Van Fleet Star Witness In Full-Scale Korean Inquiry

Congress To Weigh War-Winning Plans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—UP—The biggest congressional-Korean war investigation since the 1951 MacArthur dismissal hearing shaped up Thursday with Gen. James A. Van Fleet as the star witness.

The Senate Armed Services committee summoned the retiring Eighth Army commander to defend his war-winning plan against Gen. Omar N. Bradley's warning that it might unnecessarily invite World War III.

Chairman Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) said he particularly wanted Van Fleet to testify as soon as possible on the probable costs and results of an early, all-out drive against the Communists.

As the spotlight in the Senate debate swung from the merits of a Red China blockade to the Van Fleet proposals, the administration was reported considering two new major moves to break the Korean stalemate.

One plan calls for an urgent appeal to all non-Communist members of the United Nations to step up their manpower, equipment and supply contributions to the war effort as much as humanly and economically possible.

Under the other proposal, the United States would try again to persuade the entire free world to cut off all trade, strategic and otherwise, with Communist China. Not considering assault.

Republican leaders have said the administration apparently is not considering a major frontal assault in Korea and Bradley's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations committee tended to support this belief.

It was learned late Wednesday that the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff solemnly warned that an end-of-war offensive not only would risk all-out war but would mean heavy casualties and require a vast expansion of the military mobilization program.

One senator even said Bradley meant "total" mobilization, although it wasn't clear whether he believed this was required to undertake the offensive or to deal with possible broadening of the war.

On the other hand, Van Fleet, now on his way home from Korea, said the United Nations forces are presently fully capable, both from the standpoint of manpower and equipment, of launching an offensive that would break the stalemate.

Van Fleet Leaves The Far East On Journey To States

TOKYO, Feb. 12—UP—Gen. James A. Van Fleet left Thursday for the United States where he faces a congressional inquiry into his statements that the Eighth Army could launch a major offensive and break the Korean deadlock.

The former Eighth Army commander took off in Gen. Mark Clark's personal Constellation at 5:05 p.m. (2:05 a.m. est). He is due in Honolulu at noon (4 p.m. est), where he planned to meet his wife.

After a seven-day stopover, they will sail to the United States, arriving in San Francisco about Feb. 25.

"Thanks for everything," said the 60-year-old general as he climbed into the plane.

At the airport to say goodbye to him were Clark, Far East commander of Far East Naval forces, and other officers and friends.

Israel Break Natural Climax To Russ Anti-Semitic Drive

Editor's note: The following dispatch on the implications of Russia's diplomatic breach with Israel was written by a United Press correspondent who long has specialized in reporting and analyzing developments behind the Iron Curtain.

By W. A. RYSER LONDON, Feb. 12—UP—Diplomats believed Thursday that Russia welcomed any opportunity to break with Israel as a natural climax to her violent hostility to Zionism, which she regards as a tool of American espionage.

It was believed here Russia's action was a calculated move in power politics. It may, in the opinion of diplomats, precede an attempt to stir up Arab-Jewish enmity in the Middle East.

Buckingham Gives Up Assn. Presidency

Howard Buckingham, Pampa, today relinquished his presidency of the Texas Branch U. S. Highway 60 Association but retained his membership on its board of directors.

This action came at this morning's session of the association's two-day convention in Hereford, according to E. O. (Red) Wedgeworth, local chamber of commerce manager and one of the six Pampanas attending.

Meanwhile, four tourists, who hadn't broken the tiniest law, were arrested by Texas Highway Patrolmen Wednesday and turned over to the custody of Hereford, Tex., citizens.

The Rev. and Mrs. Emil Sanson of Moberge, S. D. were arrested as they drove westward along U.S. Highway 60 and W. O. and Mrs. George Johnson, of Oceanside, Calif., were arrested as they drove eastward along the same road.

The four were fined heavily. But they soon found it was all in fun. The fines included certificates proclaiming their honorary citizenship of Hereford, free overnight lodging, free hair styles for the ladies, free automobile service, complete western outfits for all and the promise of a free lodging for a night at any other desired point along Highway 60.

New president of the group is Earl Phillips, Hereford, elected late this morning by an estimated 50 persons present at the session.

Mary Jean Completely Calm After Jury Finds Her Guilty

WICHITA FALLS, Feb. 12—UP—Mrs. Mary Jean Parsons, wealthy Tulsa socialite, was completely relaxed and even laughed a time or two after a jury found her guilty of murdering her soldier-husband, a sheriff who took her to the women's ward of the county jail said Thursday.

The jury of men ruled Wednesday that Mrs. Parsons was guilty of murder with malice when she shot her husband, Lt. Richard O. Parsons of Pleasantville, N. Y., last Feb. 16. They set her punishment at 10 years. Judge Arthur Tipps of the 30th district court was to pronounce formal sentence Thursday.

Mrs. Parsons, who is 22, listened to the verdict with no display of emotion. Her mother, Mrs. Burtner Pleeger of Tulsa, collapsed and had to be put under the care of a psychiatrist who had been a witness in the trial.

Wichita county Sheriff Weldon Bailey and Mrs. Belle Harrell, a matron, took Mrs. Parsons to the women's ward of the county jail, Bailey said Mrs. Parsons shook hands with him and then remarked: "You're a real Texas sheriff aren't you? Look how tall you are."

He said Mrs. Parsons appeared completely relaxed when she was locked up in the women's ward. "She started eating candy right away. Belle's got candy all over the place up there," he said. "She even laughed a time or two."

Defense attorneys claimed that Mrs. Parsons was insane. Several psychiatrists who appeared as defense witnesses said they believed she was a schizophrenic—a person who has lost contact with reality.

Married Six Weeks She and Parsons had been married only six weeks when she shot him twice in the temple with a .32 caliber pistol she had bought on Valentine's Day. They were living in an apartment in El Paso, since Parsons was stationed at nearby Fort Bliss. Parsons was in bed asleep when Mrs. Parsons killed him.

Grand Jury Indicts 12 For Arms Sale

DALLAS, Feb. 12—UP—A federal grand jury Thursday indicted 12 persons on charges of shipping $185,000 worth of arms to Mexico and Assistant U. S. Attorney William Cantrell Jr. said he was "strongly suspicious" that some of the arms may have reached enemies of the United States.

SPIES' PLEA DENIED — A plea for executive clemency was rejected for convicted atom spies Ethel and Julius Rosenberg. The pair faces early execution with the death date slated to be selected Monday.

"The indictment mentions only a few of the scores of shipments of arms that were actually made by or to persons named in the indictment," Cantrell said.

He said arms illegally exported "are extremely prone to be diverted into the hands of the enemies of this country, and also into the hands of elements subversive to the interests of the United States and of our neighboring allies."

"Not All Behind Iron Curtain" He would not say whether he meant Communist countries. But he added: "Not all of the enemies of this country are behind the Iron Curtain."

The grand jury said the 12 persons indicted, a 13th man, Arturo Gonzalez, who is now dead, and "divers other persons" conspired to unlawfully export arms, ammunition and implements of war without obtaining export licenses, and without keeping proper records as required by law.

The guns and ammunition were purchased from Thurman Randle and Thomas D. Park, doing business as Thurman Randle & Co., in Dallas, the grand jury charged. It charged that Juan Ignacio (See GRAND JURY, Page 2)

API Membership Progress Reported As Encouraging

Local APImen reported encouraging progress in the annual membership drive being conducted now by the Pampa chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

The local chapter, its membership covering the entire Texas Panhandle, is aiming for a minimum goal of 700. And, according to Martin Ludeman, API secretary-treasurer, there seems to be considerable interest being shown in the drive this year.

The campaign will be climaxed with a dance slated in Bunavista, Feb. 28.

A Burger kick-off dinner was held earlier this week and API officials are expecting the city area to show more interest this year since the dance is being held in that area. This is the first year the annual membership drive has not been held in Pampa.

The dance is to be held in the Bunavista Cafeteria with a Pampa dance orchestra, the Mello-Aires, providing music. The affair will begin at 9:30 p.m. and last until 11:30.

Membership and dance tickets may be bought from any officer or director of the API or by contracting Ludeman.

Show Plans Completed

Everything is in shape at Recreation Park for the 1953 Hereford Breeders Fat Stock show and sale, according to Ralph Thomas, county agent.

Pens are ready to receive the record breaking number of entries for the show which is slated to begin Sunday and run through Tuesday. And vocational class boys from Pampa Senior High School have completed cleaning up and have installed the decorations.

Working with the students and Thomas have been Bill Goldston, assistant county agent, and Clyde Carruth, Junior Livestock show superintendent.

The stock is expected to start arriving early Saturday, Thomas said, and includes 71 fat calves and 93 hogs, which is more than has been entered in any previous show. Entries are from a five-county area.

By counties the number of fat calves entered include Gray, 22; Roberts, 18; Hemphill, 10; Wheeler, 20 and Carson, 4.

Hogs entered are Gray county, 18; Carson, 4; Wheeler, 27; Hemphill, 2; and Roberts, 2.

Doomed Atom Spies Facing Early Death

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—UP—Convicted atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, their last-ditch appeal for clemency turned down by President Eisenhower, will learn next Monday the new date for their execution in Sing Sing prison's electric chair.

Legal sources here said they believed Judge Irving R. Kaufman, who presided at the couple's 16-day trial in 1951, would set an early execution date, possibly during the first half of March.

Emanuel H. Bloch, attorney for the Rosenbergs, said he would make every effort to save them. He said these avenues open to him:

1. He may ask for an extension of the stay of execution which Judge Kaufman granted Jan. 5 to permit the Rosenbergs to seek executive clemency. It expires Monday.

2. He may ask the circuit court of appeals or the Supreme Court for a stay of execution.

3. He may apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari for the granting of a review of the case.

The Supreme Court twice before has refused to review the case and the finality of Mr. Eisenhower's statement Wednesday on the Rosenbergs' appeal left considerable doubt that Bloch would meet with much success.

In denying clemency, the President concurred with Judge Kaufman, who said in passing sentence April 5, 1951, that the Rosenbergs committed "a crime worse than murder" when they passed America's atomic secrets to Russia.

The President said he had studied the case carefully and was satisfied that the Rosenbergs "have been accorded their full measure of justice."

"There has been neither new evidence nor have there been mitigating circumstances which would justify altering this decision," he said, "and I have determined that it is my duty, in the interest of the people of the United States, not to set aside the verdict of their representatives."

Though Pampa's school system would not necessarily be affected by a proposed $500-a-cross-the-board wage hike, local schoolmen today maintained that the true value of such a move would be to attract "new blood" into the teaching system.

Gray County school teachers, however—in Alameda and McLean—would definitely be affected financially if such a bill went through the state legislature, according to B. R. Nuckols, county schools superintendent.

For some of the schoolmen throughout the county are earning only the state's base yearly pay of $2,400, Nuckols said, emphasizing that there were some not having a Bachelor of Arts degree and a teaching certificate who were making even less.

No teacher in the Pampa school district, however, earns less than $3,000 per year, according to Knox Kinard, Pampa schools superintendent.

Recently passed by one house of the Texas legislature was a bill to jump by law all teachers' salaries throughout the state to $3,000 (the full $600, if necessary) and to permit the state's school system to raise its own salaries.

Sen. Edward Thye (R-Minn.), who introduced Benson, said the beef scare started because of a drought in the Southwest which frightened farmers into shipping more than normal numbers of cattle to market.

The delegates, representing 188,000 CLA members in 14 states and Canada, listened intently but without applause to Benson's 30-minute speech.

British End Sudanese Rule

LONDON, Feb. 12—UP—Great Britain and Egypt agreed Thursday to grant self-government to the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, and thus opened the way for Egypt's possible entrance to the Allied Middle Eastern defense setup.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced in the House of Commons that the historic agreement was initiated in Cairo Thursday.

The agreement ended a joint British-Egyptian rule of the Sudan which had existed since 1899. It ended years of bitter disputes over the 967,500-square-mile African territory and long months of tedious negotiations.

Egyptian strong man Premier Mohammed Naguib and British Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson concluded the agreement in Cairo at a final conference.

The issue of British military occupation of the Egyptian Suez Canal Zone remained. But it was hoped here that the Sudan agreement would lead the way to settlement of that problem, and that as the result, Egypt and its fellow Arab nations might come into the Allied plans for defense of the Middle East against Communist encroachment.

Under the agreement the 8,000,000 people of the Sudan will get self-government. After three years they will determine themselves whether to tie themselves to the British Commonwealth, to Egypt or to remain independent.

Heavy Fog Slows Activity In Korea

SEOUL, Feb. 12—UP—Heavy fog cut Korean war ground action to scattered patrols and air activity practically to zero Thursday, giving the Communists a chance to repair supply routes and bring up more war material to the front.

It was not until afternoon that UN warplanes were able to take to the air at all, and then the action was limited to two attacks by the fighter-bombers, F-86 Sabrejets reported tangling with Communist MIG-15 jet fighters but made no claims.

Earlier a Fifth Air Force spokesman said: "There is no air action to report. This is the kind of weather the Communists like. They can move as they please."

Benson Tells Cattlemen Beef Price Drop Has Been Checked

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 12—UP—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, in his first major farm speech, told cattlemen that the drop in beef prices had been checked and that price supports should only be used as "disaster insurance."

Benson Wednesday night told some 3,000 delegates to a Central Livestock Association meeting here that farm price supports should not be used to encourage "uneconomic production" leading to big surpluses and subsidies.

He apparently set the stage for a major shift in the government's farm policies from dependence on "government bounty" to a "free market" economy.

The recent breaks in the cattle market, he said, "appeared to be

NO. 7—FAREWELL TO SPRINGFIELD

Still standing on its original site is the Great Western railway station in Springfield, Ill., from which Lincoln departed to assume the presidency of the U. S. From the train, in a heavy downpour, Lincoln delivered his touching "farewell address" to his friends. He had lived in Springfield for 25 years, made many friends, rose to prominence, married, and watched his family grow. With great humility he thanked the people, for he felt he owed them everything and asked the Divine Being for guidance in the tremendous task that lay before him as chief executive.

Beef, Poultry, Rites Pending For Hog Showing Bobby G. Mitchell At Canadian

CANADIAN (Special)—The annual Hemphill County Junior Livestock Show will be held Saturday, February 14, at the Municipal Auditorium here.

Two classes of fat steers and two classes of hogs will be shown by the county 4-H and FFA boys. Youth prizes will also be exhibited. A type class of breeding sows and a type class of breeding sows will be shown for the first time this year.

The judge for the show will be J. P. Smith of Pan-Tex Farms of Amarillo.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce sponsors the show and furnishes the principal cash prizes. Other prizes and trophies are awarded by individuals and local business firms. A traveling trophy dedicated to the well-known county agent, Walter Grist, will be awarded to the outstanding 4-H boy of the year. This trophy will be awarded each year and will be called the Walter Grist Memorial Trophy. Grist was killed in an automobile accident last January 14th.

The 4-H and FFA boys projects are under the supervision of Hemphill County Agent Warren Pickens, Jr., and Canadian vocational teacher, Johnny Sims.

districts to grant the $600 increase to all teachers, if it were feasible.

Pampa teacher salaries run from $2,000 to $4,500 per year, while those in other parts of the county range from $2,400 to "close to $4,000."

Maintaining that it was strictly a matter of "the law of supply and demand," Nuckols pointed out that public schools in this area and over the state were having a difficult time competing with big-paying industries and businesses in procuring adequate personnel.

Sounding a note of alarm, the county superintendent emphasized that "while the number of school-age youths is increasing—both here and over the nation—the teacher supply is decreasing." And he added that "a much more critical teacher shortage in the near future," he added.

Opining that "most school people and those interested" are for the pay raise, Nuckols definitely thought the purpose of the hike would be "not so much for salary as for getting qualified teachers."

Another proposal recently tossed into Austin's legislative hopper to prohibit school officials from requiring membership in the Texas State Teachers Association as a condition of employment is somewhat anomalous in that it really doesn't apply in this area—or any other, Kinard and Nuckols said.

Pampa and Gray County, however, have had 100-per-cent membership in TSTA for the past four years, they pointed out. And there has been a continuing "campaign" for such a record.

"Although there is no requirement locally," Kinard said, "naturally, we take a professional pride" in having all area teachers in the organization. A companion group, the Texas Classroom Teachers Association, is run on the same basis, he continued.

Only requirement of such a nature for employment, the Pampa schoolmen went on, is membership in the teachers' retirement system in which 5 per cent of a teacher's salary up to $3,500 is put

Nationalists Can Hit Mainland Any Time

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12—UP—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said in a wireless interview Thursday that his forces can invade Red China whenever they choose, without sanction of the United Nations and with no fear of Russian intervention. But he does not believe he is adequately prepared for such an invasion now.

The Nationalist leader answered nine questions which I put to him after President Eisenhower's announcement lifting the "neutrality" ban on Formosa.

Chiang said that full-scale invasion of China cannot wait "until we are fully prepared."

Not Yet Equipped
"We must admit, however," he continued, "that our armed forces are not as yet adequately equipped for a full-scale invasion."

"It will take some time to have our armed forces adequately equipped."

Chiang said that when the time comes, the Chinese Reds will prove themselves incapable of fighting a two-front war.

I had interviewed Chiang twice before. I saw him the first time at the fall of Shanghai in 1949 and heard him exhort his troops to fight the "crucial battle for China." The next time was at his mountain-side home at Taipei in October, 1951. Then I saw the generalissimo and Madame Chiang together.

Chiang said Thursday that any invasion of Red China now will require United States logistic support.

"Needs Air, Naval Weapons"
"The most essential support that we need consists of air and naval weapons and ammunition."

He said, "I feel certain that our armed forces will receive the full support of the civil population on the mainland."

"I have reason to believe that as the invasion plans unfold, many soldiers now under Communist command will rally to our cause. It must be pointed out however, that such results will accrue only

GRAND JURY TONIGHT

Fuentes of Durango, Mex., bought the arms on open account and arranged with Randle and Park to ship them to Avelino Luna F. of El Paso, Tex.; Merced Munoz and Pedro Munoz, doing business as the Sun Furniture Co. of El Paso; Hector Arroyo, at the Midland Specialty Co., in El Paso; Pedro Valenzuela, at Spencer Brothers, Presidio, Tex.; Arturo Gonzalez (the dead man) at Laredo, Tex., and Edward A. Beckelmyer, also of Laredo.

This was done, the grand jury charged, "to facilitate the ultimate introduction of such arms into said Republic of Mexico."

The illegal arms shipments were made between May 14, 1947, and July 10, 1952, the grand jury charged.

The three other persons indicated were Robert Salcido, Agustin Guerrero and Enrique Duarte, whose addresses were listed as "unknown."

The indictment specifies only that they conspired with the other alleged arms exporters "and divers other persons" to ship arms, ammunition and implements of war out of the United States to Mexico.

The grand jury charged that Thurman Randle & Co., sold the arms to Fuentes "well knowing that the said arms, ammunition and implements of war were intended for ultimate introduction into the Republic of Mexico, a foreign country."

Cooke Case Goes Before Jury Today

A 12-man 31st District Court jury to hear a compensation suit brought by James R. Cooke against the American General Insurance Co. was being drawn this morning following an unexpected settlement for $1,500 late last night of the case of Robert P. Fewell vs Texas Employers Insurance Association.

The Cooke case came to a close at 10 p.m. yesterday while Judge Lewis M. Goodrich and attorneys were working on the court's charge to the jury.

Fewell, who was injured on the job while working for the Pampa Hardware Store, asked for 401 weeks of workmen's compensation at $25 per week, totaling $10,025.

This morning the jury hearing the case was disbanded by Judge Goodrich but ordered to stand by for possible selection in the Cooke case.

Cooke was injured on the job while working for Brown and Root during construction of the Caleneas plant.

Testimony in the Fewell case took just a little more than a half day after trial preliminaries were completed yesterday morning.

Rotary Names 7 Directors

Pampa Rotary Club today has seven directors for the 1953-54 fiscal year from which a president will be selected in the near future.

The seven men, some of them reelected, were named yesterday in the second round of voting which started last week. The entire club roster was put for election to the board, from there the highest 15 were placed on the second ballot and from them the seven elected.

The board of directors at a later date will meet to organize and select the president, and secretary-treasurer of the club. Paul Beisenherz, current president, will automatically become vice-president for the next year.

Dick Rust, Phillips, vice-president of the Adobe Walls Council, Boy Scouts of America, gave a spirited 10-minute talk on the purposes of the boys' organization. He emphasized the fact that today's youth will provide the leadership of tomorrow; the boys will carry out and possibly change the policies of business, government, church and society when they take over, he said.

Announcements of three coming events were made by Quentin Williams (Top O' Texas Hereford Breeders Show and Sale—next week); Clinton Evans (a Kiwanian) the Thursday night meeting of citizens and volunteer workers in the county court room to set up a United Fund drive for Pampa, and Beisenherz, reminding members of the public meeting being held Feb. 19 by the League of Women Voters when Wes Izzard will speak.

Prince Swineherd Coming Monday ... Play Producer Seeks To Get High Standards For Audience

A Princess, a King and a Prince turned swineherd are just four days away from Pampa. For "Prince Swineherd," a fairytale play of dance and drama written by Hans Christian Andersen and adapted for the stage by Edwin Strawbridge, will be presented at 4 p.m. Monday in the Junior high school auditorium. Sponsored by the Pampa branch of the American Association of University Women, the play—designed for both parents and their children—reflects Strawbridge's conviction that "the child pattern his life in accordance with the ideals portrayed before him" on the stage.

And "appreciation and effort to be kind and unselfish in the pattern of conduct impressed on the child by the colorful rendering of the Strawbridge production of 'Prince Swineherd,'" according to Miss Evelyn Milam, branch association president.

"Dramatic impetus of the play," Miss Milam said, "is how a selfish Princess who loves only heartless things learns their uselessness and comes to appreciate the good that results from thoughtful and consideration... a lesson easily grasped by any child."

Emphasizing that Strawbridge Productions are "noted for their brilliant and picturesque backdrop," Miss Milam pointed out that the scenery is done by Louis Kennel, New York, who "each year at Thanksgiving delights children with his fantastic scenic floats for the celebrated Macy's parade in New York City."

First act of the play is performed before a backdrop depicting the "Princess' playroom," the walls of which are covered with familiar characters and episodes from stories known and loved by all children. She loves only toys and artificial things "that have no heart."

Second backdrop shows where the castle grounds end and the piggery begins and it is here that most of the action takes place. "Carried forward by dialogue, music, dancing and magic," the play "moves quickly as all plays for children should move and is merry and bright," Miss Milam concluded.

Reporter Leaves The Glamor Beat For Saucer Inspection

(Editor's Note—With flying saucers reportedly buzzing Hollywood these days, United Press' Hollywood reporter, Alvin Mosby, hustled off the glamor beat to the jet testing center for Lockheed's F-94 Starfire to check on spinning discs over Filmland.)

By ALVIN MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 12—UP—Flying saucers are getting as thick around here as palm trees and blondes—but not on the days you look for them.

The minute jet pilots reported twirling plates over Hollywood, my boss remembered the movies have female jet fliers, such as Janet Leigh in "Jet Pilot." So I was assigned to go up and find out what a lady jetter thinks about—and keep my eyes peeled for stray discs.

Thus I made out my will and became the fourth female to take an authorized ride in a jet plane in the United States.

"I didn't see any flying saucers, only the inside of my eyeballs, a few mountain tops and the oxygen dial that said I was still breathing (I wanted to be sure!)."

"We saw a tear-shaped object at 60,000 feet last week," reported the pilot, Maj. William MacLaren, Des Moines, Ia., but he added hastily, "I think it was just a weather balloon."

The Air Force took a pessimistic attitude about my excursion. First I signed papers saying if I died I wouldn't sue.

In celluloid, Miss Leigh wore slinky white, coveralls, trimmed in pink. I crawled into coveralls, blue and baggy.

The major apparently had better things to do than fly female flying saucer reporters around. He requested I kindly remove my high heels before climbing into his machine.

Next came a parachute, a heavy man-from-Mars-type helmet with built-in earphones and windshield, an oxygen mask that covered my face, a harness that strapped me tightly into the plane seat, and a paper carton in case my lunch did a return engagement.

Under these inhibiting circumstances, I didn't see much.

Furthermore, most of the time the plane flew upside down. I was too paralyzed to inquire why. For some reason Major MacLaren seemed to like it that way.

Taking off in a jet is like being shot out of a slow cannon and then suddenly lifted in quiet elevator. There's no sound, no vibration and before you can swallow, you're 15,000 feet in the air. I felt a pang of nostalgia for that comforting propeller noise and a pert brunette to hand out magazines, gum and chicken a la king.

My T-33 trainer plane seemed to float above the desert. I felt the speed only when the pilot turned the ship after he buzzed the field at 530 miles an hour, just for laughs.

This jet game isn't quite like the movies. There's only one pin-up picture in the pilots' "ready room." In "Jet Pilot," John Wayne takes off for the nearest blonde after he's whooshed through space. But my pilot, a quiet, studious man yawned he was going home to play with the kids and mow the lawn.

Valley Residents Fight Diversion

WESLACO, Tex., Feb. 12—UP—The Rio Grande Valley won't have enough water for residents to "take a bath" if Mexico diverts its full share of the Rio Grande, a water authority said Thursday.

"There may be nothing but drinking water left in the highly irrigated Valley," O. E. Van Berg, court-appointed water master for Valley irrigation districts, forecasts, "and there certainly won't be enough water for everyone to take a bath."

The Rio Grande, which already is dangerously low, is the only water source in the Valley outside individual wells.

Mexico recently announced it would divert its full share—45 per cent—of the international stream at Rio Grande City, Tex., as it is allowed to do under treaties in force between Mexico and the United States.

Life Behind Iron Curtain Turns Escapée From 'Citizen' To 'Hero'

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

The reasons why an estimated 250,000 Iron Curtain "citizens" each month risk their lives to escape from the Red satellites are as varied as life itself.

Some of the escapees are bitter opponents of Communism and the Soviet-imposed regimes. In many cases the reasons are economic; sometimes they are psychological. But the vast majority escape because of fear—because of the Red terror they can no longer endure.

Said Zygmunt Marchwicki, a 33-year-old Polish post office employe who chose freedom, "It is the eternal terror—a terror that seems to be lurking in every corner and rules our daily life—that transforms ordinary citizens, plain mortals into heroes."

A dramatic message which recently reached the International Centre of Free Trade Unionists in Exile through underground channels tells part of the story.

"Apart from a few fanatics, nobody believes in the regime any longer," the message reads. "However, we no longer have the strength to continue our resistance. The grinding machine of communism is crushing us."

No one engaged in newspaper work behind the Iron Curtain is safe. "A typographical error, or a badly turned out phrase (from the Stalinist point of view) is cause for internment in a forced labor camp, imprisonment or even death as an enemy of the working class," the newsmen write.

"We are slaves in the service of constant living while we witness the terrible truth—misery, terror and economic failure," the message concludes.

Terror and rapidly deteriorating economic conditions are also the main reasons for Franciszek Nowak's escape from Poland.

A skilled mechanic, Nowak worked for 15 years in one of the largest machine-tool plants in central Poland. The plant was a badly damaged during the Nazi occupation, but was not into production again in 1946 after Communist nationalization.

The first eight weeks, the workers of the plant received no wages. They were told by the new Red manager that as long as the plant was not in perfect working order he was unable to meet the payroll.

Since it is forbidden to strike under communism—strikes are regarded as sabotage and strikers are liable to 20 years in a forced labor camp—there was little that the plant employes could do to claim their wages.

In Red-ruled Poland, despite of official claims, there is a vast disproportion between wages and the cost of living. No worker, however skilled or experienced, is able to buy even the bare necessities. Only the Communist bureaucrats and their hangers-on earn enough to buy luxury articles, especially in Warsaw, is hard, it is far better than in the rural areas. Under the new forced collectivization scheme, the rural areas are treated as the worst sense of the word, and ruthlessly exploited.

Particularly tragic is the fate of the old and infirm, especially of the former middle or wealthy classes, who are doomed to slow starvation.

Whether in the plant or at home, there was always an informer of the secret police lurking behind him. But what finally drove him to risk escape was fear that the regime was preparing to try him for "sabotage."

Nowak's story is by no means unique, and has been repeated with slight variations, by many Iron Curtain refugees recently interviewed by NEA Service.

The satellite regimes, under Soviet pressure, constantly clamor for increased industrial—especially war—production. Each month, higher production "norms" are enforced. Machines and tools wear out faster, but once there is a breakdown the Red officials start once a hunt for a scapegoat—a "worker's enemy."

Nowak's turn came early in 1951. His tool grinder broke down. Immediately the secret police started an inquiry. As Nowak puts it, "to anyone familiar with the work it was obvious that my poor old tool grinder was simply worn out by overwork and age."

But the Communist police saw the whole thing in an entirely different light. The same day they questioned two of Nowak's friends for several hours.

Then, exactly five minute past midnight, there was a knock on the door of the little house where Nowak lived alone.

"Police, open the door," someone said softly.

Nowak was prepared for them. "Instead of opening the door, I took a few garments and jumped. Looking back as I ran, I saw four men searching my room. All four had guns in their hands."

Through the kitchen window—and through the Iron Curtain—Nowak finally escaped the Red "paradise."

Nowak paints a grim picture of life in Red-ruled Poland. Although life in the industrial cities, espe-

Twin Calves Will Draw Fancy Price From Agriculture Dept.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—UP—The Department of Agriculture is willing to pay a fancy price for identical twin calves.

If any cattle raiser happens to have a pair in the feed lot—and the chances are only one in a thousand that he does—he should call Republic 7-4142.

Dr. C. F. Winchester of the Bureau of Animal Industry at Beltsville, Md., is about fresh out of such animals with which he has been experimenting.

Cheap Meat Hope
"We hope some day as a result of our work, to get cheaper and better meat on the market," Winchester said. "The fact that the price of meat currently is on the skids has nothing to do with our experiments. Our work hasn't gone that far yet. The recent drop in prices can be laid to the fact that supplies are larger."

Fredling experiments with identical twin calves were started in 1950 with six pairs. The work was continued with 10 more pairs bought in 1951.

Need Young Twins
The bureau needs twins that are not more than four months old. Winchester prefers the Aberdeen Angus, Hereford, or Shorthorn breeds, but would not turn down grades or crossbreeds of any of these or other breeds—which include twins from dairy cows sired by a beef bull. Purpose of the experiments is this:

"We set out to determine," the animal industry man said, "whether growing calves fed only enough for a few months to keep them from losing weight, will grow rapidly and economically later, when put on adequate rations. They do."

In the tests, one of the identical twins gets the limited ration; the other is fed full rations.

Protect Health
"We found, though," said Winchester, "that the health of the young animals must be protected while they are on the skimmy rations. They must have liberal allowances of protein, minerals, and carotene—or vitamin A."

Most of the calves at Beltsville that have been on limited rations reached slaughter weight within three months after the same weight (1,000 pounds) was reached by their twins."

Just as important, the quality of the meat of the calves started on small rations was as good as the ones which were fed more.

"It is possible now," according to Winchester, "to reveal the number of energy units (calories) a certain calf will require in order to maintain its body weight. Or the number of units needed to make gains in weights at any reasonable rate of growth. A 400 pound calf, for example, needs about 5,400 calories daily or it will lose weight. To gain 1.6 pounds a day, it needs 12,500 calories a day."

Carpet Careers
THOMPSONVILLE, Conn. — UP—Four brothers worked a total of 247 years at the Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Company, producing an estimated half a million yards of carpeting—enough for 25,000 homes. Daniel Burges worked 66 years, Ernest 63 years, Everett 60, and Frederick 58.

How True!
NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. — UP—Usually motorists consider jay-walking pedestrians sources of irritation, but at least one feels differently. When a stout woman waddled across his path in the middle of the block, a motorist shouted: "That's okay, lady, you were here before cars were invented."

Mexican Lesson To The World; Revolution Alone Won't Work

By PETER EDSON
NEA Staff Correspondent
MEXICO CITY — (NEA) — A month's travel through modern old Mexico offers many striking proofs that the country below the Rio Grande has found out the hard way it can't develop by nationalism and socialism alone.

That is the one big lesson Mexico offers, not only to the rest of Latin America but to the under-developed countries all over the world.

Mexico's new president, Dr. Adolfo Ruiz Cortines, has not tipped his hand on all his policies. But Mexicans and resident American businessmen all expect a more conservative administration—and a more honest one.

This is not to say Mexico is going to welcome American or other foreign capital to do as it pleases. But as one American businessman long resident in Mexico told me: "all the revolutionaries of the 1910-1940 period who are still alive are millionaires now," an indication of the "private enterprise boom" that has hit Mexico in the last 10 years.

The expropriation of land for allocation to the Indian peons still goes on, however. Any estate of more than 750 acres is subject to seizure and division.

The two foreign power companies still operating in Mexico—one American, one Canadian—are in an uneasy status. Foreign-owned public utilities may be taken over at any time.

A similar squeeze is apparent in the steel industry. The Mexican government operates one mill, at Alamos Hornos. There are two others in which there is foreign capital. The pressure has begun to be applied through government attempts to allocate scrap iron.

Mexico is still to be regarded as a socialistic country in which nationalization plays a big part. But the Mexican Party of Revolutionary Institutions (PRI), which has ruled the roost since 1929, has found out that government can't do everything.

The petroleum industry was nationalized in the 1930's by seizing 17 British and American companies. But since then, the Mexican oil monopoly has learned its resources as fast as needed, so today two advantageous types of drilling contracts are being given American companies.

A year ago Mexico completed acquisition of all its railroads from foreign capital. This was done by purchasing the old west coast Southern Pacific line, a losing operation, for $12 million—a junk value far below the cost of the roadbed. But the government, which took over all the other railroads, allowed private Mexican capital to acquire this one.

In this changed business climate, many American firms no longer regard the Mexican government as revolutionary. They are putting in new branch facilities and expanding old ones. The country is being industrialized at a rate that sets an example for under-developed countries all over the world.

General Motors is today Mexico's biggest industry, with an assembly plant that last year turned out some 19,000 cars and trucks, plus refrigerators and other appliances. Taxes levied against GM totaled two per cent of Mexico's revenues.

Ford, likewise under American ownership and management, is a close second. DuPont, Kellogg (breakfast foods) and Nescafe have plants in Mexico. Chrysler, Studebaker, Packard and other companies have formed Mexican subsidiaries. Goodyear and U. S. Tires stick to American ownership; Goodrich and General Tire operate as Mexican.

Sears Roebuck has stores in several cities, and the "Super Mercado" — supermarket — has made its appearance. Coca Cola and Pepsi Cola bottling plants are everywhere. Street vendors hawk these things in a land where everybody seems to be trying to sell something on a free enterprise basis—even if it's only an orange, a banana or a lottery ticket.

In sum, business in Mexico is good. Everyone who has been here before comments on changes of the last 10 years. To a surprising degree, Mexico is recovering from the revolutionary, almost Communist growing pains of the previous two decades. The complete revolution just didn't work.

This is the experience which Mexico can hold up to Iran, or Egypt, or India, or the Argentine, or any other country troubled by revolt.

Ozzie And Harriet Praised For Plan

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11—UP—Ozzie and Harriet Nelson, parents in real life as well as in radio and television shows, had judicial praise Wednesday for their "most liberal" savings plan for the $1,100 a week salary of their two sons, David, 16, and Ricky, 12.

Superior Judge Frank Swain approved a 40-week contract for the boys Tuesday with the National Broadcasting Co., and said he wished other parents would set up similar saving plans for their children.

The contract calls for the boys to invest half of their earnings in government bonds and other securities. The rest of their money, after taxes, will go into a trust fund which the boys will not be allowed to use until they are 25 years old. David and Ricky also earn $500 a week from a radio version of the Nelson family television show.

Child Population In Texas Rising

DALLAS, Feb. 11—UP—The number of children in Texas under 18 years old increased 3.7 per cent from April 1, 1950, to July 1, 1951, the Bureau of the Census said Wednesday.

Texas children under 18 on July 1, 1951, numbered 2,858,000, or an increase of 99,000 since April 1, 1950.

Figures reflect high birth rates of the 1950s. Also, children born in the early 1930s when birth rates were low, are attaining age 18 and leaving this group.

The number of persons under 18 is expected to increase at a rapid rate for several years as persons born during the 1950s replace those born during the depression years.

Can't Be Bothered
THANN, France, Feb. 10—UP—Antoine Schott-Halstein, 84, gave $308,500 to the town council. "I'm too old to be bothered with money," she said.

Mrs. Pierson Is Hostess To Club

Variety Study Club met on Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Luther Pierson at 1211 Mary Ellen. Mrs. J. C. Vollmert, president, presided at the business meeting. The afternoon study was presented by Mrs. Otis Nace, who gave a comprehensive survey of the field of current literature. After outlining the types and contents of present-day magazines and books, she read excerpts from published material; some were from her own stories. She closed with a brief review of a humorous best-seller.

There was one guest, Mrs. DeWayne Streaty, who was visiting in the home of her mother, Mrs. H. H. Butler. Members present were Mrs. H. H. Butler, J. G. Cargile, H. Price Doster, S. C. Evans, H. P. Hampton, Lee Harrah, J. A. Hopkins, J. E. Kirchner, R. W. Lane, Otis Nace, Luther Pierson, J. R. Spearman, J. C. Vollmert, W. A. Waggoner and Sherman White.

Flair For Clothes Depends Upon 'Dash'

Teen-agers, do you put as much imagination into the wearing of your clothes as the designer put into the fashioning of them?

Now, while you are young, is the time to begin developing that dash and flair which will make you outstanding. Assuming you have chosen the best line and colors for your particular needs, what gives you this dash and flair?

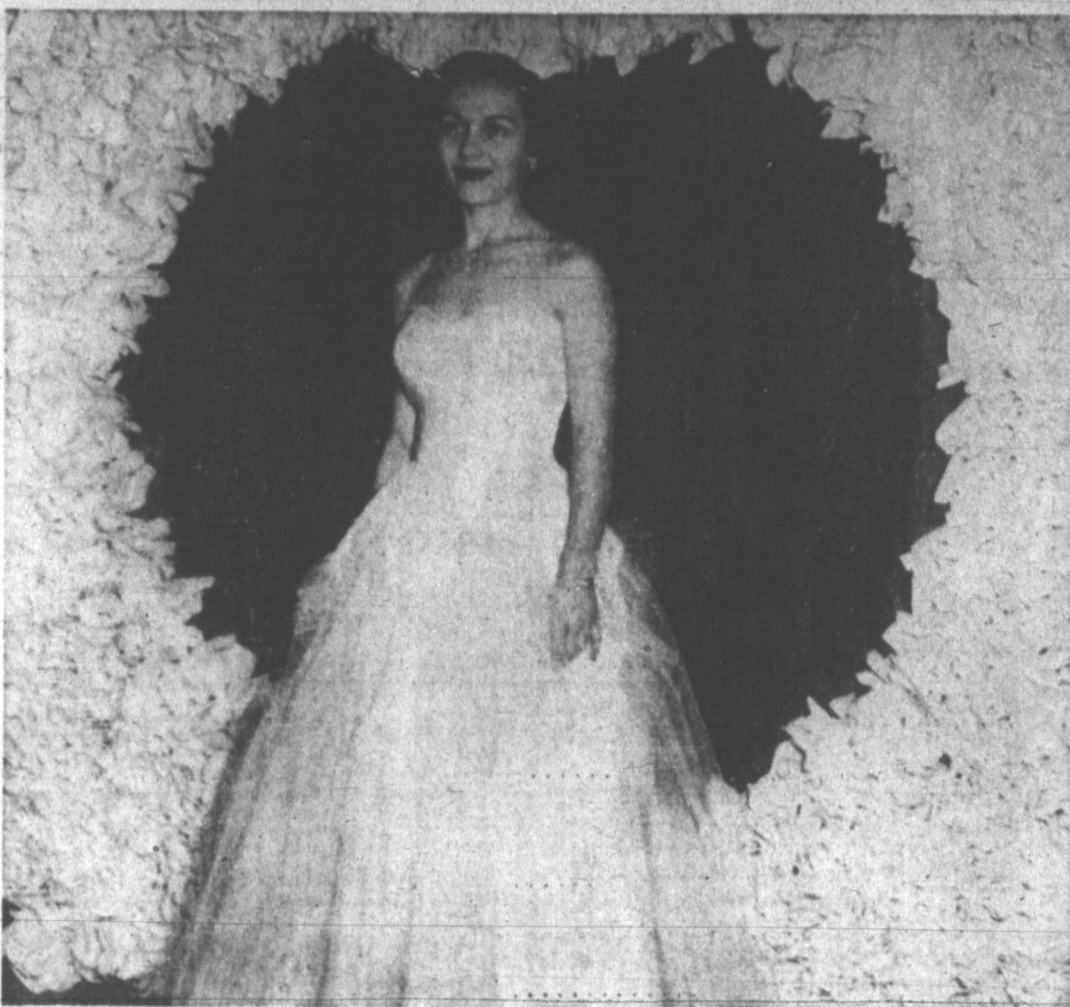

Let's start with the way you carry your coat. Do you carry it with hemlines uneven and arms flopping? That makes a sloppy picture. Fold it with the two shoulders even before draping it over your arm. When you get into it, adjust the shoulders of your dress perfectly into the shoulders of your coat. Lift the coat up so that the collar fits snugly about your neck. Then the coat will hang well.

Do you swing a bag alongside your knees, though it will fly away any minute? Or do you tuck it smartly under your arm or slip your wrist through the handle and carry it close to your body? The latter ways look quiet and neat.

Do you jam a hat on your head any old way, or do you study the fashion magazines to see how they are being worn this year? Gloves crumpled in your hand should be straightened out and laid palm to palm, as they were when you bought them.

Before you sit down, smooth your skirt to prevent wrinkles and then arrange it nicely. Your clothes must be comfortable and perfectly fitting before you can wear them with the ease that is preliminary to style. So make sure of these things first.

Finally, and most important, the grace with which you stand, sit and walk are all fundamental to having your clothes look pretty in motion.

SHE'S A SWEETHEART — Mrs. Frankie Ward, 319 N. Purviance, is to be presented at the Beta Sigma Phi St. Valentine's Day dance as the sorority's sweetheart. The event is slated for 7 p. m. ## Busy Bee HD Club Meets In Barnes Home

THURSDAY

"Correct Hair Styling" was the topic of a demonstration presented members of the Busy Bee Home Demonstration Club recently in the home of Mrs. Richard Barnes.

Mrs. Bert Haiduk presided at the business meeting which preceded the demonstration. Mrs. Leon Nicholson resigned as council representative and THDA chairman.

Mrs. E. G. McCormick was elected to fill this position. The book review, "The Silver Charlice," to be presented this spring was voted to be a Silver Tea offering. This will be a benefit for the Club and the White Deer Branch Library. At the close of the meeting, members drew names for the year's secret pal.

Warner Phillips of Pampa, conducted the hair-styling demonstration. As he shaped hair for three different facial shapes, Mr. Phillips gave many helpful hints for cutting, shaping and styling which are offered women this season.

Fitting patterns and cutting materials will be demonstrated by Miss Charlotte Thompkins, CHDA, Feb. 19, at the home of Mrs. B. O. Bertrand. Members are reminded to bring their patterns to be fitted at this meeting.

Forum Members Hear Book Review

Members of the Twentieth Century Forum met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Roy Bourland.

Mrs. Bruce Pratt, president, opened the meeting with a prayer, "Give To Us More Faith" from the book, "A Man Called Peter."

Mrs. C. V. Wilkinson reviewed the book, "A Bed For The Night." This is the story of E. M. Statten and his hotels. He got into the hotel business by taking ice water at the McLure House, an oasis for salesmen and vaudeville troupers in Wheeling, W. Va. He was once told that he was not at all brilliant, could not dare to run any risk and that he would pass through life without being especially noted for anything. He was 15 years old at the time. He promptly set out to prove that phrenology was an unreliable science. He fixed his sights on the grandest ambition a small town bellhop could imagine.

As he moved toward his goal by a series of brilliant gambles on a billiard parlor, a bowling alley, a lunch counter, a buffalo restaurant, a couple of world's fairs and a series of new ideas about running a hotel.

By the time he got to New York he had revolutionized the art of inn keeping, changing the old fashioned tavern from a community problem to a community center.

Attending the meeting were Meses—Crawford Atkinson, R. G. Bourland, E. J. Dunigan Jr., J. R. Holloway, Dick Hughes, Frank Kealey, Raymond W. Laycock, Luke McClelland, John B. McCreery, M. McDaniel, Bruce Pratt, Henry Rose, Aubrey Steele, Arthur Teed, Eben D. Warner Jr., C.V. Wilkinson and Walter Patzig.

MISS EVELYN MILAM, president of the Pampa chapter of the American Association of University Women, is this week's Woman of the Week. Members of the AAUW are sponsoring the Edwin Strawbridge production of "Prince Swineherd" which will be presented in Pampa Junior High School Auditorium Feb. 16 in an attempt to bring better entertainment to Pampa children. Miss Milam, registrar at Pampa High School, received her Master's degree from Texas Tech.

Baptist Young People Meet For Social Hour

Young people of the Calvary Baptist, Central Baptist and First Baptist churches met recently for a social hour and were entertained with special music by the choir of the Macedonia Baptist Church.

The program began with a group singing led by Paul Biggs, song leader of the First Baptist Church. C. T. Aly, educational director of the Calvary Baptist, played the piano. Sam Randolph, president of the Calvary Fellowship, gave the message.

The choir of the Macedonia Baptist had charge of the special music and presented several group and solo numbers.

There were 170 young people present. James Fippen, president of the First Baptist Fellowship, dismissed the group with prayer.

Miss Janice Spencer, hostess, had charge of refreshments of cakes and cookies.

RUTH MILLETT

Have you been getting by with being often a guest but rarely a hostess? Then maybe you had better give a little thought to a letter to this column.

"Can't you write something," a reader asks, "about the women who always say 'I'd love to come, and leave with I had a wonderful time.' but never do anything in return?"

"It seems to be a wide-spread thing, though worse in some communities than others. That many women will accept all hospitality offered and yet feel no responsibility for returning it."

"Lone women are particularly negligent about this, it seems to me. A woman will say: 'Call me any time. I can nearly always get away. And yet it doesn't seem to occur to her that she might take the responsibility occasionally for doing the calling, getting up the party, and playing the hostess."

The woman who is lonely, whose social life is almost nonexistent, wishes it might be, who feels left out of things should take that letter seriously.

For no woman, however agreeable and friendly, can get by for long with being always a guest and never a hostess. Nor can she depend for too long on others including her on jaunts if she never plans any herself.

So if you're lonely, ask yourself these questions:

'Stubborn Fruit and Jelly Stains Disappear Like Magic With Hi-lex'

Says Mrs. Robert Smyth

"I've never had a failure when I use Hi-lex Bleach to remove stains from my white cottons and linens. And the new Hi-lex containing ingredient 'X' works much quicker yet safer than before."

"Here's how I use Hi-lex for best results on such stains as Scotch, Berry, Coffee, Mildew, Medicine and similar discolorations:

"First rinse fabric well, then soak about 15 minutes in solution of 2 tablespoons Hi-lex to a quart of water. If the stain is stubborn, add a little vinegar. Rinse well in clear water."

Cook's Nook

Old-fashioned cornstarch pudding, plausibly called blanc mange, is a favorite desert with grown-ups as well as with the growing-ups. It is good that this type of dessert is so popular, for such deserts can supply a goodly amount of the milk needed in the daily dietary for good nutrition.

In the recipe given here, a modicum of grated lemon rind adds a refreshing flavor to the delicate pudding. Made with a tall can of evaporated milk, the pudding is extra rich in whole milk nutrients and superbly creamy and smooth.

LEMON BLANC MANGE

1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup cornstarch
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 2-3 cups evaporated milk (1 tall can)
1 cup water

Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt in top of double boiler. Stir in milk slowly, keeping smooth. Add water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture begins to thicken. Set over boiling water, cover and cook 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Stir in lemon rind. Stir occasionally while cooling. Spoon into custard cups and chill thoroughly before serving. Unmold in serving dishes. Spoon fresh, frozen or canned berries or sliced peaches, or canned fruit cocktail around pudding, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

House Members Favor Teach Bill; Stock Measure Shelved

AUSTIN, Feb. 12—UP—A majority of House members appeared in favor Thursday of a bill that would prevent school officials from requiring Texas teachers to belong to the Texas State Teachers association. The measure was given an unfavorable report, by a 10 to 5 vote, by the House Education committee, but it was revived when House members voted Wednesday, by voice vote, to bring it out on the House floor on a minority report. The House committee on live-stock and stock raising shelved another bill which would prevent live stock roaming on the highway.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Men-ton J. Murray of Harlingen, was sent to a subcommittee after a two-hour hearing attended by some 75 farmers. Sponsored by Crouch The bill to ban requirement of membership in the TSTA was sponsored by Rep. Doug Crouch of Den-ton. Rep. Jack Bryan of Buffalo made the motion to permit it to be printed on minority report. Bryan indicated that a compromise would be proposed under which the name of the TSTA would be removed and the bill would apply to any organization. Charles Tenyson, executive sec- retary of the TSTA, said there was no statewide membership require- ment. Any such requirement, he said, was made by local school boards. Rep. Robert Patten of Jasper led forces opposing the livestock meas- ure. Any tighter law, he said would "take away bread from the mouths of hundreds of hungry children" in Texas.

Require Fencing The bill would require areas where livestock are kept to be fenced in on both sides of a high- way. It also would allow peace of- ficers to dispose of livestock when it is found on state highways and the owners cannot be located. Any persons who allowed animals to roam on right-of-way state highways could be fined a maxi- mum of $200 under the bill. Col. Homer Garrison Jr., direc- tor of the Department of Public Safety, told the committee that in 1951 there were 1,062 accidents in Texas caused by livestock. Twelve persons were killed in the mishaps and 129 were injured, he said. Low Rate Cited Rep. Ellis Carter of Orange, an opposition leader, said that acci- dents involving livestock account for only .002 per cent of traffic ac- cidents in Texas. Other opposition speakers said that Murray's bill would cause "economic annihilation" of cattle owners in East Texas. "It would be an edict that would close the open range in many East Texas counties where land is now unfenced," they said. Witnesses for the bill included J. O. Munk, general manager of the Texas Safety association and Mrs. Jud Collier of Mumford, state safety chairman for the Texas Fed- eration of Women's clubs.

Aged Vendor Says Streetcar Just The Thing For Sleeping

CHICAGO, Feb. 11—UP—A 73-year-old street vendor Wednesday said she has been sleeping on streetcars at night for seven years and likes it. "A streetcar's got a rooming house beat a mile for comfort," said Mrs. Anna Cox, "and it's cheaper." The spry old lady said she didn't catch her rest on streetcars because she couldn't afford a bed and a roof. "Rooms are drafty and the beds are uncomfortable and once I was in a hotel when it caught fire," she said. Authorities learned of Mrs. Cox' "home" Tuesday when it came time to release her from county hospital where she had been treated since Jan. 16 for a leg injury suffered in an auto accident. Hospital attendants insisted she give them a home address and, after some hesitation, Mrs. Cox admitted that she was a permanent guest of the Chicago Transit authority.

"But I always paid my fare—and it was worth it," she said stoutly. The wizened old lady said she sold hair nets and beauty aids on street corners. She displayed a bank book that showed a balance of $8,326. "I couldn't have had a better place to sleep than on any Chicago streetcar, especially those on the long Western Avenue run," Mrs. Cox insisted. She said she also favored the miles-long ride on Clark Street from 800 North to 119th on the South side. She told hospital authorities she could make six rides—at a total cost of $1.02—last all night. She never bothered to try to work schemes with transfers in order to ride all night with one fare.

BRITISH BOBBY: There aren't enough of them because there isn't enough housing.

Lack Of Nails And Lumber Blamed For British Crime Hike

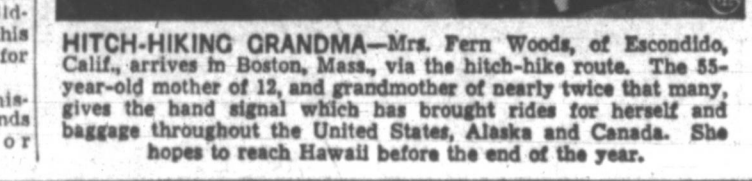

By TOM A. CULLEN
NEA Special Correspondent
LONDON—(NEA)—Largely for want of some nails—and some lumber to put between them—Britain is slowly losing her battle against lawlessness. A shortage of nails, lumber and other building materials has led to an acute lack of housing. Experts claim the housing problem is a big factor in England's growing crime rate. It's partly to blame, for instance, for a shortage of 10,000 policemen. Sir Harold Scott, London police commissioner, says the lack of homes is an obstacle to recruiting. "I can't get enough men," he complains. "Indeed, I even lose a lot of men I already have. All because there are no homes for themselves and their families. Aside from its effect on police forces, the housing shortage has helped hike the divorce rate. And with so many "broken homes," there has come the usual rise in juvenile delinquency. Law-breakers meet the housing problem again when they're sought and sent to prison. British prisons are more crowded today than they've been for 75 years. At least six new 500-man prisons are being built. Three-fourths are "repeater" with one or more previous convictions. They're in and out of custody so often that some officers have facetiously suggested that the prisons use revolving doors. The governors of the Stafford and Lewis reformatories report a continued drop in the quality of young first offenders. At Lewis, they're "less able, less reliable." At Stafford, the governor says: "A number of lads to whom I've spoken about their futures have said, 'I hope I don't come back,' almost as if they had no power of decision as to whether they would or no."

BRITISH BOBBY: There aren't enough of them because there isn't enough housing.

The annual report of the Prison Commissioners lists 24,000 inmates, the most since 1877. The number has been rising steadily for three years, sometimes at the rate of 300 or more a month. Restrictions on capital expenditures and staffs, however, have ruled out much expansion. The first new prison under the building program will be started this year, but may not be ready for use until sometime in 1957. Until then, the Prison Commissioners say the situation stands to get worse, not better. All for the want of some nails. their financial needs whenever they feel like. The prisons can't handle the influx. All available rooms and beds in 23 prisons are being used for sleeping purposes. But the commissioners report a need for funds to siphon off the excess. GREENSBORO, N. C.—UP—Dogcatcher Gray Fulk is popular with the hounds. He sold Hobo, twice only to have Hobo return to the pound and try to get back in his cage. The record is held by Butch. Six times people have bought Butch from Fulk and six times Butch returned to the pound.

Fruit Estimates
WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—UP—The Agriculture Department esti- mated today that 118.9 million boxes of oranges and 36,460,000 boxes of grapefruit will be pro- duced this season. The estimate for the orange crop is 1 per cent above last season's actual output and the grapefruit estimate is 10 per cent above last year's small yield.

Rules Cover Closed Canasta

By OSWALD JACOBY
"When, if ever, is a canasta considered closed?" asks a Minnesota correspondent. "The other day I melded four eights and three wild cards. Later in that hand, I drew two more eights, but I held them in my hand."
"While this was going on, the pack became frozen. Finally, the player at my right discarded an eight. I put down my pair of eights, and tried to take the discard pile. I just tried, but I still haven't succeeded, and it's 24 hours later."
"What is the rule in this situation? The players in the game decided to accept your rule, whatever it may be."
This situation is very closely covered in the official rules of the game. I know that many Canasta players prefer to follow rules of their own instead of the official rules, and that is their privilege. When I am asked to give a ruling, however, the only rule I ever supply is the official rule. Here goes:

You are always permitted to add natural cards to a completed or closed canasta. In other words, if you meld four eights and three wild cards, you may later add four more natural eights to that canasta. There are only eight eights altogether, so that is the limit.
You are even permitted to add wild cards to a closed canasta, provided that the total number of wild cards in the canasta is never more than three. For example, suppose you meld six eights and one wild card.
You may later add one or even two wild cards to that canasta. It may be a poor play, but that isn't the point. The important thing is that you're allowed to do it.
Once your canasta has its limit of three wild cards you may not add any further wild cards to it. There is no such thing as a canasta with four or more wild cards.
In the example furnished by my correspondent, it was perfectly

"I wish I hadn't given my new boy friend the idea that I was highbrow—he's taking me to inspect the fossils at the museum tonight!"

★ EDSON IN WASHINGTON ★

Eike's Top Foreign Policy Move Was Pledged In GOP Platform

By PETER EDSON
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—President Eisenhower's most important foreign policy declaration in his message to Congress is worth a second look. This is his proposal for a congressional resolution stating that the U.S. government recognizes no secret treaty commitments for the enslavement of any people "to purchase fancied gain for ourselves."
The entire foreign policy section of the President's message was cleared with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles before he went to Europe. But the important thing to know about this proposed congressional foreign policy resolution is what roots it stems from and what it is likely to grow into.
In its broadest interpretation, the congressional declaration against the enslavement of any people might become a global emancipation proclamation—a promise to free the slaves of Communism all over the world. While that is a noble intent, any nation that set out to liberate all the people enslaved by Communism would probably end up with a world war on its hands.
The resolution which President Eisenhower proposes would probably not go that far, however. At best it would, more likely be a partial repudiation of agreements made by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman at Yalta and Potsdam as they applied to Poland, East Germany, Korea and the northern Japanese islands.

It might not go as far in the other direction as the resolution introduced by Rep. Charles J. Kirsten of Wisconsin, declaring the entire Yalta agreement null, void and not binding on the U.S. like blood against water.
This movement for repudiation of the Yalta agreement in particular is not just a new trick pulled out of President Eisenhower's Homburg. A pledge to repudiate the Yalta agreement is found in the Republican platform adopted at Chicago last June. It says:
"The government of the United States, under Republican leadership, will repudiate all commitments contained in secret understandings such as those at Yalta which aid Communist enslavement. It will make clear, on the highest authority of the President and the Congress, that United States po-

Martin's Wife Admits She, Singer Separated

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 12—UP—Singer Dean Martin's blonde wife, former Miami cover girl Jeannie Bieglers, admitted Wednesday she and the star have separated temporarily in an effort to settle "a few problems."
Martin moved out of their home into a hotel Tuesday, she said, just before he left on a location trip for his current movie with his comic partner, Jerry Lewis.
"It's true," the blue-eyed beauty said, "a few problems have arisen that seem very large at this point so we're trying a trial separation."
Miss Bieglers, Martin's second wife, is the mother of their year-old son, Dno. The singer has four children by a former wife.
Martin met the beautiful blonde when he and Lewis were performing in a Miami night club in 1948. They were married a year later.

FIRST

legal to hold the two eights in the hand—and smart, too. The player then had the right to take the discard pile and add the three new eights to the closed canasta.
Q—Both sides go over 5000 points in the final hand of a game. Who wins the game?
A—The winning side is the side that has the larger number of points. This may or may not be the side that melded out on the final hand.

... as one of its peaceful purposes, looks happily forward to the genuine independence of those captive peoples."
During the campaign Candidate Eisenhower returned to this matter several times. Before the American Legion convention in September he declared, "The conscience of America can never know peace until the millions of Communist-controlled areas of Europe and Asia are restored to the society of free men."
At Onida, N. Y., at Pittsburgh and in Madison Square Garden, New York, in October, he again spoke against the series of blunders beginning at Yalta. He said no country had the right to barter away the lives of other people. He wanted to free them of this crushing handicap. He promised no future Yaltas and Potsdams.
So in now asking Congress for new resolutions and declarations on foreign policy, President Eisenhower is merely carrying out the Republican platform and his own campaign pledges.
Russia Hasn't Kept Promises
The main agreement at Teheran in 1943 was that the U.S. and Britain would attack Germany through France in 1944.
At Yalta in February, 1945, agreement was reached on the San Francisco conference to draft a United Nations charter. The U.S. and Britain agreed to support White Russia and the Ukraine as separate countries in the U.N. The three major powers agreed to take steps to prevent future German aggression, including reparations and even dismemberment of Germany. Russia agreed to enter the war against Japan on condition the USSR be given the Kurile islands plus rail and port rights in Manchuria. Russia also agreed to support Nationalist China.

At Potsdam in August, 1945, the principles for postwar government of Germany were agreed to. It was decided Austria should pay no reparations. Withdrawal of Allied troops from Iran was arranged. Provisions for peace treaties with Italy, Finland, Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria were outlined.
The full texts of these agreements were not made public until March, 1947. If Russia had lived up to all its commitments in these conferences, the world situation today would be entirely different. The fact that Russia has not lived up to its promises is in itself considered by many as basis enough for nullification.

Harvesters Have Tough Assignment
Before Saturday's Game With Sandies

WHILE ALL THE ATTENTION appears to be on the Harvester-Amarillo game Saturday, very few seem to realize that the Green and Golders have a very tough assignment coming up before meeting the Sandstorm.

That assignment, of course, is meeting the ever-dangerous Lubbock Westerners who invade the Fieldhouse tomorrow to do battle with the undefeated Harvesters.

Coach Clifton McNeely, in fact, is flat worried about the potentiality of the Westerners.

"I've said all along that the Westerners have a fine ball club and could beat you on any given night," McNeely told the Booster's Club Monday night.

"The Westerners don't have too much height but they can beat you on those long shots if they're hot," McNeely added.

The Westerners have the second leading scorer in the district in Gerry Thomas. Thomas led the 1-4A scorers last week before the Harvesters' Jimmy Bond overtook him this week.

Almost any one of the Westerners are liable to get hot with their long range shots and if two or three of 'em get hot on the same night, it could mean disaster.

Sure the Harvesters racked up the Westerners without too much difficulty when they met at Lubbock but Lubbock's potential was there. The Harvesters won the game at Chapman Fieldhouse in Lubbock, 70-52.

The Westerners are certainly not a team that can be taken lightly. Although they haven't fared too well in the won-lost column in district play, the Hub city five all down the wire, win or lose.

Three of their six losses in district play have been by only three points or less. One of their defeats came in overtime. Don Angelo defeated Lubbock 63-60 in their season opener and Angelo, on the following night, managed only a one-point 65-64 victory.

Then last week Odessa had to go overtime to down Lubbock, 66-63.

So, if you're expecting a breath-er Friday night against Lubbock, you may be fooled.

For those of you who aren't fortunate enough to obtain a ducat for the Harvester-Sandie game Saturday night at Amarillo's "crackerbox" gym — the Armory — you will probably see just as good if not better game by attending the Harvester-Lubbock game tomorrow night.

We must realize that we've got to defeat the Westerners as much as we've got to beat the Sandies. Neither game is going to be easy.

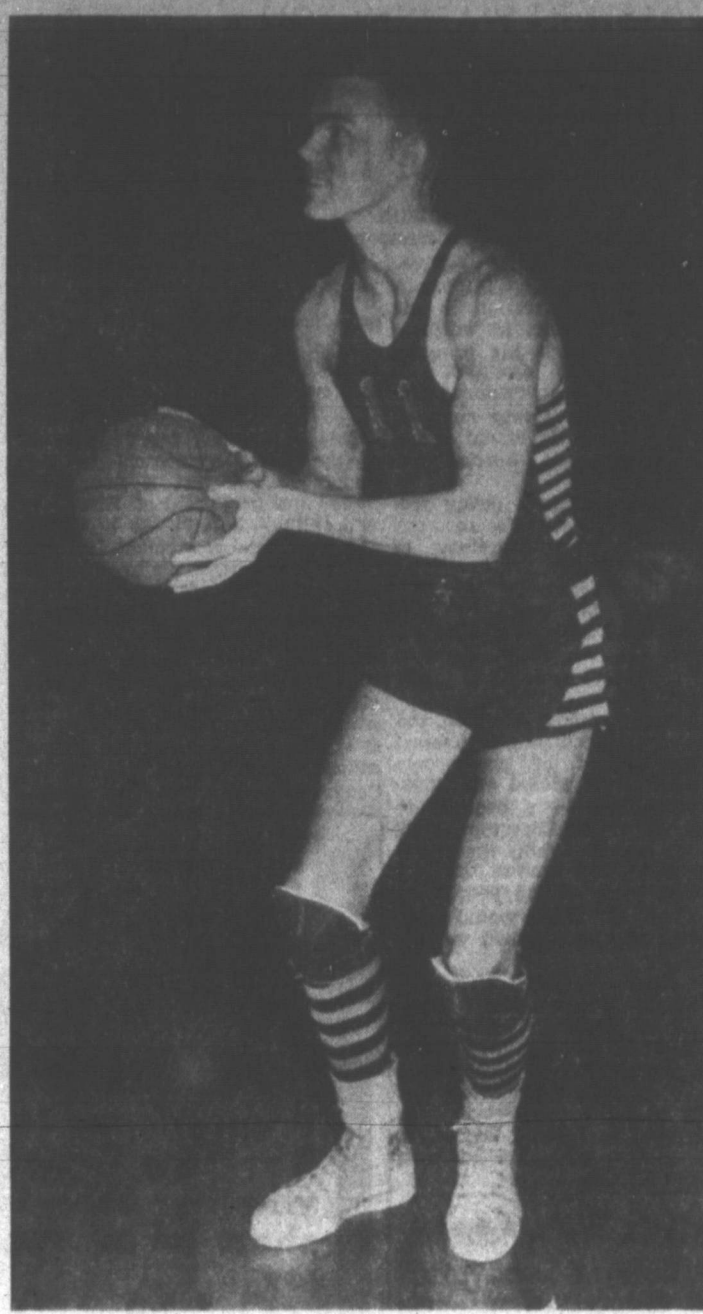

That surely seems awful the way Amarillo is treating Pampa on the ticket situation for Saturday night's fracas at the "crackerbox" Armory. In the Sandie city, more than 250 tickets had been applied for here before Amarillo sent over a measly 100, 80 for adults and 50 for the students. The 350 figure doesn't include the student applicants.

Maybe that is probably the best they could do in scheduling the game at the Sandies' "crackerbox" gym but they could have moved the game to the Sports Arena where nearly 3,000 fans can be taken care of.

Why a city who claims more than 100,000 population can't afford a bigger gym than the Armory is more than we can figure.

The Sandies are very confident they are going to take Saturday night's game from the Harvesters since the game is being played in the Armory. They've won 19 in a row at the Armory. The last time they lost there was to the Harvesters.

The Harvesters, under McNeely, are batting 1,000 in the Armory. They've played twice before there and won both games.

JIMMY BOND
regains scoring lead

Bond Back On Top
In 1-AAAA Scoring

The Harvesters' ace junior center, Jimmy Bond, regained the District 1-AAAA scoring lead through last week's game with Abilene and San Angelo, netting 24 points in each game to run his total to 230 points.

Only six points behind in second place is Gerry Thomas of Lubbock who was last week's leader. Bond and Thomas are the only two who have held the district scoring lead since the season started. Bond has led every week with the exception of the first week and last week.

Bond leads the district in field goals with 86 while Thomas has the most free throws with 70.

The two scoring leaders will go against each other tomorrow night when the Harvesters host the Westerners at Harvester Fieldhouse.

One other player, Jerry Turner of Abilene, has gone over the 200 mark in district play. Turner has 207 points. Melvin Wright of Amarillo is fourth top 1-4A scorer with 196 points.

Thirteen other players have surpassed the 100 scoring mark. Among those is Fred Woods of Pampa who has 128 points.

Three more Harvesters are among the scorers who have scored 50 points or more. Buddy Cockrell has 97, Bill Webb 90, and Jon Oden 80.

Following are the leading scorers: (Includes all players who have scored 50 points or better in district play).

Gavilan TKOs
Davey In 10th

CHICAGO, Feb. 12 — Welteright champion Kid Gavilan, first conqueror of southpaw Chuck Davey, began negotiations Thursday with promoter Jim Norris regarding the possibility of his entering the middleweight tournament.

Gavilan of Cuba, who floored college graduate Davey of Lansing, Mich., four times Wednesday night in Chicago Stadium and turned back his challenge with a technical knockout at the start of the 10th round, pretended to be uncertain about stepping up into the heavier middleweight eliminations. Gavilan weighed 146½ pounds Wednesday night; Davey 147 — the welter limit.

Norris thought the Cuban Keed would be a great attraction among the 160-pounders who are competing for the crown left vacant by Sugar Ray Robinson's retirement in December. He was delighted with the new record welterweight gate of $275,454 drawn by Gavilan's career, $84,566.

Largest Purse of Career
Gavilan, who shifted from cutting sugar cane on the Cuban isle of Camaguey to the "heavy sugar" of the ring, was delighted too, for he received the largest purse of his career, $85,568.

Davey, who suffered the first defeat in his career of 40 professional bouts, also was pleased with financial return: $42,282. The 26-year-old, sandy-haired scrapper who has two degrees from Michigan State University, had become a professional because of the promise of quick money.

However, Thursday Davey was undecided whether to continue in the ring or return to his planned profession of teaching physical education in college or high school. He said he would decide after a vacation.

Lively Competition
Davey, the 3-1 underdog, provided Gavilan with lively competition in their scheduled 15-round nationally televised bout until a blow to his adam's apple in the ninth round caused such a flow of blood he had great difficulty breathing. Trainer Issy Kline refused to let him continue.

In that ninth round, Davey—who never had been knocked off his feet in previous professional bouts—was floored three times. And he already had taken another trip to the canvas in the third round.

Referee Frank Gilmer had the champion ahead, 49 points to 41. Judge Ed Hintz favored the Cuban Keed 52-35, and Judge John Bray favored the champ, 51-39. On a round by round basis, the United Press had Gavilan leading 5-3-1.

Murray To See
First GG Action
Tonight At FW

FORT WORTH, Feb. 12 — UP — Golden Gloves champions — the best boxers from 18 Texas districts — go into the second session of a five night tournament Thursday night that will determine who will represent Texas in the tournament of champions at Chicago Feb. 23-25.

Roy Harris of Houston, last year's middleweight champion and now a light-heavyweight, advanced a notch by winning a decision over Mickey McGrath of Brownwood.

Two champions who will defend titles they won last year — Campbell Woodman, Wichita Falls heavyweight, and Henry Miramontes, Dallas bantam — were scheduled to see action later in the tournament as was Pete Perez of Amarillo, last year's lightweight titlist who now is a welter.

James Huff of Dallas, heavy-weight champion in 1949, decisioned Jack Barron of Austin in Thursday night's rounds.

The field this year included 55 youths who have participated in one or more previous state meets as well as such outstanding newcomers as heavyweight Bill Napier of Corpus Christi, who lost a split decision to Olympic and national Golden Gloves champion Ed Sanders last year, and Jerry Flanagan, Baylor bantam, who is a former Oklahoma Golden Gloves titlist.

Other winners from former years entered in this year's tournament included Eugene Cooper of San Antonio, a welter in 1951, a middleweight in 1951, and the same this year, and Felix Baker, Houston feather who won as a bantam in 1950.

Pampa's Dick Murray got a night off last night but will fight Tom Turvy of Austin tonight in his tourney debut. Murray is fighting in the light-heavyweight division.

Jimmy Thompson of Wellington, another member of the Pampa District and Amarillo region team, will also see his first tourney action tonight. The Wellington bantamweight meets Greg Carajo of El Paso tonight.

Globe-Trotters
Bringing Big Show Here

Abe Saperstein's western unit of the Harlem Globetrotters, the all-time wonder team of basketball, come to the Pampa High School Fieldhouse Wednesday night Feb. 25, to headline a huge doubleheader card against the Philadelphia Sphas. The opener at 7:00 will match the Boston Whirlwinds and Hawaiian Surf Riders. Special half-time entertainment will be a feature of the gala card.

Now in their twenty-sixth season of cage heroics, the fabulous magicians of the court — the Globetrotters — are out to surpass their last season's silver anniversary exploits, which included an around-the-world tour and kept them in action almost up to the start of the current 1952-53 campaign.

Always one to strive for bigger and better things, Owner Coach Saperstein has assembled what he regards as his finest aggregation of players and showmen in the Trotters' long and spectacular history for the new extensive schedule he has arranged to keep them busy until next September.

In making the first around-the-world jaunt ever undertaken by a basketball unit, the Trotters were Uncle Sam's Ambassadors of Good Will as they took their super show around the circumference of the globe. In Italy they were honored with an audience before the Pope and they made front pages everywhere where they responded to an unprecedented request by His Holiness that they perform for him.

The entire season saw the Trotters win 325 games while losing only 8 for a 25-year total of 4,233 triumphs against 260 defeats, a .941 percentage.

Another highlight of the season was their third successive triumph over the nation's College All-Americans in the annual World Series of Basketball. Leaving a trail of shattered box office records in their wake on the transcontinental tour made by chartered plane and watched by more than 200,000 fans, the Trotters won 11 games to 5.

Tickets for the game here are now on sale at the following places: Reserve—Combs-Worley Building. General Admission—Malone Pharmacy, B&B Drug, Clydes Pharmacy, Cretney Drug and Richard Drug.

Build Up Your Bowling By Knockin' 'Em Down

Tenth of a series written and illustrated for NEA Service, by STEVE NAGY, Bowler-of-the-Year.

The inconsistency of a bowler's score comes from his different starting positions on the approach.

A bowler, having rolled a successful strike ball on his first attempt with his left foot exactly in the center of the approach, should be careful to take the same position the next time he rolls on that alley.

If he carelessly moves two boards to the right of center, the result might be that his ball comes in too deep, meaning the ball hits the number-one pin too solidly.

A great many bowling establishments in this country have installed range finder markings to assist the bowler in locating his proper starting position on the approach. His proper finishing position at the foul line and the correct target a few feet down the alley from the foul line.

Even where these range-finder markings are unavailable, the bowler can always determine where his proper starting position, finishing position and target should be by noting an off-color or discolored board in the alley on the approach.

Use a meter come from consistency. All consistency means repeating the same movements over and over again with no appreciable change.

Seton Hall Quint
Continues Unbeaten

NEW YORK, Feb. 12 — UP — Seton Hall, North Carolina State, and Notre Dame Thursday boosted their bids for national basketball honors with impressive victories, but Cornell held a chance to tie for the Ivy League leadership.

Cornell had been leading the famed old Ivy circuit until it dropped a one-point decision to Pennsylvania, the new leader, last Saturday night.

Wednesday night the Big Red got the "Y" by beating Princeton, but in a close game, 50 to 50. The loss drops Cornell down to third place behind Penn 5-1 and Colgate 3-1.

Seton Hall, the only major unbeaten team in the nation, had some trouble gaining its 23rd victory of the year, 62 to 49, over Siena, a "jinx" club in recent years for the Pirates. Seton Hall led by only 49 to 45 with five minutes to play when a three-point play by skyscraping Walt Dukes, who was the game's high scorer with 36 points, broke the game open.

North Carolina State put on one of its most impressive shows of the year as it walloped Georgetown Villanova, 94 to 72, at Raleigh, N.C.

Notre Dame, held to a 50 to 48 lead at the end of the third period,

The White House... Two Men Actually Share Title Of Assistant To The President

By MERRIDAN SMITH
WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—UP—Baskettairs at the White House staff actually have the title "the assistant to the President." One is Sherman Adams, former governor of New Hampshire and one of President Eisenhower's closest associates. The other is John R. Steelman, who had the job under former President Truman.

Steelman, who was asked by the new administration to remain during the transition period, continues to draw pay at the annual rate of $20,000. Adams makes the same salary.

Mr. Eisenhower is keeping the postman busy. Since his inauguration he has received nearly 75,000 pieces of mail. The mail volume in the week beginning Jan. 22 was 27,415 letters and cards, 24,250 the following week, and 21,610 the week of Feb. 6.

For the same three weeks in 1952 Mr. Truman received 41,272 pieces of mail. The volume descending on the White House is working the staff to capacity, not just in deciding what to do with the mail, but the simple task of opening that many letters.

Adlai Script 'Best-Seller'

NEW YORK, Feb. 12—UP—Adlai E. Stevenson is a "best-selling" author, publishers of his speeches said Thursday.

Post-election sales of texts of 1952 campaign speeches surprised publishers and decided Random House to bring out a new deluxe edition of all his political addresses with a 5,000 word introduction written especially for the book. It will be published next month.

Last October, in the heat of the presidential election campaign which Stevenson lost, Random House collected the 21 speeches made up to that time by Stevenson and brought out a paper-bound volume entitled "Campaign Speeches of Adlai E. Stevenson" for $1 per copy.

"We rushed the job through since it was October," the firm said.

"We published 60,000 since it was just as easy to turn out that many and we thought there might be a good chance to do well with it. We never expected the response that developed and most amazingly demands for the books trebled after the election until it was just sold out."

At about the same time, the Henry Shuman Inc. publishing house produced "Adlai's Almanac: The wit and wisdom of Stevenson of Illinois." Also paper bound and selling at $1 these excerpts from Stevenson speeches were printed initially at 15,000 copies. "Their story was: 'The book went moderately well and we were pleased. Then it started after the election and we had another printing of 15,000. It is still going and orders for more are still coming in.'" office space. Staff executives sometimes confer with callers in the lobby of the executive offices. No improvement is seen. Mr. Eisenhower, dedicated to a program of economy and frugality in government, is not about to ask Congress for funds with which to enlarge his offices.

Its new book of speeches will be published March 31. It is entitled "The Major Campaign Speeches of Adlai E. Stevenson" and includes all 50 speeches the former governor of Illinois made in the 1952 campaign.

There was a definite public reaction—mostly by mail—against serving whiskey at the reception President and Mrs. Eisenhower gave for chiefs of diplomatic missions and their wives. It was nothing to compare with the angry blast that greeted the late President Roosevelt and his family when shortly after the repeal of the prohibition law, they served beer at a reception.

During the election campaign last fall, Mr. Eisenhower frequently wore heavy pancake makeup for television appearances. Not, however, when he delivered his state of the union message. The White House received numerous compliments on his appearance, so it may be that the President will scorn TV makeup in the future.

Bennett Says GOP Can Lose Control Easily

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 12—UP—Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah) warned Republicans Saturday night that they can lose control of Congress in 1954 unless they "finish" the work begun with President Eisenhower's landslide victory.

"You know the slim margin under which the Republican majority operates in Congress," he said in a prepared Lincoln Day speech. "A death, a few defections, another Sen. (Wayne) Morse (Ind.-Ore.), and President Eisenhower can be rendered as helpless as President Hoover was in 1930." House from Missouri," he urged his audience, "and give us back the Republican in the Senate that we lost when Jim Kim was defeated."

Bennett charged the Democrats with using the smearer technique against Mr. Hoover in their election campaigns and said "the people are sick of this approach and will reward the GOP if it has the courage to adopt a higher, less malicious standard."

"Our opponents have screamed for years that ours is a heartless party," he said. "During the '32 campaign they sought to terrify Americans with all kinds of croaking prophecies of hunger and depression that would come inevitably with a Republican victory."

"For too many years we have lived in an atmosphere of poisoned malice. We have allowed ourselves to be divided into antagonistic camps, half truths and distortions."

LOST 75 POUNDS WITH THIS HOME RECIPE

THIS LADY
LOST 75 POUNDS

"I have taken about 16 bottles of Barconate and lost 75 pounds," writes Alice E. Owen, 1515 Mission Ave., San Antonio, Texas. "I now continue to take Barconate occasionally to keep my weight down and prevent bloating and gas in my stomach. I wouldn't be without Barconate in my medicine cabinet for anything."

LOST 20 POUNDS

"I think Barconate is a real 'go-to-it'," writes Jane Lester, 146 Abury St., Houston, Texas. "I have taken several bottles and lost 20 pounds and I feel so much better in every way."

Overweight can be a menace to health, but common sense should be the watchword to get rid of the extra poundage. A rigid diet over a protracted period of time can also do harm. Why not try the Barconate way as countless others have done with remarkable results? Barconate contains no harmful drugs. In fact, it contains ingredients to make you feel better. Just go to your drugstore and ask for four ounces of Barconate. Pour into a pint bottle or jar and add 12 ounces of grapefruit juice. Then take 2 tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the way to take off bulky fat, return the empty bottle for your money back.

Lincoln Biographies

There are many miracles about Abraham Lincoln and his legend. One is that he is beloved by all Americans of whatever political faith. Adlai Stevenson, 1952-Democratic presidential nominee, quoted Lincoln in his speech of concession to General Eisenhower. Earlier in the campaign he had sought communion with Lincoln among historic buildings at Salem, Ill., where young Abe had lived and worked in a store.

Lincoln, too, is a symbol to all the world of the best in the American ideal; standing for high statesmanship, great human compassion, homely simplicity, devotion to a cause. A never-ending marvel is the way Lincoln appears to enjoy a rebirth within each decade or less. Already there are more than 3800 separate works devoted to his life and his times.

Then, Kenneth Williams is engaged upon what will probably be ranked as the authoritative version of the Civil War from the Union side. In this work he is matching the fine scholarship of Douglas Southall Freeman's works on Robert E. Lee and the Confederate campaigns. It is often said history must be rewritten for each generation. If this is so, we in America, and our friends abroad, could hardly be more fortunate in the quality now being given to the re-telling of the Lincoln legend. In these new works, the inspiration of his life and his cause is fresh and vibrant and compelling.

There are now two exceptionally good examples of socialized power proposals minus the usual shield of confusing side issues. In Idaho the federal power planners are working for a government power dam on the Snake River — a $350,000,000 structure that would serve just one purpose, power production. A long established local power company is prepared to develop power on the river, if given the opportunity, at no cost to the taxpayers.

If the election in November was any criterion, the people are heartily sick of working out their lives as virtual tax slaves to support a super state. Yet these two projects alone would cost an "estimated" three quarters of a billion dollars. They can be built with the voluntary invested savings of private citizens, and thereby create large new sources of tax revenue, or they can be loaded onto the taxpayers as tax-exempt government property, and additional tax supported bureaus and bureaucrats can be hired to run them. Which do we want?

BETTER JOBS

What Is Spiritual Mobilization?

I want to quote from the magazine "Truth in Action," which every member of the Freedom Club receives. Freedom Clubs are sponsored by the Spiritual Mobilization movement. I quote from this magazine an article written by James C. Ingebreten, vice president and counsel for it, explaining what is Spiritual Mobilization:

"Spiritual Mobilization endeavors to get thought started on the concept of liberty. The activities of the organization are completely non-denominational and non-sectarian. Among the subscribers and readers of its materials are Catholic priests, Jewish rabbis, and Protestant clergymen.

"Spiritual Mobilization is committed to a long range educational venture: to plant the seeds of ideas, to stimulate private inquiry, to awaken a desire to explore the philosophy of freedom, to increase the understanding that every impairment of liberty is a moral evil. Not only have men failed to attain a truly liberal society, but even the concept of liberty has eluded full comprehension. This being so, every attempt to expound the philosophy of liberty leaves something to be desired.

The Religious Case For Individual Liberty

"Each person has a top root to the Eternal, his principle of existence is found not in himself but in God. The will and conscience of the individual are peculiarly his own, but they lie along a spiritual frontier where a man comes into communion with his God. The fruit of this communion is an elevation of character and a quickened conscience, issuing in transformed action. Thus, whoever interposes by violence, or threat, between another man's conscience and his conduct reduces the man to his creature and makes him a mere appendage to an alien will. This is a violation of the natural order of things, because man is a creature of God, not of any other man. Any one or any group or any government, which supersedes a man's will by force, plays the part of God, and reduces other men to puppets. This is a moral evil, whether the force is exercised over one person by another or by government in the name of a majority.

The Place For Government In Our Lives

"There is a social role which legal forces, or government, can perform in the community. It can protect the peaceful business of society by using force — if necessary — on peacebreakers. Individuals desire means to protect and defend themselves against violence, or threat, from others. For this they have every warrant in ethics. If they have a right to be alive at all, they have an equal right to defend their lives. Under the advantages of specialization and the division of labor, the right of each individual to defend his life, his liberty, and the material possessions on which life and liberty depend, is turned over to a single man, or to a group of men. In some such fashion the idea of government came into being, as distinct from that arbitrary force exercised by a tyrant, with which men everywhere have had experience. This is the uniquely American idea of government — an agency among men to secure to all individuals their God-given rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"In this conception, government is a legal repository of force, it is the social apparatus of compulsion, and its moral ground for being is the observed fact that peaceful citizens need defense against predation from within, or without, their societies. This is the use of legal force against aggressors and criminals for the protection of peaceful citizens — a principle utterly at variance with the collectivist idea of the use of legal force against peaceful citizens either for 'their own good' or the supposed welfare of others!

Coercion As The Key To Collectivism

"The collectivist principle depends on the use of legal force and penalties to make individuals conform to the master plan imposed on them. This principle lies at the heart of communism, socialism, the Welfare State, and all varieties of the planned economy. In these systems, government is called on to force men to act in ways contrary to the way they would otherwise act if force and penalties were not used against them. The socialist, the collectivist, the social planner of whatever variety, is a man who endorses some degree of legal coercion to make peaceful citizens do what he wants them to do and yet feels himself incompetent to persuade them to do it.

The Credo Of Spiritual Mobilization

"Spiritual Mobilization is against the attempt to organize life around the principle of coercion, believing that this effort is contrary to the teachings of Jesus, destructive of true social progress, and is opposed to the principles enunciated in the Declaration of Independence. Spiritual Mobilization was founded on a credo, based on that Declaration:

"Man, being created free as a child of God, has certain inalienable rights and responsibilities; the state must not be permitted to usurp them: It is the duty of the church to help protect them." "Spiritual Mobilization believes that mankind cannot arrive at good ends through evil means and that the ties which are to more truly bind men in brotherly and

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

During the season when Christmas celebrates the Nativity of Christ I received from Switzerland three copies of a French movie magazine called "Cine Revue" occupied by a penicillin, or rather, let us say, worried, portrait of Charlie Chaplin. The title of this work of art ran: "Charlie Chaplin: Reincarnation of Jesus Christ?"

In view of Chaplin's notoriety as a rake with a preference for young girls, of the awful allegations on file in the divorce suit of Liza Grey, one of his numerous child brides, and his implication in Communist affairs, I took it that the person who mailed these copies back to the United States had meant to commit sacrilege. Hedda Hopper, of Hollywood, also received a copy, which she sent along to me. Each of them was accompanied by a memorandum bearing the scrawled name of a man who is known to be an old friend and sometime press agent of Charlie Chaplin. "With compliments," the greeting said. Chaplin's latest picture, "Limelight," has laid an egg in the United States notwithstanding its highly professional, artificial, balmy premiere in London and a somewhat less clamorous debut in New York.

Through a resolution adopted by its executive committee last Oct. 11, the American Legion not only praised the Department of Justice for its decision to investigate Chaplin's eligibility to return to the United States but urged the distributors of "Limelight" to withdraw the picture "until the issues are determined." James McGraney announced shortly before he left the office of attorney general his confident conviction that Chaplin could be kept out of the country for the rest of his life.

The distributors of "Limelight" are United Artists, an old company formed by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Chaplin many years ago. It became moribund and recently has been revived by Robert Benjamin and Arthur Krim, New York lawyers of the firm of Phillips, Nizer, Benjamin and Krim. James F. O'Neil, a past national commander of the Legion and now its director of publications, reports that about Oct. 20, Krim and Benjamin called on him at the New York office of the American Legion Magazine to discuss the effect of this Legion resolution on their business interests. O'Neil says they told him they had 50 per cent of United Artists and that Miss Pickford and Chaplin each had 25 per cent. He said Krim and Benjamin told him they stood to obtain full control of U.A. and said they were neighborly relations must be those of love and not of coercion.

"It is from the set of conceptions which stems from these basic ideas about man, his relation to God and to other men, that Spiritual Mobilization carries out its educational work. In whatever media it speaks, it speaks only for itself. It is the spokesman for no outside group, nor for any outside interests. Members of its distinguished advisory committee serve to attest to the integrity of its operation and join in its purpose to communicate understanding of the philosophy of liberty and its spiritual foundations."

Success Secrets

By ELMER WHEELER

In all the annals of the world of sports, there is no more courageous story than that of Ben Hogan, one of the great golfers of our time.

After a long, hard struggle, Hogan has become one of the top pros golfers in the country. Yet, early one foggy February morning in 1949, Ben Hogan seemingly lost all that he had worked so hard to gain. He and his wife, Valerie, traveling in their car to a new home in North Worth, were struck by a speeding bus that was passing a truck. Two other cars piled into the wreckage before signals could be put out.

His wife luckily was less hurt than frightened. But the crash left Hogan's body badly battered and bruised. After recovery was in sight, blood clots complicated the injuries. A dangerous operation was necessary to relieve the clotting and even with the operation, the doctor had doubts about Hogan's regaining his championship form.

But Hogan had different ideas. He made his living by playing golf. He had to play again, and he made up his mind that he would. Slowly Hogan worked his way back into shape. He had to learn the one named in the House Committee's report were the same man.

O'Neil said there were five "wrongoes" in "Encounter." One of the most prominent movie producers in the industry has been making quiet overtures to prominent publicists with a large aggregate audience to give him the same "bath" that has been enjoyed by the late John, or Julie, Garfield, and a long roster of brothers and sisters who had fun and made a lot of money being Red until the tide turned.

National Whirligig... Disunity Among Farm Groups May Mean Break For Public

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The depressed prices now threatening the producers of major foodstuffs have highlighted the fact that the supposedly all-powerful farm bloc in Capitol Hill has fallen to pieces during the period of wartime and postwar prosperity. They are feuding among themselves as never before instead of uniting for submission of a specific and strong program to President Eisenhower and Secretary Benson.

Like Eisenhower, Benson would like to deal with a committee or central body authorized to speak for the farmers in framing or modifying the existing system. But he has been unable to identify any group which he could recognize as representative of the nation's agricultural interests. So far he has resisted the attempts of the rival organizations to win him over to their viewpoint.

Once ranked with labor and the veterans as the "most formidable and effective lobby at Washington," the farm bloc is now a muddled and splintered group. It cannot agree on plans to check the price decline, to force down the cost of things farmers must buy, to stimulate lagging export trade or to improve the lot of their clients.

IDEAL CHOICE

In fact, the disagreements within the major farm organizations — the American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers Union — largely account for Eisenhower's selection of Benson as Secretary of Agriculture. Although long interested in the operative and marketing problems the Utah man has not been identified closely with any of the squabbling, professional organizations. His neutral position made him the ideal choice.

He demurred mildly against accepting the job, giving four reasons: (1) Utah is a great farm state; (2) better men could be found in the Midwest's corn-and-cattle country; (3) he had been for Sen. Taft before Chicago; (4) he was a clergyman.

DISCORD WEAKENS INFLUENCE

The discord among the farm organizations has weakened their influence on Capitol Hill to an unprecedented degree. In the last session, for instance, both the Farm Bureau Federation and the Grange opposed a proposal for appropriation of $250,000,000 for the soil conservation program. Normally conservative groups, they did not believe that Uncle Sam should pay farmers for the ordinary upkeep of their investments.

But numerous members from farm states shouted that neither the Grange nor the Federation, although the oldest and largest organizations of their kind, could speak for the nation's farmers. And Congress voted the money in defiance of the two bodies, which have almost 2,500,000 dues-paying members.

The third farm group, the National Farmers Union, has only about 210,000 members. It represents marginal, one-crop farmers, and it is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It is generally regarded as the more radical outfit, and usually supported the New Deal-Fair Deal legislative program.

SQUABBLE OVER FARM POLICIES

Better wages war on each other in their scramble for Benson's favor, the three organizations are squabbling internally over future farm policies. They cannot agree to ask for 80 per cent, 100 per cent or a sliding scale (75 to 80 per cent) of parity.

BID FOR A SMILE

A parson, calling on one of his parishioners, called for the family Bible so that he might read a few verses of Scripture before he left. The father of the family sent his young son on the errand. Father — Run get the Bible, Bobby. You know, the big book that we all read so much. Bobby came back promptly, carrying a large mail-order catalog.

To walk again. It was a painful process, but he kept at it. Through it all, his wife was at his side, always encouraging, always helping. Ten months after the accident, Hogan played his first golf game. Then, soon after that, there was the Los Angeles Open. There Hogan was the runner-up to Sam Snead. Hogan went on to win tournaments — hard tournaments on hard courses. It was rugged work for courageous Ben, but he did it. He forced himself to do it. In spite of reverses, it is possible to stay on top. But it is no job for a weak man. It takes courage and the ability to force yourself to do it.

a break for another equally unorganized element — namely, the consumers. For the first time in many years, they are enjoying relatively reasonable prices at the grocery and meat stores.

Showmanship in the fur district. A picture window giving onto Seventh Avenue at 30th Street, behind which is a long, wooden cutting table. On the table, a three-foot pile of mutation mink skins. Back of the table is a young man in a crisp, long, white coat, like a chemist's, and he picks up one skin at a time and carefully examines it. He puts most of the skins into a second pile, but now and then he disdainfully tosses one to the floor. Placed against the window on a miniature easel is a sign: "I Am Now Personally Selecting Breath of Spring—True-Blue Mutation Mink for Some cannot agree on plans to check the price decline, to force down the cost of things farmers must buy, to stimulate lagging export trade or to improve the lot of their clients."

Overhauling the subway. "All I need to know about architects is on Page One. They hire a dozen of them, give them $5,000,000 to play with, they rip the joint apart from cellar to garret for almost three years and what happens: the First Lady hasn't got a clothes closet big enough to hang her clothes in. For better than five million she's got a right to a clothes closet. That settled it for me: I'm designing my own two-car garage."

Warren Eyster is the name literary New York is talking about. He broke all the rules. A product of a Pennsylvania steel town, he enlisted in the Navy where he didn't have to write anything but his name. He never had written anything else but his name, to speak of, and he hadn't read much either. He decided to Gilbert after the war and went to college. At college his roommate wrote a short story and asked Eyster to read it. "I could do better than that in my sleep," said Eyster with less than tact. His crushed roommate heatedly challenged him to try it, just try it, and Eyster sat down and wrote a short story which didn't stop until it became a novel. He sold it to Random House without any trouble and Random House will have it out on the stands on March 27th. It is called "Far From the Customary Skies," and publisher Bennett Cerf, a careful man with a word, calls it "extraordinary."

It is an extraordinary book for a man who never wrote, extraordinarily under any circumstance at all. It is an astonishing book and I'll walk upright onto the farthest end of the nearest limb: Eyster will be one of the next decade's most important writers.

Showmanship on an Eighth Avenue push-cart specializing in razor blades, shoe laces, shoe polish and suspenders. A neatly printed sign in the razor blade department of the little wagon: "We believe our surgical steel articles to be the peer of any obtainable anywhere, including the Fifth Avenue cut-throats." The man presiding over the hand-razor didn't even wear a black Homburg or a starched dickie shirt. Asked about the sign, he shrugged: "My boy. He went to college. For the $3,000 it cost me he feels at least he should write me a sign."

Actors are well-dressed, they have to be. Actors also have long periods in which they don't work much and money must be doled out carefully. What do they do? They buy their clothes wholesale in the five blocks of Fifth Avenue between 18th and 23rd Streets. In these five blocks most of the best clothes sold in the best stores are tailored. Here you get for $35 a suit retailing at $130 twenty blocks away. Dinner suits in silk faille, $125 anywhere, are $57. You can get imported $125 raincoats for $67 and imported British overcoats for $55. But you have to know someone. It's another actor who has been in these wholesale lots. Also, you take the suits as it is and lay out from $3 to $5 to have them altered and the trousers cuff by a neighborhood tailor.

Soviet Stocks Up On Long-Range Bombers

The Russian TU-4 bomber, a copy of the U. S. B-29 Superfortress. Photo, taken from a Soviet newscast acquired by the Department of Defense in Korea.

The Soviet air force has completed the build-up of its long-range bomber force and is planning now to provide it with better and faster planes rather than increase its size, thinks Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Vice-Chief of Staff for the USAF. He says the Soviets have at least 1000 long-range TU-4 medium bombers (right), copied from the U.S. B-29. One of the "newer and faster" super-bombers is thought to be the TU-75 (below), which the USAF calls simply "Type 31." The prototype of this six-engine craft is reported to have been test-flown in September, 1950, so it is assumed to be in regular production now. The plane thought to be the TU-75 was first described by Charles W. Cain, British journalist, aviation authority and author of "Military Aircraft of the USSR."

SIZE: About that of Consolidated B-36 bomber. Over-all length, 167 feet; wingspan 223 feet; weight 350,000 pounds.
POWER: Six turbo-jet engines of unknown, but "probably high" h.p.
SPEED: Estimated at 450 m.p.h., cruising.
RANGE: Estimated at least 10,000 miles.
WINGS: Swept-back, flexible, like Boeing B-47 bomber, with tremendous fuel capacity.
CREW: Probably 22 men, used in two "watches."

This is an artist's conception of the new Russian intercontinental bomber thought to be the TU-75. It was drawn from data brought from behind the Iron Curtain by a technician reported to have worked on its development.

Careful Thought Solves Problem

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service
When dummy has a short suit and some trumps, declarer will usually try to make tricks by ruffing in the dummy. The defender must usually lead trumps in order to prevent dummy from getting these ruffs. In today's hand the task of the defenders was complicated by the fact that the first trump lead had to come from the correct position. West opened the queen of hearts and was allowed to hold the trick. Instead of continuing blindly with another round of hearts, West gave the matter careful thought. Dummy's short holding in diamonds was an obvious threat. West did not want to lead the first trump away from his king, so he looked for a way to give his partner the lead. A heart continuation was hopeless, since South evidently did not intend to put up dummy's king. If East had an entry in diamonds, he would get it whenever declarer led dummy's short suit. West tried to do this very properly, but South shifted to clubs even though this meant leading away from his king. East took the second trick with the ace of clubs and saw the indicated defense very promptly. When East shifted to a trump, South could do nothing better than try the finesse of the queen of spades. West won with the king of spades and returned a

Tough Irishman Is Convinced Commies Will Be Defeated

By ELKANOR SPALDING
NEA Special Correspondent
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya — (NEA) — Surrounded by gloom, the one man in all Asia who radiates confidence that the Communists will be beaten is a tough Irishman, general Sir Gerald Templer, British High Commissioner for Malaya.

POISON PEN of Soviet artists create Hate-America cartoons to accompany Hate articles.

The general, conducting the Malayan branch of the war against communism, believes that the Reds, balked in their effort to create chaos by terrorism, will concentrate more on trying to undermine the Government, particularly by stirring up racial antagonism. And he thinks the way to beat communism in Malaya — and all Asia — is not to kill the relatively few guerrillas, but to win over the native population who aid them.

"Four years ago," he says, "the Communists were saying they would set up a Communist state. Well, they have not succeeded yet. And they are not going to. Despite Communist activity throughout southeast Asia, Templer has two things to keep up his spirits. For one, the British are convinced they are winning their war. For another, Templer himself is convinced that, in Malaya, the plan to outdo Communist promises is pulling the rug out from under the feet of the bandits in the hills.

and industrial development and, the biggest job of all, creating permanent homes for 450,000 Chinese squatters.

The bandits all exhibit one annoying feature — about one, and another pops up in his place. This has convinced Templer that killing bandits alone will not restore peace to Malaya. The way to beat them, he feels sure, is to take away the support of the people. His way of doing this is by improving living conditions. Before Templer arrived, 99 per cent of the squatters, who had been living in bug-infested shacks on the edge of the jungle, were moved into barred wire enclosures to separate them from the bandits whom they had been aiding. The Communists were calling these quarters concentration camps.

Templer's big aim is to get the mutually suspicious Chinese and Malays, almost evenly divided in the population, to work together against the Communists. The fact that most of the bandits are Chinese will not stop them, in his opinion, from trying to set the Malays against the Chinese.

In proportion to the country's population (5 1/2 million), the resettlement of the squatters has been the largest mass movement of population in history, Templer claims. But what makes it remarkable, he adds, is that many thousands of people are beginning to see what the future can hold for them.

But the Communists are not the only ones who are complaining. Others say that the British started 50 years too late or that no good will come out of trying to westernize natives. Dr. Victor Purcell, a former British civil servant who is now honorary advisor to the Malayan Chinese Association, says the British are not doing enough for the Chinese. And Malays are shouting that at least as much should be done for them. "Considerable has been done for the Malays," says Templer. "But it is not nearly enough. We are going to do more."

Irrigation projects, new tractors, release of improved rice seed, loans to cooperatives, training of tinmiths, a new timber research laboratory and a rubber processing factory for the small farmers competing with the big estates are some of the things Templer already has obtained for the Malays.

Thieves Develop Hold-Up Weapon

REYNOSA, Mex., Feb. 7 —UP—Two Reynosa thieves have developed a new hold-up weapon—a bottle of "foul smelling" liquid, police said Saturday. The liquid was so vile that one woman fainted when she smelled the fumes and a man began wretching. A more rugged victim, taxi driver Alvaro Maldonado, grabbed a wrench when approached by the pair and knocked one man out and scared the man with the odious liquid away.

explained it, the Legislative Council has calmly accepted a budget for 1953 with a $30,000,000 gap in it.

"We will bridge it ourselves," says Templer. And nobody disputes him. With a zest which appalls his enemies and delights his lieutenants, the general jumps into every mess he can find and mops it up his way. For instance, by a neat mixture of threats and rewards he has doubled the information the British have been getting on the whereabouts of Communists.

In England, there have been complaints that he violates civil liberties. Yet the Malayan Chinese Association, the frequently-loud mouthpiece of that group, has voiced no objections. "These people do not always understand governmental processes. They do understand Templer, who has no patience with governmental processes," said one of his own lieutenants. "You don't report to Templer," he added. "He reports to you. When he is all through, he will ask you what you have to say. By that time, he already has said everything which can be said. And since he already has made up his mind what to do, it would be redundant to say anything."

She Calls Him Bootsie' Hank's Wife Says He Throws Back Fish Under 200 Pounds

By HENRY McLEMORE
LOS ANGELES — If you read the magazines you know that editors are going hot and heavy for stories written by wives about their husbands. Mrs. Hemingway tells all about Mr. Hemingway, including the fact that one of his great pleasures is to throw snowballs at barges plying the Seine. Mrs. Disney dissects Walt as thoroughly as any freshman ever dissected a frog in Biology 1. I am a man who follows trends. So today I give you Mary McLemore's impression of her husband, Henry.

Henry ordered snails upside down, hamburger steak, brandied French fries, and three slices of pound cake made with oleo. He did everything so swift, and straight and sure. "We were poor then, but Henry made the gesture. "We're poor now, but Henry (I call him Bootsie at home, and he calls me Fluff) still makes the gesture. "I know it is poor taste to reveal family secrets, but if the public demands that sort of thing, who am I to refuse? "It is not easy to live with a poor man who has no talent, but there are things about him that bring me happiness. "What girl could resist a man who jumps out of bed in the morning and, without a rag of clothes on, fires a shotgun out the window? "Henry is equally at home with tax collectors, taxidermists, taxi drivers, leg tasters, terrapin raters, tidilyink players, Thom as Edison, Ty Cobb, Topsy and Tippicanoe and Tyler too. "His temperament is so mercurial that I never know what to expect. Only last week he refused to come to dinner because he was so absorbed in completing, in his workshop, a scale model of the continent of Asia. "That's typical of him—thorough. Always looking at the horizon, too. A month ago he had never played the harp. Then he bought a harp, and engaged Harpo Marx as a teacher. He plays it endlessly, and is now all wrapped up in a plan to finance a 3,000 all-girl harp band to tour Europe. "How he loves to fish! Many is the morning I have found him fishing in the bathtub, with the overhead shower running to make it rough. He ties his own flies, grows his own poles, and throws back any fish under 200 pounds. "His favorite suit is made of antlers, taken from the heads of deer he shot on safari. At informal gatherings he likes to wear a Cape Buffalo tongue for a tie, but to see him at his best you should see him in his bare feet crushing grapes for his very own wine, the only wine he can tolerate. "He flies his own kite, speaks three languages badly, has what he considers the world's best collection of Cellophane-covered lamp shades, and writes standing on his head. "A sweet man. But, confidentially, you can have him. Postage prepaid."

First is First

THAT SCOWL MAKES HIM HAPPY—Bert Brandt, above, likes his picture of a displeased Eisenhower. It was named best-of-show in a competition held by the Press Photographers Association of New York. The United Press photographer took the picture as Eisenhower reacted unfavorably to a question put to him by a delegate during pre-convention days. The photo also earned Brandt the William Randolph Hearst Memorial Trophy and a $500 Bond.

LIFE BEGINS AT FIVE—Tommy Yates, above, beaten almost to death by his mother on Christmas Eve, 1951, takes a lesson in bicycle riding from his adopted father, J. H. Trussell, of Hale Center, Tex. Tommy had to learn to talk and walk all over again, as his memory was destroyed by the beating and his right side is still paralyzed. The Vernon, Tex., child was awarded to the Trussells, one of hundreds of couples who wanted to adopt the child. Tommy's real mother is serving a 10-year penitentiary sentence for the crime.

Electronic Glow-Worm Shines Again; Recharged In Cooker

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA) — A scouped-up Lampyrus Noctiluca (glow-worm) is causing quite a stir along what's left of Tin Pan Alley. This entomological ditty is "The Glow-Worm," the hit song of the 1910s that's now back with a set of electronic lyrics and a new lease on life.

It's a smash. But it typifies the current bleakness of the musical picture, when lyricists are having to dip back 40 years or so to find singable melodies.

"The Glow-Worm" has been selling well for more than four decades. It's long been classed as a "standard" — the publishers, Edward B. Marks Music Corp., sell some 60 different arrangements of it, for everything from a saxophone quartet to a flute-piano duet.

But a few modern songs stand a chance of lasting so long. "The Glow-Worm," and other melodies of that era, were simple.

"Songs used to be written," says Herbert Marks, head of the Marks song publishing firm, "for people to sing around a piano. Today, they're written for trick effects on records. It's hard to sing something like 'Jambalaya,' for instance, even if you could remember the words."

Marks points out that there are plenty of song-writers around. His crowded waiting room is evidence to that. But they write melodies that sound good coming out of an echo chamber, or being howled by a weeping tenor, or strummed by what sounds like 17 guitars.

Songs, today, are written for mechanical reproductions. And they're written under pressure.

It's gotten so one commentator thinks they ought to rename Tin Pan Alley "Pressure Cooker Lane."

Today's song-writer has to work fast. He makes far less money now than he did in the good old days. His chief source of revenue — sheet music — is selling just moderately well. And the writer and publisher get, at the most, only two cents from each record. Figuring a million records, which is good, that means the publisher and writer (or writers) cut up a $200,000 melon. And a million record song isn't too common.

So the song-writers grind them out as fast as they can, and when they become hits, it's generally because of a recording artist and a recording arrangement, rather than because of the quality of the song itself.

"The Glow-Worm" is the exception. Marks poo-pooes those who talk about it as a "lucky hit." "After all," he says, "it's the

JOHNSON * IN HOLLYWOOD *

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Exclusively Yours: Dick Haymes and his Nora have decided that a separation may save their marriage. Nora will go to Europe for eight months with her two daughters and tarry a while in Rome so that papa Errol Flynn can see the youngsters.

Dick, meanwhile, is switching to the strictly dramatic field and parking his singing voice in a trunk marked, "Use Only When Necessary."

He tried it first some years ago in "St. Benny the Dip," forgot about that old Stanislavski feeling for a while and is now back to his resolve to gain recognition as a dramatic actor with non-singing roles in TV and in movies.

"I've been trying to make the change for the last five years," he told me on the set of "Crusin' Down the River," in which he sings, he hopes, for the last time in front of a movie camera. "It's a tough fight, but if I make it, it will be healthy for my career. What the heck, I'm not 25 years old any more."

Zsa Zsa Gabor is getting fussy about picture roles. She turned down the lead in Sam Katzman's "Prisoner of Casbah," then Gloria Grahame, who's twice as fussy, accepted it. You figure it out.

Sophie Tucker and Betty Hutton have decided against the last of the Red Hot Mamas appearing as herself in the final reel of "The Sophie Tucker Story." Instead, Soph told me, the picture will open with a newswear flash of work of top artists. Paul Lincke, who wrote the music, was the foremost composer of Berlin in his day. And Johnny Mercer, who wrote the new lyrics — well, I don't have to tell you about Johnny Mercer. It wasn't luck — hard work.

Lincke wrote it in 1902, and called it "Gluhurmchen," which even the Mills Brothers couldn't have done much with. It came over to this country in 1905, got a new name and new lyrics and eventually found its way into a Lew Fields show, "The Girl Behind the Counter."

From then on, it's been a semi-classic. Children learned to play the piano from it. Little girls danced to it in school plays. Big girls took their clothes off to it in burlesque houses. Little shavers sang it, and so did big shavers in barber shop quartettes.

Then Johnny Mercer gave it a lyrical transmutation, and the Mills Brothers record of it became one of the top sellers of 1952. Marks hopes, in the new version, it'll keep glowing for another 40 years.

Or at least as long as the new lyrics put it, as the little bug with the neon tail light continues to turn on the AC and the DC.

the jubilee dinner that will be given for her Oct. 14 in New York.

After the first glimpse of Sophie as she is today, Betty will take over as the young Sophie for the rest of the picture.

3-D Standout

Phyllis Kirk on her first three-dimensional emoting as the girl fleeing from mad monster Vincent Price in "The House of Wax": "No one has said, 'You can't do this or that because it's a 3-D film.' The scenes are longer but everything else is the same. No, I haven't seen the rushes. But someone who did said to me: 'It's amazing. That big floppy hat you were wearing came right out into the theater.'

"Now I'm worried about my nose and other things coming right out into the theater."

Jane Russell and writer-director Frank Tashlin are hatching plans for Jane to star in "The Gibson Girl"....Katy Jurado's long-distancing her agents to line up some radio and TV dates in New York. She met a reech hand-some bachelor in Acapulco last week — a New Yorker.

Comedienne Sue Carson, who had a nervous collapse in London after Artie Shaw broke his engagement to her, has been booked into the Bar of Music, where she first got her start, by Regina Viallady.

Author Phil Stone has written a sequel to "State Fair" — "Return to August" — which takes up the lives of the characters 20 years later. Fox has first call on buying the book.

Feel Right At Home

Stars, directors and writers are taking more than just talent to movie sets these days. They're also taking props from home to cut down expenses!

AND, shooting TWO movies at the same time.

Otto Preminger, simultaneously directing the English and German versions of "The Moon Is Blue," with Bill Holden, Maggie McNamara, David Niven and three German stars, tipped me off to the props-from-home in an apartment set.

Otto donated three paintings hanging on the walls.

Author F. Hugh Herbert brought in the books for the bookcases.

And all the bric-a-brac came from Holden's living room.

"We had a bid on the rental of hand props," Otto whispered. "It was too expensive, so we decided to decorate the set with our own stuff. Niven asked me what he could bring from home and I said, 'Money.' So far he hasn't brought any, though."

Walter Abel's son, Michael, is recovering from spinal meningitis in Manhattan, so Walter flies to Hollywood to play the role of an army air force colonel in the Wayne-Fellows picture, "Island in the Sky."

Richard Bare's observation: "A lot of Hollywood starlets are trying to see who can get the most OUT of an evening gown."

Sign of the times note: Bud Tobias, the Beverly Hills jeweler, is featuring three — dimensional rings and bracelets.

The American farmer spent about 150 hours a year milking one cow 20 years ago. Today milking machines have cut the time to about 100 hours a year — or about 1 1/2 eight-hour days.
