Earthquake Hits Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A major earthquake devastated this Central American capital Saturday, crumbling buildings, starting large fires and killing hundreds of persons. One man said "it felt like the end of the world."

Thousands were injured. Other thousands roamed the streets as if in a daze or fled to the countryside as smoke billowed from the rubble.

The known death count was reported as at least 200, but unconfirmed radio reports said as many as 5,000 persons may have been killed and 50,000 injured. At least one American, a U.S. embassy secretary, was killed.

destroyed in the quake, one in a series of seismic jolts late Friday and early Saturday.

The Geneva-based league of National Red Cross Societies said relief shipments, including three tons of plasma from Spain, were being sent by Red Cross organizations in Europe and the Americas.

Damage to Managua, a city of 300,000 beside a large lake, was heaviest downtown, where numerous big buildings collapsed. About half of the population was left homeless, and over-all destruction was reported to be more than half of all structures.

"The situation is horrible," said Juan Jose Barrios Taracena, who left for Guatemala soon after the quake. "There is no water or electricity. People were starting to loot stores even though the army was trying to patrol the streets."

The Pan American Airlines office in Managua said in a report to its U.S. offices Saturday afternoon: "The city is still burning. Vast areas of the city have been destroyed by quake or fire... There are no hotel accommodations, no electricity..."

It said government officials distributing emergency supplies critically needed tents and blankets, "due to the large number of homes destroyed."

The ruling three-man junta and the chief of the armed forces declared martial law to prevent looting.

Normal radio and telephone communications with the outside were cut off, and the city was left without water or electricity. Highways leading into Managua were closed.

IN APOLLO PHOTOS

Earth Appears As Ornament

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A photograph of the earth from deep space, showing the planet as a Christmas ornament-like blue ball streaked with whites and tans, was among eight Apollo 17 color pictures released Saturday by the space agency.

Other color pictures released Saturday include: —A picture of Schmitt on the moon's surface working beside the electric car he and Cernan used on the moon. Patches of orange soil, a major discovery of the mission, can be seen. —Cernan driving the electric car in a check-out run. —Evans walking in space. He is seen floating above the service module of the spacecraft while recovering film from an instrument bay. —The Apollo 17 command ship, photographed from the moon landing craft. —Schmitt raking up a sample of lunar soil on the moon. —Schmitt standing beside a house-sized boulder on the moon. —Schmitt sitting in the lunar rover or electric car.

The photograph, called "fantastic" by the space agency, shows clearly the outline of the continent of Africa and the white ice-choked Antarctic land mass. Clouds, streaked white swirls, streak the Atlantic and Indian oceans which are seen as a startling deep blue.

In the distance, the photograph catches the outline of the southern coast of Asia. The Arabian peninsula, the island nation of Malagasy Republic and the Mediterranean can all be seen plainly.

The men of Apollo 17, Eugene A. Cernan, Harrison H. Schmitt and Ronald E. Evans, continued debriefings Saturday on their mission. They will take a break for the Christmas holidays and return on Jan. 2.

Scientists plan to open the first box containing moon samples gathered by Apollo 17 here next week. The contents include samples of the orange soil which some believe may be the youngest moon material ever brought to earth.

Truman Showing Slight Improvement

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Though comatose and in critical condition, Harry S. Truman battled against the prolonged strain on his heart Saturday night and a hospital spokesman said the 88-year-old former president was showing slight improvement.

18th day of hospitalization, has shown increasing inability to shake off prolonged strain on his heart, lungs and kidneys.

"President Truman's condition is slightly improved, but still critical," the spokesman said at 6 p.m. CST briefing. "His blood pressure is somewhat more stable now at times. He is experiencing periods of increased pulse... the fluid in his lungs has decreased slightly and his respiration has improved."

The spokesman added, however, that Truman's kidney functions continued to be inadequate and he was still getting medication for blood pressure.

The announcement of improvement came after a day of reports that Truman continued to decline.

But the evening report said Truman's condition was such that his doctors were no longer in attendance at all times. They had been from early Saturday until mid-afternoon.

The former president, in his Chances of a white Christmas for Texas apparently blew away during the weekend with a new cool front which was about midway through the state Saturday.

The front brought clear skies and only a moderate drop in temperatures.

The thermometer reading at Amarillo, for instance, was 51 degrees at 1 p.m. Saturday.

That was the coldest spot in the state at that moment, with readings in the 70s along the coast and in the Rio Grande Valley. The only city not reporting clear skies was Big Spring, where it was partly cloudy.

The forecast for Sunday was for cooler to colder weather with skies generally fair.

Hanoi Minister Killed?

SAIGON (AP) — American warplanes continued their assault on the areas around Hanoi and Haiphong on Saturday, and the U.S. Command acknowledged the loss earlier of 1960 B-52 bombers.

South Vietnamese intelligence sources claimed that North Vietnamese Defense Minister Vo Nguyen Giap was killed Friday in an explosion while touring a bomb-damaged area of Haiphong.

The claim was denied by the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks.

U.S. officials said they had no knowledge of the report.

The Saigon sources said Giap, 60, was killed when a "delayed mine" exploded as he walked through the rubble at the Tran Hung Dao armaments depot in the port city. No other details of the alleged incident were available.

The U.S. Command's announcement that two more B-52s have been lost brought to 10 the number of the bombers reported lost since Monday night — when bombing above the 20th Parallel was resumed — and Friday morning. During the prior 7½ years that B-52s were used in Indochina, 12 were lost and only one of them in combat.

U.S. spokesmen have acknowledged the loss of four other warplanes in the new bombing campaign with a total of at least 55 missing airmen.

No White Christmas

receive toys, candy and fruit.

Numerous social and civic clubs also have arranged to take care of the needy.

One Pampa man and his wife collected funds to make Christmas happy for 53 children whose names were supplied by the County Welfare Office. They saw to it that Santa Claus, with traditional red suit and flowing white beard, called on them individually.

Come Tuesday morning, another Christmas will have passed and Pampans will return to the workaday world.

During the coming week there will be occasional open houses, office parties and group observances to mark the passing of an old year and to take a hopeful look into the new 1973.

WAITING IN ANTICIPATION — This is the scene that will be noted in many houses throughout the nation tonight as children await the arrival of Santa Claus. Children will awaken Monday morning to open the presents left behind by St. Nick before preparing for the family dinners and reunions.

Thousands Of Pilgrims Come To Bethlehem For Celebration

BETHLEHEM (AP) — To the music of bells, thousands of pilgrims from around the world are ready to celebrate Christmas Eve joyfully in this hilltop town where Jesus was born. Among them, Israeli troops watch for any attempts by guerrillas to shatter the day's gaiety.

Carol singing is scheduled in a parking lot a few yards from the manger where, tradition says, the baby Jesus lay. Manger Square, outside the 800-year-old Church of the Nativity, shines with colored lights.

A 25-foot evergreen tree by Bethlehem's stone police station winks the season's greetings. And on the barren hillsides, shepherds watch their flocks as they did on the first Christmas.

As on that day there's no room at the inn—Bethlehem's two tiny hotels are full and nearby Jerusalem is booked heavily. For the first time ever, the glory of Bethlehem's mid-night Mass is being televised live to Europe, via Israel's new satellite station. To the United States, Columbia Broadcasting System is transmitting color film of the ceremony for showing later.

Cameras were set up among the oil lamps beneath the Nativity Church, in the very grotto which tradition claims as the site of Christ's stable.

Manger Square, a parking lot most of the year, was emptied to hold throngs of pilgrims from America, Europe, Asia and Africa, Arab Christians and blue-bereted United Nations truce observers in the Middle East.

To prevent terrorist infiltration, police checkpoints were set up on every road to Bethlehem to admit only pilgrims, nearby Christian residents and those with official passes.

Despite the security precautions, Arab Mayor Elias Frej said the Christmas Eve crowd was the first of an expected total of 30,000 visitors to Bethlehem, where Christmas comes three times a year.

Panhandle Area Readies For Christmas

By TEX DEWEESE

It is the morning of the day before Christmas people the world over are pausing for joyful celebration on the anniversary of the birth of the Christ child.

Residents of Pampa and Gray County will join at worship services this morning as once again churches are filled to mark that holy day of nearly 2,000 years ago.

Along with special Christmas music will be prayers that the true Spirit of Christmas—Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men—soon will come true.

Christmas is also a time of gladness for children. Tonight will supply the big event in their lives.

It is on Christmas Eve that Santa Claus arrives. From the bottomless pack he carries, St.

Nicholas will distribute toys for the kiddies and gifts for Mom and Dad, Sis and Brother.

Reports last midnight indicated all was in readiness at the North Pole for Santa to start his trip to the Texas Panhandle at dusk today.

He should arrive in Pampa around midnight.

In homes here and everywhere, families will gather around Christmas trees for the age-old custom of gift unwrapping. It is always a happy time, cradled in gleeful shouts of surprise from young and old alike.

Business in Pampa ground almost to a halt last night as late shoppers visited stores in search for gifts to complete Christmas lists.

Practically all stores and shops with exception of some food and service establishments will be closed Monday.

There will be no mail deliveries tomorrow. City, county, state and federal offices will be closed.

Public, parochial and private schools have suspended classes for the holiday season. College students are home to join in family reunions.

Wives and mothers across the city will be busy tonight and early tomorrow with preparation of traditional Christmas dinners for family members and relatives coming from afar.

City police, the county sheriff's department and the Texas Highway Patrol all are on holiday watch.

Each has sent out pre-holiday warnings to motorists to drive with caution in an effort to hold down an expected high holiday traffic death toll in Texas during the Christmas-New Year period.

The Salvation Army, thanks to contributions from Pampans, has made certain that nearly 100 needy families will be supplied with Christmas dinners and their children will

ONE OF MANY HAPPY CHRISTMASSES — Capt. L.Z. Sullivan of the Salvation Army helps Garvin McCarrell load up a recipient of Pampa's Christmas to those who would not have one otherwise. In the sack are toys, a new one for each child and a used one. In the box are a hen, canned goods, jello and Christmas candy. Capt. Sullivan lauded the citizens of the city for their help in the project. The 18-year old McCarrell spends much of his time helping the Corps.

Salvation Army Working To Bring Happy Holiday

By RAY BAXTER

Christmas is many things to many people but, to the citizens of Pampa working through the Salvation Army, it is "something for everyone."

This Yule Season the Salvation Army prepared 83 food baskets for distribution to those who might not otherwise have Christmas—and those baskets were made possible through the citizens of Pampa in general and the students of the Pampa school system in particular.

According to Capt. L.Z. Sullivan, Pampans came up with everything needed, including canned food from Pampa schools to stock a neighborhood grocery store. In addition, high school students responded with toys.

All this was augmented here and there by the Corps out of its budget to be sure there were no "thin spots."

The baskets were divided into three sizes with the large ones for families with more than four children. Medium baskets were for those up to four children while the small ones were for couples, mostly among the aged.

Then there were sacks of toys. These were prepared so that each child benefited by the program of the Salvation Army at Christmas would have one new toy and at least one used toy. Capt. Sullivan's crew made sure there were dolls and footballs.

The new toys were in the sacks. The used toys were arranged so that each mother could select at least one used toy for each of her children.

When the News looked in on these preparations, Capt. Sullivan noted: "The response has been so great in this area (used toys) that there may be enough for more than one used toy per child."

The food baskets consisted of hens, potatoes an assortment of canned foods, jello and Christmas candy.

They were distributed at Salvation Army headquarters Friday.

"We try to do this in an orderly fashion, giving each family a time on a card to come by and get their Christmas food and toys," the Salvation Army officer said. "However, there are always eager ones and they are here at least two hours before we open."

There were two Christmas parties for children. The Corps had planned to have its own Christmas tree this morning.

"One most important thing built into our Christmas efforts," Capt. Sullivan reminded, "is that I will be here all the time through noon Monday, Christmas Day, with some food baskets and toys held in reserve for anyone who might have been missed or who discovers that, through misfortune, there will be no Christmas at their house."

Walter: Cheerful And Natural As Sunshine

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — The average comedian is about as much fun to be with offstage as a 95-year-old Anglican bishop with an acute case of gout.
Not our man Walter Matthau, the current top banana among film laugh makers. He is as natural as sunshine and cheerful as a mountain spring.
Walter weathered dire poverty in his childhood and six years ago survived a life-threatening heart attack. With a background such as that, Matthau doesn't need anyone to tell him how to enjoy his present success.

"Life to me is funny, real humorous," he said at lunch the other day. He was celebrating the completion of his most recent film, "Pete 'N' Tillie," in which he and Carol Burnett star.

"I don't know why, but life seems to make me laugh most of the time now. I try to have a philosophy for every specific moment, but it changes so rapidly I guess I don't have a general philosophy."

Now 52, although he could easily pass for an athletic 40, Walter reached the peak after a long apprenticeship in both living and acting.

After his father deserted the family when Matthau was only 3, he his mother and a brother moved through a series of cold-water East Side tenements because they were unable to pay the rent.

At 11, Walter was acting in a Yiddish theater at 50 cents a performance. During the intermissions he sold soft drinks in the lobby.

After earning six battle stars as an aerial radioman and bomber gunner overseas during World War II, he worked his way through acting school working as a floor scrubber and cement hauler.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Sunday, Dec. 24, the 359th day of 1972. There are seven days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1814, the United States and England signed the Treaty of Ghent in Belgium, ending the War of 1812.

On this date: In 1524, Vasco da Gama, the Portuguese navigator who discovered the sea route to India, died.

In 1650, Edinburgh Castle in Scotland surrendered to the forces of Oliver Cromwell.

In 1865, a secret order, the Ku Klux Klan, was organized in Pulaski, Tenn.

In 1942, during World War II, the French administrator of North Africa, Adm. Jean Darlan, was assassinated in Algiers.

In 1949, radio stations around the country were playing a new hit song — "Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer."

In 1966, a U.S. cargo plane crashed near Da Nang Air Base in South Vietnam, killing 4 crewmen and more than 100 civilians on the ground.

Ten years ago: Hundreds of Cuban prisoners captured in the unsuccessful Bay of Pigs invasion of the island were being flown to Miami after being released on payment of ransom.

Five years ago: China conducted its seventh nuclear test, detonating a small device in the northwestern part of the country.

One year ago: A Christian Democrat, Giovanni Leone, was elected president of Italy.

Slowly he became known as a competent and conscientious craftsman in Broadway plays and as a Hollywood film villain. Then his 1965 appearance in the stage play, "The Odd Couple," made him a comedy sensation. His next film, "The Portune Cookie," in which he teamed with Jack Lemmon, confirmed his success. Since then it has been roses, roses, all the way for Matthau.

He still tends to think of himself as a character actor rather than a star, and likes to play in serious as well as funny films or shows.
"My only preference is for good roles," he explained. "They can be about anything, anytime, anyplace."
"I became an actor because I like to act, I'm good at it, and I make a lot of money out of it. What would I be if I weren't an actor? Dead probably. There's an occupation for you, isn't it?"
"I'd like to live to the year 2000 — that would make me 80

— just to see all the numerals change.
"But I have to have a certain amount of excitement, or I create it myself. That's why I don't really expect to hit 70. But I'm never bored, anyway. I think people who are bored are always boring."
Here are Walter's likes:
"Horses that come in first — casseroles, because steaks or roasted birds remind me too much of the whole animal — anything covered and smothered with gravy and with no bones in it — spelling tests with people I meet while traveling — girls' bottoms, because watching them gives me a tremendous feeling of security — the sound of Mozart and the voices of my wife and my son Charlie — reading Charles Dickens and Arthur Miller's plays — bakery smells and the smell of freshly cut grass — all kinds of people — and having dinner with Truman Capote when he's in a good mood: he's a great, great gossip with a great mind."

And here are his dislikes:
"Raw clams — whiskies and wines — girls who drink beer — all music written since Beethoven composed his last symphony — automobile horns — the feel of crepe — Shakespeare I find dull and Ibsen impossible — people with studied mannerisms who are out of synchronization — and people with bad breath who keep trying to whisper to me."

Inmates Fix Day Rooms

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Inmates at Hawaii State Prison, using their own money, imagination and handiwork, have created "day rooms" for recreation and relaxation.
Each of the five dormitories has developed one as part of a prison administration move to loosen restrictions on inmates.
"We're placing responsibility on the men to live as human beings, as they would on the outside," says prison Supt. Antonio Olim.

The inmates have tried to eliminate all traces of their prison environment in the day rooms. They've painted them in cheerful colors and draped the windows to hide the bars. Brilliantly colored posters splash the walls.

Shag rugs cover the floors and low-hung colored lamps cast soft light on the walls. Handiwork includes cushions, feather flowers, tiki gods and other figures.

The Job of Joseph — 4

Frantic Parents Search for Runaway Son

Editor's note: This is the fourth article of a five-part Christmas series about the head-of-Jesus household, the carpenter Joseph. It deals in this instance with a lost son.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

When the search first began, Joseph had not been overly concerned. The boy likely was with other young men somewhere in the caravan. But gradually, finding no sign or word of him, the levelheaded Joseph felt the small, beginning edge of alarm.

Jesus apparently was missing. Either he had abandoned his family and tribe, run away, or else had become lost in the teeming city. Any parent who has ever experienced the disappearance of a child knows the pangs of it — the gathering shock of helplessness and loss.

Joseph ranged back and forth through the home-bound procession of Passover pilgrims, a sinking emptiness in him, his voice hoarse from calling, "Yeshua! Yeshua!" Finally, the entire company of Galilean kinspeople and acquaintances was halted on the road while a thorough search was made.

The lad was not there. Other youngsters were questioned. None had seen Jesus all day. Women began murmuring sympathetically, "Haval, haval... woe, woe!" Joseph's wife, Mary, became tearful, her chin quivering.

Joseph took her firmly by the shoulders. They would find the boy, he said. Do not fear. They must return to Jerusalem.

Already, the band had traveled a full day's journey en route back to rural Galilee after the festival week in the capital of Israel. But Joseph and Mary, in their worried haste, retraced the distance in about half the time.

It had been the first "going up to Jerusalem" in which Joseph had permitted Jesus to come along, initiating him into the religious duties of his nearing adulthood.

Scripture instructed Jewish males to present themselves thrice annually at the Temple in Jerusalem on each of the three solemn celebrations, or at least once annually if residing far away. Women were not obligated to make the trips but could do so, as Mary did, if their husbands wished it.

Joseph, a hard-toiling carpenter of Nazareth, deeply dedicated to Jewish law and principles, nurtured Jesus in them. At the age of 12, the boy approached many duties as a "son of the Torah," and Joseph had considered the time ripe to allow him to make his initial pilgrimage to the holy city.

But now, given that privilege, he had used it to stray off somewhere, telling no one, and without parental consent. Always before, he had been a considerate, obedient son, yet with a strikingly original turn of mind.

Hurrying, without pausing to rest, Joseph and Mary climbed back up the steep road that ascended from the lowland of Jericho and the Dead Sea into the desolate Judean hills. Reaching the plateau town of Bethany, they again could see the spires and turrets of Jerusalem.

It was a mixed, multifarious place now, under the foreign dominion of Rome and its collaborators, infected with sundry snares and pitfalls that would endanger a young peasant boy alone, especially among the motley thousands that jammed the city for the holidays.

The alien rulers had introduced pagan games and entertainments, the battling at the hippodrome among gladiators and of condemned prisoners and slaves with beasts, a theater of magicians, acrobats and wispily clad dancers, a row of bathhouses with steam-belching pipes for the languid rich.

Roman soldiers, bare-chested wrestlers, painted and bespangled harlots, pipers to snakes, sellers of elixirs and intoxicating potions, false dealers, thieves and soothsayers swarmed the streets, Assyrians, Egyptians, Greeks and Babylonians, with their impure, non-Kosher foods and wanton rites to idols of Bacchus and Astarte.

Joseph and Mary descended into the valley of Jehosaphat outside the city's eastern wall, crossed the brook of Kidron and started their hunt in the sprawling camp where they had stayed during Passover, a tent city of the poor outside the city of stone.

They threaded through the far-spread maze of goathair shelters, smoking camp fires, garbage heaps, clouds of flies, hanging bedding, improvised shops and loitering clusters of people, asking questions, scrutinizing each group of romping children, but finding no trace of Jesus.

Darkness came on. After being inspected for arms at the Siloam gate by Roman soldiers guarding it, the couple entered the lower city and began tramping its narrow streets, weaving through its milling bazaars and markets, peering into dim alleys and gaming rooms.

They took no rest that night and got little of it in the harried days that followed, occasionally dozing briefly and fitfully beside a wall or roofed pool where others of the poor, the sack-cloth-clad mendicants and the lame were allowed respite.

Through the winding passages and plazas of the city they stalked, tired-eyed and forlorn, along the streets of the cheesemongers, the bakers, the metalsmiths, up the steps into the western upper city with its grand houses, arcades, fountains and the palace of Herod, back down into the dusty Acra with its clogged, babbling marketplace, its hawkers of tonics, fabrics and neck-banded slaves.

For three days, they searched back and forth, up one twisting byway and down another until the scenes blurred and became a bewildering jumble, inquiring, appealing to watchmen and gatekeepers, dulled to the traxpa rejoinders, riven with nameless fears of unnumbered dire possibilities.

Several times, they had hunted through the Temple, its courts, colonnades and the tunnels beneath it, circling the adjacent Tower of Antonia from which the Roman garrison kept watch, but all in vain.

Finally, they again plodded up the sloping pavement to the Temple and into its rectilinear succession of courts, sidling among its crowds and commerce, their eyes glazed from looking, moving past the tables of the money-changers and pens of bleating lambs and flapping caged pigeons, on into the inner courts of horn-shaped collection boxes, the Levite musicians on the semi-circular stairs, the priests sending up smoke and incense from the great altar.

Exhausted, despairing, strained to the breaking point, the pair wandered at length out on one of the colonnaded porches where groups of learned doctors and scholars of theology and law taught their students and engaged in analytical discussions. Joseph, his big shoulders slumping, stared at them leadenly.

Then a sound caught his ears. It was a boy's voice, serious, animated, probing. Jesus! Joseph touched Mary's shoulder and she heard it, too, her face flooding with unutterable relief. Then she rushed across the floor, pressing through the circle of scholars, oblivious to their shushing, and confronted the boy.

"Son, why have you treated us so?" she demanded. "Behold, your father and I have been looking for you anxiously." It was a mother's natural burst of pent-up distress after the long, heart-rending days of futile search and mounting desperation.

Jesus looked up at her with innocent appeal, concerned by her reprimand, yet seeming curiously convinced he had been doing the right and appropriate thing. "How is it that you sought me?" he said. "Did you not know that I must be in my Father's house?" They stood there, his mother's eyes filling, and then their arms flew around one another.

Joseph, drawing a long breath of sheer gratitude, dropped down on a knee beside them, hugging them both, feeling Jesus' ardently devoted kiss through his uncombed beard. Thanks be to God! the boy was all right, whatever his deflecting fascination with these religious sages.

Joseph lifted him up in his arms, giving him a hearty, thankful squeeze. "My son, my son!" He was safe and well, thank God, safe and well.

Scripture notes that neither he nor Mary understood what the boy meant by his insistence that he had some justifiably overriding interest here in the center of Israel's faith, exceeding duties to his immediate family. They also had been puzzled by the scholars' absorption in him, their attentiveness to his inquiries and penetrating comments.

Apparently he had been with them throughout the time of his absence, a country boy of 12 so engrossed with his first personal encounter with the hallowed city, its disparate life, the Temple's imposing ceremonies of worship and sacrifice, the issues troubling the great religious academies, that he had to drink it all in, to find out its ways and assess it by his own lights. Regardless of the family he loved, he had been compelled to do it out of a sense of some further calling and wider love.

Joseph didn't grasp all this and probably wasn't primarily occupied on that level at the time. What mattered chiefly was that after a prolonged, tormenting nightmare about the welfare of a lost son, the boy was back now, unharmed and sound, as fine as ever.

That was the big thing, the great consoling thing, to his parents who had been through the scare of a missing child, and had found him.

They returned to Nazareth and Jesus remained obedient to them, increasing in wisdom and stature, a credit to a pleased Joseph. It was something to be glad about, and proud of. The carpenter had a good son.

WON ON WILD PITCH CINCINNATI (AP) — People will always forget that Hal McRawe was at bat with two out and runners on first and third for the Cincinnati Reds. All they will remember is that Bob Moose of Pittsburgh made a wild pitch in the bottom of the ninth and Denis Menke scored from third base. That run gave the Reds a 4-3 victory in the fifth and deciding National League pennant playoff game of the 1972 season in Cincinnati on Oct. 11.

Many will remember that Johnny Bench tied the score for the Reds when he led off the ninth with a home run off Dave Giusti. And some will remember Red relief pitcher Clay Carroll got credit for the victory. He retired the three men he faced in the top of the ninth.

Christmas Preparations Continue Around World

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Mexicans supplied their police with holiday cheer and other goodies Friday as preparations for Christmas continued around the world.

Dec. 22 is "Traffic Policemen Day" in Mexico City, and residents deposited neatly wrapped gifts on street corners for the neighborhood patrolmen. Most of the gifts were bottles of liquor.

The Rollas Shop in Rio de Janeiro, which normally rents formal wear, reported it still had 20 Santa Claus suits left to rent out of an original 50.

In Peru, yuletide symbols of foreign origin which do not adjust to "Peruvian reality" are being shown in minor scale in store windows this year, and the familiar bearded face of St. Nick and other traditional Christmas figures have disappeared from newspaper and television ads.

St. Nicholas has been replaced by El Nino Manuelito, a Peruvian version of the Christ Child.

The Education Ministry declared St. Nick persona non grata in October, saying that he, Christmas trees, sleighs and reindeers were symbols of Nordic countries and not of Peru.

Italians have their "Iredicesima," the 13th month salary or Christmas bonus most workers receive, but they are having trouble cashing them because banks are closed by a tellers' strike.

Despite the cash crisis, the "zampognaro," the shepherds who annually trek down from the hills of Abruzzi, are playing their goatskin bagpipes on Rome's street corners and earning up to $50 a day. Some are believed to be Romans in disguise.

In the Holy Land, Apollo 15 astronaut James B. Irwin arrived in Amman, Jordan, leading a group of 250 pilgrims to the Christmas Eve celebration in Bethlehem. Irwin's wife and four children were in the party.

Scorpions once claimed as many as seven lives a year in Arizona.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS
On Monday and Tuesday of the past week, the Natural Resources Committee of the Texas House of Representatives held the last Public Hearing on a series of topics concerning water. The Committee is headed by Representative John Allen of Longview. The Manager of the Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District attended the hearing.

Most area observers will recall that this same Committee held a series of meetings on water earlier this year, with one being held at Plainview. James B. McCray, John R. Spearman, and Felix W. Ryals entered testimony at that hearing. Following that Public Hearing a number of others were held in various areas of the state. The same agenda was covered at each hearing. We are listing these topics again to alert the people of the Panhandle area that proposed legislation will be offered in the 1973 Texas Legislature concerning water.

The topics covered are: Effective ground water management-how could it be achieved? Pollution Control-how could it be achieved? Benefits and Delays of Projects-should anyone be allowed to indiscriminately bring class action suits without being held accountable by the people of the affected area? Water, price, use and priority-are state priority statutes suitable for the 1970's?

All interested water users of the Panhandle area should stay on the alert for any and all legislation concerning water that is introduced in the 1973 Texas Legislature. Everyone should also know how and where to contact the senator and representatives that represent us in the Legislature.

Water Inc. held its monthly meeting on Saturday, December 16, in Lubbock. Billy Clay, the Executive Director of Water Inc., tendered his resignation at the meeting and Duncan Ellison was named the Acting Director. The high point of the meeting was the presentation by Dr. Herb Grubb and Dr. Jim Osborne of "Selected Population, Economic, and Agricultural Data for the Texas High Plains." We are carrying their summary:

"The Texas High Plains contained 8.6 per cent of the total population of Texas in 1970. The total personal income of the High Plains population was $3.6 billion which was 9.2 per cent of the total personal income of Texas in 1970. High Plains per capita income was $3,804.

"The economy of the High Plains produced $7.8 billion worth of goods and services in 1967 which accounted for 11.2 per cent of the State's total economic output. Agricultural production on the High Plains accounted for 33 per cent of the total agricultural output in Texas.

"The High Plains economy also made a significant contribution of State and Federal taxes. Seventeen per cent of the federal taxes and 22 per cent of the State taxes collected in Texas came from the High Plains area. If no taxes were collected in the High Plains, federal tax collection in the rest of the State would have to be increased by 20 per cent and State taxes would have to be increased by 28 per cent in order to raise an equal amount of tax revenues.

"The high level of agricultural output in the High Plains is sustained by the use of groundwater for irrigation. Increased agricultural output, due to the use of irrigation, benefits the economy of the High Plains and the State. In 1967, the total impact on the High Plains' economy of crop production made possible by irrigation that is, if ground water for agricultural use was not available and the area's crops were produced under dryland conditions, the total economic output of the High Plains would have been reduced by $1.6 billion in 1967. Economic output of the rest of the State would have been reduced by $180 million due to the indirect effects of irrigation on the High Plains. Stemming from effects on the economy of the rest of the State would be small because a small proportion of the High Plains agricultural production is processed elsewhere in the State. Data indicate that cotton and grain are exported from the State for processing. Significant amount of grain sorghum is processed through feedlots on the High Plains. Most of the fed cattle are processed in the region or exported from the State for processing."

Dalhart Girl Is 4-H Dress Review Winner

Seventeen-year-old Le Jean Hill of Dalhart has returned from a trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago November 26-30 as state winner in 4-H Dress Review.

"I love to model and smile at people," says the high school junior.

Miss Hill has won five blue ribbons at the county Dress Review and was 1970 Grand Champion at the Interstate Fair for best garment.

She's been a 4-H'er eight years, serving three of them as president of her local club. Miss Hill worked on livestock projects, too, but has given them up because of an allergy.

She thinks the most important lesson of her 4-H years was learning how to work and cooperate with others.

"Being a good family member, friend, a Christian and a citizen depends almost entirely on this ability to get along with others," she says.

Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hill of Hartley County.

Western Show Judges Named
DENVER, Colo.—Forty two judges from 21 states and the District of Columbia will work the show rings at the 67th annual National Western Stock Show, January 12-20.

Named to judge the junior steer show and pick the 1973 Grand Champion Steer is George Strathearn of Redwood City, Calif. Strathearn, former general manager of the Grand National Stock Show at the Cow Palace in San Francisco, is a cattle producer and serves as manager of the California Beef Council.

Eight Have Completed Conservation Contracts

Eight farmers and ranchers in the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District have completed Great Plains conservation contracts, according to Mickey Black, district conservationist of the Pampa Soil Conservation Service.

"The contracts have not only enabled the farmers and ranchers to draw cost-share assistance to apply needed Conservation Practices, but it has helped to improve the environment we live in by stopping wind and water erosion," Black said.

The contracts that have expired were on N.M. Caldwell, Bill C. Crisp, J.D. and Ray Fish, L.E. Glass, Johnson Ranch, Emory Crockett, Glenn Dawkins, and H.W. Waters.

These contracts represent a wide variety of conservation practices which were applied to the land to reduce soil erosion and provide a more economic farming and ranching operation. Those applied include 272 acres of range seeding, 35 acres of critical area shaping, 478 acres of pasture planting, 41,511 feet of cross-fences, 12 farm ponds, 10 livestock wells, 11 water storage facilities for livestock water, 3,523 feet of underground livestock pipeline, 6,151 feet of

CATTLE LOSSES
The impact of the two months of bad weather has been worse than thought earlier. Losses have been more severe north of the Canadian River than south of the Canadian.

Most of the people in this area have held their losses to less than 8 per cent. I've heard of some 30 to 50 per cent losses on newly shipped in calves on the North Plains.

Eight calves out of a double deck load is close to a $1600 loss within two weeks of purchase.

'Silent Night' Special Song To Great-Niece

MARIETTA, Ohio (AP) — "Silent Night" is a Christmas carol that has very special meaning for Hazel Willey. Her great-uncle wrote the music 154 years ago tomorrow, Christmas day, 1818.

"I don't know why I cry whenever I hear it," says the 71-year-old Marietta woman. "I don't know why."

She sighed. "The song may have affected my whole life. The song gives me inspiration. I believe a lot in it. It says more in it than words can speak. It does more for me than anything else."

"I think of it throughout the year. It gives me a little lift up. I get down in the dumps every now and then. The carol goes through my mind. I can see it and say it to myself. It seems to help me for the whole week."

For a century and a half the story of Joseph Mohr, the devout young Austrian priest who wrote the carol's simple words, and great-uncle Franz Gruber, who wrote the music, has been handed down in Mrs. Willey's family.

Father Mohr, so the family legend goes, sat in his study in Oberndorf, high in the Austrian Alps, on Christmas eve of 1818. He meditated on the holiness of the night, and wished there was a perfect Christmas song.

As he thought, these words came to him: "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht." Swiftly the words came that night. In the morning, Christmas day, he walked through the snow to the Gruber home.

Airport Seeks Bank

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport Board is interested in someone establishing a bank at the world's largest airport and has authorized a site to be leased for a bank.

Thomas M. Sullivan, executive director, said organizers of the new bank to serve passengers and employees at the airport would be responsible for construction as well as operation and must provide full banking services.

Death Row Empties

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Death row at the state prison here is almost empty, the prison newspaper says.

Only five men remained on the row in November, and they were to be processed to other units of the prison as soon as their commutations were received, the Echo said.

"I've always heard," said Mrs. Willey, "that great-uncle Franz wrote the music in no time. He told the priest, 'Your words almost sing themselves.'"

"That night they sang the hymn together in the village church."

The world-renowned carol might have remained a Tyrol tune, but in 1819 a repairman asked Gruber to play a tune to test repairs on the church organ. Gruber remembered the tune he had played on his guitar the holiday season the year before. The repairman had a copy sent to his village across the mountain, and the carol was on its way.

Sausage making, which goes back as far as recorded history, originated as a means of preserving meat.

Roger Rallies Cowboys To 30-28 Victory

Staubach's Last Minute Passes Provide Spark

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Quarterback Roger Staubach, last year's Super Bowl hero, threw two touchdown passes Saturday in the final two minutes to lead Dallas to a 30-28 triumph over the San Francisco 49ers and keep the Cowboys alive in the National Football League playoffs.

Staubach took over for starter Craig Morton late in the third quarter with Dallas trailing 28-13. Toni Fritsch of Dallas kicked his third field goal midway in the final quarter to make it 28-16.

Staubach threw a 20-yard touchdown pass to Billy Parks with 1:30 left, and defensive back Mel Renfro recovered the ensuing on-side kickoff at the 50-yard line.

Staubach then ran for 21 yards, passed to Parks for 19 and threw the winning touchdown pass 10 yards to Ron Sellers with 52 seconds remaining.

Safety Charlie Waters killed the last San Francisco hope by intercepting a pass by John Brodie, who had engineered a come-from-behind 49er victory over Minnesota a week earlier to put his team in the playoffs.

The Cowboys, shooting for a second straight NFL title and third consecutive Super Bowl appearance, will play at Green Bay or Washington next Sunday for the National Conference championship.

They trailed the 49ers, Western Division champions, all the way until the winning touchdown. Vic Washington of the 49ers scored on a 97-yard kickoff return opening the game and San Francisco's defense set up three one-yard touchdown plunges by Larry Schreiber to keep the 49ers ahead the first 59 minutes.

Staubach, who was injured and threw only 20 passes in the regular season, threw 20 Saturday and completed 12 for 174 yards. Morton had one touchdown pass, on a 28-yard play to Lance Alworth that cut San Francisco's lead to 21-13 late in the second quarter.

The Cowboys, beaten 31-10 by the 49ers in the regular season, made the playoffs this year as the NFC wild card team with a second place finish in the East.

The Cowboys beat the 49ers the last two years in the NFC title game.

The recovery by Renfro, which kept the 49ers from getting the football after Parks' touchdown, came after Fritsch's dribbled kickoff bounced away from San Francisco's Preston Riley.

The next-to-last touchdown drive covered 55 yards in just four plays. Staubach completed two eight-yard passes to Walt Garrison, a 19-yarder to Parks and then the touchdown toss to Parks, who got behind Bruce Taylor and caught the ball at the goal line.

Parks led all receivers with seven receptions for 136 yards, while teammate Calvin Hill rushed for 125 yards.

The Dallas offense totaled 402 net yards to San Francisco's 255, as the 49ers' defense did most of the work.

The turnovers that set up Schreiber's touchdowns came at the Dallas 15, 32 and 1-yard lines. The Cowboys lost the ball twice on interceptions and twice on fumbles in the game, but had an error-free fourth quarter.

Veteran defensive tackle Charlie Krueger made the play that led to the 49ers' fourth touchdown, making the score 28-13 in the third quarter.

He tackled Hill, forcing a fumble that safety Windlan Hall recovered at the one.

NATE "TINY" ARCHIBALD, left, the NBA's leading scorer and playmaker, drives on the New York Knicks' Bill Bradley.

Rookie Franco Harris Gives Pittsburgh Win

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Franco Harris grabbed a last-ditch pass that caromed off an Oakland defender's chest Saturday and ran 42 yards to score with five seconds left and give the Pittsburgh Steelers an incredible 13-7 National Football League playoff victory.

Pittsburgh had been stunned with 1:13 remaining when Oakland's backup quarterback, Kenny Stabler, scrambled 30 yards for a touchdown that put the Raiders in front 7-6.

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw began firing, attempting to get the Steelers within field goal range with the hopes that a third Roy Gerela field goal would rescue the game.

A nine-yard pass to Harris and an 11-yarder to John Fuqua pushed Pittsburgh's American Conference Central Division champions only to their 40 with 37 seconds to play.

Bradshaw fired three incompletions and stared at a fourth down dilemma with 22 seconds on the giant scoreboard at Three Rivers Stadium.

He tried over the middle, seeking to pass to Fuqua at the Oakland 30. Raider defensive back Jack Tatum slammed into Fuqua and the ball at the same time and everyone figured it was all over.

Harris, the amazing rookie running back from Penn State, was trailing the play at the 42 and scooped it at his shoetops and began thundering toward the goal.

Jimmy Warren had the final shot at him and missed.

Pittsburgh, which had waited 40 years to win even a division title, ignited a stadium-wide explosion and it took police 10 minutes to clear the field for the last five seconds of play.

Gerela, who earlier kicked field goals of 18 and 29 yards for a lead of 6-0, booted the meaningless extra point to make it 13-7.

With the public address announcer shouting for Steeler faithful to stay off the playing field, Pittsburgh kicked off and then had only to bat down one Stabler pass to leap into next week's American Conference final.

The Steelers, 12-3, also won the home field advantage for the AFC showdown and will meet the winner of Sunday's Cleveland-Miami game on Dec. 31 in Three Rivers Stadium. Saturday's first half was scoreless as the two man-handling defenses played to a standstill. Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll passed up a shot at a 38-yard field goal and it appeared a crucial move when the Steelers ran short on a fourth-and-one situation.

Bradshaw came out firing in the second half, hitting five times for 55 yards as Pittsburgh moved 67 yards to the Oakland 11. The march stalled there and Gerela's 18-yard field goal made it 3-0 with 9:52 left in the third quarter.

Panhandle Hall Will Induct Randall Clay

AMARILLO — Randall Clay, outstanding all-around athlete for Pampa High School in the 1940's, and later for the University of Texas, will be one of three men inducted into the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame January 7 in Amarillo.

Joining Clay as this year's selections will be John Mann, amateur golfer from Amarillo, and M.A. "Catfish" Smith, one-time basketball coach at Carey, Tex.

Clay, who graduated from Pampa High School in 1946, was an all-state selection in football (1945) and basketball (1946).

He also won the state discus title his last two years in high school.

Clay started three years at halfback for Texas (1947-48-49), and was selected to some All-American teams his senior year. He later played professional football for the New York Giants. Clay is now a stock broker in San Antonio.

Smith coached Carey (a small community northeast of Childress) to the state basketball championship in 1937.

At that time all schools in the state competed on an equal basis, without the classification system later set up by the University Interscholastic League.

Winning the championship in basketball against competition from much larger schools is considered one of the outstanding feats in the history of athletics in the Panhandle. Smith is now executive director of the Baylor Bear Club in Waco.

Bowl Game Roundup

Associated Press

Five of the remaining nine major college football bowl games will be played next Friday and Saturday with Auburn and Louisiana State of the Southeastern Conference putting their Top Ten rankings on the line.

With the Liberty and Fiesta Bowls out of the way, the hectic New Year's weekend gets under way Friday night with West Virginia, 8-3 facing North Carolina State, 7-3-1, in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta and Tampa, 9-2, meeting Kent State, 6-4-1, in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

Saturday afternoon, sixth-ranked Auburn, 9-1, takes on No. 13 Colorado, 8-3, in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla., and 16th-rated North Carolina, 10-1, tackles Texas Tech, 8-3, in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.

At night, it's 10th-ranked Louisiana State, 9-1-1, against SEC rival and 11th-ranked Tennessee, 9-2, in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl in the Houston Astrodome.

The rest of the bowl games will be played Sunday night and Monday, New Year's Eve finds second-ranked Oklahoma facing No. 5 Penn State in the Sugar Bowl. On Jan. 1, 1973, it's No. 4 Alabama against No. 7 Texas in the Cotton Bowl, top-rated Southern California against third-ranked Ohio State in the Rose Bowl and, at night, ninth-rated Nebraska, defending two-time national champions, against No. 12 Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl.

Auburn has been the nation's Cinderella team all season, but the Tigers really made the Gator Bowl people ecstatic when they rallied to nip previously unbeaten Alabama 17-16 in their regular season finale. They did it by running two blocked punts for fourth-quarter touchdowns.

Both teams rely on strong ground attacks, with Colorado junior Charlie Davis sixth on the all-time Big Eight rushing list and Auburn having turned from the 1971 Pat Sullivan-Terry Beasley air missiles to a crunching running game led by Terry Henley.

Only six teams have made more bowl appearances than LSU's 16 and Tennessee is one of them with 17. It will be Tennessee's rugged defense against a once-explosive LSU offense, which didn't score a touchdown in its last two games even with rifle-armed Bert Jones at the controls.

The Peach Bowl match-up threatens to short-circuit the Atlanta Stadium scoreboard. West Virginia averaged 36.5 points a game, fourth best nationally, to N.C. State's 32.7, good for seventh. In total offense, N.C. State reeled off a fifth-best 432.5 yards per game to WVU's eighth-best 411.9. And in passing, West Virginia, featuring the Bernie Giffia to Danny "Lightning" Buggs combination, was sixth with 227.8 yards per game while State, behind Bruce Shaw, was 14th with 207.8.

Sun Bowl-bound North Carolina, although only ranked 16th, has lost just once and that to Ohio State on the road.

One of the more unlikely pairings takes place in the Tangerine Bowl where Kent State, which went from doormat to champion of the Mid-American Conference in one year, tangles with Tampa, in its first season as a major football college.

Kent State's James Gang posted its first winning season since 1965 and Coach Don James did such an impressive job that he has been mentioned as a prime candidate for the vacant Iowa State post.

Tampa, under rookie Coach Earle Bruce, boasts the nation's ninth best defense, headed by mammoth tackle John Matuszak. The Spartans have yielded only 236.4 yards and 10.4 points per game. The latter figure is sixth best in the country.

The Pittsburgh Steelers have two of the youngest quarterbacks in the National Football League — Bradshaw and Hanratty. Both are named Terry and both are 24.

When Tom Seaver of the New York Mets struck out 15 world champion Pittsburgh Pirates in a 4-1 September victory for his 18th win of the year he got eight batters on change ups and seven on fast balls.

Odessa Permian Wins 4A Crown

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Quarterback David Shipman and split receiver Joe Bizzell, the little man who makes the big plays, led Odessa Permian to a 37-7 Class 4A championship football victory Saturday over Baytown Sterling.

Shipman, a 195-pound senior, sprinted 33 yards for one touchdown, punched in from the one for another and pegged an 11-yard pass to Bizzell for a third.

Shipman gained 137 yards rushing in 15 carries.

Bizzell, a 145-pound, two-time All-State defensive back, grabbed six passes for 126 yards including the touchdown throw which he pulled in at the back line of the end zone.

Tailback Ricky Sutherland blasted over for three Odessa touchdowns—from the 5, 1 and 1 yard lines.

Bizzell pulled in a 36-yard pass to set up Shipman's long scoring run and two other completions by the slender senior enabled Sutherland to score twice.

Baytown tallied its only touchdown in the second quarter on a 34-yard pass from Martin Lemond to Sammie Singleton. Two midfield fumbles and a pass interception which Odessa's Roy Bobbitt returned to the Baytown 15 rubbed out numerous good ground gains by Baytown.

Mike Pillow clutched a deflected Shipman pass in the end zone to stop another Permian drive.

The final score was the most lopsided margin in a 4A title game since Wichita Falls whipped Pasadena 48-6 in 1958.

Odessa, which won the state title in 1965 and gained the finals in 1968 and 1970 finished the season with a 14-0 record. Baytown was 13-2.

Freak Play Analyzed

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A freak play that decided Saturday's pro football playoff game between the Pittsburgh Steelers and Oakland Raiders triggered confusion. Even the referee wasn't sure what happened.

Fred Swearingen had to hold up the contest for several minutes near the end while he conferred with other officials. After the chat, Swearingen awarded a 13-7 American Conference playoff victory to the Steelers.

The 60-yard touchdown play came on a last-ditch, fourth-down try by Pittsburgh with five seconds remaining.

Quarterback Terry Bradshaw scrambled and threw a pass intended for running back Frenchy Fuqua. The ball appeared to hit Oakland defender Jack Tatum in the chest as he leaped in the air.

The ball bounced 10 yards back, into the outstretched hands of Franco Harris, who sped the remaining 42 yards for the touchdown.

The Raiders vehemently protested the score, questioning whether Tatum had indeed touched the ball. If he hadn't, then it would have been an illegal pass touched by two Steelers.

Swearingen did not signal "touchdown" until several minutes after the play was completed. He conferred with umpire Pat Harder to confirm the legality of the play.

"Harder has the best view of such a play," explained Jim Kensil, executive director of the NFL. "He went to Brian Burk, the back judge, and he agreed with Harder that Tatum and Fuqua both touched the ball."

Clarendon Bronchos Fall To Schulenburg

BROWNWOOD — Schulenburg moved the ball 80 yards and scored with only 23 seconds left on the clock here Friday to beat the Clarendon Bronchos, 14-10, and cap the 1972 Class A state football championship.

Sophomore halfback Myron Hardeman took a pitch-out from quarterback Chuck Brown and ran the ball in from three yards out for the winning score.

Clarendon, playing without the services of sure all-state tailback Tommy Shields most of the game, saw its dream of a

Boling Rolls 20-0 To Take AA Title

HOUSTON (AP) — Billy Waddy completed a 23-yard touchdown pass play to Willie Mathews and fullback Walter Krushall scampered 74 yards for another touchdown to lead Boling to its first state Class 2A schoolboy championship with a 14-0 victory over Rockwall here Saturday.

The Bulldogs, who lost their first three games of the season, took a 7-0 lead on their second possession of the game on Waddy's TD pass to halfback Mathews, who completely outflanked the Yellow Jackets secondary and raced untouched into the end zone.

Waddy, the do-everything performer, handed off to Krushall early in the fourth quarter and the 175 pound fullback bulled his way through a wave of tacklers at the line of scrimmage and suddenly broke free to run untouched the rest of the way.

Waddy, took off on 43-yard run late in the fourth quarter to set up an 8-yard touchdown run to put the game out of reach. It put Waddy over the 100-yard rushing figure for the eleventh time in Boling's 14 games this season.

Besides losing the game Rockwall also lost 215-pound guard Joe Poindexter with back injury in the second quarter. Poindexter was taken to a local hospital for observation.

Both teams moved the ball consistently in the first half although Rockwall never got a penetration in trailing 7-0 at half time. Defense took in the third quarter and neither team could muster a first down.

Krushall's touchdown run at 9:40 left in the game was the first first down of the second half.

After Krushall's touchdown run Rockwall went to the air trying to rally but quarterback David Douglas threw a frustrating string of nine straight incompletions.

Krushall finished the game as the leading rusher with 113 yards on 13 carries. Waddy, who also plays free safety on defense, had 108 yards on 18 carries.

Boling Rolls 20-0 To Take AA Title

Boling, from Dist. 26 lost its first three games to Needville, Wharton and Rice Consolidated before its string of 11 consecutive victories including last week's 33-7 victory over Friendswood in the semi-finals.

Rockwall, from 13 AA finished with a 12-2-1 record, and got to the final round by beating Alpine on penetrations in a 20-20 semifinal.

Zach Fry, son of North Texas head coach Hayden Fry, led Rockwall with 85 yards on 21 carries.

Miami Favored Over Cleveland

MIAMI (AP) — Statistically, the playoff game should be no contest. Miami is favored by about two touchdowns—a massive spread for a playoff game. But if the Cleveland Browns can do what they've done all season, they could make things hot for the Dolphins.

What Cleveland has done most of the way is hang in there, staying close enough to strike for a late-game victory.

There was a 38-yard Mike Phipps-to-Frank Pitts touchdown pass that beat San Diego 21-17. And there were Don Cockroft field goals that upended Pittsburgh 26-24 and Cincinnati 27-24.

That ability to stick close to the opposition, plus the emergence of Phipps as a polished quarterback, enabled the Browns to come out of the National Football League season with a 10-4 record, second only to Pittsburgh in the American Conference's Central Division. And it propelled them into the playoffs for the ninth time in 10 years.

Still, there are those statistics.

For example, the Dolphins, whose 14-0 mark is the best in NFL history, were first in the conference in both offense and defense. The Browns, on the other hand, were 11th on offense among the AFC's 13 teams and eighth on defense.

And within the defensive statistics, Cleveland was 11th in stopping the rush—and that's what makes the Miami machine go.

The Dolphins, who scored more points and gave up fewer than any other team, built their perfect record on relentless running—Larry Csonka's 1,117 yards, Mercury Morris' 1,000 and Jim Kiick's 521.

In all, Miami churned out 2,960 yards, nearly double the 1,793 posted by the Browns, which included 811 by Leroy Kelly and 571 by Bo Scott.

Tass Names

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet News Agency Tass Saturday named Russian sprinter Valery Borzov as Sportsman of the Year, with American swimmer Mark Spitz second.

Borzov won the 100 and 200-meter sprint finals in the Munich Olympic games, while Spitz took seven swimming gold medals.

Russian Olympic gold medal wrestler Alexander Medved was third, and American master chess player Bobby Fischer fourth.

Olga Korbut, Soviet gymnast, was named Sportswoman of the year, ahead of Australian swimmer Shane Gould.

In the air, things were much closer although the Dolphins still prevailed, 2,076 yards to 1,916.

Earl Morrill, who took over for injured Bob Griese in the fifth game of the season and wound up as the AFC's No. 1 quarterback, didn't have to rely that much on his passing—not with that running—completed better than 55 per cent of his attempts for 1,360 yards and 11 touchdowns.

Phipps, who finally succeeded veteran Bill Nelsen as the Browns' signal-caller, clicked on about 47 per cent of his passes for 1,994 yards and 13 touchdowns—but he had 16 of his passes intercepted to Morrill's seven.

Pitts and Fair Hooker pretty much shared Cleveland's pass-catching duties. Pitts had 36 receptions for 620 yards and eight touchdowns while Hooker had 32 for 441 and two scores.

Paul Warfield led the Dolphins with 29 catches for 605 yards and three touchdowns.

But right behind him were Kiick, 21; Howard Twilley, 20; Marlin Briscoe, 16; Morris, 15; and Otto Stowe and Marv Fleming, 13 apiece.

Blackout To Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court refused Saturday to lift a television blackout in the Washington area of Sunday's National Football League playoff game between the Washington Redskins and the Green Bay Packers.

Robin Ficker, of Silver Spring, Md., who with two District of Columbia residents is making the court fight, said he would appeal the decision to a Supreme Court justice, probably Chief Justice Warren Burger, who oversees the D.C. federal courts.

The U.S. Appeals Court ruling by Judges George MacKinnon, Carl McGowan and Malcolm R. Wilkey was unanimous. They upheld a decision by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph C. Waddy Friday that the blackout is constitutional.

For Washington, it will be Larry Brown, the NFC's leading rusher, and Charley Harraway. Green Bay will counter with John Brockington and MacArthur Lane. "Lane and Brockington are probably the biggest and strongest runners in pro football," Redskins Coach George Allen said.

The Packers returned the compliment. "You can't concentrate on

Redskins And Packers To Battle In Trenches

WASHINGTON (AP) — It will be primarily a soldier's battle—on the ground—when the Green Bay Packers and the Washington Redskins clash here Sunday in a National Football League playoff game.

The nationally-televised contest is scheduled to start a 11:06 a.m. CST.

Both the resurgent Packers and the veteran Redskins depended on strong running and solid defense as they won the National Conference's Central and Eastern divisions, respectively.

For Washington, it will be Larry Brown, the NFC's leading rusher, and Charley Harraway. Green Bay will counter with John Brockington and MacArthur Lane.

"Lane and Brockington are probably the biggest and strongest runners in pro football," Redskins Coach George Allen said.

The Packers returned the compliment. "You can't concentrate on Brown because Harraway is such a good runner," said Green Bay defensive back Ken Ellis. "And because Brown and Harraway are good receivers, they actually have five good receivers in the game at the same time."

Both teams excel on defense with Green Bay ranked No. 1 in the NFC and Washington No. 2. The game marks the first time in Allen's head coaching career that he has played a playoff contest at home. He also has yet to win.

"We're home and we've got our home fans," Allen said. "That's an advantage."

"We have a lot to look forward to," he said, pointing to an NFL championship ring he won as an assistant coach with the Chicago Bears. "This is something money can't buy. You only get one chance in a lifetime to win one of these."

Washington defeated Green Bay 24-20 four games ago. But since then, the Redskins have dropped two of three games while Green Bay has captured all of their contests.

"We're playing much better now," Ellis said. "The offense and the defense have been complementing each other for the last three weeks. We've been getting the big plays and turning the ball over in good field position."

On the other hand, the Redskins are a veteran team, one that has shown poise and the ability to come back all season.

"The way I see it," quarterback Billy Kilmer said, "we have three more games to go and all we have to do is dedicate ourselves for three lousy weeks. We're going to reap the value of that dedication the rest of our lives. It's a little enough price to pay."

Stanford opens the next two football seasons with games against Penn State's Nittany Lions. The game next year is at University Park, Pa.

LSU's Quarterback Jones Featured Player In Astro-Bluebonnet Contest

HOUSTON (AP) — Louisiana State's Bert Jones, college football's hottest quarterback prospect, and a pair of rock-ribbed defenses will be the star attractions in the 14th annual Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl Saturday night in the Astrodome.

Jones, the rifle-armed quarterback from Ruston, La., directed Coach Charlie McClendon's Tigers to a 9-1-1 season, including a last second victory over Ole Miss with a scoring pass to Brad Davis.

Jones, who passed for 1,446 yards and 14 touchdowns this season, was judged the best pro quarterback prospect in the country in an Associated Press survey of pro talent scouts. Jones was the top vote getter among quarterbacks on the Heisman Trophy list.

Tennessee will bring a 9-2 record into the 14th renewal with losses to Alabama and Auburn. Cotton-Bowl bound Alabama also provided the blot on LSU's record. After the all-important loss to the Crimson Tide, LSU was tied 3-3 by Florida.

Both teams have potent offensive threats but stellar defenses on both sides could turn the game into trench warfare.

"I don't expect many points to be scored at all," said LSU defensive tackle John Wood. "To me, it's going to be a matter of three points, either way. With their defense outstanding as it is—and I think we have an outstanding defense—that football shouldn't be moving too much. It'll be won or lost by the defense."

Both teams will arrive here Tuesday and head immediately for the Astrodome to begin workouts. Tennessee, in fact, plans two workouts in the Dome that day.

The Vols and Tigers, both Southeastern Conference powers, are coming off bowl victories in 1971. LSU improved its bowl record to 9-7-1 with a 33-15 victory over Iowa State in the Sun Bowl and Tennessee edged Arkansas 14-13 in the Liberty Bowl for an 8-10-0 bowl record.

In the 1971 Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, Colorado overcame host University Houston 29-17 before a standing room only crowd of 54,720.

Chris Dantin and Davis are LSU's leading rushers. Dantin has 717 yards on 165 carries and Davis has 114 carries for 573 yards.

LSU's loss to Alabama was a crushing defeat, knocking them out of the SEC title race, but McClendon said the Tigers still have something to fight for.

"If we can beat Tennessee in the Astro-Bluebonnet," he said, "our seniors will have won more games than any senior class in history of LSU and that goes back all the way to 1893."

Just as LSU had to struggle after its loss to Bama, Tennessee also had to fight back after dropping its first two conference games to Alabama and Auburn.

"We were close to greatness, real close," said the Vols' youthful head coach Bill Battle. "We lost to Auburn by four points and we lost to Alabama by seven. It really shocked us and kept us from having a great season. But, over-all, I think it's been a real good year."

Tennessee's offensive thrust provided by quarterback Con-dredge Holloway, who completed 60 per cent of his passes, and Haskel Stanback, who gained 890 yards rushing.

The last two World Series have gone the limit of seven games. Last year Pittsburgh beat Baltimore and this year Oakland beat Cincinnati.

Max Nichols, president of the Baseball Writers' Association of America with the Minneapolis Star, was the master of ceremonies at the 1972 Hall of Fame inductions at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Carlen Says North Carolina May Be Best Tech Opponent

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Jim Carlen says Saturday's Sun Bowl opponent—Atlantic Coast Conference champion North Carolina—"reminds me of Texas—they just come at you physically with no frills."

Carlen says of the Tar Heels: "They just may be the best team we've played this year. They control that line of scrimmage and remember, Ohio State is the only team that's beaten them."

Both teams rely heavily on the run with North Carolina owning three excellent tailbacks headed by Ike Oglesby. The others are Sammy Johnson and Bill Hite.

The Red Raiders have an impressive trio in Doug McCutchen, Cliff Hoskins, and George Smith, but it's quarterback Joe Barnes who makes the Red Raiders tick.

"Ball control teams really hurt us because we don't have the big defensive linemen to stand in there nose to nose," Carlen says.

He says Tech will do things different this trip to the Sun Bowl.

"The last time we played in the Sun Bowl it was the day after final exams ended and we lost to Georgia Tech," Carlen said. "We have a loss of concentration before the game."

"Now we've got our exams over. We've just been working to get our timing down and doing very little scrimmaging. If you scrimmage, it's not a reward for the season you've had.

We even scheduled workouts at the player's convenience."

Tech finished the year with an 8-3 record, losing to Texas, Texas Christian and Arkansas. The Red Raiders tied Southern Methodist for second place in the final Southwest Conference standings.

The Tar Heels of Bill Dooley closed the season with an impressive victory over Florida to post a 10-1 season record.

"Tech is a very good football team, Texas beat them only 25-20 and it was only after injuries started cropping up that they lost to TCU and Arkansas," Dooley said. "They are healthy now and have a good offensive football team."

Dooley said Barnes "is the key to their offense, an exceptional athlete."

North Carolina has a slick junior quarterback of its own, Nick Vidnovic of Falls Church, Va.

Vidnovic is a triple threat. He threw 10 touchdown passes, ran for six touchdowns and punted for a 39.8 yard average.

Both teams boast an All-American. Ron Rusnak, North Carolina offensive guard, was a first team Associated Press selection while Texas Tech nose-guard Donald Rives was picked for the second team.

The game will be nationally televised. Kickoff is 10 a.m. CST.

Two mixed foursome golf tournaments are listed for Harder Hall, Sebring, Fla., this winter. The dates are Jan 9-13 and March 3-10.

Outdoor Roundup

AUSTIN — Fish and wildlife interests have traditionally received little attention when great water projects are planned.

For this reason the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has teamed up with similar agencies from other states, national conservation organizations and the U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife to study the problems in this area.

The result is a document called, "Action Report," and deals with the "conservation and enhancement of fish and wildlife in the National Water Resources Program."

"By and large," says the foreword to the report, "water resources development has been highly destructive of fish and wildlife resources in that it has flooded out important fish streams and wintering grounds of wildlife by reservoirs."

"Channelization, with all its devastating side effects such as destruction of hardwood bottomland and associated wetland, has accelerated. Estuaries have been destroyed by dredging and filling to provide for navigation or to create new residential and industrial areas. Streams have been dried up in order to store and divert their waters while the fish have disappeared."

Because of the negative effect of water projects, the report contains 169 recommendations for actions coming under the headings of legislation, policies, procedures, coordination, research and data, organization, administration and finance.

Several of these policies have already been adopted by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. For example, a higher priority is placed on river basin studies. And now the department will strive for full replacement of fish and wildlife losses due to water projects. When this is not practicable, the department will seek other mitigative measures for the losses.

The department opposes channelization and wetland drainage as a general practice.

The department will also seek assurances of support from the governor and congressional delegations for authorizations of fish and wildlife measures recommended by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and/or state reports.

Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials are hopeful that Texas will take the initiative and set an example for the other states in the protection of wildlife and fish when water development projects threaten these resources.

"We have stood by too long and let states such as California and Oregon take the lead in environmental matters," said one department official. "We hope that soon other states will be looking at Texas as the leader in protecting the environment."

Jesus Is Influenced By Father's Training

Editor's note: This is the last article of a five-part Christmas series about the carpenter Joseph and his influence on the young Jesus.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Straining hard, Joseph hoisted the huge beam above his head and lowered it into the notched pillars. He was a muscular, toil-toughened man with gnarled, gristly hands and a back of iron. He was a "nagar," as his native Aramaic tongue called it, a builder and worker in wood.

Out of his sweat, skill and care, he set the model of manhood for Jesus, the young son who labored with him.

Although rarely noted, this was the powerful influence from which Jesus drew his singularly trusting and intimate imagery of God as "our Father," a nuance and phrasing previously unheard of in the Judaism of that day in referring to the Almighty.

For Jesus, that "father figure" and its connotations of great strength, dependability and unwavering personal affection derived from the one who filled that earthly responsibility for him and who reared him from boyhood, the carpenter and joiner of Nazareth, Joseph.

He left a deep imprint. In the culture of that time, the father held unchallenged sway over his household, a patriarch whose authority was unquestionable and who was responsible for guiding his family.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," scripture counseled Jewish fathers. And Joseph held firmly to the tenets of that bedrock faith.

He was a poor, rugged but resourceful man, a woodchip behind his ear as a sign of his trade, a scarred leather apron tied across his waist. Beside him worked the young Jesus, an apprentice in the craft, subject to him.

"Just as it is necessary to feed one's son, so it is necessary to teach him a manual trade," the rabbis taught, and Joseph followed that tradition with Jesus.

In the customs of that period, a male son remained in the mother's care until the age of 5, when the father took over the child's training, both religiously and vocationally. The "carpenter's son," the villagers called Jesus.

The older man and youngster became steady partners, in toil and private talk. There was a long, close-knit comradeship, fashioned by the force of common necessity to labor for provisioning their table.

Joseph, after lifting the wall joist into place, boosted the boy of 12 athwart it to nail it fast, instructing him on how to slant the iron spikes. The heavy joists would support rafters to hold up a roof of clay.

"Unless the Lord builds the house, those who build it labor in vain," went an old maxim of Joseph's heritage. But "an artisan in his work need not defer to the greatest of doctors. Whatever your work, commit it to the Lord, and your plan will be established."

Throughout the years of Jesus' growing up, he spent most of his waking hours with Joseph, learning to manage wood, to choose materials, to calculate sizes and shapes, to mitre a joint, to dowel a table, to taper a wheelspoke to a hub.

The pair often went into the forests of sycamore, cypress and firs to fetch raw timber, Joseph teaching the youth to wield an axe, to cut low to avoid stump waste, how to govern the tree fall so it would drop in a clearing and not damage other trees.

Together they would carry the big logs back to Joseph's workshop to saw them into slabs, dress them and work them, making carts, chests, doors, buckets, yokes and wooden plowshares tipped with iron.

"Father, how is this frame braced?" The questions and directions would flow to and fro as they worked, the sawdust and shavings piling up beneath their bare feet. "Hand me an awl." "Here, turn the crank while I hold the drill."

Their callused hands often were bruised and nicked from blade or hammer.

A father's tutelage also instilled the son with the history and teachings of Judaism, its special mandate as light-bearer to the world, its law and prophets as commanded in scripture.

"These words ... shall be upon your heart; and you shall teach them diligently to your children, and shall talk of them when you sit in your house, and when you walk by the way, and when you lie down, and when you rise."

The nub of these precepts, from which Jesus would often quote later, was in the great Shema, a prayer of commitment spoken morning and night and contained in a small box of parchment attached to the doorpost of each Jewish home.

"Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord," the words read. "And you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind."

Each day as Joseph and Jesus left the house in Nazareth, they would touch the mezuzah containing that vow and then put their fingers to their lips.

Similar texts were inscribed in small cases on leather bands, the phylacteries, which they wore tied about their heads and to their left hands at Sabbath worship when Jesus and Joseph sat together in fringed coats. Mary occupied a separate women's section.

"How goodly are thy tents ... O Lord," they would sing as they set out for the village synagogue.

As a youth, Jesus also doubtlessly attended the synagogue school, the "Bet Hakeneset," sitting cross-legged on a floor mat with other boys in a bare, rectangular room decorated only with the Star of David and the seven-branched menorah. The "chazzan" taught from a front bench, singing clay birds by a brook, of his confounding teachers and Joseph's defense of him, of his being falsely accused of pushing a playmate, Zeno, off a roof, of his breaking a water-pitcher and once getting his ear wrung by Joseph. But the two showed constant devotion to each other.

Dear Abby

She's in the dog house over pet incident

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: A big dog in our neighborhood took the heads off two pet rabbits which belonged to my children. I telephoned the S. P. C. A. and told them to pick up that dog. I really feared for the small children in our neighborhood with such an animal running the streets.

Well, I didn't realize the mess this would get me into because while they were searching our neighborhood for that big dog, they picked up a small harmless dog and took him away because he had no tags and was running loose.

Now the owner of the small dog is furious because she knows I called the men who picked up her dog.

What would you have done in my place? UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Exactly what YOU did, so don't feel guilty. Laws are for the protection of all, and those who break them should pay the price.

DEAR ABBY: My husband plays cards with "the boys" one night a week. I don't mind that, but I do mind when he keeps it a big secret if he loses—or wins. Also, how much.

When I ask him how he came out, he gets angry and clams up. I think a wife has a right to know these things. Maybe he keeps his winnings a big secret because he doesn't want me to ask for anything extra from his winnings. On the other hand, maybe he keeps his losses a secret because he's ashamed or thinks maybe I'll try to keep him from playing if he loses too much.

Which of these theories do you think is correct? CARD PLAYER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: BOTH!

DEAR ABBY: My very tall teen-aged daughter walked into a store the other day, and the saleslady loudly exclaimed, "My, there's a tall one for you!"

This absolutely destroyed my daughter's ego! That saleswoman would never have said, "My, there's a pimply one for you!" Or, "My, that's a fat one for you!"

Please remind your readers that personal remarks of this kind are cruel. Unusually tall girls don't need remarks to remind them they are taller than most girls their age.

I can't think of a clever way to sign this, except one that is too long, so feel free to doctor it if you wish.

MOM OF A 6 FT. GLORY

DEAR MOM: No doctoring necessary. Tell your "glory" to walk tall. She's potentially great model material.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing fast and am going to mail this before I lose my nerve. What do you do when you love your husband who is a lousy lover, and it's your fault because you have pretended a lot and made him think he was great, just to build his ego?

In eight years of marriage I have been satisfied only twice, and that's no lie.

I have been 100 per cent faithful to my husband (thank God thoughts don't count) but it is getting more difficult. I have been invited to go to bed with three different men this year, so maybe my hunger is obvious. The fact remaining I don't want to break up my home or anybody else's with an affair, but I am going crazy trying to be a good wife.

Don't think I haven't tried to make things more interesting for my husband, because I have. I've read all the "how to" books to my husband, who falls asleep while I am reading to him.

I would like to hear from other women with this problem. I can't believe I'm the only love-starved woman around. CLIMBING THE WALLS

Container Plants Need Winter Care

COLLEGE STATION—With the proper care, container plants can be enjoyed for many seasons. Care is especially critical during the winter season.

"Since the root systems of container plants are exposed to air movement about the containers, cold damage may occur if the plant is not protected," points out Dr. William Welch, landscape horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Small container plants may be overwintered by sinking the containers in the ground in a fairly protected area and mulching around the containers with straw, leaves or some other organic matter.

Plants that will not tolerate freezing temperatures can sometimes be kept alive by moving them into the garage or a similar protected area. Welch suggests that these plants be kept generally dry until they can be placed outdoors and resume their growth.

However, he emphasizes that watering is critical for evergreen plants and that they should be kept moist during the winter months. "Evergreens lose water rapidly through their leaves during cold, windy weather, and this can result in burning of the leaves or even death of the plant if the condition is prolonged."

The task of getting tropical plants such as the plumbago, hibiscus and copper plant through the winter is often

You can keep frozen orange juice concentrate in the freezer up to one year.

A Tribute to... Christmas Day!

By BILL DOWNS

Whether you're young or merely young in heart, the coming of Kris Kringle brings a thrill not equalled by any other holiday! Dad and Mother are busy for weeks ahead...holding secret conferences and planning what each loved one will get on Christmas morning. Yet Christmas means infinitely more than the exchanging of gifts. It commemorates the first chapter of the Greatest Story Ever Told...and it should be a time of rejoicing, for it is the anniversary of Christendom. So a Merry Christmas to you all...and may your wishes be abundantly fulfilled this year and every year!

Pampa Seniors Celebrate Holidays

ON SCHEDULE — Santa, George Warren, Minister of Education at First Baptist Church, was on schedule and presented Christmas gifts to all, including Peter Crum, 87, 1337 Charles, one of the oldest members present.

OUR GAL FRIDAY OR THURSDAY? — Preparing her weekly column, Senior Center Corner, is Mrs. Linnie Lester, 316 N. Christy. She has written the column for the past two years with only one leave of absence.

Text By Bobbye Combs

If I can put one touch of a rosy sunset into the life of any man or woman, I shall feel that I have worked with God.

Henry David Thoreau

While snow flurried to the ground and Christmas filled the air, approximately 61 Senior Citizens received a touch of rosy sunset. Members of the Altrusa Club sponsored the annual Christmas party in which these Citizens were recently honored.

The Altrusans provided the 'special touch,' as each guest joined in singing familiar Christmas carols and Ole' Santa himself presented gifts to all.

Refreshments of home-made candies, cookies and coffee were served from a large table holding a Christmas centerpiece.

The Senior Citizens Club, as we know it, evolved from the Nakomis Club, for women only, which was organized in 1953. Members met twice a month in various homes with a membership of about 30.

The Altrusans, in 1956, were presented a list of all poll tax exempt persons from the county treasurer, and invitations were extended to both men and women, thus the Senior Citizens organization was formed, and soon the membership grew to 40 or 50.

In 1957, city clubs and church groups were invited to host meetings three Thursdays each month, with the Altrusa Club hosting each first Thursday, and honoring all members celebrating birthdays.

When Lovett Memorial Library became available, meetings were held there. Transportation was provided by the Red Cross but now, Altrusans and other interested organizations, furnish rides. The average attendance is 65, but many times, 100 may attend.

Senior Citizens enjoy the meetings so much they sometimes arrive 45 minutes to an hour early each week. Choir groups and other types of entertainment are scheduled from time to time, but the favorite activity at the center is playing "forty-two."

McAnelly-Schulz Vows Said In Double-Ring Ceremony

The marriage of Laura Claire McAnelly and Gregory Paul Schulz, 1825 N. Wells, was solemnized at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 23, in the chapel of the First United Methodist Church of Pampa.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Harris McAnelly, 2000 Charles of Pampa, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Randall L. Schulz, Redwing, Minn.

THE CEREMONY
Rev. Lloyd V. Hamilton officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Tracy Cary, organist, played traditional wedding music.

The church was decorated with tall spiral candelabra, entwined with greenery and a large arrangement of white chrysanthemums. Pews of honor were marked with tall arrangements of greenery and flowers.

THE BRIDE
Given in marriage by her father, Rex Harris McAnelly, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza edged in English lace. The empire bodiced, featured a Victorian neckline and camolot sleeves. The floor-length skirt, highlighted with English lace and re-embroidered with silk was designed with a chapel train that fell from the back waistline.

Her three-tiered shoulder-length veil of illusion fell from a bandeau of re-embroidered lace. The bride's bouquet was of white roses and stephanotis.

ATTENDANTS
Rhonda Bryant was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Rebecca Thompson and Melinda Spearman. They were identically gowned in floor-length gowns of pink silk organza, edged with white lace, and carried nosegays of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations.

Garvin McCarrell was best man and groomsmen were Jeff Hogan and Dennis Stowers.

RECEPTION
For the reception in the church parlor, the serving table was covered with a white silk cloth. A tall silver candelabra holding pink candles, pink carnations and roses, completed the setting.

The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with white and pink roses and topped with wedding bells. Judy Lankford assisted at the punch bowl and Lynn Richardson, served the cake. Sandra Sims registered the wedding guests.

For the wedding trip to New Mexico, the bride traveled in a pink plaid palazzo pantsuit and lifted the corsage from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside in Canyon where both will be attending school.

AFFILIATIONS
The bride will be a 1973 graduate of Pampa High School. The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of PHS and has been attending Texas A&M at College Station, the fall semester. He plans to transfer to West Texas State University in Canyon.

PRE-NUPTIAL EVENTS
Mrs. W.E. Gething, 1717 Mary Ellen, was hostess for a shower honoring the bride Dec. 9.

The bridesmaids brunch Dec. 23, was hosted by Mrs. John R. Spearman, east of city, with Mrs. H. Ray Thompson serving as co-hostess. A rehearsal dinner was hosted in the Crown and Shield Room, Coronado Inn, Dec. 23.

In the old days, Waldemar von Zedwitz of New York was supposed to be almost clairvoyant when it came to the problem of locating a missing queen. It appears that he still possesses that power as may be seen from his success in making three no-trump in a recent rubber bridge game at the Cavenish Club.

After ducking the first spade Waldy had to win the continuation. He led dummy's jack of diamonds and overtook with his queen. West could not afford to duck because of the heart suit so West won and set up his last spade.

The nine of diamonds was overtaken by the 10 and again West was in. He cashed his last spade. After seeing a deuce of clubs discard from his partner West led the three of hearts.

Waldy rose with dummy's ace; led the king of clubs; continued with the jack and let it ride after East played low. It held and Waldy claimed the rest of the tricks and the rubber.

"How did you figure that one out?" asked West. "You risked a two-trick set in the event that I held the queen of clubs. A simple heart finesse or a lead of a club to your king would have restricted your loss to one trick and still given you a satisfactory play wouldn't it?"

"Yes," said Waldy. "But this was the only play that would work."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, DEC. 24

Your birthday today: Prepare to move up in changing, perhaps much clearer circumstances later this year. Nothing comes smoothly. Today's natives are cautious, frequently to such an excess that they need lively friends to help counteract it.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Be up and about, bright and early, do your full share in community rituals and customs. You carry more responsibility today.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Meeting new people or seeing familiar associates in a surprising new light is normal for this day of discovery.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Keep on pursuing yesterday's goals. The steady pace you can keep will bring abundant results, with patience.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: This is one occasion to stay at home to share local excitement. You'll never get it straight by hearing about it.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: The quieter, the better as you firm announcement provokes dissent or inspires competitive plans by everybody involved.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]:

Being placid is simple to say but not easy to achieve in this rushing wind-up season. Keep things uncomplicated.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You are more than apt to feel somewhat crowded with all the people moving out of their accustomed grooves of habit, visiting.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Endless discussion clears the air, finally, so you know where you are with the people around you. Keep at your necessary Sunday routines.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: It is a bit late for most decisions. Perhaps you've let some matters decide themselves by procrastination.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: You'll be proud of managing your competitive impulses today. There are so many good things to do, not much time to do them.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Take a vacation from thought about finances and getting advantages. Seek favors from people who are able to give them.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Put your plans aside serenely; there are so many factors you can't evaluate them all quickly. Be ready with candid answers.

MONDAY, DEC. 25

Your birthday today: Opens a prolonged testing period in which you make practical use of all you have learned. Expect to outgrow some relationships this coming year. Today's natives are somewhat cautious, idealistic, able to concentrate on a goal once it is defined.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Christmas this year tops off a long weekend, quietly, modestly, and completely. Some phases of experience are near closing out.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Taper off exertions, make this an easy holiday of real peace. Prayer and meditation are indicated as essential.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Keeping the holiday means letting differences of opinion and philosophy go unchallenged for the moment. Get started early.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Expect very little from anybody, as underlying tensions are not canceled by the fact of the holiday. You can make it a happy time.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Your temptation is toward overdoing things, getting too excited or hasty. Travel of even short duration requires exceptional care.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Gather family and friends about you, let business or material concerns and the like be forgotten for the holiday.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Fill your holiday with pleasant diversions; nothing carried to an excess, or far from your normal pattern of living.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Discretion is necessary today as you encounter all sorts of behavior. Your home tends to attract visitors you hadn't expected.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Have care and courtesy. Limit your visiting. An extraordinary stress on material matters is possible.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]

Relax, take the course of least resistance in the highest of good humor. You are in for some teasing or a joke or two.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: The surprise of the day is not what you had expected, may be something running counter to what is happening on the surface.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Let go of yesterday and last year, live in the festivity of the holiday. There's no recovery of anything gone by.

Christmas: Hope

Christmas first appeared on the calendar as December twenty-fifth in 354 A.D. In a hundred years, it had caught on pretty much throughout the western part of the world. But not without controversy.

Our music today is hearty, full-throated and joyful, expressing the hopeful themes of composers who were moved to optimism by the prospect of an eternal life unblemished by war or disease.

Because of that hope, men sailed the oceans, established missions, started schools, developed science, including medicine. In short, they lost their fears, putting off superstitious taboos and taking on cause-and-effect logic.

No one can say that all consequences of the Bethlehem occurrence has been free of evil. Many a pagan was bled to death on a battlefield out of a pious concern for his immortal soul. Many a monster was enthroned in the name of salvation.

Christmas and Freedom

Our first Christmas as a nation was a shining triumph of the faith of General George Washington. It was a bitter cold day, the snow, the wind whipping across the icy water of the Delaware River, stinging men and animals, the tension caused by the need to hurry—so that the strike at Trenton could be made before dawn.

courage of Washington and his brave tattered army.

At six o'clock men, horses and arms began assembling. By the early hours of December 26 three forces attempted the crossing. One failed entirely, one arrived too late to aid in the battle. Only Washington's own band, a thousand men, conquered the icy Delaware and the Hessians at Trenton.

The success of this battle, against all odds, appears to be what carried the American army through the terrible winter at Valley Forge. The victory, in the most desperate hour of our history, was psychological as well as one of arms. It marked the change from despair to hope.

It was a shining triumph of valor and of determination over suffering and humiliation. Daniel Webster expressed what every American must feel: "America has furnished to the world the character of Washington. And if our American institutions had nothing else, that alone would have entitled them to the respect of mankind."

As we celebrate Christmas in this year of our Lord, 1972, should we not consider the true meaning of this religious holiday? Should we not also think again about this nation's first Christmas? How thankful we should be for the freedom that was purchased by our founding fathers, remembering the price that was paid so that we might celebrate Christmas as a free people in a free nation.

Yes, Christmas is a wonderful time of year. A time to be mindful of our many blessings, be thankful for our Constitutional Republic and for our Free Enterprise System that has given us so much material abundance. For nearly 200 years we have been able in these United States of America to celebrate Christmas as our own hearts, minds and souls dictate...may it ever be so!

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL!

Soviet Tie Begins To Pinch India

By RAY CROMLEY WASHINGTON (NEA) Sources in New Delhi suggest

Prime Minister Gandhi is beginning to find India's association with Russia may be somewhat like riding on the back of a tiger. This discovery, they believe, is what is propelling Mrs. Gandhi toward rapprochement with the United States.

The India-Russia friendship pact and Soviet backing for India in the war with Pakistan over Bangladesh were interpreted as a major victory for New Delhi, and insure that India would be by far the most powerful nation on the sub-continent, lower American influence in Southern Asia, make it possible for India to stand up to China.

Soviet aid, moreover, was to make India independent of the West and the United States in particular.

Today Mrs. Gandhi is apparently discovering the Soviet Union wants a payoff.

One Soviet move and another leads to the conclusion Moscow now wants a strong say in how India develops economically. The Soviet leaders seemingly are attempting to get New Delhi to arrange things so that what India produces and what it consumes will mesh closely with Soviet production and Soviet needs. The Indians reportedly have already agreed to take Soviet economic needs into account when making national plans and the Russians have promised to do the same.

Some Indians influential in the Gandhi ruling group believe that the way things are going, this could, in effect, make India an economic satellite of Moscow on the Eastern European model.

The Russians also are reportedly impatient with the speed at which India is moving toward socialism. By this means and that, the Russians, it appears, are pushing for rapid and complete nationalization of India's sugar, textile and drugs and pharmaceuticals industries, not the partial, piecemeal nationalization now apparently under way in some of these fields.

What bothers the Indians particularly is that, when they resist Soviet pressures and seek to move on their own independent path, Moscow (if the Indians are accurate in their intelligence) stirs up the local Indian Communist groups, which then organize student unrest and anti-government agitation.

Some Indians have also pointed out to the Prime Minister that economic and technical aid from the Soviet Union is not all that it seems. At a time when Soviet technical experts are advising Indian farmers, Moscow is sending her own agricultural experts to the United States to learn from American farmers. Russia is buying wheat from the United States to meet Moscow's deficiencies at the same time the U.S.S.R. is sending wheat to India.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Playing It Shrewd, That Ted Kennedy

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — If we're going to follow Sen. Ted Kennedy around for the next four years or more, we're going to have to learn when to get excited and when not to. Right now isn't the moment. He's just warming up.

The sober-sides got all steamed up recently when he held out the "olive branch" to President Nixon and also said he had more good will right now in Congress than he's ever had before.

Ah, Kennedy's making his big move for the center, right? He knows where all those votes are that elected Mr. Nixon overwhelmingly. No use wasting time if you're going in 1976, is there?

Wrong. Kennedy simply had a couple speeches to make, and wanted one of them to be about Congress in the months just ahead.

So, what do you say? Hit the president over the head with a big laundry list of things Democrats think he should have been doing or ought quickly to do in a new Congress?

Kennedy rejected that idea out of hand. In the first place, he doesn't like to carp. In the second, this isn't exactly the time for carping. The states of this union just voted 49 to 1 for Mr. Nixon, giving him a winning vote margin upwards of 17.5 million. The voters hardly seem in a mood to read an instructional manual from Democrats.

Here Kennedy's best political instincts were serving him. There's plenty of time for partisan carping later. The sensible, mature, graceful thing at this moment is to accept the voters' verdict, and tell the winner it gives him an enormous opportunity.

Kennedy sensed it, whether or not he thought it through hard. Hemay not even have remembered, but his late brother John did something very similar right after Dwight D. Eisenhower won his first big victory in 1952.

John F. Kennedy had just been elected to the Senate as Ike was sweeping the nation. He appeared on "Meet the Press" the Sunday after election. He could have followed the standard party line and moaned about the puzzling behavior of American voters who rejected the noble Adlai Stevenson and chose instead a general new to politics.

Instead, he said simply that "the people have spoken." The country obviously has the new president it wants, and so let's get in there.

Ted Kennedy's similar judgment, instinctive, made for much better politics than if he had chosen to deliver some partisan whack at Mr. Nixon. The core of the American system is giving people a choice. You only demean them and the system if you start right off talking to them as if they had acted like a bunch of bubble-heads.

Some of our serious observers seem to imagine that decisions like Kennedy's, to say something nice about Mr. Nixon, come only after a long spell of thought, with the door closed and the head cupped in the hands.

Well, some decisions do demand extended study and reflection. But this wasn't one of them.

It didn't take Kennedy 30 seconds to opt against some dull recital of Mr. Nixon's supposed responsibilities in the field of new legislation.

The President, not the Democrats, has "position." So why not recognize it? If, after that, he can't even kick a field goal, it may not be a bad thing that you reminded the voters where he started from. They don't mind a little memory jogging but they're pretty good judges as to who's moving the country and who's not. Accepting that reality did not put Kennedy in Mr. Nixon's corner.

Your Health

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am a widow in my late 60s and in fair health. I would like to know why I have low blood pressure in my left arm and high blood pressure in my right arm.

Dear Reader—Of course, I don't know how much difference in pressure you actually have between the two arms. Small variations in pressure are common. Also, in people whose blood pressure fluctuates rapidly, the difference may be evidence of the lability of the blood pressure. The doctor can eliminate this possibility by repeating the pressures after the lower reading is obtained in one arm.

Assuming that you do have a significant difference in blood pressure in the two arms which is not just a fluctuation, then one has to think of some obstruction of the artery. The artery to the right arm is the first artery to come directly from the aortic arch (the main artery that carries blood from the heart to most of the body). The artery to the other arm originates from this main aortic arch artery a little farther along. If there is an obstruction in the arch between the origin of these two arteries, it is usually situated in such a place that the blood pressure will be higher in the right arm (before the obstruction) than it is in the left arm (beyond the obstruction).

One common cause of an obstruction in the aortic arch between the two arteries is a birth defect, technically called coarctation of the aorta. I would be very much surprised if this was your problem in view of your age, and since apparently such a diagnosis has never been made. If you do, however, you should also have lower blood pressure in both legs as compared to your right arm. I would also expect to see a fairly large pulsation at the bottom of your throat, just at the top of the breastbone. Such large pulsations occur because the aortic arch is enlarged before the obstruction.

If you do not have this type of birth defect, one has to look for other causes for obstruction in the artery leading to the left arm. These can be caused by muscles or ligaments that press on the arteries in this area, and sometimes even the collarbone (clavicle) or an extra rib from a neck vertebra may cause pressure. Then, of course, there is the possibility that you do have an obstruction within the opening of the artery to the left arm, perhaps from a buildup of fatty deposits causing artery blockage. If any cause for blockage occurs in the artery to the arm alone and your blood pressure is truly high in the right arm, then your blood pressure should be high in both legs as well.

It seems to me that you have an important problem which hasn't been resolved, which needs careful medical evaluation. If you truly have high blood pressure, you may need treatment for that.

Keep true to the dreams of thy youth.—Johann Schiller, German poet.

'Twas the night before Christmas And all through the town, Not a creature was stirring, Not a soul to be found.

THAT IS, of course, with the exception of Santa Claus and the City Hall Cat.

They have decided to make the rounds together tonight and with Santa's permission the Cat will deliver a few packages to some Pampa VIPs.

His Christmas Eve list looks something like this: To City Manager Mack Wofford—A book of guidelines explaining how to spend federal revenue sharing loot.

To County Judge Don Cain—Ditto.

To Mayor Milo Carlson—A Panhandle Regional Planning Commission etiquette guide.

To School Board members—A bottle of nerve medicine and an hour-glass timer.

To City Commissioners—Another federal grant with footnotes on how to beat the rap.

To Red Wedgeworth—Some ice grippers so he won't have to crawl into the chamber office on icy days.

To Dr. Joe Donaldson—A new story book.

To The Court House Cat—TIPS on how to snout a scoop.

To County Commissioners—A book on "How to Save Money and Spend It at the Same Time."

To Wayne B. (Red) Smith—Dr. Donaldson's old story book and a new A&M joke.

AND THERE are still more: To members of the Top O' Texans Club—A description of the gal mentioned in the oft-asked question, "Who's Peggy?"

To Peggy—An apology from TOT Club Members.

To Gene Steel—Another 20 years of Celenese prosperity in Pampa.

To E. L. Green Jr.—A happy retirement.

To Fred Neslage—Another civic job to add to the score or more he already has.

To City Tax Collector Aubrey Jones—A sharper pencil to figure lower taxes.

To Police Chief Jim Conner—A new jail.

To Fire Chief Finace Dyer—A flame-thrower.

To chamber president Jerry Sims—Don Lane's old story book.

To Sheriff Rufe Jordan—A new jail.

To County Tax Collector Jack Back—A sharper pencil to figure lower taxes.

To Jim Hughes—Encouragement to bring another road show to the auditorium.

WHILE ON the subject of Santa Claus, it has been more than 50 years since little Virginia O'Hanlon wrote to the editor of a New York newspaper and asked him if there really was a Santa Claus.

In his reply, printed in the editorial columns of the newspaper, the editor said:

"Yes, Virginia, there really IS a Santa Claus"—and he went on to explain why.

It still holds good today. We can say, without fear of telling a fib: Yes, Virginia, there really IS a Santa Claus, and he has moved his headquarters from the North Pole to Washington.

BUT, THIS is supposed to be the season of good will, glad tidings and joy—a time that warms the cockles of our (yours and mine) hearts.

It is the one time of year when good will just naturally slips out of people whose defense mechanisms have been disarmed by the happy holiday season.

As we all watch on this Christmas Eve, the world, of course, breathes a sigh of relief that another year has been survived.

In a flurry of greeting card, decorations, carols and gifts many of us bring out a side of ourselves that has been held back most of the year.

We are even friendly to people we might otherwise ignore, tolerant of people we would otherwise criticize. Puzzling feelings of joy, faith and dedication take possession of us.

Again, as we all watch this Christmas Eve, there is the undying hope that peace soon will come and put an end to the tragedy that is Vietnam. For weeks it has seemed so near and yet so far.

No matter how much we would like to forget about it, there still are wars abroad, conflict and crime at home—not to mention the strife generated by the Christmas shopping season. Thank goodness that ended last night.

AT CHRISTMAS time all the persistent remnants of reality add up to remind us that the idea of peace on earth and good will to men is, as all fantasies must be, a bit on the painful side.

But—we have to remember this—no matter how painful, reality at this time of year cannot kill the fantasy, no matter how unlikely its survival seems.

And, thank goodness once more, the Christmas spirit is powerful in its gentleness. It comes back again and again every year, just as it has this year, in spite of all the odds against it.

And it brings with it—at least for a few fleeting days—a vision of how things might be, a faint promise and hope enough to last for another year.

So, turning to the real meaning of Christmas—the celebration of the anniversary of the birth of the Christ child—the glad tidings and great joy—may we express the wish that your Christmas be merry and that there is happiness in your heart.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

We have received certificates from the West Texas Division for the following R.N.'s who have taught nursing classes during the past two years: Mrs. Majaunta Hills, R.N.; Mrs. Marcella Hudson, R.N.; Mrs. Christine A. Winegeart, R.N.; Mrs. Johnnie Spert, R.N.; Mrs. Dorothy McMurtray, R.N.; and Mrs. Kathy Hufstetler, Home Economics teacher.

Thomas E. Mayfield, First Aid Instructor, completed a Multimedia First Aid Class 1-15-72 with the following students receiving cards: Donald W. Patterson, Leo H. Edwards, and A. Wayne Rusco from Schlumberger Well Service.

Ruth Carter, Water Safety Instructor, just completed Beginner and Swimmer classes at the Youth Center. Jan Robertson, one of our new Water Safety Instructors, assisted Mrs. Carter. Those receiving cards were Tami Robertson, Lori Crawford, and Chuck Ekleberry.

Everyone in Pampa has been so very cooperative with the Red Cross and the Welfare Index trying to find and furnish baskets for those in need that we feel all of Pampa should be proud of the work of Mrs. Jess Hatcher, Mrs. Georgia Mack, Libby Shotwell and many others.

Captain Sullivan and his secretary have been so very helpful with screening and working with other organizations so there would be no overlapping this year.

The First Baptist Church, the Mary Ellen Church of Christ, the First United Methodist Church and the First Christian Church have all called and given us the names of those they planned to take care of this year. If all churches would let us know who they want to take care of, we would be working for all Pampa needy and then none would be left out.

A great big hand should go to the boys and girls at Robert E. Lee for their work in taking 14 needy families for Christmas. The paid assembly gave them the money they needed to help others.

They bought groceries, packed the baskets and checked out the names, all with the help of their teachers, then they delivered them to the families in Pampa, where there was a need. They worked with the Welfare Index, and the Robert E. Lee counselor, Mrs. Essie Mae Walters, and with Mrs. Eugenia Olds in planning this project.

May each of you be blessed for your work. Pampa High School, with Mr. and Mrs. Don Case, went with a group of boys and girls to the St. Ann's Childrens Home in Panhandle for a wonderful party. Toys for the younger children were taken and a crisp new $5 bill was given to the older boys and girls (18). We were told, by the high school boys and girls.

We think this is wonderful for them to do. Also they shared their canned food with the Salvation Army for the baskets they sent out.

We think our boys and girls in Pampa are the greatest.

The Mobeetie School is sending tray favors to the East Ridge Home for the Christmas holidays. Mrs. Ann Hull is the teacher sponsor for the Mobeetie Elementary School.

Thanks, boys and girls.

May everyone who reads our Red Cross News have a Happy Christmas and a wonderful prosperous New Year. Your Executive Secretary will be in Canadian-Christmas-Day with relatives there. However, Mrs. Sam B. Cook will answer the phone and take care of any emergency that we may have.

This month we have delivered a birth announcement to a serviceman in Korea, two death messages, and a wire for Compassionate Leave because of illness in the family of the serviceman. The military makes the decision but the Red Cross verifies the need of the serviceman at home.

Our work goes on and on.

CAD Finds You Can Cheat An Honest Man

DALLAS (AP) — The City of Dallas Consumer Affairs office gets about 25 to 50 telephone calls a day from persons complaining they've been duped, swindled, hoodwinked, flim-flammed and defrauded, or maybe just ripped-off, byped, boondoggled or bamboozled.

"Most of the complaints are legitimate ones," said Consumer Affairs Department Director J.D. Walton. "We are not always able to help them, but their complaints do have a basis."

The Consumer Affairs Department apparently is not just a listening post, because the people there have law enforcement powers, meaning they carry badges and can put offenders in jail.

Since a new city ordinance gave birth to CAD in November, Walton has discovered it's indeed possible to cheat an honest man.

Most of the abuse in the market place, Walton said, seems to be occurring in automotive and television repair shops. Another shaky area is that of landlord-tenant relationships.

CAD's investigative team, which includes former FBI agents and police officers, has been getting results without going to court. "Most of them are willing to make adjustments," Walton said.

Walton said CAD is doing work on a couple of new consumer affairs ordinances, the first of which will be a television repair ordinance, followed by an auto repair ordinance.

The Dallas Better Business Bureau also is basking in the rising sun of consumerism.

The BBB stresses prevention rather than retaliation, unlike CAD, but the former will refer clear violations of law to the appropriate agencies if necessary.

The thousands of consumers who call the BBB each week get a letter in return asking them to write a letter detailing the suspect transaction. About one-third of the complainants follow through with the letter. BBB Director Duffield Smith said.

The BBB then contacts the business under complaint and attempts to negotiate a settlement. The results go into the BBB files, which can be pulled at the request of a consumer.

The BBB neither commends nor condemns the businessmen it keeps watch over, but the files will tell the caller how many people think certain merchants are crooks.

WORRY CLINIC

Heed Gordon's warning: For he describes a sudden epidemic in warm, dry weather (not the "flu" type of climate) which may not have been "flu" at all. Check on yourselves and neighbors when such unexplained symptoms become epidemic!

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

GEORGE W. CRANE, PH.D., M.D.

CASE V-576: Gordon G., aged 28, is a high school chemistry teacher.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I teach in a large consolidated rural school.

"Last Spring I had to drive 500 miles during corn planting time, to attend a convention.

"Several other teachers accompanied me.

"And when we got back, we all took down with runny noses, violently sore throats, and a dry cough that later became looser, more productive of phlegm.

"Many of the other teachers who didn't go to the convention, also came down with the same symptoms.

"At first, we thought it was ordinary flu.

"When our condition grew steadily worse after a few days, we decided we must all have Asiatic flu.

"But after 2 weeks, our throats and lungs still felt dry and as if they had been seared by fire.

"So I am wondering if we were not victims of chemical burns in our nose, throat and lungs?"

"For during this same corn-planting time, farmers were putting weed killer chemicals on their land.

"These are not supposed to be inhaled.

"But inevitably we inhale some of them, don't we?"

"For as soon as these chemicals mix with the dust and the dust then dries in the hot sun, any slight gust of wind will pick up that dust and scatter it widely.

"Since we inhale over 1,000 times every hour, just think how many poisonous dust particles we may bring into our lungs!"

"And couldn't this dust theory explain the sudden spread of throat and lung inflammations over most of our continent in a matter of a few days?"

Gordon has outlined the clinical symptoms that often hit a dozen states within 24 hours.

And a lot of what has been regarded as "flu," may actually be a reaction to chemical pollutants! Even pollen may cause a runny nose and smarting eyes in people who are allergic to roses in Spring or golden rod in Autumn.

A slight contact with poison ivy or poison oak may also cause a terrific inflammation of the skin, with burning and then oozing water blisters.

Similar inflammation in the nose, throat and lungs may likewise follow chemical irritation of those delicate mucous membranes, as by inhaled dust that is contaminated with poisonous weed killers.

Mankind often feels elated at concocting new chemicals that SEEM to be wonderfully helpful.

But maybe within the next generation, they are then discovered to be injurious, as in the case of DDT.

Our present farm custom of covering the surface of the corn and soy bean fields with weed killer chemicals, has caused many experts to warn against their seeping into our wells or being carried to surface reservoirs from which city folks derive their drinking water.

But Gordon's experience may illustrate a quick reaction in the lungs of people who inhale such chemically contaminated dust, especially during the planting season in Spring.

Maybe it is time to prod the Food and Drug Administration to investigate Gordon's suggestions.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Santa Claus and his helper were left out in the cold on a church roof this week and were further embarrassed by a police interrogation while trying to get to a children's Christmas party.

"I don't know if I want to play Santa Claus again," mused Hamilton Journal News Sunday Editor Rex Richardson, after the Wednesday night incident.

He and a friend decided to make the church party more authentic with a rooftop arrival. But someone swiped the ladder they were using and the two became stranded.

A policeman became suspicious and questioned them when they finally got down.

Once satisfied with their explanation, the officer told Richardson:

"I want a toy pistol for Christmas."

ASTROLOGERS BRING GIFTS TO THE CHRIST CHILD MATTHEW 2:1-12

From THE LIVING BIBLE

Jesus was born in the town of Bethlehem, in Judea, during the reign of King Herod.

At about that time some astrologers from eastern lands arrived in Jerusalem, asking, "Where is the newborn King of the Jews? for we have seen his star in far-off eastern lands, and we have come to worship him."

King Herod was deeply disturbed by their question, and all Jerusalem was filled with rumors. He called a meeting of the Jewish religious leaders.

"Did the prophets tell us where the Messiah would be born?" he asked.

"Yes, in Bethlehem," they said, "for this is what the prophet Micah wrote:

"O little town of Bethlehem, you are not just an unimportant Judean village, for a Governor shall rise from you to rule my people Israel."

Then Herod sent a private message to the astrologers, asking them to come to see him; at this meeting he found out from them the exact time when they first saw the star. Then he told them, "Go to Bethlehem and search for the child. And when you find him, come back and tell me so that I can go and worship him too!"

After this interview the astrologers started out again. And look! The star appeared to them again, standing over Bethlehem. Their joy knew no bounds!

Entering the house where the baby and Mary his mother were, they threw themselves down before him, worshipping. Then they opened their presents and gave him gold, frankincense and myrrh. But when they returned to their own land, they didn't go through Jerusalem to report to Herod, for God had warned them in a dream to go home another way.
