

CONSPIRACY TO COMMIT WAR IS 'SUPREME CRIME'

Individual Sentences Planned for Tomorrow

NUERNBERG, Germany—AP—The International Military Tribunal ruled today for the first time in history that conspiracy to commit aggressive war "is a supreme crime" in a monumental verdict indicating imprisonment or the gallows for the 22 former leaders of Nazi Germany.

The German general staff and high command and the reich cabinet were acquitted of charges that they were criminal organizations, "certain groups" of the leadership corps, the SS or elite guard, the SD (a department which operated a spy system) and the gestapo were convicted.

The first part of the 100,000-word verdict by judges of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and France strongly indicated that Hermann Goering, Rudolph Hess, Joachim von Ribbentrop and the other defendants—politicians, diplomats, military leaders, financiers and party functionaries—would be convicted on one or more of the four counts in the indictment.

The court indicated, however, that some of the lesser defendants might not be sentenced on the part of the indictment charging a conspiracy to commit aggressive war.

"The tribunal has decided that certain of the defendants planned and waged aggressive war against 12 nations and were therefore guilty of this series of crimes," it said.

All defendants are charged with two or three counts and most with three or four under the tribunal charter.

A 5,000-word summary of the judgment, rendered after ten months of a trial such as the world had never seen before, indicated that smaller Nazi party functionaries who might not have been sufficiently important to participate in the main conspiracies would be caught in other counts of the indictment. The court said evidence was "overwhelming."

The demeanor of the men listening to their fate generally was grim. Goering and Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel both indicated they believed themselves doomed to death.

Hilmar Schach, former wizard of German finance, sat aside from the other defendants with a pained expression on his face. Hess looked dejected.

General Staff, High Command Units Acquitted

NUERNBERG—(AP)—The international military tribunal today branded Germany's generals a disgrace to the "honorable profession" of soldiering, but "declined" to rule on the general staff and high command, the reich cabinet and the SA (brownshirts)—in effect acquitting them.

The tribunal convicted the leadership corps (the Nazi leadership system), the SS (elite guard), the SD (a spy department) and the Gestapo (secret police) but "declined" to rule on the general staff and high command, the reich cabinet and the SA (brownshirts)—in effect acquitting them.

The court emphasized, however, that no individual involved escaped punishment because of that acquittal.

The organizations found guilty represented, perhaps a million people down to the next block leader who terrorized his neighbors, the SS troops now behind barbed wire and the guards who performed hideous tasks at Hitler's slave camps.

"Those members who knew what their organizations were doing, the court contended, were convicted automatically. Those who quit such organizations before the invasion of Poland also were acquitted.

The verdict excludes Hitler's old brown shirt SA, which once had 4,000,000 members, from culpability. The tribunal held that the SA lost its significance after the purge of 1934 and became relatively unimportant.

Although it declined to hold guilty the notorious general staff, powerful in Germany politics since Bismarck's time, the court unleashed bitter criticism of the individual members, saying:

"They have been responsible in large measure for the miseries and suffering that have fallen on millions of men, women and children."

"They have been a disgrace to the honorable profession of arms," the ruling continued after the verdict.

Texas Company Plans Pipeline WT to Oklahoma

HOUSTON—(AP)—A 1947 pipeline construction program, estimated to cost approximately $15,000,000 and including two major lines in the Houston area, was announced here today by E. E. Hull, president of the Texas Pipe Line company.

It was disclosed that the company is also planning construction of other interests, of a 440-mile, 20-inch pipeline from West Texas into Oklahoma.

Field work on the two South Texas projects will get under way immediately, Hull said, but actual construction of the two crude carrier lines near here will be delayed until mid-1947, due to delays in securing materials and equipment.

The two South Texas lines will have a combined mileage of 140 miles.

One new line will be a 60-mile, 16-inch carrier, capable of transporting 90,000 barrels of crude per day from West Columbia to Houston.

Navy Plane Aims At New Record

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The crucial moment of a new navy patrol plane, roared across the Pacific on schedule today in a flight linking two hemisphere cities, aiming at a new distance record of more than 10,000 miles.

Navy officials reported in mid morning that the plane, a two-engine Lockheed P2V, was averaging 218 miles an hour ground speed. It was expected to pass over "George," a weather ship stationed 1,700 miles off the West Coast, at 2 p. m. (CST).

On the basis of its present progress, the plane with its crew of four officers and four enlisted men should reach Seattle or a point south of there around 10 p. m. (CST).

No destination other than "United States" has been given for the flight. The landing point will be determined by the physical condition of the crew, the performance of the plane and the fuel.

CANOL CONTROVERSY BOILS AGAIN—Map above shows location of the long-controversial Canol oil wells, 500-mile pipeline and refinery now being probed by the Senate War Investigating committee. The committee served notice on the joint chiefs of staff to remove the "war secret" label from documents relating to the project. Initiated in 1942, with cost estimated at $25,000,000, Canol was first investigated by the Truman committee in 1943 when it was discovered that cost had gone up to $132,000,000.

Declarations Set On Foreign Policy

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Strongly worded foreign policy declarations were in the making today at the American Legion national convention as the powerful veterans' organization tackled serious matters after a festive night touched off by a noisy 40 and 8" parade up Market streets.

At the same time, a determined struggle for control of the Legion was shaping up, with World War II veterans openly demanding much greater representation and voice in the organization's affairs.

Militant leaders of the World War II faction, which contends 63 percent of all Legion members are veterans of the recently-ended conflict, met in a "rump" session last night to consider means of wresting more power from the entrenched World War I group.

Parley Writes Declaration on River Shipping

PARIS—(AP)—A peace conference commission decided over Russian objection today to write a declaration on Danube river shipping in the forthcoming peace treaties with Balkan states after U. S. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg urged a clause guaranteeing freedom of trade on the vital inland waterway.

The vote, in the Balkans economic commission, was nine to five against the usual East-West lines of division. It foreshadowed probable adoption of a French government, supported by both the United States and Britain, which would establish freedom of navigation as a principle binding upon Romania, and would require a conference of riparian states, plus the Big Four, to apply the principle within six months from the time the treaty takes effect.

Vandenberg opened the United States campaign in the Balkan economic commission on one of the most controversial issues remaining before the treaty convalescence.

His statement drew immediate support from Britain's Gladwyn Jebb, Yugoslav delegate Stanoevic. He declared that peace treaties were not the place to establish a regime for the river.

The senator submitted a new projected text supported by both Britain and America. Previously the two nations had agreed on all proposed Danubian clauses except the makeup of a conference to write a permanent statute for the stream.

He told the commission the United States had a direct temporary interest in the Danube because of American occupation zones in Austria and Germany and a broader long-range interest because "avoiding international-made barriers, which invite discrimination and friction," was important to peace.

A five-member sub-commission assigned the task of drafting a statute for governing the future free state of Trieste was unable to reconcile its differences and dumped the matter back into the lap of the Italian political and territorial commission, with five different drafts of a statute.

Other issues remaining to be settled as the delegates of the 21 American nations strove under a strict gag rule to meet an Oct. 3 deadline for opening plenary session work on the five peace treaties now being written, included Italian reparations, the cost of reparations, freedom of navigation on the Danube and Czech demands on Hungary.

Week Set Aside For Employing of Handicapped Vets

Business, labor, veterans, and religious and civil leaders in Pampa have been asked by the Disabled American Veterans to take part in a "National Employ-the-Physically Handicapped Week," which has been set for the week of October 6-12.

Dewey Belmont, commander of Pampa chapter, said that as the result of concerted efforts by the DAV and the American Federation of Physically Handicapped Congress members and the President, set aside this week in October.

"The purpose of this special week," Belmont said, "is to arouse employers as to the advantage of hiring handicapped workers, and so far as the DAV is concerned, those who have service incurred disabilities."

"With its experience with World War I and II disabled veterans," Belmont stated, "the DAV confidently contends that properly placed disabled veterans are generally more serviceable than are able-bodied persons in similar jobs."

"Recognizing some of the natural disadvantages of having some disabilities, war disabled veterans want no more handicaps, and thus become so psychologically conditioned as to cause them to generally be more careful, cautious, and resourceful, and less likely the loss of job time because of injury or illness, than able-bodied employees. The employment of service disabled veterans is the right jobs is advantageous to their dependents, their employers and committees, as well as to all tax payers," Belmont asserted.

Mobeetie Man Is Crushed by Truck

William Eisenmenger, 73, night-watchman at Mobeetie, was instantly killed yesterday evening when he was pinned to the ground by a heavy cattle truck as he walked out into the street.

Witnesses said Eisenmenger had left his cafe and started crossing the street when the truck, driven by a Mobeetie woman, started backing away from the curb.

Several persons shouted at the driver of the truck but the woman failed to hear them and stopped the vehicle only after the rear wheel had crushed Eisenmenger's chest.

Eisenmenger was rushed to a nearby hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival.

A native Texan, he was born Jan. 19, 1873, and had been a resident of Mobeetie for 28 years.

He is survived by three brothers, Charles of San Antonio, Otto of Ft. Worth and Herman of Mobeetie, and two sisters, Mrs. Bernia Schwartz and Miss Clara Eisenmenger, both of Deaneville, Texas.

Funeral services will be conducted from the First Baptist church in Mobeetie tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock with the Reverend Homer Sally, pastor of the Mobeetie Methodist church, officiating.

Burial will be in the Mobeetie cemetery under the direction of the Duenkel-Carmichael funeral home of Pampa.

Utilization of Resources Urged

EDGEWATER PARK, Miss.—(AP)—The Southern Newspaper Publishers' association heard today from its acting president an appeal for "economic preservation and utilization" of the South's forest resources, lest "the time may come when supplies no longer can meet demands."

General Manager George C. Biggers, of the Atlanta Journal, who as chairman of the SNPA board of directors presided at the meeting, declared:

"It is imperative that the present supply of the raw material for a million dollar industry not only be maintained, but that the forests be made to grow more and more wood to meet the increasing demand."

For "outstanding service during the war," Biggers singled out six past presidents of SNPA: Charles F. Manship of the Baton Rouge, La., Advocate; State-Times; James G. Stahlman of the Nashville Banner; Clark Howell of the Atlanta Constitution; E. M. (Ted) Dealey of the Dallas News; Adolph Shely Ochs of the Chattanooga Times; and A. W. Buckle of the Rock Hill, S. C. Herald.

He also cited Mrs. Oreta Culp Hobby of the Houston Post, a former SNPA board member, who organized and commanded the WAC.

High School Students Strike for Veterans

GLASSBORO, N. J.—(AP)—The 650 pupils at Glassboro high school marched out of the school today protesting a state law barring three 19-year-old fellow pupils, all war veterans, from playing on the school football team.

Flanked by girl cheer leaders, the entire student body staged a half-hour parade, waving placards, some of which read:

"All work and no play."

"We served our country, why can't we play now?"

"We want a square deal for our ex-GI's."

The pupils arrived at the usual time, but assembled in the gymnasium, yanked up placards, declared they were on strike and marched out.

King Demands Group Retract Its Criticism

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Admiral Ernest J. King demanded today that the senate war investigating committee retract its criticism of him in connection with the joint chiefs of staff's 1943 recommendation for completion of the Canol project.

King was the wartime chief of naval operations.

He read the committee a statement in which he declared that in "justice and fair play" the committee should "publicly correct the injustice which you have publicly done me."

In its fifth annual report, filed Sept. 1, the committee said that King as a member of the joint chiefs of staff (army and navy) had recommended in 1943 the $134,000,000 oil-highway project in Canada despite a stand by then Secretary of the Navy, Knox that it should be dropped.

King told the committee that he considered the report also "to impute to me individual responsibility" for the chiefs of staff's decision.

He called "his both technically incorrect and morally unjust." As for the stand of Knox in 1943 on the question of completing the efforts to develop an oil field in Northwestern Canada, King declared:

"My statement, which implies that I took action as a member of the joint chiefs of staff at variance with the official position of the secretary of the navy, is not supported by an evidence available to me—not to me."

The committee has gone into previous phases of the project from time to time for years. It asked the same question in 1944 but was told then that national security prevented an answer.

In earlier hearings, the committee learned that at least $124,000,000 was put into the Canol project. Started in 1942, the plan called for sinking oil wells near Normal Wells, Canada, and the laying of some 1,200 miles of pipelines. Oil was to be shipped to refineries at White Horse.

The idea was that gasoline would be supplied for the defense of Alaska and for vehicles using the project.

New Jersey Man Being Held Here For Investigation

Pampa police are now holding Harry Frank Dale, 23, Newark, N.J., for the stand of Knox in 1943 on the question of completing the efforts to develop an oil field in Northwestern Canada, King declared.

City police here stated that Dale admitted, under questioning, that he was a parole violator from the Newark State prison after he had stolen several cars on his way to Texas, police said.

Dale and his wife are now both in the city jail awaiting further word from New Jersey and the FBI.

Mother Drowns Her Two Children

CLEVELAND, Texas—(AP)—A 30-year-old Cleveland mother is being held in the Liberty county jail today on charges that she drowned her two children in a bathtub.

Mrs. A. H. Brent, wife of a Shell Oil company employee now in Maricao, Venezuela, was charged yesterday afternoon with two counts of murder before Justice of the Peace George R. Smith after neighbors to the Brent home found the children submerged in the bathtub, Liberty County Attorney Jeff Cochran said.

The children were Linda, 3, and James, 18-months old.

At the jail, county officials reported Mrs. Brent to be hysterical and seemingly unaware of the tragedy.

Cochran said neighbors, attracted by frantic screams from the children, forced their way into the Brent home and found the children in one-foot of water in the tub. Mrs. Brent, he said, was found sitting on the bathroom floor. Attempts to revive the children were unsuccessful.

"She still doesn't know that her children are dead," he said.

The Liberty county official said he planned to ask two physicians to sign certificates committing the mother to a mental institution and would then ask that the murder charges be dismissed.

Mrs. Brent had been residing here with her children since the departure of her husband for South America last month.

WAC Captain Given 5 Years in Theft

FRANKFURT, Germany—(AP)—Former WAC Capt. Kathleen N. Durant was convicted today by a military court of stealing $1,500,000 worth of Hesse family jewels, and was sentenced to five years imprisonment at hard labor, with dishonorable discharge.

Mrs. Durant's husband, Col. Jack Durant, and Maj. David Watson, are awaiting trial on complicity charges in the theft of the jewels from Kronberg castle.

Mrs. Durant displayed no emotion as the nine-officer court handed down its verdict of guilty on three counts of larceny, embezzlement and being absent without leave from her military post.

The 43-year-old defendant had the same thing, said Lt. Col. John S. Dwinell of Brooklyn, N. Y., in his closing appeal for mercy. "It is unjust to point the finger at this woman and say you will now pay the penalty for something that the whole world knows many, many people have done with immunity."

U.S. Navy Forces Help Carry Out Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal declared today that United States naval forces are in the Mediterranean to help carry out American foreign policy.

And they will be there for some time to come, the cabinet officer made plain in an unusual policy statement.

Simultaneously, it was learned that when the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt is withdrawn from the troubled sea it will be promptly replaced by another flat top. Previous emphasis on the PDR's Mediterranean cruise has been on the "good will" theme.

Forrestal's policy declaration was released as the American government (1) indicated full backing to Russia against the Axis; (2) indicated full backing to Turkey in that country's resistance to Russian demands on the Dardanelles; (3) studied means to aid the present Greek government in its troubles with Russian-supported neighbors and (4) hoped uncertainty for a peaceful settlement with Yugoslavia over the disposition of Trieste.

"Today," Forrestal said, "the United States navy is continuing to maintain forces in the eastern Atlantic and the Mediterranean sea for the following specific purposes:

"First, to support the Allied occupation forces and the Allied military government in the discharge of their responsibilities in the occupied areas of Europe.

"Second, to protect U. S. interests and to support U. S. policies in the area."

The Forrestal statement today said that at present this country has in European waters, mostly in the Mediterranean, a division of cruisers, a squadron of destroyers, and the necessary sustaining vessels of auxiliary types.

Of aircraft carriers, Forrestal said a succession of these major ships would be assigned on temporary duty to give ships stationed there training in carrier task group operations and to give fleet aviators equal opportunity to visit foreign countries.

It was in this connection that officials disclosed the plans for prompt replacement of the PDR with another carrier, a move indicating that this government does not intend to slash its forces in the diplomatically-troubled area for some time to come.

District Court Opening Delayed

Petit jurors for the September term of district criminal court, scheduled to open today were discharged, without trying a case, by Judge W. R. Ewing this morning.

Judge Ewing advised the jurors that due to unforeseen circumstances criminal court will be postponed until October 7 and they were to report to the office of District Clerk Mrs. Dee Patterson to draw their jury pay. The number two jury list will be opened this week and no cases sent to that list to appear next Monday.

According to District Attorney Walter Rogers, several of the lawyers who had cases for this term of court are tied up in other court cases at present and were unable to try their cases here this week.

Tuberculosis tests are under way in all the schools in the county, Huelyn Laycock, county superintendent of schools, announced this morning.

The tests are given by Mrs. Joe Stephens, registered nurse. The program is under the sponsorship of the Gray County Tuberculosis Association, Laycock said.

We don't like to ask people to wait for telephones

WHAT's not the way we like to do business. Nothing I would please us more than to be able to give people the kind of service they want, when and where they want it.

But that just isn't possible these days. We're in the midst of the most active construction program we've ever undertaken. And yet, we just can't manufacture and install the switchboards, the cables, the wires, and the other things we need fast enough to keep up with the greatest demand for telephones in history.

When the war ended, we were about four years behind. In the five states we serve, we've put in 584,000 telephones since then. But new applications have come in so fast that there are still 210,000 people waiting for service.

We're working hard to bring telephones to the people who want them. We've crowded the switchboards to maximum capacity. We're asking all new residence telephone users to take party lines. We're reassigning disconnected numbers just as fast as we can. These temporary measures mean that more people can have telephones now.

You may be sure that we're doing everything we can to speed the day when everyone waiting will have telephone service, and when someone applies for a telephone he can get it right away. That's the way we like to do business.

Teachers Deserve Personal Freedom

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

"Teachers May Be Allowed to Act Like Humans Soon," reads the headline of a newspaper story dealing with recent comments of Dr. Francis Brown, executive secretary of the President's commission on higher education.

Ruth Millett

Dr. Brown points out that the alarming teacher shortage may have two happy results: Higher pay and more personal freedom for teachers.

About that personal freedom: The educator says that almost every community has a double standard. One is for the conduct of teachers in school and out. The other standard is for non-teachers.

That's true, isn't it? Johnny's parents probably smoke, and chances are they have their friends in now and then for a few drinks. But Johnny's teacher had better not be seen smoking a cigarette or having a cocktail with friends.

Dr. Brown was quick to point out that, while he thinks teachers should be given more freedom, they should use that freedom with discretion, because "after all, teachers are setting an example for students."

But are they today? Isn't that just an old-fashioned idea we have stubbornly clung to?

Shade of Sycamore

By PERCY MARKS

THE STORY: Gayle, daughter of a college professor, has just become engaged to handsome Bartlett, famous athlete and son of a wealthy family. Gayle's parents for the first time, she is frightened by the splendor in which they live. Although Mrs. Bartlett greets her kindly, Gayle feels that she can never be happy amid such extreme luxury. She looks forward with dread to meeting the favored Mr. Bartlett.

Gayle had a blurred impression of many windows, brilliant sunlight and of foliage and flowers. But Van Dyke Bartlett she saw clearly, and almost instantly her fear dissolved into pity. He looked very old, infinitely tired, and pathetically frail. His white hair was hardly whiter than his cheeks, and even his brown eyes behind his spectacles seemed to have faded. He was half lying, half sitting in a wheelchair. A nurse in a white starched uniform rose as soon as Gayle appeared and vanished through a door in the rear of the conservatory.

Gayle walked close to Mr. Bartlett and looked down at him. He held out his wrinkled right hand, and she took it in hers.

"Give me if I stare," he said. "I know I'm cruel, but I want to look a long time."

"It's all right," Gayle assured him. "I was scared a minute ago, but I'm not now. Bart said no one could be afraid of his father, and I know what he meant."

"Thank you, my dear. That's a compliment I'll treasure. This must be very hard for you." He released her hand. "Sit down, I can look just as well if you're comfortable."

When she had selected a chair, he touched the bell at his side. "I find I can't."

Almost instantly the nurse appeared.

"Will you lift me up a little, Miss Wallace?" Mr. Bartlett asked. "I want to be able to look at Miss Kent in comfort. Miss Wallace."

he said to Gayle, "is the kindest of nurses, and," he added, looking upward, "Miss Kent is my son's fiancée. I suppose you've heard."

"Of course," the nurse said, smiling to Gayle in acknowledgment of the introduction. "The house is ringing with the news."

Gayle laughed. "And I thought it was a secret until next week."

"Bruce has no secrets," said his father. "He was home one day last week. That was enough. Thank you," he said to the nurse. "That's fine."

THE nurse smiled at Gayle again, and again vanished. "I expected to be looked over, of course, but I didn't know it would be quite such an ordeal. My only comfort is that Bart will have to go through it next week."

"He won't suffer a bit. He has no more than a headache," he said. "A coach told me once that that was the secret of Bruce's athletic success."

"It's so strange," said Gayle, "to hear him called Bruce. All his New Haven friends call him Bart."

"I don't think anyone calls him Bruce away from here. You must feel we're talking about a stranger."

"In a way, I do. It gives me an uneasy feeling. I suppose that's silly, but I think of him as Bart."

"I don't think it's silly," he smiled at her unexpectedly. "I do like what I see. Forgive me for being so personal, but Bruce's engagement is a very personal matter to me—and I'd worried about the girl he might marry. You're my kind of girl. I can see that at once. Everything about you makes me happy, even your pink fingernails. I have a horror of red ones."

"Just like my father. He's a New Englander and a professor. I don't know which he hates more, the scarlet fingernails or heavy lipstick. I come from an old-fashioned family, Mr. Bartlett, and I suppose I'm old-fashioned too."

"No; no, you're not," he contradicted quickly. "I've seen no girl with more style, and I'm glad you have it. I've never had any, but my wife has always had it, and so has Bruce—in a man's way, of course. I'm afraid I had without style would find it hard to come into this family."

"You make me feel so comfortable," Gayle told him earnestly. "This great house frightened me. We're simple people, and I hadn't expected so much grandeur—but some way you make it unimportant." She smiled at him. "You don't frighten me any more than my father does."

"I'll tell you why, my dear. The grandeur is unimportant to me. It took me years to find that out, but eventually I did. It looked past Gayle to the doorway behind her. "Good morning, young man."

"Good morning," said Bart. "Hi, Gayle. You must have been up with the birds." He bent to kiss her and smiled at his father. "Isn't she perfect?"

"An embarrassing question," his father replied, "and it's fortunate I can agree with you honestly. Otherwise I might have one of my attacks. I'm afraid I must send you away now. If I don't, Miss Wallace will. But if tomorrow is sunny and I am well enough, will you sit with me for a while in the garden—not you, Bruce, just Gayle?"

Gayle stood up. His request moved her. It was almost a plea. "It's a date," she said, "and nothing can break it. What time?"

"Ten o'clock. It ought to be warm enough by then."

Feeling strangely sure of herself, Gayle bent and kissed his cheek. He caught her hand and held it. "Thank you, my dear. Thank you. You're going to be really my daughter."

Tired, "All-In"—Listless Feeling Brought To Halt
As Vibrant Energy is Released To Every Muscle, Fibre, Cell

Do you get up in the mornings still tired, red-blooded, start on all Tonic...? Have you checked-up on your blood strength lately? Overwork, undue worry, cold, flu or other illness often wears down the red-blood-cells.

Every day—every hour—millions of your red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bloating and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood, start on all Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm feet, full hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

SELLING BUSINESS

In a soul searching session not long ago, Kenneth Patrick of the General Electric publicity staff addressed a group of advertising men on some shortcomings of their two professions. He noted, among other things, the misconception of the whole American business structure which is prevalent among students of all ages and their teachers. And he made this profoundly true observation:

"The word 'profit' has a sinister connotation for them. The word 'business' is suspect. 'Corporation' is definitely anti-social, and 'dividend' is something that used to be wrung out of the hides of the working stiff but which will definitely be extra-legal come the revolution."

All of which points up an anomaly. Most Americans are conscious of the pleasant and unmatched fruits of living that the free enterprise system brings. But they suspect the people who operate the system. The very term "free enterprise" has come to be somewhat scornful and opprobrious.

In many industries the lack of common purpose, sympathy and understanding between front office and plant is notorious. This has led to a similar lack between management and public. One result is a vague groping toward state socialism and more government control, though the groper has no assurance that more control would mean more efficiency, more justice, or more comfort.

Big business has its share of bigots and scoundrels. But as a class of human beings big businessmen are certainly no more villainous than farmers or labor leaders or school teachers. Then why their unhappy reputation?

Perhaps one reason is that all the millions spent by business on advertising and publicity doesn't tell the most important story. Perhaps there is too much attention given to outwelling competitors, to cool, careful, accurate financial statements and pie charts showing how the company's dollar is spent. Perhaps, as Mr. Patrick says, business ought to speak over the back fence instead of from an ivory tower.

In spite of all the high-priced drives and campaigns of business advertising, the anti-free enterprises are much the better sloganizers. You don't need documented proof to shout "monopoly" or "greedy capitalist" or "human rights above property rights," but it certainly is effective.

So many Americans have the idea that profit is a sin; that the men who run business, make profits and create jobs are efficient but untrustworthy; that our high living standard, high employment and high wages have been wrung from greedy capitalists by the people's champions in bitter battle; that government control of business will bring Utopia.

The job for business, then, would seem to be a broad, continuing, almost informal program of education and explanation. This might include a declaration of humane beliefs and good accomplishments, backed by more emphasis on self-regulation. It wouldn't be necessary to get mad or out-shout the opposition, but just to tell the story simply, humanly and honestly through all mediums of expression from a full page ad to a sidewalk conversation.

The free enterprise system is challenged as never before. If more people really understood it, surely more would approve and support it.

ABOUT THE NEW M-DAY PLANS FOR THE NATION

WASHINGTON (NEA)—"People don't go around slapping Joe Lewis in the face," says Richard R. Deupree, chairman of the Army-Navy Munitions Board. "That's why a thorough industrial mobilization plan for the United States will make others hesitate to attack us. It will be the greatest insurance for peace, the greatest preventive of war, that the country can have."
 For a little over a year, the ANMB, reconstituted by President Truman, has been working on a new industrial mobilization plan. Eventually the board hopes to outline an M-Day manual which will outline a complete plan for mobilization of U. S. industrial resources. In case the United States should again be attacked and have to go to war.
 "No one would bet money today that this war will come in one year or two years, or even five years," says Mr. Deupree. "But if you bet money against war, you'll have to know what you're going to do if you lose your money on that bet."
 The United States had an M-Day plan back in 1939, prepared with the advice of elder statesman Bernard Baruch and his war mobilizers of 1919. But as World War II came on, President Roosevelt decided that other arrangements would be needed.
 So the M-Day plan was abandoned, and with it went the original Army-Navy Munitions Board which had been set up by the War Production Administration.
 As these other arrangements were found unwelcome there came a new organization closely related to the M-Day plan of 1939.
 The War Production Administration Board and the War Production Administration were functioning

INDUSTRIAL PLANNING MEANS MILITARY ADVANTAGE

If war should come tomorrow, the government would have to go back to the organization it had in effect a year ago. "The last war was an industrial war," says Mr. Deupree, "and the next war will be an industrial war." The assumption is that the country best prepared as to supplies of raw materials, war plants, and procurement policies will have the advantage.
 The M-Day plan, now in preparation has nothing to do with planning the strategy of or conducting the shooting war. That is entirely up to the armed services. Theirs is the decision as to what the weapons will be, where and how they will be produced. All the Army-Navy Munitions Board has to do is make sure that adequate raw materials and plants are ready to produce those weapons.
 "It is an awfully complex problem that we are working on," Chairman Deupree explains. "Its solution must not, however, be complicated. It must be simple. Not simple to the point of being a plan for a push-button war—that just can't be. But detailed enough so that we know what has to be done."
 The 1939 M-Day plan failed because it was not spelled out clearly enough.
 The problem of stockpiling critical war materials has already been given to the Army-Navy Munitions Board by the last congress. The board had recommended spending 360 million dollars in the first year of operation. Congress appropriated 109 million dollars. More money will probably be asked for when congress convenes. The whole stockpiling program is expected to cost about two million dollars, over a five-year period.
 ANMB DECIDES WHICH WAR PLANTS SHOULD BE KEPT

Common Ground

By R. C. HOLLES

Labor Union Advocates Should Be Embarrassed

Those people who have been advocating labor monopolies and the right of labor to combine and strike in order to get a fictitious wage should now take stock of the end results of this practice. They should take stock because we have an example of what happens when people believe in the right to strike.
 The Maritime union struck and the ship owners, subsidized by the government, granted them a 10% increase. The War Stabilization Board denied the full increase. So the Maritime union struck again.
 The War Stabilization Board stood pat, but the politicians at the head of the government reversed the board decision and granted the full increase. The increase will, of course, come out of the pockets of every man in the land.
 All the strikes that have so greatly curtailed production should cause these people who for years have been bringing this on by their advocacy of collective bargaining and class legislation to realize that dictatorial bargaining really ends in dictatorship. It really ends in the loss of man's right to choose his vocations, his associates and, eventually, even his religion.
 The suggestion is often made that the government should appoint a board to determine the value of wages. But here we have one example after another of the government board establishing a wage and the union refusing to accept it. We had this example in the coal strike, in the railroad strike, and now in the maritime strike.
 So what do these defenders of collective bargaining propose to substitute in place of a free market in place of all men being free to sell their services to the highest bidder and to buy from the man who will give them the most for their dollar or for their labor?
 The fact of the matter is that there is no substitute for freedom but slavery, no substitute for a free enterprise system than exploitation and exploitation means less production and retarded standard of living, let alone less opportunity for development of character and life.
 It is time for every man who has been advocating collective bargaining to observe the end results that are taking place throughout the United States and try to bring about public opinion that will return us more nearly to the competitive of free enterprise system. They should try to undo the great harm they have done, undoubtedly with the best intentions but with very sad results.

Creatures of Environment

Most people are creatures of environment because they come in contact only with contemporary people. They never come in contact with people who have read the thinkers of the ages.
 Thus they are completely influenced by their present environment. They think of things only as they affect the present. They measure things only by their immediate results. If it is pleasant for the moment, they say it is good. Whether it develops the character, intellect and personality of the individual in the future seems to be of no importance to them. They are slaves to their environment.
 If one does not want to be a slave to his environment, he must either read, or cope in contact with those people who have read the statements of the great thinkers of the ages, such as Moses, Confucius, Socrates, Jesus, Milton, Shakespeare, Thoreau, Spencer, Darwin, Huxley and Bastiat.
 These great thinkers make the current beliefs look rather imprudent. Truth never changes with the ages.
 The time has come to recognize that the United States Treasury is not an inexhaustible reservoir, that "thrift is the philosopher's touchstone," and that excessive taxes discourage production.
 Spruille Braden, Assistant Secretary of State.

STRIKE—The plain truth of the matter is that the men who raise the fatten cattle and hogs are on strike against price regulations.

When miners, steel workers and automobile workers were on strike, it was a tremendous thing that they were striking against the country itself, and the accusations stopped only short of "Treason!"
 But there's none of the hullabaloo about the farmers, ranchers and feeders that there was about labor. Even the word "strike" isn't mentioned in most government circles.
 It is no accident that agriculturalists have more votes than the unionists, but tending the withholding of meat from market as a strike would increase public excitement, tend to cry "treason" and put the government in the position of having to take action.
CRITICAL—The situation is critical. Mines are closing because they can't work on a meatless diet. Butcher shops are shutting up and butchers are applying for unemployment benefits. Neighborhood delicatessens are operating expenses in pretzels and potato salad—besides there's no oil for the salad dressing. Ugly strikes are threatening.
 The shoe industry lacks leather, and few hides are being produced. Insulin, made from the pancreas of cattle, is getting scarce. Eli Lilly and Co., the world's largest maker of insulin, has been dipping into the bank to keep alive the 800,000 people in the country who may die of diabetes without it.
 Lack of slaughtering is reducing the supply of thyroid extract, an essential for people suffering from thyroid deficiencies, and of liver extract, vital to those suffering from anemia.
 Soap shortage is increasing. Manufacturers are pleading with housewives to save fats or face a worse soap shortage, but there are little fats to save. Glycerin, fertilizer plants and gelatine works are being shut down.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

NEA Staff Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—He said he doesn't need a name.
 "Just call me Mr. A. Moviegoer," he said. "The A.," he added, "is for Average."
 His only identification was a torn ticket stub.
 Yes, he said, he was the one who pays for all those fabulous Hollywood salaries at the boxoffice.
 He was to be interviewed, he said. His remarks, he was sure, would reflect the thoughts of millions who go to the movies every week.
 "And that's just what I want to talk about first," he said. "How they work to get you into the theater."
 We told Mr. A. Moviegoer to go right ahead.
"THE LITTLE 'COLOSSAL'"
 "One thing that irks me," he said, "is that every picture is supposed to be the finest, the most colossal the most staggering and the most gigantic. We've over-published the pictures like that? The public isn't fooled a bit by it."
 We told him we had suspected that.
 "And then there's another thing," he continued. "The over-publicizing of actor's and actresses. Every time there's a personal appearance at a benefit or premiere outside of Hollywood, they advertise that Hollywood STARS are going to be present."
 "So you pay your money—and then you are confronted with a lot of second-rate featured and bit players."
 Those talent hunts irked Mr. A. Moviegoer, too.
 "They leave me cold," he said. "All this ballyhoo about finding a Scarlett O'Hara or an Anna Karenina—the producers send out their talent scouts—always of course, with a great deal of advance publicity—to find some girl behind a soda fountain in Keokuk or some high school cheer-leader in Tallahassee.
 "Nuts to that. When a part in some two-million-dollar movie like that comes along, why not give it to one of the talented kids in Hollywood who are dying for a big break. After all most of them came from Keokuk and Tallahassee in the first place."
CREDIT FOR NON-STARS
 "There was another complaint," The supporting players are getting a raw deal," he said. "They consistently do better jobs than some of the so-called stars who merely fill out a pair of eyelids in the interesting manner or who have a head of nice, wavy black hair.
 "Let's give these players more credit. They certainly deserve it. Why not always have the cast credits at the end of the picture so we can find out the names of the actors or actresses we've seen?"
 "We thought that was a good suggestion."
 "But I've got some bouquets for Hollywood, too," Mr. A. Moviegoer said.
 "For example, the musical scores in most pictures is excellent. And the production of period costumes is very educational."
 "Thank you, Mr. A. Moviegoer," we said.
 Mr. Moviegoer blushed and said he would like to make a request.
 "Go right ahead."
 Mr. A. Moviegoer had a gleam in his eye as he whispered: "Please, do you think you could get me on a movie set so I could see them making a picture?"
 We couldn't refuse the guy.

are affected, some of them are closing down. Properly slaughtered cattle yield hundreds of other products used in medicine, industry and the arts. These products are disappearing.

On the other hand, they'd rather take their profits when their animals are ready. Some of them would like a new car or a new refrigerator right now and there are lots of merchants who would like to make a sale.

On the other hand, if the administration acts to decontrol meat, the repercussions may be even worse. Up-shooting prices may create new demands for higher wages and provoke strikes and threats of strikes. And heavy consumption of meat may cut into the later supply, sending prices up higher. The administration would face accusations of having abandoned the last line but one—fence-in the battle against inflation.

It looks as if the administration is in a quandary. Quandary, Missouri, that is!

All the wars in history are due to the clashes between clans brought about by fear, greed and pride, and until all men can accept a common axiom that they are all children of one family world brotherhood will remain difficult to achieve.

—Jeffrey Francis Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury.

—PRESSURES—Clearly, if the administration elects to fight it out

So They Say

A republican congress will see to it that we make use of our resources and our productive machinery to build houses instead of staking our veterans to live in blue prints, to enable housewives to buy stoves instead of asking their families to eat ceiling prices, and to produce automobiles which can be purchased outside of the black market.
 —Carroll Beese, Republican National chairman.

Because the atomic bomb is a super-weapon it does not follow that we must hold that it means the extinction of civilization. It could mean shorter wars and wars less destructive to our civilization.
 —Col. Bradley Dewey, President of the American Chemical Society.

The shadows of Munich are rising again, rising as if there had not been the greatest war of all.

Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, Foreign Minister of Ukrainian SSR.

The first settlers at Jamestown lived in tents, caves, or what were known as English Wigwags.

War Crimes
 back and forth in his seat with stomach cramps and had to be taken from the rigidly guarded courtroom.
 The defendants will learn their individual fates tomorrow.
 The tribunal described as "quite overwhelming" the evidence adduced on the four main counts in the indictment, and while naming two names in the early stages, ruled that aggressive war is a crime, that conspiracies existed to wage aggressive war, and that war crimes and crimes against humanity had been committed.
 It acquitted the German general staff and high command, the S. A. (Brownshirts) and the reich cabinet of charges that they were criminal organizations, but "certain groups" of the leadership corps, the SS (Elite Guard), the SD (a department which operated a spy system) and the Gestapo were convicted on that charge.
 Before the reading of the judgment an hour and a half under way, Hermann Goering, once the No. 2 Nazi, virtually conceded that he was on the way to the gallows by telling defense lawyers:
 "I do not expect that they would go through all this to kill us."
 Most of the defendants appeared reconciled to the belief they would be condemned to death.
 The tribunal rejected flatly the plea of some of the defendants that their acts had been committed under orders from Adolf Hitler.
 "Hitler could not make aggressive war by himself; he had to have the cooperation of German military leaders, diplomats, and business," the judgment said. "With the knowledge of his aims, they gave their cooperation and made themselves party to the plan he had initiated. That they were assigned to their tasks by a dictator does not absolve them from their responsibility for their acts."
 Dr. Alfred Thoma, defense counsel for Alfred Rosenberg, who was the Nazi party's official philosopher, declared during a morning recess that he would appeal any sentence of his client to the Allied control council and added that, if Rosenberg were sentenced to death he would ask that he be shot, instead of hanged or beheaded.
 John Adams, second president of the United States, once fought with the U. S. Marines.
 Even before World War II, two-thirds of the world population was chronically undernourished.

Canal Probe

 acted road across Canada to Alaska.
 The senate group turned to the Canal project after week-end hearings on wartime road-building in Central America. These concerned chiefly the Pan-American highway, which is a 1500-mile road project from the Mexican-Guatemalan border to the Panama Canal. The committee was told it was represented to congress originally as a $20,000,000 project to which the United States would contribute $20,000,000.
 Thus far, this country has spent $77,000,000 and E. W. James, an official of the public roads administration, estimated $65,000,000 more will be required to complete the road.

 military guidance; the aggressive ambitions of Hitler and his fellow Nazis would have been academic and futile.
 In absolving the cabinet, the tribunal said that in the dictatorial Hitler setup it was impotent after 1937.
 The court stressed that nothing it said about the organizations absolved any individual members of liability to prosecution on their own account.
