Blast Injuries Fatal

Experts Ponder Reasons For Plane Crash

Military experts continued efforts today to solve the riddle of why 86 men were killed here Saturday in history's worst airplane crash.

And civilian officials, in and out of government circles, began a concerted demand for investigations and action to reduce the number of military plane accidents.

Saturday's crash, which killed all but 30 of the men aboard the U. S. military's biggest äirplane was the 10th in a recent series which has snuffed out more than

Calls began immediately for grounding of military aircraft safety precautions and

Sen. Richard Russell (D-Ga.) called for an exhaustive investigation. He said it was possible a subcommittee of his Senate Armed Services Committee would take action on the Moses Lake disaster.

At Larson Air Force Base, starting point of the flight, the grim and tedious job of identifying the dead continued. The process was slow because many of the victims were mangled and burned beyond recognition.

To Dr. Paul Christian A study of dental records was being made by identification ex-

Meanwhile, four Air Force generals huddled with other officers. civilians and technical representatives of aircraft and equipment manufacturers, trying to piece to gether the cause of the accident

An Air Force captain with years of experience flying heavy equipment said he thought the plane just couldn't develop enough power to rise from the runway. He was Capt. George Demas of Cleveland, O., and Charleston, S.C. His observations were made first hand he was one of the passengers who lived through the

"I had a peculiar feeling," he said from a hospital bed at Larson AFB, "that we were staying too long on the ground. I befelt the plane bounce at the end of the runway and it seemed the plane had not developed enough power to complete the takeoff." The pilot, Capt. Demas said, apparently agreed, as he "tried to yank it into the air because it was too late to reverse he propellers and stop it." The plane rose slowly, the captain related

Then the pilot turned sharp over the left and that suggested to me he was attempting to come back the runway. I looked out the window at the point and estimated we were about 75 feet in the air.' The pilot, later identified in the list of dead as Lt. William O'Connell of Portland. Me., prob ably changed his mind and attempted to resume normal course, Demas said. After that, the first thing Demas could recall was making his painful way from the wreckage and collapsing. He was seriously but not critt-cally injured.

The 116 men in the giant twindecked plane was not unusual, Air Force officials said. They told of tests in which 160 men with 100-(See EXPERTS, Page 5)

To the Man who was a Boy-in 1921!

Let's say it was thirty-one years ago, on a beautiful morning in June, when a farmer's boy sat down on the grass beside his father's He was waiting for the cloud of dust that would signal the approach of the mailman's But the first cloud of dust that showed in the distance was not of the mailman's making. It came from the wheels of a Cadillac-filled with happy, friendly people-who waved and smiled and rolled away. "There," thought the youngster, "is the car for me!"

And while the dust was settling on the grass . and trees about the farmer's lad, another boy stood by a rack of papers on a busy street in a distant city—and heard the friendly horn of another Cadillac,

"Keep the change," the driver smiled, as he took his paper and rolled out into the traffic.

"There," thought the boy, as he clutched his coin, "is the car for me!"

And other boys, at work and play, watched friendly Cadillacs that day-and the dreams grew in their hearts.

There was the boy mowing lawns . . . and the boy pitching hay . . . and the grocery boy ... and the iceman's helper. And there was the lad gone out to fetch his mother's laundry -and the one on his way to a music lesson, his violin tucked carelessly under his arm.

"There," they thought, "is the car for me!" And, since this is America, where dreams make sense in the heart of a boy, the farmer's lad is now a surgeon . . . and the boy with the papers is an editor . . . and the grocery boy's

Note To Senators

Eugene R. Guild, Capt., U. S. Army, Retired, who is causing a national stir with his organization known as Fighting Homefolks of Fighting Men of Glenwood Springs, Colo., has a forthright suggestion that he has sent to every senator concerning the attempts to end the Korean war. His letter which follows, speaks for

To United States Senators:

Every day you can save by starting before Jan. 20 the debate on the forthcoming Eisenhower proposals to end the Korean War, will save the lives of 25 of our sons destined to be killed in action (29 months' average). Nothing except official woodenness can prevent the immediate start of UN and Congressional debate on the proposals. If the proposals contain effective measures displeas-

UN vote or Russian veto. In that event the Congress should already have had its debate on the proposals and whether to go it alone in case they were rejected, and be ready to vote.

ing to the Russians, they will very likely be rejected by

We therefore ask you to:

1. Ask Eisenhower to present his forthcoming general proposals to the UN immediately. He cannot of course be expected to reveal his detailed strategy to the UN even after January 20 - as that would aid the enemy.

2. Ask President Truman to cooperate in the presentation of these proposals to the UN as being the proposals of the U. S. Government as of January 20, unless there be a substantial change in the situation by that date.

3. Take whatever steps may be necessary in the Senate to insure immediate debate on the question of approving and implementing the forthcoming proposals, whether or not they are approved by the UN. If the UN were to know that the United States was determined to carry out the proposals, it might strengthen the UN backbone.

There my be some of you who prefer the usual, more comfortable, leisurely way of doing things; they may be shocked at this request for prompt action. But they would not be as shocked as the parents and widows - 776 of them - who would receive death telegrams as the result of a month's unnecessary delay.

A Different Course

One thing can be said about the Eisenhower Administration - it will quite likely be very different indeed from anything the country has known for 20 years. The Cabinet appointments are indications. The tone of the Administration will be conservative. The top men will be experienced, practical, and business-like. They will be strong administrators and they will demand results. All along the line, the emphasis will be on more economy and less red-tape in the conduct of governmental affairs.

In most departments reorganization will be thoroughgoing. This will be especially marked in the State Depuritmen. John roster bulles is vitally concerned with gerting ria or the lett-wingers and the weak sisters. His poncy will be unequivocany anti-communists, in deed no less than in word. The Kremlin can expect no concessions, no signs or weakness. Like his chiet, Ma Dulles pelieves that the policy or containing Kussia, as pursued by Mr. Trumun and Secretary Acheson is both unworkapie and negative. A much clearer and more positive policy will take its place. As U. S. News & World Keport put it, 'U. S., in world arrairs, will get off the derensive, take the oriensive. An end is conting to a policy or grant. Fear or Kussia no longer will inviuence U. S. actions. There'll be no hesitation to put U. S. interests tirst in world dealings."

In domestic affairs, the Eisenhower Administration will be against the government-should-ao-everything concept that so largery characterized the Koosevelt-Truman Auministrations. The appointment of Governor McKay of Oregon to the very important Interior post shows the direction that particular wind is blowing. McKay is a home-rule man, who puts local rights and responsibilities

Secretary of Treasury Humphrey is expected to be a very tough man with the taxpayers' dollars. His primary goal will be a balanced budget, to be followed by tax cuts at the earliest possible time. And Secretary of Defense Wilson, coming from one of the biggest jobs in industry, will demand maximum result from every dollar the military people get.

It is forecast that President Eisenhower will effect some significant changes in the method of running the Executive Branch. He will probably inaugurate something comparable to the staff system which is used in the military forces. Governor Adams is being given a job which amounts to assistant President, and he will have wide powers. The point is to relieve the President of some of the tremendous burdens of detail that are part of his office, and leave him freer to deal with broad policy. That will probably happen in the departments, too. It was reported, for instance, that Mr. Dulles told the President-elect that he did not want the State portfolio unless he could turn over certain responsibilities to capable assistants, and largely confine his own work to policy matters. General Eisenhower, it is said, fully ap-

Finally, it is plain that the next Administration will not be one which is loaded with personal friends and litical associates of the President. Some of the incoming Cabinet members know the President-elect hardly at all. They were chosen for one reason only, so far as anyone can see — the ranson being that they seemed the best available men for their respective jobs.

A Book by a Culture Carrier The new book "One is a Crowd" "Reflections of An Individualist" is certainly a culture-carrying book. It was written by Frank

It is not a book that advocates any form of collectivism or socialism that most of the book reviewthat it has not been reviewed by any of the Eastern newspapers.

The introduction is by John Chamberlain, Listen to how Chamberlain puts it:

"If numbers and the sort of thing that passes for intellectual journalism (of Planners and Collecturits) in this country were ever definitive, the cultural climate of our nation would have been altered beyond recall in those years. But one of the grand lessons of history is that you can not break the continuity of a culture or a tradition unless you are prepared to liqui-date all those who have known the douceur de la vie of the old regime.

"Lenin said it long ago: to make collectivism stick in a land that has known the blessings of individualism, you must catch a whole learned the bourgeois alphabet at their mother's knees. In a land of republican law this is impossible; no matter how clever or omnipresent the collectivist propaganda may be, a few culture-carriers of the old tradition will escape. They may be reduced to publishing broadsheets instead of books; they may be compelled to conduct their straggling classes in dingy rooms in old brownstone fronts. Certainly they will have a hard time getting posts on a university faculty. But they will be still hanging around—and still talking— when the tinsel begins to wear off the latest Five-Year Plan or government-sponsored Greenbelt onization scheme Their books and pamphlets ready for the chance encounter that sparks all revolutions or "reactions," will fan the revival of the old tradition that periodically displaces the callow presumptions of the "new". "A recent preoccupation with my own intellectual autobiography has led me to reflect on the culture-carriers who brought me back to what I had originally soaked up unconsciously in the individualistic New England of my childhood. One of these carriers was Albert Jay Nock, whose "Our Enemy the State" hit me between the eyes when I read it in the thirties. Another potent carrier was Franz Oppenheimer, whose concept of the State-as-racket (see his epochal book on "The State") was too formidably grounded in history to permit of any easy denial. Still another carrier was Garet Garrett. the only economist I know who can make a single image or metaphor do the work of a whole page of statistics. Then there was Hen-George, the Single Taxer, and il disobedience implied a fealty to a higher- or a Natural-law, and Isabel Paterson, the doughty and perennially embattled woman who wrote "The God of the Machine." Finally, there was a man who sometimes spoke in parables and who always had a special brand of quiet humor, Mr. Frank Chodorov, whose lifetime of broadsheet writing and pamphleteering has been brilliantly raided by Devin A. Garrity of the Devin-Adair Co. to make this book."

Success Secrets By ELMER WHEELER

A good idea is a success maker. You may benefit from the results of a little thought. One man who did is a New York packer named Louis Meyer. His idea paid rich

In 1926, Meyer returned from a vacation in his native Germany with an idea, He had been favorably impressed with a sausage canning process introduced by the Germans. Meyer thought he could apply German techniques to can-ning the American hot dog, He saw great possibilities in producing a product that had rich food value as well as being a great timesaver for the housewire, Fortunately, on the return voy-Meyer met a German emigrant who knew food processing and canning methods. Capitalizing on this contract, Meyer was able on the part of his associates by learning first hand, all there was to know about marketing his new canned frankfurter idea. His idea finally bore fruit in 1928 when his product emerged . . . the Stahl-Meyer canned frankfurter.

Further research led to new products . . . canned liverwurst, can-ned cocktail frankfurters, and hard-hitting, aggressive promotion the product found wide

Here is an example of a man who was not satisfied with exist-ing products. He found an idea and saw its possibilities. He put it into action, and from it, found greater when an idea occurs to you, hold on to it. Roll it around in your mind, weighing the pros and cons. Then, if you are convinced it is a good idea—put it to work, Ideas are profit-makers.

The election returns will be interpreted by many different people in many different ways. This is apt to go on for a long, long time, but seems to me that there are a few things in the returns which stand out with startling clarity, One, and perhaps the most important, is that the American people are not "too dumb" to understand as the "little man" many of his cohorts believed them to be. Also they have shown that they do not believe lies no matter who tells them, how big they are or how often the lies may be repeated.

Another is that union labor bosses are a complete washout on delivering the votes of union members. I have for years been telling my politician friends that outside of an isolated district here and there, there isn't any such thing as a labor vote. Maybe with this additional evidence before them, they will be convinced and therefore in the future consider labor legislation entirely from the standpoint of whether or not it would be good for the country.

Still another is that a vast majority of the people are a great deal more interested in the future welfare of the United States than worked per they are in the number of dollars

ORANGE (A) - Humble Oil Company's big offshore drilling first in line under Oregon law fieet is expected to stay in moth- to succeed McKay was sworn inballs at its Sabine River berth ing area near here until the tidelands dispute is settled.

The new congress is expected to enact a bill restoring title to the tidelands to the states. President-Elect Eisenhower has promised to sign the bill.

There are 14 converted LST's Mainly About Peop's 2 p.in. Seturday and three smaller vessels in the Humble drilling fleet which has remained inactive now for more than two years.

A, J. Tucker of Houston, manager of the company's marine equipment division, made a routine inspection of the fleet recently. "We have no plans present for putting the ships back into service," he said cautiously.

Tucker added that so far as he knew none of the other oil companies are yet returning to 3 service the offshore drilling fleets they have in mothballs, in varient combs-worley Bldg. Ph. 9539. ous gulf ports.

The marine manager said getting the fleet back into service be quite an undertaking. The Coast Guard has come out PLEASE Coll Classified Dept with a new regulation which will require strenghtening the ships, and all the drilling machinery has been removed from our vessels," Tucker said.

There has also been some inevitable deterioration in the two years the ships have been laid up. This will have to be taken

Altogether, this means the shipyards will have quite a bit of work to do before the vessels can go to sea again.

Humble's fleet, like most of the other drilling ships and service vessels, is made up principally of war surplus craft, mostly LST's. One of the LST's and a smaller craft or two have been kept active. Tucker explained his company was able to get permits LOST enough to maintain one offshore drilling rig. All the other ships in the fleet have been tied up in the Sabine River here in the cus-
