Odom of Odessa, listed as connected with Cecil's Liquor Stores.

Smith Rites Set For 2 P.M. Today

The body of William V. Smith, 59, arrived in Pampa today for funeral services at 2 p.m. The day in the Dueneck-Carmichael Funeral chapel. Rev. E. Douglas Carver, pastor, First Baptist Church will officiate. Mr. Smith died in Yakima, Wash., Sept. 12. He is a former resident of Pampa. Among his survivors are five daughters: Mrs. H. E. Brown, Mrs. J. T. Ray, and Mrs. LeRoy Johnson, all of Pampa; Mrs. W. D. Armons, Eunice, N.M., and Mrs. Thad Davis, Jal; five sisters and two brothers. All five daughters are in Pampa for the funeral. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Dueneck-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Board To Discuss New School Plans

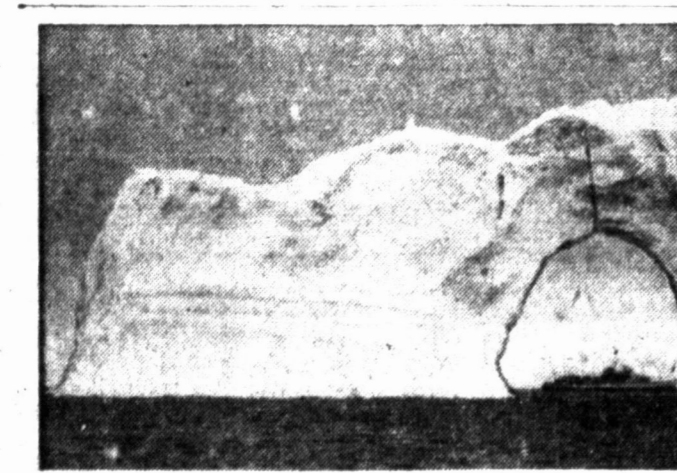

Discussion of heating, water and sewerage plans for the new elementary school in the southwest part of town is on the docket for the Pampa School Board meeting at 7:30 p.m. today. B. E. Canrell, school architect, and a representative of the city's office of public works are expected to be on hand, according to Knox Kinard, school superintendent. (See CONVICTS, Page 3)

Solons Will Bare FBI's Secret Files

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators take a look at hitherto secret FBI files today to determine whether they warrant an expanded probe of the Justice Department that might lead to testimony from Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark.

Six To Face Grand Jury

Five men and women, including two of the four-man burglary ring broken up here several weeks ago, will go before the Gray County Grand Jury today. The new grand jury for 31st District Court was sworn in a few minutes after 10 a.m. by Judge Lewis M. Goodrich who immediately went into the task of calling civil cases on the docket for trial setting.

GRIM BEAUTY—A beautiful, but mighty dangerous, iceberg of tremendous size makes a dramatic frame for the USCG Cutter Eastwind, on its way through Baffin Bay. The Eastwind carried personnel and supplies to Thule, Greenland, where a 90,000-acre, $263,000,000 Air Force base is nearing completion after two years of secret construction.

Arctic Airbase Site Fantastic

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — What is the Arctic like, where the United States has chosen to build great air bases for its perimeter defenses?
Now that the flier with his jet fighters and strategic bombers have come, it is a strange mixture of the old, unchanged far North and the new ways of man from a temperature zone of glaciers millions of years old and airbase runways in which the concrete is barely hardened. It is a place where planes take off from the huge and busy air base at Thule to wing northward to the pole in a few hours flying time. And it is a place where just across a bay from the Eskimo village of Etah, the mo village of Etah just north of Thule to the pole? Through an interpreter he answered: "A little. Some seals." Then he placed his foot down in front of him to show an imprint and spoke. "Also polar bear tracks but no polar bears." When did he see Rear Adm. Robert E. Peary last? "Odaq couldn't put the answer in dates. He thought. He pointed to the north and spoke (the pole); to the northwest (Etah, where Peary left); to the south (where Peary went). The interview was over. Odaq shook hands gravely with his visitors. He turned and made his way back into the house (See ARCTIC, Page 3)

Cold Front Jumps Gun

Only a few hours of summer remain, but an incoming cold front jumped the gun and sent Pampans to their closets in search of those warm sweaters they had hung there last spring. The high reading on the thermometer Sunday was a chilly 64 degrees, lowest recorded high since May 18. Early this morning, the mercury skittered down to an even 50.

Week-End Toll Of Death Drops

By The Associated Press
Only six persons were reported killed by violence in Texas over the week end, and traffic took toll of them. One died by hanging and another died of what appeared to be an accidental gunshot wound. That was all the violent deaths reported to the Associated Press from Friday at 6 p.m. through midnight Sunday. Usually from 10 to 20 or more persons die in Texas violence during a week end.

Seek Trailers For Floats

A plea for more four-wheeled trailers to transport floats for the parade during Gray County's 50th Birthday Celebration Association Oct. 12-14 was issued today by parade officials. The parade committee would like to rent or borrow trailers from 30 to 50 feet long. They will be returned, undamaged, to owners. It was pointed out by W. E. Weatherhead, general parade chairman. Irvin Cole is chairman of the vehicle procurement committee.

A Frog Is Cause Of 3-Car Pileup

A frog, casually crossing the street, was the cause of a three-car accident on N. Cuyler at 8:55 a.m. today. Shirley L. Culwell, 18, of Lawndale, Calif., was driving north on Cuyler, police report, when she sighted the frog and stopped short without giving a hand signal. Piling up behind her were two others cars—one driven by Allie I. Miller, 19, of 1014 E. Denver; the other by a 15-year-old Pampans. Miss Culwell was cited by officers for failing to give a hand signal.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Sen. Richard Nixon, in the strongest sign yet that he will stay on as the Republican candidate for vice president of America, on his finances — personal and political. The California senator, caught in a campaign squeeze by his $18,000 expense fund, broke off his current Western trip temporarily to present his case before the people, either tomorrow or Wednesday night. But he emphasized that he intends to resume the tour.

That was all the violent deaths reported to the Associated Press from Friday at 6 p.m. through midnight Sunday. Usually from 10 to 20 or more persons die in Texas violence during a week end. Mrs. Maurine Rogers Redfern, 46, Mt. Pleasant, died late Sunday from injuries sustained when the car which she was driving alone hit a culvert, overturned and crashed into a tree. The accident occurred early Sunday at the city limits of Mt. Pleasant. Two men were killed and seven persons were injured in a head-on automobile collision near Angleton Sunday. The dead were Roland Smith, 52, Angleton, and Clarence Lyda, 23, Rockdale. Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Robert Gwin Sr., Houston, were injured in the collision, two critically. Mr. and Mrs. Gwin were less seriously hurt.

Escaped Convicts, Detective Shot To Death In Gun Battle

NEW YORK (AP) — Two escaped convicts were shot to death yesterday in a furious gun battle with police after leaving a trail of terror across part of Pennsylvania into New York City. A detective was mortally wounded in the hail of submachine-gun and pistol fire. The third member of a desperado trio was captured unhurt as 21 policemen blasted their way into the apartment where the fugitives were hiding with three Negro women. Joseph Nolan, 26, and his brother Ballard, 22 — two gun-crazy bad men from Earlton County, Ky. — died in the roaring five minutes of close-range fire. Detective Philip Lamonica, 45, shot three times in the chest, died in a hospital a short time later. Detective Nicholas Cotter, 34, was seriously wounded. Captured was Elmer Schuer, 21, of Chicago, who broke out of the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison with the Nolan brothers on Sept. 10. They had been serving long terms for bank robbery. There was an ironical twist to the captures — the trio never intended to come to New York. After their escape, they wanted to head for Scranton, Pa., but took a wrong road turn in a stolen car. When they found themselves headed for New York, they figured they might as well "lose themselves in the crowd." (See CONVICTS, Page 3)

H. D. Aide Is Appointed

Miss Faye Burns of Snyder assumed duties today as assistant home demonstration agent for Gray County. A graduate of Abilene Christian College this past May, Miss Burns holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in home economics. She has also taken work in this field at Colorado University. Miss Burns' duties will include sponsorship of all county girls' 4-H Clubs and assistance to Miss Helen Dunlap, home demonstration agent. The new agent begins work this week with the organization of the Lefora 4-H club; a tea for the Wayside community club after school Wednesday; help in judging county Gold Star nominees Friday and attendance at the Amarillo Tri-State Fair this Saturday. Miss Burns was reared on a farm near Snyder and is a former 4-H Club girl. If it comes from a hardware store we have it, Lewis Hardware. Adv.

Stevenson Demands Taft-Hartley Repeal

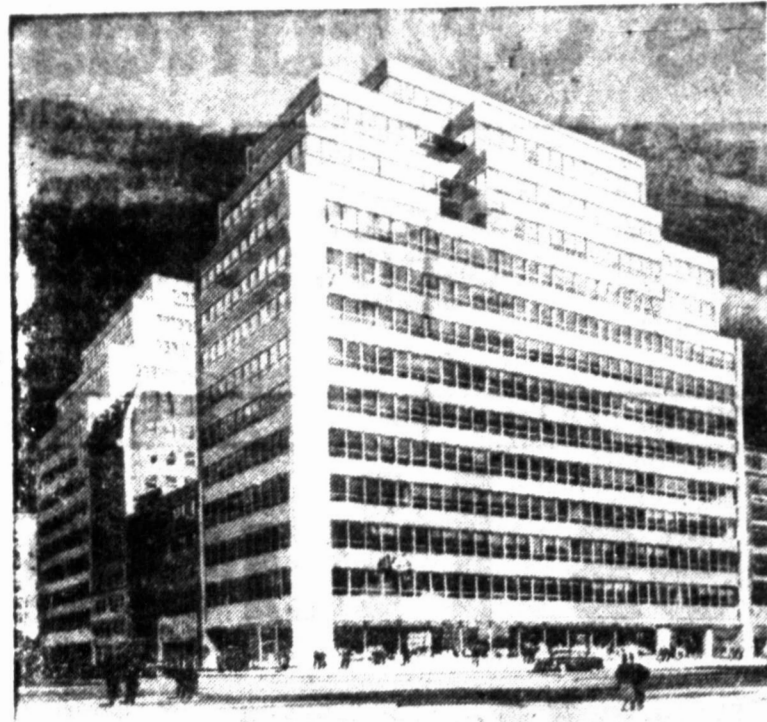

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, addressing the American Federation of Labor Convention, repeated today that the Taft-Hartley Act should be repealed, and he laid down a set of proposals for strengthening the Department of Labor. Stevenson blasted Republican claims that he has advocated compulsory arbitration of labor disputes. "It was charged that I had 'embraced' the principle of 'compulsion' by asking for the power as president to 'compel' arbitration of disputes which threaten the national safety," he said. "Now, after the great reunion on the loveliest at Columbia University, I respect the general's (Eisenhower's) authority on the subject of embraces. But if he wrote what he said, he did not read what I said. My proposal was, and is, that if Congress sees fit to direct the President to intervene in a labor dispute, it should give him the authority to try, among other things, to have that dispute referred to arbitration. It did not say he should be a Taft of Ohio."

TO REPLACE FAMED MANSION—This is the architect's sketch of an unusual 15-story "twin" office building to be erected by Ivor B. Clark on the 47th and 48th Street corners of New York's Fifth Avenue. The 47th Street site is now occupied by the famous Gould mansion, one of the last remaining relics of the Avenue's 19th Century residential magnificence. The old Gould mansion, razed in 1942, stood on the 48th Street corner. The new building will be U-shaped, the two main parts seen in the sketch being connected in the rear.

All-Purpose Chimney Vital To New Home

A chimney has two main functions: 1. To create a draft to keep fuel burning at the proper rate and to carry away smoke, fumes and uncombusted gases. A common fault in chimney construction, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau, is failure to coordinate flue area with height of chimney. A chimney may be high enough, yet have a flue area that is too small to carry the volume of gas fed into it.

In building a new house, it's wise to specify an all-purpose chimney suitable for any type of fuel. You may change your heating plant in time but you can't be compelled to build a new chimney. One of the newest developments in chimneys is the prefabricated chimney which is available for the custom of any fuel.

Never connect pipes or incinerators with the same flue that serves the heating plant. Extra connections destroy draft efficiency. Avoid long runs and unnecessary bends in smoke pipes.

treatment for new wood. Apply stain, if desired.

Then apply a thin coat of shellac, at least two-pound cut, working the liquid with the grain with a fine brush. Allow three hours for drying. Sandpaper the first coat lightly and dust it off.

For the second coat use a two-pound cut, being careful not to overlap when brushing flow shellacked sections together. For a final polish, hand rub the surface with a paste wax.

Badly worn wood can also be given a protective coating, using this same method.

Thorough sanding with steel wool or No. 12 sandpaper before finishing is necessary for new floors. Old floors should have previous finish removed by sanding machine. All traces of wax should be eliminated before applying shellac in two-pound cut.

Allow three hours' drying time between first two coats; overnight drying of the second, if a third coat is desired.

Shellac is known also as a paint or lacquer base and is recognized as an excellent undercoat for wax or varnish.

Shellac brushes can be cleaned by soaking in alcohol.

How To Save: Traditional Always Take A Tip Favored Furniture

There is always news in Traditional Eighteenth and Nineteenth Century furniture.

New finishes, improved storage planning, better construction and refinement of styling make these classic designs, continual favorites in American homes.

More value is being offered today in terms of function and durability, more beauty in natural wood finishes and more flexibility for space saving and utility.

The beauty of the wood used in Traditional furniture has always been of great importance to its charm and popularity.

While most Eighteenth century English pieces were made of mahogany, many of the American colonial adaptations were wrought in the cherry, maple, pine and walnut that were found in abundance along the Atlantic seaboard.

The recent trend to more casual living and the resulting requirement for furniture of informal and casual dignity.

Whitening costs doesn't mean sacrifice on quality. Use the best, but make sure it's the best for the purpose you have in mind. Plaster is fine, but wall-board or playwood work just as well and cost less. They won't crack with settling.

ASBESTOS SLIDING PANELS Exterior asbestos panels cost less than wood or brick. They come in attractive colors and need no paint. They are weatherproof, fireproof, rotproof and termite proof. Their large size makes them easy and quick to install.

People In Glass Houses Hang Paintings In Yard By W. G. ROGERS Associated Press Arts Editor People who live in glass houses can now hang their paintings out in the yard.

Glass houses, and other modern, partly glass houses don't provide much wall space for art. Miss Katharine Ordway, art patron, with an estate in Connecticut, has commissioned a picture made of material that withstands heat and cold, rain and snow, and shines right back at her by night.

It is made of the reflecting material used in small tabs on bicycles and along highways to mark directions and curves by night.

The work is in black, white, green and varying intensities of yellow and orange, and ten more colors are available. The artist is abstractionist Robert Motherwell, and his pane was shown at New York's Whitney Museum of American Art. It is a reproduction of part of an unfinished mural which he painted for a school in Massachusetts.

How Ownership Is Protected

More home owners take chance without title insurance than any other form of indemnity.

Fire, life and even liability insurance are more widely understood than title insurance. Yet a title policy sometimes can prove more valuable than a fire policy.

Even total loss by fire saves you with a foundation and your land. But if your title is invalid, you can lose all.

Of course, this doesn't happen very often. More frequently an unjustified claim arises. Some neglected heir of a previous owner of the land feels that he has a right or part interest in it. Such a claim must be fought in court.

LEGAL COSTS RUN HIGH The biggest feature of title insurance is that the title company must defend any claim that is made against your ownership. The cost of such a defense may exceed the cost of your home.

Don't be misled by the fact that you have a mortgage on your house and that the mortgage lender charged you for title insurance along with fire insurance when you took title to the property. Insurance held by the mortgage lender does not protect your title. The mortgage lender is only interested in seeing that his loan is safeguarded. Financially it makes no difference to the mortgage lender who holds the equity, so long as the loan is protected and paid.

The amount of cash you have invested in your home, which increases with each payment toward reducing the mortgage, is unprotected without an owner's title policy. When your mortgage is paid off, the bank's title insurance ceases, and there is no protection on any part of the property. But an owner's policy continues indefinitely without further premium payments. One single payment in the beginning is permanent.

Even though your mortgage may amount to more than your share in the deal, you are the owner and it is your responsibility to defend your title to protect both yourself and the mortgage lender.

Sometimes a flaw in the develops without a claim being filed. You may be planning to sell your property and the prospective purchaser's lawyer will discover some longlost survey or other records that show your title to be imperfect. You are then saddled with an unmarketable title.

PROTECTION FROM MISTAKE Title insurance compels a title company to make your title good because the title search and examination have just been made a mistake in the beginning. It insures you against errors made by clerks in public offices, surveyors and court officers.

It's usually cheaper to get a title policy when taking title to a property than it is to later discover a flaw in the title and sue the title search and examination have just been made a mistake in the beginning. Mixing Your Own Stains Recommended By Mr. Fix

By MR. FIX Distributed by NEA Service One of the least expensive of wood finishes, and one of the easiest to apply, is shellac.

Any exposed wood is subject to deterioration, but clean, bare wood can be given two quick coats of thin shellac that will protect it indefinitely, and bring out the wood's natural grain.

It is common practice to give floors, panelling and other woods two coats of rapid-drying, durable shellac in a single day.

However, proper thinning of shellac—a vital part of its correct application—is not commonly known among non-professionals. Shellac should seldom be used as it comes out of the can, but should be thinned with a high-grade denatured alcohol.

Most widely sold shellacs are called "five-pound cut" and four-pound cut." That means they consist of four or five pounds of shellac gum dissolved or "cut" to each gallon of pure alcohol.

But these mixtures should be thinned with denatured alcohol for practically all work. For instance, shellac on floors should be applied not heavier than in two-pound cut.

Here are instructions for converting shellac by thinning with alcohol:

Five-lb. cut to 3-lb. cut—7.8 pint alcohol to 1 quart shellac; 3-lb. cut to 2-lb. cut—3 quart alcohol to 1 quart shellac; 2-lb. cut to 1-lb. cut—2 3/4 gallon alcohol to 1 quart shellac; 1-lb. cut to 3/4 lb. cut—1 1/2 pint alcohol to 1 quart shellac; 3/4 lb. cut to 1/2 lb. cut—3/4 quart alcohol to 1 quart shellac; 1/2 lb. cut to 1/4 lb. cut—1/2 quart alcohol to 1 quart shellac.

To prepare furniture for shellac coats remove the old finish with a paint or varnish remover, sponge thoroughly with turpentine to remove traces of the chemical and allow the wood to dry.

Smooth the surface with No. 00 steel wool, followed by No. 00 sandpaper, rubbing with the grain and wiping afterwards. Same

Apply a thin coat of shellac, at least two-pound cut, working the liquid with the grain with a fine brush. Allow three hours for drying. Sandpaper the first coat lightly and dust it off.

Overcoat For House Makes It Snug And Rigid

Ever think of giving your house an overcoat? It's a smart way to make lightly-built walls wind and weather tight and to add rigidity to an old house that shakes and vibrates in heavy storms. It gives the house a new construction practice in renovating old houses. It can be done with shingles, either wood or composition, imitation brick siding, stucco, or a single thickness of brick veneer.

When it comes to a roof, it's always good practice to lay a new roof over the old. It increases insulating value and saves the cost of removing the old roofing.

The additional weight of an overcoat of shingles, composition siding, or stucco is carried by the framework of the house, which is plenty strong, except in the flimsiest construction.

Brick veneer, however, calls for a broadening of the foundation to carry the weight and for a liberal use of metal ties driven into the old framework and imbedded in the mortar joints.

For the best job in overcoating sidewalls, apply stiff sheets of insulation to the old walls, then a layer of building felt or good quality paper. Nails long enough to get a solid hold in the old wood are used for shingles or stucco lath applied over this.

Properly applied stucco will greatly increase the stiffness of house walls. Shingles will not add so much. But a brick veneer will overcome almost any lack of rigidity.

If you use shingle siding over old clapboards, you must level up the wall with wedge-shaped strips. However, shingles offer a big advantage in that they do not have to be painted unless you change your mind about color. You can get them pre-painted in a variety of soft hues that will catch the eye.

VALUE OF CREOSOTE Creosote is an old standby as a preservation delaying rot in wood that is in contact with the ground, such as fence posts. A railway tie treated with creosote lasts about 25 years.

And what did the airman in the jet plane see as he climbed above the aluminum buildings and great runways and radiating towers of the military city in the Arctic?

For a moment he must have sighted below from the Eskimo village with its sled dogs roaming among the sod houses and the skin-burling boats upturned on racks.

Then he was out over the Arctic as Odaq had seen it with Peary, as it existed then, a thousand, ten thousand, a million years ago. The military builders had made only a tiny dot of atomic age civilization, lost in the vastness.

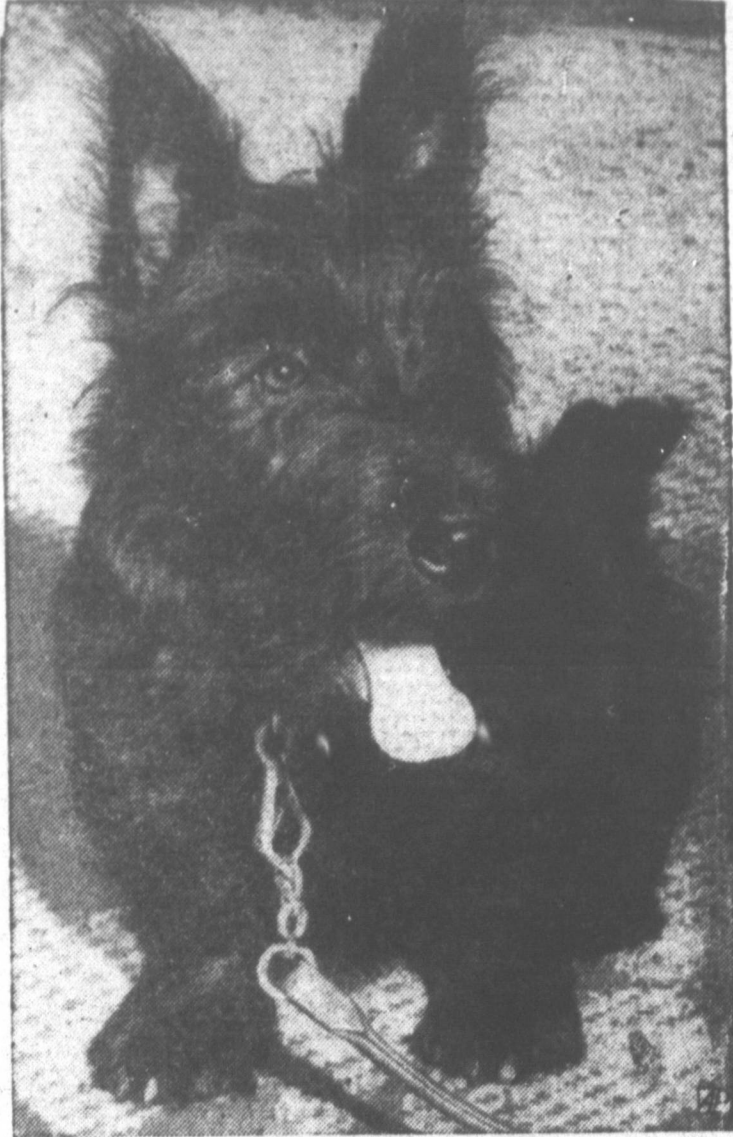

House Destroyed In Shamrock Farm Fire

SHAMROCK (Special) — Total loss of a tenant's house and furniture on the Charlie Palmer farm 12 miles east of Shamrock, was the result of a fire at 11 a. m. Sunday.

Tenants, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Howard, were not in the house at the time the fire started, but hurried to the scene because of the explosion of the kerosene cook stove.

Shamrock's fire department arrived in time to keep the fire from spreading to other farm buildings nearby.

Palmer had arranged the previous Saturday to have butane installed for the tenants by Oct. 1. A new house, he said, will have to be built now for the butane system.

CONVICTS

Schuer told the police about the trio's movements.

Schuer admitted, police said, that the trio stole a dozen weapons from a Bronx gun store last Monday and looted a Bronx bank of $12,670 in a daring daylight holdup the next day.

A vast manhunt had been pressed for the three men since they escaped from Lewisburg, terrorizing a large section of Pennsylvania, they held a family of seven captive for 19 hours while they hid in their home, stole money and at least three cars, and stabbed a private-duty policeman.

New York police, converging on a seventh-floor apartment in Uptown Manhattan shortly after Saturday midnight on a tip that the fugitives were holed up there, found the place barricaded.

The fugitives were surprised in a tryst with three Negro women all of whom were seized and held as material witnesses. The apartment bore evidence of a drinking bout.

Police said an unidentified suitor of one of the women — Arlene Ball, 32 — gave the information that led to the desperadoes' hide-out.

A burst of gunfire — including machine-gun blasts from at least one of the fugitives — met the police after they broke down a door of the apartment.

The Nolen brothers kept shooting until they fell dead. Schuer, hiding under the bed with a nude woman, fired several times but finally yelled: "I'm not going to shoot. I give up." The mattress was shredded by bullets. The two other women hid in the bathroom during the gunplay.

Schuer was booked on charges of homicide, felon assault and violation of the Sullivan (anti-weapons) Law.

He has received a generally favorable reaction in speeches since then defending the donations by friends who backed his 1950 senatorial campaign.

There was some heckling in several places on the money issue, but this was outweighed by the heavy applause for his stand. His theme:

"The fund was never a secret. It was used to pay extra expenses of his Senate office—such as travel for political speeches, mailing and clerical help. He felt these were costs which should not be charged to the government.

"We couldn't have lasted another day but we knew they wouldn't let Old Baldy go. We never lost hope and all of us prayed."

A big master sergeant from California, said the men went without food the entire time although they had plenty of rations.

"We had no water so we were afraid to eat anything," he said.

The sergeant also related how the Chinese thought everyone in the bunker was dead.

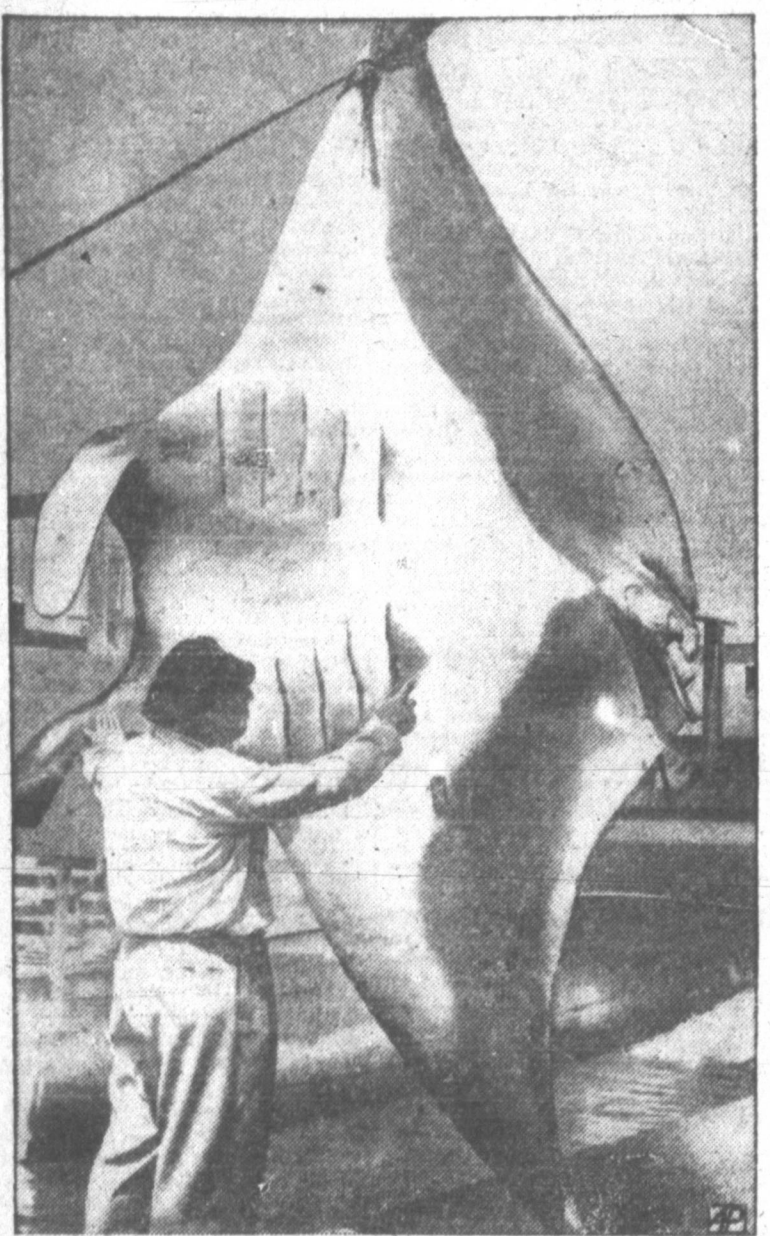

"Logs and stuff were piled in the doorway and after the last Chinese sprayed us with his burp gun they let us alone except for their artillery and tanks. We must have gotten at least 150 direct or near hits."

The only food they touched during the 72 hours was a can of grapefruit juice and a couple of oranges. The men cared for their wounds as best they could.

The private gave a lieutenant in the bunker a blood transfusion from a bottle.

During that first night, the private said, the Reds came up to the bunker every five or 10 minutes. Each time one of them popped his head in the door we let him have it with our carbines. After that we kept quiet but were constantly being hit by either our own or the Chinese artillery and mortars and tanks. One shell came through the aperture in the bunker, but luckily the air strikes missed us.

"All of us were bloody and I think that's what saved us. We were afraid to fire because small arms fire down the slope. After we got in the bunker we knew that Company 'K' had left the hill and now was

H.R.J. Number 38

It's going to be a bargain basement deal this November 4.

All for the price of a single poll tax receipt, you'll get to vote for one of the Gold Dust Twins — Ike and Adlai — plus a raft of state politicians who've already been elected, in fact, by winning the Democratic primaries.

But that ain't all. There'll be a couple of constitutional amendments besides. At least one of them is strictly a dog. It goes by the name "H. J. R. Number 38."

And what is H. J. R. 38 all about?

This is what she says:

"The legislature shall create a State Medical Education Board composed of not more than six (6) members whose qualifications, duties and terms of office shall be prescribed by law. The legislature shall also establish a State Medical Education Fund and make adequate appropriations therefor to be used by the State Medical Education Board to provide grants, loans or scholarships to students desiring to study medicine and agreeing to practice in the rural areas of this state, upon such terms and conditions as shall be prescribed by law. The term 'rural areas' as used in this section shall be defined by law."

Isn't that a little smelly? Let's cuddle up around our roaring air conditioner and talk about it.

There is no doubt that the medical fraternity is under the gun. Fellow name of Oscar Ewing — "Hot Oscar" he is known to those of us who love him — is being paid big dough by the administration to convince the voters they want socialized medicine. Which they don't. Which is what makes Oscar's job so expensive — to the taxpayers.

At one point in his career, Hot Oscar made a deluxe tour of Europe to prove he was right. He bundled up a suitcase of scratch from the public treasury and flew over the ocean to inspect the blessings of socialized medicine in England (a big, beautiful, bankrupt example of socialism in action), Sweden and the Middle European countries and satrapies where medicine is a function of government and the family doctor is an employe of the political party in power.

What Oscar saw set his little heart pounding with joy. He rushed right back to tell us what dull and unperceptive jerks we have been to deny ourselves the manifold blessings of this fine system. He ranted and raved like a madman until the American Medical Association aroused itself from its deep sleep and hired Clem Whitaker and Leone Boxter — a couple of expensive press agents who pocketed a five-figure fee for getting Oscar's plan killed at birth.

Now, the medical profession is not without its faults. In many instances, for example, a definition of "charity" means charging a rich man so much for services as to compensate for the non-paying patients. It appears to us there is not much "charity" involved in the procedure, except from the standpoint of the paying patient.

Nevertheless, the medical fraternity is a good one. It's a rough life and a hard one. The American people seem pretty well pleased with the sort of medical treatment under the free enterprise system.

But, basically, the medical man is dependent upon the state for his right to earn a living. The states — all 48 of them — grant a license; and the power to grant a license is the power not to grant one, which puts the practice of medicine under the direct control of the state.

It is the history of mankind that once the state exercises even a modicum of control, there will be an unceasing tendency to increase that control.

H. J. R. 38 is one of those steps.

A special offer is made: We'll pay for your training if you let us tell you where and how to carry on your practice. Strictly a hoss-trade. It's a variation of the old "security" racket.

The cost of this little item isn't mentioned. Neither is it known how the "students desiring to study medicine" will be selected. Nor does it say how long this indented doctor will be forced to practice in a hamlet prescribed by the state. Nor does the amendment say whether this affair applies to medical doctors or chiropractors, osteopaths, dentists, nurses, veterinarians, laboratory technicians or union-cutters.

It could get to be quite a gang.

But the point is not the looseness of the language nor the unestimated cost of the scheme. The idea is the repugnant one of a medical man trained at the taxpayer's expense and directed in his private life by the dictates of the state.

The Physicians Placement Service of Texas says that in the past three years physicians requesting aid in locating in Texas were more than double the number of communities requesting a physician. There doesn't even seem to be an excuse for the proposed amendment.

We have not noticed any stampede of Americans to flee to those enchanted lands where medicine is provided as a function of the state. But there is rather a problem created by the number of Europeans who are trying to leave their native lands where this blessing is so abundant.

This, we believe, is an indication that the American people are getting a splendid degree of excellence of medical care under a system of free enterprise. It is not perfect; but it is better than any other system.

It's every American's duty to keep the hand of government out of medical practice. The doctors must lead the fight, but they should have every man's support.

H. J. R. Number 38 in strictly a sucker deal. If you're in the mood for voting again most anything — that would be a good place to start.

Better Jobs

By R. C. HOLMES

Bewildered Superintendents

Few people are more confused than superintendents of public schools.

They are successful in fooling the majority of people into believing that they are educators. But I have never known one who was a real educator.

As an example of their mental ability and how practical they are, I want to cite an illustration in a registered letter I received from a superintendent of schools in a metropolitan city for 16 years whose operating budget was $22,000,000 a year.

He was voted out of office and now he wants a job. He had a day-dream and he evidently classifies me as a sucker from the article appearing in McCall's magazine.

In this letter he relates how the territory in which he has been superintendent is growing and that there will be great need for additional schools and that for $300,000 he can build the buildings that will take care of 275 pupils.

He figures that parents would pay $15 a week for kindergarten pupils and $25 a week for 175 the fourth, fifth and sixth grade pupils and that this would bring in revenue of $200,000 a year for 10 months.

Then he figures that he could get $25,000 for six weeks summer course for 10 students, bringing the total income a year to $225,000. He lists the total expense per year of $125,000, but he does not include anything for depreciation or taxes, although he does put in contingencies of $28,100.

He lists the salary of the director at $12,000 a year, but he doesn't want a straight salary, he wants a share of the profits because he is 50 years old and believes he is entitled to a share of the profits even if the man who puts up the money would take all the risk.

Of course, there wouldn't be any profits because there is no chance of getting many parents to pay $25 a week for schools when they think their children are getting an education free from tax supported schools and they are compelled to pay for them whether they use them or not.

After paying school taxes they do not have the money left to pay $25,000 a week for each of their children.

Then again, this man would not be at all qualified to head a school that really was interested in education because he has been so confused for the last 16 years that he has been connected with an institution based on the theory that might makes right and that the state has a right to do things that are immoral for an individual to do.

School superintendents do not have much respect for the integrity and judgment of the public.

I once had a superintendent of schools say that I should be for him because he bought the paper that I published that was then costing him 65 cents a month. It is hard to tell whether the man who wants to buy my support for 65 cents a month or the man who wants me to put up $200,000 to furnish him a job on the belief that I could make $100,000 a year profit takes me for the bigger sucker.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORAN, M.D.

By a seeming coincidence, three letters were received the same day from correspondents who wished to know what harmful effects could result from taking too much iodine.

As the questions imply, taking iodine like water is not an entirely safe procedure. Continuation of the taking of substances containing iodine beyond a certain point (one which varies from person to person) results in a condition known as iodism.

Iodism may produce skin rashes, excessive mucous secretion in the nose and throat, headaches, inflammation of the eyes, and other unpleasant signs. On the skin, pimples, hives and boils are likely to develop.

If the iodine preparation is still continued after such symptoms develop, it may lead to anemia, mental depression, nervousness, sleeplessness, and similar general disturbances.

Perhaps even more important is the danger that excessive taking of iodides will light up, or cause to become active, a latent tubercular infection which may be otherwise under control.

It is certainly not fair, however, to say that iodine can lead only to harmful effects, since it is useful in the treatment of a number of conditions. Perhaps its most important contribution has been in the control of goiter.

Today, there are not nearly as many people with enlargement of the neck from goiter as there used to be simply because of the widespread use of iodized salt.

One might wonder why this has not caused more cases of iodism, but the reason lies in the fact that the amount of iodine present in salt is so exceedingly small.

The use of iodized salt for the prevention of goiter goes back many years to studies carried out in Michigan, where it was found that school children in counties in which iodine was practically absent from the drinking water showed an unusually high proportion of goiter.

IODIZED SALT IS SAFE

In one of these counties (Houghton), in fact, over three-fifths of the children showed thyroid enlargement. This was contrasted with another of the four counties studied in which only about one-fourth of the youngsters were affected with enlargement of the thyroid gland (goiter), and this was the area in which the water had the largest amount of iodine.

In spite of remarks at the beginning of this column of the danger of too much iodine, the fear that iodized salt, or even natural salt containing iodine, might be harmful is not justified.

This question has been thoroughly studied and evidence of harm to the body has not been found. In iodine and its salts we have another example of a highly valuable substance, but one which should be treated with respect.

Fair Enough.... NY Times Publisher Got Visa To Russia As Red Cross Agent

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

This will tie up the loose ends of the matter of Arthur Hays Sulzberger's journey to Moscow during the war attended by James Reston.

Actually, Sulzberger is the publisher of the New York Times. Reston is a correspondent on the Washington staff of the Times.

Harrison Standley, who was the American ambassador in Moscow at the time, wrote in his memoirs and told me verbally that Sulzberger went as a director of the International Red Cross and that Reston was represented as his secretary.

Sulzberger has accused me of writing some "errors" but when I closed in on him for a bill of particulars he took evasive action.

Standley wrote in his memoirs that Roosevelt called him: "Mr. Arthur Sulzberger of the New York Times is a director of the International Red Cross. He desires to visit the Soviet Union in the interest of the society. It is requested that you obtain the necessary permission and visas."

He wrote further that when he came home, Roosevelt told him that Sulzberger had said he desired to go to Russia in any capacity.

"And so," says the admiral, "he came as a director of the Red Cross."

Pursuing the facts I asked Mr. Sulzberger for a copy of this report to the International R. C. or any other report to any other department of the R. C. In reply, Sulzberger said:

"Although at present I am a member of the board of governors of the American Red Cross, it is their responsibility rather than mine (even though I was picked out by you for special reference) to make a statement, if any, correcting some of the errors in the articles. I did not make any report to the International Red Cross and was never associated with it. During World War II I was a member of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross. On my return from Moscow in 1943 I made an oral report to that committee."

I wore two hats on that trip, one of which was that of the American Red Cross on which I worked industriously. However, there was no doubt in the mind of anyone who assented to my trip that I was the publisher of the New York Times and represented it, nor did anyone believe that Scotty Reston was my secretary as you suggested."

I then asked Sulzberger to specify my "errors."

"Inasmuch as you made a long trip, presumably at great expense, and made a report to the Central Committee of the American Red Cross in 1943, I think that report should have been in writing, not oral," I wrote him. "Don't you think this sort of report makes your mission seem casual and secondary to your mission as publisher? Will you please state whether you did ask Standley for accommodations for your secretary and whether he states truly in saying you brought Reston in as your secretary? Would you have been allowed to go to Russia only as publisher of the New York Times?"

Mr. Sulzberger did not answer any of my questions. His reply was this: "I have no desire to enter into any argument with my friend, Admiral Standley. I have not been privileged to read what he wrote, nor would I wish to challenge the accuracy of it if I had."

Admiral Standley and the Rev. Leopold Braun, American priest who spent 13 years in Moscow, both wrote of frightful extravagance, negligence, and corruption in distribution by the Russian government of American E. C. and American relief supplies in Russia, almost none of which ever reached any of the ragged, famishing wretches for whom it was intended by the American people.

It is my comment that an oral report on this situation by Mr. Sulzberger was insufficient. I still await particulars of the alleged errors. I note a resemblance to the Success Secrets

By ELMER WHEELER

Americans are a nation of gadget makers and gadgets. We're fortunate victims of our inventors' genius for creating comfort and convenience.

Mrs. Clyde Morgan will agree that her insuranceman husband is a genius. Except for his persistent spare time pursuit of development of a novel and useful gadget, they might not be well on the road today to owning their own business.

Clyde Morgan and his wife decided 10 years ago that something was needed conveniently located inside automobiles on which to serve food and drinks. A tray under the dash board seemed to them the most likely solution.

The difficulty lay in development of a salable product suitably constructed to meet all necessary requirements. Problems of utility and ease of installation as well as design and appearance had to be considered. Every minute detail underwent repeated and careful analysis. Morgan was determined there would be no flaws in his invention.

The result is a 16 inch wide aluminum tray which pulls smoothly from under the dash. When not in use it folds flat and is a plexiglass handle give it the appearance of additional dash board trim. The unit can be installed by the car owner or by auto accessory and car dealers.

Gadget maker Morgan has hit the jackpot. The tray is already in production in Dallas and a three man sales force hard at work.

Chalk one more success up to the nation's desire for convenience and our inventors' constant efforts to satisfy them. Here's a product that should please all motorists and be a Sizzler Seller's delight.

"HARRIMANISM" (Columbus Ohio State Journal)

So now we have Mr. W. Averell Harriman coming into Ohio telling the voters whom they should select for United States Senator.

The administrator of the Mutual Security is getting a little bolder, we'll say that. In 1950 he made a speech to the CIO in Texas calling for the defeat of Sen. Robert A. Taft who was seeking re-election to the Senate from Ohio that year.

Two years later he invades Ohio and uses much the same speech against Sen. John W. Bricker, who is seeking re-election to the Senate this year.

In Texas two years ago, Mr. Harriman told the CIO in effect that re-election of Sen. Taft was just what Joe Stalin wanted. Now he says that if Sen. Bricker's march were to prevail, "the Kremlin would be successfully on the march all over the world."

And this, of all people, from William Averell Harriman, who, as ambassador to Russia in 1945, cloistered himself with the Soviet foreign minister, Vyacheslav Molotov, to write the Yalta Pact. It was Harriman's Yalta Pact that extended the Soviet Empire westward to Berlin and eastward to Korea and the Pacific Ocean.

Such statements as Mr. Harriman directed at Mr. Bricker are, of course, wholly irresponsible. But what would one expect from the man who was the candidate of the American for Democratic Action and other left-wing elements who now finds it possible to support a national ticket which has Sen. John F. Sparkman of Alabama as its vice president nominee?

The voters of Ohio have their answer to such poppy-cock as Mr. Harriman emits when he re-elected Sen. Taft by a majority of more than 130,000. That should be a reasonably good augury for Sen. Bricker. To label Sen. Bricker as "one of the most un-American men in our country" is one of the greatest absurdities of all time. Those who moan about "Stalinism" might do well to examine "Harrimanism."

And, by the way, we wonder what W. Averell Harriman is doing these days to earn his salary as Mutual Security Administrator—not that his salary is important to him.

Times smear campaign against Joe McCarthy accusing him of indulging in wild charges but never specifying which charges were "wild."

National Whirligig... Irrepressible John L. Lewis May Support Demo Candidates

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — John L. Lewis, the irrepressible but influential president of the United Mine Workers of America, may support the Democratic national ticket for the first time since 1936, when he contributed an unnecessary half million to FDR's rout of the Republicans.

This reinforcement of the Stevenson-Sparkman slate by 400,000 miners and their families scattered through eighteen states may be extremely valuable, if the race should develop into the photo finish that some forecasters predict.

This vote could be decisive in such important areas as Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois, Ohio, as well as in Wyoming and Colorado.

The Nation's Press

BUREAUCRATS SEE DREAM COMING TRUE (Austin (Minn.) Herald)

There erupted onto page one of the national newspaper the other day two stories which never should have gotten that big a play. The fact that they did is due to one thing—secrecy.

In one story the Federal Trade Commission charged that an international oil cartel—five Americans and two foreign companies—controlled the amount of production and the prices of most of the world's oil.

In the other, a Senate subcommittee accused the Army of holding back information on this country's scandalously expensive air base program in North Africa.

The $189,000,000 report on the oil business had originally been labeled secret by the government. Some of it was finally shaken loose after pressure by members of Congress. But a lot was blue-penciled and will forever remain secret as far as the public is concerned.

The air base story, which has been smoldering and sputtering for some time, hit page one the other day because the subcommittee said the Army hadn't been telling the public everything there was to know about the fantastic costs of the North African bases.

If in both cases—oil and air bases—the public had been kept regularly and adequately informed of the situation, there wouldn't have been enough news left in the stories to warrant putting them on page one.

This secrecy business—as far as the government is concerned—is not a new thing, but it is a growing thing. And it's getting a little frightening.

The bureaucrats' dream—a government which can function free from the annoying light of publicity and consequent public reaction—came a bit closer to reality recently when the President, by executive order, extended military security to all federal departments.

A certain amount of such security is, of course, necessary. But a blanket arrangement covering all departments can make it awfully tough for people to find out what's going on in Washington, where the expert fact-finders can easily get bogged down.

Some of the biggest governmental scandals in recent years have occurred under the thick, protective blanket of official secrecy that has been whittled away to do with military security.

"HARRIMANISM" (Columbus Ohio State Journal)

So now we have Mr. W. Averell Harriman coming into Ohio telling the voters whom they should select for United States Senator.

The administrator of the Mutual Security is getting a little bolder, we'll say that. In 1950 he made a speech to the CIO in Texas calling for the defeat of Sen. Robert A. Taft who was seeking re-election to the Senate from Ohio that year.

Two years later he invades Ohio and uses much the same speech against Sen. John W. Bricker, who is seeking re-election to the Senate this year.

In Texas two years ago, Mr. Harriman told the CIO in effect that re-election of Sen. Taft was just what Joe Stalin wanted. Now he says that if Sen. Bricker's march were to prevail, "the Kremlin would be successfully on the march all over the world."

And this, of all people, from William Averell Harriman, who, as ambassador to Russia in 1945, cloistered himself with the Soviet foreign minister, Vyacheslav Molotov, to write the Yalta Pact. It was Harriman's Yalta Pact that extended the Soviet Empire westward to Berlin and eastward to Korea and the Pacific Ocean.

Such statements as Mr. Harriman directed at Mr. Bricker are, of course, wholly irresponsible. But what would one expect from the man who was the candidate of the American for Democratic Action and other left-wing elements who now finds it possible to support a national ticket which has Sen. John F. Sparkman of Alabama as its vice president nominee?

The voters of Ohio have their answer to such poppy-cock as Mr. Harriman emits when he re-elected Sen. Taft by a majority of more than 130,000. That should be a reasonably good augury for Sen. Bricker. To label Sen. Bricker as "one of the most un-American men in our country" is one of the greatest absurdities of all time. Those who moan about "Stalinism" might do well to examine "Harrimanism."

And, by the way, we wonder what W. Averell Harriman is doing these days to earn his salary as Mutual Security Administrator—not that his salary is important to him.

Times smear campaign against Joe McCarthy accusing him of indulging in wild charges but never specifying which charges were "wild."

Richard Nixons To Visit In Amarillo

People of the Texas Panhandle will have opportunity to see a woman who may well soon be the second lady of the land. She is perhaps the youngest and certainly one of the most attractive women to be a Mrs. Veep. A five-foot-five-inch reddish blond with brown eyes, she is, of course, Mrs. Richard Nixon, who will be in Amarillo Friday, Sept. 26 with her husband, Senator Richard Nixon, Republican nominee for vice-president. The Nixons will arrive in Amarillo by plane at 6 p.m. Friday, and will leave for Tulsa two hours later. Senator Nixon will speak at the Tri-State Fair grounds. It has often been said that a man is only as strong as his wife. If this statement be true, then Mr. Nixon should have the strength of many. For Patricia Ryan Nixon, known to her friends as Pat Nixon, rose on her own merit all through her early life. She worked her way through the University of Southern California by doing research, grading papers and working in department stores. Upon college graduation she taught commercial subjects at Whittier California High school.

OUR TOWN

by Wanda Campbell

This is going to be a busy week for the Fred Barlow family. They'll leave Pampa about Oct. 1 for a visit at his home in Morrisburg, Ontario, before sailing for England. He is being sent to Chester by the Cabot Co. The Barlows expect to be in England about three years with no visits home. Therefore, they hope to see all their relatives before leaving. Mr. and Mrs. Barlow and their two daughters, Margaret and Devon, are Canadians. Their son, Ricky, was born in Quincy, Mass., and Bill was born in Pampa this summer. Going to England would seem like "going home" for a Canadian family, but Mrs. Barlow explains that they feel closer to the United States. Canadians read U.S. magazines and use the same currency, etc. They have a house ("Braemar") waiting for them and since it is furnished, they are storing their furnishings here. But Mrs. Barlow is taking play pens and other baby equipment. They are expecting changes in their mode of living, of course, but they feel two of the great problems, shortages of food and clothing, are solved. They are taking a supply of warm clothing for the children because corduroy and other heavy material, which they are accustomed to wearing, is not available in England. And when they want to, the Barlows can order food parcels from a Boston firm. They plan to visit other countries while living in England, and Chester itself is an old, historic city, built during the Roman occupation. The city stands on the River Dee, and they have learned a lot about it by talking to the George Franks and Jim Edminister who also lived there. But now, after months of waiting, they are getting anxious to see England for themselves.

David Lemley Is Honored On Birthday

WHITE DEER (Special) — Mrs. Lee Lemley honored her son, David, recently on his 4th birthday with a party. The four-layer cake was decorated in pink and blue with four candles in flowered holders. Attending were Janice, Becky and Jimmy Jack Freeman, Joy Dean and Ronnie Dyer, Patsy and Caroline Silkwood, Julie Puckett, Scotty, and Mrs. L. A. Puckett, R. Y. Corlier, E. E. Hickeyson, Jim Tom Freeman, W. J. Fellows, J. G. Silkwood and Mrs. Lemley. I will oblige. I disapprove of heavy smoking and necking, and I think that a girl who warns me'll leave home if she can't indulge in them is terribly mistaken. And now that my disapproval has been added to this mother's, where are we? Nowhere I think. Perhaps the problem here is that this mother is so absorbed in her own thoughts and feels about heavy smoking and necking she has neglected to persuade her child to say what she thinks and feels about them. Nobody goes in for extravagant action without some thought and feeling back of the action. If we want to persuade them to change the action, we have to first persuade them to change the thought and feeling that produces it. It is as futile to attack the action as it would be to lose your temper over a disconnected telephone. At 16, it's not so easy to start repairing breakdowns in communication lines into children's minds and hearts. People of this age are jealous of their right to mental privacy. If we have not maintained an open line into their minds and hearts, they may not be willing to suddenly open up, just because we find it convenient to demand it. So I have to suggest this mother call her local Community Chest for the address of a family agency that is skilled in interpreting people to one another. It is always intelligent to recognize that anger destroys our ability to communicate with a child, and if we can't dispose of it, seek the mediation of some one who doesn't feel it. In her present state of mind my reader doesn't really want to know that children are most defiant when they are most terrified. That's the bad thing about anger: it won't let us think about anyone but ourselves. It leaves no room for appreciation of the terror of being young. We have no eyes to see how scary it is to be 16 and doing things you know nobody approves. To be out of control, on your own, with no familiar chart, no familiar voice to say, "That's right, you're doing fine." Anyone who knows anything about young people knows how desperately unsure of themselves they are as they go venturing into the parentless world of sex competition and "crowd" pressures. Half the time when they seem so bumptious they are really smothering the impulse to call back to us, "Mother, what's this

Gold Sox Move Two Games Ahead

Seixas Upsets Aussie Netter

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Because of his stunning straight-set upset victory over Australia's Frank Sedgman yesterday V.C. Seixas, captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team, looms today as a major threat in the international tennis picture.

Seixas attributed his 6-4, 6-4 triumph in the men's singles finals of the 26th Pacific Southwest Tourney to his service. He connected consistently with his first ball, a high hard twist which the favored Sedgman, the defending champion found hard to handle.

It was the first big tournament setback for Sedgman, rated as the world's top amateur since early last year.

National champion Maureen Connolly of San Diego came through as expected dropping one set before winning the women's singles crown from Doris Hart, Miami 6-4, 3-6, 6-1.

Altogether it was a sad day for the Australians. Besides Sedgman, three other of his countrymen went down to defeat in 11 matches.

Two of them, Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad bowed to Herb Flam of Los Angeles and Hugh Stewart of Pasadena for the doubles crown. The Yankees came from behind after surviving match point to 2-1, 6-9, 9-7, 1-6, 9-7, 6-2.

The fourth Australian, Thelma Long and teammate Louise Brough, Beverly Hills, Calif., lost the women's doubles crown to Miss Hart and Shirley Fry, Akron, O. The score — 6-4, 6-3.

The capacity crowd at the Los Angeles Tennis Club gave Seixas a tremendous ovation after his great victory. It was the second triumph for the Philadelphia native Sedgman in six meetings in their most recent previous encounter Sedgman won in straight sets in a Davis Cup match.

Longhorns Most Impressive Of SWC Teams In Season Starts
By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor
The Southwest Conference pushes deeper into a super-charged intersectional football schedule this week, playing from the Pacific Coast to North Carolina, but with a couple of games in Dallas headlining the bristling card.

Southern Methodist makes its bow in the campaign Friday night against Duke, heralded Southern Conference power. The next night, in the same place — the Cotton Bowl — Texas A&M clashes with Oklahoma A&M.

The conference did well in its first week of play although only five of the seven members opened the season. The circuit hung up three victories in four intersectional games, dropping the big one, Texas Christian, the conference favorite, failed against Kansas of the Big Seven, losing 13-0.

LONGHORNS IMPRESSIVE
Texas was most impressive in a 35-14 licking of Louisiana State of the Southeastern Conference, Baylor put on a garrison finish to whip Wake Forest of the Southern Conference, 47-14, and Arkansas eked out over Oklahoma A & M of the Missouri Valley Conference, 22-20. Texas A&M, called the weak sister of the league, was mildly amazing in beating highly regarded University of Houston of the Missouri Valley League. The Aggies won, 21-13, with the best offense of all, passing and running for 386 yards.

Rice also will be opening the season Saturday night. The Owls get a tough one to start with, top — Texas Tech, which last week clouted West Texas State, 48-7, in a Border Conference game.

Texas Christian, depressed over its shut-out at the hands of Kansas, journeys to Los Angeles to play UCLA. That team opened the season last week with a 13-6 victory over Oregon.

Arkansas plays University of Houston at Fayetteville, furnishing two members of the conference. You can get the comparison two ways — what Texas A&M does against Oklahoma A&M and what Arkansas does against University of Houston.

Baylor Explosive
Texas demonstrated that it had what it figured would be necessary to win — a good quarterback. T. Jones came into the fray to their brilliant victory over Louisiana State. Jones scored two touchdowns and passed for one while turning in a top job of generalship.

Baylor came up with those explosive plays in beating Wake Forest. Each touchdown followed a long pass completion that carried the Bears from deep in their own territory to the other end of the field. C. O. Brocato, a defensive specialist who is earning the reputation of being the greatest man in a clutch in the conference, booted a field goal over only 14 seconds to go to give Baylor its thrilling victory.

Ray Graves was the man of the moment in Texas A&M's decision over the Aggies. The magnificent Arkansas fullback, teamed with Lamar McHan, versatile quarterback, in beating Oklahoma A&M by disappointing margin.

TCU didn't do very well with its strategy of starting Ronald Clinkscale, a sophomore, instead of Ray McKown, the boy who led the Frogs to a conference championship last year. Clinkscale's big game jitters was responsible for Kansas getting off on the winning foot. McKown returned to his old stand and did quite all right but the cause already was lost.

Accuse Umpire Of 'Choking Up'
By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Dykes, fiery manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today accused American League Umpire Ed Hurley of "choking up in the clutches" and called him a "Yankee lover."

Dykes, whose Athletics dropped a 1-0 decision to the New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium yesterday, charged that Hurley's "atrocious" strike call to batter Joe Astroth with the bases loaded and only one out in the ninth inning cost him the game.

"He (Hurley) took us right out of the game with that one call," Dykes said. "That was the worst call I have ever seen in my entire baseball career. Everybody in the park except Hurley saw that the pitch was a ball and he just choked up in the clutch, that's all. He's a Yankee lover."

The cause of Dykes' flare-up occurred in the top of the ninth. The Yankees were leading, 1-0, with New York's Allie Reynolds and Philadelphia's Harry Byrd engaged in a thrilling pitching duel. The Athletics, held to two hits through eight innings, suddenly became beligerent in the ninth and filled the bases on two walks and a single by Sherry Robertson with only one out.

Reynolds' first three serves to Astroth were called balls. One more ball and the score would have been tied 1-1.

Astroth took a called strike. The next pitch appeared high to one-crouching batter Astroth started to trot to first but plate umpire Hurley made a delayed "strike two" call.

The Philadelphia catcher came back to the plate yelling. Coaches Halley Moses at first and Tom Oliver at third charged down the lines to berate the umpire. The entire Athletics bench, with Dykes in the lead, came storming out of the dugout.

During the next five minutes Dykes and company let Hurley have everything in the book. It had no effect on the umpire, of course. He already had the last word, "The strike call stood."

Reynolds went on to retire Astroth, and the next batter, pinch-hitter Allie Clark, on two pitches. In calling Hurley's decision the worst he ever saw, Dykes said: "He must have known he was wrong. I called that fellow every name in the book but he didn't throw me out."

Wednesday Night Wrestling Features Double Main Event
Buck Weaver, a junior heavyweight who has been out of the circuit for a long while, returns to Pampa Wednesday as one of six of the double main event program being promoted by Howard Vineyard.

Weaver, from Terre Haute, Ind., will meet Benito "Little Flower" Gardini in a one-hour, or two out of three fall first main event starting at 8:15.

The second main event will be a wild tag team match with Frankie Hill Murdock of Waxahachie and Jack O'Reilly of Sidney, Australia, teaming up against Kinju Shibuya and Sesue Oyama, both of Japan. It will also be one hour or the best two out of three falls.

The matches will be held at the Southern Club. Reserved seats will be on sale at the Sportsman's Store all day Wednesday or may be had by telephoning 2635. Tickets will be on sale at the Southern Club at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The card definitely has an international flavor with only two Americans on the card, and should be one of the best of the season.

Tyler Nearing Playoff Crown
AUSTIN (AP) — The Big State League season is likely to end tonight. Tyler needs only to beat Austin to bring the campaign to a close.

Tyler nosed Austin, 3-2, last night to take a three-up lead in the final playoff series.

The East Texans exploded for all their runs in the first inning, leaping on George Socha for five hits. Austin pecked away for a run in the third inning and got the other in the seventh. And the Pioneers put runners on first and second in the last of the ninth with only one out but a great throw by Stan Karpinski that nipped Don Mason at the plate when he tried to score on Ed Wayne's single choked off the rally. Manager Tom Jordan of Austin then fanned to end the game.

Last night's game was played under protest. Austin charged that White, playing first base for Tyler, used an illegal mitt. Austin said the mitt had webbing in it and that's against the rules.

Quarterbacks Meet Tonight
Pampa Quarterback Club members will see the movie of the Harvesters 1952 season's opener last Thursday night at El Paso. The Harvesters won, 37-27.

The meeting, second of the year, will be held in the Sam Houston auditorium starting at 8 o'clock. Also present at the meeting will be the football coaches, who will review and preview last week's action and this week's game.

Only a sure miracle will prevent the Brooklyn Dodgers from representing the National League in the 1952 World Series against the New York Yankees or Cleveland Indians.

The storied Bums of Flatbush are assured of finishing in no worse than tie for first place when the curtain falls next Sunday.

Manager Charley Dressen's pennant-starved athletes moved to within one victory of clinching the flag yesterday. Joe Black, making his first start of the season, pitched the Dodgers to an 8-2 victory over Boston while the runner-up New York Giants dropped a 6-2 decision to Philadelphia.

The victory boosted Brooklyn's lead over the magic men on 1951 to six games. Both teams have six games left to play and one Brooklyn triumph or Giant defeat will nail down Brooklyn's first pennant since 1919.

Meanwhile, Allie Reynolds kept the Yankees in the driver's seat in the American League race. The Chief, gunning for his first 20-victory season, pitched the Yanks to a 1-0 decision over Harry Byrd and the pesky Philadelphia Athletics. The Indians, behind Bob Lemon, wrested to 7-1 victory over Detroit tigers to remain 1 1/2 games astern.

Reynolds permitted only three hits in posting his 19th victory but he had no easy sailing. He walked eight and almost gave up the ghost in his seventh inning. He struck out seven batters and pitched the sixth and seventh but died on third. The A's loaded the bases with one out in the ninth but couldn't pierce Reynolds' armor.

Byrd surrendered only five hits but the Yanks bunched them along with a pair of walks in the sixth innings to score the game's only run. Yogi Berra singled Joe Collins across from second base with the payoff marker.

Lemon turned back the Tigers on four hits in gaining his 21st consecutive victory. He was aided by the big wheel for Cleveland, batting in four runs on his 27th homer and a double.

Brooks Break Tie
The Dodgers and Braves were locked in a 2-2 duel until the eighth when the Braves scored twice. After two were out to lock it up, Roy Campanella singled home the tie-breaking run.

Black limited Boston to three hits and deserved a shutout as Carl Furillo's error in the fourth led to both Braves runs.

Tommy Meyer parceled out nine hits in besting the Giants and squaring his record at 13-13. The Phils clinched matters in the fourth when Bill Nicholson rocked Jim Hearn for a three-run homer.

Home runs were the deciding factors in other National League games.

Ted Kluszewski and rookie Jim Greengrass clouted homers to account for all of Cincinnati's runs in a 4-3 triumph over Pittsburgh. Bill Serena smashed a two-run homer in the seventh to lead Chicago to a 2-0 decision over St. Louis. Stan Musial accounted for both Card runs off Bob Rush with a barrier blow in the first inning.

In other American League games, Billy Pierce pitched Chicago to a 4-1 victory over St. Louis, and the Boston Red Sox scored five runs in a ninth inning to vanquish Washington, 7-3.

Accuse Umpire Of 'Choking Up'
By JOE REICHLER
NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Dykes, fiery manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today accused American League Umpire Ed Hurley of "choking up in the clutches" and called him a "Yankee lover."

Dykes, whose Athletics dropped a 1-0 decision to the New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium yesterday, charged that Hurley's "atrocious" strike call to batter Joe Astroth with the bases loaded and only one out in the ninth inning cost him the game.

"He (Hurley) took us right out of the game with that one call," Dykes said. "That was the worst call I have ever seen in my entire baseball career. Everybody in the park except Hurley saw that the pitch was a ball and he just choked up in the clutch, that's all. He's a Yankee lover."

The cause of Dykes' flare-up occurred in the top of the ninth. The Yankees were leading, 1-0, with New York's Allie Reynolds and Philadelphia's Harry Byrd engaged in a thrilling pitching duel. The Athletics, held to two hits through eight innings, suddenly became beligerent in the ninth and filled the bases on two walks and a single by Sherry Robertson with only one out.

Reynolds' first three serves to Astroth were called balls. One more ball and the score would have been tied 1-1.

Astroth took a called strike. The next pitch appeared high to one-crouching batter Astroth started to trot to first but plate umpire Hurley made a delayed "strike two" call.

The Philadelphia catcher came back to the plate yelling. Coaches Halley Moses at first and Tom Oliver at third charged down the lines to berate the umpire. The entire Athletics bench, with Dykes in the lead, came storming out of the dugout.

During the next five minutes Dykes and company let Hurley have everything in the book. It had no effect on the umpire, of course. He already had the last word, "The strike call stood."

Reynolds went on to retire Astroth, and the next batter, pinch-hitter Allie Clark, on two pitches. In calling Hurley's decision the worst he ever saw, Dykes said: "He must have known he was wrong. I called that fellow every name in the book but he didn't throw me out."

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Dykes, fiery manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, today accused American League Umpire Ed Hurley of "choking up in the clutches" and called him a "Yankee lover."

Dykes, whose Athletics dropped a 1-0 decision to the New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium yesterday, charged that Hurley's "atrocious" strike call to batter Joe Astroth with the bases loaded and only one out in the ninth inning cost him the game.

"He (Hurley) took us right out of the game with that one call," Dykes said. "That was the worst call I have ever seen in my entire baseball career. Everybody in the park except Hurley saw that the pitch was a ball and he just choked up in the clutch, that's all. He's a Yankee lover."

The cause of Dykes' flare-up occurred in the top of the ninth. The Yankees were leading, 1-0, with New York's Allie Reynolds and Philadelphia's Harry Byrd engaged in a thrilling pitching duel. The Athletics, held to two hits through eight innings, suddenly became beligerent in the ninth and filled the bases on two walks and a single by Sherry Robertson with only one out.

Reynolds' first three serves to Astroth were called balls. One more ball and the score would have been tied 1-1.

Chucha Had Fun... Hank Writes His Column From Bed After Afternoon At Play

By HENRY McLEMORE CURRIVACA, Mexico — This is being written in bed as a result of my spending an afternoon at a Mexican street carnival. It was my first attendance at such a fair and I sincerely hope that I'll never get crazy enough to go to another one. I simply can't seem to get it through my head that I have reached an age where there are some things I shouldn't do any more.

American Dollar, Communism Behind Heated Greek Politics

By FRED ZUSY ATHENS (AP) — American dollar aid and communism are the issues at the bottom of Greece's fermenting politics. They've been the chief ingredients in the steaming brew for the last five years — since President Truman in 1947 asked Congress for 400 million dollars for aid to Greece and Turkey.

Buffalo Going On Sale As Herds Are Outgrowing Range

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is getting ready for its annual sale of buffalo, the "vanishing" herd which now is outgrowing its range. Several hundred of the shaggy bison which once roamed the western prairies by the million will be sold this fall at national refuges operated by the Fish and Wildlife Service.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS Sealed proposals addressed to the County Judge and Commissioners of Gray County, Texas, will be received at the office of the County Clerk, Pampa, Texas, until 10:00 a.m. October 1, 1952, for furnishing all necessary materials, machinery, equipment, superintendence and labor for the construction grading, drainage, mass course and paving for 4.63 miles of lateral road.

Animals Take Movie Lead

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The casting director for a forthcoming picture is going quietly batty these days. Reason: all the main players are animals and they all talk. When I was told about the film I thought my informant was pulling my leg. But he assured me that this was the real McCoy and that the picture, "First of April," will start soon at 20th-Fox. I was invited to come out and talk to director Al Rogell, the perpetrator of the project.

"Speaking of values, man, for such a small piece of meat, ain't you giving me an awfully big piece of your mind?"

A DATE TO REMEMBER Don't Forget...

Saturday, October 4, Is An Important Date For The Qualified Voters Of Pampa WHY This date affords the voters an opportunity to express themselves on some proposed amendments to the City Charter.

What Do The Proposed Amendments Provide?

- 1. Abolishes the Ward System. Wipes out the artificial boundary lines which divide out town into opposing sections with the resulting jealousies and friction.
2. Gives each voter an opportunity to participate in the election of all four commissioners and the mayor.
3. Election of two commissioners on alternate years—thus providing experienced leadership in city government at all times.
4. Makes each Commissioner as well as the Mayor responsible to each and every citizen rather than to only a limited part of them.

Why Do We Need These Changes?

- 1. Present system obsolete — of all the other Cities in Texas with population of 12,000 to 75,000, there are only three that use the system of election that we have.
2. Proposed plan is more Democratic — at present you can only vote for one Commissioner. Under proposed amendment each voter would have a voice in the election of all four.
3. Provides Equal Representation. Representation should be based on people, not on geographic property. With arbitrary ward divisions, small wards are always a minority, with no voice in the selection of a majority of the Commission.
4. Proposed Plan More Equitable. Should we start today with four equal wards equal in property assessments and population, unequal expansion would bring inequities tomorrow.

This Election is Important to You and the Future of Pampa. We invite you to study these Amendments and we urge you to vote YES October.

LET ALL VOTERS VOTE IN ELECTING ALL MEMBERS OF CITY COMMISSION!

Signed, F. M. Culberson, Chairman (Paid Political Advertising)

Russ Pressing Synthetic Fuel Development

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scraps of information out of Russia have convinced the top U.S. government synthetic fuels man that the Soviet is working hard to overcome one shortage it would have to whip if it were planning an all-out war — a shortage of liquid fuels. Russia, says Dr. W. C. Schroeder, assistant director of the Bureau of Mines, undoubtedly has more natural and synthetic liquid fuels at its disposal than Germany ever had and is paying increased attention to synthetics.

TEX EVANS Says

I had the pleasure of seeing the XP-300, Buick experimental car, at a special showing in Amarillo Sunday afternoon. To say it was a pleasure is a gross understatement.

The car is as revolutionary in engineering changes as it is in its super-streamlined, functional exterior. It is powered by a 335 h.p. supercharged valve-in-head V-8 engine designed by Buick. Top speed? No one knows. Seats adjust hydraulically forward and back, up and down. The steering wheel adjusts to the driver's size. Built-in jacks help with the "flat" problem. Even the radio antenna extends automatically when the set is turned on.

Dash instruments tell a complete story. Tachometer, stop watch, manifold pressure, engine and transmission oil levels, and battery gauges are a few of the different instruments.

This story could go on and on, but you will have to see the XP-300 to realize what a guidepost it is in the future of automotive design — truly an "Experimental Laboratory on Wheels." The car will be on display all week at the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo. It is easy to see why Buick still builds better automobiles.

I was inclined to agree with my grandson when he said, "Granddaddy, it sure is a hot-rod isn't it?" It will be worth a trip to the Fair to see the XP-300.

BUSINESS REVIEW AND FORECAST

Des Moore Tin Shop Offers Winter Heating

Epperson's Offer Best In Magnolia Oil And Gasses

For service that is best, products that are the best in dependability, and adequate equipment to serve you, have your service station needs filled at Epperson's Magnolia Service Station, located at 120 S. Cuyler. Their motto is "Drive right in — service is our business." And the Eppersons really do offer the top notch services that are obtainable in the service station business.

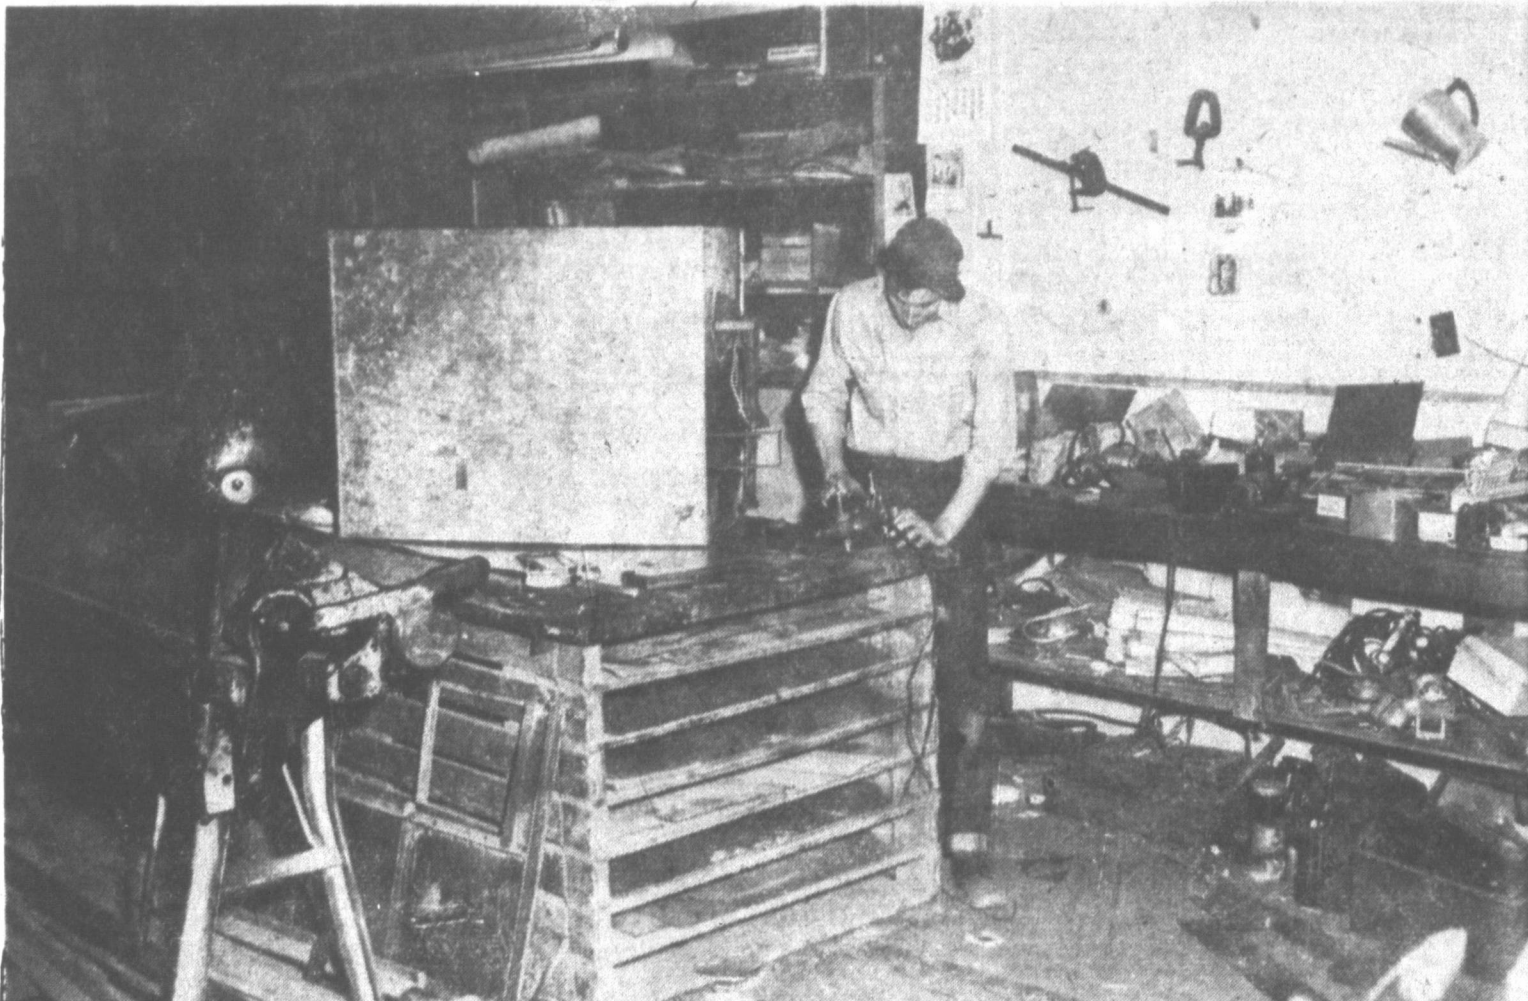

They offer truck service to you at the lowest prices possible. And as for time they realize that trucks are on the road to make money and if a truck has to sit and wait all day to get a flat fixed, the truck won't be making many pay loads. When you have a flat drive to Epperson's and let them service your truck in record time.

Eppersons also offer applications and honor courtesy cards. Now these cards will save you quite a few moments of precious time. All you have to do is drive in and let them fill the old buggy, present your courtesy card and drive off on your way. You will have no trouble getting a card and the moments saved by purchasing one of these cards will save you time for further driving or shopping. Stop in at Eppersons Magnolia Service Station located at 120 S. Cuyler and apply for your courtesy card.

Eppersons have a nice free parking lot across the street that will make it convenient for you to have them wash and lubricate your car, and then park it across the street for you. The parking lot is right downtown and is close to shop-in facilities. If you get tied up with business or shopping worries you will have one less worry when you know that while you have been shopping, Eppersons have cleaned and serviced your car in the finest way possible with dependable products, and has parked it right across the street.

Eppersons are in the business to serve you and that is what they mean when they ask you to come by and let them service your car for you with the best known products available—Magnolia products. When you see the sign of the flying red horse you may rest assured that you will get the best in service, products that have had best in refining and friendly courteous service. Friendliness means a lot when you trade with a firm or small business, and Eppersons believe in friendliness personified.

DES MOORE SPECIALIZES IN TIN, OTHER SHEET METALS—If you are in need of these winter heating systems, let Des Moore do the job for you with less actual cost to you. He has three decades of experience and can help you by putting quality materials into the job. Chilly nights and days are slowly creeping up, so don't be caught with a cold spell coming and you not having your heating system in. Des Moore can fix you up by giving you a fast, economical job. Call 102 or drop by the rear of Sullins Plumbing Company and let him bid on your heating job. You will be thoroughly satisfied.

For Winter Heating Systems, Let Des Moore Tin Shop Do The Work For Less

When you mention tin to someone they usually don't get a very pretty picture or enticing thoughts concerned with the subject but in their everyday life they are associated with the actual tin itself or with mechanism in buildings that are associated with tin. To the rear of Sullins Plumbing Shop is a tin shop that has become pretty well known not only for the expert workmanship done there but the fellow who does the fine work himself. His name is Des Moore. You've probably heard about him. His business is pretty well established so that he can give you expert workmanship for less money. He's been in the business for about three decades now and in that length of time he should know quite a bit about his chosen work. His work covers a number of accomplishments that are quite beyond the ordinary man. And if you have ever or could talk to Des Moore and let him tell you of his adventures in his work you would readily assume that he really knows his business. The tin business is a mighty important little business and without it you would be hard-pressed for a winter heating system. And with Des Moore doing the job you will find, too, that he realizes the economy of using the best materials that can be had.

The chilly days and nights are slowly creeping up on us and if you don't have your heating system in or connected up yet, call Des Moore Tin Shop, located in the rear of Sullins Plumbing Co., and let him do the job economically and mechanically better for you. Des Moore has a number of different types of heating systems, whether you wish a floor furnace or wall heating system he can fix you up for less money.

Remember that it isn't too late for you Pampa homeowners to do something about preparing house and garage for winter. Those pesky small leaks and sweat-points in a building are warnings of big things to come. The bigger they are, the more expensive they become when it's really an emergency. Before all the late-comers get all the same idea, why don't you call Des Moore and have him do something about fixing up that house and garage before winter sets in for sure.

Remember, too, that it isn't quite so easy for your sheet metal man to get all the supplies he needs for your job. It might take a little time to get ready for the job. The earlier you start, the more assured you will be of a good and thorough job of repair.

Des Moore is an expert at guttering, roofing, skylights, air conditioning, furnace repair, tanks, gin and mill work, anything that means or contains tin in the job. Des Moore is the man for you to call. He can bid on your job if you will just call 102. Let him show you what a thorough job he can do for you for less money. And, as you know, we all are looking for a way to save money on a job that has to be done. When you realize the years of hard work and experience that goes in to becoming a top grade tin-smith as Des Moore is, you will be surprised at the low economical prices he charges to do your work.

Des Moore would like for you to come down and visit him. Although he's a pretty busy man, he'll take you around and show you the intricacies of the sheetmetal business. You'll wind up with a new respect and appreciation for the man who handles your air conditioning, heating and general sheet-metal work. It has taken years of work to perfect his system of assuring you a thorough job, and Des Moore wants you to be thoroughly satisfied with your heating system.

Fat remains in the stomach longer than most other foods.

About one-fifth of all life insurance in the United States is owned by women.

Some kinds of May flies achieve mature form in the evening, mate, lay eggs and die before morning.

Lean meat contains about 73 per cent water.

Patronize your Pampa businessmen by letting them bid on your jobs because they are in Pampa and will return your business. And remember for the perfect work in any tin-smith work and especially winter heating system you can't beat Des Moore for low, economical prices and expert quality workmanship. And as for the materials you can't beat them because Des Moore uses the best in tin materials.

Other metals he specializes in are cooper, galvanized iron, stainless steel, aluminum and other types of metals. If you need an expert workman to fix your gutter work, heating systems, roofing and skylighting work just call 102 or drop by the rear of Sullins Plumbing Co. and you will find that Des Moore can give you the service and workmanship that you are wanting. It doesn't cost much more to have the best and when you have Des Moore doing the job for you you are getting the best in every way.
