Estimated $50,000 Blaze Destroys Feed Store, Hatchery

Fire Spreads Rapidly Fed by Strong Wind

Fire, fed by a strong southwesterly wind, swept through a three-story building in the 800 block of West Foster this morning, causing damage and loss which may run to $50,000.

Virtually destroyed were the Gray County Feed company and a hatchery, owned and operated by Joe L. Hunter. Damaged badly was the Cole Automotive Service which was located in the east end of the long building, owned by Irvin Cole, prominent wheat farmer. The service shop was being operated by his sons, Nolan W. and Donald Cole, returned servicemen.

It was the second worst fire Pampa has had this year. On the night of Feb. 7, a number of supply houses in the 500 block of West Achison burned, with an estimated loss of around $150,000.

Irvin Cole said he would estimate his loss in the building at about $25,000, and he had only $15,000 insurance. The building structure, in part, had been standing for a number of years, but last November Cole had completed $12,000 renovation on it.

The fire, according to witnesses, started in the northeast corner of the feed store, and fed by the strong wind, spread rapidly to either end of the building. About 200 bales of hay, totally lost, burned rapidly, though it was still green.

H. H. Stull, operator of the feed store, overcame himself running and was taken to his home on South Hobart where a physician from the Pampa hospital called on him. Mr.

Cattle Grazing in Near-Record Numbers As Butcher Shops Remain Bare of Beef

WASHINGTON — (AP) — This meat-hungry nation is witnessing the paradox of near-record numbers of cattle roaming the ranges while dinner table platters are empty of beef.

Agriculture department officials said today the number of cattle on the nation's farms is not far below the 1944 peak and that the number on western ranges may be the largest of record.

But grass-fed cattle are not moving off ranges to slaughter pens in numbers the government had expected. Department experts said uncertainty over future prices tends to delay marketings.

This picture of the beef situation was depicted as Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson prepared to make a radio talk at 9:15 p. m. (CST) tonight on government price policies on farm products.

This is the season when cattle normally start moving off ranges in large numbers. But the movement has been slow since livestock price controls were re-established Sept. 1.

VEAL PHOTO TAKEN AT THE UNION STOCKYARDS, ISN'T VERY PROMISING—The veal chop situation in Chicago, as reflected by this photo taken at the Union stockyards, isn't very promising. Receipts are up slightly, but the run of calves isn't very big. This lone calf doesn't keep the buyers and handlers very busy, so they rest on a pen fence.

Stalin Not Worried About 'Encirclement'

MOSCOW — (AP) — Prime Minister Stalin said today he could see no real danger of a new war and expressed his unqualified belief in the possibility of long and friendly collaboration between the Soviet union and the western democracies, despite ideological differences.

At the same time he said the United States now held a threat to peace in "monopolist possession" of atomic weapons, but that such monopolist possession could long be maintained. In any event, he said, wars could not be won with atomic bombs.

Stalin expressed these views in answer to nine written questions submitted by Alexander Werth, Moscow correspondent of the London Sunday Times.

The Soviet leader said he did not believe the United States and Britain were trying to encircle Russia with a capitalist ring and could not do so "even if they so desired."

He said Russia had no intention of using Germany either against Western Europe or against the United States, since this would not be in the interest of the Soviet Union.

He called for "demilitarization and democratization" of Germany as one step toward a "stable and lasting peace."

"One should strongly differentiate between the hue and cry about a 'new war' which is taking place now and the real danger of a 'new war,' which does not exist at present," Stalin said.

Stalin's replies to Werth were his first answers to any foreign correspondent's letter since March 22, when he told Associated Press correspondent Eddy Gilmore he believed in the United States as an ally.

Defortification of Slav Europe Slated

PARIS — (AP) — The peace conference military commission voted today to defortify the southeastern border of Slav Europe, adopting a Greek amendment to the Bulgarian treaty which would shear Bulgaria of frontier fortifications.

The vote was 11 to seven, with three abstentions. It came as the four power foreign ministers council was arranging to discuss Italian colonies and other disputes holding up the progress of the conference.

The proposition is to demilitarize Bulgaria's 180-mile frontier with Greece to the same extent as Italy's frontier with Yugoslavia. Only Brazil and the Slav delegates opposed the move.

Col. W. R. Hodgson of Australia scathingly criticized the foreign ministers of the Big Four today, before the ministers were to convene to discuss disposal of the Italian colonies and work out other treaty amendments to speed the work of the peace conference.

Hodgson, always the leader of the small powers in international affairs, attacked the ministers of Russia, the United States, Great Britain and France for "agreeing among themselves" that final disposal of Libya, Eritrea, and Italian Somaliland would be determined by the Big Four.

Gladwyn Jebb, British member of the Italian political and territorial commission, replying to this criticism, announced that the foreign ministers were going to discuss Italy's colonies "this afternoon."

Earlier, informed sources said today's Big Four session, intended to discuss the 21-nation parity in meeting on the Oct. 5 deadline for reopening plenary sessions, would have on the agenda only those of the 300 original treaty amendments upon which there was but slight divergence of views.

Outwardly, the Big Four appeared to be meeting in the most amicable atmosphere since the conference convened last July.

An American spokesman said the council was going to draw up a schedule that would "speed things up."

Picture of Judge Is Hung in Court

There is a new picture hanging in the district court room today. It was placed there yesterday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff John Branham without any pomp or ceremony.

The picture brings to each of the six, the number of pictures of Justices of the 31st judicial district and will hang for posterity to see the portrait of this district's most often rejected district judge—the Hon. W. R. Ewing, judge of the 31st judicial district and presiding judge of the 9th Administrative judicial district.

It came as no surprise to Judge Ewing and he took it more as a matter of course.

The placing of Judge Ewing's portrait on the east wall of district court room was the second time within as many days that the judge was honored by his court house associates.

Yesterday morning when Judge Ewing set his last docket before retiring, after 30 years of continuous dispensing of justice for this district, practically every lawyer of the city and nearby points made a special effort to attend the setting of the civil and criminal docket.

Among the legal men present was the Hon. Sherman White, Gray county judge.

Tomorrow morning the judge and his family will be in court.

Buyer Resistance Is Increasing in 13 Major Cities

Increasing buyer resistance to top real estate prices and a definite slow-down in the turn-over of homes at present dollar levels were reported today in a number of the nation's major cities.

Some instances in which peak prices had crumbled also were shown in a spot check by the Associated Press in 13 cities. But this undercutting of what the seller asked appeared to be the exception rather than the rule.

In nine of metropolitan communities surveyed, real estate men reported buyer resistance had developed in one form or another. In a similar number of cities, but not necessarily the same ones, there was a marked and more than seasonal slump in the rush to buy and sell homes.

Brokers in two cities mentioned the recent break in the stock market as a factor. Washington, D. C., and San Francisco were the only two in which there appeared to be neither a slow-down in demand, buyer resistance in some form, nor any denting of top asking prices.

Here are some typical reports: Ray Hafford, executive vice president of the Boston Real Estate exchange: "There has been some evidence of a denting of asking prices for several weeks, due to the growing resistance by buyers to the increasing price trend. The general feeling seems to be that the peak in residential sales prices either has been reached or is leveling out to a plateau. Owners who placed fantastic prices on their property have been dropping prices if they really mean to sell."

Corbett Wagner, secretary manager of the Los Angeles Realty board, who said that houses selling for $6,000 in 1941 were going readily for about $14,000 now, added: "There is no heavy rush to sell homes in Los Angeles. Neither has there been a letdown in prices, but homes are not selling as fast as they were. Some buyer resistance has developed because people are hesitating to pay these fat prices."

GI's Face 3-Year Court Martial Terms

SENDAI — (AP) — A general court martial today sentenced three American soldiers to prison terms of three years each and dishonorable discharge for "pulling fear" into a Japanese and robbing him of a watch and money.

An army announcement named one of the soldiers as Pvt. Elmer D. Eldridge, 1300 Throckmorton Ave., Galesville, Texas.

Chamber Banquet 7 O'clock Tonight

Bill Alexander, pastor of the First Christian church in Oklahoma City will be the principal speaker at the fall banquet of the chamber of commerce, which will be held at seven o'clock tonight in the senator high cafeteria.

The banquet was originally scheduled to be held at eight o'clock but the time was moved up through an agreement with officials of the Pampa Oilers baseball club.

The Oiler-Lubbock game will be held at 8:30 instead of the usual eight o'clock time.

Alexander, one of the Southwest's most well-known after-dinner speakers, received an enthusiastic reception after an address at the First Christian church brotherhood meeting here last year. Local chamber officials received many requests that he be engaged to speak at the banquet.

W. B. Weathered, president of the chamber, will preside at the banquet and D. V. Burton will introduce the speaker. The invocation will be given by the Rev. Rudolph H. Bennett, pastor of the Central Baptist church and group singing is to be led by Virgil Mott, music director of the First Baptist church.

Dinner music will be provided by Ken Bennett and his orchestra and a solo number will be sung by Harry Kelley.

E. O. Wedgworth, manager of the chamber, has asked all those planning to attend the banquet to arrive by seven o'clock so the program can be completed quickly.

Kaiser Demands Time to Compile Facts and Figures

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Henry J. Kaiser west coast shipbuilder, protested to a house committee today that he could not answer on short notice an endless number of detailed and technical questions about five years of transactions by Kaiser company, Inc.

He declared counsel for the merchant marine committee, which is inquiring into wartime shipbuilding profits, had brought up points which "it is going to take a staff of accountants, engineers and others to answer."

The questions as to the Kaiser financial setup arose yesterday after the committee heard testimony that Kaiser shipbuilding enterprises received $192,273,841 in profits from the government on a capital investment of $2,510,000.

The committee also was told that an unrelated company in Florida ran $600 in investment into profits of more than $2,000,000, an item which prompted Reps. Fred Bradley (R-Mich.) and Alvin Welch (R-Ohio) to demand a full-scale investigation.

In his statement prepared for today's session Kaiser said: "We want this committee to understand that there isn't a single thing we aren't happy to disclose that is our books and corporate records."

But "as a practical matter," he added, "no man in our organization could testify as to all of these complicated corporate financial and business transactions over a five-year period."

He reiterated that combined net profits after taxes of the four Kaiser-built works to get to the bottom of "the combined profits are less than 1 percent."

Plane Breaks as It Lands at Field

RINEANNA, Eire — (AP) — The landing gear of a Pan-American Constellation plane collapsed a few moments after the ship touched down at Shannon airport today and the craft broke in two.

At La Guardia field in New York a spokesman for Pan-American Airways said a telephone call to Shannon airport disclosed the plane did not "break in two" but was damaged on the underbelly and propellers. The spokesman said the wings, the fuel system and the hydraulic system were undamaged and the fuselage was intact. He said Constellations had been flying the route to London daily since the recent lifting of the order grounding them.

Twenty-six passengers suffered from shock, but none was reported injured.

The plane was en route from New York to Lisbon on its first Atlantic crossing since the recent grounding of all the Big Constellations.

The ship made a perfect landing on the runway and was beginning to turn into the taxi strip when the accident occurred.

Airport personnel quickly extricated the passengers.

Services Set for Victims of Crash

GANDER, Nfld. — (AP) — Walter Devoe, 48, of Ghent, Belgium, one of 18 persons who lived through the crash of a Belgian airliner last Wednesday, died of his injuries in a hospital here last night.

The death increases the total deaths to 27.

The 17 others who survived were reported improving at the Sir Frederick Banting hospital here.

Memorial services for the dead will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow aboard an army transport, flying over the scene of the crash.

Capt. W. C. McConnell, commander of the U. S. army detachment at Gander air base, said burial of the victims was expected to be completed prior to the service. Thirty Newfoundland woodsmen are burying the 26 at the scene, marking each grave. The burial party is being supplied by the U. S. army from the air.

A Jewish rabbi, Catholic priest and Protestant minister will conduct the memorial service jointly, reading from their respective burial rituals. Wreaths made of Newfoundland wildflowers will then be dropped on the graves.

GLASSES?

If you wear glasses, a sleek coiffure is better to wear than a fluffy one which can throw disturbing shadows on your lenses.

So believe glamorously bespectacled models, who've worked out all the angles on eye-glasses. Another point they buck for is to style hair for youthfulness to counteract any aging effects of glasses.

Although you shouldn't try to hide your glasses with unbecoming brims, there should be enough hat to shield glasses from light reflections, models say.

What models know—and other bespectacled beauties should, too—is that you can make your eyes as deep-fringed as gemstones, if you like and get away with it. Lucky for you, your lenses will safeguard your artistic. One model says she uses a dark eyebrow pencil to extend the corners of her lids, and for what purpose, do you suppose? To take two great big beautiful eyes behind her crystal shields.

But eye shadow is verboten. The use of it tends to throw shadows where you don't want them—under your eyes.

If any nation were to go mad now, among the first targets it would try to demolish would be the Bonneville and Grand Coulee dams. We had better see to it that the Northwest is better defended than it is now.—Sen. Wayne Morse (R) of Oregon.

SOCIETY Soft Suit Silhouette

By EPISE KINARD
NEA Staff Writer
NEW YORK, (NEA)—Bedecked with beads, satin or fur, this fall's suits are not only soft but effete, and are styled for the dressiest whirl they've had since prewar days.

Jet spangles; make lacy fretwork over pale satin collars and cuffs, which whoop up the elegance of black suits. Satin steps out on its own as the blouse or waistcoat that peep show or the help of necklines and cutaway closings of richly colored suits.

These take their color cues from jewels—garnets, rubies and emeralds. One of the season's fancy cutaways, Jo Copeland-designed and 18th century-inspired, is wool-dyed to simulate the depth and fire of the garnet. White satin brocade struts its stuff in this suit as a dandy's waistcoat, decked with gold buttons.

Other suits make an entrance with softer silhouettes, introduced by sleeve fullness, tunic flare, shoulder-bag pockets or, believe it or not, fur-cushioned peplums. This fur upholstery, sponsored by Herbert Sondheim, is actually seal fur, trained to lie flat under twin pockets which simulate a peplum on a gold wool long-jacket, suit. Otherwise this suit's silhouette is as slim as a totem pole.

A ROAD THROUGH RUIN AND DESOLATION

Tomorrow (Sept. 25) one of the world's great leaders, Gen. Albert Osborn, international leader of the Salvation Army, will arrive in New York City for his first visit in this land. The general, who heads a vast weaponless army of great tradition serving in 97 countries all over the globe, will make an extensive tour here, in Canada, the West Indies and South America.

Everyone knows the battle of the "Army." It is the battle against odds descended upon the unfortunate. Sin, hunger, heartache, despair—those are the enemies of the Salvation Army, enemies daily met and conquered.

It is an army of 102 different languages and dialects, encircling the globe from the wilds of Africa to the wastelands of Lapland, from the bush of Australia to the jungles of India. Veteran of the frontline in two world wars, it knows the civilian front as well.

The work of the "Army" is a valiant mission. In the words of its leader, Gen. Osborn, who is to be congratulated on this great service to humanity:

"Any army by its very nature must think as it marches and order its tactics accordingly. It is our business not merely to dream about a road for men to travel to the kingdom of God, but to do something to drive that road through the ruin and desolation of our shaken civilization."

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
One of the great human problems growing out of the war underlies the current debate in the United Nations economic and social council over the proposal to establish a vast international relief organization, with a budget of $250,000,000, to care for some 40,000,000 displaced persons in the American, British and French zones of occupation in Europe.

Russia and Latin American countries have been opposing the project on the grounds that it is unnecessary, but the Soviet delegate Nikolai Feonov, really went to the mat yesterday when he heatedly charged that the United States and Britain have been playing politics in handling the refugees.

The substance of the Russian complaint is that the western allies have been keeping the displaced persons from returning home by permitting the dissemination of propaganda against the refugees' native lands.

Yugoslavia also recently accused allied military officials of having permitted the distribution of propaganda in DP camps against the governments of Yugoslavia and Poland. Then F. H. LaGuardia, director general of UNRRA, appeared before the council and supported the Yugoslav charge.

Among the main points of argument are these: The Russians demand that all DPs go back to their own countries, while the United States and Britain wish to send back only "those who want to return." Russia insists that committees visit camps throughout the German area to examine conditions against the native lands of the refugees.

From my observation the key to the questions lies in the fact that many of the displaced persons definitely don't want to return to their home-lands, and in the main their reasons are two. One is that some prefer to start life anew in one of the western countries where they feel prospects are more attractive. The other and far more important is that many are fearful of imprisonment or death if they go home.

Gracie Reports

By GRACIE ALLEN
In these days of shortages it's cheering to see that monogrammed diapers are now on sale in an exclusive Chicago children's shop.

Gracious, I'll bet you mothers are dancing with joy. Who cares about a refrigerator or a washing machine—monogrammed diapers are here. Why, even Bette Davis is going to have a baby so she won't miss out on the fun.

Now, please don't think I'm unsympathetic, but I respectfully suggest that no one will care whether diapers are monogrammed or not if someone doesn't hurry up and put out some laundry soap to wash them with.

Oh well, I suppose in about forty years there'll be biographies of presidential candidates reading like this: "Francis Fluey was born in the dark days of World War II and early learned what privation is like. As a baby he never knew the luxury of monogrammed diapers."

INVITING MORE FRAUDS AT THE POLLS

(The Chicago Tribune)
Seventeen more Kansas City ballot thieves, who were convicted of frauds in the 1936 election, have applied to President Truman for pardons. When their petitions are approved the 17 crooks again will be eligible to vote, hold office, and resume their manipulations of Kansas City election returns.

Mr. Truman and his predecessor in the White House already have pardoned 22 Kansas City vote stealers, including a ward boss who served 21 months in a federal prison. There is no reason to suppose that granting of the 17 new petitions will be attended by any quibbling. Mr. Truman not only owes the Pendergast machine favors for sending him to the senate in 1934 and 1940 but is indebted to the machine for its recent services in defeating Rep. Slaughter.

In Missouri politics, as elsewhere, favors are purchased, not distributed as gestures of kindness. No citizen expects the President of the United States to be unmindful of his political friends, but it would be comforting, for a change, to have in the White House a man who would be able to distinguish between the honest and dishonest political services.

Election fraud is a particularly vicious crime, and those committing it should be barred forever from the privileges of voting and holding public office. To restore voting privileges to men who served prison terms for such crimes as mail fraud or narcotic peddling would not be likely to endanger the sanctity of any ballot boxes. To do the same for a ballot box thief is an invitation to further dishonesty in his criminal specialty.

Mr. Truman is on very shaky ground when he demands free and equal elections in Poland, and at the same time issues pardons to persons responsible for dishonest elections in the United States.

BUSINESS MAN RESCUES STOWAWAY WITH JOB

(AP)—David Reece, a 17-year-old youth who traveled from New Zealand to Sydney as a stowaway on the American freighter Cat's Paw, walked right into a $32 a week job.

Reece, who came to Sydney Harbor handcuffed to a bunk in the Cat's Paw, was on the payroll of British Consolidated Industries, a new company registered in Melbourne, 24 hours later.

A business man said he had given Reece the job although he knew nothing about him, but "complete faith" in his judgment.

or not if someone doesn't hurry up and put out some laundry soap to wash them with.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE WITH MAJOR HOOPLE

WASHINGTON (NEA)—"The federal government has gotten in the people's hair," says Republican National Committee Chairman B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee. What the republican party proposes to do after the November elections, the chairman implies, is to take the government—meaning the democratic administration—out of the people's hair.

Chairman Reece has been doing a good bit of traveling during the summer, making speeches and sounding out public opinion. "The annoyance of the people against the democratic administration," he says, "is principally symbolized by their opposition to government controls. They were willing to put up with these controls during the war. But now they want to get rid of controls."

Can Tax-Supported Schools Teach Ethics—Honesty?
In talking to a former teacher and a defender of tax-supported schools, I explained to him that public schools could not teach religion. He said that was true, but that public schools could teach ethics.

Now let us look into the kind of ethics that can be and is being, taught in public schools.

On the positive side, ethics or morals, among other things, should teach love, charity, self-reliance, self-restraint, good will, justice, equal freedom, respect for the inalienable rights of every man, peace, the Golden Rule, the Universal Rule, the fact that a number of people performing an act that is a crime for an individual to do does not make it right, the fact that the state never has a right to do what the individual originally did not have a right to do, the fact that morals are individual and not collective, the necessity of obeying or worshipping, an eternal, universal principle (one God), and the responsibility of using the talents God gave the individual to put his self in harmony with natural law and thus use the gratuities of God to benefit himself and his fellow men.

On the negative side, ethics and morals teach that no man should grope, deceive, lie, covet, exalt himself, try to use force to have dominion over others, or try to serve two masters.

Now let's consider these moral precepts and see how successful the state, via tax-supported schools, is in instilling them in the youth of the land.

How can public schools teach love, charity, self-reliance and self-restraint? Since most of the teaching is done by imitating others, those who would teach these qualities must practice love, charity, self-reliance and self-restraint.

But are the public schools practicing love, charity, self-reliance and self-restraint when they are using force via the tax-collector to compel others to do things that should be done voluntarily through love and charity? Are they practicing self-reliance and self-restraint when they are using force and compulsion to make others do things that they do not want to do? Are they practicing self-reliance and self-restraint when they are using force to make the children attend and to get the physical means to support the teachers? Practicing coercion does not teach meekness nor humility.

How can they teach justice when they compel certain people to support teachings that they do not believe in? How can they teach both just and benevolent? When it tries to be benevolent it is unjust to those that it coerces into supporting the act which the majority believe is benevolent, and which the minority may not believe is either just or benevolent.

How can they teach equal freedom when they are denying those they coerce the right to use their energy in the way they believe will give them the most happiness?

Or how can they teach respecting the inalienable rights of every person when they are taking away from an individual, against his will, part of his energy to teach things that he thinks are harmful? Life liberty and the pursuit of happiness are inalienable rights. State education takes part of a man's energy for its support and thus prevents him from using that part of his life to serve God the way he believes he can best serve Him.

How can public schools teach peace when they are practicing the use of force and compulsion? It is a mockery and a delusion to contend that public schools are in harmony with the Golden Rule. Would any individual want to be forced to give part of his energy to doing something that he believed the exact opposite of what he believed God wanted him to do?

How can public schools teach the universal rule that all men are equally free when, at the same time, they are practicing the rule that might makes right, that there is no law superior to the will of the majority?

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

WASHINGTON
By RAY TUCKER
CONSERVATIVE—The Truman-Wallace-Byrnes fiasco over the American attitude toward Russia and related foreign problems has encouraged republican hopes of a presidential triumph in 1948, but the democrats' internal dissensions have also created difficulties for the political enemy.

The woods have become so thick with GOP candidates that the democrats' voice-getter must be shored aside in the last-minute rush for the nomination.

The politicians believe that a brightening of opposition prospects between now and 1948 will give a great advantage to such conservative possibilities as the two Ohioans—Senator Robert A. Taft and John W. Bricker.

It is not known definitely now which will be the Buckeye State's favorite son, but both men are high favorites with the more moderate leaders of the national organization, and the latter seems to sit firmly in the saddle at the moment.

SHIFT—The two gubernatorial possibilities—Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Earl Warren of California—could be the victims of any visible impotence in the GOP chances as a consequence of the ideological rows within the administration's top layer.

Both men are regarded by the party bosses as too new details, and for that reason they may be tracked if it appears that their states' large electoral votes could be captured without their presence on the ticket.

The New Yorker virtually ran on a "liberal" platform in 1944, merely proclaiming that he could give a better administrative and executive performance than the incumbents. Governor Warren's advocacy of far-reaching medical insurance reforms and social security extension has aroused suspicion of him among the big moguls. So has his flirtation with certain labor elements.

In short, if the convention managers feel that they can win with a more conservative candidate because of opposition weakness, the center of political gravity may shift to the Middle West instead of to the more radical coastal areas.

COMPROMISE—Harold E. Stassen's friends, however, are inclined to think that he may be the eventual beneficiary of administration turmoil over the management of foreign affairs.

The uncertainties which the Truman-Wallace-Byrnes dispute have stirred may give him a chance to contend that public school education is the exact opposite of what he believed God wanted him to do.

Moreover, although he proclaims himself as the outstanding "liberal" in the party, the former Minnesota governor is not far from the front with respect to domestic problems, especially the labor question. If he were, he would not have the backing of powerful financial interests in the East which view him as a North American game animal.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Louis Calhern, the fellow who hops from the stage to the screen, is in Hollywood again during summer recess of the play "The Magnificent Yankee." He's playing the Russian cafe doorman in "Arch of Triumph," after which he'll go on tour, with "T.M.Y."

Louis had lunch with ex-wife Natalie Schaefer the other day, and reconciliation rumors followed. He says they're not true.

Louis read "Arch of Triumph," he confessed, and never thought of himself as the Russian doorman. Then Charley Einfield paged him for the role.

"I read the book again," Louis said, "and decided it was smart casting to let me play the Russian. Especially," he whispered, "after I looked at my contract."

CONVERTIBLE CRITERION
It could happen only in Hollywood. The other day Charles Winninger was leaving the M-G-M where he's working in "To Kiss and to Keep." The usual gang of young-ster-seeking autographs stopped his modest pre-war sedan outside the gate and asked him to sign their books.

Winninger was obliging when one kid nudged a little girl and asked if she wanted to get Winninger's name in her book.

"No, thanks," she replied. "I only collect the ones in convertibles. They're the real actors."

Jimmy Cagney's makeup for his role of the 30,000-year-old Russet Man, an Irish migrant in "The Stray Lamb" had its first full-dress inspection by producer Bill Cagney the other day. Ernie Winmore, creator of the beard and welder wakeup that transforms Jimmy into the sorcerer of ancient vintage, brought Jimmy into Bill's office.

"Well, how is it?" asked Jimmy. "Fine," said Bill. "You don't look a day over 30,000."

A REAL MYSTERY
One of Hollywood's top composers, Dimitri Tiomkin, is noted for the unusual treatment he gives the English language. Word of the verbal butchery got to Danny Kaye, and he visited the stage where Tiomkin is scoring the music for "Duel in the Sun."

Kaye was introduced to Tiomkin. Danny said he, too, was a composer and conductor, and he expressed a desire to conduct a short session of the score. With due politeness, Tiomkin acceded.

Kaye picked up the baton, and mimicking Tiomkin perfectly, uttered a stream of commands to the orchestra. Still in Tiomkin dialect, Kaye complimented the musicians.

Charley Ruggles wants no part of genealogy, and he likes to explain why, he dropped it.

It seems his only known ancestor was an actor who was beheaded after his greatest performance. The man was Sir Jeffrey Ruggles, who satirized the English court on the 17th century stage—and did his act so well he lost his life.

Shade of Sycamore by PERCY MARKS

Author of "The Plastic Age" "A Tree Grows Straight" Etc.

THE STORY: Gayle tells her friend, Rose, about her eagerness to become a famous athlete and actor. Rose is horrified, claims that Rose is selfish, spoiled and conceited.

ROSE turned into Howe Street, and her hat was wrinkled in disgust. "What a place to live," she thought, "especially on a day like this."

It was Friday afternoon, the sun was warm, and she felt she could not sit in the apartment with its north exposure and look at the red brick wall of the neighboring apartment house. She would drop her things and take a walk. Then she would have dinner at the Y and go to a movie. Gayle would be on her way to Germantown with Bruce Bartlett, and the apartment would be lonely.

She had paused to search in her bag for her door key when a strong masculine voice called, "Hey-hey, Miss Beecher—Rose!"

She turned and saw Bruce Bartlett's handsome convertible pastrider at the curb. Hatless, he was leaning out the door. "Hi," he said. "Where's Gayle?"

"Hi," Rose returned, approaching the car slowly. "Aren't you early? Gayle didn't expect you till four."

"I know." His face brightened with the famed boyish smile. "I couldn't wait."

"And now you'll have to. She won't be here until four or later. She's up to her neck at the School. Don't you want to come upstairs and park? Howe Street's no rose garden."

Bart laughed. "I'll say it isn't. Thanks a lot, I'm tired of sitting here."

"Come along, then."

Once they were in the apartment, Rose offered him a cigarette, told him to make himself comfortable if he could and vanished into the bedroom. Five minutes later she reappeared, her snort curls freshly combed, the pale golden freckles on her nose lightly powdered.

"I forgot to do my Emily Price Post exercises," she said, waving Bart back into his chair. "Gayle told me last Sunday. Congratulations."

"I'll bet you really do congratulate me, too. You've lived with Gayle; you know her. You know how lucky I am." Bart's black eyes were bright, and he smiled his thanks.

"Don't!" She obviously was about to say something, as obviously decided not to say it.

INSTEAD she got up, took down a small ink sketch from the wall and handed it to Bart. "Like it?"

"I'll say I do," he enthused, studying the picture. "I always notice this. It looks just like Gayle. You did it, didn't you?"

"Yes. Want it?"

"Do I? Boy! Are you giving it to me?"

Rose returned to her chair and sat down. "I don't think it's kosher to give a man an engagement present, but who wants to be kosher? That's yours if you want it—me to you."

"Oh, thank!" He studied the picture again, smiled once more

Rose worked with extraordinary speed, sketching with freedom and sureness. Bart was an excellent subject, easy and relaxed. "No nerves," thought Rose. "No self-consciousness either. He knows he'll turn out beautiful."

at rose, and for an instant seemed hardly half his twenty-five years. "This is wonderful." Then he looked up at her, his eyes alight with an idea. "Say," he said, "I've just thought of something. My father's going to have a birthday. Mother wrote and reminded me. I don't know what to get him. He's sick all the time, you know. He'll bet he'd like a sketch like this of me. How about it? Will you make one of these sketches of me? You set the price, and I'll pay."

Rose was about to say, "I'll be darned if I will," when her eyes brightened and she looked almost eager. She leaned back in her chair and studied him as impersonally as if he were a professional model.

"He's got line," she admitted to herself. "Boy, he's got everything."

SHE took an easel, which had been leaning against a wall, and set it up; pulled out a drawer in a desk, extracted a roll of paper, and thumbtacked a sheet of it to a board. "All right," she said, "let's go." She placed the board on the easel and studied Bart once again. "You're all right the way you are," she decided. "You don't have to sit particularly still. Talk if you want to." She lifted a pencil with her thumb near the end and measured him thoughtfully. "Go ahead and smoke." Then she picked up a stick of charcoal. "Just don't freeze; that's all I ask of you."

He made an excellent subject, easy and relaxed. "No nerves," thought Rose. "No self-consciousness either. He knows he'll turn out beautiful."

She worked with extraordinary speed, stroking with freedom and sureness. Now and then she lifted the charcoal, squinted against it for a measurement, and then returned reassured to her drawing. From where he sat, Bart could see her elbow moving, and there were times when it seemed to dance.

"I've been drawn before," Bart said, and the artists always spent half their time looking at me. You just take a peek, though. How do you do it?"

"I don't have to look at all if I don't want to," she explained. "I can see you without looking. Don't be impressed. Plenty of people can pull that trick. They call it visual imagination, I think. Anyway, I can draw almost anyone I've seen. This is turning out right. You won't have to sit again. I've got the first time, I thought I would." She paused as there was a quick step outside the door. "Hello, there's Gayle."

Reapers Battle Borger Bullpups To Scoreless Tie

Pampa's Junior high Reapers opened their 1946 Panhandle Junior high conference season yesterday, playing to a scoreless tie with the Borger Bullpups at Borger.

The game was featured by two hard-charging lines and plenty of vicious tackling that held offensive play to a standstill until the final whistle sounded.

In the Reaper line, Guard Leon Taylor and Tackle Bill Runyon were outstanding while Fullback Dale Richardson's exhibition of punting kept the Bullpups playing in their own back yard most of the evening.

The Reapers' next conference game will be played Oct. 3 when they meet Sam Houston Junior high of Amarillo here.

Starters for the Reapers were Cooper and Byrum, ends; Runyon and Campbell, tackles; Taylor and Scheel, guards; Matthews, center; Harvel and Smith, halfbacks; Rowe, quarterback, and Richardson, fullback.

Borger starters were McCord and Burton, ends; R. Davis and K. Davis, tackles; Bowen and Kimball, guards; Hall, center; Lanningham and Hoff, halfbacks; Brown, quarterback, and Chitwood, fullback.

Texarkana Wins From Henderson

(By The Associated Press)

A four-run eighth inning rally put the Texarkana Bears back into the East Texas league playoff last night as they defeated Henderson 8-7.

Henderson leads, three games to two. The clubs will move to Henderson tonight for the sixth and seventh games of the final round.

Trailing 6-3, the Bears combined two hits, two walks and a pair of infield errors to stage the game winning uprising. Before calling it a day, however, the Bears had to halt a ninth inning Olerly rally which netted one run.

Home runs were hit by Paul Martin and Johnny Stone of Henderson and Bob Collins and Hal Van Pelt of Texarkana.

Steers Prepare For Coloradoans

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Longhorns are busy this week with a defense designed to check the short punt formation employed by the Colorado Buffs, whom they meet here on Saturday.

This lineup will be the second time this season the Longhorns have faced a pre-season favorite of another conference.

The Colorado team boasts a big mobile line, the defensive ability of which was considered the stand-out feature of the Colorado opener in which the Buffs beat Iowa state 32-7.

The average weight of the Buff line is 311 as compared with last week's Longhorn line average of 212.

Any coach who entertained ideas of running wild through the Texas tackle slots, quickly lost the idea after the defensive game displayed by the entire Texas line last week.

Dale Schwartzkopf, substitute end, may replace Max Bumgarner at right end, in the defensive plans being readied for Colorado. Ed Heap, who replaced Ed Kelley Saturday may start this Saturday at one of the tackle positions if Kelley's hip bruise does not heal in time for the game. Don Weedon, who was out of last week's game with an injury will battle to get back on the first string guard position now being held by Joe Mitchell who replaced Weedon in the starting lineup last Saturday.

Bobby Layne, who was used sparingly in the Missouri game, seemed as readily as ever in passing practice.

MOTORIST'S 1922 CAR LOOKS ALMOST LIKE NEW

PUEBLO, Colo.—(AP)—The speedometer showed only 4,498 miles and the motor purred like a kitten, so Robert Disbrow figured he got a good buy when he paid $125 for the automobile.

Not only that, but the sidecurtains never had been unwrapped for the bright and shiny 1922 Oakland touring car Disbrow bought from H. L. Guire.

Guire purchased the automobile 24 years ago, drove it only a few months and then put it under canvas in a garage. Disbrow heard about the car a few months ago and, after much persuasion, closed the deal.

Lubbock Gets 4 Runs in First; Teams Will Play Here Tonight

LUBBOCK (Special)—Had Joe Isaacs not pitched to the first four batters last night, Pampa might have sewed up the West Texas-New Mexico league playoff, but he did pitch to them and Lubbock took the first game of the series here last night, 5-4.

The two teams were to Pampa tonight for a game at 8:30 o'clock at Oler Park. If a seventh game is necessary, it will be played in Pampa tomorrow night.

Southwest Grid Mentors Prepare For Tough Card

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Five southwest conference coaches this week are bringing out ironing boards to press away kinks and rough spots that appeared in their opening games of last weekend. First game jitters and mistakes are being recited on the noses and sights trained on a tougher card ahead.

The two other coaches, Matty Bell at Southern Methodist and Jess Neely, are hearing down on their Mustangs and Owls in preparation for two inter-sectional clashes that will open their campaigns, S. M. U. against Temple at Philadelphia Friday night and Rice against L. S. U. at Houston Saturday night.

Bell will herd his Ponies onto a train tomorrow and stop in Indianapolis for Thursday workout at Butler university.

Neely, hampered by heavy rains that forced his Owls indoors, has been concentrating on pass defense and offense. He expects his full squad to be in shape for the Bengal clash.

Texas, Baylor, Texas A. & M., T. C. U. and Arkansas came through their first games in pretty good shape, physically with most of the men who received injuries expected to be back in uniform this weekend.

Arkansas may be the hardest hit, however, in that little Ken Holland, the winnow who turned into a triple threat in his first game, led the sluggish and overconfident Razorback in their hard-fought 21-14 win over Northwestern Louisiana college.

Holland, who also led the conference in ground gains, was out of practice yesterday with a bad foot that was stepped on in the Saturday Fayetteville game. After his busy first string in absence from the Oklahoma A. & M. game would be a blow to the Porkers.

Jim Winkler and Red Overly, guards, and Preston Smith, halfback, and Aggie Injuries, who tackled Ed Kelley in the only Longhorn game came out of the Missouri game in bad shape but may be ready for this week's game with Colorado.

Beekie Ezell, T. C. U. Horned Frog, and the Kansas State Game Saturday night continues on the alling list at Fort Worth, but Leon Joslin, Prog passer who received an injured shoulder during the game, went through runway scrimmage yesterday and is expected to be set for the conference lid-blast against Baylor.

Frank Kimbrough, dissatisfied with the play his Baylor Bears handed the game, is concentrating on ball handling and defensive play in preparation for the Fort Worth contest. He has expressed fear that three of his first string linemen, Marshall Kilgore, Bryan Austin, Temple, Waco, Palestine and Ardmore, Okla. Competing this year were Greenville, Sherman, Paris, Texarkana, Tyler, Henderson, Jacksonville and Lufkin.

Lake Charles, Crowley, LaFayette and Opelousas have applied for Evangeline membership, along with the present group, Alexandria, Hammond, Baton Rouge, Thibodeaux, Houma, New Iberia and Abbeville, La., and Natchez, Miss.

Homor Norton at A. & M. is the first coach to announce plans for reductions in strength following the Saturday curtain-raiser. Norton plans to reduce his squad from 61 to 43 men while concentrating for the Texas Tech game at San Antonio Saturday.

He has indicated that the full team will make the San Antonio trip but that he will depend primarily on the selected 42. The balance will go to the "B" team.

3 Players Jump Vera Cruz Team

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mystery today surrounded the whereabouts of three players who jumped from the Texas baseball league to have "abandoned" their Vera Cruz team during its five-game series with Tampico.

The league in an official bulletin announcing the names of the three former United States major league players, said it was investigating the circumstances before taking any action.

It is not known up to this moment what motives guided them, said the league bulletin issued last night. The league announcement "categorically denied" rumors that Lanier would play with Mexico City in that team's final four-game series, declaring this was impossible under league rules.

None of the three Americans playing in yesterday's final Vera Cruz-Tampico games. They could not be reached at their Mexico City residences.

Brecheen Hurls, Bats Cards To 1-0 Victory Over Chicago

By RALPH RODEN
AP Sports Writer

The lineup of the St. Louis Cardinals is studded with some of the best hitters in the National league but in the last three victories gained by the league leaders the pitchers have supplied the punch at the plate.

Relief hurler Ted Wilks helped lead the Cards to victory Thursday at Boston; Saturday it was little Murry Dickson who singled and sped home with the winning run in the ninth inning at Chicago, and yesterday Harry "The Cat" Brecheen pitched and batted the Birds to a 1-0 victory over the Cubs at Chicago.

Brecheen singled home battery mate Joe Garagiola in the fifth inning with the only run of the game as the Cards protected their slim half-game margin over the Brooklyn Dodgers, who trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1 at Ebbets field.

The Dodgers and Phils engaged in a tight contest until the eighth inning, when the Brooks broke the tie with a home run by Phils' center fielder on two walks, four hits and a long fly.

Today, the Dodgers meet the Phils again, while the Cards battle the Cincinnati Reds under the lights at St. Louis. Ralph Branca, who has hurled two straight shutouts, will pitch for the Brooks. Lefty Oscar Ward will work for the Phils. Big George Mungler is slated to face the Reds and either Southpaw Johnny Vander Meer or the veteran Bucky Walters will hurl for the Red Legs.

The Cards have five games left to play, while the Dodgers have only four. If the two teams tie for the lead, a three game playoff for the championship will be held. The first game will be played at Brooklyn Oct. 1 and the second at Brooklyn Oct. 2. A third game, if necessary, would be at Brooklyn Oct. 4. If any such extra games are played, the World Series will open in St. Louis or Brooklyn Oct. 6 instead of Oct. 2 as now planned.

No other games were scheduled in the National league. In the only American league game scheduled, the third place New York Yankees topped the tail-end Philadelphia Athletics 9-6.

Yanks Release Two Old-Timers

NEW YORK (AP)—A new era in Yankee baseball history was ushered in today as Red Ruffing and Bill Dickey, one of the game's foremost batteries when they had it, found themselves formally severed from the New York organization.

With the passing of Rufus the Red, who has one of baseball's best fastballs when he came to the Yanks 16 years ago, and big Bill, a great catcher by any comparison, via the free agency route, only two players remained on the Yanks who can boast they once played on the same team with the immortal Babe Ruth.

And even these two, infielder Frankie Crosetti and relief hurler Johnny (Grandpa) Murphy, may not be with the club next spring.

Dorothy Kirby Leads at Tulsa

TULSA (AP)—Veteran tournament campaigner Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, Ga., who says she plays golf "just for the fun of it" was all pepped up today over the prospect of winning a National Women's Amateur Links title.

The slim Georgian started the final 18 holes of the qualifying phase of the 23rd national women's golf tournament since 1941 after posting a par 75 (women's figures) for the 2,232-yard Southern Hills country club course in the opening round yesterday.

Miss Kirby was two strokes under the early co-favorites—Louise Suggs of Atlanta and Babe Didrikson Zaharias of DeWitt and Jean Hopkins of Rocky River, O.

Miss Suggs, the Western Amateur champion, and long-ball hitter Babe Zaharias each had a stiff breeze with the wind and slow fairways in getting 37-40-78. Miss Hopkins came in one under par for 37 after a front line 40.

Very much in the running for medal honors at the start of today's round were Mrs. Jacqueline Pung, Honolulu amateur titlist, and Helen Siegel, Philadelphia, each with a 78. Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. D., was another woman's golfer in getting 37-40-78. Miss Hopkins came in one under par for 37 after a front line 40.

Thirty two of the starting field of 59 will qualify today for the championship match play beginning tomorrow.

GOOD HEALTH

Does Not Come On a Silver Platter

YOU WHO POSSESS A HEALTHY, VIGOROUS BODY are fortunate, and probably owe most of that good fortune to healthy, hard-working parents, who fed and clothed you sensibly, and did not coddle you too much. Those who are not so fortunate, or through various circumstances become ill or incapacitated, cannot hope to have good health "handed to them on a silver platter."

Health cannot be legislated, ordered into being, handed out by edict or rationed. Vital health is a very personal matter, depending largely on how well you utilize God-given sunshine, air and water—how well you regulate your life, and take advantage of modern science through your Doctor.

If you wish to insure yourself against worries about Hospital and Doctor expenses, prepaid plans are available NOW, to 100,000,000 Americans—the VOLUNTARY way. Ask your Doctor.

Services Held for Mrs. J. H. Smith, 76

McLEAN—(Special)—The funeral for Mrs. J. H. (Katie) Smith was conducted Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock from the Methodist church with the Rev. W. R. Maxwell of Mountainer, N. M., former pastor of the Pentecostal Holiness church, in charge. He was assisted by Mrs. Laura Byerly of the same church and the Rev. W. R. Lawrence of the Baptist church.

Mrs. Smith was born Nov. 25, 1870, in Alabama and died at her home here Saturday, Sept. 21, following the death of her husband by a stroke of the heart. She was married over 58 years and lived in McLean for the past 25 years.

Mrs. Smith was the mother of six children, six having preceded her in death. She is survived by five sons, five daughters, 48 grandchildren and 39 great-grandchildren.

The pallbearers were all grandsons: Eldridge Atchey, Virgil Rogers, Gene Blake, Herschel, Alfred and Raymond O. Smith.

Burial was in Hillcrest cemetery under the direction of Womack Funeral home.

War Profits (Continued From Page 1) The testimony already given shows that one company ran $600 up to more than $2,000,000, without any risk, and that others did the same with larger amounts.

The company Bradley referred to was identified yesterday as the St. Johns River Shipbuilding Corp., near Jacksonville, Fla.

Statistics supplied by the maritime commission and read to the committee by Ralph E. Casey, attorney for the general accounting office, showed that the company had a capital investment of $600 as a shipyard operator and realized an estimated profit of $2,080,000.

Welch, taking note of the St. Johns river figures, told newsmen: "If this one small company did that well, there's no telling how many millions of dollars were given away by the government. The profits actually amounted to gifts because the operators ran no risks and invested nothing in the actual facilities they used. They couldn't lose."

Local Fire (Continued From Page 1) acuated except one, which was owned by Nolan Cole. It was being painted. The 1941 Chevrolet passenger car will need new upholstery, and paint. The motor was not damaged. Firemen brought the blaze under control before it had done much damage to it.

The office section of the service shop was damaged, and several auto parts will be somewhat damaged from water. But heat did not affect them.

Two firemen were hurt, but not seriously. Al Claunch and Otto Doggett, regular firemen, were manning a large hose inside the building when pressure was turned off another hose. Increased pressure on their hose threw them on some glass, cutting their hands. They were treated at the Worley hospital.

Newton Stokes, acting chief of the department in the absence of Chief Ben White, said it was his information that the fire started in the hay. He said the company's two engines were taken to the scene upon the first call. Thirteen regular and volunteer firemen answered the call, and there were four firemen from the airbase who helped. Six lines were strung, tied into two pumps. Stokes said the fire was difficult to bring under control since the fire got such good start in the hay, and then was fed by the wind. The fact they saved as much of the building as they did is to their credit, considering the wind.

The crowd, which was small by contrast to the one here in February, did not hamper the work of the firemen.

Stalin (Continued From Page 1) instrument of peace. At that time he told Gilmore he believed "neither the nations nor their armies are seeking another war," and he urged a campaign to expose "warmongers."

Werth asked Stalin if he believed "the actual monopoly possession of the atomic bomb by the United States of America is one of the principal threats to peace."

"I do not believe the atomic bomb to be as serious a force as certain politicians are inclined to regard it," the prime minister replied. "Atomic bombs are intended for intimidating weak nerves, but they cannot decide the outcome of war, since atomic bombs are by no means sufficient for this purpose."

He added that there "monopoly possession could not last long, and use of the atom bomb would be prohibited.

Werth, stating he was using the words employed by former secretary of commerce Henry A. Wallace in his recent foreign policy speech in New York, asked Stalin whether Western Europe and the United States could be assured that Soviet policies in Germany would not be directed against them.

The prime minister replied that use of Germany as a weapon against the West was excluded both by the Potsdam agreements and by the Soviet mutual assistance pacts with Britain and France against German aggression. He added that meant a departure of the Soviet Union from its fundamental interests.

Stalin described as "absurd" any thought that policies of communist parties in other nations were dictated by Moscow. He added that he believed "communism in one country," particularly such a country as the Soviet Union, was "fully possible." Thus, he said, he believed the future possibilities for collaboration among the nations could increase.

Stalin said the talk of a "new war" sprang from the ranks of "some naive politicians" who hoped to prevent the reduction of military budgets, check demobilization of troops and "thereby prevent the quick growth of unemployment in their countries."

In today's responses, as translated by the Soviet monitor in London, Stalin blamed the talk of new war on "military-political intelligence agents" who "need this new war to (a) help their government wrest more concessions, (b) make it difficult to cut the military budgets of their countries, and (c) to put a brake on demobilization of troops and thereby evade the quick growth of unemployment in their countries."

He denied that Russia had any intention of using the Soviet zone of Germany against the Western nations and expressed belief that peaceful cooperation between the U. S. S. R. and the democracies of the West "far from decreasing, may even grow." His answer to Werth's question as to whether he believed "the earliest withdrawal of all American troops from China" was vital to future peace was three brief words: "Yes, I do."

Hodgson berated the major powers for stipulating that the United Nations would dispose of the Italian colonies in France, Russia, England and the United States could not come to a decision.

"They already had in mind that they were 'going to disagree when they wrote that,'" Hodgson stormed. Previously James Dunn, next American ambassador to Italy, defined the stand of the United States as being for the "complete independence" of Libya, Eritrea and Somalia "as soon as possible."

Parliament issues facing the Big Four besides the Italian colonies are: 1—Non-Russian reparations claims against Italy. 2—Extent of United Nations political and military control over Trieste. 3—Yugoslavia demands for economic control over Trieste. 4—Compensation for property losses by United Nations nationals in defeated countries.

5—The fate of Czechoslovakia's Hungarian minority. 6—Czechoslovakia's territorial demands on Hungary. 7—Greece's demands for "security" from Bulgaria. 8—A ban on atom bombs and controlled torpedoes for defeated Balkan countries. 9—The fate of defeated countries' foreign assets.

Amendments touching upon such sharply disputed questions as the future of the free state of Trieste were still being argued by the deputy foreign ministers and were not to come before the Big Four.

United States action in relinquishing claims for full indemnity for Allied property damaged in Romania was followed by an immediate concession yesterday from Russia with regard to Italy.

Wallace

In a foreign policy speech in New York last Sept. 12, Wallace advocated more lenient treatment of Russia, a view that collided sharply with Secretary of State Byrnes' "firm" policies at the Paris peace conference.

Eden, former British foreign minister, urged in a London speech last night that a "new approach" be taken toward the Soviet Union by Great Britain and the United States. He made this appeal, he said, because the present relationships contain an "imminent threat of war."

Generalissimo Stalin, replying to a British newspaperman's questions today, repeated his belief that there is no "real danger" of another war. Stalin declared the United States and Britain could not create a capitalist encirclement of Russia "even if they so desired." He also said that "monopolist possession" of the atomic bomb secret could not long continue.

Market Briefs

WALL STREET STOCKS
NEW YORK, Sept. 23—(AP)—A late stock market selling wave knocked over leading rails and industrials today after an early attempt to extend Friday's rally failed to attract much support.
Quotations reached the best levels of the day shortly after the opening. Advances running to 4 points were then reduced as activity slackened. There was another speedup in the final hour and losses of 1 to more than 5 points were widely distributed at the close.
Transfers were in the vicinity of 2,000,000 shares.
Conspicuous on the slide were Santa Fe, Southern Railway, Pennsylvania Railroad (at a new low since 1941), Union Pacific, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, Goodyear, Eastman Kodak, The Post, Montgomery Ward, American Telephone and International Harvester.
