CANADIAN (Special) — Canadian Chamber of Commerce has joined the fight in the cause of the Santa Fe employees whose terminal is Canadian and who would have to move to Waynoka should the freight terminal be closed. It would mean moving away of 100 families, most of whom live here.

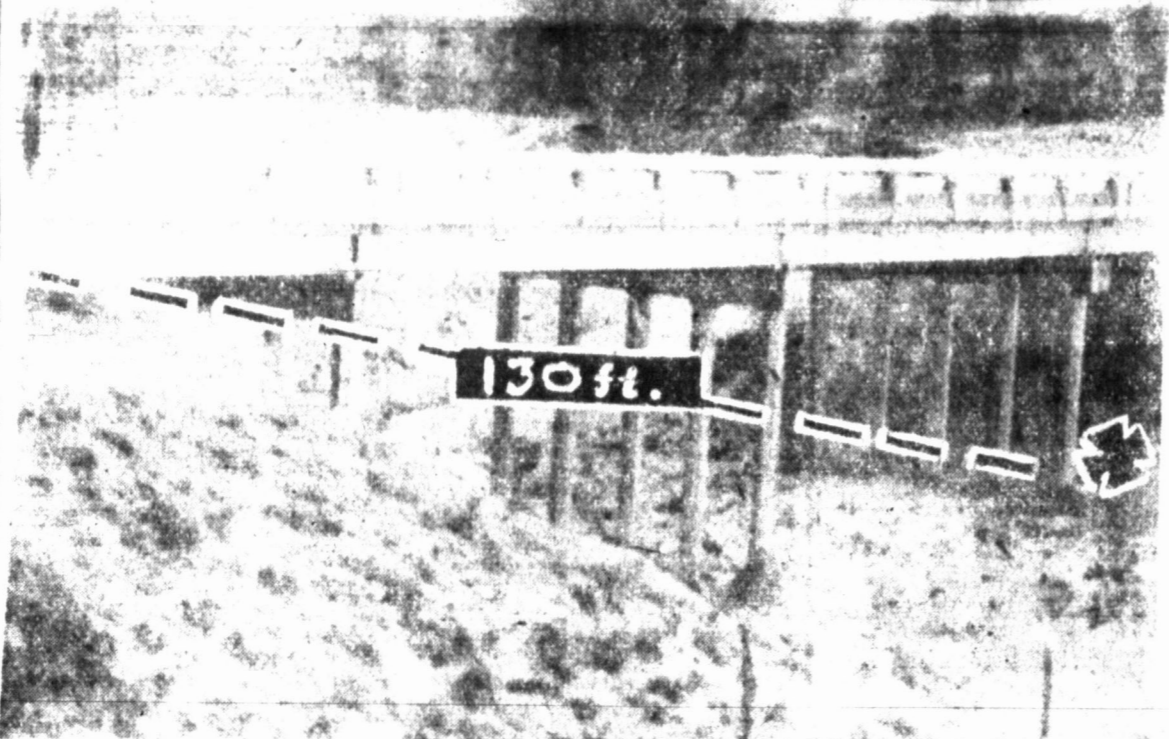

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen meeting in Tulsa last week, which was held on record as opposition to the Canadian terminal. Much of the opposition was based on the thought of running 200 miles from Amarillo to Waynoka without changing a based on safety.

It has been brought out in discussions of the subject that crew of car inspectors maintained here had removed more than 1000 cars from trains, during 1951, with defects too hazardous for trainmen to handle them for further distances.

These defects, it was shown, included broken couplers cracked wheels, broken flanges and broken draw-bars.

The commerce body, dedicated to the welfare of the citizen, is supporting the railroad men in their desire to continue Canadian as a terminal and inspection point.

On a special Railroad Committee appointed by C. C. Fisher, Ben Ezzell, Jerry McElreath and Herial Fielder.

DEATH LEAP — Hurtling 130 feet through the air across the north fork of Red River after leaving the Clarendon Highway, car of Benjamin H. Helton, 64, smashed into an embankment and came to rest almost under the bridge shown above. Instantly killing its driver. The position of the car made it invisible from highway until it was accidentally discovered Friday afternoon. Arrow shows the approximate line the Helton car took as it left the road, knocked down two saplings and finally came to rest. Below is shown a close-up of the demolished 1950 model car Helton was driving when he met his death. His battered body had to be dragged from the front seat by investigating officers. (News Photos)

Boyle's Column . . . World Trying Vainly To Recall Beautiful But Lost Yesterdays

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — This is going to be a lecture. So hold on. It is a poor philosopher's summation to your ears.

How are they in native land after a brief trip of what he found in the world linked, these separated yet joined residents of Milan and Kinnon N. I first at home and abroad a disturbing trend, a homesickness for the past. Too many people want to live in the world of yesterday. Instead of hopefully wanting what lies ahead, they want to sit and view what is bygone through the beautiful fog of time.

Lipsticks Makes It Better . . . Kissing Can Be Healthy As Well As Fun, Says MD.

By ALTON L. BLAKSLEE
AP Science Reporter
NEW YORK (AP) — Kissing is usually safe, from the health view, a checkup of germs on human lips shows.

It's safer for the man if the girl wears lipstick. The two-second kiss is safer for both than the lingering kind.

Don't Cause Sickness
Almost all the germs that are transferred by a kiss are the type that don't cause sickness.

These are findings in a study made on human volunteers by Arthur H. Bryan, Baltimore bacteriologist, reported in a magazine, Drug and Cosmetic Industry.

Bryan said that especially to the male volunteers who "would rather kiss a blonde" but in the interests of science pressed their lips against plates of nutrient agar or against sterile glass slides.

He counted the germs transferred by the kiss, that grew in the nutrient medium. The results, he says, just show trends, not infallible figures.

Lipstick Cut Number
The number of colonies of bacteria transferred by a kiss ranged from almost none to more than 250 at times.

But 95 per cent of these germs were nonvirulent, not disease-causers.

If a woman was wearing fresh lipstick, the number of germs on her lips was much less than without lipstick. Men who put on antiseptic lipstick cut their germ count down to almost zero for several hours.

As for duration of a kiss, the regulation Hollywood 10-second kiss transferred about twice as many germs as a short, two-second affair.

Smoking Lowers Count
Recent smoking seemed to lower the bacterial count somewhat, especially if the lips were dry. Dry lips gave a purer kiss than moist.

The effect of alcohol drinks before a kiss was inconclusive. Beer appeared to raise the germ count, hard liquor to lower it.

Bad breath was accompanied by high germ counts. The germ count was higher upon rising in the morning, dropped after tooth brushing and face washing. The count may vary from day to day, influenced by air temperature, the season, altitude, foods and other conditions.

Kiss Of Death
There is a real threat of a kiss death if the kissed partner has diphtheria, acute TB, scarlet fever, strep throat and other ailments. The study didn't give tips on how to recognize such persons, if they weren't hospitalized.

Bryan concludes that "kissing can be not only a pleasant but harmless pastime if ordinary lip and oral hygiene is practiced, irrespective of the frequency or how long the contact lasts."

★ WASHINGTON COLUMN ★ President-Elect Faces Array Of Urgent Foreign Queries

By PETER EDSON
NFA Washington Correspondent
(Third In A Series)

WASHINGTON (NFA) — Important questions of foreign policy demanding the immediate attention of the new President will begin to rock him in the eye before he can get caught up on the sleep he lost during the campaign.

He must be constantly briefed on progress of the Korean war and the cease-fire negotiations and let the weight of whatever influence he may have felt on decisions which the UN makes on Korea.

On Dec. 15 the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council will meet in Paris. It will be attended by America's top diplomatic and military officials. The council will set European defense goals and military policies for next year. The new U. S. President will have to make known his ideas on these subjects.

Tied right in with this is the fact that the U. S. Mutual Security act expires June 30, 1953. This is the basic legislation which authorizes the spending of $5 billion on foreign arms aid and military-economic support for this year. It breaks down like this:

Area	Military Aid	Economic Support
Europe	$3,128,000,000	$1,282,000,000
Near East and Africa	499,000,000	51,000,000
Asia and Pacific	451,000,000	203,000,000
Latin America	52,000,000	20,000,000
Palestine refugees		60,000,000
Arab refugees		70,000,000
Point Four, all countries		68,000,000
Korean relief and reconstruction through UN when operative		45,000,000

MUST DECIDE FATE

What the new President and new Congress will have to decide is whether these programs are to be abolished, cut back or expanded, and how much.

The Reciprocal Trade Agreements act authority expires on June 12, 1953. If foreign aid is cut back, there will be strong arguments made that foreign countries must be permitted to earn more dollars. That would mean liberalizing U. S. import restrictions.

The U. S. Export Control act, by which strategic materials have been denied Soviet Russia and other countries behind the Iron Curtain, expires on June 30. Along this same line, the emergency suspension of imports on foreign-produced copper expires Feb. 15. Similar exemptions on lead and zinc expire March 31, on metal scrap June 30.

All these matters call for early recommendations by the new President, to determine what his administration trade policy will be. There are also a number of important international agreements hanging fire on which the new President may urge action or allow to die.

IF THESE AREN'T ENOUGH

First is a North American frequency broadcasting agreement. It involves Cuba, Mexico, Canada, Dominican Republic and Haiti. Then there are six treaties of friendship, commerce and navigation awaiting ratification. They are with Colombia, Denmark, Ethiopia, Greece, Israel and Italy.

The highly controversial United Nations Declaration on Human Rights and the Genocide Convention have been awaiting U. S. ratification or rejection since 1949. Authorization for U. S. participation in the UN Children's Emergency Organization is expiring. A group of International Labor Organization agreements awaits U. S. action. The U. S. Commission for the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—UNESCO—wants authority to receive private monetary gifts.

If all this isn't enough to keep the New Man busy, authority to lease ships for the movement of migrants from Europe is expiring. So is authority under which the U. S. has been aiding fugitives from behind the Iron Curtain, under Wisconsin Congressman Charles J. Kersten's bill.

This brings up the whole question on the future course of the American psychological cold warfare, the Voice of America and similar foreign-information programs. They must all be given new directives to support the new President's foreign policies in combating communism abroad.

Linda Finds Food Helps Hold Hubby

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

How can a girl keep her husband happy, if he's one of Hollywood's handsomest glamor boys? "Easy," says Linda Christian, the green-eyed actress who is still married to screen star Tyrone Power after four highly publicized years. "I feed him."

Here in New York for the opening of "The Happy Time," in which she plays her most important role to date, Linda doesn't look especially like a homebody.

Born in Mexico and educated in Venezuela, Palestine, South Africa, Holland and Italy, Mrs. Power looks like a young and modernized version of Cleopatra. But, as she points out, looks aren't everything. Lots of girls have allure, but how many, for a year. The rest of the time instance, know how to cook and Linda presides in their California home, working up a reputation as a model hostess with the "I've gathered up recipes in film colony, every country I've lived in, and Ty just loves them all."

A devoted and conscientious mother, she takes her year-old daughter, Romina, along on all her tours. The baby's name commemorates the city where Linda met Ty and where they spent their honeymoon—Rome.

Linda was born Bianca Rosa Walter, the daughter of a Dutch oil executives whose business took him to most of the far corners of the earth. She studied medicine and planned to become a surgeon, until offers of screen contracts interfered with her studies.

She went to Hollywood, but didn't meet Tyrone Power until she took a vacation trip to Rome. Linda caused some comment, even in Hollywood, by her unusual anniversary gift to Ty—an un-draped statue of herself which Mrs. Power looks like a young and modernized version of Cleopatra. But, as she points out, looks aren't everything. Lots of girls have allure, but how many, for a year. The rest of the time instance, know how to cook and Linda presides in their California home, working up a reputation as a model hostess with the "I've gathered up recipes in film colony,

New President Faces Knotty Coplon Case

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The headaches which the new administration will inherit in January will almost certainly include the knotty question of what to do about former government girl Judith Coplon, twice convicted of spying for Soviet Russia. Two appeals courts have said she is entitled to a retrial, but for entirely different and some what contradictory reasons. The Supreme Court last January turned down pleas by both the government and Miss Coplon that it take over and point a way out of the legal impasse. A Legal Nightmare In the present situation, many lawyers regard the whole matter as a legal nightmare which may eventually be dropped entirely. At the Justice Department, where Miss Coplon once worked, the question of starting the prosecution all over again "continues under study," as it has for nearly a year. Meanwhile, some authorities on security in the government are known to be strenuously opposed to any new trial entailing further public airings of how internal security secrets are kept, and the methods used by the FBI to counter espionage. This group takes the position that getting another conviction that would stick to the extent of putting Miss Coplon in prison, would not be worth what it would cost in additional courtroom disclosures of jealously guarded government files. All this involves questions of high policy, and the Justice Department right now is not pioneering in the policy field, with a new Republican leadership taking over in about 10 weeks. So the incoming administration will probably have to make the decision. Miss Coplon, now 30, meanwhile lives quietly in Brooklyn with her attorney husband, Albert H. Sokolov, who was associated with her defense. They were married after her convictions and have a 9-month-old daughter. She is at liberty under a $50,000 bond.

HUMAN CANVAS—Eva Fischer, 24-year-old Yugoslav artist, has started a new fashion fad in Rome. Using a paint which resists soap and water for at least a week, she executes modernistic sketches on the backs of her pretty clients. The young woman, above, is having "The Man of Her Life" sketched on her shoulders, for all to see when she wears evening dress.

Predicted He'd Win ... Oklahoma Druggist Plugs Ike Since 1946, Finally Meets Him

PONCA CITY, Okla., (AP) — Just before the election a Ponca City druggist bought a full page in a newspaper not to sell his pills but to make a last prediction that Dwight D. Eisenhower would be elected president. It culminated a one-man campaign T. J. Cuzalina started back in 1946 to get Ike in the White House. During that time he predicted (in paid for newspaper space) Eisenhower would run only if he was convinced he was needed; Sen. Byrd (D-Va.) would support him; Truman would not seek another term in 1952, and that the general would be nominated on the first ballot. And now that his man is in, "It was a tremendous victory," Cuzalina says, "but now I'm through with politics. I can go back to just selling pills and get politics out of my column. I'm going to leave this country in the good hands of Eisenhower and devote my column to humor. "The only thing I want out of this election is maybe getting to play a little golf with Ike. After he won I just sent him the same greetings I put in a wire when he was nominated. I got ziggy dog! Congratulations. T. J. Never Let Up From 1946 on, Cuzalina never once left up in his drive. An unwavering faith, plus a phenomenal ability as a self-educated publicity man, resulted in slogan contests on behalf of the general, letters to all the nation's druggists to promote his candidacy, distribution of Ike buttons and a daily column in a local newspaper. Friends had the persouable, sharp-witted druggist, son of an Italian immigrant family, as the original Eisenhower booster. Cuzalina's first effort for Ike came after a group of his cronies were mulling over the problems of the day at his soda fountain and the discussion got around to the man they'd like to see be the next president. Eisenhower, then still in Europe, was mentioned and the more Cuzalina thought of the general, the better he liked the idea. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he told the fellows. "I'll plug Ike in my column and we'll order 5,000 Ike buttons just to see what happens." Dee Donohoe, Ponca City real estate man, agreed to have the cost of the buttons. They shelled out $8.50 apiece. And into Cuzalina's daily column, "Just Poppin' Off," which he pays for and uses to discuss the events of the day, went the first of thousands of words on behalf of Ike. "After a while Donohoe lost interest at kept up the campaign," Cuzalina recalls. "After Eisenhower eliminated himself in 1948, Cuzalina set about booming the general for 1952. He started working through the nation's druggists, compiling lists of 80,000 names and sending letters to his colleagues urging formation of Eisenhower for president clubs. He started mailing his column to 250 newspapers and promoted a contest, giving $1,000 for the best slogan. Mrs. Joe Kanewski of Galveston, Tex., won with "get right with Ike." Then came more buttons, more letters and more words in his column about Eisenhower. He estimates more than 10,000 letters were sent out from his store. His only help was a couple of high school girls working part time. The incoming mail was just as voluminous. He received more than 100,000 letters and thousands of clippings from newspapers and magazines. Cuzalina won't say how much he's spent on behalf of Eisenhower, but it's all his money. He accepted no contributions. "I'll tell you one thing, though," he said. "I've spent more than $2,700 just for 3-cent stamps." After the convention, Cuzalina met Ike for the first time. The druggist took five days off from his work—the first time that he can remember taking a vacation—to play some golf at Denver. The general, was there playing a little golf too. "I didn't know how to approach the general so I asked one of the fellows in the club house," Cuzalina related. "He told me to just go right up and say hello. So I went up and said hello. And the general said, "Doggone it, hello there." I told the general I sure hoped he'd win and he said, "I think I'll do all right."

Cabinet Possibility To Be Forum Guest

FORT WORTH (AP) — Rep. Clifford R. Hope of Kansas, often mentioned as President-elect Eisenhower's choice for agriculture secretary, will be a guest at the second annual Congressional Forum here Friday. Twelve Texas congressmen will be on hand at 2:30 p.m. to answer questions. Sponsored by the East Texas, West Texas and Fort Worth Chambers of Commerce, the forum is to provide an opportunity for men and women to express views and attitudes to congressmen, a chance to discuss their ideas. Hope is ranking Republican on the House Agriculture Committee.

Southern Governors In Conference Today

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Southern governors gathered here Saturday to talk education and politics. Gov. Shivers of Texas, chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, indicated the chief executives might spend some time re-examining the political scene in their first get-together since the election. Governors of 16 states are expected to participate in the three-day conference beginning today. Of these, seven states went into the Republican column in the Nov. 4 presidential election. Texas was among those which favored the GOP.

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — The lady and the gentleman were jammed bumper to bumper in a "v" bidding for a parking place. The lady, in the rear, refused to give up. The gentleman, ahead, was adamant. Patrolman John O'Sullivan took over from Solomon. He opined the gentleman should get the place, since he was in the correct position for backing into the place, but he gave the lady a chance. O'Sullivan sent them around the block again, the winner of the sprint to get the spot. The gentleman won.

(Continued From Page One) American policies during the transition period. To Larger Session From the private session the plan is for the two men to go immediately to the Cabinet Room and join in a second and larger session with their advisors. In this meeting are scheduled to be Secretary of State Acheson, Secretary of Defense Lovett, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder, and W. Averell Harriman, foreign aid director. On Eisenhower's side are expected to be Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, his representative to executive departments of the government, and Joseph M. Dodge, his special representative to the Budget Bureau. Eisenhower's headquarters at Augusta, Ga., indicated a week ago that the general would not assume responsibility for government decisions prior to Jan. 20 because he has no authority for making such decisions. Persons familiar with President Truman's views say that he is fully prepared to make all his own decisions and has no thought of asking Eisenhower to assume responsibility for them. Doesn't Want Reversal The practical responsibility which the administration would like the general to take is that of a voice in the shaping of foreign policy decisions to the extent that Truman may avoid taking any step which would later be reversed or radically changed by the new administration. The President's State and Defense Department advisors and presumably Truman himself feel that the best way to accomplish this is to get Eisenhower's future secretaries of state and defense into those departments by the end of this month so that they can look over the shoulders of Acheson and Lovett as policies

U. S. To Have Lower Military Budgets

PROVIDENCE, R. I., (AP) — Defense Secretary Robert Lovett said Saturday "we are now entering a period of lower military budgets." Lovett said the major capital investments and the heaviest portion of purchases have been largely authorized and funded. Then he added: are being formulated. It is felt here that competent executives would be able informally — if authorized by Eisenhower — to indicate lines of desirable action or limitations on policy without formally committing the Eisenhower administration for the future.

Diabetes Tests To Be Run Here During Week

Pampa Lions Club, in cooperation with local schools, will send out letters to parents this week asking them to permit free diabetic examinations for school children. The tests are tied in with the observance of National Diabetes Week, today through Nov. 22.

Tests are to be conducted in both local hospitals. Sugar content is determined in the laboratories from urine samples.

Should these samples prove positive for diabetes, parents will receive another letter giving test results and suggesting that the family doctor be consulted.

According to Dr. Joe R. Donaldson, local physician and president of the Lions Club here, there are an estimated one million diabetics in the nation. And, he says, for each known case, another is unknown or untreated. This estimate would bring a total of two million cases in the country, or approximately one for every 75 persons living in the United States.

Diabetes is described as a disease resulting in the dysfunction of the metabolism of the sugar or a misuse by the body of its sugar.

Donaldson added that diabetes tends to run in families, and that if a child is found to be diabetic, parents should be examined also.

All local doctors have agreed to conduct examinations free of charge during the week for any person in the area.

Canadian Lions Observe National Education Week

CANADIAN (Special) — Canadian Lions Club program for the weekly luncheon meeting Friday was in keeping with National Education Week.

A. H. Breazeale gave a short talk on the magnitude of our public school system and its importance in keeping the nation and the world on an even keel. He stated that the three "R's" might well take on the added meaning of "rights, responsibilities and relations (with the world)".

Members of the high school homemaking department then presented a play, "Girl from Brazil" depicting the "good neighbor policy" and showing how easily people can draw wrong conclusions about people from other countries because of knowing too little about them.

Those taking part in the play were Roberta Schoenhals, Beth Bryant, Dona Ramsey, Carol Kay Richards, Donna Abraham, Earline Blackmore and Glenda Hill. They were under direction of Principal Harvey Truitt.

Face $11,500 Campaign To Do Good Guiding Tenet For Local Salvation Army Unit

For 78 years the Salvation Army has followed one principle—"to do about doing good."

Organized by William Booth in the east of London in 1876, the welfare organization has now become world-wide, operating in 97 foreign countries, the United States, its territories and the District of Columbia.

The fundamental purposes of the army, as broken down by Capt. William Hough are a) to bring spiritual training and knowledge to those in places where others do not go, b) to bring the teaching of Christ to those in the darkest places on earth and c) to "clothe the naked, feed the hungry and give drink to the thirsty."

From this the Salvation Army has realized one of the greatest welfare organizations the world has ever known. The work of the group touches local communities — (Pampa) — as well as the distant countries.

The Pampa corps is now in the midst of the 1953 fund campaign with a reported 20 per cent of the $11,500 goal reached.

Money received is used for a multiple of activities — both spiritual and material.

Three Departments

Basically there are three departments, the corps department, welfare department and the young peoples department.

Last year there were over 800 evangelistic services held (street services, indoor services, adult group meetings, and home visitation services), more than 500 youth guidance classes held in addition to 110 grocery orders, 7016 garments and 536 pairs of shoes given to local families and 258 lodgings, 368 meals, 464 garments and shoes given to transient and homeless persons.

An almost unknown activity of the Salvation Army is its aid to prisoners — including visitation while in prison and a follow-up service after they are released. More than 1000 men are paroled to the Salvation Army in Texas. A recent census of the Salvation Army parolees shows that less than 1 per cent ever commit further crimes — a record unmatched by any other organization.

Carson County 4-H To Be Given Awards

Working with the army are local committees composed of men and women and effort to aid the Army in its work.

Pampa board of directors include Howard Vineyard, president, Calvin Whitley, vice-president and Mildred Lafferty, secretary-treasurer.

Serving three-year terms are Mrs. E. G. Hughes, H. A. Doggett, B. R. Nuckols, Howard Vineyard, Calvin Whitley and Coy Palmer.

Serving two year terms are Mrs. Hazel Jay, Billy E. Davis, Aaron J. Meeks, Ivey E. Duncan, Vera Leard, James McCune and Donald Cole.

A. A. Schuneman, Roy Chisum, Irvin Cole, W. I. Gilbert, Mildred Lafferty, Lester Mason, Homer L. Craig.

Wayland College Group To Pampa

A deputation from Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, will have charge of both morning and evening services today in the Church of the Brethren.

Reason for the absence of Rev. Lyle Albright, pastor of the church, is that he is attending a district conference in McPherson, Kan.

CONDITION OF SALVATION

Repentance is a condition of salvation. The command to repent is not a new command. It was required of the Jews, Isa. 55:7; Ezek. 18:20. John preached repentance, Mt. 3:12. While the Savior of men was on earth he preached repentance, Lk. 13:35. On the day of Pentecost, Peter proclaimed repentance as one of the requirements of remission of sins, Acts 3:28. Paul shows that the command is a universal one, Acts 17:30.

Sorrow is not repentance. Sorrow of the world is not repentance. Sorrow of the world worketh death, 2 Cor. 7:10. This is a sorrow of grief resulting from the consequences of sin. Pharaoh is an example, Ex. 9:27-35. It is a sorrow of the loss of self respect. Saul is an example, 1 Sam. 26:21.

Godly sorrow is not repentance. Godly sorrow is sorrow for sin committed against God. It grieves over sin because it is sin, Ps. 51:4. It is wrought by the word of the Lord. Peter sorrowed at the Lord's word, Lk. 22:61,62.

What then is repentance? It is not sorrow, not even Godly sorrow, but a change produced by Godly sorrow. Repentance is a change of will and results always in a changed life. Examples of repentance may be found in the following passages: Mt. 21:28-30; Lk. 15:11-24; Mt. 12:41.

What are the fruits of repentance? David confessed, "I have sinned greatly," 2 Sam. 24:10. Unselfishness is a fruit, "He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none," Lk. 3:11. Honesty is another fruit, "Exact no more than that which is appointed you," Lk. 3:13. Still another fruit of repentance is contentment, "Be content with your wages," Lk. 3:14. Re-stitution is a fruit of repentance, Lk. 19:1-8.

Why repent? "For God shall bring every work into judgment with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil," Christ will judge the world, Acts 17:31. Except we repent we will perish, Lk. 13:3,5.

GRECE-BOUND — Maurice Drouillard, 32, Pampa radio engineer-operator, is scheduled to leave Nov. 29 for a Voice of America job at the United States Relay Base, Salonika, Greece. A Pampan for five years, he will be overseas for the next two years and can be transferred from base to base on short notice. His wife and two children will accompany him. (News Photo)

Pampan's Journey Will Take Him Close To Russia's Iron Curtain

By ED NASH
From Pampa, Tex., to a point within 100-150 miles of Soviet Russia's Iron Curtain—that's the journey a Pampan is scheduled to make 13 days from now.

For Maurice Drouillard, 32, of 521 N. Yeager, has accepted a two-year job with the Voice of America at the United States Relay Base, Salonika, Greece.

On the eastern shore of the Aegean Sea, Salonika is south of the Greco-Bulgarian border, a portion of the Iron Curtain. Its population is approximately 300,000.

An engineer-operator for five years at the KFDN transmitter east of town, Drouillard said his duties with the U.S. State Department's VOA will be much the same they have been in Pampa.

Here he has taken tape recordings of network and local shows (for rebroadcast) and maintained the transmitter and allied equipment.

Scheduled to leave Pampa Nov. 29, Drouillard will travel to Washington, D. C., where he expects to remain a week while his papers are put in order. From there he will go to New York to pick up his family and fly to Salonika.

Obviously excited, though restrained, about his proposed change in locale, Drouillard said his wife, Betty, was alternately anticipatory and "afraid of what will happen." He has two youngsters — Steven, 11-2, and Donna, 5-2.

Programs Made In U.S. Most VOA programs are made in the United States, he explained, and are transmitted from Eastern cities to overseas relay stations which, in turn, beam them into Iron Curtain countries. Salonika is such a relay station.

First interested in communications work at the age of 13, Drouillard took a correspondence course with the National Radio Institute, Washington. With this training he was able to get a job as repairman of communications gear for his 40 months in the Army.

The willingness to meander and wander may be the result of an Army service, for he was stationed in Ireland, England, Italy, Africa and various points within the continental U.S. during his tour of duty.

After his discharge, he attended Tyler (Tex.) Commercial College for a year with G. W. Osborn, with whom he had served three years in the Army and who is now chief engineer at the KFDN transmitter. Through Osborn he got his present job in Pampa.

Reaction In A Hurry Drouillard got the idea of working for VOA last March when a Pampa friend received a notification of employment possibilities in it. Without any particular hope of further developments, he submitted an application.

From that time a collection of papers and forms flowed to him from Washington. In a rush came a Civil Service form, a fingerprint form, an overseas form and an "order for physical."

Meanwhile, a member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was checking — in his hometown of St. Joseph, Mo., in Kansas where he had lived a short while, in his Army records and in Pampa.

Even Coy Palmer, co-owner of KFDN, was pulled into the act. He was roused out of bed early one morning, Drouillard said, to answer an FBI man's questions.

And while Drouillard was with the National Guard in Ft. Sill, Okla., last summer, he was called back to Pampa for a personal interview with Hugh Collins, VOA representative. A government liaison plane flew him here for the one-day round-trip jaunt.

Still More Forms Asked unofficially over the phone three weeks earlier whether his station would be acceptable as his station, he was notified officially by letter during the first week of this month that he had the job.

And more forms came to be filled out, including those testifying he had had smallpox, typhoid and typhus shots.

Drouillard is very optimistic and enthusiastic about the job, for the "only thing you have to worry about is how close you

In the past years it has been a difficult problem for the school girl to keep her wardrobe in tip-top condition and still participate in the many activities which are an important part of her social life.

In order to achieve a well-groomed, immaculate appearance, cleaning bills have been enormous and so much time has been spent in laundering, pressing and spot removal on the winter wardrobe.

However, the new synthetic fibers offer a solution to this time-consuming problem. Some of the newer synthetics such as Acrylon, Dacron, Dynel, nylon, Orlon and Vicara have remarkable qualities for easy care. They are moth-and mildew-proof so that coats, suits, dresses, sweaters, and socks presents no problem.

The new appearance of a garment lasts longer because of its resistance to wrinkling in wearing. This gives freedom from frequent pressing yet a fresh, well-groomed look can be maintained throughout a long school day.

A variety of texture and performance is possible through the blending of synthetics with natural or other man-made fibers. Therefore, the same fiber may become a cool filmy sheer or be turned into fluffy napped winter warmth to suit the season and the purpose.

It is important to know the specific brand of synthetic and natural so that the washing and care can be determined. The label in a ready-made garment or on a bolt of material should clearly state these facts so that you need not take the clerk's word.

Resistance to and easy removal of soil and stains do not mean that garment should be allowed to become badly soiled. Wash frequently by hand or machine in soft water. If you do not have soft water it may be "conditioned" with a softener for the sudsing and gray cast left by soap curds in hard water. Use a soap or a detergent in water as hot as the hands can stand and wash white nylons separate from colored garments as it absorbs colors easily and the stains are hard to remove.

The articles made of all the newer synthetics are relatively fast drying. Filament yarn fabrics dry much faster than those made from spun yarn because of the irregular surface holding moisture. Avoid wringing by hand because the wrinkles are difficult to remove. Drip drying keeps ironing at a minimum or heavy articles may be rolled in a turkish towel to absorb some of the excess moisture and hasten drying. Finger pressing of seams, hems, and collar edges eliminates the need for ironing in many cases. If ironing is necessary it may be done damp or dry with a warm iron. High temperatures cause a glazed or shiny surface and often yellows some white garments.

If you will note some of these heart when they are criticizing suggestions for the garments in their wardrobe made of these synthetic fibers and take the best possible care of them you can look your best on a minimum budget. The usual allowance for

A sixteen-year-old writes: "Why can't we teen-agers have some constructive help, instead of so much criticism? Grown-ups complain about our looks, our manners, and the way we dress, yet nobody tries to help us. We want to be as attractive as possible, so why doesn't somebody show us how?"

The girl who wrote that letter has a point, all right. Grown-ups are more inclined to deplore than to teach. Parents might take that to heart when they are criticizing their teen-agers' conduct. We shouldn't just tell them what not to do, but offer some good constructive advice on how things should be done.

It doesn't do any good to tell a girl her hair looks a mess and the lipstick she has piled on makes her look like a clown and for heaven's sake to sit slumped to sit down and study hairdos and make-up and clothes with her, so she can experiment until she finds out how to flatter her locks.

Also, to get out a book of etiquette and try to teach her the fundamentals of good manners. And to get her interest in taking exercises to improve her posture instead of saying with exasperation: "For heaven's sake, stand up straight!"

Schools Should Teach It. The schools, from junior high on, ought to teach a course in which, both boys and girls would be given some good constructive advice on how to dress and how to act. And it should be taught by someone young enough to understand the students and speak their language.

Most teen-agers do yearn to look their best and to do the right thing. The reason they so often fail is that they have to use each other for models instead of having sound constructive help from adults.

Electric coffeemakers come in varied sizes, ranging from six-cup to 24-cup capacity. Some of these coffeemakers work automatically so that when the coffee is ready the electricity shuts off; some models maintain a low temperature so that the coffee stays warm until it is served.

Christmas Party Plans Discussed For Half Sizes

Plans for a Christmas party Dec. 19 were discussed at the monthly meeting at 2:30 Wednesday of Holy Souls Home and School Association in the school.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grades presented a play, "The Advent Wreath."

It was announced that there will be no December meeting the Christmas party will be held instead.

Mr. Bill Haley at the organ accompanied Miss Mary Windsor Dowdell, wore tuxedos with white boutonniere.

Altar boys were Pat Williams and Clarence Marsh. A reception in Holy Soul's Parish Hall followed the ceremony. Miss Dolores Drake and Miss May Jo Hankhouse poured punch and Miss Mary Jane Emerson presided at the register. Mrs. A. D. Mc-Namara was hostess and Mrs. George Bunch in charge of decorations.

Following the reception the couple left for a 10-day wedding trip in New Orleans. They will be at home in Elk City, Okla., following the trip.

The bride is a graduate of Pampa High School (1952) and participated in the senior and junior plays. She was a member of the Latin Club and La Rosa Sorority.

Mrs. Albert wore a two-piece beige suit with black accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Miss Dolores Blymiller, wore a blue net dress over satin with a blue Juliette hat and shoes. Her colonial bouquet was white carnations.

Bridesmaids Charlotte Runyon and Gretchen Johansen wore pink and peach respectively. The dresses were net over satin with Juliette hats and corsages were white carnations.

Flower girl, Patricia Albert, wore white net over satin and carried a basket of rose petals. Ring bearer, Jerry Khoury, wore a navy blue suit and bore the wedding bands on a white satin pillow trimmed with net and ribbons.

TEL BY SAMMIE
THE MATURE PARENT
 By MURIEL LAWRENCE
 Eddie has been on parole for his case record calls "infringibility."
 Now he's back in court, a shy, shut-faced boy of 12, charged with stealing relief checks in tenement mail boxes. The able-bodied parents who receive relief regularly themselves, he has a pretty good IQ. He's a smart boy. He has put together all the two of his cynical experience with relief checks until he knows exactly where and when the postman delivers them.

This is a rhetorical question. The Judge doesn't really expect Eddie to answer it truthfully, because he knows how few truthful answers Eddie himself has received to any question. But as he also knows he must try to help him find some of them as soon as possible, he sends Eddie away from home.

Eddie's society now takes over. It begins the painful and expensive process of trying to undo the hurt that has been done to him by parents who have no use for themselves.

The psychiatrists go to work. Maybe one will succeed in nullifying the effects of years of association with apathy and self-depreciation: maybe none will. It is quite possible that Eddie has been convinced beyond help that taking without giving is a way of life.

Judge Jacob Panken, of New York City's Domestic Relations Court, has taken the brave initiative in warning us of "unwarranted" relief's destructive effects upon youngsters. In a recent article he wrote: "I am deeply worried by what family relief does to children. No person who has become unemployable by reason of continuous unwarranted dependence on the public can inspire dignity or self-reliance in his children. They lose respect for their parents, for themselves and finally for society itself."

Time To Get And Lose
 There's no use pretending that our present system of relief does not face us with many unsolved problems.

On one side, we have the neighbor who, because of physical disability or some other sound reason beyond his control, should welcome our aid—but who cannot take well and allows taking to injure his self-respect.

On the other side, we have the neighbor like Eddie's father—the man who cannot give well to the world and allows his disability to injure his self-pride.

When the Bible says, "There is a season to every purpose under heaven, a time to get and a time to lose, it is telling us that our seasons of giving and taking are of equal importance to us. So that if we insist on doing all the giving or all the taking, we are failing in love."

What is the answer for us and our two neighbors whose children are entitled to self-esteem? I think I have found one in the words of Dr. Lawrence S. Kubie, Clinical Professor of Psychiatry at Yale University's School of Medicine: "Self-knowledge... which has been the forgotten factor of our educational system, must become instead its primary focus. If a relief check solved Eddie's family's problem, I'd be for it. Since it hasn't, I am for relief that will not only feed their bodily hungers, but will nourish their moral and emotional powers."

Our psychiatrists base their life's service on the proposition that we do not live by bread alone, but by food for our self-appreciation and dignity. I subscribe to this point of view, and I'd like to see a program of education that would get to Eddie's father with some of that self-knowledge Dr. Kubie says is the first step toward self-esteem.

Holiday Plans Laid By Miami Gleaners

MIAMI (Special) — The Gleaner's class met in the home of Mrs. J. C. Williamson, recently, with Mrs. R. R. Ratliff as hostess, assisted by Mrs. Matt Day and Mrs. Charles Lyons.

Mrs. Sid Talley gave the devotional. Mrs. Ed Talley, leader of the program, discussed Thanksgiving, and led in two Bible quizzes.

During the business session, presided over by Mrs. Kenneth Gray, new president, plans for the Christmas social were discussed.

A social hour followed. Present were Meses: Ed Talley, Sid Talley, Jack Sirrmas, Matt Day, Charles Lyons, Lloyd Wilkens, Wayne Maddox, James Snyder, Roy McHone, Robert Howard, Kenneth Gray, Rene R. Ratliff and J. C. Williamson.

As a change from the usual fruit juice at breakfast, why not treat the family to plump, juicy baked apples this week? Easy, and timely now while market bins are heaped high with the best-of-all bakers. For best success, use low heat and give the fruit plenty of oven time, and you can probably save oven space by baking the apples in a large muffin tin.

For dessert you can glamorize baked apples by inserting a strip of your favorite creamy cheese in the core cavities. Then return to the oven for a few minutes until the cheese is melted. Or, try this festive and truly delicious recipe for gala baked apples stuffed with apricots.

- STUFFED APPLES
- 6 apples
 - 1-2 cup chopped apricot.
 - 2 tbsp. flour
 - 1-4 cup sugar
 - 1-2 tsp. cinnamon
 - 2 tbsps. butter or margarine
 - 1-2 cup water
 - 1-3 cup apricot nectar, or pineapple juice
- Wash and core apples. Peel about 1-3 down from blossom end. Place in baking pan and fill centers with chopped apricots. Combine flour, sugar, cinnamon and butter or margarine. Sprinkle mixture over filled apples. Combine water and fruit juice over all and bake uncovered in moderate (350 degrees F) oven about 1 hour. Bake occasionally as needed. Serves 6.

No Change Seen In Sea Defense

TOKYO (AP) — A spokesman for the United Nations Command today said "no changes have been made and none are contemplated" in the sea defense zone in Korean waters.

The zone, which aroused Russian protests, was announced Sept. 27 by Gen. Mark Clark, Allied Far East commander. Japan has expressed concern lest the zone interfere with Japanese fishing in waters around Korea.

State's Oldest Working Editor Dile Honor For Historical Work

PARIS, Tex. (AP) — Texas' oldest newspaper editor will receive the highest honor from his publisher in a ceremony at White Sulphur Springs on Sunday. The award is for his 80 years of service to the newspaper, which he has not left since he left there at the age of 15. Thus the trip will afford him an opportunity to visit his hometown, in company with his brother, Edgar T. Neville, who will come from Mobile, Ala., to join the party.

Basis of the award to the Paris News is the paper's exceptional handling of local history. When Mayse came to Paris from Sherman in 1929, he decided that Neville's unusual memory and long residence in Paris would provide some interesting reading as newspaper features. As a result, Neville that year began his daily column, "Backward Glances," which appears regularly on the editorial page, along with his daily editorials.

With interest in Texas history at a high peak from the state's centennial celebration, the late J. J. Cunningham, a printer friend, suggested that the News should get Neville to write a history of Lamar County. Mayse agreed, and so the history was written to appear serially in the Paris News as a Sunday feature in 1937. From the newspaper type, several hundred copies were printed in book form, and this is now classed as a collector's item, being the first history of the county ever published.

Continued interest in "Backward Glances" led to the writing and publication of "The Red River Valley: Then and Now," issued in 1948 on Neville's 84th birthday. Designated Neville day, this was celebrated with a luncheon given by the News. The book is dedicated to Mayse and his associate, Houston Harte, publisher of the San Angelo Standard-Times, who had urged the printing of the book as a more permanent form of preserving Neville's recollections and research. The material is largely based on the daily column's stories.

Neville, called "Judge" because he once served as city court magistrate, on Sept. 1 rounded out 50 years on the Paris News. As a youth, he became a printer, not long after his family moved from Virginia to Paris. He has continued in one phase or another of the publishing business ever since.

Thespian Society Of White Deer To Present Comedy

WHITE DEER (Special) — National Thespian Society of White Deer High School will present "One Mad Night," a mystery-farce in three acts Nov. 18. This play will be the first to be produced this season.

Action of the play takes place in "one mad night." Don Cutter (James Huffines), a play-wright, accompanied by Wing Philip Rapstine, his proverb-touting valet, goes to the Cutter mansion, a lonely house in the hills, to complete his latest play, a peace and quiet. The house has been deserted for years, a series of mysterious murders having given it a reputation of being haunted.

Don finds the house tenanted by a number of strange people, including "John Alden" (Raymond Driskill), "Priscilla" (Nancy Ford), "Mr. Hyde" (DeWayne DeFever) and "Lady Macbeth" (Jia Seoras). They are lunatics under the care of a Dr. Bunn (Jack McCabe), whose home early has burned. They are harmless, but on does not know this.

Among the inmates is Lucille (Barbara Evans), a beautiful girl with an amazing story of persecution and intrigue. Don is just about to ride to her rescue when his fiancée, Gertrude (Patsy Moran), and her mother, Mrs. Fife (Alma Howard), appear with their maid, Depression (Barbara Bentley).

From this point, everything changes, including talking ghosts, missing women, disappearing guests, and, for a climax, the appearance of an escaped killer, Don Seletto (an Foose), fleeing for his life.

The play is directed by Hobart MacDonald. It will be presented in the White Deer Grade School auditorium at 8 p.m.

Former TB Sanitarium Begins Work With Young Drug Addicts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP) — Riverside is a 150-bed hospital on tiny, wind-swept North Brother's Island in the East River. It is the nation's first and only institution specially set up to help teen-age narcotics users.

It opened in July — the reform groups, the press and public that New York City must do something about the rising tide of drug addiction among school-age boys and girls.

The staff is finding that "kicking" the habit is easy. Keeping it "kicked" is something else again.

When the first patients arrived, the 10-year-old building — erected but never used as a city tuberculosis sanatorium — was in the preliminary stages of conversion. Painters, plumbers and carpenters are still all over the place, putting on the final touches. There are about 60 male patients now, aged between 14 and 21. The first few girls were admitted early in October.

The basic premise on which Riverside is working is that drug addiction is not a disease, but a symptom of deep mental distress. For most of the patients, the staff believes, the root lies in poverty, slums and broken homes.

Results Not Known
Dr. Jerome Leon, hospital director, said that so far only a couple of patients have been discharged with the staff's consent. It will be a long time — even years — before much of the work can be measured on the yardstick of cure.

"The hospitals at Lexington and Ft. Worth provide some services for adolescents," Dr. Leon said. "But essentially both of them are prison hospitals with drug-withdrawal centers. They have attempted therapy, but it hasn't proved too effective because they haven't been able to provide follow-up care."

Riverside is establishing a separate clinic in which to continue treatment after youths have been released.

"Addiction is the least important part of the problem," Dr. Leon said. "Taking these patients off drugs is easy. It can be done for the most advanced cases in 10 days and for most of them in five.

"We use the attenuated withdrawal method — gradual withdrawal of drugs over a period of time — and not 'cold turkey,' or sudden complete withdrawal. We have disproved one theory: that young addicts don't have withdrawal symptoms of pain, nausea and perspiration.

Pain Threshold Lower
"They do have them, just as the older addicts do. But we think that every addict's threshhold of pain is lower. With drawal symptoms in a normal person would be about as uncomfortable as an attack of the grippe."

Normal adolescents, said Dr. Jerome, don't become addicted to narcotics.

"They may experiment with drugs but they give them up when they find narcotics don't solve any problems for them. Drug addicts are like alcoholics — both have found a chemical retreat from reality."

Eisenhower Must Map Plans In Detail On Use Of Nation's Military Powers

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soon after he takes over the White House, Dwight D. Eisenhower will have to begin to decide in detail how he wants to use the nation's military power to bring about the kind of world the United States desires.

The decisions he makes may be among the most fateful of his presidential career. They involve questions of risks, and ultimately questions of war or peace ranking with the gravest decisions of the Truman administration.

President Truman faced the same question of the use of American power against the forces of communism but under different circumstances. For Eisenhower is slated to take over the government at a time when American strength is approaching its planned cold war peak. Tanks, guns and planes for United States and Allied forces are rolling off the production line in numbers unprecedented for a time when there is no great war.

The impending meeting between Eisenhower and Truman, and sessions between their aides, are expected to provide the general with the best information at the government's disposal of the kind of world he will have to deal with and the forces at his disposal.

While people may not know until secret documents are opened to future historians all the facts on which Eisenhower will have to make his major decisions, the main ideas of how American forces may theoretically be disposed and the chief purposes which may be served have been debated for a long time.

In highly simplified form here are the four main ideas: Former President Hoover about two years ago advocated the development of an American Gibraltar on the Western Hemisphere. This apparently would mean a pulling back of United States forces from some of the far-flung regions where they now operate and concentration of land, sea and air power in this hemisphere, the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and their principal islands.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), when he was seeking his party's presidential nomination, advocated concentration on building up the defenses of the United States and friendly island nations such as Britain, Japan and the Philippines. In discussing specific problems that this theory would not solve, however, he indicated cooperation with the Western European powers on the continent.

Made Commitments President Truman has both advocated and put into practice a policy that consisted (1) of glorification of the United States and its allies and (2) commitment of United States forces or military resources to any nation threatened by Russia which was willing to defend itself. Under this policy American forces went to fight in Korea and American arms are being supplied to many lands from Britain to Formosa.

During the election campaign Eisenhower spoke out in favor of a worldwide system of Allies, including close consultation with the United States.

While his foreign policy was thus basically what those who can themselves internationalists consider truly international, Eisenhower's statements on all points have not coincided with equal exactitude with the policies of the Truman administration.

Everything Possible For example in the case of Korea, he pledged himself to do everything possible and at once to get United States forces out of the front lines and to let Asians primarily defend the freedom of Asia. This could mean not only a speed-up in the training and employment of South Korean forces to replace U.N. units; it could also mean the employment of some Chinese Nationalist divisions from Formosa.

On another point Eisenhower committed himself to do all he can — he specified "by peaceful means" — to bring about the liberation of the satellite nations of the Soviet Union. Strong measures to that end would involve a certain amount of risk of strong reaction from the Russian side.

In Korea Eisenhower, according to his campaign speeches, would have United States forces assume a reserve role as rapidly as possible. The American "first team" would no longer be pitted against, or tied down by, the enemy's so-called second team.

Linked To Basic Question The liberation policy which Eisenhower advocated is linked to the basic question of the use of force in another way because such a policy would hardly be possible unless the United States was willing to take whatever risks might be involved in stirring up trouble, even by propaganda means, in Iron Curtain territory.

Any nation's foreign policy must be based upon its real power — military, economic, moral and other. Insofar as the United States is concerned there are three over-all problems which this principle applies to directly:

1. Military dispositions for defense — United States forces have been deployed since the end of World War II in Japan and other Far Pacific islands, in Korea and in Western and Central Europe. United States weapons have gone to many additional places to strengthen friendly or Allied forces.

Haunt The Kremlin In a speech at New York last August Eisenhower said that a country "must be committed to security forces of such mobility and offensive impact that their retaliatory readiness and the massive potential of their blows will haunt the Kremlin with nightmares of the punishment to be visited upon Russia should it violate the peace."

Truman administration officials have held a somewhat similar concept. Eisenhower's idea of the "mobility" of American forces would not necessarily mean a change in present policy but it could be a basis for such a change when read in the light of statements by other Republicans.

Backed Up 2. Force as a base for diplomatic strategy — In general, in dealing with a country like Russia, any American or Allied maneuver is likely to be effective to the extent that it can be backed up with adequate force of some kind, military, economic or political. Republican foreign policy adviser John Foster Dulles, while still bi-partisan consultant in the State Department last spring, advocated that the United States should rely less on trying to protect many countries by committing its forces to them and should try instead a warning to Russia not to start any war with Korea. There has been speculation Eisenhower may have leaned toward this ultimatum device when he talked about the concept of a mobile reserve to be supplied the Free World by the United States.

What Dulles proposed was that Washington should tell Moscow flatly and officially that if any other free nation was attacked by Communist forces the United States would feel free to strike back at Russia itself. That would only work if the United States had the force available to strike instantly and powerfully.

3. The concept of preventive war — This has usually come up publicly in a negative way. Some people have advocated privately that the United States should pick the time and place for the conflict with Russia which he advocates consider inevitable. But they have seldom carried their case to the country. Instead President Truman and Secretary of State Acheson have given currency to the idea by denouncing it. They apparently felt it had too much appeal to ignore.

Most Explosive Some officials and observers of foreign policy developments believe that this may be in the long run the most explosive issue which Eisenhower will have to deal with. He will be president at a time when the United States and Allies powers, whatever their continuing problems, will have shaken off many of the weaknesses which the Truman administration has been primarily concerned to eliminate.

In a speech at San Francisco Oct. 6 Eisenhower seemed to reject the idea of using force as a desirable means of resolving the conflict with communism. He said appeasement "is a proven folly" and declared that a second course would be to adopt an "aggressive attitude and so markedly increase the risk of global war."

He indicated his preference for the third of his three courses which he said "is to prosecute the cold war in which we now find ourselves with vigor and wisdom."

Italy's Red Count Beyond Two Million

Italy has a total population of 47 million people. In the 1948 general elections the Communists polled seven million votes. Stan Mazer, Brandeis University guard, is an accomplished accordion player.
