French Voters Place Almost Unqualified Stamp of Approval on De Gaulle

Assembly Will Elect President On November 6

PARIS, Oct. 22—(AP)—France's first general election in nine years placed an almost unqualified stamp of approval today on Gen. De Gaulle's plans to found a fourth republic on a new constitution drafted by the people's chosen representatives.

Figures announced by the ministry of the interior this morning, 12 hours after the closing of the polls, showed that De Gaulle had won an overwhelming victory in a two-pronged election which decided that:

(1)—A constituent assembly—designated at yesterday's election—will draft a new constitution rather than attempt to rebuild the government of the 1875 document which was the foundation of the Third republic.

(2)—The executive power will be vested in a provisional government during the seven months the assembly sits rather than in the assembly itself.

Official results from 84 of France's 92 departments:

In favor of a new constitution, 13,887,082; opposed, 554,750.

In favor of an interim government, 3,522,210; opposed, 4,481,249.

The question of voting a new constitution was supported by all political parties, but the communists—aided by the radical-socialists—had opposed De Gaulle on the interim government issue.

Voters handed General De Gaulle a political hot potato in their choice of candidates for the national election despite their support of his plans for a new French republic.

Three parties—the communist, socialist and popular republican movement (MPR)—ran practically neck-and-neck in the race for seats in the constituent assembly.

None of the three divergent parties gained a majority. It was a

German Red Cross To Be Liquidated

BERLIN, Oct. 22—(AP)—A secret order which Marshal G. K. Zhukov issued last month doomed the German Red Cross to confiscation of its assets in the Russian occupation zone and liquidation of its national presidium in Berlin, it was learned today.

Dr. Paul Konitzer, health director for the Soviet zone, has been named by the red army command to supervise the carrying out of Zhukov's instructions.

Records showing Red Cross bank accounts and other funds totaling $35,000,000 at the current military exchange rate distributed throughout Germany have been submitted to Konitzer on behalf of the Red Cross president, Rudolf Nadolny.

Copies also were presented to American and British officials. It was indicated they would be interested in retaining control over Red Cross assets now located in their respective sectors in Berlin and the western occupation zones.

Zhukov's confiscation order was dated Sept. 18, several weeks after the national presidium had appeared in vain to the allied control council for formal recognition of the German Red Cross. Just before Zhukov acted, the Red Cross addressed a second message to the council asking special aid for 4,500,000 refugees estimated to be flooding into eastern Germany.

Some Russian observers were known to regard the German Red Cross as a potential intelligence network which could be put to other than merciful activities. It has many other activities. It was tatory interests.

Train Engine Is Blown 180 Feet

AMARILLO, Oct. 22—(AP)—An explosion at the Santa Fe roundhouse here at 6 a. m. today sent a 30-ton locomotive boiler hurtling through the roof of the building, clearing high line wires.

The locomotive landed 180 feet from the roundhouse. Its 50-pound engine whistle sailed for a block and landed in the living room of Lawrence Morellos. Mr. Morellos was in bed in the next room.

No one was hurt in the explosion. Railroad officials gave no explanation but said such accidents usually were caused by bad water. The locomotive was used as a switch engine.

It, incidentally, was in stall 13.

Forrestal Terms Merger of Forces As Revolutionary

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal today declared the proposed merger of the war and navy departments is "revolutionary" and "unsound."

Bluntly opposing the war department, the navy cabinet head offered the senate military affairs committee a substitute postwar plan for the armed forces.

The navy plan called for continuation of present war and navy departments and creation of a national security council. This would be composed of the present secretaries of state, war, and navy with the chairman of a proposed national security resources board as fourth member.

The President of the United States would preside as commander-in-chief.

Backers of the merger count on President Truman's throwing his weight behind the idea.

Chairman Bill (D-Ala.) recalled in a discussion with reporters that Mr. Truman publicly championed unification of the armed services when he was a senator.

"Mind you, I'm not attempting to say what his views are now but what they were when he was in the senate," Hill cautioned.

Hill recently visited the White House to talk over his measure with the President.

Secretary of War Patterson, General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and General H. H. Arnold, head of the air forces, have endorsed it enthusiastically.

Meeting Called Here Regard to Baseball

All local persons who are interested in baseball here are urged to attend a meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 at the city commission room in the city hall, Lynn Boyd, former secretary-treasurer of the local team, said this morning.

Bob Seeds of Amarillo informed Boyd today that a meeting relative to baseball is to be held at Lubbock Saturday, and expressed the hope that Pampa could be represented. This meeting tomorrow night is in regard to the meeting Saturday, it was said.

REBELS FORM NEW CABINET

Solon Suggests Congress Drop All Labor Laws

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—A suggestion that congress sidetrack all labor legislation for six months and let labor and industry "shake down" into a postwar relationship came today from Senator Ellender (D-La.).

"They ought to be able to adjust their problems themselves," he told reporters.

But, elsewhere in Washington, there were moves to extend a hand in helping establishing labor-management relations for reconversion.

President Truman has promised a statement on the wage-price issue. It may come from the White House today. Mr. Truman was reported ready to advocate collective bargaining, rather than government controls for settling disputes. He may also elaborate on his policy of allowing wage increases within the existing price framework.

2. Rep. Ramspeck (D-Ga.) suggested a new plan to ease labor disputes. He proposed in an interview legislation to bar strikes during set periods for collective bargaining and, where bargaining failed, for the framing of recommended settlements by fact-finding boards.

The house has heard demands, too, that repeal be accompanied by enactment of a new anti-strike law with "bulldozing teeth" as Rep. Arends (R-Ill.) phrased it. The house military committee has completed hearings on a repeal of the Smith-Connelly anti-strike act and likely will approve it soon.

In the senate, leaders have counseled against bringing up any labor relations measures until after President Truman's prospective labor-management conference, scheduled for Nov. 5.

Survey Completed On Sewer System Improvement Plan

Completion of the engineer's survey on Pampa's $390,000 sewer improvement program was announced today by City Manager Garland Franks.

Joe E. Ward, Wichita Falls consulting engineer, will make the final report on plans and specifications to the city commission tomorrow, Franks said.

Upon approval of Ward's report, plans and specifications will be sent to several prospective bidders on the construction work. It is believed that the contract will be let to more than one concern, because the southeast outfall line is the most important at the present time.

Several cave-ins on the southeast line have been reported in the past year and it is presenting a dangerous sanitation problem to residents of the east section of the city.

At the time the sewer bond was voted, a storm sewer to cost $63,000 was also approved by voters.

However, the storm sewer project is being set aside temporarily in favor of the more important sewer reconstruction.

In his initial report several months ago, Ward pointed out that the city's sewer system was adequate to serve only 7,500 persons while Pampa's present population is estimated to be in excess of 15,000.

Under Ward's specifications, the new system is being planned to provide for a population increase of up to 22,000 persons.

RESCUE AT SEA: TEXAS VETERAN FORCED TO SAVE HATEFUL JAP

ABILENE, Oct. 22—(AP)—Pvt. Arthur Buron Clark of Abilene said in an interview he was forced to save the Jap he hated most of all.

Recently released from a Japanese prison camp after being held for three and a half years, Clark said that "while aboard a prison ship, we were attacked and hit by four American planes. Our ship was hit badly. So were the other ships.

"We spent the next morning picking up survivors. The irony of it was that I hauled up a Jap I hated most of all.

'West Point of Japan' Grads Are High in Points and Morale

TOKYO, Oct. 22—(AP)—Troops of an entirely different kind are "graduating" from the "West Point of Japan," these days—American troops who stream into the Fourth replacement center high in points and morale and light in cares.

Where once the Japanese flowed through the halls into the imperial army and war against an increasingly powerful enemy, today's troops are finished with war. This is where they get the tickets home. The replacement depot will handle 1,000 men a day as soon as the staff can be built up.

The men have light duties and bother very little about rank as they attend movies and orientation lectures.

"Of course, there's KP and police-up, but they put 50 men out to do the job of 30, so no one gets very fatigued," explained Staff Sgt. Richard O. Suess, a paratrooper from Chicago. "It's different from Stoneman (Camp Stoneman, Pittsburgh, Calif.). There we were all set to go to the front to fight the Nips and we didn't know if we'd get back. Then 100 men would be assigned KP and they'd all disappear in an hour. No one minds a little work."

Nippon Constitution Is Being Redrafted

TOKYO, Oct. 22—(AP)—The building of a democratic Japan, both financially and politically, occupied the center of the occupation stage today as government officials announced the powerful Zaibatsu would be broken up of their own accord and gave the emperor's blessing to development of a stronger diet.

The announcement that Zaibatsu, the family financial giants of Japan, would liquidate themselves brought a blast from one of Tokyo's leading newspapers. Asahi Shinbun charged that the breakup, announced by Finance Minister Keizo Shibusawa, was "merely reorganization in disguise," an attempt to step from under responsibility for supporting Japanese militarists in the past.

Prince Fumimaro Konoye, one of the Japanese senior statesmen, a many-times premier and career diplomat who is one of Emperor Hirohito's close advisers, said the emperor is anxious that the revision of the constitution provide the nation with a diet strong enough to be a guiding influence in the nation's politics.

Konoye, at the command of the emperor who followed General MacArthur's wishes in the matter, is working a draft of a revised constitution.

Allied headquarters today stepped into another field where there has been much talk and little action and ordered the Japanese education system revamped. Japanese teaching, henceforth, the supreme headquarters ruled, shall concentrate on peaceful pursuits, eliminating military drill and other swasbuckling trappings of the militarist regime which it heroized in the past.

Konoye, who said yesterday MacArthur had suggested that he lead a liberal political movement, stated in an interview today that the necessity of senior statesmen around the throne gradually would disappear under the contemplated constitutional revisions.

The prince, thrice premier of Japan and himself one of the most

GM Managers And CIO Union Clashing Anew

DETROIT, Oct. 22—(AP)—With only two days remaining before the start of strike votes in the "big three" auto plants, management and union officials appeared today to be among their wage arguments more at the public than at each other in over-the-table negotiations.

Negotiating sessions continued to be sporadic and brief but through the press, General Motors Corp. extended price increases must go hand-in-hand with any wage increases and the united automobile workers (CIO) accused the corporation of repeating its "plea of poverty."

Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president, said General Motors could meet the 30 percent pay boost demanded by the union and still cut at least $100 from the price of Chevrolets and at the same time earn for its stockholders at least 100 million dollars more than the pre-war 1936-39 average of 180 million dollars.

Reuther said that when negotiations are resumed this week after adjournment since a short session Friday the union will ask for a three-way "J. J." of the corporation's "assured postwar profits" among

OPA Is Charged With Retarding Of Reconversion

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—A congressional committee said today the office of price administration is "retarding reconversion" through "rigid" price formulas.

Reporting to the house on an investigation of the OPA's reconversion policies, the committee headed by Rep. Howard Smith (D-Va.), recommended:

1. That OPA formulate and immediately place into effect a policy permitting commodities to be priced at levels which in the accepted standards of accounting will reflect current costs of production plus a normal prewar margin of profit.

2. That this policy be formulated and administered in such a manner that the prices so computed may be suitably reported to regional or district offices of the OPA on simplified forms affording no opportunity for divergent interpretations.

3. That such prices be effective unless deficiencies are discovered by OPA within a specified time. When such deficiencies are reported by OPA producers are to be given an opportunity to meet OPA requirements and objections. In the absence of any notice by OPA within the specified time, the prices so filed by the manufacturer shall remain effective.

4. That prices at retail be adjusted to reflect any dollar increase allowed the manufacturers except where the mark-up on the particular item is already sufficient to reflect a normal profit.

5. That except where monopolistic control of supply exists, price controls be suspended on any commodity whenever it appears that the elements of supply and demand are in a relative state of balance in determining this, producers of such commodities shall be afforded an opportunity to demonstrate that such supply and demand have come into a relative state of balance and that no monopolistic controls exist.

6. That the price administration review his policy enunciated in the maximum average price regulation with a view to revoking or modifying it.

Group Pledged to Democratic Ideals

CARACAS, Oct. 22—(AP)—A cabinet pledged to democratic ideals took over the reins in oil-rich Venezuela today under sponsorship of a revolutionary junta which stamped out all important resistance to its coup d'etat in a tumultuous week-end of armed conflict.

Respectable Romulo Betancourt, 37, a former newspaper columnist, assumed the dual role of president and minister of the interior with a pledge that his government had assumed power only to provide Venezuela with "free, direct universal suffrage by secret ballot."

Betancourt promised that Venezuela would take an energetic part in preserving hemispheric unity.

"We want to be good neighbors not only on Pan-American day, with flowery words and phrases, but in deeds as well," he said.

The new president, a one-time communist who later renounced the party, announced that his government would respect the rights of foreigners and their investments.

He installed a cabinet dominated by the democratic action party, which is considered left of center.

The last major opposition to the new regime ended yesterday as the Andean states of Tachira, Merida and Trujillo swung over to the rebelled. Resistance also ceased in the mountainous state of Zulia, whose oil fields are the basis of Venezuela's economic life. Fighting ceased when the government announced it was not opposed to the Andinos, a western military clique which had dominated national politics for a century.

A small force loyal to deposed President Isaa Medina y Angarita still held out in the southeastern section of Caracas but Junta leaders predicted its speedy liquidation.

The new government promised "fair and speedy trials" for Medina and Gen. Eleazar Lopez Contreras, whom revolutionary leaders accused of malfeasance of public funds. An investigation into the affairs of other former public officials was underway.

Dr. Leonard Ruiz Finesca, secretary of the Junta, said other trials might result if evidence

Stacy To Preside Over Labor Meet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—(AP)—Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of the North Carolina state supreme court has accepted President Truman's invitation to preside over the forthcoming labor-management conference here.

The White House announced that Stacy had agreed to serve at the meeting starting Nov. 5 at which a new understanding between management and labor will be sought.

Meanwhile, Eben Ayers, assistant White House secretary, said President Truman was still studying the labor-price situation with a view to issuing a statement later.

The President, Ayers said, expects to see during the next two weeks virtually all the people who will participate in the labor-management conference.

He expects to spend as much time on it as he can, Ayers said.

Ohio State, Georgia Face Tough Opponents in Week's Big Games

Undeclared AAF Skymasters Take To Road Sunday

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 22—(AP)—The mighty Skymasters of the Army Air Forces training command, victors in five straight games, two of them counting in the national AAF football conference, hit the road again next weekend when they go to Los Angeles to meet the El Toro marines.

They came home after two games away to give 13,000 fans a good show yesterday in a 19-7 triumph over tough Fourth Air Force of March Field, Calif. For the first time this season the Skymasters found themselves behind in the scoring midway of the opening period but they buckled down and got a couple of touchdowns in short order and the result never was much in doubt after that.

Bruce Alford, former Texas Christian great, took a pass for one touchdown and covered a blocked punt for another, while Art Boettcher of the Shurtleff college turned in the game's longest gain—a 28-yard dash—that set up the final touchdown which he made himself on an end-run from the one yard line.

FOOTBALL RESULTS

Navy 20, Georgia Tech 6.
Oklahoma A. and M. 46, Utah 6.

Georgia's 32-0 trouncing by Louisiana state was almost as stunning as Ohio state's loss. The Bulldogs had Charley Trippi back in action but the army veteran couldn't move against a stubborn Tiger line. LSO had been beaten 26-7 by Alabama and the Crimson Tide's stock rose sharply.

On its own hook, Alabama handed Tennessee its first defeat of the campaign by a 21-7 count. Harry Gilmer again was Alabama's big gun as he completed 12 of 20 passes for 110 yards.

New Backfield Star May Be Uncovered in Brownfield Tilt

As a part of the extensive training program in preparation for a conference game with the Brownfield Cubs here Friday, Pampa's Harvester football team will scrimmage Canadian's Wildcats under the lights at Harvester park tonight at 7:30.

Although it will not be a regulation game, Coach Ods Coffey said, the fans will get a good idea of what to expect in the team's first District 1-A game Friday.

Showing superiority in every department, the first team rambled over the reserves 38-0 Saturday night at the local football field. The reserves showed excellent line and backfield play but the first-stringers were just too powerful.

Jim Wilson and Kelley Anderson were outstanding in the backfield for the reserves. In the line, Don Rowe, at tackle, broke up several first string plays and was outstanding on both offense and defense. Bill Bain continued his steady progress as a line-backer.

Place Kick Prominent in Three Southwest Conference Contests

There is plenty of scoring in Southwest Conference football but the old reliable point after touch-down still is quite a necessary article in a team's repertoire.

The place-kick figured most prominently in three of four games played by the conference last week. Texas Christian triumphed over Texas A. and M. 13-12. Southern Methodist beat Rice 21-18 and Baylor pulled out with a 7-7 tie against Texas Tech.

Texas, of course, didn't have to worry about points after touchdown, although Tom Harrell plunked four between the cross-bars as the Longhorns smashed Arkansas 34-7, but the Orange has the boys around who can send that extra point home.

Other Texans placing in the rodeo included: Vic Schwartz, Jolly, second in saddle bronc riding; Bill McGuire, Fort Worth, third steer wrestling; Jim Whiteman, Clarksville, second, bull riding; and Manuel Enos, Fort Worth, third bull riding.

Gala Hair-do Is Glamorized With Jewelry

Better bring out your party dresses and brush up on your evening gala. GI home-comings are going to make things hum this fall and winter.

For hair-do tricks that can take top place with party dolls, here is what Hollywood—also stringing out banners for the boys—is up to:

Necklaces are going to girls' heads as well as their throats. If you have a pair, use both as Yvonne ("Frontier Gal") de Carlo does to shine up her braid. She interlaces one, zig-zag fashion, and holds it in place with hairpins, then criss-crosses that necklace with the other string of shiners.

Or you might try, with fine effect, what a Hollywood hair stylist suggests: use a glittery bracelet through which to pull curls to the top of your head. The trick is to separate curls into large, soft ringlets and to arrange and pin them so your jeweled bracelet peeps out in-between.

Suppose YOU hadn't been home for 3 years!

Chances are, the first thing you'd do when you got near a telephone would be to call the folks back home.

That's happening thousands of times every day, as more and more servicemen come back from overseas. Add other thousands of business calls as the country swings back to peacetime production, perhaps even a greater number of personal calls from people going to new jobs and new homes in other cities, and you have a BIG load on long distance lines.

When we've added new circuits and additional equipment, all calls will go through quickly. That will take some time, of course. In the meantime, if your call is delayed, we know you'll understand why.

What's the Matter With America?

Editor's Note—The article that follows originally appeared in the Detroit Free Press of which Mr. Knight is editor and publisher

By JOHN S. KNIGHT

What's the matter with America? What happens in Detroit will set the pattern for the rest of the country.

2. In Washington, there are indications that President Truman is reverting to type, that has pride in being a "good" party man will spell disaster for first-rate leadership.

Balanced as they were by naming Robert P. Patterson as secretary of war and Senator Harold H. Burton to the supreme court, the appointment of Bennett Clark to a District of Columbia judgeship and Paul McNutt as commissioner of the Philippines shows that the President intends to take care of the "faithful."

The abrupt canceling of lend-lease to Britain and politically expedient and won a heavy round of applause, but in view of the fact that everyone knows we shall eventually give England the aid she needs, a better solution might have been reached through a series of negotiations which would have insured us corresponding benefits in our trade relations with the best customer we had in former days.

It is possible that such criticism are unfair but they are nevertheless discouraging to anyone who feels rather deeply that in this critical period of readjustment, each and every act of the President must be based upon only one test—it is good for our country and will further the peaceful progress of the world?

In the 24 years that separated our participation in two World Wars, we have lost many of the intangibles that made America great. Our sense of values was discarded in the Harding-Coolidge era of unprecedented prosperity; our faith disappeared with Hoover; our morals with Roosevelt.

President Truman has an opportunity such as has been accorded few other men in history. A fateful destiny has placed him in the White House unfettered by obligations or hampered by precedent.

We devoutly hope that he will give up an administration of Lincolnian simplicity, that by his own example he will establish such a high standard of personal conduct that morality, fair play and respect for law will once again be regarded as cardinal virtues.

I have an idea that the people of the country would give one resounding cheer after another for any man in Mr. Truman's position who decided that, as our leading public servant, his life would be consecrated to upholding the right, regardless of political consequences.

We have drifted a long way from our spiritual moorings on the sea of cynicism and material values. Something fine has gone out of American life. Culture, the grace of living, courtesy and respect for others have become the casualties of a case-hardened materialistic scramble for wealth and power.

We have triumphed over our enemies in spectacular fashion. But unless we can conquer our own baser instincts and restrain ourselves morally with the true precepts of Christianity, the generations to come will be reading best sellers entitled, "What Happened to America?"

From a reading of the pronouncements of U. A. W. officials, you would get the idea that putting General Motors or Chrysler out of business was more important than coming to agreement on a basis that would insure uninterrupted production at high wages.

If such an uncompromising attitude is an example of labor statesmanship, there is disappointingly little hope to be held for the betterment of our industrial relations.

THE NATION'S PRESS
THE WPA ALL OVER AGAIN
(The Chicago Tribune)

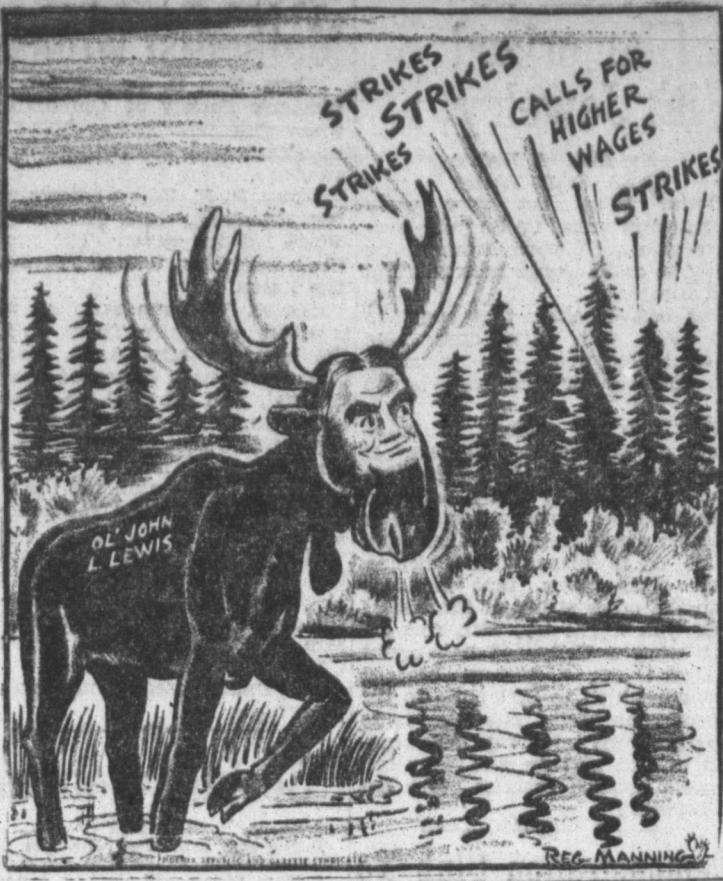

American employees of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration have disclosed the most scandalous mismanagement of UNRRA's affairs. Hundreds of employees who were signed in this country apparently have gone to Europe just for the ride. Some of them have content simply to draw their pay and enjoy the sights of London; others, anxious to get to work, have been frustrated by the total disorganization of the so-called organization.

Also the United States is putting up the major portion of the money for UNRRA, all of the "united nations" have been rushing to grab jobs in the organization. The result has been a polyglot mob whose members can't understand each other and can't get anything done. They can't even keep their pay roll records straight. Some of the Americans who joined under the impression that they were going to help relieve the distress of Europe are quitting in disgust.

Except that it is now on an international scale, UNRRA is nothing new to the people of this country. It's just the WPA all over again, with Uncle Sam putting out his money, not to relieve starving peoples, but to help support the political payrollers of Europe.

In the face of this record, UNRRA's request, transmitted by President Truman to congress, for $50 million more is nothing short of effrontery. The organization has already had 800 millions from this country, besides smaller but substantial contributions from Britain, Canada, and a few other nations. UNRRA recently announced that it has landed about a quarter of a billion dollars worth of supplies and food in Europe. What because of the other three-quarters of a billion or more is apparently a secret. We know that $1-

Call Of The Wild

News Behind the News The National Whirligig

By ALBERT LEMAN

CURE-ALL—Previous to this turbulent week, President Truman looked on the coming labor-management conference as the Aarons' rod which would miraculously open a path through the troubled industrial sea to the promised land of prosperity.

But as violence and business disruption engulf the nation, the public clamors for immediate action by the administration and congress.

Schwellenbach, Snyder and other business bigwigs are trying to frame a temporary formula for wages and prices. They are seriously handicapped by their labor board, its personnel—the men most experienced in solving labor disputes—are leaving town for private life.

Its half-lidded machinery may be restored or transferred to another body as a makeshift until the labor-management conference proposes a better control system. But there is no assurance that the delegates to this scheduled gathering will be able to produce a quick cure-all.

PROGRAMS — Labor Which banked on the November 5 meeting to advance its cause, fears that it will enter with public opinion mounting against it.

Before the "empire" is needed when one or both parties in an industrial dispute will not budge. A. F. of L. policy makers would like to have the division of mediation and conciliation in the labor department expanded and to use it as a compulsory agency between labor and management have reached a stalemate.

If these federal peacemakers failed to smooth the way to settlement, the matter would be placed before a higher federal board in Washington set up as a judicial fact-finding agency which would investigate and decide which side had the better case. Public opinion would then be relied on to force an adjustment.

DISPUTES—This roughly parallel portions of the McMahon bill now before congress. However, the Connecticut senator's measure stipulates that, once the services of a federal board's arbitrators are voluntarily engaged by both sides, their decisions are final and have the force of law.

The C. I. O. united union could operate, congress would have to authorize and appropriate funds for additional conciliation agencies, otherwise the present ones would be swamped as was the war labor board during the war. Delays in decision by the fact-finding agency increased labor troubles. Congress might not act in time to stop the current wave of disputes.

WAGE-PRICE — The measures outlined reject government coercion and trust to the cooperation of capitalist and labor. They are based on the free enterprise system.

But unbiased critics indicate that we have not yet arrived at full free enterprise. So long as price controls are needed to prevent inflation, we are still partly under the old war economy. Some over-all federal agency must deal with the pressure of pay demands on price ceilings.

Proposals mentioned in this column will be presented at the labor-management conference. If accepted, some of the steps may go far to establish industrial peace. But they are concerned by long-range program items which cannot solve the current wage-price problem.

Impartial experts believe that, so long as government keeps price controls as an economic necessity, it must show that wages can be lifted within the price structure without costs damaging to business, or it must boost ceilings to cover the wage raises.

Peter Edson's Column: SUBJECT OF POSTWAR MILITARY THINKING

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON.—Wherever military men gather these days the conversation always gets around to one of two subjects: minimizing the importance of the atomic bomb and the pros and cons of a unified command.

For some reason army and navy big shots can't get excited about the revolutionary aspects of the atomic bomb. They look upon it as a highly specialized weapon with plenty of flaws in its effectiveness.

The atomic bomb has sort of muddled the controversy over a unified command. Many who were for utilizing the two services before, now think the U. S. ought to wait until there is more careful thinking

David Lawrence DAY-BY-DAY COUNT ON WASHINGTON'S ACTIVITIES GIVEN

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Paradoxes are not novel in Washington but every now and then they emerge with surprising contradictions. Thus at the moment Capitol Hill is buzzing with demands for surplus properties be not sold to big companies and that monopolies be discouraged.

Yet in the committee rooms and congress at the same time there are hearings which one of President Truman's own cabinet secretaries is extolling the virtues of monopoly and big business and is urging that its pattern be copied in the handling of the war and navy departments.

"It will be said, I suppose," testified Secretary of War Patterson before the senate military affairs committee, "that no man can handle the job of secretary of the armed forces because of its size and complexity. It will be said that the organization will be too big, too unwieldy, and too diversified in its problems to operate effectively. The argument is not impressive. In the industrial world, experience has proved otherwise."

But has it? How many of the impetuously organized mergers of 1929 proved successful in an administrative sense? What did congress intend to say about the pyramided operations of utilities and their owners of holding companies? Mr. Patterson further outlines his idea of operations and it appears to resemble that of the holding company.

"An over-all organization confines itself more firmly to policy decisions and delegates more extensively the operating functions. Size is a relative thing."

This is the age-old argument in favor of monopoly, namely, that in bigness there is efficiency and that in large-sized companies there is a "division of labor." This is a debatable point because this country has witnessed a rapid growth of specialized stores and specialized factories that complete successfully with their big rivals. But what is not likely to be denied from experience is that large-sized corporations with the holding company type of over-all organization get farther and farther away from actual operations, and policies become more and more the source of friction between the policy-making level and those who have the responsibility of executing the policies.

Mr. Patterson's testimony indicates another fallacy. The secretary of war and the secretary of the navy actually do not make the policies of either of their departments. They appear to be sure, before congress, that they are not to be over-proportioned, but the responsibility for the kind of army or the kind of navy the United States has is not a civilian affair. It stems from the army and navy staffs themselves.

It has been contended, moreover, that the two major services compete with each other and it is surprising to find General Marshall, who ought to know his Washington better, calling attention to the fact that the navy recently offered its program of appropriations without consulting the army—as if this was a wrong procedure. Certainly the fact that the navy wants ships for what it believes is an adequate naval purpose has nothing to do with the reasons why the army may feel it needs tanks or heavy artillery or are needed to prevent inflation, we are still partly under the old war economy. Some over-all federal agency must deal with the pressure of pay demands on price ceilings.

Proposals mentioned in this column will be presented at the labor-management conference. If accepted, some of the steps may go far to establish industrial peace. But they are concerned by long-range program items which cannot solve the current wage-price problem.

Impartial experts believe that, so long as government keeps price controls as an economic necessity, it must show that wages can be lifted within the price structure without costs damaging to business, or it must boost ceilings to cover the wage raises.

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Venezuela's revolutionary junta, claiming control of the country after a short but bitter upheaval, today inaugurated a new government which is pledged to democracy under leadership of Romulo Betancourt, one-time communist who resigned from the party and denounced the creed.

The youthful Betancourt (he is 37 and is a former newspaper columnist) has promised a new constitution which will provide a universal secret ballot, and a meeting of the national assembly in April to fix a date for an election. He says that Venezuela will stand by hemispheric unity, and will respect the rights of foreigners and their investments. He has announced abolition of the aged press censorship, which this writer has encountered to his sorrow.

Well, Senator Betancourt has placed the pudding before us. However, the proof will be in the eating, and while we don't question its goodness, we will sample it before passing judgment.

When we speak of Venezuela we think of petroleum, for that great country possesses so much that it ranks third in world production. Now production of this liquid gold is in the hands of foreign interests who have been granted concessions. United States companies hold by far the greatest concessions, with the Dutch second and British third. So a revolutionary change of government in Caracas of vast importance to big oil business in these foreign countries.

For this reason the American and other foreign oil interests will breathe easier because of Senator Betancourt's promise that the new government will respect the contracts made by the previous regime. Untold millions of dollars have been staked by the concessionaires in the development of the oil fields—some of them in the hands of American oilmen.

Also if it be assumed that in the future congress is going to confine the armed services to a single lump-sum budget, the day of deterioration of strength in our armed services is not far off. If some civilian secretary is going to decide that the navy would rather spend an appropriation on one service rather than another, the United States may expect to witness some real inter-service lobbying, political pressure and perhaps the most trying squabbles in all the history of our armed services, with friction and inter-service rivalry intensified instead of diminished.

The suggested device of an assistant secretary to look out for the navy while an army man, who never had any experience or background in naval warfare, makes the ground decisions on an over-all basis will break down rather than build up morale in the navy and the same would be true in the army if a navy-minded man were given complete authority at the top.

The army and navy are designated in the constitution as separate and it is a mystery why high army officers and the air force officers have suddenly combined to carry on such a determined effort to get control of the entire armed services set up for themselves. Small wonder that the navy is opposed to the change and suspects that this is but one way to deprive the navy of its organization which it has maintained for years. The navy would have won the war in the Pacific sooner if it had been given the men and the supplies—a subject which also should be investigated in order to determine how much comprehension of naval warfare our high army and air forces had in 1943 and 1944 when the navy was providing the planes and supplies to carry the war against Japan.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.—Ben Hecht once wrote a very nasty but humorous letter to a small town exhibitor who reported that his film, "The Scoundrel," had laid an egg at his box-office. The exhibitor wrote back:

"Have framed your letter and hung it in the lobby of my theater. It is attracting more attention than your picture."

Ben hasn't written a letter to an exhibitor since.

But he is still feuding with moviegoers and theater exhibitors. "To hell with the fans," says Ben, breaking all rules in Hollywood's book to put "Specter of the Rose" on the screen. Like not getting paid, for instance, he'll share in the profits but he's receiving no salary.

The co-stars of the film are complete unknowns — Ivan Kriepke, a former Olympic swimming champion, and Viola Essen, a New York ballerina. Ben likes "characters" rather than fan magazine pictures in his movies.

"Specter of the Rose" is a comedy about a man who is pushed into the commissary along with the office help. That's what they get for making a fortune.

He also groaned over producers, and supervisors, and associate producers.

"We've never been able to figure out what they do. They have the tempo of 70-year-old men."

My goodness, the way styles change is enough to wear a girl out. Just as I finally got my sweaters back from the cleaners, a fashion expert tells me that the latest emphasis will be on the hips. This will disconcert every woman but Mad West, who still has nothing to worry about.

This fashion authority claims that hip emphasis will appeal to returning service men. But I don't believe they'll pay much attention to fine points of style. They'll only ask of girls what their draft boards first asked them. If they're alive and warm, they'll take them.

At times like these I wish I were a man. No expert ever tells them that trousers are through and that they must start wearing Roman togas to emphasize the knobs on their knees.

ESME OF PARIS by Gene Davis

SUCCESS AND TRAGEDY

THE Colon season opened with a really fantastic bill—far more important and costly than the previous year. The Argentines had made so much money on the World War, they did not care what anything cost them.

I had one success after another from the very first night and was treading on air. All the teamwork I had done the previous year at the Colon and during a short engagement with Nemanoff at the Empire was a perfect base for us to work on. He was just a little taller than I, and though not handsome, made a magnificent appearance on the stage. He was powerfully built and as fair as I was dark—always an interesting contrast for dancers. I was also having a personal success, with all the admirers I could possibly want and a lot I did not want. When I looked in retrospect at the last six months of my life, I could not believe that I had ever been so weak and stupid as to have got myself involved in a marital tangle.

Because I could find no hotel both good and inexpensive, I found a tiny house on a quiet street close to a shady park where I could have all the animals I wanted without interference and a large studio where I could install a piano and practice. Number 1420 Juncal was the address of this house which was very lucky for me and became quite famous in Buenos Aires.

I did not dare to write mother that I was actually living all alone in my own house and did not think it was diplomatic to tell father either, but of course I wrote the entire story about Leslie to him. He replied saying that the subject of my marriage was very painful and that he would prefer not to hear or write any more about it.

LIFE was very pleasant in Buenos Aires that year—I don't remember a dull moment. I was making and saving money. My only extravagance was the parties I gave in Juncal for my fellow dancers. I got on well with all of them and we had some riotous times on beer and sandwiches, generally after the show—for we were all too serious to think of letting any amusements interfere with our work.

Many of the girls in the ballet had got themselves tangled up in sentimental complications, but I always steered clear of anything of the sort. Although I never used my husband's name except for business purposes or told anyone except my best friends about my marriage, I felt I owed him at least enough respect to entrust me myself and concentrate on the work I had left for me.

I gained more confidence in myself as the season went on and began to think seriously about trying out an idea I had for a ballet. I made a plan of it and showed it to a good friend of mine, Auguste Mauraige, a composer and concert violinist of outstanding merit. He had come to the Colon, first as first violinist with Saint-Saens and then with the Pavlova company. He liked my idea so much that, after studying it, he said he would write the music and we would produce it together if it was successful. We worked on the ballet "Harlequin Nois" in my studio, and I designed the decor and costumes and planned out the choreography with Nemanoff.

THE season of the Colon was to finish in Buenos Aires with some "farewell" popular functions, and rumors had been flying about ever since Rio that, in spite of the colossal success, everything was not well and that Bonetti had been losing money. It seemed incredible, for the Colon had been packed for every show. Bonetti undoubtedly had a terrific salary sheet to cover, and I suppose the general intake was not up to his expectations. We continued working unusually late in the season, giving command performances for the Presidents of Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bonetti were worried about something, I could tell, and I felt terribly sorry for them—they were such a grand couple. Some of the big stars who had earned thousands of dollars sulked and muttered in corners about the Bonettis' being broke.

The climax came when the season in Buenos Aires was nearly over. I was up in the wardrobe room with Madame Bonetti one afternoon, checking ballet costumes that were to be sent back to Italy, when her son came running upstairs looking for her. After talking to him she turned white and asked me to accompany her. We hurried down to Mr. Bonetti's office. Stagehands and the office personnel were standing about evoking fear. I felt a chill creep over me when Madame Bonetti tried to open the office door and found it locked. She could get no answer from within, so young Bonetti, nearly beside himself, broke down the door. Mr. Bonetti was unconscious in his chair, with a loaded revolver clenched in his hand. He had suffered a stroke at the precise moment he was about to pull the trigger.

The Bonettis were ruined, and there was nothing for poor Madame to do but take her sick husband and, together with her son, return to Italy. Mario Corelli remained to close the Colon. I never heard what happened to the Bonettis except that they sold their home, and that Mr. Bonetti was an invalid.

Vets Are Offered Courses of Agriculture at Texas A & M

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 20.—(A&M)—Returned war veterans are being offered one and two-year programs of practical studies at the Texas A. & M. college to prepare them for opportunities in business allied with agriculture. Chas. H. Shepardson, dean of agriculture, has announced.

A practical agricultural education is becoming more and more essential to successful conduct of crop and livestock production as new developments appear upon the vast agricultural scene, Dean Shepardson said.

These basal courses, therefore, are designed to give the veteran a scientific background for agricultural production that will enable him to enter into the business of farming, ranching, or allied enterprises, with the education that modern agriculture demands.

The curricula announced for these courses, one to be completed in nine school months and the other in 18 school months, represents intensive work by Dean Shepardson and his staff.

These practical agricultural courses do not lead to a college degree. While records of high school work are not required upon entrance, Dean Shepardson pointed out that it should be to the advantage of the student to file any high school credits that are fundamental have been listed as prescribed subjects. Dean Shepardson has left ample room in each course for elective studies that will fit the trainee for the particular employment in which he is interested.

More than 40 engagements in her two-and-a-half-year fighting career, had much to tell the former prisoners, without news of the outside world nearly four years.

"Who is this Henry Kaiser?" asked a German veteran. Some were elated that they had guessed as close as May 1 on the date of the fall of Germany but the story of the invasion was news to them. The names of Clement Attlee and Harry Truman likewise were new to them.

"How many cruisers like this do you have?" asked a liberated chief petty officer, marveling at the size and fire power of the Mobile, of which he had never heard until he came aboard.

"Oh—about 40," he was told. "He walked away. Nobody was going to pull his leg!"

STILL GOING STRONG OKINAWA.—(Delayed)—Although V-J Day brought an end to hostilities, it meant only a breathing spell and a back to work order for N. R. Ferrell, SC-3, Pampa, and W. A. Reed, CBM, Dwight street, Pampa, of the 112th U. S. naval construction battalion.

This Seabee outfit, which has been overseas 19 months, had a part in the construction of the gigantic naval air station at Kaneohe bay, Oahu, T. H., and of the superfortress base on Tinian.

Former President Of Mexico Dies

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. today for Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, 68, former President of Mexico, who died of a stomach ailment yesterday after an illness of several years.

President of Mexico for a four-year term, from Dec. 1, 1924, to Nov. 30, 1928, Calles was a dominating figure in Mexican politics for many years.

By order of President Avila Camacho, who will preside at the services, Calles will receive full honors as a former president. A 21-gun salute will be fired in front of the Calles home as the body is removed to be taken to the Panticon civil cemetery, and a similar salute will be fired at the grave.

Members of the cabinet, legislators and other high-ranking government officials will attend, and flags on all public buildings will fly at half staff during the day.

Born of obscurity of humble parents who died when he was a child, Calles was successively a farm boy, country teacher, storekeeper, revolutionist and soldier.

He joined the revolutionary movement in 1910 against the entrenched dictatorship of President Porfirio Diaz. He became a colonel in the revolutionary forces in 1913 and a general in 1915.

When Gen. Alvaro Obregon led the revolutionary army into Mexico City, completing the overthrow of Diaz, Calles became military governor of Sonora. He served as secretary of industry, commerce and labor under President Venustiano Carranza, and as secretary of the interior in the cabinet of President Obregon, whom he succeeded to the presidency.

In 1936 he was banished to the United States by President Lázaro Cárdenas, who has his protegee. He remained five years in San Diego, Calif., while his properties in Mexico were confiscated, but returned after President Avila Camacho took office.

Increased power of the diet will be one more safeguard against the future "misuse of the constitution," he added.

Texas Today . . .

Step right over here, folks! Gila monsters, squirrels, mullet, rats, fish—

The appearance of gila monsters has Denison puzzled. The reptiles have been found in the area recently, and the only explanation anyone can give is that maybe they escaped from a carnival which played there not long ago.

There are, the Waco Times-Herald admits unblushingly, rats in the county jail. But there aren't as many as there used to be.

Six drunks were jailed one cold night and Jailer John Cochran says the next morning he found 18 rats neatly piled beside the cell door.

The men, says Jailer Cochran, either killed the rats for the fun of it or needed the exercise to keep warm.

"They did a better job than any cat we've had around here," he said, and added wistfully that he wouldn't mind if the boys got drunk again—and came back for a visit.

Game Ranger John McMillan of Macill didn't get his man but was well repaid for his efforts, anyway.

He found a man fishing in Lake Texoma, allowed him to get a quarter mile to his car to get his fishing license, which he said he had "forgotten."

The fisherman got in his car and scrambled. He left behind a rod and reel and several fish. McMillan says he can have his rod and reel if he'll come back and answer charges of possessing two small fish, and fishing without a license.

The Waco area is overrun with squirrels, Harry Provenance of the Waco paper says. There are so many that one woman recently asked for a license to shoot some inside the city limits. They were eating all her pecans.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Two German prisoners of war, Fritz Beckner and Karl Henglein, beckoned a cruising police car and in broken English asked for a ride.

Questioning developed that they had crawled under a work camp fence six hours earlier, crossed town and visited friends at another POW camp.

They were en route back to their own camp, the two said, explaining they stopped the police car because "we thought it was a taxi."

foregone conclusion that De Gaulle would have the task of riding herd on them and, barring a coalition of two parties, the assembly might be difficult to govern.

The assembly will choose a provisional president when it meets Nov. 8. The support given his referendum and the election of 15 of his ministers constituted an uncontested endorsement of De Gaulle's leadership.

The communists, who were turned down in their bid for union with the socialists earlier this year, are sharply at odds with the socialists on foreign policy. They say De Gaulle and the socialists seek a "western bloc" of nations directed against the soviet union.

The socialists reply that they are not taking a stand against the U. S. S. R. but merely want a "family" of western nations.

The socialists want a unicameral legislature for the Fourth republic. De Gaulle desires a bicameral system.

The MRP, a Catholic democratic party, favors nationalization of trusts and has socialistic tendencies. It is at odds with the communists and socialists in its support of state subsidies for religious schools.

The composition of the 1936 French chamber of deputies, last assembly to be elected until yesterday's balloting for a constituent assembly was: Communists, 74 seats; socialists, 184; radical socialists, 142; right, 206; popular democrats, 14.

The MPR retains vestiges of the popular democratic group.
