Paris Peace Talks Resume Today

Congress Talks Tough On War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is talking tough about ending the war. The weeks ahead will tell whether Senate and House are prepared to match the words with action if President Nixon does not gain a settlement.

That is what Democrats on both sides of the Capitol are talking about now, in the opening days of the 93rd Congress.

During its 1972 election-year session, the Senate twice approved, once rejected, amendments to cut off Vietnam appropriations. The House voted down such legislation.

Earlier, the Senate three times had adopted measures to set deadlines for U.S. withdrawal, contingent on the release of American prisoners. Those failed in the House.

The one amendment on which Congress did agree was attached to a weapons-procurement bill in 1971 and sent to Nixon. It was a compromise which asked Nixon to set a final withdrawal date as soon as possible, again, subject to prisoner release. The President signed the bill but said the Vietnam-policy rider was not going to affect his position. He said it was "without binding force and effect."

An appropriations cutoff would be a different matter. Although the Pentagon once suggested that money already voted and committed would be enough to keep Vietnam operations going for a time.

House Democrats have adopted a resolution calling for an end to U.S. spending on the Indochina war, subject to arrangements for safe withdrawal of American troops and release of POWs.

That action came in party caucus and has no binding effect, although the 154-75 vote signals roughly the lineup on the majority side of the aisle when and if legislation on that issue comes to a vote.

Democrats in the Senate are discussing a similar resolution.

Delegates Clash Over Agreement

PARIS (AP) — The semi-public Vietnam peace talks resumed today with a sharp clash between the Communists and the South Vietnamese over the peace agreement Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho drafted in October.

Hanoi called for the United States to sign the agreement "promptly," but Saigon denounced the draft as a "disguised victory" for North Vietnam.

Saigon's representative renewed its demand that Hanoi recognize the existence of two sovereign states in Vietnam. Dinh Ba Thi of the Viet Cong said this was "utterly absurd" and a "U.S. maneuver to deny the fact that there now exists in South Vietnam two administrations, two armies and three political forces."

The chief U.S. delegate, Ambassador William J. Porter, called on the negotiators to lay aside the bitterness that has marked past sessions and turn toward reconciliation in what he called the concluding phase of the war.

Deputy negotiator Nguyen Minh Vy of North Vietnam issued a sharp rebuff at the end of the session, telling newsmen:

"While B52s continue carpet bombing on the territory of our country, provoking mourning and devastation, today at this conference the American delegate tells us this is not the moment for peace—but is the moment to heal the wounds."

"We told the American delegate that if the United States wants to close the gap between its acts and its words, it must renounce its aggressive aims and acts of war and immediately proceed to sign without delay the agreement to which it has given its consent."

Saigon Ambassador Pham Dang Lam told the 172nd session of the semipublic Paris peace talks: "Unless they admit that their design is to achieve the reunification of Vietnam their way and to place the whole of Vietnam under their domination, the Hanoi authorities cannot fail to acknowledge that there are two distinct states of Vietnam."

He said both are "internationally recognized, each having its own political regime and exercising its sovereignty on its own territory, as in the cases of the two Germanys and the two Koreas."

The four-party talks resumed today after a two-week suspension. Their renewal was a preliminary to the resumption Monday of peace negotiations.

between U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of the North Vietnamese Politburo.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter told the meeting the new year should mark "the concluding phase of this protracted conflict" in Vietnam but added he did not "underestimate the problems which exist and which will face us still for some time."

Porter said the past four years of negotiations had been "largely sterile exchanges which only developed last October into a phase which can today be described as a serious negotiating process."

Today's session was expected to be Porter's last appearance as head of the U.S. delegation before he leaves for Washington to become undersecretary of state for political affairs.

Porter said the negotiators now have to start anew, "having learned lessons from this painful history and apply those lessons both to the concluding phase of these negotiations for a settlement in Vietnam and to the new stage of regional relationships which can now develop."

He said this will require "continuing work, patience and a large measure of understanding for continued differences of view and continued suspicions which cannot overnight disappear."

Suspect's Wife Says He Killed

HOUSTON (AP) — The wife of a 24-year-old man charged with murdering a Roman Catholic priest has said her husband told her he killed a man and set his house afire, sheriff's deputies said.

The body of Rev. C. Laumer Schoppe, 41, pastor of St. Andrew Catholic Church, was discovered in the burned ruins of his parsonage Monday night.

Alvin George Young, an unemployed laborer, was charged with murder in the death of the priest.

Sheriff's deputies said Barbara Earlene Young, also 24, told them her husband came home Monday night very upset and told her he had killed a man.

Mrs. Young said in her statement that her husband told her he entered the priest's house and saw him coming to the door. According to the statement, Young left the house, went home and changed clothes and returned.

The statement said her husband intended to pretend his brother had broken into Schoppe's home and wanted to square the incident.

Mrs. Young said her husband told her the priest then left the room, returned with a pistol and told Young he knew that he was the man who broke into his home.

According to the statement, the priest told Young he was not going to break into any more homes because he was going to call the police.

"My husband told me that he shot the man three times," Mrs. Young said in the statement. She said her husband then told her he set the house afire.

More Planes Lost

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command today announced the loss of another B52 heavy bomber and another F111 fighter-bomber in the air war against North Vietnam.

It also reported that the recent air blitz on Hanoi and Hai Phong pushed the total number of Americans killed, missing or captured during the last two weeks of 1972 to 109, the greatest number of American war casualties in two years.

The South Vietnamese Command reported 116 enemy attacks across the country during the past 24 hours, including 82 rocket and mortar attacks. It was the highest 24-hour total in two months; but most, apparently, were small. First reports from the Saigon command said four civilians were killed and 43 wounded, no American casualties were reported.

The U.S. Command said the B52 crashed today after being hit during a mission over the southern panhandle of North Vietnam. All six crewmen parachuted into the Tonkin Gulf and were rescued. It was the 16th of the eight jet Stratofortresses to be shot down since Dec. 18, when President Nixon shifted most of the B52 force to the attack on North Vietnam.

Pampa Bank Deposits Show Healthy Growth

DURING PAST YEAR

By TEX DEWEESÉ
Bank deposits in Pampa today showed the city's economic outlook in excellent shape with healthy increases reported by both Citizens Bank & Trust Co. and First National Bank.

Total bank deposits as of Dec. 31, 1972, were $53,343,000. That's an increase of $4,494,000 over total deposits in the two banks of $48,849,000 on Dec. 31, 1971. Both banks indicated deposits on the first two banking days of 1973 had increased the total on deposit approximately $3,500,000 more.

Reason for this was given as the year-end round up of Christmas sales, completion of business accounts and closing books after Dec. 31.

This would mean that deposits in Pampa's two banks today were up approximately $8,000,000 over the Dec. 31, 1971 figure.

Officials at Security Federal Savings & Loan Co. said today they had not completed closing books for 1972 and figures on deposits and loans would not be available until tomorrow.

Security Federal has its main offices in Pampa and a branch in Amarillo.

Loans at the First National Bank here as of Dec. 31 totaled $12,527,994, an increase of $339,577 over the $12,188,417 total Dec. 31 a year ago.

Citizens Bank & Trust Co. loans Dec. 31, 1972, totaled $11,800,000 compared with $8,600,000 on the same date in 1971. An increase of $3,200,000.

The Pampa bank figures were released today after the comptroller of currency in Washington issued a call this morning for a report on conditions of all national banks as of the close of business, Dec. 31, 1972.

Similar calls were issued by the Federal Reserve Board for its member banks and by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. for insured state banks which are not members of the federal reserve system.

Bankers attributed the deposit increases to stepped up cattle and agri-business along with increased merchandising operations.

Speaking well for Pampa's economy, banks here have been showing continued healthy increases in deposits through the years.

Icy Blasts Head Into Area Again

Pampans braced for another icy blast as winter swung another mean punch at the state in general and the Texas Panhandle in particular, pushing freezing drizzle into the north part of the Panhandle during last night.

Following an expected high today of 30, temperatures will drop to about 18 tonight in Pampa with a high Friday of 25. Friday should dawn cloudy and cold with freezing drizzle possible sometime during the day and snow "for sure" by nightfall.

With northerly winds prevailing 10-20 miles per hour, there is a 30 per cent chance Pampa will begin to experience the freezing rain this evening. The chance will rise to 60 per cent during the night and 80 per cent for Friday, when it is expected to turn to snow.

Sunshine warmed much of the state Wednesday before the fresh onslaught of cold, sending afternoon temperatures into the 60s at many points. The top marks ranged from 69 at Alice in South Texas down to 43 at Amarillo in the Panhandle.

More light snow or rain was promised over most of West Texas tonight and Friday, and prospects were seen for occasional showers or drizzle in other sections.

Official forecasts held out chances Wednesday night for some of the snow to spread into North Central Texas but their predictions today made no mention of snowfall in that area.

Travel warnings were out for icy roads in the Texas Panhandle and for near-zero visibility because of early morning fog in several counties around Victoria near the coast. Temperatures near dawn dropped to 20 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle, where it also was foggy; 21 at Amarillo, 25 at El Paso, 26 at Lubbock, 27 at Childress, 28 at Abilene; 29 at Wichita Falls, 30 at Midland and 32 at Wink. Readings at other points stood in the higher 30s to low 50s except for a 62 at Brownsville.

Bitter winter weather, plagued the intermountain region, the Midwest and New England today, cutting off electric power and closing schools and highways.

A new snowstorm churned across the intermountain region, where travel advisories were posted.

County Representatives Study Revenue Sharing

Gray County Judge Don Cain, County Auditor R.C. Wilson and county commissioners Mary Dwyer and Joe Clarke were among the 100 city and county officials gathered for a revenue seminar in Amarillo yesterday.

The regional workshop on revenue sharing—expenditures and accountability—was jointly sponsored by the Texas Department of Community Affairs and the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

Those attending learned that federal revenue sharing money may be used for almost any program except education, welfare and matching funds.

"We learned how to classify funds and how to conduct accounting procedures acceptable to the U.S. Treasury Department," Judge Cain said.

"We also learned that revenue sharing monies may be used to reduce taxes, but this could be a vicious circle since the amount of money a political entity receives is based on the amount of taxes it raises."

Chief speaker for the workshop was Jay Stern of the Office of Revenue Sharing Assistance, Austin.

The seminar was one of 15 planned across the state.

Local Cattle Theft Noted

George Ingram, 1812 Lynn St., reported the loss of two yearling calves to the Gray County Sheriff's Department yesterday.

They are missing from Ingram's ranch near Hoover. He said they were suckling calves but also on cake.

Ingram told Sheriff's officers that he missed the first animal during the ice storm and the second Dec. 28. The delay in reporting the theft was laid to the fact that he thought they may have been lost or strayed in the bad weather.

Sheriff's deputies are investigating.

Congressmen Protest Program Cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rural representatives on Capitol Hill say the Nixon administration's cuts in popular and long-standing programs of federal aid to agriculture are a challenge to the power of Congress.

Calling House colleagues to a strategy session today, nine Democrats and five Republicans said the Agriculture Department's decision to terminate some farm programs "is not a matter solely of agricultural concern, or of partisan concern—it concerns all members of Congress."

Administration budget-cutting recently ended two conservation programs for which Congress had specified more than $200 million a year. Other actions call for phaseout of emergency farm loans by the Farmers Home Administration, plus a halt to low-cost direct loans by the Rural Electrification Administration.

"We feel that the termination of these programs can have disastrous consequences in agriculture and, beyond that, that the department's unilateral action is a challenge to the authority of Congress," the 14 congressmen said.

They made the statements in a note urging fellow congressmen to attend a bipartisan caucus arranged by Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., head of a House Democratic task force on agriculture.

Melcher told reporters Wednesday that the administration's actions have prompted "the most crucial, critical confrontation between the legislative and executive branches of government."

Instead of just "impounding funds," Melcher said, the President has in effect repealed longstanding laws without consulting or gaining approval of Congress.

Meanwhile, Senate Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., told newsmen Wednesday that he intends to hold thorough hearings "at the earliest possible time" to examine the cutbacks "so that the members of this body, and the people affected, can have a voice in deciding what is good and what is bad for rural America."

Talmadge said he thinks the President's Office of Management and Budget, in a bid to hold federal spending to $250 billion a year, regards the farm population as "so impotent politically" that it is a good subject for cuts.

WINTER REMAINS—Visible signs that winter is still around can be seen everywhere. Ice on the sidewalks, snow on automobiles, people wearing warm clothes are just a few of the signs. For the farmer, sometimes the snow is quite a hindrance, as shown in this picture of a field south of the city. The cold weather of the past couple of months, with more expected this weekend, has caused problems for many farmers in the area. (Photo by John Ebling)

Corona's Defense Calls No Witnesses

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A surprise defense maneuver has abruptly launched the mass murder trial of Juan Corona into its final stages after nearly four months of prosecution testimony.

Defense lawyer Richard Hawk rested his case Wednesday without calling a single witness, a move which Sutter County Dist. Atty. G. Dave Teja said was "slightly surprising" to him.

Corona is charged with the murder of 25 itinerant farm laborers whose hacked bodies were found in makeshift orchard graves in May and June of 1971 along the Feather River north of Yuba City.

He was arrested at his home May 26, 1971, a few hours after deputies unearthed the first 10 bodies. Court testimony said a ledger containing 34 entries, including the names of seven of the 25 murder victims, was found at Corona's home when he was arrested.

Teja was granted a delay until next Monday for presentation of his closing arguments.

Hawk said after court that he didn't need any defense witnesses because "there were no strong points" to rebut in the 14-week presentation by prosecutors.

He said there was no reason for him to call defense witnesses "any more than a doctor has to give antibiotics to someone who isn't sick. They (the prosecution) didn't make a prima facie case."

A total of 117 witnesses and nearly 300 pieces of evidence were presented by the prosecution in a massive array of circumstantial evidence against Corona, a 39-year-old farm labor contractor.

Moments after Teja rested his complex 10-page case, Hawk asked for a directed verdict of innocent from Superior Court Judge Richard E. Patton.

Patton denied the motion after brief arguments and Hawk then told the court, "The defense rests."

Corona sat impassively at Hawk's side throughout the proceedings, sometimes thumbing through a copy of "Robinson Crusoe" which he brought with him to the courtroom.

The trial started Sept. 11.

Dealy Kidnapers Fail To Post Bond

DALLAS (AP)—The two men charged with kidnaping a Dallas socialite remained jailed today in lieu of bonds of $100,000 each after being bound over to a grand jury.

At his examining trial Wednesday the accused men's lawyer requested that the bond be set at $10,000 apiece, saying his clients couldn't make the bond. Justice of the Peace Robert E. Cole refused the request to lower bond for Franklin Joseph Ransonette, 33 and Woodrow Holmes Ransonette, 31.

The Ransonette brothers are charged with the Dec. 19 kidnaping of Amanda Dealey, 22, wife of Joseph M. Dealey Jr., a member of the Dallas Morning News publishing family.

She was abducted from the car park outside her home in University Park about 5 p.m. and was released about 6 a.m. Dec. 22 after $250,000 had been paid in ransom. The ransom money was recovered.

FBI special agent Charles T. Brown Jr. posed as a friend of the Dealey family and actually made the money drop. He took over reception of the telephone calls from the kidnapers after the initial call had been made to Joe M. Dealey Sr., at Dealey's home.

Brown said he was directed to take the bag of money to a telephone booth at a grocery store, where he would get further instructions to take the money.

"I was warned that if there were any tricks or funny business, I would have a 'scope rifle at my head at all times and I'd get it," said the FBI agent.

After the last of four or five more calls, Brown testified that he was to go to Park Lane, in North Dallas and deposit the money near a light post.

Brown said it was past 3 a.m. when he got back to the Dealey residence. He said it was about 5:25 a.m. when he received a call saying where Mrs. Dealey could be found.

After picking up Mrs. Dealey, Brown testified he later went with a sheriff's deputy to an apartment in Garland where he said he saw the orange money bag.

Brown said he saw the money, part of it in a light tan suitcase, when he returned to the apartment a second time. Part of the money was in a black typewriter case in an open

A stipulated testimony was read from Mrs. Dealey, who was reportedly out of the state. No members of the Dealey family attended the examining trial.

Judge Places Young Rapists On Probation
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—As required by state law, two boys have been placed on probation instead of in jail for beating, raping, robbing and burning an 84-year-old widow in a housing project last November.

The defendants, 11-year-old Victor Arce and 10-year-old Ronald Irby, pleaded guilty and were put on probation Tuesday by Common Pleas Court Judge Vito N. Pisciotta.

"In the case of a youth under 12 years old, the state can't commit him unless he has a contact with the authorities," said Lewis P. Mitrano of the district attorney's office.

"Neither Victor Arce nor Ronald Irby had any prior record."

The youths and two other boys arrested in the incident, including Arce's 12-year-old brother Thomas, lived in the same project as the victim.

The youths had been charged with burglary, robbery, rape, assault with intent to ravish, vandalism, aggravated assault and battery, damage to private property and indecent assault.

Police said the woman let the boys into her apartment after they told her they would do her shopping for her.

During the next four days, police said, the boys took $200 of the widow's money, sprayed graffiti on the walls, wrecked the apartment, raped her, cut her hair and burned her breast and stomach with matches and a heated steel comb.

The woman finally was rescued when a social worker made a routine visit.

The victim told police she was too terrified to seek help, even when the boys left her apartment periodically, because they threatened to kill her if she told anyone of the attacks.

Voters To Elect Director

Voters of the director's Precinct 4, Panhandle Ground Water Conservation District, south of the Canadian River in Texas, will go to the polls Jan. 9 to elect one director for a term of two years.

Precinct 4 is comprised of the western portion of Gray County, beginning two miles east of Pampa and extending to the Gray-Carson County lines on the west.

Fred S. Vanderburg is a candidate for reelection to the board of directors of the district. He is unopposed for the director's post.

Two polling places will be available, one at the Court House Annex on the east side of Pampa and the other at Grandview School.

Anyone holding a valid voters registration certificate and living within the precinct is eligible to vote. Election officials will have a map to assist voters who are in doubt as to their residence.

A map has also been posted at the Gray County Court House in Pampa.

Automobile Makers Generally Happy With Record Year

By CHARLIE C. CAIN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — New car buyers bought U.S.-built and foreign cars at a record pace in 1972, with indications the final tally would exceed 10.5 million vehicles — a new sales mark, and 300,000 above the record set last year.

The cars were changed little in appearance as the car builders — both foreign and domestic — had to spend much of their new model money meeting federal safety and emissions requirements rather than make drastic styling revisions.

The presence of the federal government was felt in practically every facet of the auto business in Detroit, from prices to safety items.

Auto buyers got some tax relief, as the 7 per cent federal excise tax on new cars was eliminated in December 1971 and the comparable tax on imports was chopped down, too.

When the auto firms brought their 1973 models to the market place, they did not carry immediately the fairly large price hikes which have become part of new model operations in recent years.

Instead, the auto firms had to go before the federal Price Commission and present their reasons why any price hikes should be granted. All four U.S. companies agreed they needed to be given price relief for safety and emissions items added to the cars — particularly energy-absorbing bumper systems — in line with federal directives.

Ford, for example, asked for a 2.78 per cent price increase and got 1.9 per cent, or 96¢ per car, from the Price Commission ruling.

Demand for new cars remained high through the year, with sales totals through the first 11 months adding up to 10,039,625 cars. Of these, 8.6 million were domestic products; about 1.4 million were imports.

Volkswagen, the German-built compact, remained the big seller in the import field for 72 although its sales total slipped somewhat in the face of tough competition from the Japanese-built Toyota, Datsun and Mazda lines.

Mazda was the first equipped with a Wankel rotary engine to sell in any volume on the U.S. market, taking over 15,000 orders.

Wankel remained the big word in auto industry research as General Motors gave indications it would have some Wankel-powered cars by 1975. Other auto companies also did work on the possibilities of the engine, which operates on a rotary basis rather than on a reciprocating piston basis.

While U.S. car makers sold vehicles at a record rate, their production for the year did not reach a record, mainly because of a series of short strikes aimed mainly at General Motors plants.

One estimate was that GM lost over 300,000 cars from planned production schedules, with Ford and Chrysler having lesser labor problems and smaller production losses.

Estimates in early December were that the U.S. output would wind up at about 8,750,000 cars — third-highest total in auto industry history as it ran behind 1969's 8.8 million and the record year of 1965, 9.3 million.

The United Auto Workers and the auto firms disagreed over causes of the walkouts. The UAW blamed them on assembly line speedups and work force reductions.

GM Board Chairman Richard C. Gersonberg countered that GM's 400,000 hourly paid workers average $12,466 a year before taxes. He said he was concerned about the future trends of labor costs and what they could mean to new car prices.

Auto industry leaders were unhappy about the number of trips they had made to Washington to talk with federal officials about a wide range of auto problems, ranging from prices to safety. But there seemed to be more acceptance of the government's role.

"I think there is a great deal of understanding on the part of people down there," said Thomas A. Murphy, a GM vice president. He added there appeared to be a growing realization on the part of Washington officials that all things could not be done virtually on demand by the government.

A decision late in the year by the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati sidelined one of the auto industry's biggest immediate problems — what to do to meet a federal safety standard requiring installation of airbag-type safety devices by Aug. 15, 1976.

But the industry still was under government orders to come up with a cleaner engine by 1975 model time, and that caused some burning of midnight oil at auto industry laboratories where experimental work has to be carried out two to three years before a car reaches the public.

The big question in the entire auto industry picture was how well sales were going, and the answer was "real good."

With Or Without War, Southeast Asia Faces Uncertainty

By LYNN C. NEWLAND
 Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — With or without peace in Vietnam, Southeast Asia faces the new year with more uncertainty than at any time since the nine nations entered the modern world at the end of World War II.

Singapore is an exception. The small island republic at the top of the Malayan Peninsula seems assured of a prosperous new year.

Indonesia, the most populous nation of Southeast Asia, still is reeling from famine in many areas due to drought.

The Philippines, once a showcase of Western-style democracy in the region, now lives under martial law. President Ferdinand E. Marcos has cited the threat of a Maoist-oriented movement called the New People's Army.

Malaysia and Thailand also face growing Communist guerrilla movements.

The Nixon Doctrine—calling for nations to contribute much more materially to their own defense—has raised doubts in foreign ministries from Jakarta to Saigon.

A Thai official commented last week: "The Nixon Doctrine means that we'll have to start looking out for ourselves more, although I don't think the United States is going to pull out altogether." The rapprochement between the United States and the People's Republic of China has rattled many leaders.

With the exception of South Vietnam, plans are under way in the other Southeast Asian capitals to open the door to China, diplomatically and economically.

Another uncertain factor, largely economic, is Japan's growing interest in the region. In Thailand, students have demonstrated against what they considered Japan's economic stranglehold on their nation. Indonesians, too, have voiced caution in dealing with the Japanese, who often are viewed as exploiters of natural resources, leaving nothing behind for the local economy.

A Western diplomat in Jakarta explained the apparent paranoia about Japan among Southeast Asian leaders this way:

"All of these nations have been ruled for years by someone other than themselves, and most of them were occupied by Japanese troops during the war. So when the Japanese come here with their radios, television sets and motorbikes, they look upon it as another invasion, another occupation. It's quite natural."

Singapore, which many people consider too antiseptic under often heavy-handed but efficient rule, faces no major problems. The biggest concern in Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew's government is a growing acceptance of Western-style permissiveness.

Dr. Goh Keng Swee, the nation's defense minister, said in a recent speech that if "brainless" young Singaporeans continued to imitate Western life styles the island would become "a nation of Westernized Oriental gentlemen, namely wogs."

"A wog society has no survival value in Southeast Asia today," the highly educated and tough defense minister said.

In Vietnam, it's war not wogs, and the outcome of that war will determine the survival of South Vietnam and have a profound effect on the entire region, particularly Thailand and the other Indochinese states, Laos and Cambodia.

There is a feeling that a peace settlement will come in 1973 despite the recent breakdown in the Paris talks and the resumed full-scale U.S. attacks on North Vietnam. If and when it does come, it ironically could open an entirely new field of problems in Vietnam, particularly economic ones.

Japan, in an obvious effort to improve its image as a giver and not always the taker, has promised economic aid when peace is reached in Indochina.

Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira has said his country will help in rebuilding Indochina, including North Vietnam. Shiro Inoue, president of the Asian Development Bank, said the Manila-based institution would like to play "an important role" in the reconstruction of South Vietnam and possibly the North which, unlike the South, is not an ADB member.

When President Marcos declared martial law in the Philippines Sept. 22, he brought his nation into line with the other eight Southeast Asian countries. Filipinos will vote in 1973 to accept or reject a new constitution to change the nation's political system from presidential to parliamentary. Marcos says approval of the draft will endorse his revolution to "reform society and democratize wealth and property."

Thailand faces the new year with a new government—of sorts. In December, Premier Field Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn named a 28-member Cabinet, with himself heading the ministries of defense and foreign affairs.

It boiled down to a paper change at best. All the key men in the National Executive Council, which has governed Thailand for the past year, are in the new Cabinet.

Change names?
I'll second that

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I named our son John Allen Jones II after my husband. We used "the second" because we didn't want to call the baby "Junior." We were later told that "the second" should not be used when a boy is named after his father. It is used only when a boy is named after another relative bearing the same name. We know several people who have used "the second" when naming a son after his father. Have all these people made a mistake or has the rule changed?

In this state (Tennessee) we have one year in which to make a change in a name without any difficulties. Please tell us whether we should change "the second" to "Junior."

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: Change your son's name from "the second" to "Junior." A child bearing the same name as his father is Junior. If a child bears his grandfather's name, which is different from his father's name, he is "the second." If grandfather, son and grandson all have the same name, the father of course is "Junior" and the grandson is "the third."

The use of "the second" indicates that the bearer of the name is a cousin, nephew, or grandson of the original holder of it.

DEAR ABBY: We are two girls who are having a big argument. She's 17 and I'm 18. She's a virgin and I'm not, and she says a guy can tell whether a girl is a virgin or not by the way she walks.

I say a girl doesn't walk any differently after she's gone all the way with a guy than she did before. We'll be looking for your answer.

WAITING IN COLORADO

DEAR WAITING: You can't tell if a girl is a virgin by the way she walks. But you can sometimes tell by the way she talks.

DEAR ABBY: The other day I was with a young friend who told me (with no shame whatsoever) that she was using her husband's telephone credit card given to him by his firm to be used for business calls only. She bragged that she made long distance telephone calls to her parents and friends all over the United States and thinks nothing of it. And she said her husband said it was okay.

This young woman has four children and she would be furious if one of her children "stole" anything. Yet that is exactly what she is doing. I can't understand some parents. No wonder their children don't respect them.

I am sure her husband would lose his job if his firm ever caught on. Or do all businessmen expect a certain amount of cheating?

NO NAME, NATURALLY

DEAR NO NAME: I'm sure they don't. Your friend is not only dishonest, she's stupid. Somebody should tell her husband to wise up, get his credit card back and go straight. Companies check up on that sort of thing.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WORRIED IN CEDAR RAPIDS: My doctor said: "Tell the 48-year-old lady with the 32-year-old husband to keep her guard up. She is not beyond the age of child-bearing."

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 6700, L. A., CALIF. 90060 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Furs, Short-To-Long Story

For unsurpassed evening glamor, floor-length chinchilla cape in natural beige was designed by Jerry Sorbara (left). A show-stopper for that very special occasion. The lynx-dyed fox coat (right) gives to a sporty look both flair and elegance. (Both designs from the Ben Kahn collection.)

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—If anyone knows what the newest fur trends are it's Ben Kahn, admittedly the king of furs.

"The newest furs," said Ernest Graf, president, "are the short jackets—chubbies, battle-jackets, ski jackets and evening shorties. Also the floor-length cape or coat."

One cape in the collection is a down-to-the-floor number in beige chinchilla that is breathtaking.

"Furs good for sportswear this time around," said Graf, "are lynx-dyed fox, South American Zorina, racoon and white swakara."

These and many others are in the handsome, Ben Kahn recent collection. And there were men's coats that tickled the fashion interest of both Walt and Joe Frazier. It is a smashing array of fur fashions.

The greatest football player in the world can't run for a touchdown if he finds himself flat on his back with a couple of linemen on top of him. Similarly, it doesn't matter how brilliant you are at dummy play if you are set before you gain the lead.

The South hand almost cries out for a two-no-trump response to partner's diamond opening. The hand looks like one for no-trump play.

If you do play no-trump, a heart or club lead will be right up to an ace-queen combination. Your only four-card suit is clubs and no one really wants to play a balanced hand at a club contract.

All that is specious reasoning. You don't want to play in no-trump against a spade opening and opponents tend to lead their best suit, not yours.

When we watched this hand played in a rubber bridge game, South didn't think about the spade danger. He responded two no-trump. North raised to three and the defense started with five spade tricks.

FRIDAY, JAN. 5

Your birthday today: Progress comes readily, according to the wisdom of your choice of activity and the efficiency of your efforts. Today's natives tend to place a great deal of importance on having a good appearance.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Use your tact to control and make use of today's tendency to scatter energies, get into all sorts of unplanned experimentation.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Wind up your work week in as neat and tidy a package as you can, with a strict line between what's past and what is yet to come.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Indulge that urge to explore theories, philosophic explanations for things you aren't sure about. Travel is favored this weekend.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Busy yourself along traditional lines, doing the pleasant things that are known to work. Your approach attracts responses.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Big ideas are at hand, in profession, but somehow none of them quite lends itself to your immediate use. Stick to what you do well.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Seek original ways of handling situations/problems at hand, on a temporary test basis before general reorganization.

Nail Creme

Nail creme, to keep your nails from getting dry and brittle, also softens cuticles so they can be pushed back easily. Each time you use polish remover, rub a small amount of creme onto the nails to help them grow.

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Give some thought to your home and its improvement. More is involved in the changes suggested by mate than either of you realize.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Family and associates turn out to have conservative or backward-looking views, and your projects dismay them.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are a step closer to being free to put into practice some well-directed scheme—have you thought one up lately?

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Being conservative in personal behavior does not work against making unusual journeys or important contacts.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your meditations and careful studies are still much needed as you prepare for the ventures of the coming weekend.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): There is enough going on to take all your attention without getting into any extravagance or additional chores.

Things Not To Do In The Year Ahead

By HAL BOYLE
 NEW YORK (AP) — They say that what you don't know can't hurt you.
 If that is true, then it must also be true that what you don't do can't harm you.
 Acting on that theory, I plan to stay out of trouble, because in 1973 I'm not going to — Get in a dogfight with Lassie. Snap Mae West's garter.
 Ask my landlord to repaint my apartment.
 Steal the keys to Ft. Knox.
 Mark graffiti on the walls of the Taj Majal.
 Become a munitions salesman in Indochina.
 Become a tree surgeon and perform an appendectomy on an oak tree.
 Tweak the muscles of a 90-pound weakling at the beach.
 Drag a red, white or blue herring across anybody's trail.
 Kick out a mobster.
 Pick a fight with City Hall.
 Entice away any gangster's moll.
 Denounce in print motherhood or the federal highway program.
 Buy a pig in a poke.
 Plant weeds in any man's garden.
 Patronize any second-floor massage parlor unless it has been given a seal of approval by the king of Sweden.
 Bear false witness against my neighbor who, after all, outweighs me by 30 pounds, is 20 years younger, and also had a longer reach and used to box in college. Why would I want to lie about a nice guy like him?
 Weigh a butcher's thumb in the balance and find it wanting.
 Make any blind dates at cocktail parties where everybody gets blind.
 Kite a check.
 Run off with any other guys' wife. For a man over 40, that would be like snatching rhinestones from a dime store jewelry counter.

 Perform any miracles in the office. If you perform one miracle in the office, the next day they expect you to perform two — and three on the day after that.
 Count the calories of my dieting friends. There's nothing more fruitless.
 Tell my boss that I've been watching his work, too, and that it also could bear a little improving.
 Hide my light under a bushel — or my money under a mattress.
 Help finance another trip to the moon. There must be a less expensive place we can go to bring back rocks from.
 Repeat all the sins that bored me during 1972.

Sorry Burglar Portrays Santa

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Michael E. Murphy, a student at the University of Illinois, returned from holiday vacation to his campus apartment Tuesday to discover that his record turntable had mysteriously acquired some new companions, an amplifier and a set of speakers.
 A note with the new equipment explained how.
 A burglar had broken into the room and stolen the turntable. Later, however, the robber felt remorse and returned the turntable, donating an amplifier and two speakers to complete the set.
 "You can have the equipment," the note ended. "It's not hot. And have a merry Christmas."
 The note was not signed.

Television And Radio

By JAY SHARBUTT
 AP Television Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — Satire is what closes Saturday night on Broadway. This could be why the ABC Television network took the precaution of opening with it tonight at 10:30 p.m. CST.
 Be that as it may, the satire is a 90-minute David Frost production called "That Was the Year That Was." It's a barbed look at 1972, a year stoutly defended by attorney F. Lee Bailey.
 You must ignore everything about it you've read in the newspapers and seen on television. The good barrister says "That's hearsay."
 He pleads his case towards the end of the show. Other participants take his advice at the beginning. The result is a sharp, funny show that may offend.
 —President Nixon
 —Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.
 —Secretary of State William P. Rogers.
 —Faith-healers.
 —Homosexuals
 —People who take umbrage instead of aspirin.
 The principal villains in all this are the comedy team of Jack Burns and Avery Schreiber, who act as hosts, and George S. Irving, who once portrayed Nixon in a Broadway revue.
 Irving repeats his Nixon act in an inauguration speech in which he puts no blame on those who voted for McGovern.

 "I would be the last to criticize them," he says, "although we know who you are."
 He also announces the opening of several new White Houses and concludes his speech by saying "Now it's time to say goodby I'm going back to the White House, and you won't see me for another four years."
 Burns and Schreiber, one of the most inventive comedy teams at loose today, wreak particular havoc in a skit about a man of the cloth who heals the afflicted on his weekly television show from Juarez, Mexico.
 Schreiber, cast as a "poor unfortunate," shows up with a thumb that won't bend. Burns invokes divine guidance, smites the thumb and watches the unfortunate bound away in extreme pain.
 "A little more faith, my friend," he advises, interspersing the laying on of hands with pleas for alms from the viewing audience.
 There are a few limp moments in the show, all involving Frost or a supper-club satirist called Mark Russell.
 Despite this, it's good to see organized lunacy back on television again. The old year was somewhat of a dud, but if this is the way 1973 will go, it may well be a happy new year.

Classified Ads In Vietnam Help Lonely Troops

SAIGON (AP) — The 24,000 U.S. troops left in Vietnam need only consult the Saigon Post's classified ads to banish the lonesome blues.
 "Will you be lonely at dinner tonight?" asks Mr. Huy Son, telephone 97891. "Why not invite a lovely girl for your dinner table?"
 Miss Alice, phone 96275, serves as lonely hearts consultant for "Vietnamese girls, charming and educated," who seek "foreign friends for partners of picnic and pleasure party."
 Each day, Saigon's only English-language daily carries a half-dozen notices in pidgin English "cooing the unmistakable language of love."
 "Lovely and graceful girls, ladies of different age, type and class are waiting for your gentlemen," promises Mr. Mike. A former clerk at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, he now operates a dating game, Vietnamese type, from a roster of more than 1,000 war widows, divorcees, ladies jilted and left in the lurch, even high-school girls anxious to meet and, if possible, marry any of the remaining Americans.

For 5,000 piastres — $1.50 — Mr. Mike's social-relations office will arrange introductions to five or six ladies selected by the customer from pictures and biographical data in his bulging files.
 The office consists of a desk, a telephone and a sort of modified psychiatrist's couch. Regretful that he can't afford a computer but, nevertheless, seeking to match mates scientifically, Mr. Mike requires both parties to fill out a form detailing their "desires, weakness and social positions." Each party signs with the fervent affirmation "that the above said statement in this personal date is exactly accured (sic) due to my deep intention and frankness."

 In a matter of days, his firm promises, "a direct or indirect meeting will be done to you at an appropriate appointed place and date at a refined serious place and scenery."

 Like where?
 "The zoo," he ventured when this lonely researcher took his place on the psychiatric-style couch. "But if the girl is not suitable to you, we will send another in 24 hours."

Stuffed Fillet Rates Raves

Stuffed fillet of beef topped with melted Austrian Swiss cheese wins flavor prize.

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

A stuffed fillet of beef makes an enviable entree, one that should bring only raves. Fill the fillet with sauteed onion, carrot and celery and top with diced Austrian Swiss cheese. When almost roasted, cover top of fillet with additional cheese slices and return to oven until cheese is melted. Serve on a platter surrounded with baby whole carrots and asparagus spears.

Remove all fat and sinews from meat. Slice fillet lengthwise on one side and open out. Sprinkle meat on all sides with salt and pepper and rub with garlic. In a small skillet, heat butter and saute onion, carrot and celery until soft and lightly browned. Spoon mixture onto cut surface of fillet. Finely dice one package of Swiss cheese and sprinkle over vegetables. Fold over meat and fasten opening with toothpicks and string. Place in a shallow roasting pan and roast in a preheated 400-degree oven for 40 minutes. Remove from oven and remove string and toothpicks. Place remaining slices of cheese over roast. Replace in oven and roast for another five minutes or until cheese is melted. Serve garnished with baby whole carrots and asparagus spears. Cut into thick slices to serve. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Entries Open For Cooking Contest

The 1973 National Chicken Cooking Contest is offering cash prizes for great dishes made with chicken. This exciting cooking event culminates in a grand cook-off in Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 11. First Prize: $10,000; second prize: $4,000; third: $3,000; fourth: $2,000; and fifth: $1,000.

Finalists from 50 states and the District of Columbia will win an all-expense paid round trip to Little Rock for the national cook-off plus $100 cash, a trophy and a year's supply of sponsors' products.

The sponsors of the contest are the National Broiler Council, and the makers of Ac'cent, Alcoa Wrap and Wear-Ever Cookware and Mazola Corn Oil.

Basic rules: the predominant ingredient in a recipe must be broiler-fryer chicken, whole, cut up, or parts. The recipe must include at least 1 teaspoon of Ac'cent, 1/4 cup Mazola Corn Oil, and use Alcoa Wrap in either preparation or serving.

A contestant must be at least 16 years of age and a resident of the United States. All entries are to be in by April 1, 1973. Send your recipe, name, address, birth date and telephone number to the National Chicken Cooking Contest, 614 Madison Building, Washington, D.C. 20005.

So get your chicken cooking imagination going right on the front burner, or over, or barbecue grill. It just might be your best-paid effort.

The judging will be on the basis of recipe suitability, flavor, ease of preparation, idea and clarity of directions. Finalists will be selected either by a panel of food authorities, or by state elimination cook-offs.

Special Bath

Prepare yourself for a special evening with a hot bath in scented bubble bath. Besides easing tired muscles, the hot bath with oils will keep your skin well moisturized.

Blended Colors

Whatever colors you choose to shadow and highlight your eyes, be sure they're well blended. Do this with a brush or fingertips. The effect should be soft, never harsh.

Sir Walter Raleigh was granted an estate of 12,000 acres in Ireland by Queen Elizabeth. It was on this land that he first planted the potato in 1586.

Pizza Loaf: For Young And Hungry

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Appetites made heartier by the seasonal change in weather challenge any cook. Mothers with school-age children also face the daily pressure of serving hungry youngsters something tasty and nutritious. One such dish that the young enjoy is a pizza-type, Braided Pizza Loaf. Just add salad and fruit for dessert. A one-dish meal, with a salad on the side, is a Hearty Tomato Soup that includes spaghetti.

BRAIDED PIZZA LOAF

1 package (15 1/2 ounces) complete cheese pizza
1 egg, separated
1/2 pound ground beef
1 small onion, sliced
Salt and pepper
4 ounces mozzarella cheese, sliced
Sesame seeds

Prepare pizza dough according to package directions, except add egg yolk to dough along with water. Let rise 5 minutes. Saute ground beef and onion in skillet. Stir in pizza sauce and canned grated cheese. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Remove from heat. Let stand several minutes.

Spread dough out in rectangle (approximately 11x14 inches) on greased cookie sheet. Spread meat down center of dough in strip about 5-inches wide. Top with mozzarella cheese. Cut bare dough on each side in 4 to 5 diagonal strips. Alternating sides, fold strips over filling. Brush dough with egg white and sprinkle with sesame seeds. Bake at 425 degrees for 15 to 20 minutes. Makes 4-6 servings.

HEARTY TOMATO SOUP

3 tablespoons butter or margarine

1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup chopped celery
1 1/2 cups beef bouillon
1 1/2 cups tomato juice
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1 can (46 ounces) spaghetti with tomato sauce and cheese
1/2 cup evaporated milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Melt butter in large saucepan. Add onions, green pepper and celery. Saute until tender. Stir in bouillon, tomato juice and oregano. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add spaghetti; cover and cook gently 10 minutes. Remove cover; add milk. Stirring constantly, continue cooking about 2 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Pocketbook Issues For New Year Will Be The Same

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What are the pocketbook issues you'll be reading about in 1973? The same, dear weary consumer, as in 1972: wages and prices and taxes and jobs. But, while the issues are the same, you'll be seeing a different facet.

To begin with, some of the nicest news this spring will be tax rebates, not tax demands; to workers who failed to lower their withholdings to adjust for lower taxes. At least $7 billion is expected to be refunded.

In 1972, the real news about prices was that their growth rate slowed. But, in 1973, there's a chance that prices might rise more swiftly. As 1972 ended, momentum was being built; food prices especially were headed higher.

The sad fact is that the country failed in its goal of 3 per cent inflation by the end of 1972. In the past six months, wholesale prices have risen 5.7 per cent; consumer prices, 3.6 per cent.

An aspect of food problems that bears watching is what the big chain stores are doing to protect their interests. Last year, difficult as it is to believe, they got into a price-cutting war, with The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. leading the way.

As one supermarket executive put it: "A&P is like an airplane in a power dive. They're losing millions of dollars, but they're still cutting prices in order to capture more of the market. They can't keep it up." You'll be reading all year long about wages. It's going to be a very active year for major labor contracts — in construction, electrical equipment, railroads, trucking, autos and rubber and plastics.

Much pressure will be put on labor to keep its demands noninflationary. Last year, they rose about 6 per cent. This year, the same is expected. But, if food prices keep rising, there could develop some dramatic confrontations.

With the wage versus cost-of-living conflict reheating, it seems highly unlikely that wage-price controls will be lifted. Statements pro and con will be issued all spring, but the consequences are too great to drop them altogether.

In an address last week, Dr.

Arthur Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman, warned that, if inflation increases in 1973, "the nation's economic future may be adversely affected for a long time to come." Watch federal spending, he said.

What seems to be understood more in recent months is that the federal government is playing a huge role in inflation: no, not simply in restraining upward pressures with controls, but in creating the pressure. Over-spending, as expressed in budget deficits of $71 billion over the past five years, is producing the pressure. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States claims that federal spending controls will be "the top issue on which the business community will fight in the 93rd Congress."

The stock market will produce its usual quota of news, it being the nature of that institution to promote discussion even when there is nothing to talk about. Two possibilities are worth watching:

—Will the small investor return? And, if he does, will that mean the return also of a speculative mood in which everyone jumps aboard just before the wagon collapses?

—Will mutual funds return to favor? They took a bigger licking in 1972 from investors than from the market. Unforgiving investors traded in their shares for cash in record numbers.

Where did the money go? Much of it went into savings institutions, houses, cars — all of which had superb years. All are looking for a good year again in 1973, which suggests that mutual funds as an investment medium might see only slow growth.

Oh, How It Hurts To Laugh

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Accidents usually aren't funny, but one life insurance company reports some that have humor among its 1973 claims.

Take the case of a Pennsylvania woman who announced to a pair of legs protruding from under the family car that lunch was ready.

She gave a pat to what she thought were her husband's legs.

According to Aetna Life & Casualty, the surprised mechanic — not her husband — lurched up, slammed his head into the car and knocked himself out.

When he came to on a stretcher and told his story to ambulance attendants they laughed so hard they dropped the stretcher and broke the mechanic's arm, Aetna says.

There was a New York man who went hunting and returned to find his false teeth had been stolen from a table by a woodchuck. He filed a claim for damages.

In Virginia, Aetna says, a dog left in the front seat of a running car put the car in reverse, and it rammed backwards into a neighbor's garage.

In West Virginia, a pack of dogs chased a female under a new car. In a frenzy, the dogs caved in a fender, chewed up a tire and tore out signal-light wiring. Aetna paid $95.29 under "canine quarrel."

Another claim came from a West Virginia man watching a July circus parade when an elephant reached into the crowd, plucked out the man and hurled him through a store window.

Court Reverses

'Conversion' Term

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed and remanded Wednesday a 10-year sentence for J. D. Brewer of Lubbock, who allegedly "converted" a rented typewriter to his own use.

Brewer rented the typewriter from Hubert Russell on June 29, 1970, paying $97.50 for the first and last month of the six-month agreement. But the check was returned marked "Account Closed."

Less than a month after he rented the machine, Brewer was in jail and remained there throughout the term of the rental agreement, according to court records.

Today In History

'Chinese Connection' Expanding Its Heroin Operations

HONG KONG (AP) — Among the farmhouses, tenements and sprawling mansions of this colony are about 20 secret laboratories producing more and more of the heroin sold on American street corners, according to Western narcotics experts.

This "Chinese Connection" is expanding as legal and diplomatic pressure threatens the traditional "French Connection" of Turkish opium or morphine processed into heroin in France and then smuggled to the United States.

The U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs estimates the percentage of Southeast Asian heroin supplying the American market has at least doubled recently, to almost a third of the total U.S. supply.

But narcotics agents tend to scoff at precise figures.

"The traffickers don't publish balance sheets, so how can we know how much they are smuggling," says one agent.

Norman Rolph, Hong Kong's commissioner of narcotics, says: "All the people in this business are very security and surveillance conscious. They have a high degree of mobility. The laboratories in which they refine the morphine are everywhere, from chicken runs to villas. They spend just a day or two in each one and then move on to another."

The opium and heroin trade in this part of the world is almost exclusively run by Chinese, and the vast bulk of their trafficking is for Asian addicts. Officials say there is no indication mainland China is exporting any of the narcotics.

If arrested, the traffickers almost never tell authorities about their smuggling network. The Mafia are publicity hounds compared to the Chinese, says an informant in Bangkok, the capital of Thailand.

"Money and fear are the only things that hold this dirty business together, and money is the only thing we can chip at it with," he adds.

Thailand and Hong Kong use a reward system based on the value of drug seizures to attract informers. In Hong Kong, an informer can earn as much as $100,000 for a tip that leads to a major seizure and arrests. And nearly all major seizures come from such information.

But generally it is only the small fry that are caught. The rich financiers pulling the strings from the top evade arrest. They carefully avoid any direct contact with the people handling drugs. Even when authorities know whom they are, no evidence can be obtained to convict them, agents say.

Narcotics officials agree the trafficking in Southeast Asia has not been hurt or even slowed by law-enforcement efforts. Some believe, however, recent large seizures are a promising start to a widened drive.

It seems doubtful any progress is being made in the most vital country of all — Burma.

About 70 per cent of the world's illicit opium is grown in the "Golden Triangle," a border region of Burma, Laos and Thailand. It is so nicknamed for its shape on a map and the money flowing into it from the opium traffic.

Most of the opium production from the "Golden Triangle" comes from the Burmese part, which is outside the domain of the government.

Tribesmen in the area live off the drug trade, and the government is reluctant to move against them because it sometimes uses them against Communist guerrillas. The United States does not supply aid to Burma and its influence is slight.

President Nixon, in hopes of throttling the heroin supply before it reaches the United States, has ordered American officials overseas to encourage Asian governments to step up their fight against narcotics trafficking and addiction. And the U.S. government is helping Asian governments build up their manpower and is assisting in the crackdown.

Wiping out the opium at its source is the key to success, officials say. This means destroying fields of opium poppies in the "Golden Triangle" and other areas and replacing the opium with other crops.

But many of the hill people who grow the opium are not enthusiastic about abandoning their opium harvest in favor of another crop which might not bring them as much money. Bandits and private armies roam the mountains, and they also depend on the trafficking for their money.

Agents report that, fairly recently, tons of heroin has been stockpiled in Burma. One possible reason for this accumulation is that a major market has been lost with the withdrawal of most American troops from South Vietnam.

Ship Heads To Resupply Lone Sailor

SEATTLE (AP) — The Coast Guard's Ocean Station November is on its way to resupply Pat Quesnel, a lone sailor who is voyaging from San Francisco to Honolulu.

In a message relayed by a freighter, Quesnel said he was running low on food and some of his equipment had been damaged by a storm. He was reported 970 miles northeast of Honolulu Monday.

Quesnel, a native of Duvall, Wash., started his adventure Oct. 8 and expects to reach his destination between Feb. 10 and March 10.

The Ocean Station was midway between San Francisco and Hawaii when it was sent on the mission Tuesday.

Third Down Awards Tarkenton, Butkus Are on NFC's Most Valuable List

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor
NEW YORK (NEA)—The Minnesota Vikings traded with the New York Giants for Fran Tarkenton, in anticipation that the veteran quarterback would lead them to a championship.
The Vikings, however, went on to compile one of their worst records in years. Some may blame Tarkenton in part, but it will not be his teammates. They named him the winner of the NEA 1972 Third Down Trophy, symbolic of the team's most valuable player.

The Third Down ballots were filled out by the players on their respective teams, in a poll taken by Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The other National Conference winners are:

CHICAGO: Dick Butkus, middle linebacker. A repeater. Still tops. Second was Bobby Douglas. Douglas is to the Bear offense what Butkus is to their defense. Everything.

DETROIT: Larry Hand, defensive end. Emerging as one of the great quarterback sackers of the age.

ATLANTA: Dave Hampton, running back. The Packers, who traded him, may have felt he was dispensable. The Falcons would disagree.

GREEN BAY: Chester Marcol, kicker. Polish-born, soccer-style first-year man from little-known Hillsdale College. It is probably even more unusual for a kicker to be named MVP than for a rookie to get the honor.

LOS ANGELES: Ken Iman, center. It's usually the guy on the other end of the snap who gets the recognition.

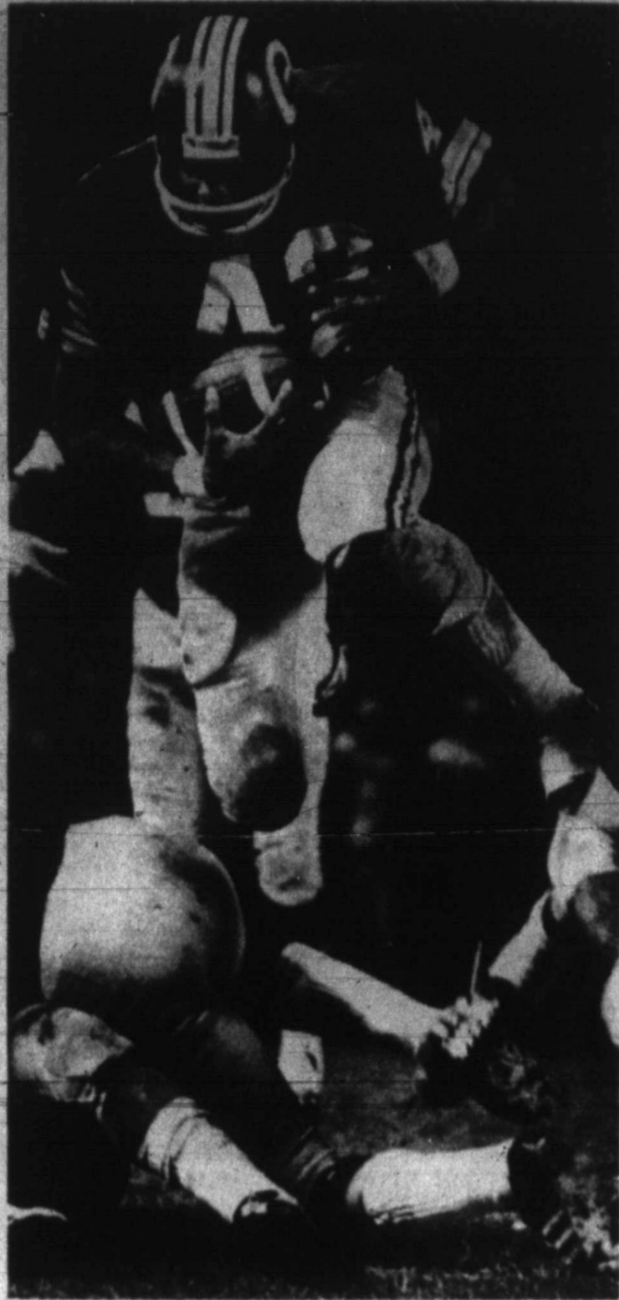

DALLAS: Walt Garrison, running back. The versatile, hard working Garrison is enough to make Cowboy fans forget Duane Whatshisname.

NEW ORLEANS: Archie Manning, quarterback. Not only did Manning replace Edd Hargett at quarterback, he also replaced Hargett as team MVP. Manning completed his second pro season with deserved honors.

NEW YORK: Ron Johnson, running back. He is becoming a perennial 1,000-yard season rusher and, concomitantly, one of the game's finest backs.

PHILADELPHIA: Harold Jackson, wide receiver. Another case of one team (the Rams) trading off a man who becomes a standout with another team. It was a rough year for the Eagles collectively, but not Jackson individually.

ST. LOUIS: Ernie McMillan, offensive tackle. This

Larry Brown.

12-year veteran continues to be among the best in his business in the NFL.

SAN FRANCISCO: Ted Kwalick, tight end. The 49ers throw to him in the clutch, run his side in the clutch, depend on him in the clutch. That's the way it was for Kwalick at Penn State.

too: Everything changes, nothing changes.

WASHINGTON: Larry Brown, running back. He runs over you, around you, under you, through you. He is doing for Washington what another Brown once did for Cleveland.

Grant Teaff Is Named Senior College Coach

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
In 1972, Grant Teaff gave Baylor more football victories than it had earned in the three previous years.

For his efforts, Teaff has been voted the Texas Sports Writers Association Senior College Coach of the Year for the fall.

Teaff, who made Angelo State a winner before he came to Baylor last year, guided the Bears to five victories, including a 27-0 thumping of Missouri, and a third place tie in the Southwest Conference.

The TSA award followed previous accolades given Teaff including The Associated Press SWC Coach of the Year.

Teaff compiled 578 points, including 59 first place votes. Earnest Hawkins, who guided East Texas State to the NAIA title, was second with 18 first place votes and 402 points.

Other finishers in the balloting by the 237-member TSA included Al Conover, Rice, 367 points; Warren Woodson, Trinity, 371 points; Arrell Royal of Texas, 349; and John Symank, Texas-Arlington, 223 points.

Baylor had won only three games in three years when Teaff arrived. He recruited heavily in the junior college ranks, added a dash of football savvy, and suddenly the Bears were no longer a "breather" on the schedule. Baylor had been picked dead last.

Hawkins did about the same at East Texas where the Lions were selected third behind Texas A&I and Southwest Texas. East Texas lost only one game and defeated Carson-Newman in the NAIA title game in Commerce.

Sports Blackout Is Lifted

Final assurance came Wednesday when the participating clubs, Miami and Washington, reported sale of their allocations of 12,000 tickets each. The game will be televised nationally by NBC.

"Heck," said a spokesman for Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum, "we've had 24,000 inquiries for tickets since last March when we learned the game would be played here. In fact, we had that many in the past week."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the NFL announced last October that the blackout that has existed for each of the first six games would be lifted if the game was sold out 10 days in advance.

Nixon Donates

PITTSBURGH (AP)—President Nixon has donated a personal check for $1,000 to the charitable causes of baseball star Roberto Clemente, missing and presumed dead in a plane crash.

The money will go to relieve survivors of the Nicaraguan earthquake and to fulfill Clemente's dream of a sports camp for boys in his native Puerto Rico.

Clemente was believed killed last Sunday while accompanying a plane load of supplies from Puerto Rico to Nicaragua.

Golf, Show Business Join In Holy Wedlock

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The pro golf tour is off on another of its $8 million binges, and that means Jack Nicklaus will be dropping 20-foot putts, his rivals half-smoked cigarettes and Bob Hope one-line quips at every green.

The $135,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open started today over the historic Riviera Club, once known as "Hogan's Alley." It used to be the plain LA Open. Now it has the long, hyphenated name which makes some people wonder whether it's a golf tournament or a pop concert.

It's the new look of big time golf—par-busters shooting for a million and show people searching for new exposure.

Golf business has joined show business in holy wedlock. It's more than a marriage of love. It's a case of necessity and cold economics.

Crooner Bing Crosby started it all with the Crosby Clambake in 1937. Then Bob Hope got into the act. Campbell, the popular singer, added his prestige to this traditional tour opener. Dean Martin has a tournament at Tucson, Andy Williams at San Diego, Jackie Gleason at Fort Lauderdale Fla. and Danny Thomas at Memphis.

If you sing or crack jokes for a living, you've got a head start at being the sponsor of a rich golf tournament. The reason: the extravagant modern-day purses are made possible by celebrity pro-am tournaments, staged on the day before each tournament. It takes big names to get big names in the lineup to draw big crowds at the gate.

For the Hollywood crowd, it's a case of mutual back-scratching. Bob Hope shows up for Glen Campbell, and Glen Campbell shows up for Hope, and Andy Williams shows up for both if they'll show up for his tourney. So it goes.

Campbell doesn't underwrite the tournament, and so his financial involvement is comparatively trivial. The Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce is the sponsor. Similarly, Hope, Crosby, etc. are largely fronts.

Brown, Greene Named NFL Players Of Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Larry Brown of the Washington Redskins, who ran around and over waves of tacklers, and Mean Joe Greene, who made waves of tacklers, were named today The Associated Press Players of the Year in the National Football League.

Brown, the running back who rolled up 1,216 yards to lead the National Conference and helped carry the Redskins to the NFC championship, amassed 41 of the 67 votes for NFL Offensive Player of the Year cast by a nationwide panel of pro football writers.

And Greene, the tackle who anchored the Steelers' line which had opposition quarterbacks running for their lives and running backs looking for places to hide, garnered 32 of the 67 votes cast to easily take NFL Defensive Player of the Year honors.

There was a three-way tie for runnerup in the offensive category as O.J. Simpson of Buffalo and Earl Morrill and Larry Csonka of Miami received five votes apiece.

Simpson provided the Bills with most of their offense and surpassing the injured Brown in the regular season's final game, won the league rushing title with 1,251 yards.

Morrill replaced injured quarterback Bob Griese in the fifth game of the season and proceeded to direct the Dolphins the rest of the way to a perfect 14-0 season and to the American Conference East championship. Csonka was the mainstay of Miami's record-setting ground attack as he bulled for 1,117 yards, second only to Simpson in the AFC.

Closest to Greene's 37 votes in the defensive balloting were linebackers Nick Buoniconti of Miami with eight and Chris Hanburger of Washington with seven, followed by defensive tackles Bob Lilly of Dallas with four and Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles with three.

Only a minor leg injury which forced Coach George Allen to bench Brown for the final two games of the season in preparation for the playoffs kept Brown from winning the NFL rushing title.

Still, Brown won plenty of recognition on his own.

And when the fourth-year pro from Kansas State heard himself compared to other brilliant running backs like Jim Brown and Gale Sayers, he replied: "Let me be myself. Let me succeed or fall on my face as Larry Brown without being compared to others. I just want to be my own man."

Greene, who led a defense that helped bring Pittsburgh its first divisional title—the American Conference Central crown—in 40 years, literally overwhelmed opposition quarterbacks.

He finished the season with 42 unassisted tackles, 34 assists, six pass blocks, 11 quarterback sacks and a fumble recovery.

Burke, Eleven Others Take Over NY Yankees

NEW YORK (AP)—Michael Burke has assumed control of the New York Yankee ship and the suave, new captain sees clear sailing ahead.

"We think we can take all the marbles in 1973," the modish, gray-haired Burke said after his 12-man business group took control of the American League baseball team in a $10 million deal with CBS Wednesday.

The syndicate pulled off the deal for the relatively cheap price because the CBS network apparently had become disenchanted with the once-powerful franchise.

Burke, who will continue as Yankee president, said that CBS was at times embarrassed to have a less successful team after earlier years of power.

But, despite the selling price—$3.2 million less than CBS paid for the franchise in 1964—Burke said that the network "broke even" over the years. CBS had some financially profitable seasons, said the new owner.

The change of ownership won't mean a change of location, insisted the new owners at a press conference.

The Yankees belong in Yankee Stadium, said Cleveland shipbuilder George Steinbrenner, another of the new bosses, "and they should always be winners. We don't plan to move anywhere except upward in the standings."

Steinbrenner and the rest apparently plan to leave full control in the hands of the season-old Burke.

Names of the other new owners were not immediately disclosed. Burke said that a majority of them were from outside the New York area, however.

The deal was sparked when Burke and Steinbrenner were introduced through a mutual friend and began discussing the possibilities in September. Burke, a former CBS vice president assigned to operate the team, negotiated the purchase with his former boss, William Paley, president of the network.

The Yankees had won their 29th pennant when CBS took control eight years ago. But since the network takeover, the New Yorkers have finished no higher than third in the American League.

In 1972, attendance at antique Yankee Stadium dropped to 966,328. It was the first time that the Yankees had failed to draw a million in a season since the Second World War.

Manager Ralph Houk, who signed a three-year extension to his contract late last summer, and the rest of the organization "will remain intact," according to Burke.

The only thing that will not remain intact will be Yankee Stadium itself. The 50-year-old structure will undergo a $24 million remodeling after the 1973 season.

The field then will be cut to the low 70 players and ties. Those players will be eligible for the final 72 holes, all on the famed No. 2 course at Pinehurst Nov. 15-18. Players who fail to qualify for the final 72 holes will receive $500 each.

The tournament has been scheduled for both this year and next, and the sponsor has options on several succeeding seasons.

About 170 players from the United States and about 70 foreigners will make up the starting field.

Among the players automatically eligible are the top 60 money winners from last year, all former PGA and U.S. Open champions, the 1973 U.S. Ryder Cup team and winners of all regular tour tournaments in the 12 months preceding the World Open.

The tournament was announced Wednesday by Joseph C. Dey Jr., commissioner of the PGA tournament players division. Robert S. Ewing of the NCAA has turned down an offer by the Astrodome for a rent-free football game between national champion USC and runner-up Oklahoma as a benefit for Nicaraguan earthquake victims.

Captains Named

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—Tony Adams of Utah State and Willie Harper, Nebraska's All-American linebacker, have been named North squad co-captains for Saturday's 24th annual Senior Bowl all-star football game.

The South players were to elect their leaders today and both teams were closing out heavy work before a final day of preparation on Friday.

The South team, coached by Weeb Eubank of the New York Jets, announced replacements Wednesday for two players injured in earlier games.

Ernest Price, a 6-foot-6, 250-pound defensive tackle from Texas A&I, substitutes for Jamie Rotella, a second string All-American linebacker from Tennessee, and John Steinké, 5-foot-11, 183-pound defensive back from Southwest Texas State, for Ken Phares of Mississippi State.

The North team is coached by Lou Saban of the Buffalo Bills.

Game Shifted

HOUSTON (AP)—The fledgling football rivalry between Rice and the University of Houston has been shifted to the Astrodome for 1973.

Athletic directors of both schools announced Wednesday that the 1973 event will be regular Sept. 15 in the Astrodome for the first time in the two-year history of the series.

You Can't Save Money

If a shoe merchant swaps you a pair of shoes for greenbacks, it is usually said that he sold shoes, but it could as easily be said that he had bought greenbacks. What happened in actuality was a swap: Which of two parties "bought" and which "sold" is all a matter of how you look at it. Customarily, of course, we say that the man who got the more exchangeable commodity—in this instance paper that is legal tender for debt—was the party who did the selling. For it was he, chances are, who convinced the man who got the shoes to part with his economic latitude (cash) in order to get them. But there could be a different interpretation under different circumstances.

Suppose, for instance, that our civil life were to deteriorate. Suppose the deterioration was to reach the point that the authority of the court to enforce the legal-tender statutes became shaky. At that point, you can foresee that the man with the shoes would tend to become reluctant to accept doubtfully useful cash for certainly useful shoes. The chore of persuasion necessary to complete the trade transaction therefore would be reversed. It would become the task of the man holding shoes to part with them. The cash-holder thus becomes the salesman.

The curiosity involved in a common transaction, such as the above, leads to the unveiling of an important economic truth. Things are not always what they seem at first glance. Sometimes you have to turn them around and around to appreciate the multiple facets of fact. Let us take another example.

If you deposit money in the local thrift institution, it is commonly said that you are "saving money." The mental vision here conjured up is that you have put your dollars to bed and they are sleeping there instead of working like all the spent dollars are doing. But let us ask a question. What happens to the dollars after they are deposited? Obviously, as you know, the thrift institutions lends them out again to some other customer. So in actuality your so-called "saved" dollars haven't been saved, but still circulate, how can it be said that you saved them when you deposited them with the thrift bank?

The explanation is, you did not "save dollars," instead you "bought savings." You turned dollars in that might have given you current pleasure and you received in exchange a certain valuable consideration: What was it? It was a mark on a set of books that pledged to return your original deposit PLUS a specified number of extra dollars to you on or before a specified date. This pledge is what your money bought. You were willing to pay the price because the prospect of a future financial latitude was worth more to you than current pleasure.

Did your purchase of savings put men out of work? An absurd question! For the answer clearly is no. We know this because we now can see that the same dollars are working hard as ever, only under different auspices. In short, a saved dollar isn't wasting its time.

Dual Citizenship

Rabbi Meir Kahane, militant spokesman for the Jewish Defense League, was granted Israeli citizenship this past week, and plans to retain his U.S. citizenship as well.

This is called dual citizenship. Other countries have practiced this arrangement. It was unknown in the United States until a Supreme Court decision of recent years. So far as we have been able to learn, the duality in the cases of Americans pertains only to Israel. Conceivable, in the future it could pertain to other countries as well.

Duality is puzzling both in theory and in practice. Theoretically, it means a man owes allegiance to two different flags and countries. Two countries have a responsibility toward him. Practically it means that persons of foreign allegiance and obligation can hold office and vote in American elections. If America continues in its role as an interventionist world power, duality will tend to bring rival factions face-to-face upon American soil. This prospect does not bode well for the future domestic tranquility.

Nine of Ten Cheating On Welfare

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—If there is anyone who doubts the need to reform the nation's welfare system, he has only to read some recent spot studies to realize the incredible amount of graft which cheats the poor, the disabled and the taxpayer alike.

These spot findings are back of President Nixon's decision to clamp down hard on welfare management.

In one recent case, a spot check was made in one county on roughly 400 welfare recipients whose employers had reported earnings of $1,600 or more in the three months checked. This check was limited to recipients who had given their correct names and Social Security numbers. About one out of nine, it was found, had given an honest report of their earnings.

In this sampling, the 400 had reported a combined income of less than $400,000 for the three months. Their employers listed earnings of roughly $800,000.

That is, these recipients had been earning during this three-month period at an average rate of roughly $8,000 a year—but had been reporting earnings at the rate of $3,900 a year.

More than a fourth of those in this sample reported no income at all during the three months. But investigation showed they had earnings at an annual rate, in excess of $8,400.

The cheating was actually greater than indicated above. The earnings reports did not include self-employed income, or jobs for which the worker had been paid in cash by an employer not under unemployment insurance. In many cases where several members of a family had earnings, there was no way to draw these numbers together and thus learn the total earnings per family.

In spot checks through one state, it was estimated that of those on welfare who earned $1,600 or more in the quarter studied, there was "apparent fraud" in 41 per cent of the cases.

The investigators found in this case that "a large percentage of recipients" reported none of their earned income. Many received two checks for wages each month, but reported only one. Overtime was conveniently forgotten in many instances.

These spot checks presumably did not include the worst of the cheaters. The investigators said they would assume that on average, those who listed their right name and Social Security number probably were less likely to be serious cheaters than those who worked under one name and Social Security number and collected welfare payments under another name and number.

Incidentally, these studies did not report on special assistance to the aged, blind or disabled, nor aid to children under 18.

If the men and women who deservedly need aid are to receive what they require, and if the taxpayer is to be allowed to keep enough to provide a decent life for himself and family with all the demands of government, education and growing living costs which he now faces, there is no national problem deserving of more urgency than the elimination of grossly illegal payments to welfare cheaters.

BRUCE BIOSSAT 1972? Dullsville On Political Scene

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)—The most charitable thing to say about the year 1972 is that maybe it was "transitional," a kind of pause while the nation searched for new sources of creative strength. In the realm of politics, surely it was just about the dullest year in memory.

Picking a president is obviously a momentous business for a powerful country, and somehow our choosing has usually had some of the fun and zest of a sporting event. But not this time.

The Democrats reformed their party to open up its selection processes to wider participation. Along the way, they acquired more presidential candidates than they'd ever had.

It all seemed to promise fresh excitement. But most of the candidates performed like expansion teams in a bloated baseball league.

The only interesting fellow was Alabama's Gov. George

Wallace, a hangover from an earlier time.

The Democrats' convention at Miami Beach was supposed to be the culmination of the beautiful "New Politics" of openness. It was a deadly bore, and the party leaders appeared to accept that fact, since they held most of it in the middle of the night. At best it was a minor festival for insomniacs.

It gave some of us who cover politics the idea that maybe part of its excitement came from just imagining that things happening behind closed doors are more eventful than they truly are.

Yet, for this year at least, the Republicans contrived to knock that idea silly. They came to Miami Beach determined to keep everything behind closed doors. They virtually locked up their headquarters hotel. But then a few leaks developed, and it was discovered that "everything" was nothing.

Never in political history did so many people gather to do so little.

The fall campaign was even worse. The most exciting time was Sen. George McGovern's vacation. Between horseback rides in South Dakota's Black Hills, the Eagleton affair came to a head. Even that, however, offered a sort of negative excitement, like that around an airport where a plane with a damaged landing gear is about to come down. When you weren't out with the traveling McGovern group, you couldn't believe anything was going on. When you were on the trail with them, you knew your impression was correct.

As for President Nixon, hardly anybody ever saw him. His voice came on the radio a number of times, taking us down memory lane. His forays into the open were few. At an airport hangar rally, you really could see him, of course. Still, during most of his limited time "in public" we professional viewers had either to watch him on a television monitor or listen to some disembodied voice (a Nixon aide) telling us what thrilling things the President was doing just around the corner out of sight.

Since 1960, the able author, Theodore White, has been chronicling our presidential races with his series on the making of the president. I have a theory about his 1972 book. It will have a very nice title page, but the inside will offer a secret compartment for your valuables.

Your Health

Good Exercise

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am a high school athlete and need some answers to questions. Does running five to 10 miles a day on concrete and asphalt hurt the bones and legs in any way? Does drinking a lot of milk (two quarts a day) cause calcium buildup in the knees and be harmful? Does running five to 10 miles a day stunt or postpone growth in any way? I am 16 years old.

Dear Reader—The continual jarring to the ankle and knees while running does cause some wear and tear changes, particularly if unusual positions are involved. Many ballet dancers develop wear and tear type arthritis of the ankles for similar reasons. The baseball pitcher will develop arthritis of his elbow from wear and tear effects of pitching.

If one runs on a softer surface there is less jarring and less wear and tear. Thus a cinder- or turf- or any soft surface probably the best surface to run on. One can become conditioned to running on very hard surfaces, but these surfaces will have more wear and tear effect in the long run. If you are running on a hard surface, you should wear a different type of shoe, one which offers good support to the foot and reasonable sponginess, in contrast to the thin sole for an ordinary track shoe. A good shoe can go a long way toward minimizing the effects of the concrete surface. Joggers, runners, and long-distance walkers should give more consideration to their footwear than many do.

Drinking milk does not cause calcium buildup in knees. You'd be surprised how many people think that calcium deposits like those seen in arthritis are associated with using too much calcium. The arthritic spurs and buildup of bone that occurs abnormally usually result from destruction of bone, and then when bone is rebuilt, it forms in an abnormal fashion causing spurs of the type seen in various forms of arthritis. This is how the lipping of the vertebrae, so common as the years pass, actually occurs.

The body does a poor job in rebuilding bone structures that have worn away. There is a lot more danger to the bones and teeth from not getting enough calcium rather than too much. I think an inadequate calcium intake is a common fault in many people's diet. One of the best sources of calcium is milk.

Renew Demand for House Probe of Justice Douglas
By Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas is asking for it, and he's going to get it!

The 74-year-old ultra-liberal jurist's recent defiant word, that he would have considered retiring if McGovern had been elected but not with President Nixon continuing in office, is set to be forcefully challenged in the new (93rd) Congress.

Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., leader of the Southern bloc will propose the creation of a special bipartisan "commission" to study a number of long-pending charges involving Douglas's extra-judicial business activities and connections extending over a decade.

Purpose of the searching inquiry would be to make recommendations to the House on whether impeachment proceedings should be instituted against the New Left justice.

Triggering Waggoner's move is a series of detailed articles published by the Dayton, Ohio, Journal Herald "revealing that nearly $200,000 was paid to mobster Meyer Lansky in the period March 1961 through September 1967 from funds of the Albert Parvin Foundation while Justice Douglas served as its paid president and chairman of its financial committee."

As head of this foundation, which had interests in Las Vegas gambling properties, Douglas was paid $12,000 a year, plus expenses. His tie-up with the foundation extended from 1960 to 1969, for a total moonlighting income of about $96,000.

During that period, Douglas reported taxable income of $473,940 above his $389,749 salary as a member of the Supreme Court—an average of more than $52,000 a year from moonlighting.

When Douglas, at 70, married for the fourth time, the head of the foundation gave him an elaborate set of silverware, and the foundation bought $3,900 in household furnishings for the Douglases. Parvin claims this money was reimbursed.

Douglas hurriedly quit his lucrative extrajudicial association with the Parvin Foundation after it came to light—following the forced resignation of his close friend, Justice Abe Fortas, because of a highly questionable outside financial arrangement.

Missing Rescuer
This latest demand for a thorough investigation of Douglas will have one important tactical advantage.

It will not face the almost certain likelihood of being sidetracked or scuttled by former Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., 82-year-old long-time chairman of the Judiciary Committee—who did just that three years ago in behalf of his close personal and political Supreme Court friend.

The House was on the verge of ordering a probe of Douglas by a special six-member bipartisan committee. More than 100 congressmen had signed a petition for that—when Celler suddenly announced he was setting up a special Judiciary subcommittee to conduct an investigation. Naming himself chairman, Celler appointed several liberal Democrats whom he could control and two Republicans.

This maneuver, clearly diversionary, was irately assailed as such, and time amply proved that.

The panel's inquiry was a sham, and its so-called "majority report," signed by Celler and the other Democratic committeemen, was an out-and-out whitewash. It was bluntly tagged as such by Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., in submitting dissenting findings.

He is now the ranking Republican on the powerful Judiciary Committee.

Celler, defeated in last June's primary by a young woman, will not be around in the new Congress to rush to the succor of his ultra-liberal pal. Similarly, Rep. William McCulloch, Ohio, who was senior Republican committeeman and ducked taking a stand on Douglas, retired after a stroke.

Celler's Whitewash
Citing the numerous glaring shortcomings of the Celler probe—notably no witnesses questioned under oath, no subpoenas served, no interrogation of Douglas—Rep. Waggoner asks:

"Why is it that two reporters (of the Dayton Journal Herald) working without subpoena power, without a staff and without the full investigative authority of the executive and legislative branches of the federal government were able to uncover this information (the alleged $200,000 pay-off to Lansky) after a special subcommittee of the House failed to do so?"

"I am deeply troubled by these and other questions. I believe the American public is equally troubled. At a time in our history when national confidence in the federal government appears to be eroding, it is doubly incumbent on Congress to step forward and correct an error made by this so-called investigating committee of a few years ago. It is not too late to do something about that."

Because what that committee so shockingly failed to do places squarely before us the glaring question of what must we do to erase this double embarrassment. A Supreme Court justice who compensates a notorious mobster and a committee of the Congress that fails to properly discharge its duties.

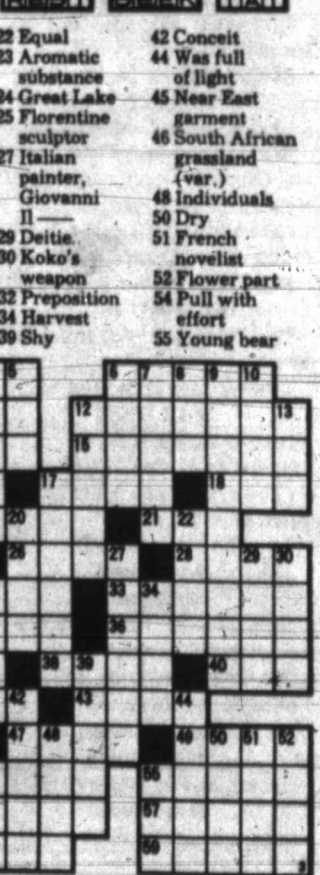

Rep. Louis Wyman, R-N.H., former state attorney general and a leading legal authority, asked Waggoner what the newspaper articles developed "that was neither known nor available to the Celler subcommittee."

"They developed," replied Waggoner, "that the Albert Parvin Foundation, while Douglas served on the Supreme Court, and wore another hat as president of the foundation, paid a finder's fee to Lansky of $200,000 illegally from the foundation's funds. Also that Justice Douglas had to have some knowledge of this, because the last two installments of these payments were made after an investigation of the IRS was begun in 1966 and after Justice Douglas became chairman of the foundation's finance committee."

Slated to be chairman of the Judiciary Committee is Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., beginning his 13th term in Congress.

Want To Save Money?

NEW YORK (AP) — It is at this time of year, when the mail brings bills rather than greetings, when reality closes in upon the spirit, that the working stiff takes pause to brood upon his financial plight.

The postholiday letdown may be responsible for the mood or probably it has something to do with early dusk and the realization that winter has just begun and that vacation time is months away and that junior needs his tuition money now and Uncle Sam wants his by April 15.

Whatever, it is a time when everyone needs relief from bleak reality, when the spirit craves an infusion of hope to nourish dreams. And so, here it is.

Would you like to become a millionaire? While you consider your response to this perplexing question, here is some factual information on how it might be done, depending upon your age.

If you are young enough, say 25, you might accomplish this goal if you can invest $100 a month for 40 years, and never dip into it except for taxes.

If you're middle-age you may have to settle for less, something ranging from a half-million dollars down. But your approach would be the same — to set aside $100 a month every month and never vary from that schedule.

The advice comes from a noted stock market authority, a conservative investor with a fascination for slide rules and the magic of compounding, a man who began his own adversity because Wall Street gave him opinion rather than fact.

John Winthrop Wright describes the plan in his book, "Q-V-T, The Three Keys to Stock Market Profits." "Q-V-T," or quality, value, timing, is the basis of his investment philosophy.

"In the stock market," says Wright, "the competent investor can expect an average total return — dividends and capital appreciation — of from 8 per cent to 10 per cent a year. This from blue-chips, not speculations."

"By following sound, proven, professional investment methods he can increase that return to as much as 15 per cent a year. At that rate, he can double his money every five years if he compounds his profit."

"With an investment of as little as $100 a month and immediate reinvestment of all dividends and capital gains, a 25-year-old person can be worth just about $1 million by retirement at age 65."

"His total investment from personal savings will be only $48,000; the $1 million will be net, after payment for all-income taxes."

This is how your money would grow, assuming you achieve that 8 per cent or 15 per cent return each year and reinvested all dividends and capital gains. Brokerage commissions are deducted, but taxes are not.

At an average annual return of 8 per cent, compounded quarterly, your original investment after 20 years would be $24,000 but it would have a market value of $58,132. After 30 years, $36,000 and $146,477. After 40 years $48,000 and $341,549.

If you achieve a 15 per cent return, and Wright maintains you should strive for nothing less, your original investments would be the same, of course, but your market values would be $144,103 after 20 years, $656,000 after 30, and $2,883,924 after 40.

Now the taxes. If you earned 15 per cent for 40 years and paid income taxes from your portfolio each year, your net worth would be just under $1 million. This assumes taxes will remain about where they were in 1970.

However, if you prefer to borrow against the portfolio to pay your taxes each year and then pay only interest on the loans until you make a total repayment at age 65, you would have a portfolio of close to $2 million. Feel better? Now get to work.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

Heed Florence Kerckhoff's snappy summary of current education. And never "shut up" about the superb contributions of the past generation to America's Paradise. Each new crop of youngsters must be taught afresh the merits of "free enterprise" and "elbow grease."

CASE V-588: Prof. Florence Kerckhoff is an expert in child psychology.

And I especially relish her "horse sense."

At Purdue University's annual Women's Day, a debate was scheduled on child-rearing.

"We spend $40,000 on each baby," quipped Prof. Kerckhoff, "and make the last payment on our child's education just in time to hear him lash out against our materialism!"

You readers have heard the repeated attacks by hippie elements against what the older generation has produced.

But you can easily make them back down!

For our older generation has raised the standards of living higher than ever before in mankind's history. Hippies have merely polluted it!

Our generation has zoomed agricultural output to the point where billions of surplus bushels must be stored in government granaries.

It has offered children free public education from Kindergarten through college, though no such free education was available to George Washington, Benjamin Franklin or Thomas Jefferson.

And the 8th grade curriculum wasn't even adopted nationwide till 1850.

Moreover, the U.S. Supreme Court didn't sustain the levying of taxes for free public high schools till 1878.

Despite the pollution of our highways with hippie beer cans, their empty cigarette packages and other garbage, we still offer Americans the safest drinking water in all history!

Never before have old people been placed on a comfortable pension, now labeled Social Security!

And telephones, automobiles, movies, radio, TV, newspapers and airplanes are a product of our past generations.

Hippies didn't invent them!

The explorers on the moon are not a product of ANYTHING the hippie generation has produced! Instead, it is a reflection of the "elbow grease" and "old math" as well as "old teaching methods" that produced the lush materialism these lazy hippies now want for free!

Have the hippies ever evolved heart transplants or polio vaccines or hybrid corn or insecticides, weed killers for farmers, and the Pure Food Laws of the U. S. A.?

About all the hippie generation has produced is cacophony, chaos and confusion!

Plus more head lice and drug addiction!

Alas, we of the older generation have subsidized and "wet nursed" this generation of hippies without making them expend the elbow grease and long hours of toil that we underwent to let them loaf in this Land of Paradise.

We even permit them to spout off at the mouth in obscenities and vulgar 4-letter words that would send them to the salt mines of Siberia if they were living under the Communism they profess to admire.

We have made the grave error of believing the old adage that says:

"If you want to be seen, stand up."

"If you wish to be heard, speak up."

"But if you want to be appreciated, shut up!"

So we have "shut up," assuming any intelligent kids would absorb the fact that our "Free Enterprise" economic system and Republic have done far more good for mankind than Socialism, Communism or all Dictatorships.

So let's begin to speak up in stern tones and quit mollifying the drones that now clutter up civilization's progress!

Send for my booklet "How to Save Our Republic" (Americans Must Never "Shut Up"), enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover mailing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Legislature To Consider Marijuana Use Laws

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — At least half of the members of the new legislature that answered an Associated Press questionnaire favor reduction of the penalty for first-offense marijuana possession.

One new member, Rep. Ron Waters of Houston, says he will introduce legislation "decriminalizing marijuana," which is another way of saying he wants to legalize it.

Many said the first offense should be a misdemeanor rather than a felony, and a few of those also said it should be made retroactive so that those in prison for first offense could get out.

Several said nothing about marijuana but advocated stronger laws for drug pushers.

Rep. William Blythe of Houston spelled out his marijuana position in considerable detail:

"I do not favor legalizing marijuana and also I do not favor making the use of marijuana a misdemeanor straight across the board. However, I do believe that the laws should be so written so as to give the judge and jury latitude in determining one's punishment.

"As an example, one who has no record of previous violation of state laws might receive a misdemeanor sentence; whereas one who has consistently been in conflict with the laws of this state might receive severe punishment for the use of marijuana."

"Stronger policing force" is the solution to drug abuse problems in the opinion of Rep. Elmer Tarbox of Lubbock.

Several said they favored bringing back the death penalty for certain crimes.

Those in the Senate who answered that question affirmatively are Don Adams of Jasper, Chet Brooks of Pasadena, Nelson Wolff of San Antonio and John Traeger of Seguin.

House members who expressed themselves on that question favored restoration 10-

For: Tom Massey, San Angelo; Forrest Green, Corsicana; Dean Cobb, Dumas; Doyle Willis, Fort Worth; Milton Fox, Houston; E.L. Short, Tahoka; Dan Kubiak, Rockdale; Don Cavness, Austin; Larry Vick, Houston; and Bill Clayton, Springlake.

Against: Anthony Hall, Houston; Paul Ragdale, Dallas; Ron Waters, Houston; and Jim Clark, Pasadena.

Willis would restore the death penalty for "rape, killing law enforcement officers and some other crimes."

Vick favors it for "certain capital crimes," but it is unlikely that he meant legislative wrongdoing.

Clayton's answer was the bluntest: "Restore Death penalty," with a capital "D."

Adams said he favored restoration "along the guidelines recommended by the Supreme Court" and he also said he intended to introduce a bill creating a true-life sentence.

Liberalizing or abolishing abortion laws got more than twice as much support in the questionnaire as retention of the present law, which has been declared unconstitutional but is on appeal. The present law permits abortion only to save the mother's life.

"Abortion is a matter that should be left up to a woman, her doctor and her God," said

Rep. elect Anthony Hall of Houston.

Short was adamant against changing the abortion law: "Nothing has to be done. So leave it alone."

Several legislators said they would support complete revision of the Penal Code. Others specified that they backed the revision recommended by the State Bar of Texas.

Free watches and clocks!

From $10,000 to more than $100 million in 44 years! We're proud of this record at Security Federal, and we'd like to thank-you, our customers, who have made our growth possible. We welcome the opportunity of serving you at any time.

Open or add to your Security Federal account with $500 or more, and choose a distinctive watch or a handsome clock—all with electronically timed, precision jeweled, imported movements, and guaranteed for one year.

Watch for it! Our third office will open soon at Western Square 45th and Tekla.

Also available—1000 free trading stamps with $250 or more: your choice of Buccaneer or Gold Bond.

Limit one free gift per customer please while quantities last at each office, through January 31. Offer available for new accounts and additions only, dividend and certificate transfers not included. Federal regulations permit one free gift per customer per year. Sorry, items not available for mailing.
