Terrorists Fly To Cairo

CAIRO (AP) — Determined to avoid another Munich, Thai officials argued four Black September members into leaving the Israeli Embassy in Bangkok today, freeing their hostages and then flying to Cairo.

When the Thai plane touched down after a 4,800-mile flight, the four commandos emerged smiling. They were taken to a police car that drove off. They were not handcuffed.

Accompanying them on the flight, broken only by a refueling stop in Pakistan, were 10 Thai officials and the Egyptian ambassador to Thailand, Mustafa el Essawy. They came along to guarantee the four terrorists' safety.

"Munich was terrible so we tried our best to avoid another one," said Dawee Chutlasappa, the Thai air chief marshal. He was the highest-ranking official aboard the plane.

The Arabs had threatened Thursday to kill six Israeli hostages and blow up the embassy unless Israel freed 36 Palestinians held in prison.

The embassy siege lasted 19 hours.

"I had Munich in mind as I negotiated with them," Chutlasappa told reporters. "So I decided not to use violence."

He was referring to the Black September massacre of 11 Israeli sportsmen at the Olympics in Munich.

Chutlasappa had negotiated with the Arabs Thursday and early today before the commandos agreed to free their hostages and leave of Cairo.

The Thais will fly back to Bangkok Saturday.

A group of Egyptian officials and officers stood around the passenger ramp. A representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization said he did not know if Egyptian authorities would turn over the four commandos to him.

Egyptian newspapers hailed the Arabs' action. One columnist said their act proved their spirit "to fight has not faded away despite all attempts to liquidate the Palestinian movement."

The commandos began their attempt Thursday when they walked into the Israeli Embassy, some in formal attire.

The Arabs gave up after negotiating all night with the Egyptian ambassador to Thailand, high-ranking Thai officials and leaders of the million-strong Moslem community in Thailand.

Ruth Hadass, a hostage along with her husband, Nitzan, the embassy's first secretary, clutched a wine glass and danced as she shouted in Hebrew, "I didn't know it was so good to be alive."

Premier Golda Meir and the Israeli government expressed "deep admiration and gratitude to the government of Thailand" for its handling of the matter. A Cabinet statement praised the Thai government for "active vigilance and supreme responsibility."

The four Arabs and the 36 terrorists whose release they sought were all members of Black September, the Palestinian organization responsible for the slaying of 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics and the massacre at Israel's international airport last May. It is financed by the oil-rich Libyan government.

The four Arabs invaded the Israeli embassy Thursday while the King of Thailand's only son, Prince Vajiralongkorn, was being invested as crown prince at a ceremony in Parliament House. Two of the terrorists posed as diplomats returning from the ceremony in white tie and tails to get past the Thai guard at the embassy gate. The other two scaled the wall.

Armed with submachine guns and grenades, the four entered the embassy building and took the six Israelis inside as hostages. They included the visiting Israeli ambassador to Cambodia, Shimon Avimor, and two women, but Ambassador Amir was attending the royal investiture. The Thai guard called the police; hundreds of troops and police surrounded the building, and the Arabs threw out a note containing their demands.

The Arabs were negotiating with Air Marshal Dawee Chutlasappa of the ruling Thai junta, Egyptian Ambassador Mustafa el Essawy and others.

During the night the terrorists agreed to release the hostages in exchange for safe conduct out of the country and everybody sat down to a chicken curry inside the embassy—the Arabs, the hostages, the Thai officials and the ambassador.

Beef Price Rise Feared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail beef prices declined in November for the fourth straight month, but increased markups by middlemen kept prices from falling even more, the Agriculture Department reported today.

One analyst warned that beef prices could start increasing again because prices for live cattle jumped sharply late in the month.

The Agriculture Department's monthly "market basket" report showed that the average retail price for all beef was $1.12-3-10 per pound in November, a decline of one-half cent from October and five cents below the record-high prices of July.

The "farm value" of beef declined 11.9 cents since July to its lowest point in nearly two years and 5.1 per cent below the farm value a year earlier.

But the department said the middleman charges in the same period rose 5.9 cents and were up by 26.6 per cent from a year earlier.

According to the analysis, if middlemen had passed along the entire decline in the farm value of beef, the price decline to the consumer would have more than doubled.

The department said total middleman charges in November averaged a record 45.7 cents per pound, which was the difference between the amount the consumer paid and the farmer's share of the super-market price.

The so-called farm value last month was 66.6 cents, the lowest since January, 1971, when it was 60.4 cents. That is not the price farmers get for live cattle because it takes nearly 2.3 pounds of steer on the hoof to make one pound of super-market beef. It is, however, the cattle producer's share of what housewives spend on a pound of beef.

The USDA report supplemented one issued last week by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which said retail beef prices for "selected cuts" rose slightly in November.

But the USDA statistics are gathered over the entire month while the BLS uses retail information collected during the first week of each month.

Bank Sues Campaign Contributor

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The National Bank of Washington is suing Walter T. Duncan, one of 1972's biggest political campaign contributors, for non-payment of a $200,000 loan he took out two days before donating an identical amount to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Duncan, a land developer from San Antonio and Bryan, Tex., donated a total of $300,000 to Humphrey's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, then gave $300,000 to President Nixon's campaign. At the time of his contributions, Duncan faced an array of legal, financial and governmental difficulties.

The bank filed suit Dec. 21 in Bexar County, Texas, District Court three weeks after the due date on the six-month note had passed with the complaint said, no payment from Duncan. Duncan could not be reached for comment and his answer to the complaint is not yet due in court.

Winter Storm Nears

The light rain that met the sunshine halfway in Pampa about 10 a.m. today was almost like a spring freshet. Actually, it was an ominous portent of a winter storm shaping up.

Official observers posted a storm watch for the area and all of Northwest Texas, warning that rainfall could turn to snow by night, continuing through Saturday with strong northerly winds causing heavy drifting.

The menacing storm packing heavy snow and high winds has already slashed across the intermountain region, closing highways and causing hazardous driving eastward toward the Plains.

The approaching winter blast is expected to be born deep into central Texas by tomorrow by the strong winds accompanying it.

Reports of the approaching storm were first met with skepticism as balmy temperatures prevailed over most of the state.

Locally, Pampans enjoyed a high yesterday of 56, which dropped off to 39 last night. Yesterday's rain left .06 of moisture.

The area storm watch was issued partially because the warm weather could cause some to be caught unprepared for a severe snow storm.

Tributes Touch Bess, Margaret

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Harry S. Truman's widow and daughter, "touched by the outpouring of sympathy and affection from citizens everywhere," have expressed their appreciation to those who joined them in mourning for the 33rd president.

In a statement made public after Truman was buried late Thursday in the courtyard of his presidential library, Bess Truman and her daughter, Margaret Daniel, said they were "impressed by both the dignity of the ceremonies and the warmth of the tribute paid to Mr. Truman."

The ceremonies of Wednesday and Thursday were solemn and simple. Thousands viewed Truman's casket as he lay in state before the funeral attended mostly by family and hometown friends.

The tributes will continue. A memorial service will be held Jan. 5 in Washington's National Cathedral for the Man from Independence who died Tuesday at 88. And the nation's flags, by President Nixon's order, will continue to fly at half staff for another 26 days.

News Changes Ad Deadlines

The business office of the Pampa Daily News will be closed New Year's Day to allow employees to be with their families.

Deadlines for both classified ads and Mainly About People will be changed. Classified ads for the Monday New Year's edition should be turned in before 10 a.m. Saturday. Deadlines for the ads in Tuesday's paper is noon Saturday.

Mainly About People paid ads should be in before 10 a.m. Saturday for both Monday and Tuesday papers.

The News will have an early edition out for New Year's Day.

Randall Jessee, the longtime friend who acted as the family spokesman through the days of Truman's final illness and burial, said the 87-year-old widow expects to continue making her home in the white frame house where the Trumans spent most of the 53 years of their marriage. The home is about a half mile from Truman's gravesite.

Mrs. Truman's widowed sister-in-law, May Wallace, lives nearby.

Jessee told newsmen he was deeply moved by Mrs. Truman's composure as she sat before her husband's casket during Thursday's final rites.

"Anyone who watched her face couldn't help but admire her," he said.

Seated beside Margaret, hatless and in a simple black coat, Bess watched almost motionless as the final honors were performed over the brown mahogany casket.

At one point she reached for a handkerchief and her daughter helped remove it from a pocket. But Jessee, standing not far away, said he had seen no tears.

Margaret, too, put a hand to her face once or twice, but she maintained a composure that matched her mother's. And she leaned over frequently during the interment service to speak briefly with Bess.

With them in the center of the spacious courtyard were Margaret's husband, Clifton Daniel, associate editor of The New York Times; the four Daniel children, and May Wallace.

New Bombing Attacks Draw Adverse Worldwide Reaction

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Worldwide protests mounted today against renewed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam ordered by President Nixon after secret peace talks collapsed in Paris.

In China, Premier Chou En-lai was reported to have said that the bombing "certainly" would have an adverse affect on relations with the United States. "The United States government should stop the bombing," he told Washington Post reporter Marilyn Berger. "I hope you will convey my answer to the American people."

Stirrings of protest were also evident in the U.S. Congress, where 18 House Democrats said they were seeking a special session of the Democratic National Committee to organize a national campaign of public opposition to the bombing, now in its 12th day.

And a Republican senator from Ohio said in an interview that he was dropping his support of Nixon's war policies because of the chief executive's "arrogance and irresponsibility."

Sen. William B. Saxbe told the Cleveland Plain Dealer, "I have followed President Nixon through all his convolutions and specious arguments, but he appears to have lost his senses on this."

A member of the Senate Armed Service Committee, Saxbe predicted, "He is going to have all kinds of trouble. He has asked no support, and he'll not get it."

In London, Roy Jenkins, former deputy leader of Britain's opposition Labor party, has appealed to Prime Minister Edward Heath to speak out against the bombing, saying it was "one of the most bloodbathed actions in recent history."

At the United Nations, a Vietnam debate was being considered by a loose organization of 60 nonaligned nations. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim received an appeal from Sweden's five main political parties to seek an end to the bombing.

Elsewhere, about 40 Korean War veterans from western Canada said they would return their war service medals as a protest against the bombing and against what they described as Canada's failure to cease supplying the United States with war materials.

Farmers Angered At New Program Cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers, who were advised by a Republican political slogan last fall to "Re-elect Nixon or Lose Your Butz," have seen the Agriculture Department slice nearly $1.5 billion a year off rural programs the past three weeks.

The cutbacks, ordered by White House budget planners, have drawn sharp criticism from farm organizations and are sure to stir debate when Congress reconvenes next week.

Although heightened more recently by cuts in conservation and loan programs, the string of budget actions actually began Dec. 11, when Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz announced a 1973 feed grain program aimed at boosting corn and soybean production at less cost to taxpayers.

Payments to feed producers under the plan are expected to be down about $800 million from 1972 levels. Another $100 million or so is expected to be trimmed from cotton payments.

The latest decision, announced Wednesday, will turn off further emergency loans made by the Farmers Home Administration to farmers who may need help because of crop and livestock losses from storms, floods and severe harvest weather this fall.

No firm estimate has been made of savings as a result of the FHA decision, but some officials believe the turnoff could mean farmers will be deprived of several hundreds of millions of dollars in potential emergency aid.

Official estimates had put the FHA emergency loan volume at $140 million for the year ending next June 30, but sources said privately the potential might have been as high as $600 million.

Earlier this week, the department announced cancellation of further aid under the Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) and the new Water Bank Program. Congress had authorized a combined total of $235.5 billion for those programs in 1973.

Still another December cutback was a notice that farm grain storage and drying loans by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service would be trimmed 75 per cent beginning next July 1. Estimated savings was put at about $100 million.

Not all of the cutbacks will mean savings to the government this fiscal year, the period ending next June 30. Crop program payments, for example, begin after July 1 and usually are completed by the end of the calendar year.

But the thrust of the decision is to save money and to hold down on the federal budget. Nixon has set a $250 billion maximum for all federal spending in the 1972-73 fiscal year, and the decisions to curb REAP and FHA, particularly, were made by the White House with that goal in mind.

The National Farmers Union blasted the REAP and water bank cutoff order, quietly sent by the Agriculture Department to state offices on Dec. 22, as "shocking" and wants the administration to restore the programs.

"The administration must have known it wouldn't be making any friends by doing away with these programs," NFU President Tony Dechant said in a statement. "Otherwise, it would not have waited until the Christmas parties were under way to release it."

A WAITING WATCH—As the sun broke through the clouds this morning to bring sunshine again to the area, this oil well pump seems to be waiting for the variances in weather. After light rain showers yesterday and partly cloudy skies and sunshine today, the pump faces the prospect of wintry weather winding its way into the area again, with a new cold front possibly bringing in some heavy snow by Saturday.

FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE

Dancing Allowed On Sunday, No Alcoholic Beverage Sales

By TEX DEWESE
Since New Year's Eve falls on Sunday this year, operators of public night spots in Pampa have been wondering about the laws on dancing and sale of alcoholic beverages as part of New Year festivities.

Police Chief Jim Conner and City Manager Mack Wofford today went digging into city ordinances and came up with information that puts a ban on the Sunday sale of alcoholic drinks, but not on dancing.

Most public night spots, Wofford said, are not expected to be open Sunday night because the principal source of their revenue, the sale of beer, is prohibited on Sunday in Pampa between the hours of 1 a.m. and midnight. That rules out the sale of beer.

However, Pampa has a city ordinance which permits public places to be open for dancing on Sunday, providing it is not between 1 a.m. and 7 a.m.

The ordinance states "no public dance hall shall remain open or operate between the hours of 1 o'clock a.m. and 7 o'clock a.m. Central Standard

Time, of ANY DAY." There is no mention anywhere in the ordinance, adopted back in 1938, that is interpreted as prohibiting dancing on Sunday, the city manager said.

There also is no law, he stated, that prohibits persons carrying their own alcoholic beverages into places where there is Sunday dancing.

It all adds up that public night spots here can be open on Sunday. New Year's Eve Patrons would be permitted to dance but operators of the places cannot legally sell them any alcoholic beverage.

"Since they are not permitted to sell beer," Chief Conner said, "we are not expecting them to be open Sunday night."

The city ordinance does not apply to private clubs and fraternal organizations.

City Manager Mack Wofford said a public dance is planned for the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium Sunday night, but the same restrictions will apply there that apply to other Pampa public night spots.

Police will be keeping a close watch New Year's Eve to see that the Sunday laws are not broken, Chief Conner said.

Simple Service Set For Crash Victims

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — "A spiritually simple service" for 14 of the 19 Woodlawn Baptist Church members killed in a New Mexico bus crash will be held Saturday in Municipal Auditorium.

Coffins of the 14 will be brought to the auditorium, which was offered by the city for the joint funeral, the church's pastor said at a Thursday news conference.

The Rev. James Abington said he believed the victims would have wanted "a spiritually simple service."

"We are not going to put on a show," he said.

Services were scheduled in San Antonio today for the driver of the bus, Jerry Estes, and his wife Gloria, who were still members of Woodlawn although they had moved a month before the accident.

Also scheduled for burial today were James and Johnny Reeves, 15-year-old twins.

A Saturday morning private funeral was planned for Sharon Sellers, 24.

The Rev. Mr. Abington will officiate at the joint funeral for these victims Saturday afternoon.

Tom Sullivan was listed in critical condition with head injuries in Lubbock Methodist Hospital's intensive care unit.

In the same hospital was Lou Ann Hobnett, who sustained crushed vertebrae and probably will remain hospitalized about three months, the Rev. Mr. Abington said.

D'Anna Bingaman, daughter of the church's minister of music and youth, will stay in Clovis but "perhaps return in a day or so," the pastor said.

He said the church has established a "Youth Memorial Fund" in memory of the accident victims but "I can't tell you what it will be used for."

"Our first concern is to see that all these families and injured are cared for."

Whither a True Love Goddess?

Rita Putts for New Trophies

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The age of the Love Goddess is gone. This is The Age of the Dog. Instead of Pin-Up Girls these days we mostly have Throw-Up Girls in Hollywood. Today's female stars have the sex appeal of a second-hand Mack truck.

Which brings us to a consideration of Rita Hayworth, probably the greatest Love Goddess of them all. In the days when men were men and women were beautiful, she dazzled the world. And she lived her parts, too, marrying great actors and Oriental potentates and leaving a trail of broken hearts in her wondrous wake.

It is nice to report that today, at whatever age she happens to be, she still looks pretty good. There are a few extra pounds here and there and, naturally, she can't pass for 23 any more but she still has the exquisite face, the glorious hair and the air of the conquering tigress.

She's still active, too, and is just off to England for another film. She says she's been averaging "a good film a year for the last 12 years."

"I'm an actress," she says, "and I work at my business."

Doing one film a year leaves her with a lot of free, nonprofessional time. It's hard to visualize the Rita Hayworth of the pin-ups becoming an athlete but that's the terrible truth.

"I've become a pretty good golfer," she says, "and I even have a trophy to prove it."

She and pro golfer Marlene Hagge won the Pro-Am phase of Dinah Shore's tournament in Palm Springs. At one point, Rita sank a 60-foot putt—"and it was downhill, which is the hardest kind for me."

She also plays a lot of backgammon. She says she learned that game as a child from a couple who were backgammon hustlers and plied their trade on the trans-Atlantic luxury liners. They taught her all they knew. So make a note — don't ever play backgammon with Rita Hayworth for money.

When she isn't golfing or backgammoning, "I read and do things," but exactly what sort of "things" she wouldn't specify.

If she wanted to she could be considerably more active

Rita Hayworth
There is still magic in her name.

with her career. There's still magic in her name and producers are constantly knocking on her door with projects. She's been offered a flock of frivolous TV series but no thanks.

"I like to do as much as I can," she says, "but I won't do a TV dramatic part. I don't much like what I see on the home screen."

Unlike many of her contemporaries she sees much good in today's movies. She doesn't like everything she sees but neither does she issue a blanket condemnation of the new style of filmmaking.

"I like some of the new, free, experimental movies," she says. "Actually, about half of the movies I've seen I've liked. Half I didn't like. The ones I liked weren't Disney-type films, either."

"I feel the freedom has gone about as far as it can go and I think the next few years will see the pendulum swinging the other way."

She talked about mistakes she's made, both privately and professionally. She claims to be pretty good at sizing people up at first meeting, owning and operating what she says is a good women's intuition.

"I've made a few mistakes boys have I—but I think even the mistakes worked out for the best," she says. "I wouldn't have changed anything in my life."

There was one mistake she made, in her acting career, which she regrets, even though that, too, worked out for the best. Once she was offered a role opposite Cary Grant in a movie about a dancing caterpillar called "Once Upon a Caterpillar."

"I felt," she says, "that I could dance better than any caterpillar so why should I appear in a film about one? I would have liked working with Cary Grant, but a dancing caterpillar?"

As things turned out they made "Once Upon a Caterpillar," with Janet Blair instead of Rita Hayworth. It was forgettable. The picture she had suggested turned out to be "Cover Girl," one of her big ones.

All that era is gone now. The years have come and gone and Rita Hayworth has outgrown the Love Goddess time, too. Exactly how old she is is her business but it doesn't matter much. She's still a great-looking woman and they aren't making any Rita Hayworths these days.

Television And Radio

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Okay, wives. Say goodbye to the old man. He's going into what the astronauts might call the bowl mode, a peculiar frame of mind that occurs at this time each year.

When a man gets it, he stares at the television set and flails wildly at anyone saying things like "dinner" or "Daddy?"

Now there are 12 football games the networks will televise between now and Jan. 21. Ten of them are bowl games with such names as Rose, Sugar, Orange, Cotton, Gator, Senior and Super.

They cause bowl mode. And it's all beginning at noon CST Saturday when the CBS network shows the Sun Bowl. Three hours later, ABC will get even by televising the Gator Bowl.

On New Year's Eve, or Sunday as it's known in some quarters, the stadia study continues with the Sugar Bowl on ABC.

The two nonbowl battles—both pro football conference championship games—will be shown earlier in the day on the CBS and NBC television networks.

On New Year's Day, when the little ones are romping about and disturbing the tranquility of a hangover, three bowl games will appear on the tube.

CBS will start things at 1 p.m. CST with the Cotton Bowl. NBC will show the one that began it all, the Rose Bowl, at 3:45 p.m. CST. Three hours later, it'll give us the Orange Bowl.

There'll be a brief time out until Jan. 6, when NBC televises the Senior Bowl and ABC emits the Hula Bowl.

At 2:30 p.m. CST on Jan. 14, NBC televises the Super Bowl, a pro football pageant akin in stature to the Crusades and featuring many of the original cast.

But wait! There's more. Just one more. It's called the Pro Bowl, which CBS will broadcast on Jan. 21.

When that's over, you will see signs of life and movement from that bewhiskered chap on the sofa in front of the television set.

If you have a pückish sense of humor, tell him he missed the opening game of the National Hockey league season, which NBC is broadcasting tonight at 7:30 p.m. CST.

Then get him a beer and gently dust away the month's supply of cigar ash. Tell him the bowl games are over. Remind him that there's no such thing as a Bowl Bowl on television.

Tell him they might have one next year if he's good. Tell him what good is.

Avalanche Kills French Soldiers

NICE, France (AP) — Two French mountain soldiers were killed Thursday and five seriously injured in an avalanche on an Alpine slope, authorities reported.

Fifteen soldiers were caught by the snow slide near the village of Isola. Eight managed to struggle free and five were pulled out by rescuers.

The avalanche was believed to have been caused by the relatively mild weather in the southern French Alps. The soldiers were on a patrol exercise when the avalanche occurred.

Wallace Using Experimental Device

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace is using an experimental device to block pain impulses from the spinal-cord injury he received during an assassination attempt in Maryland last spring.

VA doctors recommended a cutaneous stimulator, which he has named 1.101 women and 1.306 men as postmasters since January.

The device, connected to Wallace's skin by electrode strips and powered by flashlight batteries, "is supposed to fool my spinal cord," said Wallace, who was partially paralyzed by a gunshot wound.

Dr. Ross Davis of the VA said the device provided Wallace has proved successful in blocking pain in six out of 10 patients, but he emphasized that it was still in experimental use.

There's Always Room for More In Potter's Field

When Judas Iscariot realized the consequences of his betrayal of Jesus he became despondent and, according to Matthew, hung himself. His 30 pieces of silver were then used by temple priests to buy "the potters' field," which thereafter would be known as the field of blood, "to bury strangers in."

By TOM TIEDE

NEW YORK — (NEA) They buried Claude Solomon in the field of blood the other afternoon. He was 82. Religion unknown. Family unknown. Past unknown. He was an alien to the usual profits of American civilization. He died a penniless nobody, from the ravages of time, in the crowded ward of a city hospital, and since there was nothing else to do with him he was put rudely to rest in the potters' field.

Potters' field: In New York, 45 acres of ground on the windy edge of Hart Island in the East River; where, 2,000 years after Judas, society still buries its strangers.

Solomon's body arrived at the field at midmorning on the day of his interment. He came with eight others, all in pine boxes, by way of hospital truck. Late. An hour or so late. The truck driver said he couldn't help it because the city traffic was brutal. "I got behind this one old fool who stalled at a stoplight." The driver shook his head. Lit a cigarette. Looked around. "Man, it's cold out here, ain't it?" Nobody answered. The driver shrugged. And sat down on a rock.

The burial crew removed Claude Solomon, and the others, including some still-born infants, from the truck. All of the boxes were arranged in a rank on a road. The road was sloshy. It had rained the night before and frozen. Now the ice was thin, and the coffins broke through the crust, and sank an inch or two into the mud and water.

"Look here," said one of the workers.

He pointed to a circle of blood which was seeping out of one of the coffins. He kicked some glop on it. Then scraped it with his boot, leaving a dark mark of mud.

"They don't even embalm these people."

The burial crew — about a dozen men — paid no more attention to the blood leak. They went about their job with a disinterested competence. "We're not morticians," one of them said. Indeed not. As is the custom at New York's potters' field, the burial crew was made up of convicts from nearby Rikers Island jail. "We're the losers burying the losers," said a man wearing a Mackinaw. "You know what we get paid for doing this? I'll tell you, man: a great total of 20 cents a lousy hour."

That salary is a fair measure of New York's entire potters' field operation. Ceremony here is eclipsed by cost effectiveness. And since the cemetery's customers are normally paupers or rejects, nobody lobbies for improvements. The coffins are thin, unfinished, untreated white wood, which, prisoners say, "don't even have enough nails in them." The gravesites themselves are nothing more than gouged out communal trenches, 8 by 15 by 150 feet long, in which coffins are stacked three to a row. Burials are hasty, insensitive, altogether sterile affairs of absolute unavoidability.

But what potters' field lacks in decency it makes up in efficiency. Eight thousand people are buried here annually. More than 600,000 have been planted in the last century. "The whole operation has been planned out thoroughly," a city official has said. "We don't even have to worry about running out of space. We have stopped treating the coffins with preservatives so that they will decompose quickly. And every 25 years we can just dig up the old graves to make way for the new."

So it was then, at this place, cursed by history, the prisoners buried Claude Solomon the other chilly day. And some others too: Mary Wilson, listed as "a Negro"; Joseph Lawson, whose name was misspelled; Alphonso Haynes, "received from the city hearse." Each wrapped in polyethylene bags, inside those boxes, one of which was so ill-constructed that it whistled as the wind rushed through it from the East River.

A convict with a red headband prepared Solomon's box. He carved a code number on the top and wrote the man's name, in crayon, along the side. "We make sure we can identify any box buried," said the prisoners' guard, Edward Bowers. "We get several hundred disinterment orders a year, and we have to know who's in what box. I remember recently when we had to dig up a guy's leg. He had surgery and the amputated leg was buried here (potters' field receives most city hospital amputations). Anyway, after the guy's leg was buried he died himself, and we had to dig the leg up so he could be buried in one piece. No problem. We knew right where the leg was."

Claude Solomon was the first one in the trench. Again, for identification purposes. "The old ones on the bottom, the young ones on top. The young ones are usually the first ones disinterred." The prisoner with the headband slid Solomon's box down a plank. Splat. Into a half foot of ooze. The prisoner was maddened. He swore. Then, with the aid of another man, he pushed Claude Solomon into his final place.

The other boxes were deposited in order. The wind picked up. A seagull landed on a dirt hill. "The birds don't bother none — but the rats, God, they eat anything."

"Cover 'em up." Only this story remembers Claude Solomon, whoever he was. Here lies a stranger. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Ways to Restore Stained Marble

By MR. FIX

Marble is a durable material that lasts indefinitely. It has a hard surface that is easily wiped. However it is not impervious to staining. In spite of its hard surface it is porous.

Stains should be cleaned immediately. Failure to do so will cause them to penetrate below the surface.

Marble is used around the house for windowsills and tops of coffee and lamp tables. These are surfaces on which objects are often placed. Most spills that are wiped up right away will not stain.

But if there is a stain, learn what to do to remove it and then how to restore the polish to the marble surface.

Fortunately most stains fall into groups, and within the group, they can be removed with a particular method.

Most greasy stains are caused not only by butter, oil and oily foods, but milk and cream as well. A quick washing with ammonia and water will remove the stain before it sets. If not tackled quickly there will be a stain which will have to be cured by other measures.

The stain will have to be removed with a solvent applied in paste form. Get some powdered whiting at a paint or hardware store. Make a paste with dry cleaning fluid, gasoline, acetone or similar solvent. Acetone is the safest of these.

Apply the paste to the stain and leave for a few hours. Since the paste only works when it is moist, you may have to add fluid occasionally.

Organic stains from tea, coffee, tobacco, dyes in fabrics and paper can be rinsed away with clear water if caught right away.

If a stain does occur, make a paste of whiting and hydrogen peroxide. Apply this to the stain and add a few drops of ammonia.

The paste solutions used to remove stains should be removed from the marble surface only when completely dry. Wash the powdery residue with hot water. Then polish with a dry rag.

Stains that are left too long will eat into the marble, some will etch the surface right away. Foods with acid such as fruit juices, wine and vinegar are among them.

Wash with plenty of clear water and then apply the spot removing paste, generally the whiting and hydrogen peroxide. Keep applying until you have bleached out the stain.

To restore the polish to the surface after removing the spot, polish with a marble polishing compound or putty powder. Sprinkle on the surface and rub with a damp cloth until you have restored the shine. Then wipe away and polish with a dry cloth.

Paste will protect marble surfaces and make cleaning easier.

Texas City Against Town's Development

CONROE, Tex. (AP) — The City of Conroe says it has no plans to waive its rights to a Montgomery County area expected to be developed by a Houston firm.

Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. of Houston is developing an 18,000-acre tract in the southern part of the county for a proposed town of 150,000 persons.

Mitchell has received a $50 million federal loan to plan the community called Woodlands. It is expected to be worth $3 billion when fully developed in 1992.

Stephen W. Bartlett, an attorney for Mitchell, has presented to the Conroe City Council the firm's plans to ask Houston to extend its extrajurisdiction to cover the Woodlands area. Conroe now has rights to part of the area but Bartlett said all the land should be under one municipality.

However, Conroe Mayor R. A. Dieson said this week he does not want any interference from Houston on the proposed town.

"We are unalterably opposed to any encroachment by Houston to Conroe's extrajurisdiction jurisdiction," Dieson said. "We have no intention of waiving our rights. We aim to maintain the political integrity in this area."

Bartlett said Mitchell has no quarrel with Conroe or any other municipality. The firm desires to be included in Houston's extrajurisdiction jurisdiction because that would prevent any other municipality from annexing any part of the Woodlands development.

Brightly Dressed Gunmen Darken Poker Game

DALLAS (AP) — Two brightly dressed gunmen struck a poker game in Northeast Dallas Thursday, tying up the players and making off with more than $20,000.

Seven Dallas business executives were playing at the home of beauty college graduate Raymond Fulton when the two desperadoes burst in. They ransacked the house for more than an hour. Later they called the police to report their own raid.

"There's been a robbery," one of the men said, giving the street address. When the police clerk asked questions, the caller said: "I can't tell you any more. I'm the one that did it."

The gunmen, one coming through the front door and one through the back, entered Fulton's home at 1:25 a.m.

One of them, in his mid-20s, wore a long blond wig, blue pants and a black leather jacket with purple patent leather shoes.

The poker players, all between 49 and 65 years of age, were ordered to put their hands and heads down on the table.

One of the robbers dragged Fulton's wife from a bedroom where she had been sleeping and demanded to know where her husband kept his money.

Mrs. Fulton told police the man started to "rough her up" when she said there was no money.

The men ransacked the house, taking everything portable of value, including an $895 mink coat, an antique gun, a wristwatch worth $1,000, and a woman's diamond watch worth $2,000.

They also collected more than $3,300 cash from the poker players along with credit cards, a shotgun, rifles and pistols. Included in their haul was a Scottish Rite ring valued at $6,000, police said.

One of the victims managed to struggle from his bonds and telephone police after the men had left.

Quake Forecast Shakes Frisco

By JERRY CARROLL

(Editor's Note: The author is a reporter for the San Francisco Chronicle.)

SAN FRANCISCO (NEA)—Fear of when the next earthquake will strike is something people here have learned to live with, but that usually low-key apprehension is building these days.

That is because a strange, desert-dwelling recluse once widely known as the "Earthquake Prophet" has predicted the next big quake will be Jan. 4 at 9 a.m.

Reuben Greenspan says the earthquake will hit with a magnitude of 7.4 on the Richter scale, compared with the 8.2 tremor of 1906 which devastated the city.

Astrologers, mystics and assorted crackpots in sandwich signs regularly predict the impending doom of San Francisco, but Greenspan's forecast is getting serious attention.

"As an informed layman and something of a scientist, it looks pretty good to me," said Dr. William Kautz of Stanford Research Institute, who has been conducting sophisticated computer studies of Greenspan's quake theory.

"I finally convinced myself the guy knows what he is talking about," agreed Sheldon Ruderman, an engineer and doctoral candidate at the University of California at Berkeley.

Greenspan's theory maintains that earthquakes are triggered when the sun and moon are aligned in such a way as to exert unusual gravitational pressures on earth faults, causing them to buckle.

Seismologists—who say the next big tremor is just a matter of time—nonetheless smilingly dismiss Greenspan's theory as one which extensive research has shown is without merit. They say there is no way at present to predict quakes.

The only people who do, says Jerry Eaton, head of the U.S. Office of Earthquake Research and Crustal Studies, "are using methods so unconventional they really don't qualify as science."

Greenspan, 68, made his forecast of doom for San Francisco 22 months ago in a newspaper interview in Santa Ana, Calif. He might have been immediately dismissed as an ordinary crackpot except for one thing.

In that interview, Greenspan also predicted to reporter John Blackburn that just four days hence a major quake would strike the San Fernando Valley. That was the Sylmar tremor which killed 65 people and did $500 million in damage on Feb. 9, 1971.

"He was accurate to within three minutes," Blackburn said. "I'll be honest with you, it scared the bejesus out of me." Blackburn recalled that when he spoke to Greenspan afterward, "He seemed pleased that he had called it, but not joyful. It was like, 'Gee, Mom, I did it.'"

Greenspan gained his reputation for prophecy in 1935 when he was writing letters to newspapers forecasting future earthquakes with what seemed like uncanny accuracy.

The New York Times admiringly said at the time, "In the Middle Ages, anyone like Mr. Greenspan would have been burned at the stake as one who was in league with the forces of evil."

Seismologist Malcolm Clark has gone back over the earthquake records for that year, however, and concludes that Greenspan's reputation was unfounded. "He was predicting for huge areas and the seismic events that did occur were minor," he said.

Carl Payne Tobey, a Tucson, Ariz., astrologer who writes a syndicated column about the stars, provided one of the first clues about the basis of Greenspan's method for predicting quakes. Tobey knew Greenspan in 1935 when his fame was widespread.

"I respected his request at the time when he asked me not to say his work involved astrology. The scientists will have nothing to do with me if you say I am using astrology," he told me," Tobey recalled.

Greenspan, however, angrily denies that. "My theory is not astrology. I don't know one thing about astrology or mysticism." That denial is the last anyone has heard from Greenspan, who lives on the desert near Death Valley.

Just before he dropped out of sight, there were published reports casting doubt on his claim to have received a Ph.D. from a Chicago university and to have once taught at a university in New York.

Nevertheless, just about everyone you talk to here either plans to be out of town on Jan. 4 or knows someone who intends to.

Call It Hogwash, But It Often Works

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A few call it hogwash but a lot of doctors here were taking a serious new look today at acupuncture, a medical technique from the mysterious East that was old when Christ was born. Eighty physicians crowded the auditorium at Touro Infirmary's nursing school for a four-day series of lectures and demonstrations to be climaxed by actual surgery Saturday.

Using acupuncture, an expert can stick a needle or two in you and shortcircuit pain—even the exquisite sensations that go with being sliced open for abdominal surgery. "I guess the development of penicillin set off more excitement in medical circles, but I have never seen anything match this in the way this has caught public attention," said Dr. Murray A. Flamm, executive director of the hospital.

The seminar faculty: Dr. Guidy Fisch of Lausanne, Switzerland, president of the Swiss Society of Acupuncture, and Dr. Nguyen Van Nghi, formerly of Vietnam, now a professor of medicine at Marseilles University in Marseilles, France. Two translators interpret the lectures, given in French, and American physicians sit wearing earphones and scriawling notes.

They hold a similar private seminar next week in New York City, and a third in St. Petersburg, Fla. Sessions are limited to physicians.

The fact that acupuncture does extraordinary things, mainly as an anesthetic, has been demonstrated. Chinese physicians in Peking say it is successful in nearly 90 per cent of cases of surgery in which it is the primary anesthetic, if not the only one.

The physicians said acupuncture also can often cure asthma, cure deafness, make childbirth easy.

What no one has been able to do—at least, not to the satisfaction of scientists—is explain why it works. When it comes to "why" needles can do such magic things, the explanations make most Western physicians frown.

Dwight D. Eisenhower was the first president of the 50 states. Both Alaska and Hawaii were admitted to the Union during his administration.

Possible Disruptions Expected In Business Scene

By BABSON'S REPORTS INC. WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass.

Our forecast a year ago was heavily laced with reasons for optimism regarding economic and financial prospects for 1972. In retrospect, our two key predictions proved to be correct. On the economic front we envisioned the emergence of a more hopeful attitude on the part of businessmen and consumers that would speed up the economic recovery. On the financial front we projected a good year for the stock market in 1972, and indicated that the Dow Jones Industrial Average would pierce the 1,000 mark in either late summer or early fall.

Home Free In '73?
1972 turned out to be a year of almost unbroken economic and business progress. The public might well have been more keenly aware of this healthy environment had it not been for the politically motivated rhetoric on some of the less-than-Utopian aspects of the business picture.

The most facile means of forecasting is, of course, simply to take prevailing conditions and project them into the future, even though this is not necessarily the most logical or accurate way. Such an approach is commonly used among laymen, and often even by those more knowledgeable in business affairs.

Little wonder, then, that just as optimists were conspicuous by their absence a year ago, most forecasters of 1973 business up to this point reflect today's enthusiasm and happy anticipation.

Pockets of Trouble
The staff of Babson's Reports once again stands somewhat apart from the herd and takes a more moderate view of developments over the next twelve months. Our opinion is far from pessimistic, but it does incorporate a healthy respect for some of the vital problems which the nation's economy may have to face in the new year.

Hence, readers of this Babson Forecast are advised to be psychologically prepared to cope with possible disruptions of varying intensity along the labor front, on the monetary scene, in the fight against inflation, and in areas of high sociological sensitivity.

Strike Threat
A year from now, we may look back and credit labor relations with having molded the profile of 1973's business pattern. Whether the nation is to suffer an inordinate degree of economic dislocation during the coming twelve-month could depend to a considerable extent on just how aggressively and persistently labor leaders press their demands, and also on how the Administration handles the labor issues in its effort to stave off serious, long-term injury to the economy from further ravages of inflation.

While the Babson staff is hopeful that the overall damage will not be excessive, there are bound to be a number of conflicts which will jar business and public confidence for a while.

Labor-management confrontations will start at the crack of the new year and, except for brief respites, will remain on scene throughout 1973. It is estimated that more than 4,000,000 workers in a fistful of key industries will become involved in new labor contract negotiations.

First at bat are the United Rubber Workers who are already facing the petrochemical companies to hammer out a labor pact to replace the one just expiring. Bargaining will be due thereafter in rubber, cement, construction, apparel, retail trade, services, electrical manufacturing, and foods.

Most important, however, are negotiations involving the Teamsters and United Auto Workers. The fact that both of these significant contract expirations will be quite close together is disturbing, since industrial production could plummet sharply for an indefinite period if either or both groups should strike.

Inflation Tolerable?
Prospects for 1973 hinge so importantly upon the inflation threat that an early examination of this subject seems appropriate. There are two types of inflation, monetary and price.

In trying to pull the economy out of its recent recession, the monetary authorities opened the spigot and increased the money supply. They accomplished their objective, and their recent actions have been more moderate.

In 1973, therefore, we can look for the monetary officials to "lean against the wind" whenever it becomes necessary to squelch any fresh threat from inflationary forces. But unless price (and wage) inflation commences to slip out of control, it is not likely that the severe tightening of money and credit which precipitated the 1968-69 credit crunch will be repeated.

This does not mean we have put inflation entirely at rest. Some price and wage inflation seems unavoidable in the year ahead; the primary question is just how severe it will be.

Determining factors will be the behavior of labor, management, and the Administration. If labor is aggressive and adamant in its demands and if management makes little or no attempt to hold costs to a reasonable rate of increase, the seeds will be sown for a potentially dangerous crop of inflation of the cost-push type.

What Will The Administration Do?

The Babson staff foresees some sharp jawboning by the Administration to convince labor and management that they must co-operate in keeping wage and price increases within tolerable range. Should such moral suasion fail, however, there is always the last resort:

Price and wage controls far more restrictive and of greater scope than the partial curbs and guidelines we have been operating under for about a year and a half.

With such stringent anti-inflation curbs, neither labor nor management nor the consumer really benefits or is happy. Hence, we are hopeful that the pending labor negotiations in pattern-setting fields will be resolved with only moderate price inflation and without business stoppages.

If price inflation should be held to a walk in the early months of the new year, there is a good chance that controls will be modified and eased. Although it would be unrealistic to expect total cessation of anti-inflation controls in 1973, even some relaxation would have a positive impact on public confidence.

Overall, we are hopeful that price and wage hikes can be kept to around 6 per cent in the coming year, leaving the normal productivity gain of 3 per cent to 3.5 per cent annum as a partially counterbalancing influence. The Administration itself will be in the forefront of the inflation battle.

While it would be overly ambitious to look for a balanced federal budget in either fiscal 1973 or fiscal 1974 (portions of both fall in the calendar year 1973), the Nixon Administration will aim for a moderate budget deficit by impounding funds allocated for certain purposes.

Industrial Production
Allowing for a reasonable labor climate with some disruptions of brief duration, the staff of Babson's Reports feels that industrial production can post a gain of 5 per cent in 1973 over the 1972 average. This would be in the form of physical volume of output and not subject to inflationary factors. This rate of increase would amount to somewhat less than that registered during 1972.

On the other hand, the increase in industrial activity should be spread over a broader base in terms of industries participating. There should also be some shift in leadership.

For example, the production of automobiles and trucks which did yeomen's work in pulling the economy upward these past two years may well level off, but the hitherto laggard capital-goods sector will come on strong.

Other lines which are expected to contribute to the advance in industrial production include paper and pulp, containers, instruments and controls, machine-tools, apparel, and both military and consumer electronics.

Gross National Product
It is the opinion of the Babson staff that through the combination of anticipated higher prices and increased output, the nation's 1973 Gross National Product in current dollars should post an advance approximating 9 per cent over 1972, a gain of about the same magnitude as that seen in the year just ended.

In constant dollars (deflated basis), with 1958 as the base period, we expect a year-to-year increase of about 4 per cent compared with 5.5 per cent for 1972. This smaller rate of progress points up the fact that general business in 1973 will lack on further gains but not with the same degree of vigor.

Two aspects of economic activity we think will be prominent in enabling 1973 to chalk up a climb in business, and hence in GNP, are in the private sector of the economy. These are personal consumption expenditures and private domestic investments. However, state and local demand for goods and services, betterment in the nation's foreign trade balance, and the unavoidable updating of the nation's defense capabilities will also lift the GNP.

World Peace and Trade

By the time this Annual Forecast is published, there could already be a cease-fire agreement for the Vietnam war. In any case, such a truce should not be far off. How long such a cooling-off arrangement will last, however, is indeterminate.

We are hopeful that this forward step can be followed by negotiations leading to a permanent peace treaty. Even if a cease-fire is achieved but fails to hold, any resumption of fighting will presumably take place without American forces. Hopefully, settlement in Vietnam may be only part of a favorable peace package which will incorporate agreements to maintain the integrity of all other Southeast Asian nations.

It is the conviction of Babson's Reports that there will be no World War III in 1973. There may well be more internal strife in the emerging nations of Africa and other underdeveloped countries of the world where the climate for leadership is still a partial vacuum and thus invites struggle for domination. Similar conditions also exist in portions of South and Central America.

It is to be hoped, however, that the expected redirection of U.S. foreign policy and assistance will include a shift back to Latin America in time to stave off serious trouble there. In the Middle East no full-scale war is likely in 1973, but the area will unfortunately continue to teeter on the brink of outright conflict.

The commercial transactions achieved between this country and Russia and Red China barely scratch the surface of the trade potential which exists on an international scale.

We forecast an increase in foreign commerce for the United States in the new year involving more industry groups. Stupendous though the potential may be, we can tap only a tiny fraction of the basic markets. Iron-curtain countries simply do not have enough dollar holdings or trade credits. Sales made on a credit basis require tedious negotiations to establish terms for such transactions.

Eventually, however, the worldwide revamp of the international monetary system will result in some improvement in this situation. But the solution will not come in 1973. Nonetheless, there should be a better showing in our foreign trade balance and a less horrendous deficit in our annual international balance of payments.

Good Year for Farmers

The stop-up in grain exports this past year has stiffened agricultural commodity prices materially, and 1972 is winding up as one of the best years in history for the nation's farmers. Realized net income could reach $18.8 billion, a total which would outstrip the previous peak of $17 billion reached back in 1967.

Farm income next year should hold near this all-time record level. Domestic demand for agricultural products will remain strong, while exports are expected to rule on the upside. Farmers are already "champing at the bit" to start tilling and planting 1973's spring crops. The farm-equipment market is booming, and demand for fertilizer and seed will be brisk. Farm real estate prices have also strengthened.

Bright Consumer Psychology

All told, the nation's consumers can look forward to a good year in 1973. There will be some dissatisfaction over prices as well as occasional tremors among workers unsettled by labor-management confrontations, but the overall employment will be heartening. Employment should move above the record rate already achieved during 1972. Already the "help wanted" newspaper sections are reflecting an increase in numbers of job openings. On the other hand, unemployment will shrink only a trifle from the current 6 per cent of the civilian labor force, possibly reaching the Administration's target of 5.5 per cent.

This is scarcely satisfactory to labor leaders, but it must be recognized that it is difficult to reduce jobless totals—even when employment is on the rise—if there is a massive influx into the labor force of young people and mothers seeking part-time or full-time work. And this will be the case during 1973.

As we said earlier, wage rates will climb further in the year ahead. The pattern for raises and fringe benefits for the ensuing three years may well be determined by contracts inked in the key trucking, auto, and construction industries in the new year.

With multi-year agreements usually calling for the lion's share of the overall increase in the first year, average wage rates in American industry will show a significant rise in 1973, tempered somewhat by whatever controls are in effect. All of this will mean an upward push, in both gross and disposable personal incomes.

Spending Will Rise

The combination of full employment, soaring wage rates, and new highs in personal income will, of course, put consumers in a spending mood. For that reason the staff of Babson's Reports looks for a substantial rise in consumer spending in 1973.

The continuing advance in consumer expenditures will be spurred to some degree by a decline in the rate of savings. The trend toward putting away a smaller percentage of disposable income has been in evidence since the third quarter of 1971, after hitting a peak in the preceding quarter when consumers channeled 8.6 per cent of their disposable income into savings.

For the full year 1971 the savings rate was 8.2 per cent, but we estimate the 1972 figure will prove to have been reduced to 6.6 per cent.

With little chance for much reduction in food prices and with consumption per capita still climbing, a fair portion of the increase in personal incomes will go for food and beverages. Consumers will also spend more for eating away from home.

With new housing starts in 1972 holding up longer than was earlier expected, furniture and home furnishings are likely to remain strong areas of buyer interest. Purchases of new autos were extremely heavy during the bulk of the past year, and there is no indication that this tendency will soon be reversed. It should be noted, however, that we look for considerably less of an upward fillip in home furnishings and auto sales in 1973 than was seen in 1972.

In both instances, it is getting late in the upward phase of the selling cycle. We do expect, however, quite positive gains in consumer spending for leisure-time activities and products, and for apparel and accessories.

Capital Expenditures

Business capital expenditures will help to stimulate the economy during 1973, but not with the same potency as in previous business booms.

It is probable, in fact, that a good chunk of capital spending will be not for increased productive capacity but for items of high social priority. Most firms will be laying out more money to comply with anti-pollution regulations, and companies in the oil and gas industry will expend huge sums in the search for new reserves.

Major gas distributors are so hard-pressed for fresh supplies of natural gas that they are advancing millions of dollars to help pay for exploration and development costs in exchange for the right to purchase a major part or the entire output of a given area.

All in all, business capital expenditures in 1973 could show a gain just about matching the 10 per cent marked up during the past year.

Interest Rates—Bond Market

Since the consumer will be spending more and business will be building up inventories and pouring out more funds for capital-equipment programs, there will inevitably be some upward pressure on interest rates.

But we stress once more that we do not anticipate another traumatic credit crunch such as occurred during the closing years of the 1960s. The brunt of any interest-rate rise is likely to come at the short end of the money-rate scale, with only a moderate firming of long-term rates.

Keep in mind that the total of new housing starts will probably ease a bit in 1973. Moreover, corporations are generally in good financial condition after building up their resources over the past two years with the aid of the investment tax credit.

The Babson staff looks for corporate profits after taxes to go up about 12 per cent in the new year compared with 16 per cent in 1972. Even this smaller gain, however—coupled with the freeze on corporate dividend disbursements—will enhance business liquidity.

One area of danger in the money-rate picture may be traced to the government's doorstep. The U.S. Treasury is slated for fairly active financing in 1973, and the unusual and unexpected tax receipts that have come in during 1972 through overwithholding will not be seen in the new year. Whether the Treasury's debt-management efforts will pose a problem depends on inflation prospects.

If, as now seems to be increasingly accepted, the general public feels that inflation is being restrained, the federal refinancing projects are likely to occur without undue pressure on interest rates.

Hence, bond prices will probably show sporadic signs of softness in the short to intermediate sectors of the maturity scale. But on the long-term end prices should be generally well maintained.

In general, 1973 should offer ample opportunity to make selected purchases of bonds and preferred stocks of good quality for investors who need to nail down a fair amount of fixed income from their investments.

Wherever possible, however, some inflation hedge should be sought, even to the point of sacrificing a little income on a portion of investment capital. This part of investment funds can be placed in some attractively priced convertible debentures and convertible preferred stocks.

Bigger Tax Bite?

The outcry for tax reform, the staggering projected federal budget deficit, and the need for help at state and local levels indicate that somewhere along the line in 1973 there must be a heavy tax wallop.

The staff of Babson's Reports does feel, however, that by closing tax loopholes of the more glaring sort and putting some restraints on public spending, the federal government can avoid an outright increase in both corporate and personal income taxes in the coming year, over and above the social security tax hike that is already scheduled to take effect January 1, 1973.

Stock Market Outlook

The stock market during 1973 will have three powerful factors in its corner: (1) The element of peace; (2) the generally healthy economic climate; and (3) the decisive hurdling of the 1,000 mark by the Dow Jones Industrial Average which is whetting the investment appetite.

These are considerations that tend to stiffen investment confidence substantially. On the assumptions that corporate profits can post another gain during the coming year and that inflation can be prevented from running away, the Dow Jones Industrial Average can be expected to work into still higher territory over the next twelve months.

The possibility of a move past the 1,100 mark, to even a challenge of the 1,200 level, should not be ruled out. However, there may not be a smooth jet flight for the stock market, if only because of the overhanging danger of labor troubles which will threaten for virtually the entire year ahead.

Nevertheless, barring the unpredictable major adverse development, many of the stocks which have been in the doldrums will have an opportunity to catch up with the parade.

Among the groups that can give a good account of themselves in 1973 are those related to the energy crisis; the reawakening laggards such as steels, chemicals, and insurance issues; and those which stand to benefit most from the increase in business capital spending and stepped-up foreign trade.

The intense atmosphere along the labor front in the new year could also attract investors to the stocks of concerns dealing in equipment that would cut back excessive labor costs.

Promising though the stock market outlook may be at this transition period—1972 into 1973—the staff of Babson's Reports is of the opinion that investors should employ a healthy measure of conservatism in their investment moves.

Resolve, for instance, not to chase stocks which have already gone whizzing upward; try to operate on a sensible investment game plan. Give due consideration to the fundamental quality of investment selections and to securing at least a reasonable degree of diversification for your portfolio. In addition, keep on hand some investment reserves at all times.

As Ben Franklin Said: "Jackpot!"

By CARLTON SMITH

You are looking, let's say, for a good way to make money without working for a living—and you would prefer not to pay income tax on it, since paying taxes is very boring.

The impossible dream? No, a young man well known to the Internal Revenue Service put it together, though his reluctance to pay income tax got him into quite an argument with the IRS.

Donald let us call him, was employed some time ago by a manufacturer of slot machines. He applied himself, and learned his job well. Subsequently, he found himself living abroad, and in his visits to the service clubs in various U.S. military installations, he should he find clinking and clanking away but the very slot machines he had earlier been helping to make.

For the next six years, Donald made a comfortable living by inserting coins in the slot machines, tinkering a bit, pulling the handle, and waiting for the inevitable shower of silver. Ben Franklin, or somebody, said something about knowledge being money.

By act of Congress, the income of U.S. citizens who earn their living abroad is tax free, up to $20,000. But this applies only to earned income. If you are unfortunate enough to have income from investments, or if you are a divorcee with a generous alimony settlement, or otherwise do not earn what is coming in, your income is taxable.

Taxpayers have always been advised that gambling winnings are not earned income, and hence taxable. Donald, however, maintained that he was working for a living. Pulling slot machine handles all night long is hard work, after all. The IRS said his money wasn't earned income, Donald said it was—and so they all went to court.

There Donald said that he certainly hadn't been gambling. He knew how to do certain things to the slot machines to make them pay off, he pointed out, and he'd simply made the rounds of the machines, much as a repairman would. A job. Earned income, right?

Ahem, said the IRS. Section 911(b) tells us that earned income is "compensation for personal services actually rendered." This means that you render someone a service sufficiently valuable that they are grateful for it, and pay you. Had Donald rendered anyone a service? His pay came from a machine. Are we asked to believe that Donald was rendering these machines a service—one for which they were grateful, and so compensated him for it?

Don't quibble, said the court. Donald's income came from "the diligent application of an unusual skill or knowledge," which enabled him to extract money from these machines wherever he could find them. He didn't win the money in a game of chance, and he didn't receive it as a return on capital invested in anything. The conclusion: It must have been earned income.

That earlier decision by a tax court was recently affirmed by the Court of Appeals, and the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, reporting the case, says the intent of Congress is clear.

Reception To Honor Pioneer Resident

Elmer G. Frasier, southeast of the city, will be honored Sunday, Dec. 31, at an open house reception in commemoration of his 90th birthday, from 2 to 4:30 p.m. The event will be held in the home of one of his daughters, Mrs. W.C. Epperson, 1900 N. Nelson, and friends are invited to attend.

Frasier, born Dec. 31, 1882 in Gashen, Ark., came to the Panhandle in 1911 with his late parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Frasier, settling on a farm at Kingsmill.

He was married to Miss Alice Gray, in 1915 in Miami, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. N.A. Gray of Miami. They are the parents of five children, Mrs. W.E. Boudreau of Amarillo, L.D. Frasier, Augura Calif., Mrs. Claudine Balch, and Mrs. Betty Epperson, both of Pampa, and Gordon Frasier of Albuquerque, N.M. They also have 17 grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

The Frasier's are members of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ and Senior Citizens Club.

And it's all over an ugly refrigerator

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune, News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Six months ago a married couple we know split up. The wife sold all the furniture, so we bought their large new refrigerator, and I let her have my older, smaller one.

Five weeks later this couple went back together again. The wife had told her husband that we had agreed to return their refrigerator if they ever decided to reconcile. (This is not true.)

Well, we didn't want to make a big stink, so we agreed to return their refrigerator and take our old one back.

I had theirs delivered, and when ours arrived I was horrified! The wife had painted, "I AM UGLY" on the door of the refrigerator in bright blue enamel!

I called her up and asked her about it. She said, "Go to h—, you fat b—!"

Abby, we didn't have to sell her refrigerator back to her, we did it as a favor to her. Now, we've been getting vulgar letters and crank phone calls from her, and when we pass her on the road she makes obscene gestures. (She's 22 years old.)

The police suggest we sign a complaint against her. We are easy-going people and don't want to cause trouble. We just want to be left alone. Don't say, "talk to the husband." He's henpecked.

Any suggestions?

MRS. M.

DEAR MRS. M.: If she's annoying you, by all means sign a complaint. The poor woman sounds disturbed to me.

DEAR ABBY: Something has bugged me for a long time. Maybe you can put me straight on it.

It irritates me when my grown, married children who have their own homes just walk right in without knocking or calling—and sometimes without even speaking.

I would not do that to them as I respect their privacy enough to knock on their door.

Am I just a selfish person to resent this invasion of my privacy? And why do grown children do this?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: It's habit. Since your home was once THEIR home, even though they have their own homes now, they feel that what's yours is still theirs.

If you are bugged by their lack of consideration for your privacy, why not lay it on the line and get it over with?

DEAR ABBY: I have an experience I would like to share with other frustrated parents.

When our kids were in high school we were quite strict. There were places they couldn't go, and things they couldn't do. They gave us the old line, "Everybody else is." We spent many uneasy hours wondering if perhaps we were depriving them of some harmless fun, but we stuck to our guns.

Now our children are grown and have families of their own, and each of them has come to me and said, "I'm glad you held us down when we were kids. If we didn't go along with the other kids we were chicken, but if Pop said "No," that settled it, and we were off the hook."

I asked, "Then why did you gripe so much because you couldn't do what the other kids could do?" They said, "Well, sometimes we didn't think we ought to, but we half wanted to. We would have done it if you had let us—and if we got in trouble, we would have blamed you, because you let us do it. Thanks, Mother, for not letting us get in trouble."

MRS. C. IN LISBON, N. H.

DEAR MRS. C.: Well said.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: This is the last day of the year for technical financial changes, time for that planned adjustment, closing of accounts, etc.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Clear the decks wherever you can. Don't be surprised at finding something you've overlooked that has to be caught in haste.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Claim what is yours if you're ever going to. The word you get in edgewise may be worth a hundred at some other time.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: It's a "lucky" sort of day, in which you attract the sort of experience you merit. There's relief from an old hindrance.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Cooperation is available on all sides, the likely predicament being that the day is too short for all the visits you'd like to make.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Home and property tend to bring added income. Your long-term diligence pays off in intangibles as well as useful material fact.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Comes now the moment of truth: You are apt to whatever level you have earned, and you owe it to yourself to begin broader planning.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: You are apt to be burdened with knowledge you'd just as soon not have. Your friends have much to say on all subjects.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Get out of public view. Your connections come up with interesting possibilities for distinct and early rewards.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Second thoughts are the order of the day, with various bits of information arriving late or just now being recognized.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Get out and go, seek assistance from official sources, arbiters, experts. You can evaluate later what you've gathered early.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: This seems to be a day for important contacts, even familiar associates going over an old story have a new thought to offer.

Today's hand is taken from the finals of the life master men's pairs. Play in this event is supposed to be of the highest order, but South's play at five diamonds can be taken as a model of what not to do.

He started out right by winning the heart lead. At trick two he led a spade to dummy's king. East took his ace and led back the three of clubs. South won in dummy; led a diamond and finessed his jack. West won and led back the jack of clubs to South's king. South ruffed a heart; came back to his hand with the queen of spades; ruffed another heart with dummy's nine of trumps; ruffed a spade back to his hand; led and ruffed his last heart with dummy's last trump.

East overruffed with the seven-spot. Remember, South had used up the nine earlier in the play. Then East led a fourth spade and West was able to score his king of trumps on an over-ruff to set South two tricks.

Let's see what South did wrong. To start with, he should have played his ace of diamonds at trick two. That would have produced an honor from West whereupon South should have played his king of clubs; a club-to-dummy's ace; a ruff of a third club and the play of a second trump.

This same line should have been followed after East was obliging enough to lead back a club, and finally, if South had just held back dummy's nine of trumps for the ruff of the last heart he would still have made his contract.

Telephone Climber Likes Outside Work

By DICK HENDRICKSON
Elyria Chronicle-Telegram Writer

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—Women's liberationists seem to be "out to cut their own throats," says Janis Kay Orner, who recently entered the once all-male ranks of telephone pole climbers.

"There's nothing better than having the guy pay for everything," says the 20-year-old former operator for Northern Ohio Telephone Co.

Since it wasn't women's lib, what prompted her to take up the new job?

"I just like to be outside," she says. "It's a change of pace."

The company recently opened its repairmen's ranks to women. Although the firm has one other on the job at Oberlin, Miss Orner is the first in this area.

"This day and age I guess it's one of those things," says one of her supervisors, Paul Robuck of Norwalk. "They seem to be working out. They're doing their jobs."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Old Receiving Blankets Used as Diapers, Quilts

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My solution to the problem of what to do with an oversupply of baby receiving blankets was to use them as night diapers. They are so wonderfully absorbent. I also used some to line quilts I made for baby's bed. Using two alike makes a quilt with a pretty lining that is very warm next to baby.—HELEN

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am fortunate to have my grandmother's oak hat rack with a mirror. It is about 80 years old and has numerous nicks and scratches. This rack was evidently not taken down when the wall was painted many times. There are several colors of paint splattered and smeared along the edges. How can I remove this old paint and either touch up the nicks or refinish the rack without ruining its antique value?—MRS. S. W.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the economy size packages of plastic wrap which is wound on a larger cardboard tube and does not fit in my regular dispenser. The tube is the right length but too big around.—THELMA

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for those bothered with animals getting into their trash cans. I, too, had that problem until I bought a large plastic garbage can with a snap-on lid. A large black heavy-duty trash bag is put into it with about 10 inches left to fold back over the rim. Fill the bag through the week and on pickup day remove the lid, gather together the top of the bag and tie with the fastener that came with it. The whole can can be set out. It is easy for the bag to be lifted out and dumped into the truck. If the can has to be left out overnight the lid is snapped on. If a metal can is used, the lid can be held on with a rope, chain or straightened-out coat hanger and then a piece of wire used to hold it together. Hook whatever is used through the handles on the sides and the lid, too. This may seem quite a bother but so is picking up and resacking trash that might have blown around. Remember to remove the lid early in the morning if the can is left outside the night before garbage collection.—LINDA

DEAR POLLY—If your kitchen is not as up-to-date as it might be and you would like to make your wood cabinet doors and drawer fronts more attractive, cover them with that pretty adhesive backed paper that comes in all colors and patterns. Your kitchen will assume a new look and gaiety.—KAREN

'Peace Is At Hand' Fizzling Out Fast

The only trouble with Henry Kissinger's statement some eight weeks ago that "Peace is at hand" in Vietnam was that most people were so elated they never thought to ask: Which hand?

Like the elusive pea under the shell (to continue the image of sleight-of-handmanship), what the public thought was there turns out not to be there at all. And like the victims of that carnival game, a lot of Americans are resentful and feel that they have been had.

But had by whom? For those who never did, do not now and never will like Richard Nixon, the answer is easy. For those who forgive all trespasses except those committed by their own country, the answer is also easy.

Obviously, the President encouraged the belief that peace was imminent for purely political advantage. Then, bolstered by his landslide re-election victory, he proceeded to adopt a harder line toward Hanoi, raising new conditions unacceptable to them.

Unfortunately, there is just enough evidence, just enough rumors and leaks from sources close to the negotiations, to lend credence to this charge, and Americans, who have been deceived before, are again wondering whom to believe and whom to trust.

One thing is certain, and that is that the disappointment runs very deep. Yet it must be remembered that it was Hanoi, not Washington, who first broke the news that an agreement was ready to be signed and who, in fact, set a deadline of Oct. 30 for that signing. It was this that led to Kissinger's famous appearance on nationwide television.

Since the North Vietnamese could hardly be desirous of enhancing Mr. Nixon's already favorable re-election prospects, it can only be concluded that their aim was to sweep the administration into a settlement on a wave of public euphoria in this country.

At least, this conclusion is as credible as any other. On the other hand, Kissinger contributed to that euphoria by minimizing the seriousness of the issues that remained to be settled—perhaps in "one more session" of three or four days.

In the light of the new impasse in Paris and the resumption of bombing and mining, those points could not have been so minor. Either that or new questions, or old ones thought to have been settled, have been introduced by one or both sides—particularly those concerning the extent of "sovereignty" of the Thieu government in Saigon and the presence of North Vietnamese troops below the demilitarized zone.

Thus we are back at the far end of the tunnel again. The light seen in October has not quite gone out but it has dimmed exceedingly. The realization is sad enough at this holiday season. Coming so soon after hopes were raised so high, it is heartbreaking.

Short of turning the schools into maximum-security prisons, instead of their present minimum-security prisons, instead of their present minimum-security status, we suspect the school men will come up with the usual bureaucratic proposal—hire more personnel (either teachers or guards).

We think there might be a chance for improvement if compulsory attendance were eliminated, and young people were allowed to take employment where they could learn. This, of course, means eliminating child-labor legislation. Certainly there would be no great rush of children from the schools—to many people are convinced they and their children need schooling. But those in schools would be there because they—or their parents—wanted the schools.

Then if the parents were responsible for paying at least part of the cost of schooling, we think the parents would take more interest in what happened in the schools, and would attempt to protect their own financial investment in the schools. There's nothing like self-interest to encourage people to take a hand in event of pilferage, vandalism or physical violence. If the parents did not take such interest, the school people could use expulsion or suspension from the non-compulsory schools.

We think it would help, but would not expect perfection in his world of imperfect human beings.

It's wise to apologize to a man if you're wrong—and to a woman if you're right. —Calgary Albertan

Question Box

QUESTION: People around the nation are becoming more and more concerned about "Blackboard Jungle" conditions in school. Juvenile crime seems to be great around many public schools; not so great around private and church schools. Would a study by school officials do any good? Will anything do any good?

ANSWER: We have great doubt that an investigation by people involved in the government school system will come up with any real solution. There's an old saying about a person not being able to see the forest for the trees, if he is set down in the midst of the woods. Few individuals are able to see their own errors or the errors in the system in which they are integral parts.

We are not sure anyone would be able to come up with an answer acceptable to the politicians running the political schools. That the problems are far less severe in the non-government schools should give the investigators at least part of the answer.

For the non-government schools are not based on compulsion—other than the fact that the state people in all their wisdom have decreed that every youngster within an age group must attend approved schools for a certain period of years or otherwise meet state requirements for training outside of school.

It seems natural that some young people who are compelled to attend schools in which they have no interest should be resentful. Coerced into a regimented existence and denied opportunity to do other things which they may be interested in, such as seeking gainful employment, these resentful young men and women are likely to take it out on some of their fellows who are satisfied to be in the system, or on the teachers or the building.

Further encouraged by a court system which has made it difficult, if not impossible, for those in authority to punish malefactors, young people become even more belligerent. From this reporter's experience in negotiating with Asian Communists, it is clear the North Vietnamese and Americans have quite different aims. We negotiate to end a war. To Communists, as the top party man in a major Asian country told me some years ago, negotiations are a continuation of war and set the stage for future victories.

"You Americans," he said, "think of war and peace as separate operations. To us, peace is a continuation of war. The terms of any peace treaty must therefore include points which make it possible for Communists to achieve what was impossible before."

The North Vietnamese, in a number of private conversations with foreign associates, have stated that the talks are a means of giving the

Kissinger Misses Red 'Peace' Aims

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Henry Kissinger's report on the peace talks with Hanoi indicated that, despite his experience, he does not understand Communist negotiating techniques or objectives.

This is strange. For Kissinger himself, on several occasions in the past in talking of the Soviet Union, has described Red strategy with precision and understanding.

H. L. Hunt Writes

DIVISION MUST BE HEALED

Much has been said in recent years about divisions splitting various groups of citizens of the United States. We have always been a diverse people, holding many varying views and striving for different goals. This diversity has been a source of strength under our Republic, with its personal enterprise and individual initiative, profit-motive system.

It was not until ancient, alien ideologies began to infiltrate, especially from Marxist intellectuals, largely from Europe, that our diversity began to be really harmful to the majority of our people. Citizens of Republic USA held, and still hold, a Constructive philosophy, for the most part, one which stresses creating new wealth and lifting society upwards as a whole.

The alien ideas from Europe, which our forefathers had sacrificed much to escape from, stress redistribution of wealth rather than creativity for the benefit of the good working people. The result can only be the class warfare that Marx hoped for, which means poverty for almost everybody, periodic food shortages and production breaks down, and general stagnation, except for the elite commissars at the top.

Our growing divisions between classes and citizens should be stopped and they must be healed if our Republic is to endure. This can only be done by many crusades for Freedom and Law-Aid, by restoring the drive for constructive progress for good working people, and by learning the truth about the mistakes of communist-socialist ideology in practice.

Most Diabetes Can Be Controlled

Dear Dr. Lamb—Why can't diabetes be cured? I am 62 and they just found out I have it. It did not show in the urine originally. I kept a constant check on my kidneys, and over a year ago diabetes was even ruled out. Then all at once my urine showed 4+ and I was given a tolerance test and the blood-sugar was 595. I was placed in a hospital, and they put me on insulin and an 800-calorie diet to reduce.

The insulin injection made my legs sore, and it keeps getting worse. From the treatment I am getting, my blood is staying down around 110 or close to that. I also have diverticulosis and my diet calls for lots of vegetables, and yet I have to eat to balance the calorie intake with my medicine, as I understand it. We know of no one in our family who had diabetes, or at least we never heard of it. Is it true, one cannot undergo surgery?

Dear Reader—Most cases of diabetes cannot be cured, but they can be controlled. Although there are several complex mechanisms which can cause the blood sugar to be markedly elevated, the common one associated with diabetes is related to inadequate production or utilization of insulin, a hormone from the pancreas. Insulin or similar medicines are given to enable the body to utilize the blood sugar, glucose. Without normal insulin action the inability to use blood glucose causes the sugar to accumulate in the blood to very high levels. Once the level exceeds about 170, sugar spills out in the urine, since the kidney's filtering mechanism is set to eliminate accumulations of sugar above this level. If you lose too much sugar in the urine, you begin to lose weight, because the calories in the food converted to blood glucose are lost through the kidneys. The kidneys need water to wash the sugar out in the urine, causing the person to pass lots of urine frequently. To replace the water that's lost, one must drink lots of water. Therefore, the symptoms of diabetes are thirst, frequent urination, and weight loss with a large appetite. The individual eats a lot of food but still loses weight because the food energy is lost in the urine. I am surprised you hadn't already lost some weight with the high blood sugar level that you report in your letter.

The diet is very important in the treatment of diabetes, and you're correct in saying that it must be balanced against the medicines you're taking. In individuals with milder forms of diabetes than you apparently have, weight reduction alone by proper diet oftentimes lowers the blood sugar to acceptable levels.

Diabetes does seem to have a tendency to be inherited, although many individuals do have it without any known previous family history.

Inside Washington

Shot Down, McGovern Still Riding High

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Sen. George McGovern, being the self-sanctified leftist that he is, is giving no indication of heeding the advice, but some good friends are bluntly telling him to climb off his high horse and come down to earth.

This realistic counsel is very timely and much needed. Despite the South Dakota radical's historically-crushing election defeat and subsequent virtual repudiation by the Democratic National Committee, he is still acting as if he were the party's standard-bearer and trying to throw his weight around in its affairs.

That he has gotten nowhere doesn't seem to faze him. Self-righteously he avows, "I'm sticking by my principles and policies because they're right. I don't see myself as the loser. I see the country as the loser."

Revealingly indicative of McGovern's haughty egotism are the following: "Secretly planning with certain other militant Senate doves to launch a rancorous fight against President Nixon's Vietnam peace efforts on the ground they are 'phony and fraudulent,'" and to cut off all funds for the conflict. Declains McGovern, "Nixon's Vietnam policy is murderous, inhumane and barbaric...and one of the darkest chapters in American history."

Accepting some $15,000 in privately-raised funds for the avowed purpose of enabling McGovern to employ additional personnel for his Washington and South Dakota offices. Previously, when it came to light that some Republicans had accepted money for the same reason, McGovern bellowed to high heaven in indignant condemnation.

Maintains McGovern in unctuous justification, "Once you've run for the presidency, you have a following that needs to be nourished and kept alive...These people believe in you and shouldn't be dropped." With his deeply ingrained self-importance, it's a cinch he would be the last to drop 'em.

For one thing he faces a tough and highly uncertain reelection fight in South Dakota two years hence. In his recent nationwide campaigning, his home folks got a look at him they had never had before.

Which may well explain why he lost his own state by such a big margin.

Why Private Funds? Aside from the debatable ethics of the $15,000 fund is the highly moot question of what it's really for!

McGovern has a clerical allowance of around $225,000—based on his state's population. That is in addition to his $42,500 salary and numerous perquisites, allowances and other benefits. Further, his staff is as big as his colleagues from the same area.

They're not complaining, and they don't have private funds. Neither did McGovern, until the $15,000 was raised for him—by his great friend and multi-millionaire benefactor, Stewart Mott, 34-year-old bachelor heir of an $800 million General Motors fortune, who anted up $400,000 for McGovern's campaign.

A gilded do-gooder crusader, Mott engineered the private fund-raising affair. It took the form of a "by invitation only" $100-a-plate dinner in a swank establishment in New York. McGovern and his wife attended, so obviously the occasion and its purpose had his complete approval.

In Mott's remarks to the guests, he said flatly the proceeds of the dinner would be used to finance additional personnel for McGovern's Washington and South Dakota offices. According to Mott, they are sorely undermanned, and with McGovern being a "national figure and leader," patently he needed more help.

Needless to say, McGovern did not disclaim this. He graciously accepted both the rhetorical compliments and the monetary receipts.

Eagleton All Over Again McGovern's attempted last-minute intervention at the meeting of the Democratic National Committee had all the earmarks of his two-timing antics on Sen. Eagleton. Following is his circuitous trail:

Shortly after the Nov. 7 election, McGovern told newsmen he was vigorously for the retention of his handpicked chairman, Mrs. Jean Westwood, Utah, and was determined to "do whatever I can to make sure that wreckers like Barkan (head of COPE) and Meany (head of AFL-CIO) don't come back into a dominant role in the Democratic party."

But several weeks later when it was patently evident Mrs. Westwood was headed for the ax, McGovern let it be known that Robert Strauss, Dallas attorney and the Meany-Barkan choice for national chairman, was "acceptable" to him.

That approval was effectively used in the successful drive to elect Strauss as national chairman. At no time was it disclaimed by McGovern.

But in the midst of the National Committee meeting, after a move to unseat Mrs. Westwood was narrowly defeated and it appeared the fight might be wide open, McGovern suddenly stuck his oar into the fray.

He began telephoning committee members urging Sargent Shriver as an "eminently qualified and desirable" compromise.

This undercover maneuver got nowhere in a big way. McGovern's attempted intervention was brushed off fast and curtly. About the only thing it accomplished was to arouse the indignation and resentment of both factions. All were wrothy—and furiously made no bones about it.

As one outraged party leader remarked, "This man McGovern's gall is monumental. He is either suffering from delusions of grandeur or is just plain nuts. Maybe he's both."

In the backstage finagling of an all-out attack on President Nixon's peace efforts in Vietnam, McGovern is keeping the heat on because of being convinced the President is "pretending" and that the end of the conflict is far from imminent.

Declains McGovern angrily: "During the campaign, I wanted to box Nixon in to the point where he would have to either end the war or admit he was a fraud. I continue to feel that this country is never going to get back together until we confront squarely and clearly the immorality of what we're doing in Vietnam."

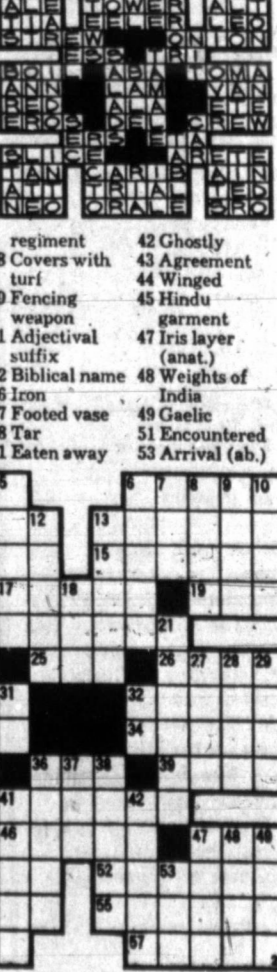

Look who's talking about morality—after Eagleton and other duplicities.

What Is the True 'Will of God'?

By REV. DAVID POLING

The teaching of the church is called theology and those professionally responsible are known as Christian educators.

Pastors, priests, preachers, clergymen—all are theologians and all have regular tasks in the teaching of the whole church.

Christian educators concentrate on the parish level and give particular leadership to young people and children in the church school. And that is a tough assignment these days.

Like all education, Christian nurture is going through the squeeze and upheaval of change. And children have their own world-heaven view from the play-pen, sandbox, and jungle gym surroundings. One Christian educator dared to ask students of TV watching age who God is and these responses were gathered:

"I don't know who God is. We're not up to that yet."

"God is who tells you when you have to die and does not matter how old you are, either. You have to do it."

"God is someone you can hear inside and you feel all over but you can't see him or touch him. But that isn't so important."

"God is a spirit, not like a ghost or scary or anything, but like a big person who isn't really there."

"God is whatever you think he is, but not a girl."

War tragedy and accidental death force one to rethink his ideas about God and his working papers in theology. This is true of the man in the pulpit as well as the family in the pew.

Last month two brothers, ages 15 and 17, were electrocuted while cleaning a swimming pool near Buffalo, N.Y. At the funeral for the two boys, the parish priest consoled the family with these thoughts:

"This is the way God wants to show His glory, His power. He is the owner of this world and these lives. He can take them when He wants. Our faith knows this. The world is a garden and we are the flowers in it. Just as we would, God looked for the best, the most beautiful."

"He took 15 and 17 years to find out what flowers to pick. He found a corner where the two most beautiful flowers grew and He took them to Himself. He is not unfair. That is the way He is showing His love."

To grow in our theological perspective is to move beyond our childish concepts, no matter how touching or humorous, to a more adult view of life and the world. Too often when faced with accident or disease or the foolishness of war, Christians have said, "Well, it must be God's will." Every happenstance—disaster, cloudburst and landslide—becomes "an act of God" which is surely the final cop-out for our insurance theologians and their policy protection.

Pierra Teilhard De Chardin, scientist and theologian, urged his friends and readers to accept the universe with all its aches, sorrows and heartbreaks, knowing that the ultimate resolution was in the hands of God. Yet he urged man to assume the God-given role of co-creator, of seeking health for the sick and prevention against alarm and accident. This was truly the "will of God."

Denominational Ratios Measured in Congress

NEW YORK (AP)—Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians make up the lion's share of the new Congress which convenes Jan. 3, the proportion of them exceeding their part of the population. Roman Catholics and Baptists in Congress just about match their percentage of the citizenry. But Lutherans fall short of doing so.

Another aspect that shows up is that while most Protestants in Congress tend to be closely divided between Democrats and Republicans, most Lutheran representatives are Republicans and most Baptists are Democrats. So are most Jews and Roman Catholics.

They show that 115 Roman Catholics in the two houses make up the biggest contingent of any one denomination. But Protestants of various denominations collectively hold far more seats—about 400. More than half of them—228—are Methodists, Presbyterians or Episcopalians.

Although the country's 3.4 million Episcopalians are only a tiny segment of the population—less than 2 per cent—66 of them hold about 13 per cent of the seats in the House and Senate. Similarly, the 84 Methodists and 78 Presbyterians in the two houses occupy a somewhat larger proportion of Congress than their part of the population, although less strikingly so than for the Episcopalians.

Of the vast body of Baptists in the country, more than 20 million of them, 55 hold seats in Congress, all but 16 of them Democrats. Most Jews in Congress—11 out of 14—are Democrats, as are a majority of Roman Catholics, 84 of 115. All four Eastern Orthodox members of Congress are Democrats.

Totals of seats held by members of the various denominations include:

Roman Catholic, 115; Methodist, 84; Presbyterian, 78; Episcopal, 66; Baptist, 55; United Church, 27; Lutheran, 16; Jewish, 14; Latter-day Saints, 10; Christian Church (Disciples), 9; Unitarian-Universalist, 9; Churches of Christ, 7; Christian Science, 5; Eastern Orthodox, 4; Society of Friends, 4; Evangelical Free Church, 2; and eight other small denominations, one each.

World Christians Escape 'Denominational Ghettos'

NEW YORK (AP)—Although American churches remain trapped in their "denominational ghettos," Christians elsewhere are uniting, says a top churchman from India.

"It's happening irresistibly," he says. "The spirit is moving with power, drawing us together."

A.C. Dharmaraj, chief executive officer of the recently merged Church of North India, says a main reason believers of the East are outdistancing the West in achieving unity is their keener sensitivity to God's spirit.

"In the East, the spirit makes its appeal in our thought, our contemplation, our prayer," he says. "That is the secret. That is why the East is able to react more surely, quickly and intensely than the technical-minded Western world."

Whatever the cause, unifications of once-divided denominations have proliferated in Africa, the Far East and Asia, including the merging of six North India denominations into a single body.

a demonstration of our spiritual unity is gripping churches nearly all over the world," Dharmaraj said in an interview.

He said divided denominationalism, transplanted abroad by American missions, has been a serious hindrance to the faith in many lands, a source of bewilderment to people who ask, "Is your Christ divided?"

"Try to explain it, and they simply can't comprehend what you're talking about," he said. "You become a laughingstock in dialogue with the intellectual community. They make fun of you."

Dharmaraj, 60, a slender, swift-speaking man, said there are 1,487 separate denominational mission agencies in the world, 148 of them operating in India—"splinter groups working to perpetuate their vested interests."

"A rat race is going on among missions," he said.

Asked why divided church organizations persist in the United States, he said ecclesiastical dignitaries recognize the essential oneness of the gos-

Ministry Is Frontier of Great Danger

Selling Bibles can be dangerous. So can extending friendship to a prisoner. Or even entering an empty church. In all of these circumstances, religious workers in recent times have encountered threats or death. The incidents reflect what philosopher-psychologist Erich Fromm calls the "mood of violence" in America.

The unusual aspect of these cases, however, was that each involved church people seeking to help others or do good, but as a result met with fury and bloodshed.

Briefly, here are some of the details:

In Los Gatos, Calif., a Roman Catholic priest, the Rev. Henri Tomei, 68, entered St. Mary's Church on a midweek day to hear confessions from anyone waiting to make them.

A church secretary, alerted by sounds of a commotion, hurried into the sanctuary and said a young man was kicking and hitting the priest. The assailant fled. The priest died of stab wounds.

In Camp Hill, Ala., Tom C. Hollingsworth, 24, a Southern Baptist Seminary student working as a summer Bible salesman, met two youths who said they would buy a Bible if he would drive them home to get the money.

Later, Hollingsworth's body was found in a heavily wooded area. His head has been bashed in and his supply of Bibles scattered about.

Two teen-agers were sentenced to prison this fall on their pleas of guilty to murdering the seminarian—to rob him of a few dollars.

In Hickory, N.C., F. O. Turner and his wife, members of Penelope Baptist Church, had become involved in the church's prison ministry to worship services and visits in private homes.

Turner also taught inmates once a month at a Newton, N.C., prison camp.

On a Sunday last spring, the Turners took an inmate, Douglas Wiles, 21, considered a "model" prisoner, to morning worship, to a restaurant for lunch and then home for some desert.

Amid the afternoon pleasantries, authorities reported, the prisoner suddenly produced a pistol he had found in a glove compartment of a relative's car and shot and killed both Turner and his wife.

The prisoner, who would have been eligible for parole soon, now will be behind bars indefinitely for the new crime.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

By FATHER FRANCIS J. HYNES

Christ's Answer to Anger Aesop offers us a fable wherein the wind and sun are watching a man on earth. The wind says, I bet you I can make him take off that coat. "The sun answers, "It's a bet." So brother wind blows and blows and wears himself out. The man on earth just puts up his coat collar and wraps his arms around himself.

The said brother sun, "Now watch." Sincerely, he began to shine on the gentleman and in five minutes the latter was carrying his coat.

One day on a mountainside, Our Lord put new dress to this old fable. He said: "Blessed are the meek for they shall possess the land." The Master is not talking about real estate. He is saying that blessed are those who have their temper, their anger in control, for they shall possess their own hearts and the hearts of those they live with.

So many of us can think back to moments when we saw old friendships broken over words spoken in anger. That was the moment for meekness, and then suddenly it was too late. Perhaps the two old friends had the unfortunate idea that meekness is weakness, and no one wants to look weak. The truth lies in exactly the opposite direction. Meekness is the terrible strength found in a whipped and bloodied Christ on his way to Calvary. Meekness would make time for him to say: "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Meekness would give Christ the strength to suffer the taunts of the bad thief. His meekness would possess the heart of the good thief. Somehow, somehow, some place, that poor criminal had learned the heart of his attitude and Christ would say to him, "This day you will be with me in paradise."

This thing of meekness was not unknown system to the young men and women who died for Christ on the sands of the Roman Colosseum. That was their only, their God-powerful weapon, and they used it for their very eternal glory. And, in the history of time, when the endless crowds of pagans slammed their spears at the gates of Rome, Rome ultimately had nothing left but this meekness, thing, and yet, with it, Christian Rome would gradually absorb the wild heathen of the North and turn them into the glorious peoples of the great centuries of art and painting, poetry and law.

Christ, in his wisdom, did not say, "It would be nice if you would learn of me because I am meek." No, for this business of living with one another, he gave it as an order, "Learn of me because I am meek and humble of heart."

Most women know that this is the only way to make a home for a husband and children who really do not want to go anywhere else; they have no place else to go. Perhaps, most men know that this is the price of making a home for a wife and children who really have no place else to go: who want to go no place else.

Learn of me, say Our Lord, and possess each other's hearts.

Ed Lehnick Named To Panhandle Hall

AMARILLO—Ed Lehnick, track coach and athletic director at Pampa High School, has been selected to be inducted into the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame as the track coach of the year in the Panhandle in 1972.

Carl Brown of West Texas State is the track athlete of the year in the Panhandle. Lehnick coached the Harvesters to their second district championship in track in history last spring.

Under his tutelage, Pampa won five of the eight meets in which it entered: its own Top O' Texas meet, Perryton, Dumas, El Paso and the district meet in Amarillo.

Both of Lehnick's relay teams—the 440-yard and the mile won their respective races at the regional meet in Lubbock and moved on to state. At the state meet the sprint relay finished fifth and the mile relay placed seventh.

Enroute to the state finals, Lehnick's tracksters set five school records and tied three others. New records came in the 440-yard relay (41.9), mile relay (3:17.4), 880 (1:59.5), 440 (48.3) and the intermediate hurdles (41.0).

Records tied were the 100-yard dash mark of 9.6; the 220 best of 21.8 and the pole vault record of 12'9".

Bryant Says He's 'Ashamed'

DALLAS (AP) — Alabama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant says he's "kind of ashamed" that he's never beaten Darrell Royal in the three times their football teams have met.

But, he chuckled, he expects little change when the Crimson Tide tackles Texas New Year's Day in the Cotton Bowl.

"I know who's going to win," quipped Bryant. "He is. Royal's response was the equivalent of 'horse feathers'."

"I tell you what—hell—we haven't played but three times, and we had one tie. That's nothing. You make it sound like it's a one-sided deal," said Royal.

"There's nothing one-sided about that thing." The light hearted sparring match came via telephone Thursday on the even of their departure for Dallas.

"Actually," said Bryant, "we've had good games." "We've had hellacious ball games," replied Royal.

This is the second time Lehnick has been picked to be inducted into the PSHOF. He was selected previously in 1960 as football coach of the year while coaching at Lefors.

Brown won three Missouri Valley Conference hurdles crowns last year for the Buffs. During the indoor season he won the 50-yard highs in 6.1 and the 50-yard intermediates in 6.0. When the outdoor MVC meet came along he took the 120-yard meet came along he took the 120-yard highs in record time.

Brown, a native of Van Vleet, is a junior this year and has two more seasons ahead of him. He also played split end for Gene Mayfield's football squad this past season.

Bluebonnet Bowl

Jones

Louisiana State (9-1-1)

After a sensational start, LSU stumbled near the end of the season, losing 35-21 to Alabama, and suffering through a 3-3 tie with Florida. The redoubtable Bert Jones is the spark of the Tigers' offense. He threw for 14 touchdowns this season, half of them going to receiver Gerald Keigley. LSU's most effective running back is Chris Dantin, who gained 707 yards over the season and averaged 4.3 yards per carry. The defense is good if not great. Linebacker Warren Capone and tackle John Wood are the standouts there.

(Dec. 30; television: 7:30 p.m. EST on the Hughes network.)

Graham

Tennessee (9-2)

Defense is the shibboleth at Tennessee. The Vols were consistently third or fourth in the nation in that department this season. They held the opposition to 7.6 points per game. NEA second-team All-American Conrad Graham is the star of that unit. Quarterback Condredge Holloway, with a 61 per cent completion average, was named sophomore of the year in the Southwest Conference. Ricky Townsend is an oddity only on first appearance. He kicks field goals barefoot. Kicks well enough to be an All-American at it, booting good-ones—12 in 19 tries. Tennessee lost to Auburn (10-6) and Alabama (17-10).

Prediction: Tennessee 14, LSU 7

Roger Named To Start

DALLAS (AP) — Reckless Roger Staubach, Dallas' scrambling quarterback, will be at the helm Sunday when the Cowboys collide with Washington for the National Football Conference championship.

Coach Tom Landry, citing Staubach's dazzling performance against San Francisco last week, tapped the former Heisman Trophy winner Thursday to start in place of Craig Morton.

"Our decision was made primarily on Roger's performance against the 49ers," Landry told a news conference after Thursday's practice session.

"We feel that even though Craig has done a tremendous job all year for us and put us in the playoffs, we just feel that Roger's great performance against the 49ers pulled us really out of defeat and made it possible for us to go into this game."

Staubach, out most of the season with a shoulder separation, hurled two touchdown passes within a span of 38 seconds in the final quarter to propel Dallas to a 30-28 victory.

He entered the contest late in the third period with the Cowboys trailing 28-13 and on the verge of apparent defeat.

"We want to win this game and we have to make a decision based on what we think is best for this moment," Landry said in explaining his decision. The coach of the defending

Super Bowl champions stressed that Morton was not being demoted to No. 2 status, that his decision to go with Staubach was made "only for this particular game."

Morton quarterbacked the Cowboys against the Redskins twice this season. Dallas lost the first game but won the second.

Staubach captured the hearts of Cowboy fans with his scrambling runs last year as he guided Dallas to the Super Bowl and a 24-3 triumph over Miami. He was voted the game's most valuable player.

Before Thursday's announcement, Landry told a reporter:

"It's all whether you pick the fellow who put you in the playoffs (Morton) or whether you take the fellow responsible for you being in this game (the NFC title game)."

"It's a big decision to make. I think either of them can win for us. I'll just pick the one I think is right for the situation for everybody concerned."

Staubach lost the starting berth during the exhibition season when he suffered a shoulder separation. Morton took over and led the Cowboys to a 10-4 record and into the playoffs.

Although heavily booed at times by Dallas fans, Morton defeated Staubach in balloting for the most popular Cowboy by the team's followers.

"Morton, who sat out Super Bowl VI last year, said before Landry's decision that no matter which way it went, 'I've been there before.'"

He added: "I guess there will always be a controversy as long as Roger and I are on the same team. But I said before the season began it would take two quarterbacks to get us into the playoffs."

Harvesters Lose In Overtime, 62-60

ABILENE — Despite a 26-point output by Freddy Wilbon and a five-point third quarter advantage, the Pampa Harvesters lost to Snyder, 62-60, in first-round play in the Hardin Simmons Invitational High School Basketball Tournament last night in Abilene.

The defeat came in overtime as regulation play ended with the score knotted at 57-all.

Pampa trailed 14-11 at the end of the first quarter and 26-24 at the half. The Harvesters out-scored Snyder, 17 points to 10, however, in the third period to lead by five, 41-36.

Snyder came back in the fourth quarter to tie the game up and go on to win.

Wilbon led the Harvesters with his 26 points. Randy Warner was the second leading scorer for Pampa with 14; Steve Richardson added 9; Bill Simon made 6; A. J. Brewer hit for 3; and Ricky Van Smith made 2.

The Harvesters move into the consolation bracket tonight against the loser of the Abilene High-Wichita Falls Hirschi game played late last night.

Redskins, Miami Picked To Triumph

By HUBERT MIZELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Feeling about as secure as an opposing quarterback wearing Mean Joe Greene as a necklace, it looks to me like a Washington vs. Miami matchup in Super Bowl VII.

Then, it could be Pittsburgh vs. Dallas. Or the Redskins against the Steelers. Maybe even the Cowboys and the Dolphins in a Super Bowl rematch.

Nope. I'm going ahead with it. Here are Sunday's uncertainties:

MIAMI 17; PITTSBURGH 13 — It stacks up as a defensive earthshaker with the Dolphins having a sliver of an edge in the running game.

Now don't go calling out Franco's Italian Army. Rookie Harris is sensational, probably equal to Miami strongboy runner Larry Csonka. But, the edge might be the wide stuff of Mercury Morris.

If it comes down to a war of field goals, the thing could go into overtime since the feet of Miami's Garo Yepremian and the Steelers' Roy Gerela seem perfectly matched.

REDSKINS 28; COWBOYS 21; Dallas' defense isn't the Doomsday gang any more and Washington's over-the-hill troops know this may, for some, be the last shot at the big bonanza.

The quarterbacks, Bill Kilmer of Washington and the Cowboys' Roger Staubach, are dead even in passing ability and courage. Thus, the edge comes from the incredible running of Lawrence Brown.

North Carolina (10-1)

North Carolina, unbeaten in the Atlantic Coast Conference, lost only to powerful Ohio State, 29-14, this season. The defense, with five all-conference players including end Gene Brown and tackle Eric Hyman, registered two shutouts and held a third team to only a field goal during the last half of the season. North Carolina is a high-scoring team and is led by quarterback Nick Vidnovic, who threw 10 touchdown passes, and rusher Ike Oglesby. The offensive line is also a strong point, with All-American guard Ron Ruskack.

(Dec. 30; television: 1 p.m. EST on CBS)

Texas Tech (8-3)

Texas Tech had some rough moments this year, but finished second in the tough Southwest Conference, anyway. It lost to league leader Texas, 25-20, to Arkansas, 24-14, and was run off the field by TCU, 31-7. Its defense seemed to falter in the latter part of the season, and must shore up to stop a good North Carolina offense. Quarterback Joe Barnes is the bulwark of the offense. He passed for 1142 yards and had a 51 per cent completion average. Tailback George Smith was a superb runner with 6.9 per carry average.

Prediction: North Carolina 21, Texas Tech 10

Scientists Urge Controls For New Psychosurgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — A panel of scientists has urged strict controls to guard against "unwarranted or incompetent" use of psychosurgery and electrical brain stimulation, two techniques aimed at treating certain psychiatric conditions.

Dr. Herbert G. Vaughn Jr. of the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York said the techniques still should be considered experiment. He said controls are needed to prevent abuses, while allowing for careful clinical evaluation of the effectiveness and safety of the treatments.

One use being explored for psychosurgery, a surgical technique that results in destruction of some brain tissue, is to control intractable violent behavior. Electrical brain stimulation is a non-surgical method of altering brain function. It is being explored as a possible way to treat blindness, intractable epilepsy, behavior problems and other psychiatric conditions.

Dr. Vaughn spoke this week at a special symposium on behavior control during the 139th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS).

Another speaker, Dr. Gerald L. Klerman, a Harvard psychologist, said society should begin now to plan to face possible major "social and moral dilemmas" that could arise from use of new and more versatile mind-altering drugs.

Dr. Vaughn urged an extensive, coordinated clinical research program, requiring "a major effort of federal support... to evaluate psychosurgery and electrical brain stimulation in comparison with more conventional treatments."

A LOT TO GIVE UP

Making New Year's Plans Brings Some Good Feelings

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — We have a different problem this New Year's.

Usually that is the day when everyone does a lot of soul-searching, and decides what to give up. Usually, if we are honest, we find much to give up.

This year, inflation and the course of events already have taken from us more than we feel we can afford to lose. The problem is to find something we can hold on to with both hands. However, despite the uneasy feeling I have that I am being robbed in some mysterious way — a feeling I suppose you have, too — I find there are still left to me a few things I might be better off without. They are mostly some picayune faults and bad habits — things we all have in plentiful supply.

So help me Hannah, I hereby resolve in 1973 to:

—Quit having so many late dates with Phyllis Diller. They are only making her yawn and putting dark circles under her bright eyes.

—Offer fewer possible winning plays to the Green Bay Packers pro football team. They are only helping the other teams to victory.

—Go to night clubs only during matinees. Then I can get home at dusk instead of dawn.

—Stop reading the last pages of mystery novels first. This only leaves me more confused when I get around to reading the whole book.

—Compose no more puppy love poems while under the influence of martinis. They only make my cat sick when I read them to her.

—Write my congressman more short letters and fewer long telegrams.

—Make no phone calls of free advice except to people who are glad to take them collect.

—Quit asking the check girl at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, "What's a pretty girl like you doing in a joint like this?"

—Stop snarling to strangers who step on my toes in the subway. "What's the trouble with you anyway, Mac? Do you need your feet to walk on—or the whole floor?"

—Make no more last wills and testaments when I'm angry at youth and in which I leave all my money to my cat and a frozen beef kidney to my daughter.

—Write no more anonymous letters to the boss asking for a merit raise.

—Ask God or the world for nothing in 1973 I can't digest, wear or profit my soul and heart with.

So help me Hannah!

Dependants Eligible For New Benefits

The veterans' wives, widows and children, who are eligible for VA educational assistance, may now take on-the-job training or apprenticeships in lieu of going to college, Jack Coker, Waco VA Regional Office director, pointed out this week.

A law approved by the President in October increased allowances for this type of training by nearly 48 per cent and broadened the types of training available under the Dependent's Educational Assistance program, Coker pointed out.

In addition to training wages paid by employers, VA now pays trainees a starting stipend of $160 per month. The old rate was $108.

During October, 102,000 veterans were taking on-the-job and apprenticeship training, but trainees under the Dependent's Education Program were limited to institutional training programs before the October law.

For job-training veterans, the starting allowance is $160 per month if he has no dependents. For those with one dependent, the allowance was raised from $120 to $179 monthly; with two dependents, from $133 to $196. For each additional dependent in excess of two, a veteran receives an additional $8.

The new public law (PL-92-540) also changed the rules on correspondence training to open this form of training to eligible wives and children, and to provide greater protection for trainees.

The law also permits greater flexibility in classroom for veterans in full-time farm cooperative training. Some of the required 440 annual classroom hours may be rescheduled provided enrollees spend at least 80 hours in classroom study in any three-month period, Coker explained.

Other members of the professional staff include: Bill McElroy, scout executive; Jim Blair, exploring executive, and David Bailey, district executive of the Adobe District.

Ken Berquist has joined the staff as district executive of the Buffalo Wallow District serving Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hemphill, Wheeler and Collingsworth Counties.

Other members of the professional staff include: Bill McElroy, scout executive; Jim Blair, exploring executive, and David Bailey, district executive of the Adobe District.

VA education benefits, including apprenticeship and other on-job training, are available to those who served at least 180 days, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955.

Scouts Make Staff Changes

A realignment of the Adobe Walls Boy Scout Council professional staff has been approved by the council's executive board.

The realignment was made to improve professional service to council volunteers, according to Bill McElroy, scout executive.

Dan Duggins, formerly Pioneer district executive, has been promoted to field director and will move to Pampa from Oklahoma.

Ken Berquist has joined the staff as district executive of the Buffalo Wallow District serving Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hemphill, Wheeler and Collingsworth Counties.

Other members of the professional staff include: Bill McElroy, scout executive; Jim Blair, exploring executive, and David Bailey, district executive of the Adobe District.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

John Wayne found he could quit cigarettes when it meant life or death! And so can all of us, but we usually fail to make our resolutions 100 percent. If you REALLY want to quit, you've done so already! For it's all in your mind! Follow the rules below!

CASE V-582: Harry D., aged 44, is a cigarette addict.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "is it wise to make New Year's Resolutions?"

"For most people fail to live up to them, don't they?"

"So their repeated backsliding merely deflates their ego all the worse, doesn't it?"

"But my physician says I MUST quit tobacco or I'll have a coronary attack one of these days."

"So how can I stick by my non-smoking resolution?"

HEED DR. JAMES

Dr. William James, Harvard's pioneer Applied Psychologist, urged us to make resolutions.

For he argued it takes an idea to be father of the deed.

True enough, most of us fail to live up to all of our good resolutions.

George Washington was once asked about lowering the high standards so more people would be free from their sense of failure at living up to those lofty expectations.

George Washington vetoed this easy compromise regarding idealism.

"Let us raise a standard," he said, "to which the wise and just can aspire!"

He didn't recommend compromising with bad habits or immorality and Satan.

If you wish to break your slavery to bad habits, like smoking, drinking, obesity, etc., then follow these salient rules:

revive your past habit of reaching out to sample the cigarette, bottle or foodstuff.

Just as you subconsciously pick up a pencil while at the phone and then doodle, so the visible food or tobacco item will also subconsciously revive the bad habit you are trying to break.

(3) Substitute a similar action that was a part of your former slave pattern.

For example, carry candy coated gum; then shake out a Chiclet and chew lustily, for this will involve the hand, arm and mouth that you employed as a cigarette slave.

If you crave the burn of liquor, shift to a soft drink whose carbonation gives you that similar "bite."

And if you are trying to diet, resort to low calorie beverages.

(4) Don't keep talking about food or liquor or tobacco or gossip with your associates about new "diets" or their many ideas about breaking slavery to liquor and cigarettes.

For the more you talk about these things, the more you agitate the old appetites!

(5) Make your new resolution 100 percent; don't figuratively keep your fingers crossed as you subconsciously think, "I'll TRY but maybe, if some unusual event intrudes, I may backslide!"

If death faced you tomorrow if you did NOT quit, you could quit 100 percent NOW!

Send for my booklet "How to Break the Tobacco and Liquor Habits," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)
