Fresh Troops Hurled Into Old Baldy Battle

City Sounds Disapproval Of Zoning Plans

Disapproval of zoning recommendations for the new 80 acres in the southwestern section of the city was sounded this morning by the City Commission during a preliminary hearing of the recommendations handed it by the zoning board.

"This spot zoning, isn't even zoning," City Commissioner W.B. (A) Neel said. The commissioners present, and Mayor C.A. Huff, nodded accord.

The commission's objections were voiced while Phillip Jackson, one of the property owners in the area, stated he wanted his section zoned commercial the same as several others so he "could do with his property as he pleased."

His section, located at Hobart and Crawford, was recommended as residential.

Mayor C.A. Huff said the fact that a new school, Lamar Elementary School, is being built there would be indicative of a residential zone.

REPRESENTS PAMPA — Mrs. J. W. Garman Jr., was among 120 Texas women attending an Austin convention of the League of Women Voters.

Boys is president of the Pampa Chamber and Evans is vice president.

Scheduled speaker at the affair is to be W.H. (Bill) Alexander, pastor of the Oklahoma City First Christian Church.

Delegations from all neighboring towns are expected to attend, according to Boyd.

Desperate Attack Launched By Reds

SEOUL, March 24 — UP — Fresh American troops were hurled Tuesday into a stand-or-die battle with the Chinese Communists for Old Baldy Mountain, one of seven key central front hills hit by 3,000 Reds in their biggest attack in five months.

Maj. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, new commander of the Seventh Infantry Division, which bore the brunt of the Red attack, said he "would not be surprised" if the battle lasted several days. The battle was now in its second day.

United Press Correspondent Victor Kendrick reported from the central front background that casualties on both sides had been very heavy.

The tank-supported Chinese opened the attack at 9 o'clock Monday night (6 a. m. CST Monday), with 3,000 Reds striking at the seven Allied-held hills guarding the traditional Seoul invasion route west of Chorwon.

The Allies repulsed all the attacks or regained lost territory except on Old Baldy, where Seventh Division troops fought hand-to-hand to win back the western slope.

Columbian soldiers manned the Old Baldy positions when the mountain was first hit. They were reinforced at 2:30 a. m., but then were withdrawn and Americans took over the fight. At last reports, Seventh Division troops were the only Allied soldiers in the battle.

Trudeau told Kendrick that his forces were reinforced shortly before counter-attacking the Communists at 2:30 p. m. (11:33 p. m. CST). At last reports, close-quarter fighting was still going on, although Red artillery and mortar fire slackened off about noon.

"Still Kinda Rough" "It's still kind of rough up there," Trudeau said, "because of Chinese re-inforcements pushed in to the fight."

Preliminary estimates of Communist casualties were placed at 152 killed and 146 wounded in Tuesday's battles, but the figure was certain to rise sharply.

American soldiers performed heroic deeds. An artillery forward observer on Porkchop Hill remained in a bunker after Chinese overran the position and called in UN artillery on the Reds and himself. It was not known whether the officer survived.

A tank crew, finding the vehicle's tracks disabled, closed the hatches and continued firing, although the tank became a sitting duck for enemy shells.

Among the other hills hit by the Reds were T-Bone, Alligator Jaw and Porkchop. The Reds swept over Porkchop but the Americans pushed them off after a six-hour fight.

GETS NINETY-NINE YEARS—Mario (El Turko) Sapet, found guilty of being an accomplice to a murder was assessed ninety-nine years in prison by a Brown County jury in Brownwood Sunday.

School Board Studies Lights
A three-quarters-of-an-hour discussion on the financial advisability of erecting a new floodlighting system at Hester Park highlighted the monthly meeting of the Pampa school board.

Board members also approved unanimously a motion to offer two-year contracts to the principals of Pampa's seven public schools.

B. R. Cantrell, architect for both Lamar School and the new Hester Park football stands, was on hand to talk over the lighting problem, and the board decided to let him prepare specifications for a new set of lights.

Lowest bid received Jan. 6 for a floodlighting system was $25,900 from J. T. Gohman Construction Company, Borger, and Electric Supply Co., Pampa.

Pointing out that the local branch of Southwestern Public Service Company had agreed to extend high voltage lines and erect transformers as the board wished, Cantrell estimated the job could probably be done for $20,000.

Main hurdle to be overcome now, he said, was the procuring of steel poles, for which his office doesn't even have any drawings yet.

No final decision was made as Board President Raeburn Thompson concluded by commenting: "We don't want anybody to complain about playing in the dark."

Salaries and contracts are to be handled at the convenience of Pampa's school principals, the board decided.

Local principals are Jack Edmondson, high school; McHenry Lane, junior high school; J. C. Randall, Carver; Aaron Meek, Sam Houston; Homer Craig, E.M. Baker; H. A. Yoder, Woodrow Wilson; and Sam Begert, Horace Mann.

Russ-British Meeting Slated On Air Incidents
LONDON, March 24 — UP — Prime Minister Winston Churchill agreed Tuesday to a Russian proposal for a meeting between Soviet and British representatives to prevent further air incidents over Germany.

The conference was suggested by Russia in response to British protests against a series of attacks on British planes including the shooting down of a Lincoln bomber with a loss of seven British lives.

An American F-84 Thunderjet also was shot down over West Germany recently. But the U. S. plane was a victim of Communist Czechoslovak pilots flying Russian-built MIG-15s. The American protest was lodged with the Czech government rather than the Russians.

Fear Death Is Near . . . Dowager Queen In Critical Condition

LONDON, March 24 — UP — Dowager Queen Mary, the grand old lady of the British Commonwealth, has suffered an internal hemorrhage and her heart action is weakening seriously, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The physicians of the 85-year-old grandmother of Queen Elizabeth II fear she may not live through the day.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, spiritual head of the Church of England, was summoned to her bedside after it became evident that her condition was desperate.

Other members of the royal family, including the Duke of Windsor, her favorite son, and Princess Mary, the Princess Royal, her only daughter, gathered at her old Marlborough House, on the Mall.

Queen Elizabeth, who the old lady used to hold in her arms as an infant, awaited a call to the bedside from nearby Buckingham Palace where she was working on state papers.

Queen Mary took to her bed Feb. 22. It was announced on March 3 that she was suffering from a permanent gastric ailment. But the news leaked that her illness was far more serious.

Two grave medical bulletins issued within a few hours, disclosed Tuesday that Queen Mary might be on her death bed.

The first said there was "a sudden occurrence of more severe gastric trouble."

Has Become Grave "During the last hours Queen Mary's condition has become grave. There has been a serious deterioration."

PLAN UNITED FUND CONTACT WORK — Discussing immediate plans for contacting participants in Pampa's first United Fund drive are three of the five newly elected officers — Floyd Imel, treasurer; Mrs. Rufe Jordan (center), second vice president; and Mrs. Rex Rose, secretary. New president is J. E. Murfee and Dr. J. B. Veale Jr. is first vice president. Selections were made Monday noon at meeting of the Fund's board of directors. (News Photo)

Organized United Fund Plans Contact Work; Names Officers

Plans were underway today to contact various local drive organizations for participation in Pampa's first United Fund, following the election of five officers — the executive board — to serve during 1953.

J. E. Murfee, local merchant, was elected Fund president unanimously at a meeting Monday noon of the board of directors.

Fund Co-ordinator Dr. J. B. Veale Jr. and Mrs. Rufe Jordan were chosen for first and second vice president.

Floyd Imel, treasurer, and Mrs. Rex Rose, secretary, rounded out the group of five officers selected by the 11 board members on hand for the voting.

Mrs. Jordan, in the absence of both Murfee and Veale, presided and agreed to lay the groundwork for picking committees to approach local drive groups which originally told Fund organizers Veale and Imel they would go along with the plan.

This time, upon agreement, it will be official. A committee of four — Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. W. R. Campbell, Frank Smith and Irvin Cole — was set up to determine a way of deciding which members of the 15-member board of directors would retire from the board after the first year, which after the second year and which after the third year.

Terms of board members, by the Fund's constitution, are on a staggered three-year basis, five members retiring at the end of each year. For the first two years of the Fund's operation it will be necessary to retire members who have not completed a full three years.

Current plans call for the Fund to hold its first drive in October. (See ORGANIZED, Page 5)

Two Men Burned, Another Absent In Two Local Fires
Two Pampans suffered second-degree burns this morning in a gas well fire; while a local pastor was absent from an earlier fire in his home.

Burned on the face at 8:30 a. m. today at an Empire Gas Company well, three miles west of Pampa on the Amarillo highway, were Troy Purvis and Harry Miller. Both were in "satisfactory" condition late this morning.

Rev. O.C. Curtis, 511 E. Browning, was out of town when a floor fire developed in the Central Baptist Church parsonage at 4 p. m. today.

Damages were estimated at $20,000 in the destruction of a mobile oil-cleaning rig which was adjacent to the gas well when it went up in flames, according to Fire Department officials. But there was negligible damage to the well itself.

Purvis and Miller "were fixing to fire up the cleaning truck and start work" when gas ignited and started a flash fire, fire officials continued. It took about 45 minutes for the "booster truck" to put out the flames.

A Place To Have Fun... Bad Characters Given Bum's Rush In Las Vegas, But Quick

LAS VEGAS — I am staying at the Desert Inn and the president, Wilbur Clark, enlisted my help yesterday.

"Want to be of service?" he asked me.

I told him I was at his command.

Then he outlined his plan. He wants to be the first hotel manager in Las Vegas to find the one resident of this town who goes to sleep at night. Wilbur wants to stuff and mount his weird character and hang him over the fireplace for all to see.

"You'll never find the man," I said. "Nobody sleeps in Las Vegas."

"There must be one, just one," he said. "Have you slept since you got here?"

"Not a wink," I said. "Not a single wink. My peepers have not been closed. Don't try to hang me over a fireplace. I won't stand for it."

Wilbur said, "Let us go and seek a Las Vegas sleeper."

"We jumped into his Jaguar (they use Lincolns for trailers here) and started out. Here are some of our sidewalk interviews.

"Madam, did you go to sleep last night?"

"No, sir, I didn't. When dawn broke over the desert I was trying for a hard-way eight."

"Sir, what time did you hit the sack today?"

"Ain't hit it yet. The old lady figured that 31 would come up sometime so we stayed until it didn't."

"This is far and away the most fantastic city in the United States. It beats any town anywhere that I ever saw. And it's run perfectly."

"That means a lot. If it were just a wide-open town a fellow would fear' for his life. But not Las Vegas. You can stay up all night shooting crap, playing roulette and 21, and generally having a good time but you had better behave. This town doesn't tolerate the out-of-line fellows."

"Get to misbehavin' and you'll find yourself on the way to New York, Chicago, Nashville, Butte, or wherever you hail from. This sounds like a plug for Las Vegas. I think it is. To be truthful, it is the only town of which I know where a man can have fun as long as he keeps it fun."

Mr. Clark and I finally found the only Las Vegas man who goes to sleep at night. His name is Rip Van Winkle Edwards. He has bowed tendons and a bossy wife.

We talked to Mr. Edwards. Mr. Clark asked him if he didn't feel like going out every now and then.

"She would like to see Jimmy Durante at your place," he concluded, "but the wife likes to listen to the radio. She's crazy about that Godfrey man."

I asked Mr. Edwards if he would mind hanging over a fireplace. "Vertical or horizontal?"

"Kind of cater-cornered," I told him.

"Have to ask Blanche. Blanche is my wife, you know."

"I'm glad you like your army job as bugler, George—any chance of your re-enlisting when your time's up?"

Young Sharpshooter Swallows His Ammo

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 22 — Sharpshooter Kirby Word was hospitalized Friday. He swallowed his ammunition.

The 12-year-old boy was going to practice anti-aircraft firing with a model airplane as the target and his peashooter as a gun. Kirby loaded his peashooter with a cor-sage pin, took a deep breath—and was rushed to the hospital.

Doctors removed the pin from his stomach.

FPC Approves Sale Of Phillips Line To Telephone Firms

The Federal Communications Commission has approved purchase of the Phillips Petroleum Company's private wire communication facilities by two operating units of the Bell Telephone System and the General Telephone Company of the Southwest, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company announced today.

The approval was based on an application filed jointly by the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, Long Lines and General Telephone.

Under terms of an agreement outlined in the application, the telephone companies would purchase approximately 10,000 miles of circuits and 1300 miles of pole lines.

The telephone companies plan to supplement Phillips' facilities with their own to provide the petroleum company with a more extensive network of telephone and teletypewriter services.

The projected network would connect Phillips' installations, an office in Arkansas, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, Indiana, Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Montana and Washington.

It would consist of a 75 circuit private-line telephone system serving 56 pumping stations and of

GOP Sees Budget Balancing Vital To American Security

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Six weeks' experience as bureaucrats has been a liberal education for the big businessmen who are now working for Uncle Sam for the first time — full time — at government salaries.

One thing that has impressed them most is the relation of foreign policy to what goes on in this country. When Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson goes to Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey and says that the armed services will have to have so many billions of dollars, that fact determines a lot of things.

It determines what the tax rate of the United States will be. It determines how much of America's supply of raw materials will be chewed up in manufacture of arms. And it determines how many men will work in the factories of Pittsburgh, Cleveland or Detroit and what it is they will be making for a considerable period of time.

From the point of view of the business executive in government, the United States now faces two main problems.

In front of them, the people of the civilized western world have the threat of enemies with knives at their throats. Something must be done to ward off this attack.

This means spending more than the western countries can afford for national defense. If this money is spent, and by higher taxation and borrowing, the economy of the non-Communist world is ruined, affairs may be no better off than they would be if the men with the knives were allowed to attack.

Prolonged Defense
So a decision has to be made on what course to follow. How much of a strain can the economy of the United States stand? It has stood the strain of heavy taxation for defense in the last two years very well. It could stand this strain for a few more years without undue hardship on anyone.

But if this defense posture has to be maintained for 25 years or so, what will be left?

The inflation that invariably accompanies a period of rearmament and war is sized up as an extremely dangerous thing. It begins easy, and everybody likes it. But it always gets worse and it leads to the eventual ruin of many people.

This has led President Eisenhower's administration to the conclusion that the federal government budget must be balanced, and a start must be made on reduction of the $280 billion government debt.

It is now realized this isn't going to be easy. It is going to mean sacrifices for everyone. The first and largest of government operation which everyone has become accustomed to will have to be curtailed.

Not Always Wisest
The best thing to do — that is, the most popular — is not necessarily the wisest thing to do for the long haul. For the future course of government operations it raises the possibility that all-out social security programs and 100 per cent government party payments for farmers while nice and no doubt desirable — may have to be postponed.

There are no firm decisions on these matters or any of the other 64-billion-dollar worth of questions that still face the Eisenhower administration. The new leaders say frankly that they don't know the answers, yet.

May 1 now appears the closest date on which some of the answers may be expected. Revised estimates on the Truman budget for the next fiscal year won't be ready till some time in April. The North Atlantic Treaty Council meets at the end of April, and the foreign aid program can't be sized up till then.

For Congress this poses a terrific problem. It means that the Eisenhower fiscal program for 1954 must be enacted in two months, if Congress carries out its plan to adjourn by July 1. That would mean putting off the constructive part of the Eisenhower program for a second session of Congress next fall. And few big decisions before the end of the year.

Woman Is Detained

WASHINGTON, March 23—UP—An unidentified woman entered a rest room in the Agriculture Department building Thursday and couldn't get out of the area for six hours.

The trouble was she picked out a rest room in a "lock-up" area where experts were engaged in the highly-secret business of preparing the monthly crop report.

The doors were barred shortly after she entered and were not opened until the report was made public six hours later.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace

Could you please tell me the meaning and the origin of the name "Duane" since it is not listed in any one of the three booklets I have on baby names. It seems odd to me that it was left out since it is a fairly common name. I will thank you very much for any information I could also like to add my praise of your column to that you receive each day.

Dear G. E.

Duane is the English version of the old Irish name, Doane. In Celtic it means "from the dunes" or "a poem or song."

BABY FOR ADOPTION

I know of a young girl who expects a baby sometime this summer. Mother of two other children; she does not want to keep it and is willing to give it up in return for the doctor and hospital bills.

If anyone is interested, I will be glad to forward the letters to the girl.

Dear Grace Friend

A few days ago you had an article of a lady who makes dolls. I have a doll head and would like so much to have a body made for it.

Could you please give me her address so I could reach her.

Mrs. E. N.

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

As soon as Speed came home from school, his mother knew that something was wrong. He hung up his jacket without being told. He didn't discuss the beauties of the long shot he had made in basketball practice that afternoon. He just stood disconsolately beside the table where his mother was chopping apples, nibbling abstractedly at a discarded core.

"Miss Klutz wants you to come to school," he said. "She wants to talk to you about my history."

His mother glanced at him. "Oh!" she said. "I don't know as I've anything to say to Miss Klutz about your history."

"She says you've got to make me out down on basketball work outs," her son reported. "She says she wants you to know that if I don't, I may funk history this term."

"She's probably right," said his mother placidly. "But you're the person all this concerns. I'm not the one who'll have to repeat the seventh grade with a lot of younger kids. You are. Nor can I make you study history if you don't want to. Dad and I could forbid you to play basketball until you catch up—but that doesn't make much sense. If you want to stay back this year, that's what you want to do."

"Golly, who wants to be left back?" demanded Speed aggrievedly. "Who?"

"He was interrupted. "Then tell Miss Klutz you're cutting down," said his parent. "Speak up and tell her you know she's right."

"But she wants to see your son's report."

His mother dropped a kiss on her child's head. "Why should I see Miss Klutz on your business?" she asked. "You've got a brain and a tongue. Use them. If you want to take a message back to Miss Klutz, tell her I said that my son was man enough to know when he's wrong and correct himself."

Speed did well on his last history test.

Our growing children are capable of many things if we encourage them to be. Let's do it next time Miss Klutz demands that we use our brains and tongues in their behalf.

Miss Klutz's job is to get Speed promoted to the eighth grade. Ours is to get him to handle his human relationships. Hers is to teach him to memorize the date of the Battle of Bunker Hill. Ours is to teach him to express some of the courage and independence that produced Bunker Hill. In terms of Speed's life, our job is a thousand times more important.

MRS. P. L. MEADOWS

Mrs. P. L. Meadows Is Honored At Party Given By Daughters In Wheeler Home

Mrs. P. L. Meadows, Wheeler County pioneer, celebrated her 76th birthday recently with a party. The party, given by two of her daughters, Mrs. Henry Lee of Briscoe and Mrs. Paul Shumate of Texola, Okla., was in the home of Mrs. Meadows.

Mrs. Meadows came to Wheeler with her husband about 1909. Four of Mrs. Meadows' daughters attending the party were Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Shumate, Mrs. Myrtle Lane of Wheeler, and Mrs. Walter Noel of Pampa, and a son, and his family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Meadows. Two daughters, Mrs. Earl Davis of Lubbock and Mrs. Orville Ford of Dildale, Calif., were unable to attend the party.

Mrs. Meadows has 21 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

About 44 persons called during the afternoon to participate in the celebration with Mrs. Meadows.

Authority Says There Is A Difference In Marital Trouble And Normal Nerves

Does your husband get on your nerves at times? It's perfectly natural and normal if he does, according to Elizabeth Pope in McCall's Magazine. But you're in for real marital trouble if your annoyance is too intense or too often. Miss Pope helps you to examine your reactions to your husband and gives you a questionnaire and emotional temperature chart worked out by a professional psychologist to help you in your self-evaluation.

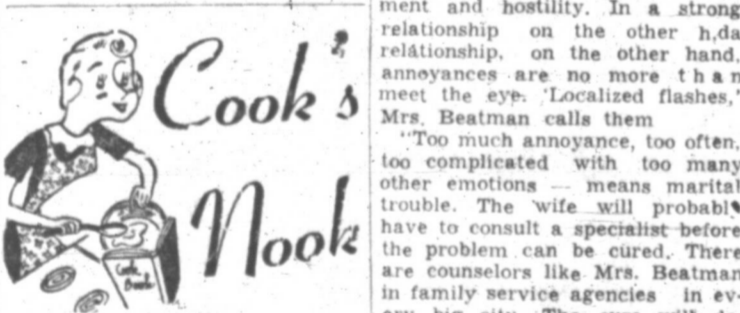

"It has taken fourteen years, three children and considerable effort for me to learn that occasionally to be annoyed (and annoyance is routine in marriage) is the kind of thing I'm talking about is the way I feel when my cheerful state starts whistling first thing in the morning, or encourages bedlam among the children at the dinner table, or waits till I have my hat on before deciding to change his shirt. These are the things that beset every marriage. "Wives feel more strongly about them than husbands—probably because women annoy more easily. But no two women feel annoyance in quite the same way. In some it may take the form of a deep-down feeling of anger. In others, of sudden flashes of pique. Some work off their feelings right away. Others carry them around for days. For some women annoyance is a rare experience. For others it is a routine occurrence."

"I have been talking to Frances Levinson Beatman, associate executive director of the Jewish Family Service, which provides marriage counseling for upwards of 10,000 New York families a year. Mrs. Beatman is a veteran of fifteen years as a counselor. She says that the way a woman reacts to the inevitable minor irritations of matrimony, how annoyed she gets, how often and what she does with her feelings, is a barometer of the overall stability of her marriage.

"When a couple is in trouble the wife often uses her husband's superficial habits as pegs on which to hang deep feelings of resentment and hostility. In a strong relationship, on the other hand, annoyances are no more than a meet the eye. 'Localized flashes,' Mrs. Beatman calls them.

"Too much annoyance, too often, too complicated with too many other emotions means marital trouble. The wife will probably have to consult a specialist before the problem can be cured. There are counselors like Mrs. Beatman in family service agencies in every big city. The cure will depend exclusively on re-establishing lines of communication between husband and wife."

"With an understanding, accepting and highly trained counselor as intermediary, a marriage can usually be placed on a new footing. Instead of blowing off (or boiling inwardly) a dozen times a day (or week), a wife will be able to talk with, not at, her husband and work out the problems that mutually concern them."

Beans Baked in Tomatoes

(Serves 6)

Six large firm tomatoes, 1 jar oven-baked beans, 1 pound 2 ounces, 1 cup finely diced green pepper, 1/2 teaspoon grated onion, 2 teaspoons kitchen bouquet, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons grated cheese.

Cut slice from top of each tomato. Remove pulp and save for other use. Lightly salt insides of cups. Combine all remaining ingredients but cheese in saucepan and heat thoroughly. Place tomato cups in greased muffin pan and fill with bean mixture. Sprinkle each with cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until tomatoes are tender, about 30 minutes.

Indian Beans With Rice

(Serves 4)

One-quarter cup bacon fat, 1 clove garlic, minced, 1/2 cup each, finely diced onion and celery, 1 teaspoon kitchen bouquet, 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 2 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoons chili powder, 1 No. 2 can kidney beans, 1 cup shredded green pepper, 1 cup pre-cooked rice.

Place fat in saucepan over moderate heat. Add garlic and let cook 1 minute. Add onion and celery and cook about 5 minutes. Stir in kitchen bouquet. Add tomato sauce and seasonings. Bring to boil and add beans and green pepper.

Let simmer uncovered over low heat until green pepper is just cooked, about 15 minutes. Meanwhile heat rice according to directions on package. Serve beans over rice.

Mashed cooked dry beans make a nutritious base for meatless sandwiches if teamed up with eggs or cheese.

With the mashed cooked beans, use egg mayonnaise, chopped hard cooked eggs or cheese. Catsup, minced onion, chopped celery or pickle relish may be added.

Clothes Should Be Picked According To Personality Rather Than Fashion

How to choose clothes that are becoming is a problem that concerns more women than usual during the Easter season. United Press Staff Correspondent Elizabeth Toomey interviewed four women well known for their success in picking the right clothes. The following is the first of four interviews that tell four expert and candid opinions on how to be a well-dressed woman.

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK, March 24—If picking the right clothes were as simple as following a set of rules, every woman would be well-dressed as soon as she learned to read. In spite of all the free advice on fashion, there still is plenty of uncertainty in the minds of women shoppers.

One reason for it all, says Dorothy Shaver, is that women sometimes think too much about fashion and too little about their own personalities and the lives they lead. Study Yourself First

This seems strange advice coming from the only woman president of a large New York department store.

Hers is the no-nonsense approach. She says she talks to buyers in her store (Lord and Taylor) "in terms of clothes people wear, not in terms of fashion."

"Don't study the clothes before you study yourself," said Miss Shaver, a tall, attractive woman becomingly dressed in a dark gray flannel suit, with several strands of pearls at her neck and a small, shiny black straw hat.

She has great faith in the basic good taste of the average shopper, said the Arkansas-born girl who became one of Manhattan's most successful executives.

Clothes Should Help Woman

"If I had ten-things in this room and three of them were badly designed, you'd pick out the seven good styles," she said. "Almost all women would."

But sometimes, she admitted, women pass up a style that would be best for them in favor of a dress that looked wonderful on somebody else.

"Take yourself positively," she said. "If you're a tall person, dress to make the most of your height. If you have good legs, dress to show them off. The clothes should help the woman. The woman should not be a mannequin for the clothes."

Circle Plans Study

Circle Seven of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church will meet Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in the church parlor.

This will be a special study meeting on "Toward Understanding the Bible," by Georgia Harkness. Mrs. Loyse Caldwell will conduct the study.

Jelly roll...

RUTH MILLETT

This letter presents one of the most difficult of human problems, for it necessitates the careful balancing of what the writer owes herself against what she owes her aging parents.

"Please answer this soon. You have so much common sense and I can't seem to see my own problem in the unbiased way a stranger would.

"I'm a schoolteacher. My brothers make more money than I do and have no families, yet will not help to support our parents. My fiancée is also a teacher and the townspeople will criticize him if we abandon my parents to get married.

"My fiancée is getting awfully discouraged. I don't blame him too much. He has to help his own father. But I am 36 and I do so want my own home and a husband and children.

"My brothers say that young people shouldn't have to pay for their parents' keep as long as there are old-age pensions, etc. What can I do? I feel like a caged animal.

"I don't want to be mean to my parents. They are splendid and it is not their fault that they have no money. I've always been generous with them, but I'm so tired of being a martyr."

The Right To Waste

You might say the Supreme Court of the United States has upheld the theory of "featherbedding" in its recent decisions involving practices of the musicians' union and the printers' union of the American Federation of Labor. But this is not precisely so.

What the court has done is to assert that the Taft-Hartley Act does not specifically forbid "featherbedding" in the issues under consideration; and therefore it is all right to force employers to pay for work not done.

The court's decision only adds color to the Alice-in-Wonderland labor-management world in which we live.

It emphasizes a startling idea — which wouldn't have been startling 20 years ago — that government and government legislation have no place in the world of work.

For those who are unfamiliar with the term, "featherbedding" is the term applied to a situation in which an employee is paid for work not done or done without necessity in a labor union operation.

A constitutional amendment was required in California not long ago to eliminate the employment of unnecessary trainmen on rail lines in the state.

And it would appear from the latest Supreme Court decree that it will be necessary to legislate specifically against each useless job, if we continue present labor-management policies.

Since such policies involving government intervention become more and more complex, it would appear that the reasonable action would be to untangle the skein by repealing all labor laws and permit labor and management to function under the general laws which apply to fraud and violence.

The case against government intervention does not rest exclusively upon constitutional rights. It is not necessary to raise the question of legal or illegal, good or bad, desirable or undesirable. The measures involved just do not produce the results adduced to them. When economic freedom is ignored, the government must add more and more decrees until it not only regulates every phase of production but consumption as well. The system of coercive interference can only be maintained in a despotism which because of its rigidity must topple and smash like a rotten tree.

Right here we would like to point out that this conclusion is also held by no less a labor big-wig than John L. Lewis, chief of the United Mine Workers, who makes no bones about his position. He wants no labor control law at all.

It is his contention — and ours, too — that neither labor nor management needs or benefits from special legislation regulating the relationship between workers and bosses.

It is rarely we find ourselves in agreement with the glowering John L. But certainly this is one time we agree with his reasoning although we suspect that our motives are somewhat different.

John L. realizes that laws that can be turned to the special privilege of employes, can also be twisted to the special privilege of employers. And when it appears the shoe is about to be put on the wrong foot, he wants to get out of the deal.

It is our belief that labor laws work to the detriment of everyone and serve only to build up the power of government bureaucrats.

To return to the "featherbedding" issue it is an iniquitous waste which is leveled directly against the consumers' pocketbook.

In the court decisions, one of the cases involved the so-called "bogus" rule of union printing shops. The rule states that publishers must pay printers for setting type for advertising for which available matrices eliminate the need for new type-setting. Much national advertising copy is set once in a printing shop and replica matrices are distributed to newspapers. But the "bogus" rule in union shops requires it to be set anyway; and the type is subsequently thrown away.

It is impossible to see the justification for such practices and the extra costs become charges against the advertiser or the newspaper subscriber.

The National Labor Relations Board takes a very cynical stand on this practice. It maintains the policy of setting useless type is okay because the printers actually work when they set type.

This gives authority to a most unusual "right" — the right to waste.

Taft Is 'Naive'

We have to agree with Sen. Jenner of Indiana in his remarks on Sen. Robert Taft. Sen. Jenner says that Taft is "rather naive" about Communists in education. Recently Taft remarked that he would not favor firing a Communist professor unless he was sure the professor was teaching Communism to his students.

Jenner, as chairman of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee now investigating Communism in colleges, made his statement when asked to comment on Taft's recent speech in Chicago.

Because Communism is an ideology, it is virtually impossible for a teacher to be a believer in Communism and not have it reflected in any teaching he does. In all but the pure sciences there are all sorts of opportunities, by inference, by reference and by direct statement to beat the Communist drums, either for the Communist idea or against those who are opposing Communism.

Of course the avowed Communist is not the really dangerous person, for Americans instinctively reject those who come out in the open and say they are Communists. The really dangerous person is the one who says that he is opposed to Communism and then espouses all of the facets of Communism in the name of "liberalism" or "democracy."

"A Study In Conscience And Politics"

I want to quote further from a book on Lord Acton or "A Study in Conscience and Politics" written by Gertrude Himmelfarb and published by the University of Chicago Press.

In the last issue I pointed out that Lord Acton had contended that the first of many disasters to befall liberty occurred when Babylonians conquered Judah and freedom under divine authority made way for absolutism under human authorities. He also pointed out that Solon inaugurated a revolution in philosophy and politics when he introduced the idea of popular election. "The idea that a man ought to have a voice in selecting those to whose rectitude and wisdom he is compelled to trust his fortune, his family and his life." Government by consent replaced government by force, and those who ruled were made responsible to those who obeyed.

The author of the book observes that Acton contended that:

"The experiment of Athens taught that democracy, the rule of the most numerous and most powerful class, was an evil of the same nature as monarchy, absolutism and required restraints of the same sort: institutions to protect it against itself and a permanent source of law to prevent arbitrary revolutions of opinion. Men learned for the first time what later history was to confirm again and again: 'It is bad to be oppressed by a minority, but it is worse to be oppressed by a majority.' For there is a reserve of latent power in the masses which, if it is called into play, the minority can seldom resist. But from the absolute will of an entire people there is no appeal, no redemption, no refuge but treason."

This same fact was pointed out by President Harding when he was President and addressed the Associated Press. He said we were gradually drifting towards a pure democracy and that no pure democracy lasted long. It would be well for those people who are interested in liberty and good government to recognize how rapidly we are drifting towards a pure democracy and to understand the end results of a pure democracy.

Here is a remarkable statement by this liberal Catholic. He said: "The growth of liberty, the great achievement of the Middle Ages, came not from the forests of Germany, as one theory had it, nor from the Christian Church itself, but from the conflict between the two."

Acton believed that most of our progress in securing liberty came from religious organizations checking the authority and power of the state and the state checking the authority and power of the church.

Civil Liberty Began in 1776

The author points out that Acton believed that "America made all previous attempts to capture the secret of liberty look like the futile graspings of shadows. In the strictest sense the history of liberty dated from 1776, for never till then had men sought liberty knowing what they sought."

Acton decided that the American Revolution was the greatest Liberal event in the history of the world, that the idea of natural rights and natural law was the basic motif in the history of liberty, and that the abolition of slavery was a symptom and a symbol of moral emancipation.

Lord Acton did not believe that the upper classes had a monopoly of political wisdom and virtue, or even sufficient wisdom and virtue to rule justly over the lower. "It is easier to find people fit to govern themselves than people fit to govern others. Every man is the best, the most responsible, judge of his own advantage."

"A Study in Conscience and Politics" is a timely book since we have so rapidly departed from moral law in the United States since 1913 when the graduated income tax was established that attempted to abridge the moral or divine law that all men are equal before the law.

Lawmaker Says Civil Service Workers Have It Pretty Easy

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

I think I have fairly presented the attitude of the worthy Civil Service employee whose feelings are always hurt by generalized criticism of waste and parasitic payroll padding. But, granting that these worthy, essential, hard-working individuals are not parasites, the fact remains that they enjoy better conditions as tax-consumers than we tax-producers enjoy.

My text today is an article by Congressman John Taber of upstate New York, a Republican whose obsession is extravagance. Mr. Taber is the man who tried and tried but never could learn from the general accounting office how much money in millions had been put at the disposal of Franklin D. Roosevelt, subject to no accounting. Roosevelt could have given a million to each member of his family and we would have had no wiser. We and the children of this generation will have to provide those millions, which were put under Roosevelt's hand to do what he pleased. And we are told point-blank that it is none of our business how much he squandered or embezzled, or in what details. I suppose it was not possible for him to embezzle it, though, because morally, yet, but in the technical sense he couldn't embezzle money handed him unconditionally.

These Civil Service workers of the "worthy" class, if their feelings are correctly expressed by those individuals who have written to me, are too sorry for themselves.

Mr. Taber writes, in a bulletin distributed by the Committee for Constitutional Government, that their leave or vacation is 13 days from the jump, but in three years it goes up to 20 days a. u. after 15 years they get 26 days or more than five work-weeks. Someone thought a man of 40 or 45 with 15 years' service must be so weary that he deserves a vacation of five work-weeks. Some of them "accumulate" both vacation leaves and sick leave and Mr. Taber writes that agency heads now come to Congress arguing that it is cheaper to keep an employee on the payroll than to let him go and pay him the cash equivalent. I believe that if a person dies on the payroll that accumulation goes to his estate so I do not see how there could be any saving here.

Formerly, Mr. Taber writes, "sick leave accrued at the rate of 15 days a year but the maximum was 90 days accumulation. The new law reduces the annual sick leave to 13 days a year but takes the ceiling of the maximum accrual after 20 years an employee could remain on the payroll at full salary for over one year in the event of illness." Try and buy that kind of insurance and see what it will cost you.

I have an idea as to that. I had two "health insurance" policies in big companies and paid a special supplementary premium for a clause which was supposed to make it impossible for them to cancel.

But after I had paid for years they both abruptly cancelled anyway. The stockholders and policyholders of a certain other class made money by my loss. The cancellation was a clear repudiation of the clause known as the "non-cancel feature."

The Committee for Constitutional Government is a patriotic society which was chivied and buffeted by a ratty character with a multiple record of indictments for swindles named Fank Buchanan who was chairman of a house committee to investigate "lobbying." He "investigated" right-wing groups but shielded away from the most sinister and abusive kluxes of the time, which are racketeers pretending to fight bigotry. Dr. Edward A. Rumely, the executive secretary of this society, finally was sentenced to prison for refusing to tell Buchanan who bought books from the society giving information like that contained in Mr. Taber's article. The high-binders then thought they had him. But the Supreme Court recently confirmed Rumely's right to publish important information, so he goes free and be damned to the terrorists.

Supreme Court Decision Gives Free Enterprise Green Light

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The first clear cut identification of so-called "liberals" and "conservatives" on the Supreme Court was provided in a recent decision, which was published generally in the financial pages of most newspapers. It was one of the most conclusive cases affecting the government's attempted expansion into the private enterprise field in many years. It definitely checked "creeping socialism."

It gains added interest because it marks the most serious of the many judicial reverses which the "liberal" theory of federal authority has suffered, ranking with the Justices' condemnation of his seizure of the steel plants. It gives advance judicial sanction to President Eisenhower's plan to out Washington's activities down to constitutional size and limits.

A 1948 REQUEST — This extremely significant litigation involved an application by the Virginia Electric and Power Company to build a single-purpose, $27,000,000 power dam on the Roanoke River in North Carolina. The request was filed in 1948. Prompt approval was asked because of electric utility needs for electricity in the area.

The federal power commission issued the license. It assumed jurisdiction because no such federal and constitutional functions as flood control, navigation or conservation were connected with the project. It was a straight business proposition. But Oscar Chapman, Truman's secretary of the Interior, and with White House approval, protested against FPC's action. In fact, he dragged the rival federal agency into court in an unprecedented way.

Chapman's only argument was that, in 1944, Congress had "authorized" a federal "survey" of private utility lands, which he had reserved the whole area for U. S. development exclusively.

GOVERNMENT VS. PRIVATE BUSINESS — Chapman's contention was a revolutionary departure from the Roosevelt-Norris-Weeks thesis under which Uncle Sam built TVA, Grand Coulee, Bonneville, etc. These projects were undertaken by the government because power production was only a by-product of the performance of the federal functions mentioned above. On that basis they were approved by Congress and the courts.

With respect to the Roanoke undertaking, however, FPC, a duly created utility, lawyers pointed out that, if Chapman were correct, the government had an equal right to enter competition with any private business. It could make shoes, steel, bread or any other everyday product.

RULING AGAINST CHAPMAN — The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals at Richmond, Va., a distinguished body of jurists, ruled against Chapman. It accepted the opposing contention that "we are such a decision (Chapman's) applied to electric power, the principle would be equally applicable to federal government displacement of private enterprise in all business enterprises." FPC counsel noted that a pro-Chapman ruling would foreclose private development of every river or basin in the United States. For the government, during the Roosevelt-Truman regime, has "surveyed" 97 per cent of the water and valley resources of the country. Chapman tried vainly for congressional authorization of a "survey" of the only remaining untouched areas — the Merrimack and Connecticut valleys in New England.

SUPREME COURT DECISION — This was the "creeping socialism" issue as it was presented to the

The bystander noticed that the farmer was having trouble with his horse. It would start, go slowly for a short distance, and then stop again. Every time it stopped the farmer had great difficulty in getting the horse started again. Finally the bystander asked, "Is your horse sick?" Farmer — Not as I know of. Bystander — Is he balky? Farmer — No, but he's so afraid I'll say whoo and he won't hear me, that he stops every once in a while to listen.

The kindhearted Jones family adopted a French orphan, a little girl of about six months. A friend dropped in one evening and found them with a "learn-French-at-home" course. Friend — What do you want to learn French for? Mrs. Jones — Why, when little Celeste starts talking, we want to be able to understand her.

The doctor's wife paid a surprise visit to his downtown office. She looked at a pretty nurse and introduced herself. Doctor's wife — I'm so glad to meet you. Mrs. Anorette — My husband has told me so little about you.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 24—UP—The Phillies who played the best ball in the league after Steve O'Neill became manager last June, figure to be a contender again this year.

But they must do some strengthening. They haven't yet plugged the weaknesses which plagued them last year. They gambled when they traded Russ Meyer, a 13-game winner with a fiery temperament, for first baseman Earl Torgerson in an attempt to get more long ball hitting power. It was taking a two way chance. They don't know if they can come up with a starting pitcher to take Meyer's place. And they just hope Torgerson will hit.

The Gophers scored first, getting four runs in the third off southpaw Don Reiff. A three-run homer by second baseman Eugene Elder started the rally. Texas went into the lead in the fifth, when Gene Oden and Ronald Spradlin drove in two runs; The Longhorns' 12 hits off Giel, an all-America football player, included two triples and three doubles in addition to Eckert's homer. The teams were scheduled to play the second game of their series Tuesday.

"...but even the swiftest runners do not take an extra base on [me]." —Musial

My hitting had already attracted attention, so Manager Kerr used me in center field when I wasn't pitching. It was during the tail end of this season that I suffered the injury that changed my entire baseball life. It made me think of quitting before I had hardly started. It gave baseball experts the one reason to fault me. Though I have played all three outfield positions and first base for the Cardinals, they have since pointed out that my throwing does not measure up to my play in all other departments. It may be true that my arm is not as strong as my bat and legs, but even the swiftest runners do not take an extra base on balls hit to me in the outfield.

Bond Issue Sought For New School . . . Committee Seeks To Spark Interest In Shamrock Vote

SHAMROCK (Special) — A citizens committee is contacting the eligible voters of the Shamrock school district this week in an effort to get a good representation to the polls when the $500,000 bond issue comes to vote March 28. The election is to decide whether or not the town chooses to erect a new high school plant and make improvements in the present elementary schools.

The high school plant will be a complete unit. It will include a gymnasium, laboratories, lunchroom, auditorium and classrooms for 300 students, the number usually enrolled here each session. The building would be capable of handling up to 600 students before additional room would be needed. Possible later additions will be easily added to the structure. The site has not been chosen though funds for the purchase of a site were included in this year's school budget.

Repairs in existing buildings will account for some $20,000 of the proposed bond issue. Rewiring for improved lighting and convenience will be the major change. New furniture and some rearrangement is also being planned if the people choose to float the bonds.

A tax increase of 28 per cent valuation would retire the bonds in 20 years. Principal Elmer J. Moore told the citizens committee at the meeting on Wednesday. "If 300 students attend the new school each year for 20 years the cost will amount to .07 an hour per student. Isn't that cheap baby sitting?" Mr. Moore also said that a tentative agreement with a bonding company allows for an extra low rate of interest on the bonds. The citizens committee meeting was called when John Rowlett of the firm, Caudill, Rowlett, Scott and Associates, Architects, came to Shamrock on Wednesday for discussions with some members of the school board. Mr. Rowlett explained the needs of a good school plant and pointed out the deficiencies of the schools here.

This Will Never Do
BROWN CITY, Mich.—An unidentified burglar broke into a tavern, took $30 from the cash register, but didn't have the heart to go through with the theft. He left the money on the bar with this note: "I am very sorry but I cannot steal. I guess I'm not a very good crook. I like you too much."

Bostoness
BOSTON—UP—A woman visiting Boston was reprimanded by a policeman when she failed to halt for a stop sign at an intersection and protested that in her home "we just slow down and look in both directions." "In Boston, Madam," the policeman said, "Stop means an absolute cessation of forward movement."

Now You Know
PITTSBURGH, Pa.—UP—Scientists at Westinghouse Electric Corp. estimate that, if it were possible to take complete advantage of the uranium which could be accommodated in an average sized living room, it could supply the current electric power output of the United States for about 15 years.

Finely engraved watches were made in the shape of skulls, little books, octagons, crosses, purses, dogs and sea shells in olden days.

Realtor Spending Thousands Preaching 'Love Thy Neighbor'

WASHINGTON, March 24—UP—For some time, a mystery character around the eastern seaboard has been a man who spends thousands of dollars preaching the doctrine of "love thy neighbor" in paid newspaper ads.

At first it was a single verse on a full page. This cost the man something like $300 a page for the tabloids and double that or more for the regular sized papers in Washington.

The plot thickened to the point where the newspapers, their phone boards jammed, asked the man would he please sign his name? And what was he up to?

Admits He Was A Sinner
At length Leon Ackerman consented. Now he signs his name in small type at the bottom of the advertisements, although he never mentions his business. I went to see Ackerman, who confessed to be a former sinner who wants only to spread the word of God.

"I came to this country as a poor lad," he said. "I made a lot of money. I made it all honest. But I sinned. I used to go to the bars. I over-ate. I over-swore. I over-smoked. I think that it is only right that in my advertising I should carry the theme forward that 'He who understands love, understands God and God is love.'"

Ackerman, real estate man, does not look like a reformer. He received me in his plush office in downtown Washington and offered me comfort in the form of smokes, deep-sitting chairs and ash-trays.

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Exclusively Yours: Freddie Bartholomew, once the screen's No. 1 kid star and "Little Lord Mauntleroy," will try marriage again next month. Wife No. 2: New York TV actress Betty Baker. . . Pat Wymore is keeping an eagle eye on Errol Flynn in Italy. Sits on the sidelines while he makes love to Gina Lollobrigida for scenes in "The Teacher of Don Juan." Flynn needs a teacher?

Jerry Lewis finally has a beat Dean Martin at golf — and has gold-framed the $20 he won. Bing Crosby's annual star-studded golf tourney in Carmel, by the way, may have competition. The Southern California PGA and the comets are discussing a $10,000 Martin and Lewis Open in LA for next fall.

Fox is screen-testing a new French pastry, Gaby Bryere, who has eyebrows lifting over her quotes: "Hollywood expects French actresses to be just sexy. No one ever worries about their minds. If I have to display sex I'll do it. I've got it. But I'm an actress — not a French post card."

Tax Collections To Be Key To Reduction, Rogers Declares

Uncle Sam's March 15 tax collections will be one of the determining factors this year in whether taxpayers get a little boost in take-home pay, Rep. Walter Rogers said in an analysis of the tax situation in his weekly news letter to the Panhandle.

"Whether American taxpayers receive relief this year depends largely on the amount of money coming into the treasury from March 15, 1953, tax collections.

"It is impossible to tell accurately in advance what each year's tax collections will bring in. This was definitely proven when the Ruml plan was originally adopted. The Ruml plan is the one requiring employers to make weekly or monthly income tax deductions from pay checks. When this plan was adopted, it was estimated by dollars. It actually increased tax collections approximately $ billion dollars. It actually increased tax collections approximately $ billion dollars.

"There are many factors that must be considered in making an estimate of tax collections. Many of these factors are so fluid it is impossible to accurately estimate what effect each will finally have on the amount of money coming into the treasury.

Rep. Reed, of New York, author of H. R. 1, which advances the expiration date of the 11 percent 1951 income tax increase from Dec. 31, 1953, to June 30, 1953, recently told me he felt tax collections would be greater than anticipated this year. He has studied the tax structure for years and his tax knowledge is widely recognized.

A small percentage increase in tax collections, plus reasonable cuts in government expenditures, trimming the fat from the budget, and a sound reduction in federal employees, would not only balance the budget, but would make possible the tax cut proposed by Rep. Reed. This tax cut would not mean much to the low income brackets, but would be a step in the right direction for ultimate relief to all.

"I personally prefer legislation raising the individual and dependent exemptions in accordance with the bill I introduced for that purpose. Such legislation would bring immediate relief where it is most sorely needed and would not discriminate against the high income brackets, everyone would get the same treatment. This could be done by gradually raising the exemptions for the next four or five years.

"A present exemption raise of $100 would mean a tax reduction of approximately $ billion dollars. If this was raised $100 each year for four years, the annual loss in tax revenue would be approximately $7 billion dollars. Under the Reed bill, the 1953 tax revenue loss would be approximately $1.5 billion dollars. The 1951 increase now yields about $ billion dollars annually. I voted against this increase in 1951. The benefits of my present tax reduction proposal would go immediately to the lower income brackets.

"The expiration of the 5 percent increase in the corporate normal tax, which expires April 1, 1954, means a reduction of $ billion dollars annually in tax revenues. The expiration on April 1, 1954, of the increase in the excise tax would mean a loss of about $ billion dollars annually. The expiration on July 1, 1953, of the increase in the excess profits tax would mean a tax revenue loss of about $ billion dollars annually.

Senate Okay Is Sighted For Bohlen

WASHINGTON, March 25 — UP — Charles E. Bohlen's nomination as ambassador to Moscow was expected to win overwhelming Senate approval Wednesday in spite of the spirited rear-guard action of a few powerful Republican foes.

Senate Republican leader Robert A. Taft and Sen. John J. Sparkman, leading Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations committee, planned to make a report on their evaluation of Bohlen's FBI file.

This was expected to wipe out any lingering doubts in the minds of on-the-fence Bohlen supporters thought he would be confirmed by nightfall with only about a dozen opposing votes.

The opposition — led by Sens. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.), Styles Bridges (R-N.H.) and Pat McCarran (D-Nev.) — admitted it was beaten. But it planned to go down fighting.

Tidelands legislation moved nearer a vote as the House Judiciary committee reported out a bill giving states title to offshore oil lands out to their historic boundaries and the right to tax oil taken from submerged lands farther out to sea.

Chairman H. Alexander Smith of the Senate Labor committee reported he believes "everybody is agreed" new ways should be provided in the Taft-Hartley act to combat Communist-dominated unions.

The House Ways and Means committee began work on a proposal to cut taxes on economy brands but maintain the present rates on higher-priced popular brands of cigars.

Pioneer Sets Up Plan For Interim Service In Texas

DALLAS, March 25 — UP — An interim plan to continue airline service to 21 cities in Texas and New Mexico served by Pioneer Air Lines was announced Tuesday by the company's president, Gen. Robert J. Smith.

The company, which serves the 21-city system in Texas and New Mexico, had planned to curtail service after the Civil Aeronautics Board announced March 23 that Pioneer's mail subsidy pay rate would be less in the fiscal year 1953 than in the past, despite the company's use of newer and larger planes.

The aeronautics board criticized Pioneer for replacing its DC-3 fleet with Martin Pacemasters.

Smith said the plan would avoid the necessity of total suspension or any further curtailment of service at this time.

He denied Pioneer had purchased the F-4 Phantom jets as replacements, despite warnings from the CAB, and without permission or knowledge of that board.

"As early as the fall of 1951, Pioneer's representatives discussed the matter of the change in equipment with the then chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, Donald A. Nyrop," Smith said.

Rising Mercury Hikes Water Use

Warming weather threatened to shoot water consumption to all-time spring highs this year as lawn sprinklers went to work over town, the city engineering department reported this morning.

Yesterday the water consumption jumped to an all-time spring high of 3,500,000 gallons, Director of Public Works Ray Evans said. This was higher than the peak consumption day of 1948 when 3,250,000 gallons of water went through city mains.

Shocked Husband Says Wife Was A Regular Church-Goer

FORT WORTH, March 25 — UP — A shocked Air Force sergeant said Wednesday his 19-year-old blonde wife, arrested here for pulling two daring bank robberies, is a regular church-goer and never smokes or drinks.

"I can't imagine what happened to her," Sgt. Roy H. Mecke of Carswell Air Force Base told police.

Purpose of the drawing—at 8:40 a.m. today in the school business office—was to determine the order that candidates would appear on the ballot. Top position was won by Herman Whitley, followed by Rex Rose and John Harnly. First two are candidates for re-election. Voting will be held from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. April 4 in the corridor of the junior high school. (News Photo)

Tidelands Bill Near Vote In Congress

WASHINGTON, March 25 — UP — The tidelands bill was pushed nearer a vote in Congress Wednesday after losing some of the earmarks of an administration bill.

As it emerged from the House Judiciary committee, the bill gives states title to offshore oil lands out to historic boundaries.

But it also would give the states the right to tax oil taken from submerged lands beyond those limits — a step which the administration has opposed.

The Senate Interior committee was called into secret session in hopes of reaching a decision on the issue.

Senate Republican leaders had agreed to split the legislation into two bills — one dealing with the submerged lands and the other with that on the outer shelf. The plan was to pass the first one immediately and take up the other later.

But the House committee action gave the Senate's "states' rights" advocates new heart and threatened to upset the plan.

The House bill, approved 14 to 7 after a day-long closed committee meeting, provides that the severance tax on each barrel of states can collect a production or oil taken from the continental shelf.

Chairman Chaucey Reed (R-Ill.) said the exact tax would be fixed by the various states, but could be no higher than those assessed in other oil-bearing areas of each state.

Used Infant Son In Hold-Ups . . . Mother-Bandit Is Captured

FORT WORTH, March 25 — UP — The clerk filled a bag with money and let her walk out with it. The 19-year-old blonde mother was held under guard in a hospital ward Wednesday, charged with robbing two banks that were held up by a woman dubbed the "piano legs bandit."

Mrs. Helen Grubbs Mecke, wife of an airman at Carswell Air Force Base, was captured Tuesday 30 minutes after she robbed the First National Bank in suburban Handley, Tex., of $1,570.

She threatened to shoot the baby she was holding in her arms unless the clerk filled a bag with money and let her walk out with it. The baby was her own infant son.

She also admitted robbing the North Fort Worth State bank of $500 last Nov. 25, but denied robbing several liquor stores credited to the "piano legs bandit," so-called because of her seemingly sturdy legs.

Attempted Suicide She told police she used the money to pay bills, including doctor bills. She surrendered a toy pistol and begged police not to tell her husband, Sgt. Roy H. Mecke, at the air base.

Shortly after her arrest, Police Capt. O. R. Brown said Mrs. Mecke tried to strangle herself with her blouse. She was left alone in a cell for a few minutes, and police returned to find she had pulled off her blouse and was twisting it around her throat.

Mrs. Mecke, wearing blue jeans similar to those worn when she robbed the North Fort Worth bank, walked into the Handley bank about noon Wednesday carrying her three-month-old son in a blanket in the crook of her left arm.

She told Mrs. Jennie Devore, 37, a clerk, that she had a gun in her right hand and would shoot the baby unless she filled a paper bag with $10 and $20 bills.

Said Baby Was Kidnapped "Oh, no, you wouldn't do that," Mrs. Devore said.

"Oh, yes, I would," she replied. "I just kidnaped him and I don't care about it."

The bank clerk filled the bag with $10 and $20 bills, and Mrs. Mecke fled in an automobile parked in the alley. Unidentified workmen in the alley saw her leave and gave police a description of the car.

She was arrested about 30 minutes later by two motorcycle policemen. Upon examination, they found the bank loot carefully stuffed behind the back seat.

Harnly Charges Board 'Afraid' Of Outsiders

John Harnly, a local wheat farmer who is running for membership on the Pampa school board, charged today that present board members are "afraid of a so-called outsider serving on the board."

Candidate Harnly, referring to a talk two years ago by School Superintendent Knox Kinard to the PTA's city council in which he said "I was a rank outsider and they should see that I was not elected," also asked, "What kind of a man do we have at the head of our schools that would stoop to such tricks knowing that they are against the principles of PTA?"

Harnly was defeated for school board member in 1951 by Ræburn Thompson, now board president.

Two candidates are to be selected by voters April 4 from among Harnly and Board Members Rex Rose and Herman Whitley, who are running for reelection. No others had filed by the deadline, 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Harnly also had words of criticism for the "cold-blooded" manner in which Pampa school children were put on buses Jan. 22, the height of a Panhandle snow blizzard. He published a letter Jan. 29 to that effect in The Pampa Daily News.

Chief reason for his running for office, he said today, was the attitude of Kinard and some board members — including Candidate Whitley — "when asked what could be done to prevent such things from happening in the future."

Just as in 1948 when he ran for (See HARNLY, Page 2)

Schoolmen Deny Charge

Superintendent of Schools Knox Kinard and School Trustee Herman Whitley denied charges leveled in their direction today by John H. Harnly, school board candidate.

"The statements are without foundation and are not true," Kinard declared.

Kinard said he didn't know what Harnly had in mind when he charged the present school administration with "being against him when he (Harnly) sought the 13th Congressional District seat on the State Board of Education."

Defending the action in sending school buses out in a coming blizzard, Kinard added:

"In our best judgement at the time, we felt we were doing what was best for the welfare of the children in getting them home."

Herman Whitley, seeking reelection, but who was not named by Harnly directly, said of the state school board race:

"He wasn't opposed by me. I never opened my mouth about that campaign or any of its candidates. To my knowledge none of us ever said anything against Mr. Harnly in that race, or any other race."

Elizabeth Decries Mourning Period For Queen Mary

Queen Mary Never Forgave Her Eldest Son

LONDON, March 25 — UP — Queen Mary died unconsoled to the marriage for which her eldest son, the Duke of Windsor, gave up the British throne.

It was she more than any other individual who kept the Duke and Duchess in their self-imposed semi-exile from Britain.

There was no immediate indication whether her death would permit the couple to return to make a home in the British Isles eventually.

Through the influence of Queen Mary the royal family refused to grant to the Duchess of Windsor recognition as her royal highness after her marriage to the Duke in 1937.

The American divorcee never was received at court after the marriage nor was she admitted to royal social circles.

Duchess Never Received Although the Duke visited his mother from time to time, Queen Mary never received the Duchess.

And this was believed largely responsible for the fact that no other member of the royal family did.

DOWAGER QUEEN MARY . . . Britain's grandmother dies

Mary's Death Leaves Void In British Hearts

LONDON, March 25 — UP — Queen Elizabeth II ordered a court mourning period of 30 days Wednesday for her grandmother, Queen Mary.

But at the dowager queen's death-bed request, Elizabeth proceeded with plans for her own coronation June 2.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill led the young sovereign's subjects in their mourning for Queen Mary.

"She looked a queen," Churchill said in eulogizing Mary in the House of Commons. "She acted a queen. Her death leaves a void in our hearts and in the life of the nation a void it will be hard to fill."

A source close to the Earl Marshal's office said an announcement would be made shortly that the coronation will be held on schedule.

Royalty Came First The gallant old queen, to whom the responsibilities of royalty always came first, had made known to her family her wish about the coronation during the unhappy days in which she slowly grew weaker in her bedroom at Marlborough House. She died at 10:20 p.m. (5:30 p.m. est) Tuesday.

Her illness had been described as a "gastric complaint." It was far more serious than that. No official statement was made but it was known that she had suffered a severe internal hemorrhage Monday night. One of her attending physicians, Lord Webb-Johnson, is a cancer specialist.

To Lie Beside Husband On-Young Queen Elizabeth fell the heavy royal task of making the final decisions on her grandmother's funeral, just as she had had to do on the death of her father only a little more than a year ago.

Funerals services probably will be held at St. Paul's Cathedral because Westminster Abbey where they might have been held is being prepared for the coronation.

American Counterattack Fails To Drive Reds Off Old Baldy

SEOUL, March 25 — UP — Counter-attacking American infantrymen failed Wednesday for the second time to dislodge Chinese Reds who after three days of fighting held three-fourths of Old Baldy mountain.

The exhausted Americans early Wednesday called off a 10-hour counter-attack which had failed to move the Reds.

The Chinese broke the assault with a murderous mortar, artillery, and machine-gun barrage.

American casualties were believed to have been heavy, but there was no immediate official report.

Maj. Gen. Arthur Trudeau, commander of the Seventh Division on Old Baldy said the Reds may have attacked the mountain position because they believed the United Nations planned a major offensive.

Mountain 'Not Vital' Trudeau said the Reds would like to get hold of Old Baldy, but the mountain is not "vital" to American defense of the sector.

Two fresh companies of the veteran U. S. Seventh Infantry Division made the latest counter-attack from the last knob position the Americans have managed to hold on the southeast corner of Old Baldy.

Three-Day Event On Tap . . . Hereford Breeders Lay Plans For Enlarged Livestock Show

The annual Top o' Texas Fat Livestock judging and sale and a larger scale in 1954, according to Dr. M. C. Overton Jr., president of the Hereford Breeders Association, because of the rapid growth of the show during the last eight years.

Formerly a two-day event, next year's show will run through three days. A new feature, a Junior Hereford Heifer show, will be added, sponsored by the breeders association.

"Breeding cattle judging and an afternoon sale will take up the last day of the show, as in the past."

And for the first time there will be a Junior Hereford Heifer show (for 4-H and FFA members) with two classes judged and prizes offered. There is to be no sale in connection with this show.

Sponsor of the new event is the Hereford Breeders Association. The three annual banquets, Hereford Breeders, 4-H and FFA, have been spread out the last two days of the show. Formerly they have all been held the same day with the 4-H and FFA running simultaneously.

KFDA-TV, Channel 10, is being beamed over the "largest television antenna ever built," according to Raley. The antenna constructed is 547 feet above average terrain.

Houston Attorney Sues Esquire For Anti-Texas Story

BOSTON, March 25 — UP — Lewis Crosson, a Houston attorney, Wednesday sued Esquire Magazine for $20 million because an article, "Let's Secede From Texas," is "debasating and impugning the ideals of Texas."

He named himself as plaintiff and the people of Texas as co-plaintiffs in the suit filed before District Clerk J. W. Mills.

Crosson, 33, father of three children, said he would give whatever money he recovered to the public schools of the state.

The attorney blasted the article as the "type the whole Communist cold war thrives on."

"That whole article will be put up on the billboards of Russia as a perfect example of the U. S. State. I've seen the same type of propaganda plastered-up in Cairo and Casablanca," he said.

BRITAIN'S BELOVED DOWAGER QUEEN

Tragedies That Overshadowed Her Life Could Never Break Queen Mary's Indomitable Spirit

WORLD WAR II was another heavy blow to the now-aging Queen Mother. She "did her bit" and refused to seek safety abroad. "The old girl really stuck it" said the Cockneys. There is no higher tribute.

"EVERY INCH A QUEEN" perfectly described Queen Mary. Her regal bearing in this picture, taken on her 69th birthday, May 26, 1936, is especially poignant. Her husband had died on Jan. 20th. She went into seclusion, but emerged to become, as Queen Mother, one of the busiest women in the realm.

TRAGEDY STRUCK AGAIN when, in less than a year, King Edward VIII, her favorite son, abdicated to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, American divorcee. Her plea to him were in vain.

MATRIARCHAL DIGNITY marked Queen Mary's bearing as she appeared at Buckingham Palace when her son Albert, became King George VI and his wife, Elizabeth became Queen-Consort. Queen Mary guided and coached them for the roles they never expected to have to fill.

DEATH STRUCK AGAIN when King George VI passed away on Feb. 6, 1952. Dowager Queen Mary is pictured, center, with the new sovereign, Queen Elizabeth II, left, and the Queen Mother Elizabeth at Westminster Hall, where her son's body lay in state. It was, perhaps, a tragedy from whose heartbreak she never fully recovered.

ONLY FOUR YEARS of peace were granted ILL FORTUNE for England before World War I set Europe aflame. lowered the war when the Great Queen Mary worked arduously, day and night in Depression of the '30's struck the cause. Here she inspects American troops at Again she served, aiding the impoverished victims.

ALREADY SYMBOLS of ideal British family life in 1906 were Queen Mary (then Princess of Wales) and the Prince of Wales, later King George V. Tragic deaths took three of their six children within the Queen's lifetime—Prince John, Prince George (Duke of Kent) and Albert (King George VI).

MAJESTIC QUEEN MARY'S beauty thrilled thousands in 1910 when she and her husband, George V, appeared in their coronation robes. The King was 45 years old when he succeeded his father, King Edward VII, she was 43.

Four Firms Awarded Bids On Water Main Materials

Four companies were awarded bids to supply the city with 6,000 feet of 10-inch water mains, valves and lead shortly after noon Tuesday after the engineering department completed tabulations on the bids.

Of the 18 companies bidding more than half handed in partial bids on the four divisions. James B. Clow and Sons, Dallas, was low bidder on the cast iron pipe at $13,500. George J. Rohan, Waco, was low on fittings and valve boxes at $727.20 while The Viking Supply Co., Dallas, was low on various size valves at $1,642.92. Clow and Cowan, Amarillo won the bid on 10,000 pounds of lead at $1,802. Johns Manville, Houston, bid on asbestos-concrete pipe, and was the actual low bidder on all pipe bids. However, the commission on recommendation of City Manager E. H. Cruise bought the standard cast iron pipe.

An unexpected purchase came up and was quickly approved by the commission—an eight foot street plow for the paving program. The present plow is not so deep enough and consequently do not distribute the material for the soil-cement base as thoroughly as is needed, Ray Evans, director of public works, told the commission.

Two bids were asked on the plows by the city—since it was below $2,000, bids were not necessary—and Hogue-Mills Equipment Co., Pampa, was low bid, $400, for the plow at $400.

New Election Judge Named In Ward 4

A new election judge will meet voters of Ward 4 in the April 7 city election as the result of a change made yesterday by the City Commission in election judge lists.

Jim Goff, 409 S. Russell, will replace Elmer Rupp, 534 S. Somerville, postoffice employe, who refused to serve due to being an employe of the federal government.

A meeting of election judges and clerks will be held with City Secretary Ed Vieira sometime next week to discuss election laws concerning eligible voters, making returns, counting ballots and other pertinent election data.

The period of court mourning is expected to be a month, possibly six weeks. Elizabeth saw her grandmother for the last time at 4:48 p. m. Tuesday. She arrived with her husband, Philip, and Princess Margaret and spent a half hour at Marlborough House.

Members of the household revealed that Elizabeth walked softly to the bed where the old lady lay and dropped a deep curtsy. Ladies in waiting wept as they witnessed this last tribute from a reigning queen to a dying one.

Aboard the Cub-made float in the parade will be a King and Queen who will be crowned in the main street.

Another feature of the program—actually, just a part of the month-long celebration in which 125 Cub Scouts will become Boy Scouts.

To be honored are Scotty Barnes, James Allen and Jerry Vandergriff.

Also on the agenda is an advancement ceremony in which all Cubs will be dressed in uniforms, most of them handmade.

In the first public performance that the pack has put on, there will be candy booths— proceeds from which will go into the Pack Fund.

Complicated Cell Activity Under Study

NEW YORK, March 24—UP—So you think it's a complicated world? Well, here's a complication that'll make all other complications seem simple!

Right next to the cells of the male sex glands busy manufacturing male sex hormones, are cells turning out female sex hormones.

They seem to work at cross-purposes. Actually they don't, as the actions of practically any healthy male will demonstrate.

The American Cancer Society revealed this Tuesday in describing methods of Harvard University Scientists who have one of the society's research grants.

Show Up Under Microscope

Harvard men directed by Dr. Arthur N. Seligman and Dr. George B. Wislocki have learned how to treat bits of human tissue so the activity of their many cells show up plainly under the microscope.

In this way they observed the side-by-side cells of tissue from male sex glands producing opposite hormones while living together in perfect harmony.

The society said this technique had been valuable in analyzing cancers of the hormone producing glands.

Cancer upsets the balance which permits the side-by-side cells to be themselves, without lessening the masculinity of the male.

A cancer involving the cells making female hormones stimulates them into multiplying. The body is flooded with the hormones—and is feminized. But when the cancer involves the male hormones producing cells, the masculinity of the body becomes grossly exaggerated, boys into men, physically.

No Hope For Full Tax Reform Is Sighted Before Next Year

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—A complete overhaul of the U. S. tax system won't come before next year—if then.

The hard-headed new team at the U. S. Treasury, under Secretary George M. Humphrey, has become fully aware in its less than two months in office that it is much easier for politicians in a campaign to make promises to cut taxes than it is to carry them out.

The actual job of supervision over the tax program has been assigned to Undersecretary Marion B. Folsom, former Eastman Kodak of fiscal. Mr. Folsom has organized a new tax research and analysis staff under Dan Throop Smith, former professor of finance at Harvard School of Business Administration.

One of the most important legacies bequeathed to this new team by former Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder was a loose-joint binder about two inches thick. It analyzes every tax reform proposed or considered in recent years. They are 43 in number.

Before the Republican tax team took office, its members had done some research of their own. They had asked all the tax associations and private research groups to recommend the dozen reforms they considered most important.

The first half-dozen recommendations came easily. Everyone wanted the excess-profits tax killed. A more rapid depreciation schedule was high on the list. So was the demand for removal of double taxation of dividends. Greater "tax incentives"—meaning, of course, lower taxes—were requested to encourage private investment in new enterprises.

Overhaul in Order

There were many requests from specific industries on revision of federal excise tax schedules. Jewelry, luggage and theater admissions are now taxed 20 per cent. Electric, gas and oil appliances, 10 per cent. Television, radio, phonographs, rubber goods and sporting goods, 10 per cent. Automobiles, 7 per cent. Trucks, 5 per cent. Electric energy, 3 1/3 per cent. And so on.

The point made is that these are unequal burdens on various industries. A general overhaul of the rate schedule is considered in order.

When all the suggestions from private business groups were listed, it was found that they still did not add up to the 43 proposals in Secretary Snyder's book. So that is being taken as a base for the new study on long-range tax reform.

Parallel to this is another research project being conducted for the Congress. Last year Colin F. Stam, counsel for the Joint Congressional Committee on Taxation, sent out a long questionnaire to get public suggestions on possible tax reform. These answers are now being analyzed.

The Stam report, plus whatever recommendations Secretary Humphrey finally comes up with, will be the basis for congressional hearings later this year. There is now no thought of being able to effect complete tax reform all at one time. But if a dozen of the most important tax law revisions could be made next year, that would be considered a start in the right direction.

Problems Are Tough

One other factor bearing on this situation is President Eisenhower's proposal for a commission to study the relationship between federal and state governments. Elimination of duplicate taxation is one of the primary goals of this project.

But this field raises some little-understood problems. One proposal is to get the federal government out of the grant-in-aid program to the states for highway construction. This would be done by killing all federal taxes on gasoline and leaving that field of taxation to the states.

New York, with a large number of automobiles and big gas sales, would gain by this change. But states like Nevada would lose.

Similarly, it has been proposed that the states abandon income taxes, leaving this field exclusively to the federal government. Here New York would lose heavily. To states which do not levy an income tax it would make no difference.

The proposal to leave all sales and excise taxes to the states in exchange for abandoning their income taxes presents other complications. The point is that for every tax levy that is cut or abandoned, a substitute source of revenue must be found.

The substitutes may prove just as unpopular as the present taxes. This fact leads many practical politicians to the somewhat pessimistic conclusion that general tax reforms never will be accomplished. It's just an interesting theory to talk about.

The new team at the Treasury does not share this view.

Mexico Trip is Reviewed at Club

Mrs. Sherman White was hostess to the Varietas Study Club Tuesday afternoon in her home. Miss Inez Clubb, guest speaker, presented a review of her trip to Mexico.

Mrs. J.E. Kirchner introduced Miss Clubb who discussed industries of Mexico such as basketry, lacquerwork, glass-blowing, stone carving and showed examples of the handwork.

Miss Clubb, who was sent to Mexico by the National Education Association said that only 50 percent of the Mexican children attend school. She said that the new Monterrey University and Public Schools open at daybreak and is planned for a first come, first serve basis, with the children unable to find seats in the new school finding another school for the day.

Volunteers for help with the bloodmobile include Mrs. J.C. Vollmert and Mrs. J. A. Hopkins.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. H. H. Butler, J.G. Cargile, J. G. Doggett, H. P. Doster, S. C. Evans, H. P. Hampton, Lee Harrah, Hopkins, Dow King, J. E. Kirchner, R. W. Lane, Otis Nace, Ralph Thomas, Vollmert, W. A. Waggoner, J. R. Spearman and White.

Chinese chop suey traces its origin to America, but just the same it follows the oriental custom of combining cubes of meat and vegetables with distinct seasonings and sauces. Perhaps keeping in mind the old philosophy that a day is never complete without one guest in the home who must be served in the finest style.

Usual chop suey ingredients include cubed pork, celery, onions, bean sprouts, brown and soy sauce. But chop suey is nearly as versatile as the well known stew, except for the one must — soy sauce.

VARIATIONS

Less demanded cuts of pork such as the shoulder may be used. Heart cut into strips or cubed veal breast make interesting variations. Instead of the familiar bean-sprouts shredded cabbage may be added to the meat combination just a few minutes before the end of cooking time. For other vegetable variations include green pepper rings, minute mushrooms or peeled radishes.

PREPARATION

In preparing this foreign-touched dish, the diced meat — cubes or strips — is slowly browned in hot lard for about 30 minutes. Added to the browned meat are the diced vegetables. According to the best oriental tradition, they are cut fine or shredded so they require only a few minutes cooking and will retain their natural color and crispness. The vegetables are accompanied with half a cup of water or liquid drained from bean sprouts.

Civic Culture Club Members Meet In H. W. Waters Home For Program

Members of the Civic Culture Club met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. H. W. Waters for a program on "Women of Other Nations Connected with UNESCO."

The program was given by Mrs. Willis White. She pointed out that there are still countries where women have no political rights at all.

She said that the United Nations commission recommends that more study should be made in collaboration with the UNESCO to ascertain not only the existence of discrimination against women in educational opportunities, but also the causes of such discriminations.

Mrs. White said women's role in the UN is becoming more and more important whether they represent their countries at the general assembly and other meetings or to the 18 members on the commission on the status of women or to women members of the secretariat. Twenty-two nations inducted women in their delegations in the last four years.

Announcement was made at the meeting that members of the club would second place in the citizenship test that was sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. A. D. Hills, J. B. Townsend, Irvin Cole, M.M. Moyer, Katie Vincent, Homer Kees, A. C. Hutchin and W. C. Scott.

...tiny sound recorder has been used to get a record of the buying public's candid reactions. Let's hope the women never decide to use it.

If it can be hidden in a pocket to pick up conversations on spoils of magnetic wire.

Just think what women could do with this gadget. If Mrs. Jones wanted to know what members of her sewing circle really thought of her she could stay away from a meeting and get her best friend to hide the little recorder in her handbag.

Then Mrs. Jones would have the complete low-down on herself. I can hear the machine now repeating back something like this: "I don't mean to be catty but if I do mean to me that Ellen Jones isn't making much of an effort to get to our meetings. This is the third one she has missed in just a few months."

AND THEN THE ANSWER

"Well, you know Ellen. She gets herself involved in so many things. And now that she has gotten in with that country club crowd we probably aren't as important to her as we once were."

"Speaking of Ellen, have you noticed how fat she's getting? She really should do something about it. It makes her look so much older."

"Don't worry. She won't do anything about her weight. You know how self-satisfied Ellen is. But I can't help wondering how Jeff feels about it. Jeff's a mighty attractive man. And you can't tell me a man doesn't mind his wife's letting herself go."

Let's hope women never make use of the tiny recorder to pick up candid conversations among their "friends."

A meat thermometer which can't possibly break off in the roast is now available. Made of shiny stainless steel this thermometer has a pointed stem which can be pressed into the meat without need for using a skewer to make a preliminary hole. Temperatures and a guide for cooking meats to various stages of doneness are shown on a large, clock-like face.

Mrs. Otis Nace Reviews Book At Business & Professional Women's Tea

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club entertained members of the Council of Clubs Tuesday evening at a book review given by Mrs. Otis Nace.

Refreshments were served in spring colors. The centerpiece was of yellow jonquils flanked by yellow tapers.

Mrs. W. A. York and Mrs. D.C. Ash presided at the refreshment table. Mrs. Laura B. Cornelius was in charge of the register.

Following the program a short business meeting was held with Mrs. H. F. McDonald presiding. Nearly 70 club members and guests attended the event.

Mrs. Hussey took charge of the business meeting during which an offering was taken to be sent to the Mexican Missions in San Antonio.

Plans were set for the class work day to be held in the church basement the third Thursday in April. Mrs. W. B. Carey led the closing prayer.

Birthday honorees were Mrs. Rector and Mrs. Rilla Enoch.

Members and guests present were Mrs. Eva Inman, E. L. Colgrove, Jennie Smoot, J.W. Everly, Sarah McKeel, W.E. Moore, Lela Moss, Charles Milligan, Arthur Kirkwood, Charles Kirkwood, of Denver, Colorado, Hussey, Rector, Enoch, Wells and Carey.

One Of Ten Best Dressed Women Gives Tips On Stylish Wardrobe Planning

(This is the second of the series on how to be a well-dressed woman.)

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY

NEW YORK, March 24.—UP—Madame Louise Arpels, tall, brunette wife of a leading Paris jeweler, cautions as many people to turn and stare when she walks down Fifth Avenue as when she strolls along the Champs Elysees in Paris.

She has been listed as one of the 10 best dressed women in the world for seven consecutive years. Admittedly Madame Arpels has two important ingredients—money and time. But the two don't equal simple elegance as often as a budget-haunted woman might think.

"If I had to give one rule," she explained, "it would be to dress in the same style as you would dress in a country. I would say that one thing should not dominate your costume. A woman should be an ensemble."

Wears One Type Hat

She was wearing a black and white tweed sportcoat made for her by Paris sports designer Madeline De Roch. The cardigan jacket was fitted at the waist in front, but hung straight in the back. She wore a black jersey turtle neck blouse, fitted over the skirt, and a small black brushed felt profile hat trimmed with a single band of bright green grosgrain ribbon. Her only jewelry was a pair of grey pearl and diamond earrings.

"Most women change their hat styles more often than the style of Edminister, Mrs. Philip A. Gates, and Mrs. Frank Fata.

The program was given by Miss Gretchen Johannsen. She spoke on her life in Germany and compared her life in America. Miss Johannsen is an exchange student from Germany and is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. She is living in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Nation.

Attending the meeting were Mrs. M. E. Cooper, J. R. Donaldson, Edminister, L. H. Hart, V. L. Hobbs, Rufe Jordan, Fata, Huelyn Laycock, Doyle Osborne, E.E. Shelhamer, J.L. Zachry, Myles Morgan and Bearden.

Table games were played throughout the evening with prizes going to the honoree.

Present were Mrs. Bill Strang, Vic Bates, Dalton Ford, John E. O'Keefe, Marvin Milkien, Wayne Jordan, Bob Nicholson, L.A. Puckett, Alvin Lewis, W.J. Fellows, Winfield Powers, the honoree and the hostesses.

Sending gifts were Mrs. Clois Vandergriff, Joe Seitz Donald Nicholson, Glendon Young, W.W. Wells and Lorene Powell.

Printers' Union Wins Right To Waste Human Energy

The Supreme Court has ruled that the practice of the typographical union that requires the publisher, or really the subscribers of a newspaper, to pay the printers for doing work that the publisher does not want and does not use is not a violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

Evidently the Taft-Hartley law was not written concise enough to eliminate featherbedding. If setting type that is not to be used in the newspaper is not featherbedding, then nothing is featherbedding.

It seems that the technicality of the decision rested on the fact that the printers actually reset the work that was not wanted, instead of being paid for it without doing the work. In many cases printers that see the absurdity and the wickedness and the disservice to their fellowman to reset type that is not to be used make the employer pay them the equivalent of what it would take to reset it. This Taft-Hartley law seems to outlaw, but it does not seem to outlaw, according to six of the nine Supreme Court judges, forcing the employer to pay for work that he does not want and does not use, and that does not benefit his customers.

Wicked To Waste. It is a moral law that it is wicked for any man, rich or poor, to waste, and the biggest waste in the world is the waste of human energy. There is no question but what doing work that no one wants and no one uses is a complete waste to society and lowers the standard of living of all people. It does this because the time and energy used in producing useless work could be used in producing other wealth that would make it possible for everyone to have a higher standard of living. And this other wealth would be produced if it were not for government and labor unions interfering with an unhampered market for what men produce.

The practice shows how unrealistic and how selfish and absurd labor union practices are. They seem to have no conception of what raises real wage levels. They seem to be only interested in a temporary gain for a privileged few.

Of course, when the cowardly publisher is intimidated and signs the printers' union contract that makes him a party to helping rob his customers and give them a poorer service than he could give them without such protection, he is doing it because he does not have the backbone or courage or the foresight to properly represent his customers. He should be, in reality, the agent for his customers, trying to give them as much as he can for their money. When he signs a contract that permits his employees to run up his costs by doing useless work, he is doing it under duress and the Taft-Hartley law was intended to give him a little backbone and make it easier for him to refuse to add to the price of his product the cost of paying for useless work.

In many of the smaller cities this practice is not enforced. It, however, is held over the head of the employer and if he says anything in the newspaper that the printers' union does not like, then the union compels him to pay for resetting what is called bogus type that is never used.

It is hard to conceive how any self-respecting worker would want to be paid for doing something that benefits no consumer, but only temporarily gives him a job at more wages than he could get without this bogus. If printers could get equal wages for equally difficult jobs, they would not want to enforce this bogus proposal. It is prima facie evidence that their wages are above wages of equal skill in other lines of work.

Resetting type that has already been used and is not wanted and not used is just as ridiculous and absurd as it would be for them to contend and to rule that no publisher dare print more than one paper from the type they set and require the publisher to reset the type for every copy.

It is practices like these that help keep real wages down. If every other labor union compelled its workers to do work that was never used and never wanted, our production would be greatly reduced and thus our standard of living would be a lot lower than it is.

It is hard to conceive how people who are supposed to be educated and living according to Jewish-Christian ethics and the principles set forth in the Declaration of Independence could become so confused and befuddled and have such lack of respect for the right of other people as to try to put into practice this absurdity of making people pay by threats of strikes for work that no one wants or uses.

Printers' Label Readers should scan their newspapers and their magazines and see whether they carry the printers' union label, advertising that they only employ union printers who insist on doing work that is of no benefit to any consumer. The public has a way of controlling this. If they would refuse to patronize newspapers and magazines that are a party to this exploitation of other workers, the publisher would get a little backbone and see that their first duty is to their customers. And they have no moral right to enter into a conspiracy with their workers to help rob their customers by making them help pay for non-productive work.

The ruling of the Supreme Court is evidence that the Taft-Hartley law and the Wagner law should be completely repealed or the

What It Takes To Move Them

Fair Enough... Civil Service Employees Have A Hard Time Getting Bounced

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

There are many other Civil Service organizations in the government of states, counties and cities, but I have been dealing with the enormous waste of our taxes on unnecessary employees of the federal government and on "benefits" such as holidays, vacations and accumulated sick leave and will deal further with this evil today.

After all, the tax money which is squandered in this way is, for the most part, earned by the actual, personal toil of millions of citizens employed outside the government service.

The worthy, efficient government worker who is making a career of his job feels put-upon by discussions of the situation and I mean in a general discussion. But the fact is that even the best type of their enjoy favors from us tax-producing workers which have been wangled by persistent and systematic pressure over many years.

I can dramatize our situation by saying, truthfully that we are slaves of the government, inasmuch as the income tax amendment plainly empowers Congress to confiscate every cent of the incomes of every human being in the United States. With that fact established in our minds, we then perceive that a favored mass of individuals who produce no taxes but, on the contrary, devour them, are privileged parasites living by our labor. That is a terrible situation. Congress passed laws which protect these people from discharging their obligations or other causes which are sufficient in private industry and even in union shops. And this means that once they have landed on our backs we have to work to earn money to support them until they retire on their pensions or die.

I have quoted somewhat from a paper prepared by Congressman John Taber, the up-state New York Republican, who is one of the best authorities on actual conditions at the Washington bureaucracy and the details of Civil Service. Know of no better source of information on the subject than any other qualified person as courageous in attracting to himself personal and political abuse for public service.

Returning briefly to the subject of "Coffee Time," which I touched upon yesterday, I quote this from Mr. Taber's paper written for the Committee for Constitutional Government:

"Government cafeterias feed hundreds of thousands of employees in Washington and throughout the country," he tells us. "Usually they are able to serve food cheaper than the average person can prepare it at home. This is because space, heat and light are furnished without charge. My so-

The smallest State in the Union has the longest name. Officially it is "the State of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations." In popular use the last part of the name has been permitted to lapse and for the sake of brevity the State is almost universally known as Rhode Island, although the full name is still used officially. The States of North and South Carolina are tied among the other States, for second place in the length of their official names.

A Brooklyn bartender had a pet parrot. One evening a drunk spotted it, climbed atop a stool, and tried to catch it. "Seran, you jook," shrieked the outraged parrot. "What's da big idea?"

The drunk looked surprised, tipped his hat, and mumbled: "Golly, I'm sorry, me." "I thought you was a bird."

Woman — (to bank teller) If we would only use the $2,000 in my savings account to buy a new car, we wouldn't have to pay any financing charges.

Bank Teller — Then what don't you want? Because my husband would say how I saved so much money.

Woman — Because my husband would say how I saved so much money.

Mr. Taber criticized the State Department's habit of picking rich men for ambassadors because professionals dependent on their pay could not squander money on lavish entertainment in foreign capitals. He said it is better to send frugal men abroad and thus correct the impression that the American taxpayer didn't care what his government did with his money.

He had learned that private industry in a large midwestern city paid stenographers $2,000 a year to start, with two weeks' vacation after one year's service. In the government an experienced stenographer draws from $2,950 to $3,175, an even a typist without experience from $2,750 to $2,900 with all the excess "benefits."

It seems futile to look to the White House for aggressive action. Congress has the ultimate authority to compel the abolition of masses of jobs. Even the total abandonment of the Department of Labor and the assignment of its few useful functions to some

National Whirligig. Washington Doesn't Believe Malenkov Wants To Start War

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON — The murderous contrast between Dictator Malenkov's peaceful promises and his aerial offensive against the Western powers on the rim of the sprawling Soviet empire has been the principal topic of discussion at recent White House State Department and Pentagon plenary conferences which will determine the Eisenhower strategy toward the new regime at Moscow.

Although the men in the Kremlin are unpredictable, several novel explanations for these shootings have been advanced by both the military and diplomatic experts.

None of the proponents of these theories regard the tragic events as a prelude to all-out war. On the contrary, they are interpreted as a sign of internal weakness and uncertainty.

REDS TIGHTENING BORDER CONTROL — A significant factor in the more recent aerial assaults is that they began immediately after a Polish pilot escaped from that country and grounded a Russian MIG on a Danish island. It was the first undamaged plane of this type which Western engineers, airplane experts and pilots had been able to examine. So, the Reds are tightening their border control.

Malenkov is apparently afraid other officers may "choose freedom," and that they may bring with them actual models or blueprints of other secret weapons. In both heavy artillery and tanks, and some include mortars, the Russians are making more formidable stuff than we are.

They may lack as many gatgets as our products, but they are quite as effective in combat. They can be produced in larger quantities and more quickly, and they are more durable.

The increasing number of escapes has a morale aspect, especially as the military refugees from communism are mainly officers. As a special class of citizens, they are entitled to preferred treatment behind the iron curtain. If they prefer the democratic way of life to the proletarian system, it supplies us with the finest kind of propaganda.

MOTIVE FOR MALENKOV'S BEHAVIOR — In addition to this military factor, the diplomats advance another motive for Malenkov's Janus-like behavior. It is understood to be the viewpoint of Charles E. Bohlen, who will soon represent us at Moscow, and of George F. Kennan, our foremost authority on Moscow psychology.

Malenkov's offering of so many olive branches to the West, and to the United States in particular, has been taken more seriously within Russia and the satellite countries than these have been in Paris, London and Washington. Our responses has been that he back his words with deeds.

Let his followers interpret his attitude as evidence of weakness or disension resulting from Stalin's death, the new Premier feels it necessary to accommodate his peace feelers with a show of might. To use a bridge term, he wants to place himself in the position of seeming to lead from strength.

LENIN-STALIN STRATEGY — Two other reasons lie behind his dual strategy, in Washington's opinion. First, he may be testing the West's mood, determination and courage, as did Hitler, Mussolini and the Japanese war lords from 1930 to 1939.

Secondly, if the U.S., Britain and France see no prospect for peace and settlements in his vague proposals, he will seize upon our rejection to brand us — again — as "warmongers and imperialists." Tomorrow may invalidate all these assumptions, in view of the Levin-Stalin strategy of keeping the enemy off guard by overnight shifts in tactics. But they send the tentative and temporary conclusions of the best minds at Washington on the Russian problem.

INCOME DOWN — The interplay of broad-and-narrow, dollars-a-days politics and economics is illustrated graphically in the fluctuating volume of department store sales during the season.

Almost every merchant was enjoying a fine season until the election of Eisenhower. Now, buying has fallen off abnormally in the pre-Easter period, because so many government employees are afraid of losing their jobs. Even restaurants in the federal area downtown record a steeper decline.

LOOKING SIDWAYS

You telephone a man in California. You talk to another man in Maryland. Nothing consequential, just talk. You suffer from phone starvation. It's like not getting enough oxygen. You begin to turn blue when you don't talk enough on the telephone. You turn up some work and take an early train home to Long Island. You run into your wife by accident in the station. She has been released early from a television rehearsal. You sit together. The train rocks along and you mumble nothing important and you never realize that this will be The Night the Lights Burned All Night.

You get home and build up a little fire in the living room. Your wife takes the best chair nearest the fire and huddles down with her television script, cramming lines of dialogue into her head. You sit across the room and look through 48 square feet of clear glass to Long Island Sound. Dusk is closing down rapidly. Lights wink up on the Connecticut shore. Across the sluggish little estuary the old mansion looms dark and gray. A lone light burns over its portico. You muse that they will be driving up soon, one car after another, twin headlights boring through your giant window. They always do about this time, or a little later.

You don't give it much attention when a car does wind up the slope across the water and stops before the door. Another drives up. And a third. You don't even think that there must be a lot of them living there. But, suddenly, you start to take notice. Something unusual is happening. Lights are strapping on all over the great pile of mansion. Upstairs, downstairs, even through the half moons of the attic windows light rays pierce the early dark. Idly, for no reason, you glance at your watch: 6:17 p.m.

The last time lights gulped on like that was the forerunner of a wholesale buying spree in the stores of Glen Cove. More than a year ago — that was — Blarney, drug store gimcrackery, refrigerators, heaters, anything. They bought like mad and in quantity and then they went away, in ships.

You have dinner after twilight and come back to the living room. The light rays are being broken now. Men are rushing back and forth in the lighted rooms of the old house across the water, their bulks passing in front of the lamps. Three men are seen to run out of the door and vanish in the rainy darkness. Soon they rush back, with two others behind them. Chauffeurs, maybe, the two new ones. When you go to bed at midnight, the lighted-up house is blurry in the rain. You don't give it any thought.

You waken at 4 o'clock in the morning. You pick up a copy of a science fiction anthology not yet released to the bookstores and read until 5 a.m. You get restless and decide to go down to the kitchen and get a glass of orange juice. You walk into the kitchen and glance out of the window to the house across the water. The lights still burn brightly and in every room. And men, small as ants that far away, are still rushing around inside of it.

You drink the orange juice and go back upstairs. You go to sleep. You waken again at 9 o'clock. You yawn your way down to breakfast. Usually, you turn on the radio. You hear the news. Now you know why the lights burned all night in the old house on the hill. You wonder what the vindictive old man with white hair and bad teeth is thinking — and what he will do — or what will be done to him. The news is that Stalin has been stricken. You hear that the news broke in New York around midnight — but that the fact was known in Russia — and most certainly in Glen Cove — at what was 6 p.m. New York time — when the lights all came on.

You think about old Vishinsky, across the estuary, and what a disturbed night he must have had in that great pile of a house with the coded, frantic messages crackling in from dusk to dawn. The thudding of feet up and down the stairs. The fierce discussions in the halls.

You hope he didn't sleep a wink.

For The Many

A significant sidelight on present-day corporation financing accompanied the announcement that Secretary of Defense Wilson would sell his General Motors Stock — almost 40,000 shares, with a market value of close to $2,700,000.

Some people feared that the disposal of so large a block might cause abnormal market disruptions. But this fear was at once shown to be groundless. The Secretary's stock holdings amounted to less than one-twentieth of one per cent of GM common stock outstanding. Some 2,500,000 shares of the stock were bought and sold on the exchange last year. It was obvious that Mr. Wilson's holdings could be handled in a routine fashion.

The day when one man or a small group of men could dominate representative "big business" through their ownership of securities is as much history as the horse and buggy. Once the number of people who owned stocks could be numbered in the thousands. Today the figure runs for into the millions. Once most shareholders were men of wealth and large affairs. Today most of them are people with average jobs and incomes. As the total of individual shareholders has increased, the average number of shares owned by each has diminished.

Share ownership, in other words, is now for the many, not for just the few. The United States is the stronger because of that fact.

A recent Saturday Evening Post editorial began, "Of the 1,117 bills and resolutions dropped into the hopper of the House of Representatives on the opening day of the 83rd Congress, few are of more potential significance than an item identified as House Resolution 12." This resolution, introduced by Representative Couder of New York, authorizes the House to conduct an inquiry and recommend to Congress ways and means by which commercial businesses now owned and operated by the government, can be sold to private citizens, co-operatives, or corporations.

Going on, the Post said, "Some weeks before the election, Charles E. Wilson — the former Defense Mobilizer, that is — proposed specifically that the country consider the possibility of 'selling our national dams, generating equipment and distribution facilities to the people.' Mr. Wilson suggested that the switch-over could be accomplished simply by authorizing holders of government obligations to exchange their bonds for stock in TVA, or what have you.

"This is a tempting idea . . . Mr. Wilson estimates the value of government-owned businesses at about $27,000,000,000. If they were sold, three things would happen. First, the debt itself would be reduced. Second, interest payments on this much of the debt, some $500,000,000 per year, need no longer be paid. And third, these properties would yield taxes for federal and local government . . .

"The whole idea of desocializing is likely to become popular. In any event, there is nothing wrong with Mr. Couder's proposal to make a study of the whole matter. The road away from socialism must be charted or it will never be completed."

Endless discussion is now being given to the problems of debt reduction and tax reduction. How could a better start be made than by getting government out of debt-building, tax-eating commercial business?

Stockpiling Jobs

It has been announced that the President will not ask Congress for stand-by authority to reimpose price controls in the event a national emergency should occur after the present law expires. He believes that if such an emergency arises, Congress can quickly pass new laws to deal with it. However, a number of Congressmen still are urging that a stand-by bill be passed.

Senator Bush of Connecticut offered an interesting judgment on this when he characterized the stand-by law as a plan for "stockpiling bureaucrats." It is obvious that if the stand-by law were to have any meaning at all, some sort of an organization for putting it into effect and enforcing it would have to be maintained — and our huge public payroll would be that much larger.

Going beyond this phase of the matter, it is difficult to see how the stand-by plan can be justified. In these days of fast transportation and instant communication, Congress could assemble and vote new laws with little delay even if an emergency should appear when it was not in session. And it is one of the truisms of political life that when a law giving government great powers is in existence, even though dormant, many people itch to use it.

Price control has been a costly experiment for the producers, retailers, and consumers it was supposed to help. It is repugnant to every concept of economic, social and individual freedom. Its burial should be complete.

Best Mound Staff In League . . . Card Pilot Stanky Optimistic

(This is another in a series on the 1953 prospects of the major league clubs.)

By LEO H. PETERSEN

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 25—Eddie Stanky is optimistic over the chances of his St. Louis Cardinals this season for he believes he has solved his first and third base problems.

"I've got the pitching," he said, "and I think we'll come up with enough power."

If big Steve Bilko finally makes the grade at first base and either of two rookies, Jay Jablonski or Vern Benson, can win the third base spot, Stanky feels his problems will be over.

"After all, I want to play Stan Musial in the outfield for 154 games and in order to do that either Bilko or Dick Sisler will have to make good at first. I'm sure one of them will and that will add a lot of strength to the club for it is best with Stas in the outfield."

Has Nine Established Pitchers

Last season, his first at the helm of a major league club, Stanky started out with two established pitchers—Gerry Staley and Cliff Chambers. Now he thinks he has nine, including the best two relief pitching team in the business—Eddie Yuhas (12-2) and Al Brazle (12-5).

Behind Staley (14-14) and Cham. Les Fusselman, who hit only .199 with the Cards in 1952, and Dick Harvey Haddix (2-2), Cloyd Boyer (6-6) and Joe Preaker (7-10).

"There isn't a better all-around staff in the league," the little brat boasted. He said he wasn't worried because the staff is predominantly left handed.

Brazle, Chambers, Mizell, and Haddix are southpaws. The club which the Cards figure they have to beat for the pennant, the Dodgers, murder left handed pitching. "But not the kind I'll throw at them," he said, grinning.

Stanky admits Enos Slaughter will have to have another good year and isn't worried about his age. Slaughter will be 37 April 27, but last season was one of the best in his long, brilliant career.

Claims Several Firsts

Musial will be in center with Slaughter in right, Larry Miggins, Hal Rice or Peanut Lowery will get the left field spot.

Sally Hentus probably will open at short if rookie Wally Lammers doesn't win the job. In that case, Hentus will compete with Jablonski, Benson and the veteran Billy Johnson for the third base spot. Red Schoendienst, of course, will be at second.

Del Rice, whom Stanky calls the "best defensive catcher in the league" will be the No. 1 receiver with rookie Bill Sarni, who hit .254 at Columbus last season, battling Les Fusselman, who hit only .199 with the Cards in 1952, and Dick Rand, a .256 hitter at Columbus last year, for the utility job.

Summing up the Cardinal prospects Stanky claimed the best centerfielder in the league, the best second baseman, the best defensive catcher, the best pinch hitter, Lowrey and the best relief pitcher if not the best overall pitcher.

"That's why I'm very optimistic," he concluded.

No other light trucks have all this

YOU don't expect polo-pony agility from a truck in traffic—but the new GMC's have it.

You'd like to have passenger-car pace and economy on the highway—and you'll get it from the 1953 GMC's.

For there are two great advances that step the new GMC's ahead of all previous truck performance:

One: Dual-Range Hydra-Matic Drive—the fully automatic shift with 3 speeds for traffic, 4 for the open road—available on 19 models through the $\frac{3}{4}$, $\frac{1}{2}$ - and 1-ton capacity range.

Two: a new line of engines of progressive design, with compression ratios of 7.5 to 1 and 8.0 to 1—the highest of any gasoline truck engine ever built. Here's pile-driver power behind every piston stroke—flashing response and better mileage are squeezed from regular fuel.

Many chassis advances, too, add to the extra-value features that make GMC's, point for point, the biggest dollar's worth in the light-truck field as well as in the heavier lines.

We confidently tell you—these great new GMC's will do your job better, easier, and at the lowest over-all cost. They have stamina beyond their size, because they're "built like the big ones"—the heavy-duty GMC's that lead the world in sales.

That's saying a lot. But just come in—and we'll prove it.

Standard equipment on Package Delivery models, optional in moderate extra cost on others.

Funk Team Is Mat Winner

Dory Funk, Polo Cordova and Ben Davidson walked off with top honors in last night's wrestling show at the Southern Club by taking the second and third falls to win the 6-man tag bout.

Their victims, who won the first fall, were Whitey Whittier, Benny Truddell and Herb Parks.

Referee Billy Weidner had more than he could handle as the six hefties stayed in the ring most of the time when only two were allowed.

In the preliminary matches, Davidson defeated Truddell, Cordova won over Parks and Funk and Whittier battled to a draw.

RED HEAD STAR—Ginny Moore, above, member of the All-American Red Heads, is one of the classiest ball handlers in girls basketball. She will be seen in action here tomorrow night when the Red Heads meet the Nobilt-Coffey Chiefs at Harvester Fieldhouse. Tickets for the game, sponsored by the Quarterback Club, are now on sale at Wilson Drug, Leder's Jewelry, B & H Pharmacy, Nobilt-Coffey Pontiac, and Malone Pharmacy.

PHS Thinlies In Two Meets Saturday

The Pampa Harvester track team will enter the Bluebonnet Relays in Brownwood this weekend instead of the Texas Relays at Austin as was originally scheduled, coach Tom Tipps revealed yesterday.

"The Bluebonnet Relays have more events in which we want to compete," Tipps said in announcing the change.

Tipps, at present, is planning to carry five boys to the Brownwood meet. Sprinters Ed Dudley, John Darby, Walker Bird and Harold Lewis and weightman Buddy Cookrell are due to make up the travelling squad to Brownwood.

In the meantime, the remainder of the Harvester track squad will compete in the Panhandle Invitational meet Saturday. Aubra Nooncaster will be in charge of the Harvester thinlies at the Panhandle meet.

UT 9 Sweeps Gopher Series

AUSTIN, March 25 —UP— The Texas Longhorns swept a two-game series with the Minnesota Gophers Tuesday by beating the Gophers 7 to 6 in the second game. The Longhorns won Monday 8 to 6. The Longhorns bobbled a total of seven times throughout the game and the Gophers committed four errors.

First baseman Paul Mohr hit a 350-foot homer over the right field fence for the Longhorns in the third.

Frank Brock got credit for his first victory as a college pitcher after relieving in the fifth. He is a right hander from Houston. He was relieved in the ninth with the bases-loaded by Boyd Linker who pitched one pitch to retire the Gophers.

Minnesota pitcher Don Streeter walked eight and hit one batsman. The Longhorns got six hits off him.

White Deer Gets Ready For Baseball

WHITE DEER (Special)—George Wright, manager of the White Deer team which recently became members of the Caprock Baseball League, said that "clean up the diamond" time is here and any help is appreciated.

Strictly an amateur league, teams from Clarendon, Hedley, Groves, Panhandle, Claude, Canyon, a training group from Amarillo Air Base and White Deer will begin competitive games scheduled on Canyon's grounds, April 26.

White Deer merchants are furnishing 20 suits of a cream color to the team, with the individual players furnishing shoes and gloves.

Wright said the White Deer team will hold field try-outs on March 29 and encourages all interested players to meet on the field, northeast of the Gun Club grounds, on that date.

Bill Webb Is PHS' Hustling Harvester

Billy Webb, senior guard of the 1953 winner of the "Hustling Harvester" award, is being honored at the basketball banquet honoring the state champion Green and Gold five.

Approximately 300 were on hand for the annual cage banquet held in the high school cafeteria.

Coach Clifton McNeely made the presentation of the Hustling Harvester trophy to Webb. In making the presentation, McNeely said it was difficult to select the boy from the 18-player squad that has shown the most hustle but after several days of culling them down, Webb was finally chosen.

Janet Weatherred was crowned the Harvester basketball queen. Captains Jimmy Bond and Jon Oden performed the crowning ceremonies. Miss Weatherred's attendants were Pat Cargile, escorted by Fred Woods, and Sus Stewart, escorted by Billy Webb.

The three basketball coaches, McNeely and his assistant, Terry Culley, and Reaper coach, Pernal Scoggins, were presented gifts.

McNeely was presented a new automobile—a 1953 Pontiac; Culley received a piece of luggage and a suit of clothes; and Scoggins was presented a hat.

All gifts were made possible through the generosity of Pampa basketball fans and business men who contributed to the fund. Members of the Harvester Boosters Club

DR. LAW SONE and the Sports Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, co-sponsors of the banquet, solicited the funds.

Coach McNeely introduced all members of the Harvester cage squad and their parents. McNeely praised the work turned in by his charges that gave PHS its first state championship team and first undefeated team. McNeely also thanked the Boosters Club, the Chamber of Commerce and everyone else for making the banquet possible.

Dr. Law Sone of Texas Wesleyan College delivered the main address. Dr. Sone praised Coach McNeely as a fine athlete and character and was also high in praise of McNeely's wife, Betty. Both Betty and McG attended Texas Wesleyan.

Dr. Sone was introduced by Gus Miller, former coach of TWC and who is now head basketball coach at West Texas State.

Furnishing special entertainment was Pampa High School's Junior sextette, composed of Leta Immon, Janice Baker, Sandra Cartwright, Christine Pierce, Beverly Rogers and Gay Nell Carter. They were accompanied by Carrol Paxson. Miss Paxson also played the school song "Dear Old Pampa High School" at the conclusion of the program.

Afterwards the film of the state championship game between the Harvesters and Austin was shown in the auditorium. The Harvesters won the game, 61-47.

Dr. Joe Donaldson was master of ceremonies and Dr. Tom Johnston gave the invocation.

The relatively small spark plug on today's automobiles is also the most rugged. Plugs must operate in a temperature of 1,500 degrees while withstanding pressures as high as 500 pounds per square inch and, without faltering, produce up to 2,000 sparks per minute.

A gauge has been developed to detect scratches of 1-1,000,000th of an inch. The instrument is used to determine average roughness of highly machined surfaces of such parts as pistons, gear teeth, clutch facings and cylinder linings which call for precision fits.

PROVIDENCE, R. I. — UP— A traffic violation charge against 83-year-old Charles Fierstein of Providence was dismissed because he had been driving flawlessly almost since automobiles were invented. The aged motorist never had been stopped in more than 45 years of driving. He was charged with failing to halt at a stop sign.

Clever Trick Will Win Many Hands

Written for NEA Service.
When North bid four clubs in today's hand he knew that his partner would recognize this as a mild slam try. If North had wanted to show a real club suit, he would have done so at his second chance instead of bidding one no-trump.

North was not afraid of unduly encouraging his partner since his rebid of one no-trump had sharply limited the possible strength of the North hand.

As it happened, South had enough strength to insist on a game but not nearly enough to try for a slam. South therefore stopped short at four spades. West opened the nine of diamonds, hoping that this lead would frighten declarer away from a known New York expert, didn't even quiver as he took the diamond finesse since he happened to be void of the suit.

When the jack of diamonds held the first trick Harmon led a low trump from the dummy and finessed the seven from his own hand. This finesse lost to the ten of spades, and now declarer knew that he was doomed to lose three trump tricks. The contract therefore depended on losing no hearts.

Harmon won the club return with dummy's ace of clubs and speedily cashed his remaining top clubs, discarding a low heart from dummy on the last. His next step was to lead a low trump, forcing East to win with the ace. East dared not return a heart, and thought it unwise to lead up to dummy's diamonds. East therefore returned a club, and declarer discarded a second heart from his hand, ruffing in dummy.

Harmon now ruffed a low diamond in his hand and put West in with a trump. At this point West was helpless. If West returned a diamond, dummy would get a second free finesse, and South low hearts. Hence West returned his low heart.

Harmon knew that East held the king of hearts, since otherwise East would have led a heart rather than a club at his previous turn. Hence he decided to play West for the jack of hearts.

When the nine of hearts was played from dummy, East had Hobson's choice. If he covered, South would win with the ace and could return the queen of hearts. If East played low, dummy could cash the diamond ace and lead the heart queen to bring in the rest of the hearts.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. — UP— A reporter assigned to the legislature in Raleigh returned unexpectedly to the Journal office here and answered a telephone. "Are you the party calling Miss Marjorie Hunter at Raleigh?" the operator asked. "No I am Miss Marjorie Hunter." "I just wanted to tell you that your room doesn't answer," the operator replied.
