Christ Comes First

This is not for those older unfortunates who have lost their wonders. Let's leave them to their doubts, their scandals and their despairs. Let's even send them out of the room - lest they hear things they are too old to understand.

Is the door closed?

Well, then, the secret messege is that Santa Claus is sad — and even embarrassed. He may leave the world if things do not change. To understand this, let's tell his story from the beginning.

It did not begin with him. It began with a Child born in a manger, who came to restore joy to the world that had lost hope. But for the Child, a man named Nicholas would never have become Saint Nicholas and finally Santa Claus. Because he loved the Child, Nicholas loved all children - and even grown people. And it became his custom to make little gifts in the name of the Child. Thus he became greatly beloved and the people would not let him die. Instead, he became a Saint and the Spirit of Giving; and because he is a spirit he can be everywhere at once and the smallest chimney cannot stop him - not even a floor furnace.

But one thing can drive him from the world: it is to forget what Christmas really is. And people are forgetting. Unless Christ comes first at Christmas, Santa Claus may cease to come at all.

Another Holy Night is nearing, with its fullness of wonder, expectancy and spirit voices. And nothing sacred is hurt on that enraptured evening if there seems to be the sound of bells and the fleeting shadow of a merry little saint who loved children.

But Christmas is Christ's birthday and only His enemies and ours want Santa Claus to steal the party.

An Unsound Theory

Rationing of foods and goods is dead in this country. But that does not mean it is dead as a subject for discussion. There are still many people who, for one reason or another, are in favor of the rationing idea and the other government controls that must always accompany it. And there is no doubt that should another real or alleged emergency occur, there would be an intensive effort to establish another OPS or OPA, and try the economic controls again.

William Henry Chamberlin recently wrote an effective article on rationing for the Wall Street Journal. He dealt with its undeniable results, rather than with the theoretical arguments pro and con. The occasion was the news from England that food rationing there will be entirely ended by next May or before. The government, since Sir Winston Churchill and his Conservatives returned to power, has been dropping rationing restrictions on a step by step basis and finally has reached its ulti-

"Last summer," Mr. Chamberlin said, "there was a final ghastly exhibition of what rationing always does to the consumer." A meat called ewe mutton, cut from ancient ewes, flooded the market. Apparently everyone agreed that it was unspeakably repulsive to the taste buds. But the ministry wouldn't give an inch. If the people didn't buy and eat the current supply, it announced, they'd just have to eat more of the ghastly stuff in the future. An ironical sidelight was that zoo officials turned the ewe mutton down, because animals disliked

Mr. Chamberlin observed, "Obviously under a free market system nothing-like the ewe mutton debacle, only one of many of its kind, could have occurred. The private meat merchant who would stock up with such inferior meat would find it left on his hands with a heavy loss."

Then he dealt with the undeniable fact that when government officials get great power, such as rationing and other sweeping economic controls, they hate to let it go. According to him, some time after the war the head of OPA "Summed up the bureaucrat's creed with the assertion: 'Stabilization is more important than steaks'." Here Mr. Chamberlin commented, "What is meant, when broken into plain English, is that the important thing was to set a theoretically desirable price for steak. Whether many, few or no customers would find a steak to buy at this price was a matter of secondary

He also pointed out a fact which does not seem to be generally known in this country. West Europe started to get rid of rationing almost as soon as the war was over. And the countries which have done the most to free their economies are those which have recovered most notably — such as Belgium, Switzerland, and West

Finally, Mr. Chamberlin clearly expressed the basic argument against the rationing idea when he wrote. There is nothing to be said for rationing as an economic or social measure except when natural disaster or wartime siege conditions create an unavoidable shortage of food. Artificial levelling is always downward, not up-

NOT OUR WILL -BUT THY WILL

That is why I cannot help asking - how can the United Nations comprising it still believe in robbery and interference with personal rights? Can crime addicts be expected to accomplish more for the world as a gang than as lone

All history proves that unless God-given individual rights are honored as limits to what government may do, officials will continue to misuse political power, destroy life and liberty and property, cause war, and wreck nations including their own.

In the name of "doing good," who will believe men can do so many wrong things under God's laws - in God's judgment - and have any lasting good come of it? Have not we men forgotten: - it is not our will - but Thy will be done on earth?

Now you say, "What can we do about it? - Can't we have a positive program?" I believe the an-"Yes."

1. Shouldn't we begin with ourselves? Should we not each be sure that we, individually, are right with God? That should keep us all busy for a while.

2. Shouldn't we stop trying to do good according to our various personal opinions? Shouldn't we first decide whether we are right or wrong according to God's standards and laws?

3. Shouldn't we stop advocating stealing and coveting by government and its agents? And - in addition - shouldn't we see that we ourselves refrain from accepting legally stolen money:

4. Shouldn't we stop trying to build a larger graven image tions super-government? For as long as there is not a single nation on the face of the earth that believes as we once did - that human beings get their rights from God and not from government officials - how can there be a lasting peace?

5. Shouldn't we, as Americans, stop relinquishing our own individual God-given rights to govern-ment officials? If we don't stop, can America - the Christian spirit of liberty - the last best hope of earth - continue to survive? 6. Shouldn't we, as Americans, stop worshipping the golden calf of government, and lead a worldwide spiritual movement back to God?

7. Shouldn't we, first and last, insist that our own government once again recognize God's purpose for government. Then, like God's purpose in government, by our own example. We may thereby cultivate in men's minds the desire for liberty - while teachpose for government . . . only

You helped us last Christmas...will you help us again?

Christmas holidays are by far the busiest time of the year for long distance operators.

You don't know how much your cooperation helped us handle last year's flood of holiday calls. We appreciate your thoughtfulness.

Switchboards will be tremendously busy again this year. We'll have a full force of operators on the job to handle your calls.

If you're planning to make a long distance Christmas call, will you help us as you did last year? These three suggestions will mean better service for you:

1. PLEASE CALL BY NUMBER.

2. PLEASE CALL EARLY. Switchboards will be less crowded before 5 p.m. Christmas Eve.

3. PLEASE AVOID CHECKING BACK on your call as it may actually cause delays.

Thank You . . . and Merry Christmas

Where has she gone since yesterday—And left us lonely here?
Tonight sne seems so lar away who yester-eve was near.
No map of ours, on ses or land, her journeyings may trace;
We only know she's reacted her home and seen her Father's face.

And Oh! She knows since yesterday, and she'll be learning fast;
The mists of earth are cleared away,
The mysteries are past.
The sun of truth in radiance glows
All shadowless and bright,
Undimmed by any cloud of earth,
Undarkened by it's night.

And she has grown since yesterday, And she'll be growing still; The bonds of time and sense and space
That irked her eager will
Were dropped like shackles from the soul
In that first upward flight, In that first upward flight, The weary body frets no more The spirit, freed and light.
