Pampa Fights Deadline On Air Service

Pampa has less than two months of airline service remaining today unless local Chamber of Commerce officials, fighting to overcome Civil Aeronautics Board rulings against Central and Pioneer airline service here, can obtain a reversal of the CAB decisions.

Officials were today in the midst of preparing arguments in the city's behalf and were drawing up an official protest, at the suggestion of Congressman Walter Rogers, to be filed immediately with the CAB concerning its decision Friday vetoing Central Airline's application for an extension of service here.

Present service by Central Airlines will end April 20 under present standing. To support the city fight, Rogers has informed city officials he will be present at the March 12 hearing before the CAB in Washington, D. C., when a Pampa delegate and representatives from the other cities involved will present oral argument against a CAB examiner's report to deny the service.

Rogers said in Washington he had been over to the CAB and had checked on the status as concerned with the two airlines and had completed arrangements to appear.

Chamber of Commerce officials have already filed a brief of exception to the examiner's report to deny Pioneer Airline's application for flight here. The officials said the service is important to the city and asserted they would not lessen their efforts until the decisions had been reversed.

La Follette Rites Slated

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—UP—Former Sen. Robert Marion La Follette will be buried Friday at his home town of Madison, Wis. "Young Bob" killed himself in his home here Tuesday with a single pistol shot in his head, 18 days after his 88th birthday. His health was the family explanation of the suicide.

He had a heart attack a few years ago, and recently was hospitalized again for a recurrence of the trouble.

The family decided against funeral services in Washington and arranged to send the body home to Madison late Wednesday. The Rev. John Keene will conduct the rites in Madison's Grace Episcopal Church at 10 a. m. Friday. La Follette will be buried in the family plot at Forest Hill cemetery. Except in Wisconsin, La Follette always was in the minority even when he was tagged a Republican as a Senate member. He was son and namesake to the bitter-tongued senior La Follette who came to the House in 1885, served as Governor of Wisconsin from 1906 to 1908 and thereafter, until his death in 1925, was a member of the United States Senate.

Damage Estimated $100 In House Fire

Damages are estimated at $100 today in a roof fire at the home of G. A. Rath who lives on a Kewanee oil lease, four miles out of Pampa on the Clarendon highway.

Pampa firemen were called out at 10:20 p. m. Tuesday to put out the fire that burned a "hole twice as big as your hat" in the roof. Main damage, however, came from the tearing up of the roof before firemen arrived on the scene, fire officials said.

New Traffic Signals Arrive

Pampa's new traffic signals for W. Foster and Hobart and along N. Somerville are here. T. M. Brooks, contractor on the job, said late this morning.

Work on installation of the lights, he said, should start around April 1. Only poles and bases for the lights and parts for the controllers have yet to arrive. Brooks said shipping orders on those items were received today and they should be in within a few days.

Solon Wants Story Of Yalta Agreement

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—UP—Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich.) demanded Wednesday that Charles E. Bohlen, ambassador-designate to Russia, tell senators all he knows about the secret dickerings that led to the war-time Yalta agreement.

That should be quite an earful. Bohlen is the only man alive on this side of the Iron Curtain who was in earshot when the late President Roosevelt talked privately with Josef Stalin at the Russian Black Sea spa in 1945.

Bohlen, who speaks Russian fluently, was at the President's elbow in the role of interpreter. And, unlike many of the other international figures of that era, he's never written a book.

Ferguson and Sen. William F. Knowland (R-Calif.) proposed Tuesday that the committee "strengthen" Mr. Eisenhower's resolution. They want, as a minimum, to include some strong words criticizing the "secrecy" surrounding the agreement.

The Senate Democratic Policy Committee, however, "unanimously" and "wholeheartedly" approved the language suggested by Mr. Eisenhower, putting all of the burden on Russia for violating the agreements, and none on Democratic President Roosevelt and Truman for negotiating them.

Senate Republican Leader Robert A. Taft told newsmen he doubted Congress can call for an outright "repudiation or denunciation" of the Yalta and Potsdam accords as some GOP senators have favored.

Planning Slated For '54 Livestock Show

Tentative plans for the 1954 Junior Livestock show are to be made Saturday by the Chamber of Commerce committee, meeting jointly with vocational agriculture instructors and county agents from a five-county area.

At the same time details of the Feb. 15-16 show are to be reviewed.

The agriculture committee called the meeting for 12 noon Saturday in the Chamber of Commerce office and has invited instructors and county agents to meet with them to offer suggestions and help work out any details that might be needed before the 1954 show.

The area which participates in the annual young stockmen's show includes Hemphill, Gray, Wheeler, Roberts and Carson counties.

Scouts Keeping Busy As Fund Drive Opens; Pick Cub Heads

Officials and youths of the three Boy Scout groups - Cubs, Scouts and Explorers - in the Santa Fe District have been active during the past 24 hours.

Today's kick-off breakfast for McLean's annual fund drive and Explorers' meeting in Amarillo followed Tuesday night's district committee meeting and Pack 4 banquet where new officers were elected.

Fourteen persons were on hand at 8:30 a. m. today in McLean to get McLean's drive underway and it is expected that drive results will be computed by Saturday, according to Phil Pegues, district Scout executive.

Contrasted to Lefors' kick-off breakfast Monday, Pegues said, today's get-together was completely devoid of gimmicks. And there won't even be a "report coffee" Saturday - Scout officials will just turn in their envelopes.

ed on numerous occasions to seek the office and "now he has stopped saying 'no' and is wavering."

"In many ways I think I would like being mayor, and until it's all over I might just be in there running," Crossman said.

The activity on the mayoralty front increased with the announcement by Mayor C. A. Huff that he would not seek a fourth term, saying that he thought he had served the office long enough and that somebody else should take a turn at the duties.

One of the largest extra-curricular activities of the city is the annual Yalta agreement.

He also expressed flat opposition to any suggestion that the investigative power of Congress be limited. Long Warns Inadequate Plans Threaten US With Atom Attack

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—UP—Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La.) warned Tuesday night that because of inadequate defense planning the United States is in danger of an atomic blasting "that would make Pearl Harbor look like a tempest in a teapot."

Speaking on a television network show Keep Posted, Long repeated earlier charges that "billions of our dollars are being wasted and not going into defense."

Long's statements were disputed by Rep. George H. Mahon (D-Tex.), former chairman of a House subcommittee on defense appropriations.

Mahon conceded that there is "undoubtedly some waste," but he said "our defense planning is pretty sound. . . we're ringing Russia with a series of bases. . . the fact that Russia has not struck in World War III is testimony that our defense planning is superb."

Long, who issued a critical report on air base planning recently after a tour of Europe and North Africa last year, said the Communists could knock out any of this country's $200 million air bases with a single bomb.

The Russians, he said, spend only $4 million to $5 million on a single

Cool, Clear Weather Forecast For Pampa

Pampa was cool and clear today. And that was the prediction for the entire state after a few more showers down south had fallen.

Forecasts, however, for Pampa and the Panhandle called for continuing clear skies, according to the United Press. But there was always the possibility of "partly cloudy" weather, forecasters admitted.

Local mercury readings over the past day have gone from an early morning low Tuesday of 20 degrees to a high of 43, back down to a low this morning of 21 and by 11 a. m. up the scale again to 43.

Pampa and all of Texas are expected to be clear by Thursday, the UP reported, as a low pressure area along the coast moved out of the state.

All that was left were memories of past winter - weather combinations and prospects of others to come. After all, winter doesn't end till March 21.

Sets Conditions For International Parley

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—UP—President Eisenhower told a news conference Wednesday he would be willing to go half way to a meeting with Soviet Premier Josef Stalin or any other world leader under certain conditions.

The conditions were: If he thought such a meeting would further the cause of world freedom and if it would be consistent with what the American people expect of their chief executive.

At his second news conference with reporters since taking office, Mr. Eisenhower also announced:

1. That he has called a conference Thursday of state governors, House and Senate Republican leaders and top administration figures to examine the proper division of functions between the states and federal government—particularly as relating to taxes and Social Security.

2. He agreed with Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge that it will be difficult to balance the federal budget in fiscal 1954.

3. The Armed Services will cut their quota of doctors to be brought into uniform in the first three months of this year from 1,800 to 1,200 because of the shortage of physicians in civilian practice.

The chief executive devoted most of his 30-minute conference with 203 reporters and photographers to answering questions.

Cautions on Resolution He counseled Congress to go slow on changing the wording of the resolution through which he wants this government to repudiate any interpretation of wartime secret agreements which led to or at least acquiesced in the enslavement of certain nations.

He also expressed flat opposition to any suggestion that the investigative power of Congress be limited. At the same time, however, he said Congress should exercise this investigative authority only after extensive consideration and with the self-restraint that is necessary for the protection of basic American liberties.

Lodge Blames Russ For Prolonged War

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Feb. 25—UP—The United States told the United Nations Wednesday that "the war in Korea would now be over" if the Chinese and Korean Reds did not have "active aid" from Russia.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. in his debut speech to the world organization, told the main political committee that the U. S. will stand pat on the Communist-rejected Korean compromise plan adopted overwhelmingly at the first half of the session.

Indicating that the U. S. has no new proposal on the Korean conflict, Lodge said: "Failure to end the fighting in Korea is not due to any lack of world cleverness with words here in the UN. It is due to the frankly announced desire of the Communists to continue the war."

Lodge read out a list of "10 facts" aimed at proving the extent of Russian material aid to the Chinese and Red aggressors in Korea. They included figures on supply of Soviet planes, artillery and other weapons of war. At the end of this recital, Lodge said: "The Soviet representatives are hereby challenged to disprove these facts. They show how far the Soviet Union has gone to broaden the war—how, since the fall of 1950, the UN has not been fighting a local enemy, but the vast manpower resources of Communist China supported by the material resources of the entire Soviet

UN. It is due to the frankly announced desire of the Communists to continue the war."

Allies Assault Red Fortress

SEOUL, Feb. 25—UP—American tank-supported infantrymen assaulted a Communist mountain fortress on the western front Wednesday and cut a bloody path through the Chinese Reds with flame throwers, dynamite and hand grenades.

The U. S. fighting men braved a hail of machine-gun fire and hand grenades as they struggled through ankle-deep mud up the steep, 70-degree slopes of the Red hill southeast of Panmunjom.

United Press correspondent Al Kaff reported from the front that U. S. flame throwers "turned the Chinese into pillars of fire before they could utter a scream."

For one hour, the UN raiding party created havoc among the Chinese, dropping hand grenades and dynamite charges into the deep defense tunnels and shooting searing flame into the bunkers and along the trenches.

The raid began shortly after dawn, supported by fire from Allied tanks, howitzers and eight-inch guns.

An hour later, the U. S. fighters withdrew just as suddenly as they had attacked. A Communist mortar barrage followed them back to their own lines.

Preliminary estimates indicated that at least 30 Chinese were killed in the raid.

Kaff reported that the Americans (See ALLIES, Page 2)

Review Shows U. S. Aid Kept Chiang's Head Above Water

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A five-man team of U. S. businessmen, headed by Harry A. Bullis of General Mills, has just left Washington for a month's new look at what gives on Formosa. Others on the team are Raymond T. Moyer of Ford Foundation; N.F. Alaman, a former lawyer in Shanghai; Maj. Gen. William A. Wharton, U.S.M.C., and Clinton Morrison, Minneapolis investment banker.

Ray Moyer is the father of JCRE — the Joint Chinese Relief and Reconstruction program — who quit Formosa a year ago, more or less in despair. Frank Alaman against the mainland, it should be a hot report.

For three days and a couple of nights before its departure from Washington, the Bullis team was briefed by Pentagon, State Department, MSA and other experts on what American aid had been given Formosa and the Nationalist Chinese government in the past.

It was a colossal review of what has been keeping Chiang Kai-shek's ship of state afloat. Without American aid it would have unquestionably gone down.

$1.64 Billion In Four Years

Nationalist government moved from the mainland to Formosa in December, 1949. From the end of World War II until that time the U.S. had given the Nationalists $1.64 billion in grants and credit.

The move to Formosa started a new set of books. American economic aid to Formosa was $40 million in 1950, $80 million in 1951, $70 million in 1952 and $85 million scheduled for this year. The total is 275 million. What will be given next year is up to the new Congress.

Military aid figures are a little bit harder to come by. No figures on military assistance are given out on a country-by-country basis. For the Pacific, the figures for Formosa are lumped in with those for Indo-China, the Philippines, Thailand and Burma.

Deliveries to this whole area up to last Dec. 31 were valued at $84 million. For the period ending next June 30, deliveries of $1.514 billion are scheduled. So the program is about one third completed.

In other areas, military aid has been about double economic aid. On this basis, Formosa would be getting around 500 million to 600 million worth of military supplies from the U. S. Other sources confirm this with reports that Formosa has been given about $200 million worth of military supplies a year.

On the economic front, for the first time in more than 2000 years of Chinese history, its government has a budget which can be believed. For 1952 it showed central government receipts of 1592 million Taiwan dollars, with expenditures of 1639 million Taiwan dollars.

The deficit, calculated on an exchange rate of $3.5 for one U.S.

dollar, is equivalent to 3.5 million a year. Even these figures are slightly deceptive, however, as some 200 million Taiwan dollars from U. S. MSA counterpart funds — $15 million — are counted as receipts.

Blistered Budget

The military budget of the central government for 1952 was put at 1209 million Taiwan dollars, or roughly 80 per cent of the total. That is nearly 80 million. It is a figure far too high for the island to support and could not be done without American subsidy.

The Chinese Nationalist gold reserve, brought from the mainland, is now believed to be low, but there is no accurate count on it.

Formosa reported a favorable trade balance last year with imports at 118 million and exports of 122 million. The big items of export were 23 million in rice and 70 million in sugar, shipped largely to Japan. But the import figure is padded by 96 million worth of U.S. economic and military support supplies which China got free.

In total picture, in summary, is now regarded Washington as young liberals that Chiang has gathered about him have a zeal to make Formosa a shining light. Bank interest rates have been forced down from the old 100 per cent a year to a more reasonable all-rosy, but not all black. The able 42 — that is, 3 1/2 per cent a month. Graft has been made unfashionable. Inflation is no worse than it was.

If the Nationalists ever did get back in control on the mainland, their leaders at least would have learned the hard way how to run a good government.

Nationalist China has a four-year plan to make its economy self-supporting by 1957, so as to get off U.S. aid. The plan is not considered realistic, however, because any stepped-up military operations would throw it into the discard.

New members of the telephone team receive careful training so they can develop a pleasing "voice with a smile."

How Telephone People Study To Be Popular

IF YOU LIKE PEOPLE and get along with them well, then you have one of the first qualities we look for in hiring new members of the telephone team. Ours is a personal service business. So a pleasant, winning personality is important. Telephone training is aimed at developing such a personality as much as developing technical skills.

THE SPIRIT OF SERVICE is a tradition with telephone people as old as the telephone itself. For example, the first-aid training which telephone crews get as part of their job is often put to use outside the business. Many an accident victim is alive today as a result of the skillful attention of a passing telephone man.

GOOD NEIGHBORS... GOOD CITIZENS

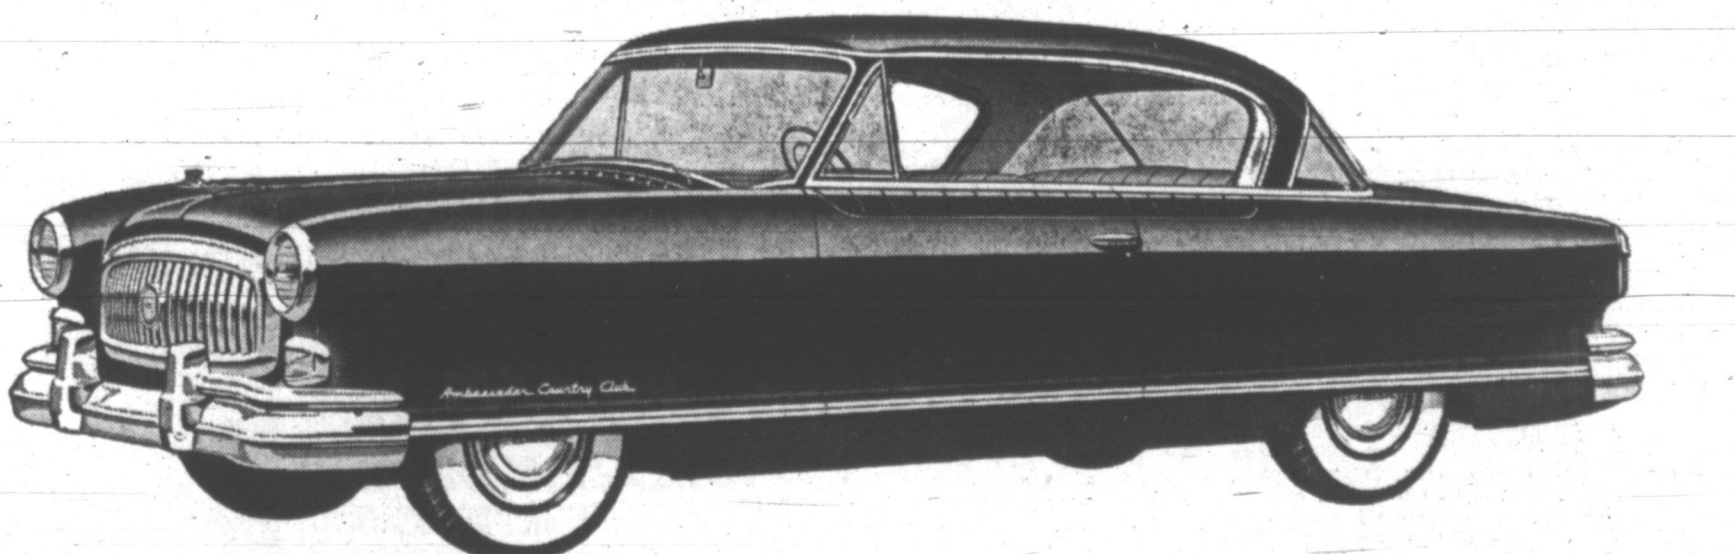

A pleasant, winning personality... and a sincere desire to be of service to others... these are the qualities that make people popular. And these are the qualities that the 28,000 Texas telephone people are constantly studying to improve. That's one of the big reasons why they are known as good neighbors... and good citizens of the communities they serve.

Easter Parade PREVIEW
Design is the hot word this spring — especially in chiffon-weight frocks and with chalk-white accents. There's a lot to say for blue, violets and sharp yellow, too. Hats, a little smaller, often with a half veil. Skirts slightly longer. Both infinitely more exciting. Be sure to see the ten colorful pages of festive Easter fashions in the big March issue of the Ladies' Home Journal. Get a copy today!

Twentieth Century Culture Club Hears Program On 'Great American Negroes'

Mrs. Doyle Osborne was hostess to members of the Twentieth Century Culture Club Tuesday afternoon when they met for a program on "Great American Negroes."

Mrs. Frank Smith displayed the Gray County Heart Association "Heart Hat." The club decided to have a rummage sale in March with proceeds going to the Red Cross.

After Mr. Copeland's death Amos had to be reeled. He was saving every penny that he possibly could in the hope that someday he might buy his sister if she were brought to America. Amos bought his freedom just after his second master died. Amos was loved by all who knew him when he died in 1801.

Mrs. H. L. Ledrick Is Hostess To Club

Members of El Progresso Club met in the ranch home of Mrs. H. L. Ledrick Jr. Tuesday afternoon for a program on "Legal Status of Women."

Mrs. Bob McCoy and Mrs. Carlton Nance were elected delegate and alternate to the Seventh District Convention to be held at Hereford April 9, 10 and 11. Mrs. Knox Kinard gave an outline of an article from Texas Club Woman on public affairs.

"Legally speaking, when we step into the Far Away, there are races that laid our foundations. The Hebrew gave us our religion; the Greek gave us our standards of thought and beauty; the Romans gave us our law and order; while the wandering barbarians of Europe gave us our prejudices and traditions, what might almost be called our subconscious selves."

Entre Nous Club Has Special Meeting

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Something that should fascinate parents has happened in the field of mental hygiene. It is called "group therapy."

Here's the typical way it works. Ten people meet regularly each week with a trained mental hygienist. Of different ages and sexes, they think they have different problems.

One may be a young man who can't bring himself to marry a girl he's fond of. Another may be a middle-aged woman who's always getting fired from jobs.

Still others may be husbands, wives, parents whose vital relationships have bogged down into discouragement and stagnation.

Under the guidance of the group leader, these troubled folk are finally persuaded to bring into open discussion the shyness, wariness and self-distrust which have driven them to exchange their true thoughts and feelings for ones they hope will please other people.

So, at first, these are grueling sessions. The middle-aged woman finds it very hard to admit she expects her boss to excuse her mistakes just as her over-indulgent father used to do. As she confesses this, the young man who's scared to marry comes and, in a lightning flash, friends. It is wrong to try to make them do so. For it is limiting to the patient, and a burden to the son or daughter.

At every age people need friends. And the only way to be sure of having friends at every age is to keep old friendships alive and to keep on making new ones.

Any grown son or daughter whose parents have many good friends could tell this woman how important friendships are to the older person.

For it is the lonely older person who is a burden to his children — and the one whose life is filled with new interests and good friends.

Check your local bake shop and the bakery section of your grocery store when you are searching for ways to "give a lift" to Spring menus. You will find a tempting array of luscious baked goods.

Specialty fruit bread and rolls help make a good-tasting substantial meal out of a light soup or salad lunch. Inexpensive desserts in the form of cookies, cup cakes or pies may be purchased to save the homemaker time needed for Spring house-cleaning.

What's all this got to do with the children? So much—I hope to write about it often. For the role of leader in all group therapy is the role of father and mother to children. He serves the young man and middle-aged woman in his "family" the way they own parents did not know how to serve them.

Psychologist Dr. Alexander Wolf of New York is one of the pioneers in this new technique. Here's how he summarizes his parental responsibility.

The leader must be capable of admitting his mistakes openly. He must be able to examine his reasons for making them. He must be able to analyze the conditions which gave rise to them. He must be able to show forth his shortcomings, setting the example in this way to others.

I don't know as I've ever read a better definition of our duty to children. We will often fall short. Let's tack the words over the kitchen sink where they can give us courage to remember what leaders — what Mature Parents — we can become to our young ones.

Typewriters In Demand . . . Nothing As Rewarding Than Friendship Between Ike, Baby

By HENRY McLEMORE
LOS ANGELES — My next article will be written in a play-suit under an assumed name.

Straight from the play-pen will come an article by President Eisenhower's grandson, telling how it feels to be a grandson of Ike, and how to be a good one.

I won't be spanked for it, either, because Grandma Mamie, has already written how to be a good mother-in-law, and Mummie is in print telling how to be a good daughter-in-law.

There are a good many ways for the grandson of the President of the United States to be a good grandson. One is not to be surprised when those who have always looked after you all of a sudden are so busy at typewriters that you don't get as much attention as you used to.

Nothing is more rewarding—and you can take this from me—than a fine bond of friendship between a baby and the President of the United States. As soon as

I heard the election returns I vowed in my crib that Granddaddy wouldn't get up before me; that I'd be up and about when he came downstairs.

My granddaddy is an early riser, but not as early a riser as I am. I am up when it is still dark, and I like to go into his room and jump up and down on his head. This wakes him up, and soon he is dressed and ready to go to work. I'm just a baby, but I do feel that if Granddaddy does more work than any other president, it is because I won't let him sleep too late.

Lots of American babies have written and asked me how it feels to live in the White House. I welcome this chance to tell them.

Pabulum tastes the same in the White House as it did before I got here. I offered a Secret Service man a spoonful the other day and he made a face.

I dress the same in the White House as before I got here. I was a baby Homburg hat, baby Homburg rompers, baby Homburg sweater, and baby Homburg mittens.

I do my best to help Granddaddy and Grandmummie about the house. I like to dust, but yesterday I broke an ash tray.

Granddaddy scolded me a little bit and told me I had just broken an ash tray that was the favorite ash tray of General Grant.

"Was he a better general than you were, Granddaddy?" I asked.

"Yes he was," he told me.

"Why?" I asked.

Then he talked to me a long time, and when he finished all I could remember was that if it hadn't been for General Grant we wouldn't have any flag. Wonder what that means.

I'm just a baby, but I know what is going on around here. And what is going on is all because of my granddaddy. A year ago Mummie didn't have a typewriter. She was just Mummie. Nobody asked her about anything 'cept Daddy.

I must stop now because my little sister wants to use the typewriter.

She has sold a story on how it feels to be a granddaughter of Granddaddy Ike.

It's my bedtime now. I hope Mummie gets back in time—she

Sen. Bridges Wants A-Bomb Used In Korea

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 25—UP—Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N. H.) urged the United States Tuesday night to end its "do-nothing policy" in Korea and use the atomic bomb if it "would save the life of one American boy."

The president pro-tem of the Senate also proposed before the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association an end to the "phony" Korean truce negotiations and a "full naval blockade" of the Communist-controlled China mainland.

Bridges said it will be "most difficult" to balance next year's budget and that Congress must "continue to collect Mr. Truman's taxes until we have had an opportunity to pay some of Mr. Truman's bills."

He said he does not advocate the use of atomic weapons "willy-nilly" in Korea. He said, however, that the atomic bomb is supposed to be a "peace weapon" and he sees no "reasonable objection" to using it if this weapon would save the life of one American boy.

Harvester Quint Drills Hard For Bi-District Title Series

Fagan Misses Workout With Influenza

The Hustlin' Harvesters went through a two-and one-half hour workout yesterday in their final strenuous drill before taking on the Bowie Bears of El Paso in the bi-district series which begins tomorrow night at Harvester Fieldhouse.

All hands took part in the drill with exception of Don Fagan, No. 1 reserve. Fagan came down with influenza yesterday. It was not known yesterday whether he would be ready for this week's series with Bowie.

Coach Clifton McNeely and his assistant, Terry Cully, touched on about every phase of the game in yesterday's drill.

There isn't likely to be any change in the Harvesters' starting lineup for the series which consists of Fred Woods and Buddy Cockrell, forwards; Jimmy Bond, center; and Bill Webb and Jon Oden guards. Of the five, four are seniors, Bond being the only undergraduate. Bond is a junior.

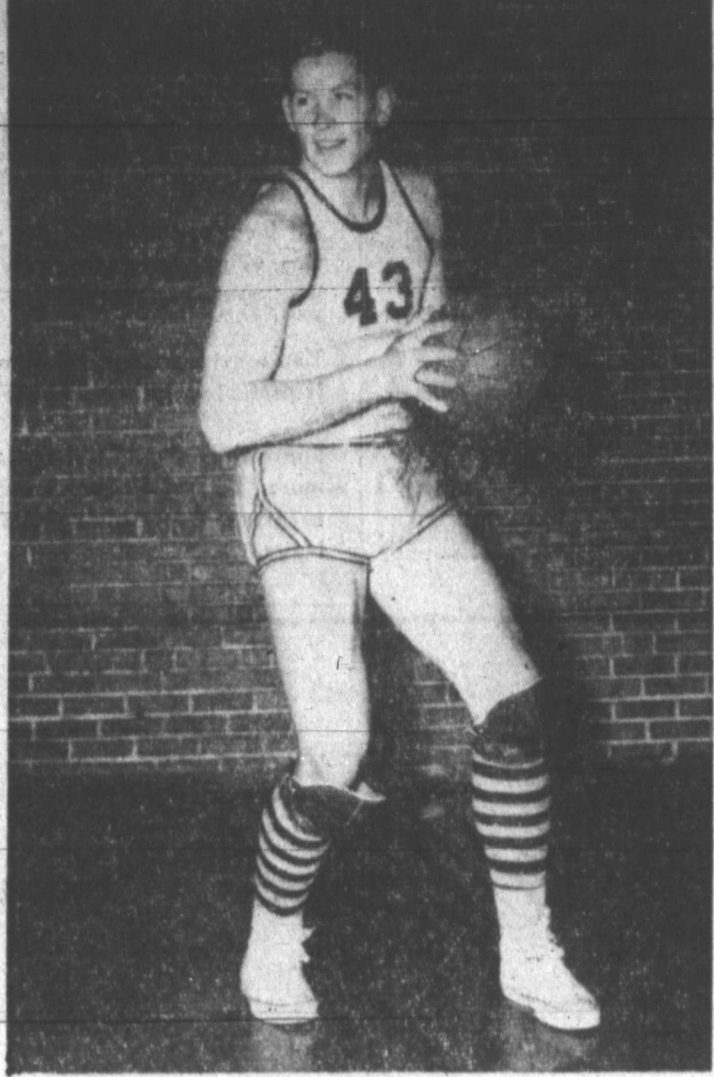

The Harvesters will be gunning for their 23rd straight victory of the season and their 25th since they were last beaten. The last Harvester loss occurred in the second game with Berger last season. The Harvesters played two more games after the Berger defeat before ending the season and won them both.

The Bowie squad is due in town late this afternoon. They will likely hold at light drills here upon arrival.

This is Bowie coach Nemo Herrera's fourth district championship in six years of coaching the Bears. He lost the last three bi-district series, however, to Lubbock twice and Berger once.

For Harvester coach McNeely, it is the first undisputed title but he tied for the crown once and finished runnerup the other four years during his six years as Harvester boss.

Tickets for the game are on sale at the school business office in the City Hall. Admission prices are $1 for reserve and 30 cents for students. A sellout crowd is due for each series game.

HANDY MAN—Buddy Cockrell, 6-2 forward, has been a valuable cog in the Harvester lineup this season. Buddy has developed into a fine rebounder and has a good eye for the basket. Buddy handles himself well on the court despite his size. He tips the scales at 203. Cockrell's defensive play has also been a big factor in the Harvesters' success this season. (News Photo)

Sam Houston Is Victim... Reapers End Season With 52-29 Win

By BUCK FRANCIS
Pampa News Sports Editor

The Pampa Junior High Reapers closed out their 1952-53 season yesterday with a 52-29 triumph over Sam Houston of Amarillo in a Panhandle Junior High Conference game at the Reaper Gym.

The victory gave coach Pernal Scoggin's Reapers a 5-9 record in conference play.

In yesterday's tilt, the Reapers pulled ahead with two minutes gone in the first quarter and were never headed. Dickie Mauldin dropped in a free toss to tie the score at 4-4 and then Buddy Sharp dunked in a field goal to send the Reapers ahead to stay.

The Reapers went on to a 14-6 lead at the end of the initial period and extended their margin to 26-15 at halftime. The Pampans held the Amarillo leads to only three free tosses in the third period as they moved further into the lead, 36-18.

Sharp led the Reaper attack with 24 points on nine field goals and six tosses from the grais line. Sharp's scoring was most equally divided in each quarter, getting six in the first, seven in the second, five in the third and six in the fourth.

Dickie Mauldin and Glen Gilmore were next in line in the Reaper scoring with eight points apiece.

Two Sam Houston lads, Dyke and Capatany, also netted eight points to lead the losers scoring. The Reapers hit 57.1 per cent of their free shots, canning 24 out of 42. Sam Houston made 11 out of 47 for 40.7.

Sharp's 24 points yesterday gave him 231 points in 14 conference games, tops in the Reaper ranks. His average in loop play was 16.5 points per game.

The Reapers still ended in a two-way tie for 3th place in the eight team conference. Three teams, Berger, Horace Mann and Phillips tied for first with 10-4 records.

In other final games yesterday, Austin surprised Horace Mann, 44-38; Dumas upset Berger, 39-35; and Phillips disposed of Nixson, 46-36.

Following is the Reaper-Sam Houston box and the final Panhandle Junior High Conference standings. (There will be no play-off between the three teams tied for first place):

Herrera Believes Bears Can Win By Scoring 50 Points

By RAY SANCHEZ
Sports-Writer
El Paso Herald-Post

EL PASO, Feb. 25—(Special)—Bowie High's District 2 AAAA champion Bears, 13 players strong, left here early today in three cars for Pampa and the bi-district playoffs.

And as Coach Nemo Herrera boarded the car he could be heard muttering: "It only we can score."

The bi-district playoffs between Bowie and the host Pampa Harvesters will be strictly a battle of defense versus offense.

Pampa has averaged 44.7 points per game this season but Bowie has held its foes to an average of 37 points, only two teams having scored more than 40 points in district play.

"I think we can hold them down," Herrera said before leaving. "What's worrying me is whether we can score. If we can score around 50 points we'll be well off."

In district play, Bowie has averaged 47.5 points per game so hitting 50 would take no great effort.

Herrera said he would stick with the same starting lineup of six-foot-two Juan Jose Gomez at center; six-foot Rafael Pardo at forward; six-foot-one Leo Fierro at forward; five-eleven Alfred Aranda at guard and five-eight Raul Garcia at guard.

Gomez has been designated as the man to take care of Johnny Bond, Pampa's high-scoring star. Leo Fierro will take Fred Woods, Pampa's other all star.

Bowie has been using a double post offense and a zone defense. However, that zone defense could be called almost a man-to-man press for the Bears, who are plenty quick with remarkable reflexes, play the opposition very closely.

"The Bears started out the season very slowly, losing three games in the city tournament. But they steadily improved until now El Paso districtmakers aren't willing to make any team in the bi-district the favorite.

Pampa Cage Fans In For Treat With Trotter Appearance, Bi-District Series

TONIGHT BEGINS ONE OF THE most attractive weeks of basketball in this town's history with the Harlem Globetrotters kicking off the week's activities.

The Trotters are calling at Harvester Fieldhouse tonight to headline a star studded program which also includes another cage tilt between two top-notch teams, the Hawaiian Surf Riders and the Boston Whirlwinds. The Trotters are pitted against the Philadelphia Sphas.

Then tomorrow night, of course, the championship bi-district series with Bowie of El Paso will commence at the fieldhouse. At least two games will be played in this series. The second is carded Friday night.

You could hardly ask for a better cage program than the one lined up this week. It all adds up to this: "It will be professional basketball at its best and high school basketball at its best."

There are still a few tickets left for tonight's Globetrotter performance. So, if you haven't already obtained a ticket, you can still get one at the box office tonight.

However, you better get there early if you haven't got a ticket already because the few tickets that are left may go in a hurry. The Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the game, printed 2400 tickets for the game and after they are gone no more will be sold. Nearly 2000 reserve and general admission tickets had been sold through yesterday.

Thursday and Friday's bi-district series between the Harvesters and Bears is also due to be played before full houses.

We'd like to commend the Pampa school officials or whoever is responsible for the maintaining of regular admission price for the bi-district playoff games. Admission for the games will be $1 for reserve and 30 cents for students, the same prices that have prevailed here all season.

In a lot of instances admission prices are advanced for such attractions as the series coming up here this week. The school could certainly realize more revenue by advancing the admission price for the bi-district games.

And we're glad to see that the school athletic department is looking out for the fans. It certainly creates good will between the Owls' latest sweet revenge over the Texas Longhorns before more than 4,500 fans who packed the Rice field house. The Owls had been beaten once before by the Longhorns this season, and took the lead with an 8-3 record.

The defeat dumped Texas into a tie with Texas Christian for the second spot, each having 7-3 records.

In another conference game Tuesday night, Southern Methodist took an easy 73 to 59 victory from a luke-warm Texas A&M team at Dallas in a battle-by-SMU to climb out of the cellar spot.

Texas' strategy to bottle down Rice's brilliant guard Gene Schwinger failed as the lanky junior sank 12 points in the final period to boost his night's total to 22.

The Longhorns used "expensive" guards on Schwinger and held him down to 10 points in the first three quarters.

Poly-Sunset Clash Tonight At Dallas

By UNITED PRESS

Defending Class AAAA champion Fort Worth Poly has a chance Wednesday night to move into this year's state championship basketball tournament when it plays Dallas Sunset at Dallas in the second game of their bi-district series.

Poly won the opener last week and needs only a victory Wednesday to assure itself of being one of the 24 teams that will compete in the five-division tournament at Austin.

If Poly doesn't win, the two teams will move to Fort Worth Thursday night for the final game of the three-game series.

Tyler beat Austin 46 to 37 Tuesday at Tyler to tie the AAAA series between the two teams at one game each. The third game will be played at Waco Friday night.

In an AAAA opener Tuesday night, Houston S. F. Austin defeated Fort Arthur, 45 to 41 at Port Arthur. The two teams move to Houston Thursday night for their second game.

The Pampa-El Paso Bowie series opens Thursday night at Pampa, and all three games will be played at Pampa — Thursday, Friday and Saturday night.

In Class AAA, three opening games were played Tuesday night, but defending champion Alamo Heights didn't get out of its district and so wasn't in any of them.

Vernon defeated Brownwood, 54 to 46; San Antonio Edison downed Alice, 58 to 53; and Beaumont South Park beat Temple 66 to 55.

Texarkana and Paris, the other playoff competitors in AAA, will play their second game Wednesday night. Texarkana won the opening game at Paris.

The state tournaments in Class AA, A and B will be determined in regional tournaments throughout the state this week.

Golden Hurricanés Accept NIT Bid

NEW YORK, Feb. 25—UP—Eastern Kentucky entered the NCAA tournament and Tulsa accepted a bid to the National Invitation Tournament Wednesday as the post-season carnivals continued their race to sign up talented teams.

The NIT was expected to announce still further acceptances Wednesday, with speculation centering on Villanova (18-8) and St. John's (13-5).

The NCAA, lagging behind the rival tourney in the "war" for independent teams, suddenly upped late Tuesday to sign Notre Dame, Navy, and Fordham, in addition to Eastern Kentucky's Ohio Valley Conference champions. That made a total of eight berths now filled in the 23-team merry-go-round.

A. C. (Dutch) Lonborg of Kansas, chairman of the NCAA committee said dates and sites for play-offs between the eastern "at large" members will be announced in a few days. All four teams accepted Tuesday are in that category, along with previously announced DePaul.

Tulsa Seventh to Enter

Tulsa (14-7) was the seventh team to enter the 12 team NIT at New York's Madison Square Garden. The Hurricanés title chances in the Missouri Valley Conference are almost gone with a 4-4 record, and as a conference "also ran" they are not eligible for an "at large" berth in the NCAA.

Rice University took over the lead in the Southwest Conference Tuesday night with a 61 to 56 victory over peacocking Texas at Houston. The triumph gives the Owls their margin, George Scelving led Texas with 18 points.

Villanova bolstered its tourney victory over Austin College,

The Trotter-Sphas game is due to get underway around 9. Tickets for the game were about vanished through sales yesterday. About 100 general seats are left. Lots of reserve admission tickets will also be available tonight unless heavy ticket sale is realized during the day today.

The ticket window will open tonight at 6. Johnny Campbell, chairman of the ticket sales committee, said this morning. The game is being sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. Proceeds of the game will go toward financing their summer recreation program.

Babe Pressley heads the Trotter aggregation here. Other stars include Robert Hall, Leon Hilliard, Sonny Smith and others.

Their opponents tonight boast plenty of height. The Sphas' center is 6-8.

In addition to the two games, Hawaiian Hula dances by three Hawaiian beauties will be a special attraction.

There will also be a ping pong match between two of the world's finest table tennis players, Bourne and Anderson, and a bicycle performance by Jacques Cordon of France.

All of these added attractions have been highly received by fans throughout the world.

Tonight's show will last more than three hours.

Two draws resulted in last night's wrestling show at the Southern Club Sports Arena.

Dory Funk and Wayne Martin took a fall apiece in the main event and then both were disqualified by referee Gust Johnson in the third fall when both wrestlers turned on him. It took all other wrestlers who had preceded the main event to separate the irate matmen in the ring.

Benny Truddell and Frankie Hart battled to a draw in the semifinal, each winning a fall. Tim ran out before a third fall could be completed.

In the only match that had a winner, Whitley Wahlberg won over Ace Abbott in the preliminary. Abbott was disqualified.

The Pampa Daily News

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we, at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Published daily except Saturday by The Pampa News, Atchison at Somerville, Pampa, Texas. Phone 666, all departments. Entered as second class matter under the act of March 3, 1879.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By CARRIER in Pampa 20c per week. Paid in advance (at office) $2.50 per 3 months, $7.50 per six months, $15.00 per year. By mail $10.00 per year in retail trading zone, $12.00 per year outside retail trading zone. Prices for single copy 5 cents. No mail order accepted in localities served by carrier delivery.

Good News Dept.

Like the Harvesters are on the basketball court, Pampa is out in front among cities of the Panhandle in the matter of fire protection.

This good news was contained in key fire insurance ratings released by the State Insurance Commission in Austin which showed that for the fifth consecutive year Pampa had been given the 25 per cent maximum credit.

That means local property owners pay minimum fire insurance premiums! Which is good news in anybody's language.

Groom, Miami, Wheeler and White Deer also were awarded 25 per cent credits by the commission.

The high rating is indicative of the efficiency of the Pampa Fire Department since grades are based on actual fire losses during the preceding five-year period.

Incidentally, Pampa has held the maximum rating since Fire Chief J. E. Winborne took charge of the department in 1948.

Congratulations, chief!

Telephone Tax

The failure of an insurrection of Pennsylvania moonshiners 162 years ago come next month is currently costing 65 per cent of American households — representing about two-thirds of the total population — approximately $15 a year.

But the levy is not on alcoholic beverage which is taxed harshly enough; rather it applies to the millions of telephones now more common in these United States than houses or cars.

When the Whiskey Rebellion of 1791 was crushed — the power of the federal government to impose excise taxes was established literally by force of arms, and although the legality of such taxes has been questioned off and on over the past century and a half, they have become a fixed feature of revenue for the government.

An excise tax is an impost laid upon a service or a commodity produced or consumed within the nation. Originally in this country they were laid primarily upon commodities, later upon sports, trades and occupations. Whiskey and tobacco have always been heavily burdened with excises. But in all cases the excise is passed along to the consumer.

War emergencies stimulate the expansion of excise taxes and in World War II the excise on communication services was boomed mightily on the excuse it would discourage the use of telephone service and would conserve existing facilities for wartime needs.

We come now to the insatiable greed of Big Government. There is currently no need to discourage telephone service and there hasn't been since the end of the war but the excise tax on telephones was continued indefinitely and we are faced with what boils down to a government restriction upon the "standard of living" through taxation.

Telephone communication is recognized generally as necessary to the economy and welfare of the nation. It can hardly be classed as a luxury since there are about 46,000,000 telephones in service. On the Bell system alone the average of annual calls rolls up to the astronomical figure of 48 billions.

Even the government recognizes its essential nature. The Congress not long ago authorized the Rural Electrification Administration to enlarge its program for extending telephone service to rural communities.

Yet the excise tax rates are wholly out of line with those applicable to other essential services and they discriminate grossly against telephone users.

The present rates are 15 per cent on local telephone service and 25 per cent on toll messages where charges are 25 cents or more. If you make a $3 call to New York you have to pay an additional 75 cents in taxes.

If you think this rakes in a piddling sum, consider the report for 1951 of the largest telephone company. The Bell System subscribers alone paid $55,000,000 to the federal government in excise taxes. This represented 46 per cent of the total telephone tax bill of $1,185,000,000 paid by Bell System subscribers to federal, state and local governments.

The bureaucrats stumbled on this lush revenue in 1940 — telephone excise taxes were nil in 1930 — and it may take a more successful "Whiskey Insurrection" to shake them loose from it.

The discriminatory nature of the telephone excise tax is sharply disclosed when compared with rates on non-essential luxury goods and services. Long distance calls are taxed higher than cabaret admissions, jewelry, furs, cosmetics and theater tickets.

With the exception of telegraphic communications, the telephone industry is the only public utility subject to federal excise tax of any kind at the consumer level.

The telephone excise rate ranks next to whiskey — 67 per cent tax — and tobacco — 53 per cent.

This could be, we suppose, a policy by bureaucrats of "taxing most the things we love best," but we aren't sure these characters rate conversation below a glass of brew in esteem.

Regardless of the cause, we have here a dangerous situation since it is a restriction on communication — even if it is only exchange of gossip — that shouldn't sit well with a free society.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

"Planning For Freedom"

Ludwig von Mises' book "Planning For Freedom" is a very difficult book to summarize. There are so many good things in it that are useful and helpful that one hates not to emphasize them.

I bought the book because I had read about his chapter on "Profit and Loss." I have read most of von Mises' works prior to this book, but did not remember reading his essay on "Profit and Loss." This chapter alone is worth the price of the book. If there is anything needed by the American people, it is to learn the blessings of profits — how they not only benefit the man who makes the profits possible, but benefit every other individual in the world so long as the profits are a result of rendering a service on a competitive basis. What most people do not realize is that profits in order to benefit the owner must be distributed. I didn't fully realize this myself until John Rustgard, the great Swede, pointed this out.

Public opinion has come to regard non-profit organizations as more desirable than organizations run for profit. But non-profit organizations are invariably under the control of some day-dreamer or socialist or planner or dog-gooder. Look at the Carnegie Foundation that had lost at its head. Look at the Ford and Rockefeller Foundations. All of them seem to be headed by impractical men who do not realize that producing wealth is what raises wages. They just love to have the power to distribute what other people have produced.

Under the heading of "Non-Profit Conduct of Affairs" von Mises remarks:

"What has been called the democracy of the market manifests itself in the fact that profit-seeking business is unconditionally subject to the supremacy of the buying public.

"Non-profit organizations are sovereign unto themselves. They are, within the limits drawn by the amount of capital at their disposal, in a position to defy the wishes of the public."

Here is a wise statement that few people realize to be so important:

"In branding profits as excessive and penalizing the efficient entrepreneurs by discriminatory taxation, people are injuring themselves. Taxing profits is tantamount to taxing success in best serving the public. The only goal of all production activities is to employ the factors of production in such a way that they render the highest possible output. The smaller the input required for the production of an article becomes, the more of the scarce factors of production is left for the production of other articles. But the better an entrepreneur succeeds in this regard, the more is he vilified and the more is he soaked by taxation. Increasing costs per unit of output, that is, waste, is praised as a virtue.

"The most amazing manifestation of this complete failure to grasp the task of production and the nature and functions of profit and loss is shown in the popular superstition that the production of an article is left for the production of other articles. But the better an entrepreneur succeeds in this regard, the more is he vilified and the more is he soaked by taxation. Increasing costs per unit of output, that is, waste, is praised as a virtue.

"The unions are already talking about another round of wage boosts.

"The jealousy of the common man looks upon the profits of the entrepreneurs as if they were totally used for consumption. A part of them is, of course, consumed. But only those entrepreneurs attain wealth and influence in the realm of business who consume liberally a fraction of the proceeds and plough back the much greater part into their enterprises.

"The American worker is badly mistaken when he believes that his high standard of living is due to his own excellence. He is neither more industrious nor more skillful than the workers of Western Europe. He owes his superior income to the fact that his country clung to 'rugged individualism' much longer than Europe. It was his luck that the United States turned to an anti-capitalistic policy as much as forty or fifty years later than Germany.

"If one wants to study the reasons for Europe's backwardness, it would be necessary to examine the manifold laws and regulations that prevented in Europe the establishment of an equivalent of the American drug store and crippled the evolution of chain stores, department stores, super markets and kindred outfits.

"The worst menace to prosperity and civilization and to the material well-being of the wage earners is the inability of union bosses, of union economists and of the less intelligent strata of the workers themselves to appreciate the role entrepreneurs play in production.

"The disintegration of the international capital market is one of the most important effects of our age. But no less disastrous is the fact that the greater part of the world's population looks upon the United

WASHINGTON — Senator Taft of Ohio and Representative Sam Mc Connell of Pennsylvania are Hill friends for a good, fair and equitable bill.

As a result, the principal witnesses have been union spokesmen, professors, so-called liberal economists and members of Congress with large, powerful labor constituencies. Most of them want a return to the original Wagner Act, which was so lapsidely pro-union that it led to enactment of the present legislation.

It is true that the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and National Association of Manufacturers have submitted the viewpoint of business and industry. But these organizations never make such a strong impression on the lawmakers as individual industrialists from their districts and states.

Fair Enough... General Matt Eddy Has Been A Fighter Since School Days

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

One way is as good as another to achieve a good result. With this philosophical pearl of dubious luster, I commend to your attention the fair quality was general among the people thereabouts and reflected in their children who come under her eye. Miss Hurley wrote that of a sudden after our crop had passed along, including half a dozen boys who later achieved favorable distinction in a variety of lines, she realized that whereas she had been instructor and a sort of deputy mother or aunt to us, she was not performing the office of cop over a class of brats who reflected the sordidness of their homes. So she took her pension and quit.

Matt Eddy earned extraordinary respect in my regard at that early age because he was the only kid in the neighborhood who was not intimidated by the unearned reputation as a fighter of another boy named Harry Eastman. Eastman was a handsome fellow with a natural knack for athletics. He seems in retrospect to have been a decent boy and I can't say how he came to be held in fear or let us rather say, by all the others except Matt Eddy. I don't recall that any other one ever took the mark to him. But Matt did and they fought after school night after night as the custom was in those days and may be still, bloodied and breathing hard and as proud as any two stags that ever fought in a wood. I do not recall which one won but whoever lost was not without honor.

A year ago, arriving in Frankfort where Lt. Gen. Manton C. Eddy was commander of the 8th Army, I received a courtesy call from a young public relations officer who said the general would be glad to show me over his command, and was there anything he could do meanwhile to make me happy? I said that if it could be arranged without prejudice I would like to see Fourth Army headquarters in the Iron Curtain, and, in the morning, the young corporal arrived in something of a daze at the hotel in Frankfurt, wondering how came the Army Headquarters to single him out for transportation in a staff car over those slippery roads to keep a rendezvous with persons unknown, with a three-day pass in his pocket.

Visiting Gen. Eddy's headquarters and observing the tight, alert authority and professional precision of the command, I felt a degree of satisfaction of which I can only say that I was proud to know him. Being two years older than I, he had known me as well as I had known him or of him when he was fighting Harry Eastman in those gory long-drawn rounds under the El in back of Kenmore Avenue.

I had gone to Lane Technical School for almost a year and a half and, although I have said older than I, he had known me as well as I had known him or of him when he was fighting Harry Eastman in those gory long-drawn rounds under the El in back of Kenmore Avenue.

Gen. Eddy, though, said he had been actually canned from Lane. Manton down here has been canned from Lane, pronounced Leg View, another public high school, but co-educational, whereas Lane was and is strictly stag. There was a general verboten against fraternities in high schools in Chicago then, so Matt Eddy had picked one as a matter of course. It was a fairly common one, called upon by the fully accredited brothers in the sacred, everlasting bond to get up on the rickety little stage of a nickel movie theatre on Clark Street, near Belmont, one night, and make a fool of himself by impromptu antics. It was a fairly common one, called upon by the fully accredited brothers in the sacred, everlasting bond to get up on the rickety little stage of a nickel movie theatre on Clark Street, near Belmont, one night, and make a fool of himself by impromptu antics.

In his biographical stuff in Who's Who, Gen. Eddy skips over these episodes and starts his educational data with his studies at Shattuck Military, a small school at, I believe, Fairbairn, Minn. Shattuck is not listed in the Who's Who Almanac. Being graduated in 1913, he was offered one of an allotment of commissions as second lieutenant which were available to such schools for their best graduates, but turned it down to become a salesman down around St. Louis. But, in 1916, even as we were acclaiming Woodrow Wilson, he was keeping up out of war, his father saw the First World War coming our way and advised Matt to take that commission, otherwise he would be drafted, anyway, for he was big and strong and professionally desirable. Matt did, and his active service led him up to command of the XII Corps in France, Germany and Luxembourg in WW I, and now to the high command of our Army in Germany, which apparently will be his last.

If common practice is followed, the boy who was kicked out of Lane Tech and Leg View will take his last review with four stars on his shoulders. I find it restful the temptation to advise the unhappy cadets who were expelled from West Point for "violations of honor," some of them extremely fine-haired and reaching, to consider Matt's case and be of good hope.

Newly Wed — Honey, aren't all these bills for the clothes you bought before we were married? Wife — Yes, my sweet.

Newly Wed — But don't you think it's unfair to ask a fish to pay for the bait he was caught with?

Mike — Well, Pat, do the twins make much noise at night? Pat — Not above each other's ears so loud you can't hear the other.

DAFFODIL DIRECTIVE — Incidentally, Rep. Paul Shafer of Michigan wants to know how "daffy" dillish a "bureaucrat" can get. Here is a directive for florists' handling of daffodils, as recently issued by Agriculture:

"Unless otherwise specified, each bunch shall consist of 12 daffodils, the flowers of which are uniform in size, and the stems of which are reasonably uniform in length.

"The flowers shall be arranged so that the blossoms form a fairly compact head, which has a flat surface across the back. The stems shall be fairly even at the cut end. Each stem shall be held intact by a string, rubber band or other suitable material placed two to four inches from the cut end."

Kenmore Avenue, Chicago, included Manton, or Matt, Eddy one of three brothers who lived in a frame house up toward Buena Avenue. The Eddy boys were thoroughbred. For that matter as the late Miss Mary Hurley, of the fourth grade at Horace Greeley School, put it not long before she died, good quality was general among the people thereabouts and reflected in their children who come under her eye. Miss Hurley wrote that of a sudden after our crop had passed along, including half a dozen boys who later achieved favorable distinction in a variety of lines, she realized that whereas she had been instructor and a sort of deputy mother or aunt to us, she was not performing the office of cop over a class of brats who reflected the sordidness of their homes. I said that if it could be arranged without prejudice I would like to see Fourth Army headquarters in the Iron Curtain, and, in the morning, the young corporal arrived in something of a daze at the hotel in Frankfurt, wondering how came the Army Headquarters to single him out for transportation in a staff car over those slippery roads to keep a rendezvous with persons unknown, with a three-day pass in his pocket.

Visiting Gen. Eddy's headquarters and observing the tight, alert authority and professional precision of the command, I felt a degree of satisfaction of which I can only say that I was proud to know him. Being two years older than I, he had known me as well as I had known him or of him when he was fighting Harry Eastman in those gory long-drawn rounds under the El in back of Kenmore Avenue.

I had gone to Lane Technical School for almost a year and a half and, although I have said older than I, he had known me as well as I had known him or of him when he was fighting Harry Eastman in those gory long-drawn rounds under the El in back of Kenmore Avenue.

Gen. Eddy, though, said he had been actually canned from Lane. Manton down here has been canned from Lane, pronounced Leg View, another public high school, but co-educational, whereas Lane was and is strictly stag. There was a general verboten against fraternities in high schools in Chicago then, so Matt Eddy had picked one as a matter of course. It was a fairly common one, called upon by the fully accredited brothers in the sacred, everlasting bond to get up on the rickety little stage of a nickel movie theatre on Clark Street, near Belmont, one night, and make a fool of himself by impromptu antics. It was a fairly common one, called upon by the fully accredited brothers in the sacred, everlasting bond to get up on the rickety little stage of a nickel movie theatre on Clark Street, near Belmont, one night, and make a fool of himself by impromptu antics.

In his biographical stuff in Who's Who, Gen. Eddy skips over these episodes and starts his educational data with his studies at Shattuck Military, a small school at, I believe, Fairbairn, Minn. Shattuck is not listed in the Who's Who Almanac. Being graduated in 1913, he was offered one of an allotment of commissions as second lieutenant which were available to such schools for their best graduates, but turned it down to become a salesman down around St. Louis. But, in 1916, even as we were acclaiming Woodrow Wilson, he was keeping up out of war, his father saw the First World War coming our way and advised Matt to take that commission, otherwise he would be drafted, anyway, for he was big and strong and professionally desirable. Matt did, and his active service led him up to command of the XII Corps in France, Germany and Luxembourg in WW I, and now to the high command of our Army in Germany, which apparently will be his last.

If common practice is followed, the boy who was kicked out of Lane Tech and Leg View will take his last review with four stars on his shoulders. I find it restful the temptation to advise the unhappy cadets who were expelled from West Point for "violations of honor," some of them extremely fine-haired and reaching, to consider Matt's case and be of good hope.

"Unless otherwise specified, each bunch shall consist of 12 daffodils, the flowers of which are uniform in size, and the stems of which are reasonably uniform in length.

"The flowers shall be arranged so that the blossoms form a fairly compact head, which has a flat surface across the back. The stems shall be fairly even at the cut end. Each stem shall be held intact by a string, rubber band or other suitable material placed two to four inches from the cut end."

What they do not realize — sometimes their ignorance on government operations is as appalling as their indifference — is that, although Eisenhower, Wilson, Dulles, Humphrey and Stassen, etc., may issue top-level directives, it is the men in the lower echelons who must execute them. It is they who compose what business and industry have suffered from, so they say, for almost 20 years — "bureaucracy."

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Guys and Dolls: "My trouble is that Hollywood has been seeing me as the kind of a girl a man takes home to his mother."

That's gorgeous Joanne Dru waiting about the gallery of well-bred doll parts she's drawn in Hollywood and beaming over her chance to break the type pattern as a dreamy waif in U-I's "You Belong to Me."

"It's a sort of 'Gilda' thing and I hope it will get me into more sophisticated pictures," Joanne confided. "Nice - girl parts make you real dull."

She's going into torrid clinches with Tony Curtis in the film and confiding:

"As first I told the studio I couldn't possibly play opposite Tony. I'm much older. I thought it would be like doing scenes with my kid brother. Well, it's not like that at all. He's quite a man. The only rub is that in the rushes he's better-looking than I am."

Stars with lantern jaws, buck teeth and sunken cheeks won't be around in three-dimensional flickers. What's passable and even attractive in flat photography won't cut the mustard in 3-D.

That's the prediction of Hollywood plastic surgeon Dr. Robert Alan Franklyn, who told me:

The 3-D cameras are going to sweep top names right out of pictures. Facial irregularities will be picked up from teeth to heavy jaws, and no amount of make-up can save the day. The stars who survive will have perfect features.

Round faces will be better than thin faces. The construction of the mouth and jaw will be all-important.

He's Charming Now

Ben Blue, currently riding the TV crest, blames his earlier failure to set the words afire on "too much slapstick and not enough charm."

"You gotta have charm — even when it's a pie in the face and water in the kisser," he told me. Fifty times before in his career, Ben tells it, he came close to the big-time stardom that TV has given him.

"I almost made the grade in pictures," he sighed. "But I stole too many. The stars don't like the one. One big star has it in his contract that he won't do a picture with me. Stealing pictures

Draw Trump Fast
Is Good Advice

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

In most easy hands declarer's best policy is to draw trumps as quickly as possible. In most difficult trump contracts, declarer can not afford to go full speed ahead for the declarer in the hand shows today nobody has a trump pet to tell him that this particular hand was difficult and that trumps should therefore not be drawn.

East won the first trick with the ace of clubs, cashed the ace of hearts in order to get out of the way, and then returned the six of clubs. South won the club return with the king, and led the queen of hearts next in order to draw trumps.

West played low, hoping that South would tie himself in knots if given the chance to do so. And South obliged, by leading the jack of hearts next.

This was the opportunity that West had hoped for. He took the king of hearts and returned his singleton spade. Now declarer saw that the hand was difficult. If he put up dummy's ace or king of spades he would then have the problem of getting out of dummy.

He therefore tried the spade finesse, losing to East's queen. East properly returned a spade, giving West a ruff. West then cashed the setting trick in the form of the ace of diamonds.

When South was allowed to hold the queen of hearts he should have abandoned trumps temporarily. The best play is to lead at once. If West plays low, dummy wins at once with the king of diamonds and now a trump can be returned.

West must win and return a spade, but now it is easy to put up the king of spades from the dummy and return a diamond.

If East wins and returns a spade, West will ruff away declarer's spade loser. Any other defense merely permits declarer to draw the last trump, cash his club, and then lead a spade to dummy's ace.

gets you out of pictures. The only star who would work with me was Dennis Morgan."

The Hollywood boys who make up those brochures about stars who go to church, can fruit and bake cakes aren't going to like Pamela Mason swinging over to their side in the stars - are-just-like-ordinary-people campaign.

The explosive, unpredictable wife of James Mason wants it known that stars are ordinary and average, but her reasons aren't apt to be quoted:

"They have no great brains, no great mentality," the writer - actress laid it on the line. "By a freak of facial advantage or opportunity, they are in a position of enormous importance. They play characters with a purpose of some sort on the screen. But in real life, actors are generally dull and purposeless people."

A Cheap Role

Coleen Gray is about to sign to do "Blind Alley" on the London stage because "it's a great part — a cheap girl—and it just might take me out of the middle class as an actress."

Coleen just finished "The Fake" in London and got along fine with British newsmen. "The day after I went to a play opening in my Marusia gown," she beamed. "The papers printed a huge picture of me. On the same page there was a tiny one of Queen Elizabeth."

Drawing, rustic-homored Herb Shriner was signed to play little more than a bit role in "From Main Street to Broadway," but after his first scene his part was built up to star dimensions.

It's all a surprise to TV's "Two for the Money" man, who says: "I wouldn't have palmed myself off as a movie actor for anything. Maybe it's a good thing, though, that they've taken out the jokes. TV saturates people with a fixed conception of what you are."

Producer Paul Gregory, about Charles Laughton:

"Laughton is like the rock of Gibraltar. People say he's difficult. These people must themselves be difficult to have made Laughton difficult. He's temperamental, yes, but I've never known an actor worth anything who wasn't temperamental. But he isn't difficult. He just reacts badly to anything that's shoddy and mediocre."

Comedian Buddy Hackett's telling about a psychiatrist who asked him "to tell me everything."

"So what happened?" wails Buddy. "I told him everything and now he's on television with my WHOLE ACT."

Nuclear Scientists Help Plasma Supply

CHICAGO, Feb. 25—UP—An atomic expert told how nuclear scientists aided in the development of a substance to "make blood plasma go further," here Tuesday.

Joseph C. Boyce, associate director of the Argonne National laboratory, said doctors have long sought a substance that could be added to blood plasma to increase the supply.

A chemical company produced a promising substance made of sugars, which, when mixed with blood plasma was injected into laboratory animals without seeming to harm them, Boyce said.

However, scientists were able to trace only about half the sugars injected and hesitated to try to experiment on humans until the location of the other sugars could be discovered, he said.

Lively Tells Jaycees Of School Week

An invitation to visit a Pampa public school next week was issued during the weekly meeting of the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Pointing out that March 1 - 7 was Public School Week in Texas, Travis Lively Sr. urged "every citizen of Texas to avail himself of the opportunity next week to visit public schools in the community."

Maintaining that "for the first time there is a definite well-organized campaign in some quarters to discredit the idea of the public school," Lively called on the philosophies of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson to support public school principles.

Dwelling on the theme of "criticism of the nation's public schools from more or less responsible quarters," Lively continued that Washington insisted "public opinion should be enlightened . . . informed . . . intelligent" and that Jefferson helped the "establishment of public schools in Virginia."

Admitting that "none of us thinks they're perfect," he went on to say that "it behooves you to know what's going on in our schools" and to display interest in America's "unique system of schools."

Investigate Pampa's schools, he concluded, in order "to be properly trained in the arts of democracy."

Titled "The Boy Next Door," a color film shown to Jaycees Monday noon dealt with the annual National Junior Golf Tournament, held Aug. 11-16 last year in Eugene, Ore.

Pampa's entry in the match was Tommy Cox.

Each year the tournament is sponsored by the National Golf Foundation and the National Junior Chamber of Commerce.

A Chamber of Commerce stag banquet for Jaycees in appreciation of their work with the city's Christmas-street ornaments, originally for Thursday, has been re-scheduled for March 5, according to Ed Myatt.

An estimated $375 worth of Scotchite was sold through the participation of Boy Scouts and service station operators, Ray Duncan reported. "And several neighboring Lions Clubs want in on the deal."

Purpose of the drive is to give publicity for the boys and to gain awards for the winners. The awards or prizes will be given for the sale of magazines totaling the points required. Each dollar received from a subscription is equal to a dollar point toward an award. For the boys who sell $50 worth of subscriptions, the award is a $40 shot-gun. Forty dollars of subscriptions is worth a pair of shot-gun boots.

Interest is keen among the boys and a number of them had sold over half their quota by last Saturday. There are fifteen boys who are spending spare time on this project.

The boys who carry the largest sales will be given additional prizes. For each $200 sales, the local chapter will receive a shotgun which will remain in the chapter. Thus, if as much as two

Nation's Hairdressers Wage Battle Against Mamie's Bangs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25—UP—There seems to be some sort of a controversy about the hair-do of our new first lady.

The occasion arises on this—National Beauty Salon Week.

A group of hair stylists who decide what milady should do to her coiffure are out to bring the battle of Mrs. Eisenhower's bangs to a peak—so to speak. The hair-doers have sent Mrs. Eisenhower a communication which reads in this vein:

"You Could Look Better"

"Mamie, even with your bangs, you look lovely. You have the personality and charm so that you can get away with bangs. But bangs are not stylish! Most women look horrible in them. As a matter of fact, you would look even more attractive if you would modify the rather harsh, straight lines of the bangs with a soft, shaped wave."

Miriam Cordwell of New York is the chairman of the so-called official hair fashion committee of the national hairdressers and cosmetologists association.

She says that if the hairdressers can get the first lady to take their advice, national hair-do week can be written in the books as a "big success."

"Millions of women," says Miss Cordwell, "might follow Mamie's lead and save themselves from an unsightly hair clip."

Animal Hair-Do's Gone

"In any event, the era of the 'animal kingdom' with its duck tails, pony tails, poodle cuts, and other imitation of styles favored by our four-footed friends is gone."

"The latest styles, the hair expert says, are toward a 'sleek, simple elegance with the accent on femininity. And no bangs."

While the lady in the White House is making up her mind, the hairdressers are going to be a busy lot during their "week" celebration. If things go right, more than 300,000 women will receive hair treatments during the week, they hope.

Panty Raids Take Boys By Surprise

TOLEDO, Ohio, Feb. 25—UP—A frustrated group of Toledo University males wore sheepish grins Wednesday after 35 teen-age girls staged a panty raid in reverse Tuesday night.

The girls, apparently members of a high school group, caught boys coming out of the showers, studying, in their shorts and in bed.

One of the raiders seized a pair of blue striped shorts, ripped them to shreds, and tossed them on the floor.

One student, clad only in shorts, slammed the door on the rampaging females. Two pretty young misses promptly opened it.

"Don't worry, you're too young," they said.

The girls finally fled in a group. They all got away.

The dorm manager restrained the boys from giving chase. He said "come back men, don't follow them."

Can we trust ALL our doctors?

In most homes the doctor has proved a most valuable friend. But a small number of bunglers are endangering their patients and their profession. For one case, a man walks on an artificial limb—because of his doctor's oversight. In another, a psychiatrist is mentally irresponsible himself. Read the remedy leading medical authorities propose in the March Ladies' Home Journal.

White Deer FFA Sponsoring Drive

WHITE DEER (Special) — White Deer Chapter of Future Farmer's are sponsoring a magazine subscription drive which began last Friday and will continue through March 8.

Purpose of the drive is to give publicity for the boys and to gain awards for the winners. The awards or prizes will be given for the sale of magazines totaling the points required. Each dollar received from a subscription is equal to a dollar point toward an award. For the boys who sell $50 worth of subscriptions, the award is a $40 shot-gun. Forty dollars of subscriptions is worth a pair of shot-gun boots.

Interest is keen among the boys and a number of them had sold over half their quota by last Saturday. There are fifteen boys who are spending spare time on this project.
