WHAT IS A DRUG STORE?

★ The drug store is but one unit in a complex pattern of businesses and professions, all of which serve the needs of the community. But it is unique in that pharmacy is both a business and a profession.

A business built on service to the sick cannot be restricted to usual "business hours." The need for medicine and sickroom supplies is usually immediate and urgent. In times of widespread illness the twenty-four-hour day seems all too short. We are ready, day or night, to serve the pharmaceutical needs of the community.

Higher Prices on Shoes Possible

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The possibility of still higher prices for shoes moved into the picture yesterday as OPA granted ceiling increases of up to 30 percent on leather.

What happens on footwear, the agency said, all depends on the outcome of a survey of the shoe industry's earnings.

Any price increases granted "will be moderate," OPA said.

Recently ceilings were boosted six to 15 percent on all types of shoes which were being produced during 1942.

OPA said increases authorized yesterday for leather were required by the new price control law.

Distributors' ceilings were raised one to four percent on all kinds of leather to meet a requirement that their profit margins be restored to the level of last March 31.

On top of this increase, both tanners' and distributors' ceilings on goat and kid leather were hiked 30 percent. An OPA official said 20 to 25 percent of leather going into shoes is goat and kid leather.

GI's Murdered by Shot in Back of Neck

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Nazi guards at the Mauthausen prison camp in Austria killed about 80 Americans with snare bullets in the back of the neck while ostensibly posing them for photographs, a war crimes prosecutor disclosed yesterday.

Hundreds of other allied soldiers died the same way, Col. Henry Roserford, Jr., said at a press conference.

"They were taken one at a time into a small room fitted up like a photographic studio and located conveniently next to the crematory," he said.

"Each prisoner was told to sit in a chair facing a camera. While expecting to have his picture taken, he was shot in the back of the neck by a guard."

LANORA GOES FRONTIER FOR RODEO

EVELYN KEYES

If you like screen entertainment along the lines of portraying the lives of notorious women in western history, then don't miss "Renegade," opening at the LaNora today and showing through Wednesday. It's a glorious saga of the west, with plenty of fast action, including all the old thrills of stage coach hold-ups, bank robberies, cattle rustling, the traditional posse chasing the villains, mingled and woven together with some good frontier romance that assures you an evening of action, and adventure "out of this world"—and it's all in that beautiful technicolor that "makes" a western movie "the great outdoors." Evelyn Keyes plays the part of Hannah Dembrov, the flaming haired bride of lawless adventure, the slave of an outlaw's love. Along with Miss Keyes in "Renegades" are Willard Parker, Larry Parks and Edgar Buchanan.

To change the pace for LaNora entertainment this week, you are offered for two days, Thursday and Friday, a romantic musical excursion "Below the Border" with Dorothy Lamour and Arturo deCordova in "Masquerade in Mexico" and you're in for an evening of Latin love and romance with pretty Latin lassies supporting Lamour and deCordova throughout the scenes of this "Good Neighbor"

Romantic music from the good old days. A scene from "Badman's Territory," starring Randolph Scott and Ann Richards.

movie. Then, opening on Saturday, "No Man's Land" comes to life again on the LaNora screen. A story of America's most exciting era, "Badman's Territory," featuring Randolph Scott with Ann Richards, Gabby Hayes and Laurence "Dillinger" Tierney, is one of the better class 'A' westerns. Due to an erroneous government survey a strip of land north of Pampa did not exist according to government records and was used as a sanctuary for the law by the Daltons, the James' gang and other notorious badmen. Based on actual facts, "Badman's Territory" is sure to please. This RKO adventure romance runs through Monday.—(Adv.)

Young French Kid Wants To Be Yank

By TOM REEVEY

STEIN, Germany—(AP)—Johnny Novel, 90 pounds soaking wet, with two years as a GI behind him, wants to become an American soldier.

He wears the uniform, he smokes Virginia tobacco, he drinks Kentucky bourbon, he speaks Brooklyn, he eats K-rations (when he has to) and he does a man's work on jeeps and command-reconnaissance cars.

He wears a good conduct medal bestowed by the late General George S. Patton, Jr. He captured two German soldiers.

But Johnny is not an American soldier.

He's just a French kid with the heart of a Joffre, the hatreds of a Clemenceau and a Lafayette's love of Americans.

Johnny Novel "adopted" the United States army first; now he wants the army and the country to adopt him.

Johnny says he's 17. He isn't. Johnny swaggers around the infantry motor pool in his little town outside Nuernburg, where Faber made his pencils. He does an honest day's work for his rations.

His pal, Sergeant Robert J. Luther of Huntington, W. Va., keeps him out of trouble.

Johnny says he was orphaned at three in a small French town not far from Paris. He languished in an orphanage.

He was there when Patton's third army came racing through France at breakneck speed. That was for Johnny. He met an advance unit of the fifth division and "got up."

A sergeant took Johnny under his wing. The kid rode tanks and jeeps. No higher than a grasshopper, he carried a carbine and used it.

One night his keen young ears heard a tick-tock in the field where seven or eight GIs were sleeping. He awakened them, and as he tells it now: "That was a helluva sounding clock. And I said so."

The "clock" was a booby trap about to go off. Patton heard about that and personally pinned a conduct medal and a PFC's stripe on Johnny's slim sleeve.

The war knocked the props out from under Johnny. His sergeant tried to sneak Johnny aboard a ship at Bremen but he was caught. There Sergeant Luther found him. So Johnny had a new protector with a fresh three year hitch in the regular army. Luther wants to raise chickens in Huntington with Johnny Novel as helper and co-partner. Johnny snorts at that.

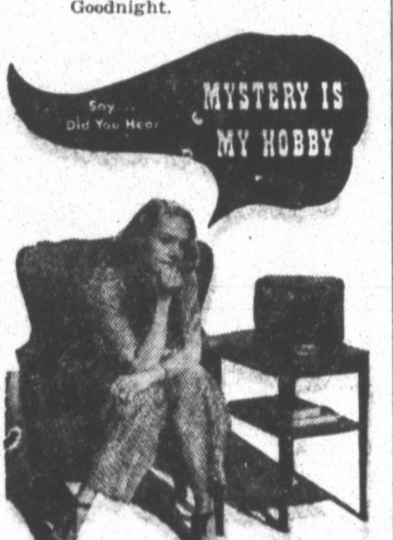

All he wants to be now is a soldier in the United States Army.

named in the previous court action. This strike by-play came as only 15 volunteers reported for duty a second time to collect the city refuse and labor leaders talked of a city-wide union walkout.

Decontrol Board Plans Hearing

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Foes of grain price ceilings last night gained strength from official predictions of bumper crops, as they prepared to open hearings Monday morning before the price decontrol board.

On paper the battle was already joined. Written statements submitted in advance showed major grain and meat interests claiming that bountiful harvests ahead would keep prices down without OPA control.

The three-man board announced its schedule for hearing 43 spokesmen for industry, farm, labor and consumer groups who will come to grips Monday and Tuesday in showdown arguments. The price lid is off, by act of congress, until Aug. 21 on all five commodity groups, which comprise 60 percent of all foodstuffs. It is the board's job to decide by then whether price ceilings go back on.

The American farm bureau federation will lead off. The federation will recommend against ceilings on all five products, as it did in congressional hearings. The advocates of decontrol and recontrol seem about evenly divided in numbers.

Restraining Order Is Upheld by Judge

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Federal District Judge Albert A. Ridge yesterday overruled a motion to dissolve

Judge Ridge modified the restraining order, which was granted by Judge Albert L. Reeves June 24 at the request of the brotherhood, to permit either party to this action to submit to the adjustment board or the mediation board on any grounds, including the provision that the carrier give 30 days notice of any change effecting the pay or working conditions of a group of employees.

RFC Directed To Pay Stripper Well
WASHINGTON (Special)—Reconversion Director John Steelman today directed the Reconstruction Finance Corp. to pay stripper oil well subsidy premiums for the month of July, 1946, at the rates in effect on June 30, 1946.

Mr. Steelman said the RFC and the OPA are jointly preparing new regulations providing for the continuation of subsidy payments after August 1.

For the month of July applicants may file claims for reimbursement of premiums paid to producers of stripper crude to the extent that the total price paid, including premium, exceeds either the basic maximum price of the crude in effect on June 30, 1946, or the posted price of the crude at the time of purchase, whichever is higher.

Alaska-Bound Texans Near Edmonton, Alta.

EDMONTON, Alta.—(AP)—With six strenuous days of travel southward over the Alaska highway behind them, two Americans arrived in Edmonton on Friday, while reports reaching here told of another pair not far behind.

J. A. Conrad of Springfield, Ill., and George Wilson of Seattle, Wash., arrived in Edmonton en route home from Anchorage, Alaska. They plan to return to Alaska Sept. 10. Two Texans, Ed Clark and Dick Clavenger, both of Waco, are reported to be on the road somewhere between Fort St. John, B. C. and Edmonton.

Conrad and Wilson, who traveled the entire route of the highway in a 1914 model automobile, were on a sight-seeing tour. Their only trouble was a blowout. They will journey on to Detroit.

The Texans, also traveling by car, were combining business with pleasure. They were inquiring about northern settlement opportunities for United States veterans.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Sen. Copper (D-Kan) expressed the belief yesterday that it is unlikely congress will be called back before next January because of foreign developments.

LET OUR WAY

WE, THE WOMEN IS THE ARMY PRODUCING PHILANDERS?

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

"You're strictly on your own and free to marry the girl"—the British government has said in effect to the Tommy stationed in Germany.

Reported reason for lifting the ban against marriage between British occupation troops and German women had no protection. Things just could not continue as they were. We were simply breeding immorality.

But Uncle Sam, says an army spokesman, has no intention of telling American service men they can marry German girls.

The army is going to go right on shielding the GI, making it easy for him to woo a fraulen and then run for cover when she talks of marriage.

That is supposed to be for the GI's own good.

But is it working out that way—and what effect is such a policy going to have on the attitude of these young men toward all women?

The British, by lifting their marriage ban, are forcing their men to take full responsibility for their fraternizing. If they want to marry a German girl they can—and she has the protection of knowing they can. If they want to run out on a girl—they have to assume full responsibility for running out.

Why shouldn't we expect American men to assume full responsibility for their actions? The army spokesman says we are going to continue to protect the occupation troops in their fraternizing because many of them are young and need such protection.

But if they are old enough to fraternize—old enough to father German babies—aren't they old enough to be treated as men, and left to make their own decision as to whether or not they have any moral responsibility toward the girls with whom they fraternize.

MORALS AREN'T DATED

It looks as though Uncle Sam is encouraging our young men to shrug off all feeling of moral responsibility in their relationship to German women.

And the sad thing for American women is that when these young men get back home some of them will be just as ruthless in their relationship with American women.

Isn't the young soldier who tells a German girl: "Uncle Sam won't let me marry you" likely to turn into the philandering husband who says "My wife won't give me a divorce" whenever a girl takes him seriously?

Texas Today

By JACK RUTLEDGE

Once over lightly: A big black headline in the Amarillo Globe read: "No crime today." An editor's note said: "Newspapers are in the habit of playing up news of crime and disorder. The Globe believes that the absence of crime and disorder is just as important. Therefore, we are using our 'big type' on a story which, in the old tradition, would be no news at all."

The story underneath said that the night before was one of the quietest in local police history.

The little city of Arp, much in the news during the primary election because of its solid, touching support of home-town boy Jerry Sauter, has gone dry.

Two wells supply the town's water. One went dry. The water pump at the other broke down while trying to do double duty. The city has without water at all for days. They are planning to dig a third well.

A $25,000 home was built at Orange. Neither the proud owner nor the hard-working contractor noticed, until the house was finished that the designer forgot to provide for plumbing. The oversight has been corrected.

You've heard of Gretna Green. In Texas, says the Rev. Boyd I. DeVore we have what might be called Gretna Greenville.

Greenville has become a marriage mart in North and Northwest Texas. Sim Beene, county clerk, explains that couple are finding the Dallas county clerk's office closed except for certain hours. Nearby Rockwall also has been a hard place to get a license because of illnesses in the office. It, too, is closed at night.

So lovers head for Greenville.

The king will make the trip in the interest of his health after the strain which he has undergone since his brother, King Ananda Mahidol, was found shot to death in the palace two months ago.

where they get licenses and marry at almost any hour. Mr. DeVore said eleven of his last 16 marriages were Dallas couples. Other Greenville ministers also have reported jumps in marriages.

Mr. DeVore said he was "impressed by the seriousness and thoughtfulness" of the young folks getting married these days. They almost all were accompanied by friends or relatives, took their vows seriously, and "all but one couple had one or two rings, which indicated they had planned their wedding for some time."

My goodness, while men are complaining that they can't buy enough things to wear, along comes the head of the American Sunbathing association and urges them to wear even less!

He says that in hot weather men have already started to wear sport shirts and sandals and he sees no good reason why they shouldn't go further and start wearing shorts. Well, I've seen two good reasons why they shouldn't—George's knees.

The masculine leg simply isn't a thing of beauty. I understand that leg-revealing newspaper pictures were taken of men they'd have to be known as pretzels.

Shorts for males would have an immediate effect upon American street life. Instead of men standing in front of poolrooms and whistling at us, we girls would stand in front of beauty shops and laugh our heads off at them.

Denton Enforces Water Rationing

DENTON—(P)—One-third of the residents of Denton, including 2,500 students at North Texas State college, were without water today as one of the city's water pumps broke down and forced city officials to enforce strict water rationing.

State health authorities have been asked to assist in solving problems resulting from the shortage of water.

City officials have arranged for tank trucks to carry water into areas affected. On the college campus, it was estimated that 40,000 gallons of water were carried into dormitories and residences by students.

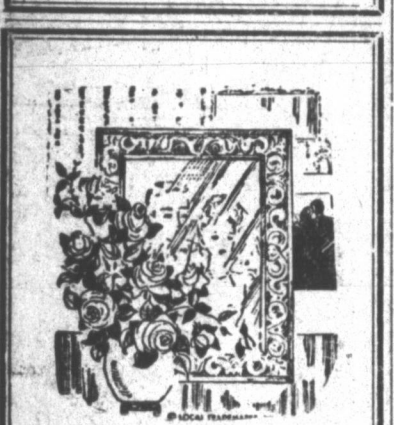

An emergency ordinance passed by the city commission prohibited all use of water except of necessary domestic purposes. Violators were to be fined $100 for the first offense and have their water cut off on the second offense.

Construction on buildings was stopped at the college.

GRAY COUNTY FARMERS WARNED NOW IN TIME TO APPLY OLD ADAGE---OUNCE OF PREVENTION ---

Readers Referred To June Issue of Readers Digest

For further details of the problem of wind erosion Panhandle farmers now face, see an article entitled "Is the Dust Bowl Coming Back?" by Vance Johnson, reprinted from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in the June issue of Readers Digest.

A dry season, the everlasting menace of the plains, says Johnson, "will touch off disaster. All the other elements are there. Throughout western Kansas, the Colorado and New Mexico plains and the Oklahoma and Texas Panhandles—the old Dust Bowl—everybody is making money. And farmers and landowners are repeating old mistakes, forgetting hard-learned lessons."

He adds: "A world went to war, and demand for beef and wheat mounted. Moisture remained normal and again the Dust Bowl prospered—Absent landlords and farmers alike fell victims of their old follies. Thousands of retired acres were returned to wheat; summer following, costlier farming and other precautions learned in the bitter years of drought were neglected. The whole speculative pattern which has plagued the South Plains since the '30's is repeating itself."

By JIM BRANYAN News Staff Writer

Quentin Williams, Pampa Agent for the Soil Conservation service, warned Gray county farmers today that the time has come to apply the old adage about an ounce of prevention being worth a pound of cure if croplands are to be preserved during the current dry period.

Stressing the danger of wind erosion in the Panhandle area, Williams quoted the Amarillo weather bureau as reporting last month the driest July in that region for the past 66 years.

(The Pampa weather station disclosed that rainfall during the June-July months this year was the lowest recorded since the station was set up five years ago. The precipitation in June was 1.84 inches; in July, 1.21 inches. Normal figures according to the station, are 3.23 for June and 1.95 for July.)

Williams further called attention to a recent survey by P. C. Bennett, of the Soil Conservation service's Amarillo office, which estimated the number of acres of cropland in the rolling red plains country now in a "critical condition" to be:

Hemphill county, 10,000; Wheeler county, 100,000; Donley county, 10,000; Collingsworth, 50,000; Hall county, 25,000; Childress county, 10,000.

Acres in the same situation in the Panhandle high plains country was estimated at: Dallam county, 100,000; Hartley county, 30,000; Sherman county, 25,000; Moore county, 25,000; Lipscomb county, 10,000; Deaf Smith county, 25,000; Parmer county, 25,000.

Admitting that immediate rains may relieve summer crops and winter small grains to the extent that they can provide cover for soil next spring, the Soil Conservation agents nevertheless caution that present stubble and trash must be carefully managed to insure protection even under the most favorable spring condition.

Bennett points out: "In the absence of sufficient cover, emergency tillings will have to be relied upon and this is always performed at a loss and is not always effective under continuing adverse conditions."

"The present situation justifies the immediate application of co-ordinated conservation practices where needed and the careful planning of this year's farming operations to provide the utmost insurance against future hazards."

Williams, noting that Gray county farmers have been much more fortunate than some of their neighbors in the matter of wind erosion, urged them to carry conservation measures to the final degree to maintain their present status.

In general, the Soil Conservation service recommends these measures:

1. Cultivation of harvested wheat fields in such a way that as much of the crop residue as possible is left on the surface.
2. Planting of summer growing crops—including sorghums—as a protective cover and for possible harvest when residues are very light. (This is a repeated recommendation.)
3. Leaving as much stubble as possible on sander soils and row crop land. In harvesting row crops, it is advised that farmers leave stubble as high as 12 to 14 inches if practicable and that it be left as late as possible by delaying land preparation for the next crop. If the season is favorable, the service points out that rye can be used as a fall-planted winter and spring cover on sandy soils.

Bennett and Williams also believe that unprofitable sandy and shallow soils should be turned over to grass production. But if that is not possible, they advise the farmer to utilize co-ordinated soil conservation practices to the utmost.

The Soil Conservation service sums up its policy: "Wind erosion can be controlled. With proper protective measures, the extent and severity of blows can be reduced; with proper land use, the whole problem can be whipped."

Make This Home Recipe To Take Off Ugly Fat

It's simple. It's amazing, how quickly one may lose pounds of bulky, unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this recipe yourself. It's easy—no trouble at all and costs little. It contains nothing harmful. Just go to your druggist and ask for four ounces of liquid Barcolate (formerly called Barcol Concentrate). Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take two tablespoons twice a day. That's all there is to it.

If the very first bottle doesn't show the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow the easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

THEY HAVE A RESPONSIBILITY

A group of former veterans in the hills of eastern Tennessee a few days ago used firearms to commandeer the election boxes in their county seat town, and to force the opposition candidates to concede the election.

The opposition in McMinn county was a well-known political machine which had enjoyed control of the county for almost a decade. It was known generally for its high-handed, if not corrupt, politics.

While we do not condone the method the veterans used in unseating the political machine, we can appreciate the changes that now can be made in that rural American community. There is no doubt the machine should have been deposed long ago.

Moreover, we can see a warning for other rural communities, both large and small, in this incident. Bloodshed was the result of bad government, government in which apparently the lot of common, everyday people had not bothered with so very much. They had acquiesced in whatever the politicians had seen fit to do.

And, not forgetting the method used to unseat a clique which the people had permitted to grow through renunciation of their civic duties, we can but hope the veterans will remember that, though they used violence to throw out the corruptionists, force of arms unduly applied now would only place them in the position formerly held by their adversaries. They have assumed a great responsibility—that of administering clean and honest government in their county.

news behind the news

WASHINGTON

By RAY TUCKER

AIR—The former allies, including the largest and smallest nations, are warning as ferociously for control of the skies as they are squabbling over economic and territorial questions in the co-called peace table at Paris.

The promised freedom of the air for international transportation of freight and passengers to the furthest corners of the globe becomes more and more a pipe dream every day. The jockeying diplomats refuse to realize the wartime Jules Verne-like dreams in practical commercial ways.

In a routine gesture that attracted hardly any attention during the last-minute battle over the original, the United States senate tossed a monkey wrench into the world program that will defer any universal agreement on this vital question for several years at least.

The upper chamber ratified an international air treaty that establishes basic standards of communications and aviation safety, but which delays solution of the major problem.

GENEROUS—The angry legislators balked at the provisions which framed schedules and set rates as wanted by the British. They objected to clauses which gave every signatory nation the right to fly where it pleased to pick up passengers and cargo and to transport them to wherever they wanted to go.

These rights are known as the "five freedoms of the air." They were incorporated in the original treaty negotiated at an international conference at Chicago in 1944. That was the era of world good-fellowship, and the American representative and chairman was Ambassador A. Berle, a genial diplomatic host.

In fact, the senate rebelled against his handiwork because they thought he was slightly too generous and general to foreign nations.

ULTIMATUM—Doughty Pat McCarran of Nevada, as well as other senators with a slight isolationist hangover, refused to approve the Berle grants on behalf of the United States.

Mr. McCarran, as chairman of the senate judiciary committee, handled the question behind committee doors and on the senate floor. A

OCCUPATION FORCES IGNORE POTSDAM PACT

(Note: This is the third of six articles on the Potsdam agreement.)
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Breaking up of Germany's powerful cartels, trusts, and monopolies was one of the principal agreements reached in the Potsdam declaration. Destruction of these great concentrations of wealth was considered necessary to end Germany's ability to wage war.

In reorganizing the German economy, the planners at Potsdam called for the development of agriculture as the principal industry. This was the so-called Morrentz plan. There has been considerable change in this view in the past year, as the victorious powers have realized that Germany cannot exist solely as an agricultural state.

The Potsdam Communiqué also sponsored the treatment of Germany as a single economic unit during the period of occupation. To this end, it was declared that there should be common policies in the four occupation zones on mining, farming, wages, prices, banking, currency, taxes, transportation, communications, and removal of reparations. There has been little of this program realized in the first year that Potsdam has been in effect. It is one of Potsdam's worst failures.

It was decided at Potsdam that Germany should have a living standard no higher than the rest of Europe, excluding Great Britain and Soviet Russia. After months of arguing by the staffs of the Control Council, agreement was finally reached on what this level should be by determining how much steel Germany would be allowed to produce for her own needs.

DESIRED ZONAL AUTONOMY HASN'T BEEN CREATED

It was also decided at Potsdam that a fair distribution of German commodities should be established

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Britain's outspoken foreign secretary, Ernest Bevin, who has been in London, flew back to Paris yesterday to resume his place at the so-called "peace" conference, and as he was leaving for France declared:

"We must try to get peace established and put an end to all wars. It is time to stop talking and get on with the job."

About that same hour American Secretary of State Byrnes was telling the delegates at the conference in heated terms:

"The people want us to get on with the peace."

Mr. Byrnes' statement came after he had delivered a stinging rebuke to Russia characterizing as "loose and wicked talk" the Soviet charge that voting procedure for the conference was directed by an "Anglo-Saxon bloc."

The real point at issue was this: day before had maintained that "the duty of an international conference must be to establish unanimity between the countries taking part."

Pursuant to this idea, a move that a two-thirds vote be required for adoption of all conference recommendations. The conference rejected this motion and adopted a British compromise under which both two-thirds votes and simple majority decisions would be considered by the foreign ministers' council, but with the two-thirds vote carrying the greater weight.

Mr. Byrnes asked at one point why there should be "this intense struggle over the right of nations which won the war to participate in the peace." And at another time he would seem to have provided his own answer:

"In our efforts during the past year to make peace and to make peace secure, we have found time to insist on the rule of unanimity, not to secure common agreement, but to block action."

However, all this doesn't settle the argument.

We still have to deal with Russia's belief that such a western allied bloc exists.

In the first place there long has been plenty of direct evidence that Russia is most uneasy because she suspects the "capitalist" powers of plotting to dominate the world.

That is the most charitable explanation of the situation.

There are many observers who point out that Russia was fully demonstrated her intention not only to create a great new sphere of influence but to establish communist governments in as many countries as possible.

The Soviet's delaying tactics at the peace conference, at the foreign ministers' meetings, at the sessions of the U.N. security council, and in dealings in the allied zones of military occupation—all these things do provide time for Russia to carry out more of her plans.

The widening gulf between Russia and the western allies must be bridged if we have to have peace. Meantime the war-weary world is getting fed up. As Mr. Byrnes says, "The people want us to get on with the peace."

have raised barriers against the expansion of American aviation. Russia bars us from soviet territory, Finland, Poland, the Balkans and Iran. Mexico is blocking new airlines already certified for a route to Mexico City. South American nations, especially the ABC powers, are taxing foreign lines and keeping all internal traffic for local companies.

DREAM—These temporary delays and other postwar disillusionment, in the opinion of diplomats at Washington. The plane, like the atom bomb and nuclear energy, amounts to a threat to the rational security of every nation which opens its skies and ground to foreign flyers, especially as most commercial aviators today learned the military game as World War II pilots, bombardiers, navigators and radio gunners.

Thus, contrary to war-borne hopes and promises, it appears that this new, God-given form of transportation, which could link the world's human fortunes and freight in a progressive movement toward international peace and understanding, is still only a dream.

ALLIES SEEK GERMANY'S FOREIGN HELD ASSETS

Steps have been taken to regain control of German assets held in foreign countries. Agreements have been reached on disposal of German assets in Switzerland and Sweden. Claims have been made on the German property held in Spain, but no action has been taken to reach an agreement for turning it over to the Allied nations.

In further planning for the treatment of occupied Germany as one country instead of four, the framers of the Potsdam agreement decreed that the German people would be made the country self-sufficient. It was foreseen that Germany would need some imports. To pay for these imports, it was planned that Germany should have some export trade, the proceeds from which would buy the imports.

Going one step beyond that, the Big Three at Potsdam ordered that reparations should not be taken out of Germany if so doing would not leave the German people enough goods to subsist on without external assistance. This was a famous principle. It has been lived up to by the British and Americans, but not by the French and Russians. Both of these countries have been taking reparations payments out of current German production.

The result has been that both the British and Americans have had to import food, fuel, and other essentials to keep their zones going. The net effect is that the British and Americans are helping to pay for reparations to France and Russia.

This leads into a discussion of the whole question of reparations, which will be taken up in the next article of this series.

Common Ground

Comparing American With Alien Governments

There is a lot of vagueness in people's ideas of what a good government should be. There is even a lot of vagueness as to what the American government really means—or did mean—or hopes to mean.

Now let's see if we can take this vagueness out of what the American government really means or should mean. The one thing which the American government originally differed from, or was set apart from other governments in the world, was that it aspired to do nothing that the individual did not have a right himself to do. All the other governments to a greater or less degree functioned on the basis that they had the right to do anything that they had the right to do.

Of course we were never completely successful in putting this kind of government into operation. A government, however, with this limitation of certainly the kind of government that we should aspire to have.

It seems rational that the government should not attempt to do anything that an individual himself does not originally have a right to do. How can a citizen transfer to the state a right to do a thing that he himself never had? If governments have rights that individuals never had, then there are two standards of rightness, or as many standards as there are different governments.

Our political and economic troubles would be over if governments followed this rule of having powers limited to doing things that the individual had an original right to do. And no individual has a right to do anything that every other individual does not have an equal right to do under the same conditions.

Now let us see what we would be permitted to do and what we would have to give up if our government is to have the kind of government—the kind of government that only does what an individual has a natural right to do and thus is in harmony with the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount which delineated the rights of individuals.

We would have to give up having the government use force to do anything that the individual does not have a right to use force to do. An individual has a right to use force to protect his life and property from other people who are trying to take it from him.

But that is all an individual has a right to do. A government would have a right to use force to do anything that every other individual does not have an equal right to do under the same conditions.

We would have to give up having the government use force to do anything that the individual does not have a right to use force to do. An individual has a right to use force to protect his life and property from other people who are trying to take it from him.

But that is all an individual has a right to do. A government would have a right to use force to do anything that every other individual does not have an equal right to do under the same conditions.

Now let us see what we would be permitted to do and what we would have to give up if our government is to have the kind of government—the kind of government that only does what an individual has a natural right to do and thus is in harmony with the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount which delineated the rights of individuals.

U. S. Delegates Will Consider Proposals

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The White House said today that United States delegates to the international food conference at Copenhagen next month will have a "free hand" and "open minds" on proposals for a world food board.

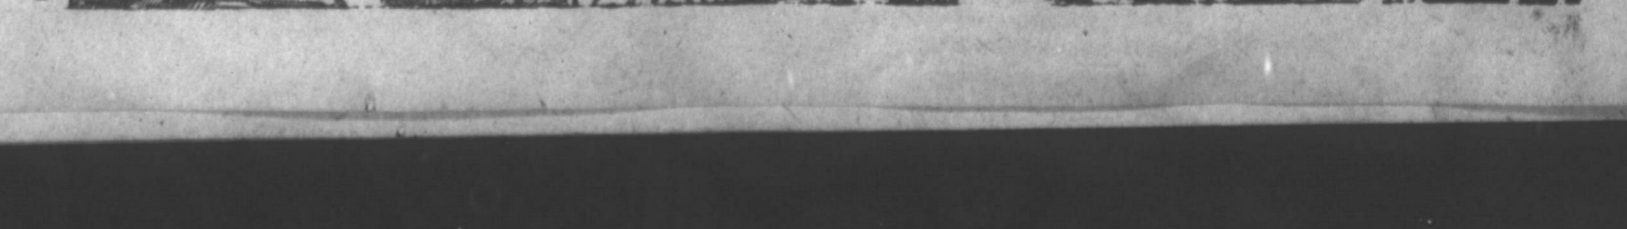

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, noting published reports that proposals for the food board have been rejected by President Truman's cabinet, told a news conference:

"The cabinet has rejected nothing. It has approved nothing. No plan has been rejected."

The meeting will start Sept. 2.

Market Briefs

WALL STREET—The stock market during the past week was more or less of a hit and miss affair with the accent slightly on the hits. Bonds followed a narrow course and grains were erratic. Throughout the week the share division had the benefit of another big batch of regular, raised and boosted dividends, together with many earnings statements on the pleasing side. Brightening business prospects generally provided purchasing arguments and additional volume boosts by the OPA dropped sentiment. On the other side of the picture, Wall Street remained in a notably cautious mood. Dimming enthusiasm to a certain extent was the "stickiness" of a number of special and secondary offerings which accentuated timidity on the big board and led some commentators to express the opinion that, perhaps, "easy money" days may be fading and the rush, during early months, to buy and everything in the way of new securities, possibly had come to an end. The Associated Press 60-stock composite, on the week, held a net gain of 1 of a point at 77.3. Dealings never touched the million-mark in any session and brokers, who feel that real profits are available only on days of 1,300,000 or better, appeared a bit discouraged. For the five sessions, volume totaled 4,101,542 shares against 4,128,500 the week before, and was one of the smallest aggregates of the year. In the comparable 1945 week the turnover was 5,351,790.

The husband spent ten days in a hospital with a broken ankle. Mrs. Selden said she had "kept company for a while" with McLaughlin. The incident occurred three days after the Seldens' marriage.
