Atom Control Asked In UN By Vishinsky

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Sept. 21—(AP)—Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky demanded Monday that the United Nations Security Council take immediate action to prohibit atomic and hydrogen weapons and to order the dismantling of military bases in foreign countries.

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Sept. 21—(AP)—Andre Y. Vishinsky told the United Nations Monday that the Communist demands concerning the Korean peace conference membership "must be met and cannot fail to be met."

Non-belligerent countries should participate also in the conference if they are directly interested in a Far Eastern settlement and could contribute to its success.

He was referring to the resolution sponsored by the United States and the other UN Korean war allies which the assembly approved in August, calling for a twinned conference of belligerents only, plus Russia if "the other side desires it."

Communist China and North Korea countered with a demand that the assembly reopen its debate on the conference to include all the belligerents with Russia, India, Indonesia, Pakistan and Burma included as well.

Vishinsky accused the United States of adopting a "faulty position" in opposing renewed debate. Vishinsky began his 40-page speech—expected to consume close to two hours—in a moderate tone and with a subdued delivery.

France Deals With Germany

PARIS, Sept. 21 —UP— France has accepted a proposal by West Germany for direct negotiations on outstanding European problems in a major attempt to end disagreements between the two neighboring countries, it was announced Monday.

Success in any such negotiations might clear the way finally for ratification of the European Defense Community pact and the consequent inclusion of about 600,000 German troops in the Allied armies arrayed against Communist aggression.

The French Foreign Office, in announcing Premier Joseph Laniel's acceptance of the proposal, made no mention of negotiations on the rich Saar coal region. But as the Saar is one thing Adenauer wants to discuss above all, it was assumed that it would be included in any talks.

Adenauer, vacationing in the Black Forest, is expected to receive France's acceptance late Monday or Tuesday, the Foreign Office said.

France made no mention of a date for French-German talks, the Foreign Office said.

But it was believed that any such meeting would be held next month, possibly at the Hague, Netherlands, where leaders of the West European alliance are to meet Oct. 20.

Docket Sounded in County Court

County Judge J. B. Maguire Jr. this morning sounded the docket for county court jury cases.

By 11 a.m. the jury was being picked for the trial of Roy Thomas Stanton, charged with driving while intoxicated. Sixteen prospective jurors were on hand but one was excused for business reasons.

Following the docket-sounding, County Attorney Bill Waters pointed out that 19 cases had been set out that 19 cases had been set out and 13 of them had not been called. Maguire replied that attorneys in the 13 had made motions for continuance and he had granted them for "good and valid reasons."

Waters asked if the motions were written and Maguire replied that they would be "reduced to writing" later.

Before jury proceeding began, W. H. Miller, 38, of Pampa, changed his plea to guilty on a charge of driving while intoxicated and Maguire fined him $125 and costs.

Set for 10 a.m. Tuesday in county court was the case of Forest W. Johnson, also charged with driving while intoxicated. Stanton's and Johnson's appeared this morning to be the only cases ready for jury trial.

Mrs. Jackie Cary, 1309 Coffee, was at work this morning for the first time as Waters' new secretary. Mrs. Lucille Hite, his former secretary, resigned last week.

Freed Prisoners Scatter To Homes

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21 —UP— The next-to-last shipment of former prisoners of war scattered to their homes across the United States Monday after a heartwarming arrival at San Francisco Port of Embarkation.

Three hundred and one grinning ex-prisoners docked Sunday aboard the Navy transport Gen. A. W. Brewster. On the dock were some 500 cheering relatives and friends.

The Brewster also brought back 1,067 other servicemen from Far East on regular rotation. They appeared just as excited to be home as the former prisoners.

Among the repatriates was Lt. James L. Stone, 30-year-old Congressional Medal of Honor winner from Hot Springs, Ark. Stone was captured in November, 1951, while defending a UN outpost near Sok Kong.

Brig. Gen. James N. Lewis, commanding officer at Camp Stoneman, Calif., gave Stone a brisk salute as he left the ship.

The last repatriation transport, the Gen. William Howze, arrives Wednesday.

Gen. Dean Family Prepares Welcome

BERKELEY, Calif., Sept. 21 —UP— Nineteen "happy-nervous" members of Maj. Gen. William F. Dean's family gathered in Berkeley Monday to spend together the last hours before they are joined by the "hero of Taejon."

The Congressional Medal of Honor winner, America's most famous prisoner of war in Korea, was slated to arrive in the United States Tuesday. His plane lands at Travis Air Force Base, northwest of San Francisco.

Dean's family, including eight children, will leave the 54-year-old general's home in a motorcade for Travis a short time before the announced arrival.

It will be the first time many of the children have seen Dean, notably his two grandchildren, Robert Dean Williams, two and Ann, seven months. Dean has been in the Far East for six years, almost three of them spent in the hands of the Communists.

"We're terribly excited and happy and nervous," said the general's exuberant wife, Mrs. Mildred Dean. "We're all in a turbulence and when we get up to Travis Field we'll be more-so. We're bound to be."

Mrs. Dean said the family hasn't planned any specific way to spend the last hours beyond "a little shopping, maybe."

"But we're not chewing our fingernails," she said. "The babies keep us busy. They're on a schedule and keep us hopping."

The red-haired, fighting general, commander of the 24th Infantry Division in the early holding battles of the war, was captured in August, 1950, after the Communists overran his outfit with the fall of Taejon.

The highest Allied officer held by the Reds, he was released Sept. 4 in "Operation Big Switch" at Freedom Village. Shortly thereafter he received Korea's highest military medal, then went to Tokyo for rest and recuperation.

Charles Vineyard as Vice President, Jerry Preston, Secretary, Joe Glass, Treasurer, Alton Carpenter, Reporter, and Carl Lee Watson, Sentinel. Vernon Gibson is their faculty advisor.

The Music Department under the direction of Joe Coleman has organized a school mixed choral group. This is the first attempt to produce a chorus in the school since 1950 when such attempt was made but did not materialize, so this is the first prospect for a high school singing group since the end of World War II. Mr. Coleman expects to have made sufficient progress that the group will begin giving public concerts before mid-term.

The FFA Chapter, as a part of their training, gave a birthday party for two of their members this week. The whole party was planned and produced by the students. They had a recent project of freezing peaches as part of their training, so they used these peaches as part of the refreshments and added cookies that they had made along with tea.

In addition to the regular membership, the Superintendent, Paul Kennedy and the Principals, Freeman Melton Jr. were special guests. Leona Gossett and Helen Bruner were the honorees. The party was under the direction of Mrs. Dee Coleman.

Positive identification of Kee C. Sosie, 40, of Orabi, Ariz., a Navajo Indian killed Saturday night on the Amarillo highway, has been made and plans were underway today to have his body shipped back home.

Harry Cook, Sosie's brother, made the identification Sunday afternoon, Highway Patrolman E. J. Robertson said today, adding that Cook identified the shoes, type of clothes, age and height before going to the Dukenel-Carmichael Funeral Home to view the body and make it official.

Cook's existence in the area became known when the proprietor of the postoffice-grocery in Kingsmill asked several Indians working on the Santa Fe Railroad gang if they knew any of Sosie's relatives.

Sex is like atomic energy. It can serve us or destroy us. When a physicist gets a new slant on atomic energy, his university asks him to use discrimination. It doesn't allow him to confide his findings to anyone who might use them destructively against the community. He is required to consider loyalty to people as well as loyalty to his science.

Doomed To Failure

Progressive education is producing students who can't think, and can't read, write, spell, or figure with facility. The progressive education movement in America began with the philosopher John Dewey. It was Dewey's misfortune that the teaching profession followed his innovations not wisely but too well, Fred DeArmond writes in the Catholic Digest.

"Dewey and his followers believed that education should be tied more closely to the business of living, and that the schoolroom should be, as nearly as possible, society in miniature. They held that the natural impulses of children could be given more rein; a child develops best, they claimed, if he tastes a great deal of victory and very little of defeat.

"The Deweyites preached that education should be made a pleasant diversion for the students instead of an onerous task. Children were placed on an intellectual diet of lollipops. As one teacher put it, 'Some of us have become little more than professional baby sitters.'"

Emphasis away from the essential skills, the three R's allowed young minds to grow up in a wilderness of weeds. Old-fashioned teachers had insisted on the value of discipline, both mental and moral. When discipline was abandoned, the drill feature was taken out of education. But it turned out that without drilling the average student did not learn to read, write, spell, or figure with facility. Contrary to the promise of the reformers, these accomplishments did not come spontaneously to grade and high school students.

We now know what the effects of progressive education have been with regard to education. The Gallup poll reports that nearly 40 per cent of adult Americans do not know what a tariff is; one in four has not the faintest idea of the meaning of inflation, filibuster is Greek to half the nation's voters; to two-thirds of them, jurisdictional strike is meaningless; only four out of ten know what the Electoral College is.

John Dewey thought he had found a short cut to a system that would train students to think. It has not worked.

The results of the mistakes made by the followers of Dewey, however, are still with us. So long as the instruction in the schools was limited strictly to the essential skills and the three R's, there was little indoctrination of the youngsters with "social consciousness," the "democratic way" and a lot of other junk that is foisted upon young minds today.

Would it help if we went back to the teacher and class room of former days? Well, it would help to the extent that the cost of "education" could be materially reduced. Another assist could come from the abandonment of the highly nonsensical "adult education" program and the cost involved here. The reduction of the cost of instruction of the youngsters would certainly help those who are in the position now of paying taxes for public schools they don't want and being unable to afford to send their children to schools they do want.

It would also help in the preparing of children for their adult life. It would take them from the highly artificial classroom status and give them a first hand lesson in the importance of responsibility and the necessity of performance and production to better their status. Under the present system children are taught that competition is not good, only to find out when they become adults that they are in a competitive world. No sooner do they discover this vital point than they become easy marks for those who feel that the competitive free enterprise system is bad and that competition should be eliminated by the force of the government. It is only natural that the children brought up in this sort of environment will look upon the competitive system with a jaundiced eye and turn to the government for the solution of their problems.

Under the earlier system of instruction, even in the public schools, the learning of lessons and other skills was competitive. If a student failed to achieve the required goal he was not permitted to go on to another failure. Instead, he was taught that he would have to work harder, do more studying and, in the long run learn through the competitive system whether or not he should continue to attempt to obtain academic information or should turn to some other field. Now we have the sorry spectacle of young students being kidded by their teachers and the grading system that they are doing nicely and are "making satisfactory improvement," but without any guide or measure to determine what is meant.

Ultimately, of course, the real answer invariably boils down to the bitter fact that the public school system is an immoral venture based on force and coercion. It is our opinion that any venture starting on such a premise is, in the long run, doomed to failure.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

Could Any Defender Government Schools Answer Better?

This column has quoted to some extent from a letter written by Victor E. Black, a public school teacher, that was published in one of the Freedom Newspapers. The newspaper in which the letters were published, asked Mr. Black the following questions:

1. Would it be a violation of the Golden Rule for one individual, say John Smith, to set up a school and initiate force upon another individual, say Bob Jones, to make Jones support Smith's school?

2. If it is a violation of the Golden Rule for an individual to initiate force to compel another individual to support the first individual's school, wouldn't it be a violation of the Golden Rule for one group, say Group A, to set up a school and initiate force upon another group, say group B, to make a group B support group A's school?

3. In question 2, group A could be a minority or it could be a majority. If it is a violation of the Golden Rule for a minority to set up a school and initiate force upon a majority to make them support the minority's school, why isn't it a violation of the Golden Rule for a majority to set up a school and initiate force upon a minority to make them support the majority's school?

Then the newspaper published Mr. Black's complete answer to these questions, which is as follows:

"To the Editor: "It has been a pleasure to read your editorials during the few days I have been in Colorado Springs. At least they are different. And I believe their aims are for the making of a better community, a better nation, and a better world in which to live.

"I think, however, that your fight against laws which you claim are designed to 'rob Peter to pay Paul' gives people the impression that you are a bit on the selfish side and do not really want to do anything that will take money out of your pockets unless it is going to bring an immediate profit.

"Since thinking through your motives carefully, I cannot believe that you are as selfish as your editorials sound. Rather, I have now come to believe, you do not fully comprehend our complex society. And none of us do.

"It is now my firm conviction that your editorials might have a single track from which you can never take a sidetrack to discover what America is really like. You cannot know the compassion and love that many social workers, teachers, ministers, law-makers, and millions of common, wonderful Americans have for their fellowmen that has caused them to pass thousands of your so-called 'socialistic' and 'force' laws, out of the goodness of their hearts.

"You cannot know all of this, because you have decided once and for all that your ideas are the 'gospel truth.' You have decided that might does not make right and might is always wrong. Such cannot be, although this writer will admit that wrong is often done by a greedy, selfish, and God-denying nation.

"May God bless your newspaper, and may He show us all before it is too late that we are all merely human beings after all. Sincerely, Victor E. Black"

It seems that the only defense that the believers in government schools—or any other coercive measure, is evasion, or some form of smear as is illustrated above. And the reason the only answer is evasion, is because there is no other answer.

If anyone can give answers to the above questions and not contradict himself, Freedom Newspapers would be under great obligation to such party. And if an individual cannot answer the questions without facing a dilemma or contradicting himself, he should admit that he is in an error because all moral acts are in complete harmony with such great moral laws as the Golden Rule.

The Nation's Press

BANNED BOOKS' CHOICE BITS

(The Houston Chronicle) Some of the critics of Senator McCarthy's book-banning crusade may have missed pertinent paragraphs from those volumes. The following is quoted from testimony before McCarthy's committee:

From books by James S. Allen: "Socialism is devoid of all factors for making aggression. The Soviet Union is the only world power which is neither aggressive nor potentially aggressive."

"The destructive power stored away in the atom bombs of the United States is no match for the forward moves of nations to socialism, which is the future of America as it is of the world."

"Socialism" is used by Arthur Allen as a synonym for communism. From Earl Browder's books: "Organize a mighty mass movement of the workers and farmers, Negro and white, men, women and youth to vote Communist and to fight every day in the year against capitalism until it is destroyed and a Soviet government rules in the United States."

It is surprising that such books were ordered removed from American propaganda libraries designed to sell American democracy to the people of other nations?

International Whirligig... Taxation Committee Considers Effect Of National Sales Tax

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Official statistics in files of the Joint Committee on Taxation on the effect of a national sales tax on the tax-payers' pockets book destroy the historic political illusion that such a levy would weigh most heavily on people with small salaries.

It is this wholly mistaken belief which has led such contrasting figures as Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, the Republican reactionary who heads the House Ways and Means Committee, and Harry S. Truman, the proletarian ex-President, to oppose it so bitterly. Neither, it appears, has taken the trouble to look up the facts.

OLD IDEAS — The old theory has been that, even with food exempted from the sales tax, the mass of people in the low brackets must buy daily necessities simply to maintain themselves and their families. They could not avoid or reduce the payments on the minimum amount of everyday goods which they must purchase simply to sustain life. It is also pointed out that these groups run to larger families than the more fortunate situated.

The wealthy, so this cherished belief has held, can always cut down on their investments, as luxuries, including automobiles, servants, summer homes, yachts, television and radio sets, expensive clothes, jewelry and entertainment.

They have a far wider area for economy in spending, and thus for reducing their contributions to the Treasury. They would, it is true, pay a larger total amount, but the burden would be disproportionately "little fellows," percentage-wise.

This idea was fixed firmly in the political and public mind more than 20 years ago when John Nance Garner, then Democratic speaker of the House, first seriously advanced a national levy. The man who, almost single-handedly, defeated his proposal was the late Fiorello La Guardia, then regarded as a radical. Subsequently, as mayor of New York, La Guardia embraced this source of municipal income.

ESTIMATES MADE BY MORGENHAU and others, which tend to repudiate this politico-economic illusion were not prepared by advocates of a national sales tax. On the contrary, the estimates were made by former Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau's statisticians. They were:

BID FOR A SMILE

THIS 'N' THAT My wifey came to me and said, "I'll bargain day, my dear." "Saddy I shook my weary head (for bargain day's a day I dread). Said she, "Now listen here! The bus is free to town and back." I sighed and said, "Alas-alack. . . ." Said she, "Don't act so queer. I know you need both socks clean and shod. The best work-pants, too." "I saw the grain within her eyes, and gave her ten and said "Surprise!" She smiled, "I'll follow through!" Then off to town she gaily went, I sought my arm-chair, quite content. . . . to dream a dream or two. My wifey came back at half past three, with packages galore. Said I, "Let's open them and see the pants and socks and ties. . . ." for me, you purchased at the store. My wifey blushed a lobster red, and in a contrite tone, she said, "I got some things for me. You see, my dear, they better, but I simply had to buy. Some run-proof hose. . . ." and this and that. . . . I bought the boy a baseball bat. . . . You know how dollars fly. Sorry I couldn't get your stuff. Ten dollars, dear, was "not enough." I simply heaved a sigh—Karl Flaeter.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Today's first question deals with a most interesting but fairly unusual condition.

Q—My husband has just found out he has carotid sinus syncope. Is this serious? Mrs. R. A.

A—There is a point in the neck where there is a slight bulging known as the carotid sinus, and there are some nerves in this bulge. Sometimes they become overactive and cause a condition known as carotid-sinus syncope. This may be shown by attacks of dizziness, fainting and sometimes even convulsions, which is associated with a fall in blood pressure and slowing of the heart rate.

Attacks sometimes come following an emotional upset, or without any apparent cause, but they can be brought about by pressing over this carotid sinus. Careful drug treatment is sometimes enough to bring relief, but in severe cases surgery may be desirable. It is probably not dangerous if proper treatment is instituted, and by avoiding pressure over the carotid sinus, particularly in elderly persons.

Q—Is it wise to take medicinal iodine as a deterrent to colds?

A—So far as I know, there is not the slightest scientific evidence that medicinal iodine deters or prevents colds.

Q—What effect, if any, does alcohol have on the blood pressure?

A—It probably has none at all, though it is conceivable that in a tense person it might cause general relaxation with some temporary drop in blood pressure.

There have been scores of stories around the situation of the student bringing home a poor report card, but how about the father who signed his son's report with an X. When the boy asked him why he had signed that mark instead of signing his name the old man answered: "I wouldn't want your teacher to think that anyone who can read and write has a son as dumb as you."

Fair Enough... Two Red Sympathizers Author Juvenile Delinquency Book

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

BOSTON — Maureen McManus, the press-agent for Henry Holt and Company, publishers, announces the release of a book by Dale Kramer and Madeline Karr, purporting to be an expert study of the reasons why boys and girls go wrong. There will be a foreword by Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. For bellyflopping, she states that "within a few weeks an investigation into what can be done to blot out juvenile delinquency will be made by a special Senate committee headed by Robert C. Hendrickson, of New Jersey," and that the authors "will be called to testify because of their knowledge, having done research in connection with teenage gangs."

This pair would be better able to tell Sens. Joe McCarthy and Bill Jenner why American kids turn Red. As to juvenile crime almost any respectable New York City and certain Police Commissioner George Monaghan could tell a better story if they were unmuzzled and guaranteed against personal and political persecution by letterhead pressure gangs operating with tax-exempt contributions from "foundations" of doubtful patriotism.

Kramer is a misanthropic mediocrity who had a career with the Communist magazine New Masses which was frankly that and nothing else but. As a fact reporter he has heretofore carried on in the style and tradition of this Communist propaganda paper, with a carry-over into a trashy biography of his professional idol and political hero, Harry Wood. Budenz was a servant of the Communist conspiracy until a few months before he embraced the Catholic faith in the last year of his life. Kramer presumes to publish abusive biographies of anti-Communist citizens whom he never has met, loaded with hearsay from Communists and fellow-travelers whom they have exposed. In his final year Budenz wrote that he had tried to get his son on a job on the New York Times. Budenz, the reformed Communist now a doughy fighter against the treason, states that the only reason why he never took oath that Budenz was a member of the Communist Party is that nobody ever put the question to him in view of his appearances as a witness under oath.

Budenz says further that, in the party, it made no difference whether Budenz joined or not because he did all he could to promote the best interests of the United States and Soviet Russia when he formally agreed at a meeting to deliver control of his American Newspaper Guild to agents of the party. Maurice Malkin, another apostate Red who also has given valuable testimony against the United States and Soviet Russia when he formally agreed at a meeting to deliver control of his American Newspaper Guild to agents of the party. Maurice Malkin, another apostate Red who also has given valuable testimony against the United States and Soviet Russia when he formally agreed at a meeting to deliver control of his American Newspaper Guild to agents of the party.

Madeline Karr's husband, David Karr, served as Drew Pearson's "leg-man" at the State Department during the period when, as A. A. Berle testified, a great deal of highly secret material was "leaking" to Pearson. To stop this lead, Berle began to lock up the stuff classified as "magic."

Karr and his wife both worked for the Communist Daily Worker in New York and the woman later turned up in the White House with an official reporter's card issued by a New York weekly paper published in the Greek language which followed the political line of the E. A. Berris, or Greek Communist Party. At the time of the post-war Communist revolution for the purpose of delivering Greece to the Soviet empire, this woman went to Greece ostensibly as the official correspondent of this paper, known as the National Herald. But, after a change of management and politics, the new editor, by name B. J. Markatos, discovered that the books showed an expense allowance of only $200 to this woman for a journey to Greece lasting three months. She filed only two articles from Athens. Pearson was openly friendly with the old management.

Mr. Markatos said in July, 1949, that he had canned Mrs. Karr, "because she was more left than I liked and her husband was with Drew Pearson." Markatos notified the White House that she no longer represented the National Herald and Gen. Harry Vaughan arranged that her White House pass should be taken up and that she should be kept out. She was on the payroll for $50 a week with a paper of 8,000 weekly circulation which lost $26,718 in its last year under Communist control. She was the Herald's only accredited White House reporter in its 35 years. Markatos ridiculed the idea that the Herald had a legitimate need for a White House correspondent. During this time, Markatos also had access to the State Department.

Karr is still associated with Pearson. Soon after Karr had landed a "public relations" account with a bombastic New York millionaire, Pearson published a "play" for world progress and peace attributed to this aspirant for the title of elder statesman. His formula was to raise wages a great deal and raise prices somewhat less, Miss McManus, of Henry Holt and Co., frankly admits that Karr has chosen some of the reviewers to whom the impending book on child delinquency was sent for review.

REMAINERS: If there is one way for a commentator on the human scene to feel anything except triumph it is when lives are involved. . . . Because it fascinated me and, so far, had been unexplained by either police or psychiatrists. I printed that the last two weeks in August were the period in which suicide by jumping reached such a peak that the cases exceeded those occurring in the preceding 50 weeks of a year put together. . . . I had the information from a high-ranking police officer and a starkly ethical psychiatrist. . . . What has happened since the day that item was printed: 27 deaths by jumping in and around New York, including one of the most popular hotel executives in town and a highly respected and successful lawyer. . . . I feel only sadness that my information was so accurately, correct and so senseless. . . . I have made public a guarded and pathetic secret.

Find The Right Seat Covers Today At Hall & Pinson's

You can find the right seat cover — in size, color and design — for your car at Hall & Pinson, "Seat Cover Headquarters," 700 W. Foster, telephone 255.

And the right seat cover can add miles of extra wear in addition to beauty, to the interior of your car.

Hall & Pinson maintains the largest stock of seat covers in the entire Panhandle, and one of the 10 largest stocks in the State of Texas.

When a motorist drives up we can show him a variety of styles, covers and designs of seat covers for his car, Leymond Hall, owner, said.

Hall & Pinson adds another feature to its seat cover business; a guaranteed fit. It takes skill and experience to fit seat covers correctly. Hall said, "We insist on a good fit. If the covers are not fitted properly, motorists do not get all the wear they are buying."

Hall & Pinson's giant stock of seat covers gives motorists a good selection from which to choose the right style, design and color for their type and model of automobile.

The seat cover business requires a large stock in order to offer motorists.

He explained the need for the large stock:

"We need various colors, designs and sizes to fit not only every car on the market, but need them to fit every model of every car. It wouldn't do to show a Chevrolet owner a set of seat covers made to fit a Ford, or to show a sedan owner a set of covers made for a coupe. To give the owner of any car a good selection of seat covers we must show him a variety of covers made for his make and model of car."

Hall & Pinson, he said, carries seat covers in a wide variety of color, design and price range.

"The need to carry a large stock of seat covers is one of the great differences between the seat cover business and other types," Hall pointed out. "A dealer can offer a variety of other stock, and still carry only a small stock."

"In tires, for example, we can give motorists just about any size and type of Kelly Springfield Tire. And we don't have a large number of tires in stock."

"The reason we can do that is this: a small number of tire sizes fits every make and model of automobile. We don't need a large number of tires to give every motorists a good selection."

"That holds true also for other auto accessories. We carry them. We stock a good selection of each item — and all of them fit every make and model of car."

"In seat covers, of course, we must — and we do — stock a selection for the various models of the makes of cars."

Hall works directly with his assistant, Walter Woolley, to fit every set of seat covers he sells.

"Here we do not feel the work is completed when some one picks out his seat covers. We fit them right before we let the covers leave our shop."

Hall & Pinson also provides all the features of a service station: lubrication, Mobil gasoline and oil, tire service, washing and polishing.

It will soon be time for motorists to prepare their cars for winter driving, Hall observed. Here we offer him conscientious work and top quality products. Every owner puts a great investment in his car, and is interested in keeping it in good shape — in top running order.

Other lines Hall & Pinson carries include Mercury outboard motors for boats, the Cris-Craft boat kit, the Bowman boat, marine paint, evaporative air coolers — sales and service, and Kelly Springfield automobile tires, fishing and hunting needs — rods, reels, lures, books, rifles, shotguns and ammunition.

Patrons of all Hall & Pinson lines know the firm's attitude: "We treat each person who comes in here as a friend we want to please. We try to please him by being courteous, by doing the 'extras' busy people must let go and by the excellence of the work we do," Hall said.

Researcher Sees Real Need For Real Estate Competition

By NEIL MAC NEIL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 —UP—The research director of the National Association of Home Builders predicted Saturday there will be little progress in design of American housing developments unless real estate "competition" increases.

Leonard Haeger, a registered architect himself, said however the NABH will continue to try to encourage good design in houses built by the association's 26,000 members.

For Haeger good design means not only aesthetic beauty but an efficient and practical structure that helps foster "happy family life."

Conscious of Good Design

He said over the past few years the American people have become more conscious of good design in homes they buy through the "tremendous impact" of fashion and housing magazines. By illustrating good housing design these magazines have had a "subconscious effect" on the American mind, he said.

Motivator pictures and even beer and auto ads that use good modern houses for backgrounds have further increased this awareness of good design on Americans, he said.

"All these are influencing the guy who is going out to buy a house and making a choice between the bad and the good," Haeger said.

Economic Cost Is Factor

Another strong influence has been the "merit awards" offered by the NABH, other groups and magazines for good designs in housing. A "smart builder," Haeger said, knows the value to his business of winning such awards and will try his best to win one.

But working against these influences, he said, is the heavy pressure of economic cost. Many builders prefer to "save" the architect's fees and turn out standardtube with the anti-glare Optic Filter.

That development provides for the ultimate in restful viewing — greater ease and comfort for your eyes.

Another Admiral feature, the long distance Cascade Chassis gives clear reception on the farthest fringe as well as "close in."

When he came to Pampa 27 years ago, Mr. Hawkins operated a combination barber-and-radio shop. "People used to bring their radios to the barber," he said. For two years he operated his shop at downtown Pampa locations, and for the past 25 years he has been at his present site, 917 S. Barnes.

Mr. Hawkins was listed as a pioneer in radio in the Texas Encyclopedia. On his laboratory window he has the first microphone used by Station KGRS (Now KGNK) of Amarillo.

Now, he said, radio is a small part of the business (His shop was enlarged five times). He has the exclusive dealership in Admiral Television and radio sets and refrigerators.

His shop features television sales, service and installation, two-way radio service (car to station and station to car) in addition to the radio and refrigeration business.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Hawkins now do the parts work in the laboratory. William F. Jr., a top armed forces radar man in World War II, works on the two-way radio service. Other sons who work with their parents are Ronald E. (Red), TV technician; Leaton Dale, a general technician; Carl Sivis, general technician, also works with Hawkins.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Guide Your Partner With Principles

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

When you double a contract of three no-trump you are usually guiding your partner to the best opening lead. The opening leader observes the following principles:

1. If the defenders have bid a suit, the double calls for a lead in that suit.
2. If each defender has bid a suit, the double requests a lead in the double's suit.
3. If neither defender has bid a suit, the double asks for a lead in the first suit bid by the dummy.

In today's hands dummy's first (and only) suit was spades. Hence the double asked for a spade lead. The double is quite sure that a spade lead would defeat the contract, but he could feel confident that it would give the defenders their best chance.

West properly and obediently opened a spade, and East was able to win the trick with the ten when the eight was played from the dummy. East naturally returned a diamond, South finessed the queen, and West won with the king.

West now returned another spade, giving East another finesse; and East returned another diamond, giving West a second finesse. By this process the defenders were

Dr. Judd Speaker At Knife And Fork

A former medical missionary in China and a present congressman from Minnesota will tell several hundred Pampans Wednesday night about "Our Foreign Policy — toward War or Peace."

Dr. Walter H. Judd will be the first speaker for this group of Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club sessions, according to Fred Thompson, club president.

Though he is a Republican congressman from Minnesota, Thompson pointed out, Dr. Judd is as welcome in the Deep South as he is in Minnesota. "This is because he has no personal or political axes to grind but he speaks frankly and courageously on the issues of the day and says what he has to say without fear or favor."

One of the first to believe that American salvation lay in intelligent and unselfish cooperation with other allied powers, Thompson continues, Dr. Judd "long favored armed intervention against the Japanese and later against Germany, as he believed, and still believes, that it is impossible for us to live in peace in 'splendid isolationism.'"
