Slacks Tapered to Figure Keep Hips' Size a Secret

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

Now that you want trousers freedom for out-of-doors working or loafing, you can wear slacks and keep your masculine admirers if you know your figure and which slacks to choose.

Best slacks for keeping hip-size a secret, says Lou Schaeffer, self-styled "king of slacks," grow from man-styled pants legs to a fullish top. The "king" gives more advice. If followed, it will help to keep hips of all sizes safe from wisecracks.

One tip is on size, which he says should match hips. If they have grown a little out of proportion to a waist, you can always pleat in surplus fullness at the waist in front; take it in at the back with darts.

The color that best narrows down rear-expanse, it seems, is navy blue. The bright colors and the bold prints are for girls with well-sized hips—but, of course, you KNOW that. Where a tummy as well as hips needs camouflage, wear a jacket with your slacks or hang out your shirttail.

You're warned not to cinch in your belt, unless your waist is a temptation to span with two good-sized hands. You're reminded, too, that a close-hauled waist accentuates the size of your hips.

Girls' trousers, like men's, take tailoring, keep their shape, and hold their creases better when they're made of firmly woven fabrics. Another tip from the "king" concerns trouser length, which he thinks should hit the first row of laces of your walkers or the highest point of the vamp of the wedges.

His final hint is a boost for the little two-way stretch, which because it knits in feminine curves is recommended as a good undercover aid.

A pantie girdle is good undercover aid for trim-fitting slacks.

Let Your Husband Select Your Clothes

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

In spite of the fact that she walked with a "seeing-eye" dog in the Easter fashion parade at Asbury Park, N. J., Mrs. Joseph Vaughn Weeks of nearby Red Bank received an orchid as one of the best-dressed women out for a morning stroll.

Her husband, she said in explaining the chieftess of her outfit, had selected her clothes for her.

Many women would dress more becomingly if they let their husbands have the say on what they should or shouldn't buy. The reason is that a man looks at a hat or suit or coat with no preconceived ideas of what is currently "smart."

He hasn't been studying fashion magazines, so his head isn't crammed full of information about the new kind of sleeves, the favored colors, and the stylishness of padded shoulders.

Nor does he know or care what the other women in his wife's bridge club have bought. And he isn't intimidated by a clerk's dismayed, "But NOBODY is wearing that this season."

According to announcement made by Bob Clark, manager of the chamber of commerce, the winner at Vernon will receive a trip to Hollywood and a large cash prize.

50 YEARS A DOCTOR, HE FROWNS ON VACATIONS

PITTSBURG—(P)—Dr. William Theodore Moke celebrated completion of 50 years as a practicing physician by working a 12-hour day and grabbing a hasty lunch at 3 p. m.

Dr. Moke, at 70, isn't interested in retiring. He plans to keep on practicing as long as patients flock to his old-fashioned waiting room.

Once, a few years ago, Dr. Moke took a vacation—but he said he didn't enjoy it. Hard work and regular habits, he claims, keep a man young and healthy.

Where Singing in Streets Is Crime

RIO DE JANEIRO—(P) Press reports from Araruna, in the Brazilian state of Paraba, say that a recent court ruling there branded singing in the streets a crime. The same ruling, it is reported, declared that playing volley ball in the street is legal.

Men Look for Beauty

Being a man, he has an open mind when it comes to women's fashions. All he sees is whether or not a dress or hat makes his wife look pretty—and he's with smartness that isn't flattering.

But few women have any respect for their husbands' ability to help them select their clothes. They buy what they like, or what they think will impress "the girls," and then come home to ask, "Do you like it, dear?" without really believing it important whether a mere man approves or disapproves.

Maybe men don't know anything about fashions. But perhaps that is just the reason why it is easy for a man to see whether or not a hat or dress is becoming to his wife.

Around the world 84 times in one year!

During 1946 the Bell System is spending millions of dollars for more than 2,000,000 additional miles of long distance telephone circuits—enough to go around the world 84 times!

Many of these new circuits are already in and working—helping handle the flood of calls that crowd the lines. Delayed calls are already becoming fewer, and delays themselves shorter.

Our first goal is to bring back prewar standards of long distance service. When we've done that, we'll try for even a better record.

Posture Habits Begin With Baby

NEA Staff Feature

You can stake out your baby's future claims to good posture by keeping the curves out of her straight little back—the natural endowment at birth of every normal infant.

Doctors warn against improper handling which may cause distortions. They say that favoring one hand when you pick her up or carry her around is bad, because she'll lean in one direction. So, use the right hand one time when you take her up, the left hand the next. If you'll hold her so that she can fully survey what she wants to see without twisting her body, you'll be outwitting curves on still another count.

Don't encourage her to sit up too soon. If you'll train her in the iron-rod school—which promises an erect little body as she grows up—you'll discourage sitting up until her back is strong enough to support her. The way to invite curves is to prop her up with pillows in her crib, pram or playpen before she's ready to sit up.

HOOSIER STATE HONORS ERNIE PYLE

DANA, Ind.—(P)—The Indiana Highway Commission plans a roadside park on U. S. Highway 36 near the birthplace of Ernie Pyle as a memorial to the war correspondent killed by the Japanese in the Pacific April 13, 1945.

A feature will be a replica in Indiana limestone of the statue of Pyle erected on Ie Shima, where he was killed and buried. The highway commission and the Ernie Pyle Memorial, Inc., jointly are sponsoring the park.

Helicopter travel is estimated to cost only a fraction more than five cents a mile.

Lucky children? Yes, for many reasons. Doctors tell us they'll live longer... we believe that they will live better... electrically. Scientists and inventors are converting wartime miracles to peacetime wonders and are now at work on new wonders of modern living. Everything seems to be pointing toward better living for our children. Electricity will play more than its share in making plans for tomorrow come true. Everywhere our children will find reliable, low-cost electricity waiting to serve them. Electricity will be in their homes, guarding their eyesight; in their schools, aiding in visual education; in their stores, making their buying easier; in their theaters, their places of work, their libraries, hospitals, churches... everywhere will be electricity... for better living.

MUMPS THE WORD

TRUMP, Minn.—(P)—Mumps was no reason for the Rev. Paul Leroy Olson to keep mum, he thought.

After preparing what he believed was an especially good sermon for Sunday, the Rev. Mr. Olson came down with the mumps.

Not wishing to expose his flock, he hooked up a loud speaker at the mission covenant church and spoke from his home.

The whole situation would be greatly helped if Russia would release to China and Korea a part of the foodstuffs they have secured in Manchuria. —Herbert Hoover, chairman President's famine emergency committee.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Notebook

By HAL BOYLE
COPENHAGEN—(P)—Kings in wartime need a military Emily Post to tell them what to do if their countries are overrun.

It isn't easy to outline a rule of monarchial etiquette in such cases. There are pros and cons on both sides.

King Leopold of Belgium—stuck with his surrendered legions after directing them in the field and thereafter lived in compromise with the invaders.

Now he doesn't have a palace he can really call his own and lives in uneasy exile in Switzerland.

George of Greece—is the second king suffering from a housing problem in his native land. He hopped, skipped and jumped with his family from Athens to Crete to Egypt to London ahead of German troops. Like Leopold he is awaiting a popular referendum on the question of his return.

Exhibit three—Peter of Yugoslavia. He led a popular resistance movement against the Nazis when Regent Prince Paul wanted to play ball with them. But Tito, who stayed, took over from Peter, who left, leaving the young monarch stranded in London without a throne.

Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, on the other hand, crossed the North Sea to Britain's capital from the burning ruins of Rotterdam. No one thought less of her and in ensuing years the "Wise Queen" became even dearer to her people's hearts than before.

Zog of Albania is an example of "the king who looks and runs away" may live to rule another day. But there is no evidence that Zog, who pulled out under the shadow of Mussolini, will ever get a Soviet welcome.

Kings Haakon of Norway and Christian of Denmark with George of England among the world's rulers least likely to suffer from occupational unemployment.

Haakon refused to leave for London until popular demand showed it to be the will of his people. He became in absentia a symbol of Norwegian resistance both in and out of Norway.

His brother, however, stayed in Denmark and became a show piece of incorruptible Danish home front antagonism to Adolf Hitler's global urge.

Molotov

States but entirely different aspirations.

Molotov said Russia could not agree to calling a formal 21-nation peace conference until the representatives of the "big four" had reached preliminary agreement on treaty questions.

For the United States to insist upon such a procedure, Molotov declared, "could have the most undesirable consequences for the further development of friendly relations among the nations seeking to establish a stable peace."

Molotov said Byrnes' proposal would result in a confused situation under which several totally different treaty drafts might be submitted to the peace conference, with the result that the whole thing would end in "fiasco."

Seniority

fore he was inducted in May, 1945. He was discharged from the army in July, 1944, and went back to his old job. Work slackened and he was laid off for nine days. Non-veterans continued at work.

Fishgold sued the company in U. S. district court and won $86—nine days' pay. The union appealed to the federal circuit court in New York City and won reversal of the district court decision.

The circuit court said congress intended that a veteran was to be assured of his job for a year, but that the place to which he was restored was to be subject to the same conditions as those affecting his prewar job.

Douglas for the majority said that the veteran in returning to his old job steps back on "the seniority escalator" at the precise point he would have occupied had he kept his position continuously during the war.

Douglas took note of a rule by selective service that the act "required reinstatement of a veteran to his former position or one of like seniority, status and pay even though such reinstatement necessitates the discharge of a non-veteran with a greater seniority."

He added: "In view of the language of the act and the nature of the administrative findings we would want explicit indication by congress that it chose the director's interpretation before we concluded that congress had adopted it."

Since there's virtually no coal in Warsaw because of the lack of railway cars and trucks, thousands of families have purchased electric heaters. The result is that when people are home at night there is more demand than there is current.

CANDLESTICK MAKER HAS HIS DAY—AT NIGHT
WARSAW, Poland—(P)—Business is booming for hundreds in Warsaw who earn their living making candles. The city must do most of its night work by candlelight.

The reason is simply stated by the manager of the Russian-rebuilt electric power plant: He turns off the power.

PATHETIC PLEAS MADE FOR SHIPS AF NEWCASTLE
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—A shipping bottleneck is keeping more than 200 South Africans from visiting Europe to hunt for missing next-of-kin, while more than 10,000 persons are waiting in England for passage to South Africa.

"Every day we receive pathetic letters," said an immigration and passport officer, "but there is little we can do. Our allocation works out at 50 berth a month, out of which urgent business and other priorities must be accommodated."

"Some of the South Africans stranded in England are young war widows and children in dire financial straits because of being unable to return home."

The South Africans waiting for passage to Europe are mostly naturalized settlers from the Balkan countries, many of whom left their families behind. The Red Cross and other organizations have made strenuous efforts to find some trade of their kin, without success.

Gripe Board

partment was not upset by the findings.

Fatterson announced that "some steps already have been taken" to remedy problems set out in the report, but he noted that congressional approval and appropriations would be required to carry out some of the suggestions.

The board ascribed poor relationships between commissioned and enlisted personnel to two main factors: 1. "Undeniably poor leadership on the part of a small percentage of those in a position of responsibility," and 2. "A system that permits and encourages a wide official and social gap" between officers and men.

To improve officer leadership—the board recommended specifically that previous military training—preferably one year in the ranks—be required of all appointees, except technicians not placed in command positions.

Proposing a complete review of the army's system of promoting officers, the board urged that it be on a merit basis rather than on seniority and be coupled with provisions for demotions.

Other specific recommendations included:
Retirement—A system to permit retirement upon completion of 10, 20, or 30 years, for enlisted men as well as officers, or after physical disability.
Pay—The present system of base pay should be "reviewed from top to bottom" and take into consideration the increased rates of pay in industry and business.
Allowances—Fixing allowances on a sliding scale basis, with government-purchased food distributed equitably to all grades and ranks, and all ranks equally privileged to make private purchases. Clothing and uniforms should be issued to all ranks, in contrast to the existing arrangement whereby officers buy their own.
Terminal leave—Enlisted men as well as officers should be given terminal leave pay for unused furlough time, as provided in a proposal already before congress; elimination of mustering out pay now given enlisted men and officers below major.
Social relations—Off duty, all military personnel should be permitted "normal social patterns comparable to our democratic way of life." Use of discriminatory references such as "officers and their ladies; enlisted

Strikes

Charles G. Ross said there were no plans for presidential conferences today on the coal crisis.

While Mr. Truman's calling list was limited to talks with congressional leaders and an appointment with Secretaries Byrnes and Vinson, Ross told reporters there was no particular significance in that.

He said Mr. Truman originally planned to fly to Oklahoma City today to address the governors' conference and made no routine appointments for that reason.

The apparent coal shutdown, a renewal of the 42-day-long strike that ended with the truce on May 13, posed a new threat to the nation's railroads, operating again after the dramatic settlement of the rail labor dispute.

Lack of fuel might bring the men and their wives" be eliminated.

Justice—Equality for all ranks, "the higher the rank the more severe the punishment," and provision for enlisted men to serve on courts.

Decorations—A system of awards to provide more equitable distribution based on merit and more difficult to obtain as rank increases.
