MARSHALL AWARDED PRIZE

Reds Demonstrate At Norway Event

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 10.—UP—Communist agitators Thursday staged a rowdy anti-American demonstration inside Oslo's University Hall at the moment Gen. George C. Marshall was presented with the Nobel peace prize. Agitators showered the audience with leaflets tossed from balconies of the large hall and shouted anti-Marshall and anti-American slogans. The demonstration began at the moment Marshall arose from his seat to accept the coveted award. Royalty Attends King Haakon VI and Crown Prince Olav witnessed the demonstration staged by the Reds as the former American secretary of state was presented with the prize in recognition of his statesmanship in fathering the post-war Marshall Plan for rehabilitating war-torn European nations. As Chairman Gunnar Jahn said: "On behalf of the Norwegian committee I have the honor to... voice from the rear gallery of the hall interrupted with the shout: 'No, No! This is no action of peace.' Persons standing near the person who shouted grabbed him and dragged him out of the hall. Showers Leaflets But before they seized him he showered several hundred leaflets on the startled audience below. Another agitator shouted a similar protest from the opposite side of the hall and began tossing leaflets from the gallery. He also was seized by members of the audience and was thrust outside where a small group of street demonstrators were assembled. Marshall had just been lauded in the presentation speech as an humanitarian with "a clear and passionate understanding that the only objective to be obtained by war... is to make another war impossible." He was selected by the Nobel committee as the man who did most in 1953 to promote brotherhood among nations.

Atom Sources Feel Ike's Plan Can Pay Off

Deserts Fertile, The Hungry Fed, Disease Beaten

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—UP—Atomic sources Thursday saw in President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace plan a vision of deserts made fertile, hungry peoples fed, diseases conquered, and even the specter of war exorcised. Given an honest test, they said, the President's plan might some day convince the world that atomic energy is far too valuable for the peacetime needs of man for any nation to think of wasting it in war.

President Eisenhower himself manifested such hopes in Tuesday's United Nations address proposing that Russia, the United States, Great Britain and Canada set up and contribute to an international "uranium bank" whose resources would be used "to serve the needs rather than the fears of the world." Russia's first reaction was distinctly hostile but American leaders noted that Soviet Union has not formally rejected the plan. They hoped for a Soviet change of heart.

Might Work Together

What the President was proposing was a means by which the East and West might, in a small way at first, get into the habit of working together "to serve the peaceful pursuits of mankind."

In such a climate, he said, they might eventually find "a new channel for peaceful discussion," and "at least a new approach" to the deadlocked issue of atomic disarmament. Meanwhile, he said the atom would be working instead of fighting.

"Experts would be mobilized," the President said, "to apply atomic energy to the needs of agriculture, medicine, and other peaceful activities."

"A special purpose would be to provide abundant electrical energy in the power-starved areas of the world."

"Serve Needs, Not Fears" "Thus the contributing powers would be dedicating some of their strength to serve the needs rather than the fears of the world."

Mr. Eisenhower did not fill in details of his plan, and U. S. diplomats and atomic officials have not yet made the necessary extensive studies which would be necessary before it could be set up.

Russians Reject Ike's 'Christmas' Proposal

Want Prohibition Of Atom Weapon

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 10.—UP—The Russians curtly rejected President Eisenhower's "Christmas present" offer of peaceful development of the atom Thursday but amazed and concerned United Nations diplomats hoped it did not represent the Kremlin's final stand. Russian Delegate Andrei Vishinsky cast a pall over the closing moments of the UN General Assembly Wednesday when he said the President's plan could not be considered "without the unconditional prohibition of the atomic weapon and strict international control."

Moscow radio echoed him in even stronger vein, charging that Mr. Eisenhower had "threatened atomic war."

Both Spoke on Orders

Their concerted action left no doubt that both spoke on orders directly from the Kremlin. Nevertheless, the UN diplomats said Mr. Eisenhower had scored a major victory.

They said his plan directing international energies, including Russia's, toward development of the atom for agriculture, medicine and power, would convince even the fence-sitters that the United States was working constructively toward peace.

Moscow radio's attack on the Eisenhower plan was delivered by the Soviet's leading propaganda commentator, Boris Leonov. He said: "Eisenhower threatened atomic war and made a eulogy of this policy of force."

Says Position Clear

"It is clear that the United States does not want to bring about a relaxation of strained international relations."

Most diplomats declined comment.

SEATTLE, Dec. 10.—UP—A Minn. man to join her in prayer, flew toward Tokyo Thursday in an attempt to arrange a face-to-face meeting with her young son, who has refused to return from a Communist prison camp.

Mrs. Fortia Howe, Alden, Minn., left here Wednesday night after being informed the United Nations command in Korea would be "happy" to hear her appeal to see her son, Pic. Richard R. Tennessee.

A UN command spokesman emphasized that Mrs. Howe's reunion with her son would be difficult to arrange and still faced many obstacles.

Tennessee, 20, is one of 22 American prisoners of war who have so far turned thumbs down on being returned to their native country.

"I feel I represent the mothers of all of them," said Mrs. Howe. "I know it can't be accomplished without prayer. Some mothers lose hope but this is a spiritual thing because by accepting communism you reject God."

Mrs. Howe is due to arrive in Tokyo Friday afternoon. Explanations to the 22 Americans requiring repatriation, including her son, are expected to start at Panmunjon, Korea, next week.

"This is going to be a heart-rending ordeal for the mother no matter what happens," said one headquarters officer in Tokyo.

Three cases were settled out of court Wednesday. W. D. Cates, 45, and Lloyd A. Beebe, 32, 250 in damages against insurance companies.

On file this morning in the office of District Clerk Helen Sprinkle was a suit, J. T. Richardson vs. Navajo Drilling Company, for the damage suit, Richardson charges that Navajo owes him $826 in dismantling of an oil-field derrick on Palmer No. 1 lease near Aztec, N.M.

DALLAS, Dec. 10.—UP—A year-old Dallas father saved three small children from burn to death Wednesday night when he ran through fire to rescue them from their home.

Raymond Grindele, who suffered second-degree burns on his hands and feet, told firemen was cleaning a washing machine motor with gasoline in the family's guest-room apartment. The fully burning Grindele and his year-old wife.

Court To Study Negro Question

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—UP—The Supreme Court is expected to deliberate for several weeks before deciding whether white and Negro children are to sit side by side in public schools.

The high tribunal took this explosive social issue under advisement Wednesday after hearing three days of arguments by attorneys representing Negro parents on one side and states with school segregation laws on the other. The legal battle climaxed a 30-year effort by Negro leaders to place before the court this question: Is racial segregation in itself unconstitutional—as a badge of inferiority—even though colored schools may be as good as white, or even better?

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People estimates that if the court overturns the education laws in the 21 states which either require or permit segregated schools, 2.5 million Negro children and 10 million white children will be affected.

The court heard renewed arguments in five test cases brought by Kansas, Delaware and the District of Columbia. The Negroes rely on the 14th Amendment to the Constitution which forbids states to deny any person "the equal protection of the laws."

Attorney General H. Albert Young of Delaware said the states' case by urging the court to deny any person "the equal protection of the laws."

leave the question "where Congress originally left it—in the state legislatures."

"The problem is a legislative one, not a judicial one," he said. Thurgood Marshall, 45, Negro attorney who for many years has spearheaded the Negroes' legal drive for racial equality, ended with these words:

"All men are created equal and we believe that under the protection of this court, we, too, are equal."

McCarthy Asks HST To Debate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—UP—Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy challenged Harry S. Truman Thursday to agree to a face-to-face debate on the question of Communist infiltration of the former President's administration.

He announced that he will gladly accept a debate invitation from the law school students forum at Harvard University providing Mr. Truman does the same.

There was no immediate comment from Mr. Truman. But observers here believe he will decline on the grounds such a debate would be out of keeping with his position as a former president.

McCarthy showed reporters a letter from Herchel Shanks, co-ordinator for the forum, inviting him to take part in a public debate with Mr. Truman.

The former President and the Wisconsin senator have clashed continually over the Communist-infiltration issues, most recently in the controversy over the Harry Dexter White spy case.

Shanks suggested the debate be held at Harvard next March 5. But he said that any date acceptable to both men would be considered.

He proposed a session in which McCarthy and Mr. Truman would each deliver a prepared 30-minute talk and then question each other for another half hour. Then there would be a short period of questions from the floor.

Any public encounter between the Communist-hunter and the former chief executive would be a guaranteed sensation. The feud between the two men has been deep, prolonged and acrid.

Police Hold Pampa Boy; Seek Second

Pampa police today were holding a teen-age Pampa boy and searching for another in connection with the theft of an automobile and the robbery of its owner.

The youth was arrested about 10 o'clock this morning after officers in three counties had searched for the boys until 3 a.m. today, police said.

J. D. Traylor, Panhandle, told police the following story: He met a boy at Peg's cabaret, 412 S. Snyder, Wednesday night at about 10 o'clock. The boy promised to help him find a place to live south of Pampa.

Traylor drove off in Traylor's automobile and stopped at a drive-in restaurant, where they met another boy in a pickup truck. After taking the pickup truck to its driver's home, they drove about 10 miles south of town, where the boys told Traylor they were going to take his car.

One of the two youths drove the car. They took him to White Deer then north of White Deer before returning to Pampa. They released Traylor at the stock yard east of Pampa, after taking about $3 from him. They then drove off in his car after holding him prisoner about two hours.

At 12:45 a.m. today, about 30 minutes after Traylor reported the incident to police, Hutchinson county officers reported that they had spotted the car east of Borger and chased it to a side road leading to the Sky-Tex camp, where the youths abandoned the car and fled on foot.

Officers refused to give details of the questioning. Nor would they say if the man was arrested as "one of several leads" police said they have in the case.

The body of Harvey B. Allen, husky 23-year-old former Latta, S.C., high school football player, was found Wednesday night stuffed in an abandoned well on the property of State Sen. Clyde Graham. The discovery ended a two-day search that started with the finding of the beheaded remains of Betty Claire Cain and a blood-stained automobile in which the couple apparently had been parked.

Arthur Godfrey's Not Apologetic Over Wandering Canine's Actions

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—UP—Arthur Godfrey refused to take responsibility Thursday for what happened "in the dark of the moon" in his dog kennel near Leesburg, Va.

A Connecticut housewife, Mrs. Yvonne Goldsmith, accused Godfrey of violating a "solemn pledge" when he let his Weimaraner hunting dog, "Splash," father a non-Weimaraner pup.

Mrs. Goldsmith, a founder of the Weimaraner Club of America, indicated that owners of the rare breed regard the incident as serious. She said she was shocked when Godfrey told his television audience that "They are: Fiddle-dee-dee."

Hospital Wards Need Small Prizes

At a Red Cross meeting Wednesday of the Amarillo, Clarendon and Pampa chapters at the Amarillo Air Force Base, Mrs. F. W. Shotwell, Pampa Red Cross secretary, was advised of the need of small prizes for ward parties given for the men in the base hospital. The Red Cross nurse, Miss Libby McGregory, stated that the men need such items as fountain pens, ballpoint pens, key rings, stationery, novels, cookies and especially three cent stamp books. There are no stamp machines on the base and many of the men do not have relatives in the area to bring them stamps. Anybody willing to send any of the above gifts should contact the Pampa office. Mrs. Shotwell advised the group that Pampa chapter will send $10 for Christmas decorations for the hospital chapel and plans for a hand-drawn Grey Lady Council were discussed.

Survivors include the husband, a son, James, two sisters, Mrs. Howard Buckner, Jr., of Pampa; and Mrs. J. E. Fitzpatrick, Greenfield; a brother, L. R. Williams, Seattle, Wash.; and her mother, Mrs. L. A. Sims, Banning, Calif.

Big Snow Storm Crosses Midwest

Sub-freezing temperatures followed one of the season's worst snow storms as it blew eastward across the Midwest. Five inches of snow were dumped on Lansing as the storm front moved into Michigan. Flurries fell in Indiana and Ohio. Nine inches fell in parts of Iowa. Cold air in the wake of the storm set temperatures in the country's midsection skidding below freezing as far south as Texas. West of the Rocky Mountains and east of the Appalachians, the weather was mild with rain in the northeast and northwest. Five persons were killed in two plane crashes in Illinois as the storm moved east Thursday. Alexander S. H. Bender, 32, and his son, A. Chaney Bender, 22, died when their private plane crashed into a house and burned near Channahon. Two Washington University students, Arnold Goodman, 30, and Ronald Goldberg, 24, and their debate coach, Thomas E. Fingeld, were killed when their plane crashed after taking off at Champaign. Fifty grade school children were saved when two trees stopped their school bus from plunging into the Fox River near Algonquin, Ill., after it skidded on a rain-slicked highway. Twelve of the children were injured in the accident.

Hereford Breeders To Meet Saturday

The Top of Texas Hereford Breeders' association board of directors will meet Saturday at noon in the Blue Room of the Schneider Hotel. It was announced today by Dr. M. C. Overton, Jr., resident. The meeting, originally scheduled for today, was postponed until Saturday, he said. Plans for the association's show and sale next month will be discussed.

Big Snow Storm Crosses Midwest

Sub-freezing temperatures followed one of the season's worst snow storms as it blew eastward across the Midwest. Five inches of snow were dumped on Lansing as the storm front moved into Michigan. Flurries fell in Indiana and Ohio. Nine inches fell in parts of Iowa. Cold air in the wake of the storm set temperatures in the country's midsection skidding below freezing as far south as Texas. West of the Rocky Mountains and east of the Appalachians, the weather was mild with rain in the northeast and northwest. Plans To Inspect McLean Cafeteria

City-County Sanitarian L. E. West this morning was planning to go to McLean and inspect the grade school cafeteria — without any results from the Texas Health Department in Austin on the Thanksgiving Eve food. "I'll wait for the morning mail," he said, pointing out that Austin health officials had promised him the results on the food samples he had sent by last Monday or Tuesday.

"The results might have been sent to McLean," he commented, adding that he wouldn't bother to call but would just go anyhow to make the monthly inspection.

An estimated 150 persons were affected after the meal. West sent samples of the food to Austin for laboratory checks.

DALLAS, Dec. 10 —UP—The American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors reported Thursday a total of 3,044 rigs were active in the United States and Canada during the week ending Dec. 8.

The total was up 74 from the previous week, and compared with 2,888 active in the same week of 1952.

The Rocky Mountains, where there was a decline of five rigs to 290, was the only region reporting a drop.

The Dec. 8 totals for other principal oil areas, with the weekly increase, were: Pacific Coast 187, an increase of 12; Oklahoma 385, two; Kansas 165, 11; Canada 158, one; Gulf Coast 600, eight; Illinois 165, 25; and North Texas 365, six.

'XPWs' Pick New Heads

Two Amarilloans and a Pampan are the new officers for the Panhandle chapter of the American Ex-Prisoners of War, Inc. W. H. Arterburn and George D. Idlett, both of Amarillo, take over the posts of president and vice president. Art Baker, of 413 Graham, a Cabot employe, is the new secretary-treasurer. Elections came this week in Amarillo.

Pampa's Association of Life Underwriters will host Saturday to two speakers from Amarillo at a noon luncheon in the Pine Room of the Schneider Hotel.

Tris Coffin, manager of the Amarillo Better Business Bureau and formerly associated with the Cleveland and Boston Better Business bureaus, will speak on bonus-type insurance policies.

Ralph Cooley, general agent for the General American Life Insurance Company in Amarillo, will speak on the need for legislation to correct the ills which now exist in the life insurance business. An agent for 33 years, he has been a quality award winner for many years and is a former member of the Million Dollar Round Table.

An automobile which had been reported as stolen has been recovered, Chief of Police Jim Conner said today.

The car, owned by Roy Everson, Eldorado, Okla., was found parked behind the Comer Service Station, 600 E. Foster, by Deputy Sheriff Shirley Nickols.

Everson told police that he had parked the car early Monday morning near the Tex. Evans Buick company, 123 N. Gray.

Shut-Ins To Hear Christmas Carols

Pampa will have Christmas carolers going to homes of shut-ins the night of Dec. 22. Singing will be 25-36 members of the Top of Texas chapter of the Society for Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

Bunny Shultz, chapter president, late this morning said his group plans to make "every effort" to visit homes with shut-ins who requested that Christmas carols be sung. But he emphasized that the singing would be for shut-ins only.

Any shut-in who wants the barbershoppers to include his home on their rounds that night is asked to write him care of Radio Station KPDN, "the earlier the better."

Shultz said that the barbershoppers figured it would be better to go house-to-house than to the city's hospitals as was done last year.

Asked if barbershoppers would wear any particular costume for the caroling, Shultz, with a thought of Christmas weather, said: "Overcoats and earmuffs, probably."

Thomas Wins Award In TV

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 10 —UP—On Danny Thomas' Mantel Thursday lands a gold statuette, and as he atted it with tears in his eyes he said, "This means I can oil up the swimmer."
Danny, a newcomer to those television family comedies, walked away with the annual coveted Wyania Award for the best TV comedy show of the year. Now, beamed, for the first time in his up-and-down career he can give to his old standby, nightclub work, and stay home for a change.
"I can unpack my trunk," he said. "I'm home now."
Danny's ABC program started only nine weeks ago and snared the award after five shows. But he comedian feels the glory he had a longer pull behind it, because he had three failures to be down first.
He didn't make the top in radio MGM movies years ago or in his first try at TV on NBC in a raught comedy-variety show.
"Three times I retreated, in ordinary fashion," orated Danny, who dinks in "wailing syrian" fashion as he does in his nightclub roudnes.
"Each time I went back to nightclubs. It was like going home to mother. You know how it is—you have a fight and you patch things up."
"This time when I started the new TV show I decided if it

Kidnap Suspect Under Observation

VINITA, Okla., Dec. 10 —UP—Tommie Dene Doughty, accused of kidnaping an Indiana baby, Wednesday began a 30-day observation period in eastern state hospital here.
Federal Judge Eugene Rice Tuesday ordered the Gainesville, Tex., girl sent here from Muskogee. He asked that a report be given him before the 30-day period ends.
Mrs. Doughty was brought to Vinita in custody of U.S. Marshal Paul Johnson and Deputy Marshal Lucille Frye.
The girl was indicted at Muskogee Monday by a federal grand jury on a charge she violated the Lindbergh kidnap law. She faces a maximum penalty of life imprisonment if convicted. She was found last month at the home of her parents in Bokchito, Okla., with five-month-old Richard Lee Stammer of Evansville, Ind.
The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Stammer, was not injured. Mrs. Doughty had been baby sitting with the boy in Evansville. She said she took him to replace her own child who died 14 hours after birth.

"I can unpack my trunk," he said. "I'm home now."
Danny's ABC program started only nine weeks ago and snared the award after five shows. But he comedian feels the glory he had a longer pull behind it, because he had three failures to be down first.
He didn't make the top in radio MGM movies years ago or in his first try at TV on NBC in a raught comedy-variety show.
"Three times I retreated, in ordinary fashion," orated Danny, who dinks in "wailing syrian" fashion as he does in his nightclub roudnes.
"Each time I went back to nightclubs. It was like going home to mother. You know how it is—you have a fight and you patch things up."
"This time when I started the new TV show I decided if it

Salty Old 'Colonel' Still Shows Eagerness To Fight

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 —UP—It was the day after Pearl Harbor. The "colonel" walked into the induction center and said he would like to get back into the fight.
The sergeant behind the desk told him, impolitely, he was too old to fight. The sergeant went back to his work wearing a busted beak.
The colonel, Warren Hardenbergh, at the time was only 80, Thursday, courting 93, if some thing awful happened and we faced World War III I'm sure he would look for another assy sergeant to bowl over.
Likes It Straight
The old colonel had been missing from his usual haunts around Washington for over a year. His cronies looked all over and even were so brazen as to go over the obits. Then all of a sudden, the old man showed up, whacked his cane on the table top and hollered:
"Make mine straight lead."
Where had the old man been? Well, he went down to look over a patch of sand he owns at Nags Head, N.C.
"Fishin' was no good," he said. "At least not at that time. So I messed around and chewed the fat with some old sea captains. Then I came down with the miseries."
Turned out the old-timer wound up in a veterans' hospital in West Virginia.
"Mighty fine place," he said. "But there was a fellow in the next bed, though, who threatened to beat me up account of my snorin'. That guy wishes he had held his tongue. My hands are old and sore, but this here cane is a pretty good weapon. I fixed him so he was too limp to even snore back. Never had any more trouble with him."
Long Time Ago
The colonel got mad when the Spanish-American war busted out and joined the U.S. Navy. Like most fighters do at one time or another, he wound up in a hospital.
"Some of those girls," he said, "were right pretty. One day they sent a bunch of them up to my ward to entertain us kids. They played some music and what do you reckon I did? I hopped out of the pad, and barefoot gave those entertainers my old jersey hop. With a pretty girl keeping step."
"Brought down the house," he said. "Nobody crossed me—they better not, ever, either."
The old man gets his colonel ranking from service at some distant time past in a couple of South American armies. He got most of his learning on the field of battle but he also picked up a few nuggets of knowledge at Rutgers.

A Hot Grounder
Could have been a major league ball player, he always said, except for an unfortunate incident. One day he was playing second base. There was a rule against smoking cigars on the field. He went to his place in the sun, smoking one. A hot grounder came his way. He became confused and, reaching for the ball, stuffed the cigar back in his mouth—lighted end to the tongue.
He got fired off the squad. It made the old colonel so mad he hasn't even SEEN a ball game since.
"Kid stuff," he says.

Norwegian Finds It Ain't Legal

HOLLYWOOD, Fla., Dec. 10 —UP—A made Norwegian and his secretary who were only the bottom half of a two-piece bathing suit said it was just an old Scandinavian custom when police arrested them on the beach for indecent exposure.
Carl Otto Lowenskiold, 52, and his secretary, Mrs. Blesvik As-rud, 33, both of Oslo, Norway, were robbed when they took a mid-afternoon dip only a few feet from another group of swimmers.
"I didn't know there was anything wrong with that," Lowenskiold protested. "It's quite proper in Norway."
Desk Sgt. Emil Joo retorted "That may be, but unfortunately we have laws against it here." The two were released after posting $25 bonds.

Radar Man Denies Communist Link

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10 —UP—Suspended Army radar expert Aaron H. Coleman denied under oath Wednesday that he ever belonged to the Young Communist League.
Coleman also vehemently denied that he ever met atom spy Julius Rosenberg after graduation from college in 1938.
Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy's investigating subcommittee questioned Coleman about testimony Tuesday by Nathan Sussman, admitted former member of the Young Communist League who said Coleman also was a member.
"Do you deny Sussman's testimony?" asked counsel Roy M. Cohn.
"I do," Coleman said.
Cohn also asked Coleman to comment on testimony by Rosenberg at the spy's trial that he had met Coleman, a former City College of New York classmate, at the Army radar laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N. J.
"I deny that!" snapped Coleman. "He didn't meet me."
Coleman's denials came after McCarthy said his case "parallels" that of the late Harry Dexter White because the Army ignored an FBI report on the scientist.

Western Europe Hails Ike Plan

LONDON, Dec. 10 —UP—Western Europe hailed President Eisenhower's atomic stockpile plan Wednesday as a new hope for peace which could save its cities from the nuclear destruction of the "terrible 20th century."
Newspapers here and on the continent, frequently critical of United States policy and pronouncements, reflected new faith in American leadership.
French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, arriving in Paris from the Bermuda Big Three conference, said of the President's plan:
"It clearly shows the spirit in which the Atlantic allies consider the anxious problem of the atom in war and peace."
"It is superfluous to tell you that the British prime minister and ourselves very warmly welcomed the suggestion of the American President."
Pending formal reaction after an official study of the President's speech to the United Nations assembly, a British foreign office spokesman said:
"It was a profoundly moving speech which seems to advance very constructive proposals on the atomic problem."
Well informed quarters here saw in the President's plan renewed hope for peace and prosperity. But it was emphasized that everything depends on Russia's attitude.

Wins While Losing

FORT WORTH, Dec. 9 —UP—B. H. Doggett lost the case he appealed but it saved him $165.
Doggett was fined $200 for violation of a sanitary ordinance and when he appealed the case the county court also ruled against him but reduced the fine to $35.

Plan Construction Of Pipeline System

EL DORADO, Ark., Dec. 10 —UP—Plans to construct a pipeline system from the Williston Basin of Montana were announced Thursday by C. E. Murphy.
Murphy, president of the Murphy Corp. of El Dorado, also heads a committee of Williston Basin producers which has commissioned Shell Pipeline Corp. to draw up preliminary plans by early next spring.
He said the pipeline had been tentatively named the Sioux pipeline system, and would provide an outlet for Williston crude.
Other companies represented on the committee were the Northern Pacific Railway, Placid Oil, Shell Oil, Socony-Vacuum Oil, Southern Production Co., Tidewater Associated Oil and, Woodley Petroleum.

Wake Up To More Comfort

Without Nagging Backache
Nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness may be due to slow-down of kidney function. Doctors say good kidney function is very important to good health. When some everyday condition, such as stress and strain, causes this important function to slow down, many folks suffer nagging backache—feel miserable. Minor bladder irritations due to cold or wrong diet may cause getting up nights or frequent passages.
Don't neglect your kidneys if these conditions bother you. Try Doan's Pills—a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 60 years. It's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief from these discomforts—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Jail Is A Luxury?

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 9 (UP)—Members of the legislature's select committee on reform institutions (jails) suggested a return to hard work and bread and water would ease the rash of minor offenses in order to spend the winter in jail. "In these days of abnormal prosperity, it doesn't seem right that a young man should be accorded the luxury of spending the winter in jail where it is warm and comfortable and the food is good," the Rev. A. W. Downer said.

Waco Residents Aid Vicksburg

WACO, Tex., Dec. 9 (UP)—Waco residents with the memory of a devastating tornado last May that killed 114 in the city, have contributed more than $1,000 for victims of the Vicksburg, Miss., tornado.

Waco Mayor Ralph Wolf asked the banks and chamber of commerce to start a fund for the Mississippi victims, and money has been rolling in since Monday. Jim Flynn, chairman of the fund-raising, said residents were not being solicited for funds, but that contributions were purely voluntary. More than $1,000 had been accepted through Tuesday.

Engineers Open Bids On Channel

GALVESTON, Dec. 10 (UP)—Army engineers will open bids Friday on dredging the Texas City channel and a portion of the turning basin in front of the state highway ferry landing at Port Bolivar, Tex.

The work is estimated to cost between $100,000 and $500,000, the district engineer's office said.

Engineers also announced these other bids will be received:

Dec. 18 — Replacement of sprinkler mains at Michoud Ordnance plant, New Orleans, La., estimated to cost between $100,000 and $500,000.

Dec. 18 — Remodeling and repairs of existing facilities at Michoud Ordnance plant, estimated to cost less than $100,000; repairs to north and south jetties at Brazos Island harbor near Port Isabel, Tex., estimated to cost between $500,000 and $1 million.

Jan. 4 — Furnish and deliver drill press unit, disc sander and grinder unit and tool grinding unit, estimated to cost less than $100,000.

Jan. 5 — Construction of park-

Union Leader Term Reversed

AUSTIN, Dec. 10 (UP)—A one-year prison sentence reversed a union organizer for alleged use of force and violence was reversed Wednesday by the Court of Criminal Appeals because the prosecution asked if he believed in God.

The high court ruled that Armando Ramirez, former agent of Houston Local 75, Distributive, Processing and Office Workers of America, should have a new trial.

Four witnesses, all former members of the Communist party, labeled the DPOWA as Communist influenced or dominated in hearings last week before the Texas ing apron at Ellington Air Force Base near Houston, Tex., estimated to cost between $100,000 and $500,000; construction of freight elevator at Michoud Ordnance plant, New Orleans, estimated to cost less than $100,000.

Jan. 7 — Construction of scrap metal handling facilities at Michoud Ordnance plant, estimated to cost between $100,000 and $500,000; construction of automatic sprinkler system at Michoud Ordnance plant, estimated to cost between $100,000 and $500,000.

Industrial Commission. A spokesman for the CIO denied the allegations, as did representatives of the union.

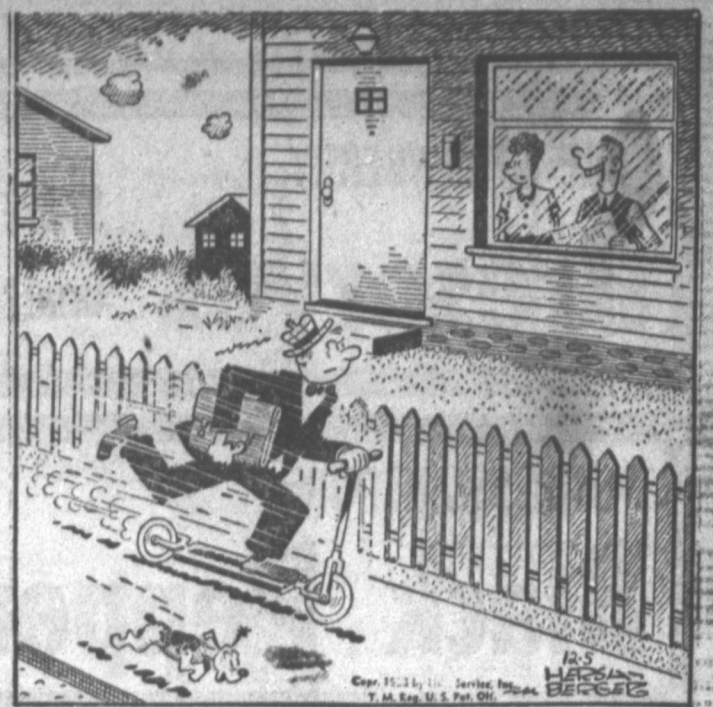

The action against Ramirez stemmed from an assault on Mary Garza, an employee at the time of the incident, of the Houston Bag and Burlap Co., Inc.

Ramirez was not present when the woman was assaulted.

However, she alleged that Ramirez threatened her on the previous day in connection with a discussion of her actions toward a labor dispute then in progress at the Burlap bag plant.

"There was sharp conflict," Associate Justice W. A. Morrison pointed out in the court's opinion, "between testimony of the state's witnesses and that of the appellant as to what occurred on May 12, 1951, on the occasion of appellant's visit to the Garza home, appellant denying that he made the threats attributed to him by Mary Garza on that occasion."

After defense objections were overruled, Ramirez testified in answer to a question from the prosecution:

"The auto installment collector has caught up with our neighbor again!"

Ballyhoo Man Really Sold On Big Show

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 10—UP—Frank Bredon, who talked his way across 60,000 miles on the road this year, is still talking when he ought to be gargling to ease the strain on his tonsils.

Frank, a little guy with a voice that sounds like a rusty meat grinder, makes a living by sounding off on the virtues of "The Greatest Show on Earth." That would be the Ringling Brothers and Barnum Bailey Circus.

"What's with—" I started. Frank wagged his tongue and set it wagging. "Let me tell you something," he said. "Maybe you thought the show in 1953 was double-super colossal, huh?"

"That's all I could get in. Big Animal Collection." "Well, sir," Frank went on, still wounding on his first wind, "the circus came out of the red this year. And why not? We had the biggest collection of animals under one tent. The best band on the road. The best acrobats. The most and the best clowns. The best pink lemonade."

"But how about—" "Shut up," said the little man. "I've got the mike. Nobody in the world can touch our brand of sawdust. Our biggest elephant can wolf more peanuts than any other elephant in the world. Our men-eating tigers hardly ever eat people. Show me a clown that can out-clown Emmet Kelly. Go ahead and show me. Show me another trained seal that can play the clarinet like our Susie. Show me another girl who can stand on her Maypole 40 feet in the air on a swinging swing."

"Finally broke in. "How about a bearded lady?" "Ain't Got One." "We ain't got one," he replied, passing that over quickly and getting back to more important things. "Well, as I said, you thought our show this year was great. Wait'll you see what we've got lined up for next year. John Ringling North has just returned from a talent hunt in Europe. He came back like he always does—with plenty. He brought 28 good acts—28, hear me! What ain't got the wordage to describe 'em. But I have—"

"Frank went on and on, like he has been going on for years and years a couple of hundred words a minute rolling his tongue whenever he can find an audience, which is every few minutes. The little fellow doesn't have all of the color of the lovable late Dexter Fellows, but he'll beat your excrement passable like until another Dexter comes along."

DOCTOR HONORED—Dr. Joseph I. Greenwell, of New Haven, Ky., has been named "family Doctor of 1953" by the American Medical Association, meeting in St. Louis, Mo. The 60-year-old doctor, still active and alert, has been calling on patients in the area for some 53 years.

Flays Probe On Reds in Texas

EL PASO, Dec. 9—UP—Texas' investigation of Communists in the labor movement fell "flat on its back" as an official of a union branded as Communist directed said Wednesday.

Silverio Alva, business representative of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' El Paso local, issued a statement on the investigation by the Texas Industrial Commission at Austin over the weekend.

"It is obvious that this so-called investigation was only a strike-breaking maneuver, designed to break a strike which Mine - Mill hasn't even the remotest connection," said Alva.

Big Three Summary Declares Divided Europe Unacceptable

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst
President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles proved themselves tough bargainers, and Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Joseph Laniel went away disappointed. Which seems to just about sum up the Bermuda conference.

Laniel did not get his guarantee that United States and British troops would remain forever in Europe. Churchill was unable to change the President's mind either about a meeting with Russia on the highest level or United States refusal to recognize Red China.

Summary Says Little
The official 1,000-word summary issued at the close of the conference was remarkable for how little it said, and, in any event, was overshadowed by the President's return to the United States and his surprise proposal before the United Nations for peaceful development of the atom.

But there was one paragraph worth special note. It said:
"We cannot accept as justified or permanent the present division of Europe. Our hope is that in due course peaceful means will be found to enable the countries of eastern Europe again to play their part as free nations in a free Europe."

Taken in the light of the Big Three agreement to hold a four-power foreign ministers' conference with Russia in Berlin—the first since the achievement of the Bermuda conference—it holds special significance.

It is reassurance to the enlabeled peoples behind the "Iron Curtain" that their hopes for the future will not be betrayed away by the Western Allies when they sit down with Russia in an attempt to write peace treaties for Germany and Austria.

A Warning
It was a warning, too, that whatever Russia demands, human rights will not be sacrificed. The last time a four-power meeting of foreign ministers was attempted was in 1951.

On that occasion, deputies of the foreign ministers met in March in Paris to work out an agenda. In midsummer and more than 70 meetings later, the deputies adjourned in hopeless disagreement and the foreign ministers' conference never was held.

Phillips Reports New Pay Formation

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Dec. 10—Phillips Petroleum Co. announced Wednesday it has discovered a new deep pay formation in the Easton Bay field, Flaque-mines parish in south Louisiana. The company reported its No. 6 Easterling well flowed at a daily rate of 373 barrels of oil through a small choke from perforations in a Miocene sand at 11,162-178 feet in the field.

The company said in addition to the deep discovery, the well indicated commercial production from the field's regular 9,100 feet Miocene pay zone.

Power Shovel Knocks Out Wire

PURCELL, Okla., Dec. 10—About 40 long-distance circuits between Oklahoma City and Ardmore were knocked out a mile and a half south of here Wednesday when a power-shovel swung into wires and poles.

Spokesmen for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. said a drag-line operated by a pipeline crew put the circuits out of commission at 9 a.m.

Repair crews hoped to have the lines back in service by afternoon.

Whose Totem Pole?
OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 9—IP—Canadian Indians complained that foreign made totem poles were causing them economic hardship. They said the souvenir totem poles being shipped into Canada were not marked as to their country of origin and Canadians presumably were purchasing them in the belief they were native totem poles.

The revenue department is studying the protest.

Ike's Plea Is Third Plan For Control Of Atom Bomb

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst
On Aug. 6, 1945, a grim and tense President Truman enroute home from a Big Four conference at Potsdam, made this announcement aboard the cruiser Augusta:
"The force from which the sun draws its power has been loosed against those who brought war to the Far East."
On that day the first atomic bomb ever to be dropped in anger fell on Hiroshima, Japan. It killed more than 78,000 men, women and children, injured more than 37,000 and left 13,000 missing. And ever since that first awful display of the atom's power, the world has looked fearfully for ways to control it.

A New Plan
Tuesday, another United States President, enroute home from another world conference, proposed to an attentive United Nations General Assembly a unique plan which he hoped might eventually save man from his own destructive genius.

It was unique because for the first time it placed its emphasis—not on the bomb—but on world cooperation to develop atom power for peace.

Previous plans had mentioned peace-time development of atomic power, but only as a secondary thought. First thought was on control of the bomb itself.

Until Tuesday there had been two main plans for atomic control. One was the Baruch Plan, named after Bernard M. Baruch, its originator, supported both by the United States and the United Nations.

The other was Russia's counter-proposal. The Baruch Plan provided for: 1. International ownership and control of all dangerous quantities of atomic material from mine to bomb.

2. Creation of an international control commission, empowered to make inspections at any time and any place and to order punishment for violators.

Weapons Not Outlawed
Atomic-hydrogen weapons would not be outlawed nor current stockpiles destroyed until the control system was fully and effectively operating.

Russian's plan differed primarily in that it demanded immediate passage of a UN resolution outlawing atomic, hydrogen and other weapons of mass destruction.

The Russians also vetoed any "surprise" inspections and said they must come at regular, stated intervals.

From time to time, the Russians coupled their atomic proposals with a demand for an across-the-board one-third cut in all armaments. Russia's refusal to submit to effective inspection, her suspicions of the West, and the West's own suspicion that the Russians plotted only to force an unarmed free world to its knees have, for seven years, prevented any atomic agreement.

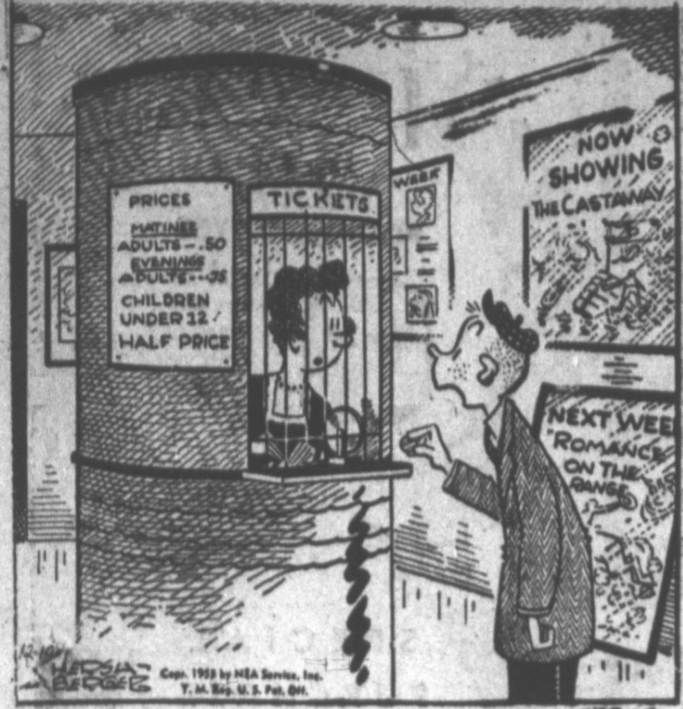

Now Mr. Eisenhower has suggested that each nation with atomic know-how, including Russia, contribute fissionable materials to an international stockpile devoted to peace—through which atomic energy would be directed toward the needs of agriculture, medicine and the relief of electric power shortages throughout the world.

Without Problems
And, the President felt, his proposal could be undertaken "without irritations and mutual suspicions."

But, lest the Communist world should think he spoke from weakness, he coupled his proposal with a warning.

He said America's daily increasing stockpile of atomic weapons now "exceeds by many times the explosive equivalent of the total of all bombs and all shells that came from every plane and every gun in every theater of war through all the years of World War II."

"It's just worrying about getting in on a children's ticket that makes me look older!"

Polio Vaccine Tests Slated

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 10—UP—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will choose areas where a polio vaccine will be tested before Jan. 1.

Basil O'Connor, president of the polio group, spoke Wednesday night before a dinner meeting of Oklahoma March of Dimes workers. He said the nationwide tests would cost $7.5 million and would involve giving shots to one million children in 200 counties. The counties will be selected on the basis of their polio records and the quality of their public health departments. Those having higher incidences of the disease will be favored.

The foundation will begin the tests in Southern states Feb. 8, and hopes to have the millionth shot administered by June 1, a date which O'Connor said usually marks the beginning of the "polio season."

In addition to the vaccine test, the national polio group will spend $10 million on gamma globulin, believed a temporary protection against infantile paralysis.

Two Killed In Car-Truck Crash

DALLAS, Dec. 10—UP—A car-bakery truck collision here Wednesday killed two persons and injured two others.

Police identified the dead as Natomia Mae Rowe, 72, and Graham Henry Williams, 57, a Negro, both of Dallas. Both died a few minutes after arriving at a hospital.

Injured were Martha King, 25, and Billy Smith, 28, both of Dallas.

Neither was believed seriously hurt. Mrs. Rowe, Williams and Martha King were riding in the car which collided with the bakery truck driven by Smith at an intersection.

Rotarians Hear Mythical Tour

Members of the Pampa Rotary Club were taken on a mythical tour of Alaska by way of slides and a lecture at their luncheon meeting Wednesday in the Palm Room of City Hall.
Edgar C. Raines, Seattle, Wash., who for 10 years was a special agent of the U. S. Treasury department in Alaska, gave a lecture on Alaska, illustrating the talk with slides, showing many interesting scenes of that territory.
Raines is currently concluding a 38-state lecture tour and expects to be back in Seattle by Christmas. He was introduced by Don Chain, program chairman.
Guests included E. N. Burns, Fort Worth; R. E. Whitten, L. W. Patton, Phil D. Phillips and J. R. Phillips, all of Berger; Roger R. Walton and C. W. Poole, both of Perryton; E. O. Wedge, worth, Waldon E. Moore, F. F. Kennedy and M. A. Graham, all of Pampa.
President E. S. Williams presided.

Comments On Ike's Talk

By UNITED PRESS
Editorial comment on President Eisenhower's address at the United Nations General Assembly:

New York Times — "Coming fresh from the Bermuda conference, which accepted the project of a conference with Soviet Russia, he (President Eisenhower) could outline all the more convincingly the many steps which the United States and its allies have taken and are still taking to find peaceful solutions for pending problems. His proposal for an international atomic stockpile represents a spectacular climax to these efforts."

Chicago Sun Times — "The offer should have the effect of a political bomb in the cold war and in the struggle for the minds of men that is being waged between the Communist world and the free world. Mr. Eisenhower offered the key to a glorious new world era of peace, health and prosperity based on atomic energy. . . a common sense first step toward eventual disarmament, if disarmament is at all possible. . . Russia has been challenged to prove its protestations of love for peace and humanity."

Dallas Morning News — "The Eisenhower plea is a splendid conception. But it has little chance of ending the atomic threat without foregoing the only precaution (worldwide inspection) we must have. . . it would be naive for us to ignore the character of the Russian government."

St. Louis Globe-Democrat — "His address was the most notable he has made since he became President. . . it was an address that carried appalling overtones. We may trust that it will be heeded by Russia."

New Orleans Times-Picayune — "President Eisenhower's speech . . . marks the beginning of an effort, backed by the strongest of the nations, to divert the main stream of atomic development from defense, war and destruction to the work of lightening the world's burdens. . . it offers in the long run the possible means of overcoming the adamant opposition of the Russians to the international inspection of armaments. Working with an international agency on atomic energy, the chances are that the Communists would soon learn that they have no worthwhile secrets to protect and even if they did it would hardly be worthwhile to hide them in a world collaborating on the means of keeping and safeguarding the peace and using their atomic energy resources to that end."

I am a little boy 5 years old. I had my tonsils out Friday and I was a good boy. Will you please bring me a road grader, farm set and two guns.
Robert Shugart

I am 3 years old and had my tonsils out Friday and I just cried a little bit. Will you please bring me a pony tail doll, a house coat and dishes.
Vicki Sue Shugart
Don't forget my baby sister.

I am a little girl of 6 yr. I go to school every day. I want you to please bring me a walkie talkie doll, some dresses and cookstove. I want you to bring my little brother a Topthat spin and sing, a doll and a car. I saw you and the reindeer at the Parade. Thank you Santa.

Enrollments At Colleges Show Slight Increase

WASHINGTON Dec. 10 —UP—Dr. Samuel M. Brownell, new U. S. commissioner of education, said Wednesday college and university enrollments rose 4.8 per cent this fall.

Brownell said 2,280,701 students are attending 1,871 higher education schools in the United States, Alaska, Guam, Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The schools' enrollment last fall was 2,148,234.

All types of schools, except theological and other independent professional institutions, showed gains, with the increases ranging from 3.8 per cent for universities to 13.1 per cent for teachers colleges. Brownell said the chief reasons for the increase in college students were: An all-time peak of high school graduates last spring, educational benefits for veterans, and efforts to interest high school students in continuing their education.

Table shows the 1953 enrollment for southwestern states with the percentage of change from 1952. (All are increases except figures preceded by a minus sign.)

Fortune Soldier In Trouble Again

PARIS, Dec. 10 —UP—American soldier of fortune Harold E. (Whitey) Dahl, who escaped execution by a Spanish firing squad in 1937 when his pretty blonde "wife" sent a fetching picture of herself to Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Wednesday was ordered to face gold theft charges in Switzerland.

Dahl, a pilot whose free-wheeling operations got him into trouble with Canadian as well as Spanish authorities, is accused of stealing $28,000 in gold bars from a Swiss air plane while serving as a pilot for the Swiss line.

He was arrested in France last Saturday and was held in Paris' bleak Fresnes prison until French and Swiss authorities agreed Wednesday that he should be tried in Switzerland rather than in France where the gold cargo he is accused of stealing originated.

Dahl's difficulties with Franco developed when he was shot down while flying as a "contract" fighter pilot for the Spanish Loyalists during the Spanish civil war. He was court martialed and ordered executed by a firing squad.

SCS Supervisors To Meet Friday

The board of supervisors of the Gray County Soil Conservation district will meet in the Soil Conservation Service office on the third floor of the court house here Friday at 2 p.m. It was announced today by W. B. Jackson, chairman.

Among routine matters to come before the board will be the annual audit of the district, he said.

The rattlesnake is the most widely distributed poisonous reptile in the United States.

Denver Hearing To Be Telecast

DENVER, Dec. 10 —UP—The U. S. Senate Judiciary committee's hearings into charges against the Justice Department in Denver's jury tampering case and juvenile delinquency this Saturday will be telecast locally — and, possibly, nationally.

Committee Chairman William Langer (R-N. D.) granted permission for the telecast of the hearings to KLTZ-TV, Denver, affiliate of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

KLTZ-TV spokesmen said the telecast will be available to the CBS television network. The investigation of the Justice Department's alleged refusal to allow the FBI to participate in preliminary investigation of jury tampering charges against Eugene and Clyde Smaldone, Denver gamblers, was the outgrowth of accusations made by U. S. District Judge Willis W. Ritter of Salt Lake City, the trial jurist.

The juvenile delinquency hearing is part of a nationwide study being made by the Judiciary committee before drafting legislation to cope with the problem.

Langer and Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) were scheduled to arrive in Denver Thursday, while Sen. Robert C. Hendrickson (R-N.J.), chairman of the subcommittee investigating juvenile delinquency, was expected to arrive Friday.

Leader Praises Citizen Soldiers

DENISON, Tex., Dec. 10 —UP—The commander of Texas' 56th National Guard Infantry Division believes his organization plays an important part in the defense of the nation.

Major Gen. Carl L. Phinney, division commander, said Tuesday at ground-breaking ceremonies for Corsicana's National Guard armory that citizen soldiers were the "only feasible solution" to the country's defense problems.

"The start of hostilities would be too late to begin to organize, train and equip an army," said Phinney. "The only feasible solution is the maintenance of a reasonably strong and a thoroughly trained army on active duty."

The armory is the first to be built in Texas since World War II. It will house Corsicana's National Guard units: Hq&Hq Battery of the 133rd Field Artillery Battalion, and Co. D of the 143rd Infantry.

TV Education

The problem of so-called "educational television," that is, the business of presenting for instruction, propaganda and other purposes, televised programs by the schools over ultra high frequency channels, brings a flood of new questions to be answered by proponents of the government having control of the schools.

In the recent meeting in Los Angeles, when members of the State Assembly subcommittee on television education conducted a hearing to attempt to obtain reports and opinions in order that they might frame new legislation considering television, a number of questions were left unanswered.

Aside from practical questions, such as how much will it cost? where will the money come from? will the money be taken from present school expenditures or added to the present cost? and other pertinent points, there was no discussion at all over the danger of the federal government stepping in and controlling the state school system.

Even those in favor of some sort of educational TV were not willing that the control should be taken from the local communities and objected to state control. Yet all of the stations would be directly under license by the Federal Communications Commission and subject to all of the control that lies with the grantor of a license — that it can be revoked at any time. In the instance of the FCC, there is little likelihood that the commission would give up its authority, even if it didn't exercise any control. Keeping in mind that it is the nature of bureaucracy to feed upon itself and to enlarge itself, we can safely assume that there would be wholesale expansion of the FCC to keep abreast of the monitoring and checking on all of the various stations to see that they conformed with FCC policy. It is hard to imagine the FCC permitting the continuation of an educational TV channel which devoted much of its time to showing how the FCC and other bureaucratic agencies of the government are costing countless billions and robbing the people of freedom at the same time. A station attempting to get this message across would soon lose its license, we predict.

The bland assumption of Maurice G. Blair, associate superintendent of the Los Angeles City School District, that:

"I trust no one would question the integrity of my board of education" is one that ought to give real alarm for Los Angeles residents. He also is happy to assume that teachers are "conservative patriotic citizens. I think they can be trusted." A much safer viewpoint, and one that has good basis in fact, is to assume that there is a real danger to the American system so long as school superintendents and boards of education will not answer questions about the things they are advocating "for the good of everyone."

Blair felt that it was up to the school system to force his ideas on education and culture down the throats of those captured by the television audience and that his own, apparently, particular brand of culture is the one that ought to be accepted and others rejected. In this regard we might point out that the "cultured" people of this country, by-and-large, are among the most dangerous in the nation so far as the future welfare of the country is concerned. Where, for instance, would you get more "culture" than in the singing of Paul Robeson — and where would you find anyone who is a better advocate of the Communist system of government as conducted in Russia? Jo Davidson was one of the nation's leading sculptors but Jo and his flowing white beard were almost a symbol of the Communist menace to the American system. The list of those cited by various investigating committees looking into un-American activities all over the United States reads almost like a Who's Who of those supposed to be providing the nation with its "culture." The time when a Bolshevik was a rude, unlettered fellow in a black beard and a bomb in his hand has been gone for some time. In his place stands the "intellectual" character who finds in Communism an alibi for his inability to compete in the every-day world and so turns away from the competitive, free enterprise American beliefs.

Still, Mr. Blair would like to pour "culture" into us through the education TV channels.

If we want to increase the federal clutch on the public schools, already doing some squeezing with little items like federal money for lunches, federal surplus foods and other materials that are virtually given to local school districts, then one of the best avenues of approach would be to set up educational TV. If we want to lose more and more control and put our children in the position of being indoctrinated by every bureaucrat who can get his face and message on a receiving screen, then educational TV is the answer.

If we want to stick by true and traditional American precepts, then we ought to tell the Federal Communications Commission and the state both to go jump in the lake and fight against government encroachment whenever and wherever it pops up.

BETTER JOBS

The Penalty Of Quitting

As one passes the three-quarter of a century mark, as I did recently, one tends to view with special interest the parable of the rich man, who tore down his barns to build larger ones to live a life of ease. You will remember the rich man said:

"I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods. 'And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry.

"But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?"

My interpretation of this parable is that man was put on this earth to develop and grow both spiritually, intellectually and materially and that not to continue to grow because of material accomplishments is to violate moral law — and consequently not get much peace of mind or enjoyment out of life.

The rich man in the parable evidently didn't understand that when he was creating wealth he was benefiting everyone in the world. He seemed to have the idea that the only objective of creating wealth was to benefit oneself. He was perfectly willing to store his wealth and not let prices come down so that they could be enjoyed by more and more people. He seemed to think that the only aim of production was to benefit the producer without any regard for the consumer. He didn't seem to realize the truth of the statement made by Andrew Mellon that probably the greatest pleasure comes from accomplishment, and if he had natural talents for producing wealth, he should continue to use that talent for the benefit of mankind. If he failed to do that he would lose his self-respect, or his soul, and he wouldn't get much out of life from then on.

The manufacturer or the merchant who can produce something or sell something that benefits his customers more than they could be benefited from buying other products is performing a material benefit to mankind. And being able to do this should give the individual peace of mind and satisfaction.

Too many people do not understand that in a free economy the gain of one is the gain of all. And if a man who is endowed by God with natural talents does not continue to use them, he will die spiritually.

Of course, this does not mean that a man needs to continue to do the same thing year after year, but it does mean that he should continue to try to gain understanding of God's laws. Possibly a successful man can be of more service by changing occupations than he can be by continuing to produce something if somebody else can carry on. Remember Henry D. Thoreau, after he had produced the best pencil then available and people said "There is a man ready to make a fortune," said he would never make another pencil. He never wanted to do anything twice. He wanted to learn more about nature's laws and learn to do different things that had not been done before. And those who have read his writings realize that he didn't cease growing spiritually or materially.

Yes, it seems that it is the law of nature that man must use his talents or lose them.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

Each year the newspaper headlines tell distressing stories of men and women who are found dead in a car in a closed garage. The coroner usually finds that the cause of death is carbon monoxide poisoning produced by running the car's motor in a closed place.

The exhaust of a car contains carbon monoxide. When this is breathed the odorless gas combines with a portion of the blood known as hemoglobin which normally carries oxygen to the tissues.

If carbon monoxide replaces oxygen in the hemoglobin, the tissues are starved for life-giving oxygen. The condition causes unconsciousness and rapid death.

The danger from carbon monoxide poisoning is always greater in winter than in summer. Because of the cold weather, houses and garages are likely to be shut up tight and fresh air does not circulate. This means that a furnace, heater, or running motor of an automobile in a closed garage, will produce death-dealing carbon monoxide.

If only small amounts of carbon monoxide are present warning symptoms may be present such as headache, dizziness, desire to vomit, muscular weakness, and a generally uncomfortable feeling. It is only when large amounts of carbon monoxide are present that the victim becomes drowsy and unconscious so fast that these symptoms are lacking.

NO CHRONIC POISONING
Chronic poisoning from carbon monoxide probably does not exist. One would expect it to be found in people who are exposed to small amounts of carbon monoxide for long periods of time, such as those working in certain mining operations, near furnaces, or in garages, but actually such persons do not seem to be harmed in any way. A person who has been exposed to carbon monoxide should be removed from the bad air at once. Administering artificial respiration and oxygen as soon as possible are desirable. Fire department crews, police, and gas company employees are usually trained to give rapid emergency treatment for this form of poisoning. Reasonable precaution is the best preventative.

National Whirligig... McCarthy Stands To Play Key Role At Demo, GOP Meetings

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The more fertile and imaginative minds in the two major parties doubt that Sen. "Joe" McCarthy has any real desire or expectation of running for President, since they dismiss the idea — and believe he has also — that Republicans or Democrats would nominate such bitter critic of President Eisenhower and Harry S. Truman.

McCarthy's strategy, in their opinion, is to create such confusion within both parties that he will be the dominant and directing figure at both 1956 conventions. No ignorant Don Quixote tilting at windmills, he may shape his admitted influence with the electorate into a distinct threat to form a third, independent "American Party."

McCarthy's possible tactics — Should the 1956 contest look as if it would be a close affair, with one or two states deciding the outcome, he might maneuver himself into a position where he could almost dictate the nominees and platforms on the domestic and foreign issues that fascinate him. That would be his reward for not going through with the threat of organizing a general guerrilla movement.

Nothing would delight him more. For a man who entered the political unknown only in February, 1950, when he delivered his first speech against the Reds in the State Department, it would be a rare treat and triumph to one of his temperament.

CONSTERNATION IN BOTH PARTIES — In envisaging the principal 1954 campaign issue as "McCarthyism" rather than the Eisenhower and congressional record, the Wisconsin senator has already stirred personal jealousies and caused consternation in both parties. He has made himself even more unpopular with Capitol Hill colleagues especially with members of the rival, Red-hunting Jenner and Velde Committees.

If he breaks finally and conclusively with the administration on this question, he will drive many GOP-ers into a difficult corner. They will be placed in the position of siding with him in his pursuit of "American traitors" or with his opponents. Even Republican National Chairman Leonard Hall leans to McCarthy's side on this question of 1954-1956 issues, not on Ike's.

JOE'S FUTURE IS IN JEOPARDY — In such a fantastically emotional atmosphere, millions of voters might lose sight of all other campaign factors, including loyalty to party and to the President. Many GOP candidates for national and local offices might suffer in any attempt to straddle the challenge as McCarthy knows how to voice it: "Are you with McCarthy or against him?" It would be hard to hem and haw and explain that one.

How the voters answer the question at the ballot box could determine McCarthy's fate once and for all. If he should roll up a good score in defeating or electing congressional candidates, as he did in 1950 and 1952, the GOP could not afford to neglect him. But his daring thrust also places his future in jeopardy.

WIRE-TAPPING, WITH RESERVE (Tulsa Tribune)

Attorney General Brownell said Saturday he expects the next Congress to legalize the use of evidence obtained by wire-tapping. His statement points up this little-understood subject.

It isn't illegal under federal law to tap telephones or other means of communication. It is only illegal to intercept the communication and divulge or publish it. As Supreme Court Justice Jackson said when he was Attorney General: "Any person, with no risk of penalty, may tap telephone wires and eavesdrop on his competitor, employer, workmen or others, and act upon what he hears, or make any use of it that does not involve divulging or publication."

Several notable cases have been halted at mid-trial by the disclosure that conviction depended upon giving the juries the substance of tapped telephone conversations. Since 1934 this has been forbidden by a sentence in the Federal Communications Act that reads: "No person, not being authorized by the sender, shall intercept any communication and divulge or publish the existence, contents, substance — or meaning of such intercepted communication to any person."

The stage has been set by the Harry Dexter White case to strike this sentence. Mr. Brownell says, "All right, but in espionage and kidnaping cases only. The country is still mindful of the strenuous attempts President Franklin D. Roosevelt made in 1941 to legitimate wire-tapped evidence. The House of Representatives gave FDR the only setback he received that session from Congress by voting against the proposal 154 to 147. It was obviously afraid of what a dictator might do with dribbles of conversation he could overhear and use against his enemies before a jury that might be of his own selection."

Fair Enough... General Attacks McCarthy In Speech On West Point Campus

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK — On the day before the Army-Navy football game, a meeting of the West Point Debate Council was held in the East Academic Hall on the reservation of the military academy, attended by 150 cadets, officers and guests.

The speaker was one Telford Taylor, a New Deal politician and professional bureaucrat, who was chief-prosecutor at the Nuremberg "war crimes" trials and bears the title of brigadier general.

His speech was a conventional attack on Sen. Joe McCarthy whom he accused of undermining Army morale and efficiency, and on Robert T. Stevens, the secretary of the Army, for failing to "stand up against this." McCarthy's "shameful abuse of congressional investigating power."

Taylor is a soldier only by elaborate courtesy. He got his rank and title by the process of more or less intellectual service in the "military intelligence" and the general staff. He sprang to arms, full panoplied as major, without previous state experience according to Who's Who, in Oct. 1942, when he was 34 years old, and he made brigadier-general in three years and six months, wherein he beat even Elliott Roosevelt's record for the same course.

Charles E. Wilson, the secretary of Defense, has asked Secretary Stevens to give him a report stating who invited Taylor and at whose prompting, if any, and other pertinent facts about a scandalous and grossly improper political exploit on premises where by custom and regulation partisan harangues are not permitted. Stevens may be embarrassed because he was a victim in the abusive attack under inquiry.

Taylor is a member of a law firm in New York which includes Randolph E. Paul, who was assistant to Henry Morgenthau, general counsel to the Treasury and even acting secretary of the Treasury concurrently with the service of Harry Dexter White, the Soviet spy and author of the so-called Morgenthau Plan, to deliver all Germany to the military custody of Russia and the satellites. The late Louis S. Weiss, counsel and political Svengali to Marshall Field during his career as publisher of a magazine, often pro-Communist thing called P.M., also was a member of this firm and was a brother of the late Carol Weiss King, noted exclusively for her devotion to Communist clients.

When one Mark Gayn, as he was known, was pinched in the American case, Weiss went to Washington in a hurry and put in a fix with David K. Niles at the White House. Gayn was writing propaganda for Field at the time. Weiss clipped Field for an extra $8,000 and two of Field's former associates in his exploits as a publisher have said that Field got sore because he had paid Weiss a great deal of money over the years in the regular course of their business. They have also said that Weiss had gulled Field in the first place by telling him that he could make him President of the United States. It is doubtful that even Field could have been silly enough to take that proposition seriously but that, of course, is impermissible. The two old associates of Field said Weiss claimed to have put out $8,000 to take care of the beef against Gayn. Weiss refused to discuss relations between clients and counsel and Field ignored similar inquiry on the same point.

Weiss was all over the courtroom during the first of the Alger Hiss trials, a bumptious, officious and privileged acquittal with an obvious interest in acquittal, but he admitted that he had no client and said he was there just as a fan. An amusing feature of the second trial was the presence of an observer and the testimony as an "expert," of Dr. Carl Binger, described as a psychiatrist. He said Whittaker Chambers gave evidence of mental instability, to put it pleasantly, in that he often looked at the ceiling. Tom Murphy, the prosecutor, now a federal judge, then noted that he, too, had a habit of looking at the ceiling.

"We have made a count," Mr. Murphy said, "of the number of times you looked at the ceiling. During the first 10 minutes, you looked at the ceiling 19 times. We counted a total of 59 times. You looked at the ceiling in 30 minutes. No I was wondering whether that was any symptom of a psychopathic personality." Binger said that this manifestation, alone, was not enough to justify such a scientific conclusion.

1933 and 1942 when he got his commission as a major. There is no mention of any service with troops in the field in camp or combat.

The late Robert A. Taft went to his grave reiterating his solemn warning to the American people that under the principle of "war guilt" underlying this fellow's ferocious prosecution of German officers and civil officials, American of similar status might be managed in a few years if we should lose a war to Russia. He hammered home the point that we were putting men to death for acts which were not crimes by any law and challenged all concerned in the gritty business to explain how representatives of Soviet Russia could set in judgment on the Germans in view of the fact that Stalin was Hitler's partner in the commission of most of the crimes alleged against the victims in the dock.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

My bride had an afternoon off from her chores the other day and came up to the dent in the wall in which I work to say that she wanted to take me shopping. She had a shopping gleam in her eye, but I did not, like most men under these circumstances, quail. Over a course of 10 years I have discovered that this-treasured girl has only disdain for mink, has a psychosomatic attitude toward all jewelry, except the modest amethyst, and has a firm conviction that it is a woman's job to buy her own shoes, dresses and hats. There was nothing for me to be frightened about.

"There's an Irishman out in Nassau throwing together some houses," she said. "The cameraman on the show told me about them. I want to look."

So we got into the car and drove out there and, sure enough, an Irishman was putting up three houses which had this immediate claim to distinction: not one of them even remotely resembled the other two. He had three sets of plans, three ideas of what to do with the houses and when they were finished I think he will have no trouble at all selling them. He had stainless steel sinks in the kitchen, a stainless steel electric range with its stainless steel oven set into thick, brick walls at chest height so on cook ever had to bend over to stoke a turkey into them. The walls of the kitchen had rubber tile in the shape of bricks with texture to the surface so that they looked like white brick. The kitchen was fine. The living room was wide enough to swing a pair of grown cats and long enough to stretch out in without flinching. The three bedrooms were of generous size and had enormous closets with sliding doors rolling silently on trains of ball bearings. The piping was all copper, the heat was hot water, the floors were hardwood. Nice houses — nice houses.

"Three-coat plaster walls!" she asked the Irishman, as we walked through the first house.

"No, ma'am," he said. "Plaster-board."

"Great mistake," she said. "My sister has a house in Chevy Chase, Maryland, with plaster-board walls similar to yours and she has never heard a pin being dropped in the attic. They carry sound."

"But the walls are all insulated," he said.

"In between rooms, too?" she asked. "Ought to be. Makes for holding heat levels when the outside air reaches 25 degrees or lower."

"Never heard of insulating interior walls," he said a little grumpily.

"Now you have," she said.

"We came to finished playroom in the basement, with rubber tile floors and other attractive trim."

"Did you water-course and tar under this floor before pouring it?" she asked.

"We tarred outside wall surfaces where they were below ground," he said. "Not the floor."

"There should be cinders, gravel, a layer of tar, then four inches of concrete floor," she said.

"These tiles will lift like scales on a snake if you have no tar under this stone. Long Island soil is damp."

"Yes, ma'am," he said. He had a look. It was somewhere between being mighty unhappy and somewhat respectful. The kind of respect you give to someone who knows what is right."

"Is the plumbing contract finished?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," he said.

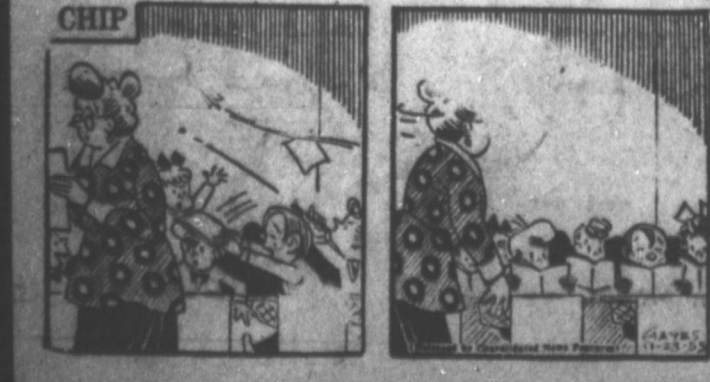

"I imagine you pressure-tested every joint and all turns," she said. "Leaky, you know."

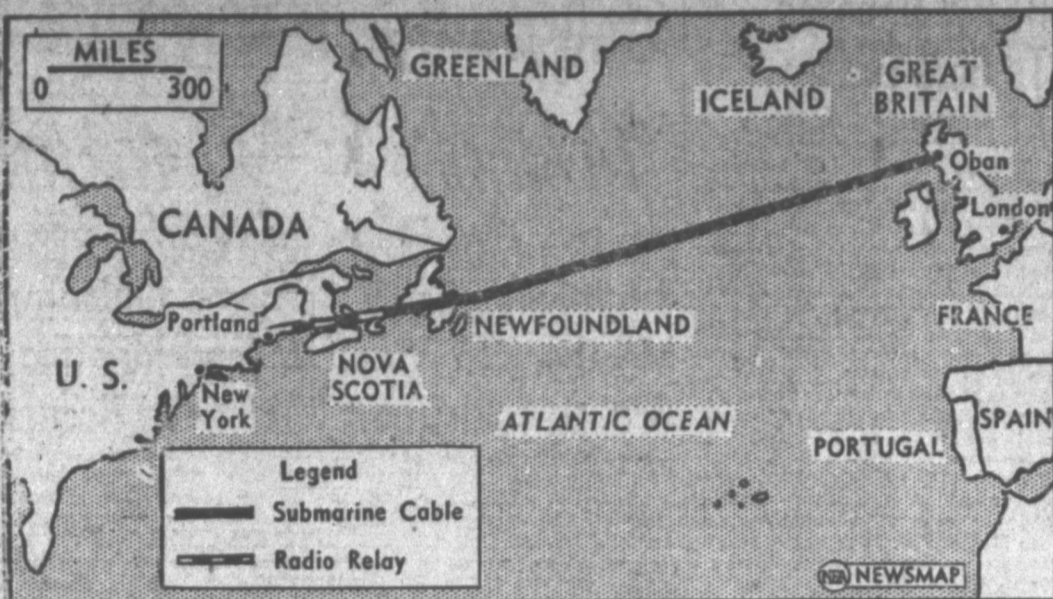

He hadn't, but he thought it was a good notion. He saw us to the door.

"I don't know what you do, lady," he said, "but any time you want to step into a pair of overalls and go to work for me, you got a job. There's only one thing: I'd want to have you talking to me. Just talk to all the subcontractors."

We drove back through the swiftly falling night.

"You know something?" she said. "I'd like a job like that. I think she would."

Shower Given For Miss Irene Sailor In Frasier Home

The home of Mrs. Oscar Frasier, 1700 Christine, was the scene recently of a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Irene Sailor, bride-elect of John Sydney Shearer.

Punch and cookies were served from a white lace covered table ornamented with the bride's chosen colors which are shades of purple and orchid. There was a crystal bowl of orchid mums and white fever-few centered on a round mirror. Orchid streamers proclaimed the names of the bride and groom-elect and the wedding date which is Dec. 20.

Misses Sue Williams and Joyce Gordon played background music at the piano during the evening. Miss Sailor and her mother, Mrs. R. J. Sailor, and Mrs. Oscar Shearer, mother of the prospective bridegroom, were presented with coronas of orchid mums with purple ribbons.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Frasier, W. G. Kinzer, J. R. Moore, Morris Enloe, C. H. Darling, J. F. Meers, Roy Tinsley, Emory Noblitt, Oscar Huff, Roy Williams, Paul Hawthorne, H. J. Fickett, W. R. Harden, C. H. Mundy, Bert Stevens, B. G. Gordon, Corrine Bell, H. C. Weidner, Tom Eckerd, Bill Emery, and Miss Helene Huff. About 100 guests attended.

Las Cresas Members To Join Los Duenos For Christmas Party

Las Cresas and its brother club Los Duenos met recently at the home of Peggy Owens, 513 N. Saffner, to make plans for the Christmas party. It will be held on the 22nd of December at the home of Mary Ellen Mitchell, 1529 Williston. Members will take gifts to their adopted families Christmas Eve.

Betty Bullard assisted in serving the refreshments of Cokes and cookies to the approximately 30 guests.

cardboard, black thread and scraps of shiny paper and/or old Christmas cards and follow the diagram shown.

I'm using two near the fireplace to flank a strategic sprig of mistletoe. Warm air rising from the fire keeps the motifs turning and twisting and reflecting light from their shiny surfaces.

We're indebted to Jim Pace, Chicago designer of mobile kits for home assembly, for the basic pattern you see above. The dimensions are meant to be a guide. Variations can be made to suit your fancy. Note that he emphasizes the horizontal plane to permit free movement and to keep the mobile out of the hair of tall guests.

The rods are strung about three inches apart. The position of the thread on the rods as shown is about right for balance, but you'll have to make minor adjustments one way or the other yourself, incidentally, balancing the rods on the threads is no trickier than juggling the weight on a baby scale.

To start, clip coat hangers for the arms to the lengths shown (8, 12, 16 and 20 inches). They can be bent slightly in an arc if you like. You can leave them black. I painted mine with poster paint in blue, yellow and green.

Next, make the dangling ornaments. Paste shiny paper, construction paper, old cards or whatever you have to both sides of cardboard. Then draw the triangles and cut them out.

Trace around a glass top for the circle. Draw the star free hand. On the fat triangle (E) I added a stem to make a Christmas-tree shape. On one side I used green construction paper and decorated the tree with tiny "ornaments" snipped from small scraps of gold wrapping paper.

Parents Can Learn Child Discipline From Classroom Methods Used In School

The ease with which teachers manage "families" of 30 to 40 children is often a source of envy to parents who find it difficult to deal with one or two children.

According to Arthur C. Croft, publisher of "Teacher's Letter," a Washington, D. C. fortnightly, parents can gain a lot by adopting some of the methods of child discipline used by teachers.

"The object of discipline," the article explains, "is to help an individual do what is expected of him. For a child, what is expected of him is determined largely by parents and teachers when he is young, by other children and adults as he grows older, and eventually, if the process is carried to its ideal end, by the individual himself in the light of his understanding of his society and the situations he faces. This is the desired end—self-discipline."

"If a child is to do what is expected of him, he must know what that is. Goals and limits must be clear. Every teacher knows how new pupils and classes 'try him out' until he sets limits and they know what he will accept. Children need the security that comes from feeling there is a guiding, protective, benevolent authority that will watch over them and keep them from bringing upon themselves harms they cannot foresee. They need, too, to try out that authority to see if it is firm and reliable."

"The 'Teacher's Letter' article feels that every child must feel that he is able to meet the demands that are made on him. 'He needs a feeling of personal worth which gives him confidence that he can face his problems. If he lacks this, he may express his doubts about himself by showing hostility to the society that overtaxes him; by retreating from his problems; or by demanding reassurance in the form of attention.'

"Children want to do what their adult friends expect of them — this is a major purpose of their activities. But the child must also release his energies, satisfy his need for understanding the life around him and build up his own self-respect. To do these things, he needs sympathetic help which accepts without question his basic desire to do the right thing, no matter how 'bad' he appears to be at the moment."

Election of officers will be held Jan. 11.

El Progreso Has Musical Christmas Program Meeting

El Progreso Club members met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Dave Pope, 521 E. Francis, with Mrs. P. C. Ledrick as co-hostess and Mrs. Clinton Henry assisting. Mrs. Harold Wright, who had charge of the program, introduced the Christmas motif. Mrs. Cargile, club president, served tea and coffee. Present were Mmes. H. H. Butler, J. G. Cargile, J. G. Doggett, H. P. Dosier, S. C. Evans, H. T. Hampton, Lee Harrah, J. A. Hopkins, Don King, J. E. Kirchman, R. W. Lane, C. L. McKinney, Otis Nace, Luther Pierson, J. R. Spearman, Ralph Thomas, J. C. Vollmer, W. A. Wagoner, Sherman White, and W. C. Hutchinson.

Mrs. Ed Williams gave a reading "Why Christmas?" During a short business meeting Mmes. D. V. Burton, Bob McCoy and Dick Crews were chosen for the 1954 nominating committee. The group closed the meeting by singing Christmas Carols in unison. Present were Mmes. D. V. Burton, Don Boyd, Sam B. Cook, Dick Crews, J. F. Curtis, W. R. Edging, T. M. Johnson, Knox Kinnard, J. Edmund Kirby, P. C. Ledrick, H. L. Ledrick Jr., Bob McCoy, Dave Pope, Robert Rasmussen, Harold Wright and Henry Gindorf.

Christmas Season Bride Honored At Schneider Hotel

One hundred friends gathered recently in the Palm Room of the Schneider Hotel to honor Miss Melba Jo Borton, 414 N. Sumner, with a miscellaneous bridal shower. Miss Borton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe H. Borton, will marry Don Riddle, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Riddle, on Monday, Dec. 28, in the Pampa Assembly of God Church. Mrs. La Veri Caldwell, aunt of the bride-elect, served punch and Miss Wanda Hill served a white cake which had names of the prospective bride couple written in green icing. The lace covered table was decorated with the bride's chosen colors which are green and white. A miniature bride standing under an archway centered an arrangement of carnations on a round mirror. Mrs. Riddle and Mrs. Borton and the honoree were presented with green and white-ornament corsages. During the course of the evening, Miss Cecellie Riche played bridal music at the piano and Miss Wanda Hill gave a reading "The Bride's First Day At Market."

Mature Parent

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Bart was 8, and it was a drowsy afternoon last August. He lay on his stomach beside a pond near the boys' camp where he was spending the summer. In his young nostrils was the smell of earth and dampness and green leaves. Grunting with content, he reached for his stick and with it stirred mud again from the bottom of the pond. He had done this many times. Poor Bart deeply enjoyed watching the way the mud swirled through the water, and, settling, left its unrippled surface to flash once more with the darting life of insect and minnow.

He was alone. But he was not lonely. Unfortunately, the director of Bart's camp couldn't tell the difference between loneliness and joy in solitude. He was alarmed to find Bart companioned by a pond instead of by other boys.

A firm believer in "organizing" all children's activities, he promptly disorganized one that he had not personally promoted, and ordered Bart to hurry back to his cabin to prepare for the "socializing" influence of a marshmallow roast.

I don't like him very much. It seems to me to be quite as disturbing and short-sighted to disturb Bart's friendship with the pond as it would be to divide him from a human friend.

But we do this kind of thing to children all the time. If Emmy is reading a book, she is not necessarily lonely, but may be making friends with important ideas. If she is drawing by herself, she is not lonely but occupied with her ability to speak through color and line.

The Bart who lies beside a midsummer pond is not "withdrawing" from relationship, but is terribly busy making one with the earth he lives on.

B&PW Donates To Girls Town At Recent Meet

The Business and Professional Women's club met Tuesday evening in the City Club Rooms for a program directed by Mrs. Gladys Jaynes. Mrs. Jaynes was assisted in telling about "Publications," which is a state and national magazine of the B&PW club by Mrs. Esther Ward, and Mrs. Irma McWright. Mrs. Lillian Jordan spoke on "International Relations."

She explained to members the part that business women play in international affairs. She said, "we have about 18 million working women in the working world today and about 24 hundred in Pampa, 2 1/2 per cent of whom belong to the B and PW. It is not generally known that the B and PW has a voice in the United Nations."

A gift of 50 dollars was given to Girls Town at White Face. Members will assemble Sunday afternoon at 3 in the City Club Rooms for a Christmas party and gift exchange. Thirty-two members were present.

Christmas Party Celebrated By Varietas Club

The annual Christmas party of the Varietas Study Club was held at the home of Mrs. J. G. Doggett Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Mrs. H. T. Hampton gave the program, presenting the humorous story, "The Birds' Christmas Carol," by Kate Douglas Wiggin. Mrs. W. A. Wagoner then led the group in the singing of Christmas songs, both sacred and secular. After the program, gifts were distributed from the Christmas tree in front of the fireplace. The group also brought wrapped gifts for the state hospital at Wichita Falls, and these were prepared for shipping.

Mrs. Doggett served sandwiches, cake, and cookies from a tea table beautifully decorated with the Christmas motif. Mrs. Cargile, club president, served tea and coffee. Present were Mmes. H. H. Butler, J. G. Cargile, J. G. Doggett, H. P. Dosier, S. C. Evans, H. T. Hampton, Lee Harrah, J. A. Hopkins, Don King, J. E. Kirchman, R. W. Lane, C. L. McKinney, Otis Nace, Luther Pierson, J. R. Spearman, Ralph Thomas, J. C. Vollmer, W. A. Wagoner, Sherman White, and W. C. Hutchinson.

Pampa Collectors Attend Meeting, Dinner At Borger

Pampa Collectors Club members attended the regular meeting in Borger recently for a dinner and Christmas program in the Borger Hotel. White covered tables in the dining room were decorated with pottery Santa Claus, reindeer, and red and green sleighs brimming with candies, all ceramic creations of Mrs. J. S. O'Neal of Borger. Tiny Santas holding candles marked each of the sixty places. Other glittered candles adorning the tables were in reel holders made of globets and Christmas tree balls.

"Christmas In Other Lands" was the program topic and various Borger members gave accounts of Christmas celebrations in their native countries. Pampa members attending were, Mmes. Flupp Clark, O. E. Chenoweth, Clifford Braly Sr., R. G. McConnell, Bob McCoy, C. L. Hickman and her guest, Mrs. R. B. Fagan who is visiting from Weston, W. Va. Mrs. L. P. Clark and Mrs. Theo Randall of Phillips also attended.

Art-Civic Members To Have Party At Colteco Carbon Plant

LEFORS — (Special) — The Lefors Art and Civic Club met recently in the home of Mrs. R. H. Barron with Mrs. E. E. Trumm as hostess. During the business meeting the club decided to have a Christmas party at the Colteco Carbon Plant community hall Dec. 17.

Members answered the roll by naming their favorite religious song.

Leader of the program, "Religion," was Mrs. E. E. Carter and "The Last Supper Painting" was given by Mrs. Bud Cumberland. Those attending were Mmes. Bob Casey, Ernie Trumm, R. H. Barron, Carl Atkinson, Bob Brown, Bud Cumberland, Herbert Arledge, Ray Jordan, and a new member, Mrs. H. W. Callan. Others attending were Mmes. J. E. Carter, Archie Roberts, L. R. Velvet Flatters All Women

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The beauty of velvet is synonymous with the sparkle and gaiety of the holidays. It's particularly right for at-home and hostess clothes, for lounging robes, bed jackets and negligees.

The luxury of velvet makes it ideal as a Christmas gift. Put a robe under her tree and watch her face glow with excitement. For velvet (like furs and jewelry) represents pure flattery to women. We show here two completely flattering designs by John Norman in velvet. Zebra print in black and white is used for gown (left) with deep V neckline and fitted midriff fastened by tie belt. Over this goes a flowing silk organza goat with billowing sleeves. Velvet negligee (right), in turquoise, can also preside at the dinner table. Deep, plunging cowl neckline drapes into dolman sleeves that are snug at the wrist. Waist is encircled with a floating tie of silk chiffon in a deeper turquoise.

Expert Gives Advice On How To Clean Desk Filled With Important Papers

By KAY SHERWOOD
NEA Staff Writer

If the household accounts, bills, and unimportant papers are pushing the nails right out of your home desk, how would you like a little help cleaning it up?

In addition to being untidy, a jumble of papers can be expensive. If a person, for example, claims you owe him twenty dollars on work he did three or four years ago, can you prove you've paid him?

Weeding out a drawer full of old papers, I realized I didn't know how long I ought to keep old receipts or which papers should be carefully guarded.

So I talked it over with Ray Garrett, one of Chicago's leading lawyers and vice chairman of the corporation, bank and business law section of the American Bar Association. He took a general interest in the problem and admitted his own wife asked for exactly the same kind of help.

His advice made good sense so let's get to the desk. If your desk or drawer is really jumbled up, better separate current accounts from last year's and these from the one-of-a-kind papers, such as insurance policies, discharge papers, equipment warranties and tax records.

The more informal your filing system, the more apt it is to be used, Garrett noted. An expanding paper letter file, for example, makes a convenient and accessible container. He advises using one folder for each year. In it keep all bills, receipts, cancelled checks and tax form duplicates.

Hang on to all U.S. tax data for five years, advises Garrett. That includes the report you filed and any checks, receipts or records to support deductions other than the standard deduction allowed.

Although tax records are outlawed after three years, except in cases of fraud, Garrett says the five-year rule gives Uncle Sam plenty of time to check your return.

Now call a businessman, a banker or lawyer and ask him what your state's statute of limitations is. That's so you'll know how long you should legally treasure the bills from individuals, stores or private companies and your proofs of payment.

In Illinois, for example, bills like these (based on oral contract) are outlawed after five years, Garrett also advises us that if a bill arrives undated and unitemized (such as "For Professional Services, $50") get the receipt dated and signed.

Find a safe place, such as a stout metal box, where all family papers can be kept together. As a double precaution, Garrett strongly urges the ex-serviceman to have a photostat made of his discharge papers so that the original can be kept in the box, the copy in another safe place.

The smart home secretary will also keep a written record of insurance policy number, company amount, and beneficiary, as well as the original policies. Keep in insurance policies as long as they are in force. Keep premium receipts at least until the next premium notice arrives to make sure there's been no error in billing.

Also into the metal box should go titles, abstracts, the last will (drawn up, Garrett hopes, by lawyer to make sure it's correctly signed), birth certificates, cancelled notes if you've paid up loan or finished paying for the box. I add to this list warranties on appliances we've bought.

Gain And Loss
HARTFORD, Conn. — UP — The auction to raise money for new kitchen equipment seemed like success to the church women. People had been buying all day. But when it was over, the women discovered their big coffee percolator bought with the money made last year's auction, was gone.

GRACE FRIEND

For a long time I have been suspicious of my husband. I think that he is meeting one of the girls in his office. I know that the first thing you will say is that I probably imagine it but I have had proof on several occasions. At least it was proof to me.

It started some time ago when he said that he had been asked by his boss to do some work at the office one or two nights a week. I asked him if he was going to be paid extra for his time and he said that he was. I have never seen any sign of the money.

Maybe he did mean to work in the beginning but now I am positive he meets one of the girls. In fact a friend of mine said she saw him with a girl sitting in a car outside of a night club one night.

I have considered leaving him but there is the problem of the children. They have a right to a good home with both parents there. The only trouble is their father isn't there very much anymore.

Would you just quietly give up and let your husband go to this other girl? If you do I don't know what I can do as I have never worked anywhere and anyhow I have these two small children.

Worried Sick

Dear Worried

Of course, don't just meekly give your husband up to this mythical girl who in all probability you are just imagining.

How can you base all of your suspicions simply on the fact that a friend, late at night saw someone sitting in a car whom she thought was your husband. She may have been and probably was mistaken.

A great many husbands find it necessary in these days of inflation to spend a few nights working in order to make financial ends meet. Why should your husband be an exception? I expect he works at nights so that you and the children can have more comforts. Perhaps you haven't seen the money because he is planning something special for your Christmas.

Instead of worrying about his meeting a girl at the office, devote your energies to making his home so comfortable and attractive that he will want to spend more time in it. Make yourself at-

Large Baked Ham Climaxes Festivities

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

A large, handsome baked ham is almost as much a part of Christmas as the Christmas tree. So we asked Beth Bailey McLean of Chicago, meat cookery expert, how to select and cook a holiday ham.

When selecting your holiday ham, she advises, plan ample servings with leftovers for snack-time feasting. If the ham is fully cooked, bone-in, plan on 1-1/2 pound per serving. When buying a cooked, boneless ham, plan on 1/4 pound per person.

All cured pork, whether cooked or uncooked, should be stored in the refrigerator. Use whole, fully cooked hams within seven days.

Reducing Entails Flabbiness Problem

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

It does not make sense to assume one problem in order to get rid of another. Yet that is what so many women do when they reduce.

The fat that is broken down when one reduces includes that which cushions the skin. Without the cushion, the skin hangs loose, giving the face a haggard, drooping look.

Wrinkles appear on the skin and neck, and the flesh hangs in ugly folds on the arms. This will happen to a girl in her 20's as well as to an older woman.

However, exercise and proper lubrication will prevent these disastrous results. Special exercises are not necessary; simply use those you have found good for general toning of the muscles of arms, face, neck and throat.

A lotion that combines soothing oils and lightening astringents is the best for preventing flabbiness and lines. One company that offers such a formula says that its lotion, when used twice a day during a reducing regimen, helps to give a keener mold and smoother outline to the face and to encourage the circulation that is necessary to revitalize skin.

Attractive so he will want to be with you.

And just to be on the safe side, accompany him to the office occasionally in the evening to keep him company and thus destroy your last suspicions. Take your knitting or a book and occupy yourself with one or the other while he finishes his work. The price of the sitter will be worth your peace of mind.

Pampa Daily News Sports Editor

Abilene Scribe Strongly Favors Keeping Fighting Harvesters In District 1-AAAA

IF JACK HOLDEN, SPORTS EDITOR of the Abilene Reporter-News, has any influence on his school superintendent, A. E. Wells, we can reasonably expect to get Abilene's backing on keeping Pampa in District 1-AAAA.

Holden came out point blank in the first column following the Pampa visit to Abilene that Abilene should vote to keep District 1-AAAA as is when the district superintendents convene in Odessa Saturday morning to discuss the situation.

Holden said in his column: "The Reporter-News thinks it's a time Abilene and Abilene High School stand up and be counted. Keeping District 1-AAAA as it is, is a movement to eliminate Pampa and Borger from the district. It has been much in the limelight the past week. An action is due to be taken sometime this week at a district meeting. The sentiment to drop the two North Plains teams lies with some of the Southern members of the district."

The long distance involved has been cited as a major consideration in overhauling the district. Monday night Pampa business trip and civic leaders conferred with Abilene business men and civic leaders and Supt. A. E. Wells to present their reasons why the Harvesters should stay in 1-AAAA.

"Supt. Wells told the visitors in conference at his high school office I have never said I would vote against Pampa. I have never said I would vote for Pampa. Actually I haven't made up my mind if I will vote negative."

"The Reporter-News" feels there are several compelling reasons why Abilene High should immediately get on the record in the open in favor of keeping Pampa and Borger in the family. Here they are:

(1) Pampa is a good competitor in the district. And you can't single out Borger to sandbag alone. The Harvesters have always been hard to handle in football and basketball — tough enough in fact that they won the state game last year. So let's keep playing them and keep 1-AAAA intact with its reputation as being the Little Southwest Conference of Texas schoolboy football.

(2) More than just Pampa and Borger are involved here. If they are dropped from 1-AAAA, they automatically fall back to 1-AAA. That district already has seven members and couldn't possibly operate with nine. That almost certainly would knock Breckenridge back to AA automatically because of its enrollment figure. "The Reporter-News, and all Abilene and West Texas sports fans, want to see the Buckies stay right where they are — in AAA competition. Year in and year out they've about the toughest outfit in the state and it would be tragic for a team with the tradition of championships, hard play and spirit of the Buckaroos to slip down to AA ranks."

(3) What, if anything, that would be gained by dropping Pampa and Borger would not offset the ill will and bitterness that Abilene would incur not only in those cities, but in the district as a whole. There's no need taking on any enemies that can be avoided, whether you're an individual, a school or a town.

"Furthermore, once this hatchet business gets started, it has a way of sometimes coming home to roost. You never know when a few years down the way someone might undertake a campaign to bounce Abilene out of a district alignment it cherishes."

(4) Even if there were an inconvenient situation existing in the operation of a district as large as 1-AAAA, there is considerable evidence that re-alignment will come in due course, anyhow. If and when Lubbock and Amarillo add second high schools, it will force a reshuffling of the district by the Intercollegiate League. Let the League take the rap for such action instead of Abilene High School.

"Pampa has been a good neighbor, a good rival, and a center of good sportsmanship. District 1-AAAA has been in existence long enough now that competition with the Panhandle schools is beginning to take on significance in this neck of the woods."

"The Reporter-News hopes Abilene High takes no part in this re-alignment business, and not only plays hands off but uses its influence and good offices to try to get San Angelo, Odessa and Midland to take a similar stand."

Fight Pairing Announced
NEW YORK, Dec. 10 (UP)—The Eastern Parkway Arena Thursday announced these pairings for future 10-round feature bouts: Clarence Henry of Philadelphia vs. Bob Baker of Pittsburgh, Dec. 21; George Benton of Philadelphia vs. Bobby Jones of Oakland, Calif., Dec. 28; Rex Layne of Salt Lake City vs. Tommy Jackson of New York Jan. 4; and Al Andrews of Saginaw, Mich., vs. Josey Klein of New York, Jan. 11.

Bond-Griffin Setting Hot Pace For PHS

Jimmy Bond, last year's scoring leader for the Hustlin' Pampa Harvesters basketball team, has taken up where he left off from the 1952-53 season by leading the way in the first three Harvesters tilts this season.

Bond has dunked in 62 points in three games thus far, canning 21 field goals and 20 from the gratis line.

Gary Griffin is close on the heels of Bond with 55 points. Griffin has hit 25 times from the field, added five from the charity line for his point total.

E. Jay McIlvain is the third top scorer with 34 points in the three games. McIlvain has 15 field goals and four free tosses.

All eleven members of the Harvesters squad have dented the scoring column in the three games. The Harvesters will resume action Saturday night at Clovis. Their two games with Phillips this week have been erased from the schedule.

Following is the complete calendar on the Harvesters:

OUTSTANDING — Johnny Latner, everybody's all American football player from Notre Dame, smiles happily as he clutches the Heisman Memorial Trophy after being chosen the outstanding college football player of 1953. The big fellow with the Huckleberry Finn grin and ham-like hands proved a tower of modesty as he said he figured he is a "very lucky guy."

Williamson Predicts Pick Waco, Odessa To Hit 4A Finals

Odessa and Waco will advance into the Class 4A state playoffs this week according to the Williamson System.

Mitchell Williamson, author of the system, picks the Odessans to down Woodrow Wilson of Dallas in the semi-finals and chooses Waco over Lamar of Houston.

It will be Big Spring and Edinburg in the Class 3A finals, says the Williamson System. The system picks Big Spring over Gainesville and Edinburg over Port Neches in the semi-final jousts this weekend.

In the Class AA quarter-finals, Phillips, Comanche, Huntville and Nederland are picked to advance into the semi-final rounds.

Franker, Clifton, Luling and Lyford are picked by Williamson to win this week's quarterfinal tests in Class A.

The following are Williamson's predictions this week:

CLASS AAA
Odessa over Woodrow Wilson of Dallas; Waco over Lamar of Houston.

CLASS AA
Big Spring over Gainesville; Edinburg over Port Neches.

CLASS A
Phillips over Ballinger; Comanche over Henderson; Huntville over LaVega and Nederland over Redburg.

CLASS A
Ranger over Shunkow; Clifton over Whitewright; Luling over Cedar Bayou; and Lyford over Deer Park.

Texas Gridder Re-Writing Record Books

SUGAR LAND, Tex., Dec. 10.—UP—When Sugar Land's football team plays for a regional championship this week, they expect a crowd of about 5,000 to watch about one-half regular fans and the other half college coaches who come to drool over a 200-pound football prodigy named Kenneth Hall.

Seldom in Texas' football history has a high school player been more widely publicized and more widely sought, and never has one had a more convincing record to attract talent-hungry coaches.

Since he was a freshman in this small (population 2,500) sugar mill town, Ken Hall has been amazing everyone with his football ability and his apparent dislike for present schoolboy records—he wants to make them all over.

"He's the best boy I've ever coached," Sugar Land's Coach H. L. Jenkins says, flatly.

In three years — the record books don't consider his freshman year—the 18-year-old phenomenon made 382 points.

In 11 games this year, two in district and bi-district play-offs, he's scored 100 yards in 9.8 despite his muscular, six-foot, one-inch frame.

Playing tailback in the "box" formation used by Jenkins, Hall "needs an opening about as big as a pencil" and he's off. Once he's through the line of scrimmage there's little stopping him, and not catching him from behind for he runs 100 yards in 9.8 despite his muscular, six-foot, one-inch frame.

Jenkins estimates Hall has also completed better than 50 per cent of his passes this year and he's the team's outstanding punter.

School officials are no longer surprised on game night to find their stands crowded with coaches and scouts, many of whom make special trips to the state just for a look at Hall.

"He's the type of boy anyone would like to have on the campus," his principal says. "His grades are B average or better."

When he's not playing football, Hall is playing on the basketball team and later joins the track squad for which he broad jumps 22 feet, tosses the shot 48 feet and runs the 220 as well as the 100-yard dash.

Hell so far has not made up his mind where he'll take his many talents when he graduates this year.

"Surprisingly, though, he's a lot more concerned with getting a good education than in football offers," Jenkins said. "When he decides, scholastics will probably be a major factor."

Odessa Hosts Dallas 11 4A, 3A Teams In Semi-Final Games

By UNITED PRESS
Eight Class AAAA and AAA schoolboy football teams fight for berths in four games Friday night and Saturday while eight Class A and A quarter-final battles will out the field in half.

Odessa and Waco will rule as favorites to advance into the Class AAAA finals, although either could be upset and it would come as no great surprise.

The mighty Bronchos from West Texas host unbeaten, untied Dallas Wilson Saturday afternoon before a sellout crowd expected to approximate 21,000 if the weather is good.

Odessa trounced El Paso Bowie 24 to 7 and Wilson edged Fort Worth Paschal in bi-district games last week.

Waco meets Lamar in the Southern Class AAAA bracket. Waco's Tigers, also unbeaten and untied, entertain a powerful Houston Lamar eleven Saturday afternoon that moved into the semi-finals on a hard-earned 4-to-0 penetration victory over Fort Worth in a 1-1 tie game.

Waco moved up by crowning Corpus Christi Ray, the 6-AAA representative, 28 to 13.

In Class AAA, Big Spring will be a heavy favorite to notch Cinderella — team Gainesville, victor of the running Saturday afternoon at Breckenridge. Big Spring handed Brownwood a sound 14 to 12 thrashing last week while Gainesville, four-times beaten during the regular season, sprung an upset on Kilgore, winning on penetration in a 14-11 tie.

Two upset teams meet in the other AAA game as Port Neches hosts Edinburg Friday night.

Port Neches, also whipped four times, stunned Temple 12 to 0 last week while Edinburg, a slight underdog to San Antonio Edison, turned in a 20 to 13 victory over the Bears.

With Terrell out of the running, eight teams have drawn steady beads on the Class AA title. But only four will be left after this weekend's action.

Henderson, the team that eliminated Terrell 12 to 0, faces another power Friday night at Tyler in an unbeaten, untied Comanche, which beat Dallas Hillcrest 28 to 13 last week.

Huntsville will be favored to beat LaVega Friday night at LaVega and Nederland rates the nod over Refugio at Robstown Saturday afternoon.

Phillips — Ballinger a Tossup
What appears to be a tossup game pits Phillips against Ballinger at Wichita Falls Saturday afternoon.

Four Class A games will also cut that division in half for next week's semi-finals.

Ranger, which beat highly-touted McCamey 14 to 7 last week, takes on Sundown, a 20 to 14 winner over Memphis at Sweetwater Saturday afternoon.

Chilton's Cubs, winners of two playoff games by a narrow margin, still rate the edge over White-wright Friday night at Waxahatchie. Cedar Bayou meets up, beaten, untied Luling Friday night at San Marcos and perfect-record Deer Park meets unbeaten, untied Lyford at Deer Park Saturday night.

Miller Offers Stock In Pacific Loop Club

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 10 (UP)—Damon Miller Tuesday offered to sell 10,000 shares of stock in the San Francisco franchise of the Pacific Coast League for $10 a share.

Miller has been told by the PCL directors that he must raise $100,000 by next Friday in order to be allowed to keep the franchise.

Cage Powers Meet On Court Tonight

NEW YORK, Dec. 10.—UP—The season's first clash of two best basketball teams rated in the nation's top 10—Oklahoma A&M vs. Minnesota—and the debut of Kansas, the Western NCAA champion, highlight a busy court program Thursday night.

Oklahoma's Aggies and Minnesota both come up unbeaten for the big game at Minneapolis, the Aggies in three games and the Gophers in two.

But each required a 62 to 60 "squeaker" win on Monday night to keep its record pure, the Aggies over Texas and Minnesota over Tulsa. The game shapes up as a test between the Gopher attack and the Aggie defense, for the Gophers have scored 137 points in two games—the same number allowed by the Aggies in three.

A Scoring Duel
Kansas, the "surprise package" team of last season, debuts with a road game against Tulane. The Jayhawks have virtually the same crew, headed by giant B. H. Born, that surprised the sports world last year by ignoring the graduation of all-American Clyde Lovellette, winning the Big Seven and Western NCAA titles and losing to national champion Indiana by a single point in the final round of the NCAA tournament.

Two highly-ranked teams came through with easy victories Wednesday night, sixth-ranked La Salle trouncing Albright, 76 to 48, and 11th-ranked Illinois crushing Butler, 80 to 48. But Dayton, ranked 16th, blew an eight-point early lead and was upset by Miami of Ohio, 72 to 70.

Other Results
In other leading games Wednesday night: Fordham routed Yale, 89 to 51; Lafayette beat Princeton, 63 to 61; SMU handed Tulsa its second straight one-point loss, 72 to 70; Navy downed American U., 63 to 55; Harvard beat Wesleyan, 71 to 55; Oklahoma City trounced Texas A&M, 60 to 38, and Cornell set a school scoring record with a 92 to 37 triumph over Clarkson.

St. Louis, ranked 13th nationally, but upset recently by Ohio State, goes against Alabama Thursday night while Notre Dame, ranked 15th, seeks a third win against Detroit.

Other leading games include: Los Angeles State-Arizona (Tempe) State, DePaul-Manchester Union (Term.) - Mississippi, Roanoke-Washington & Lee.

OU Deciding Today On Longhorn Series

NORMAN, Okla., Dec. 10.—UP—University of Oklahoma regents were to decide Thursday whether to decide Thursday whether the Oklahoma-Texas football game should remain in Dallas after 1956.

The annual scheduling of the interstate game in the Cotton Bowl has been a sore spot for a long time with some Sooner fans, who feel the attraction should be brought to Oklahoma alternately.

T. R. Benedum, president of the OU regents, said some fans also have complained they have a hard time finding places to stay in the Dallas vicinity on the Oklahoma-Texas weekend.

Eneudum said one proposal is to ask Texas to schedule the contest on a Saturday when the Texas State Fair is not a competing attraction. The fair contributes to the housing problem, he said.

The most valuable camel is the white Esharben species. It makes an excellent mount and is capable of outrunning a horse.

Wichita Serves Notice In Missouri Valley Cage Race

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10.—UP—The two-team domination of the Missouri Valley basketball conference was threatened Thursday as experts along the six-state front predicted a three-way fight for the 1953-54 title.

Joining the customary favorites—Oklahoma A&M and St. Louis University—were the Wichita Shockers, coached by Ralph Miller, a one-time Kansas University star.

Wichita this season is starting the same five athletes who were starters for the last two seasons. As freshmen, they took a beating but last year they improved for a 16-11 record that included prized victories over Oklahoma A&M, Tulsa, Murray (Ky.) State, Oklahoma City U., and San Francisco.

With Cleo (The Cat) Littleton back at forward to lead the scoring, Coach Miller has arranged a heavy 33-game schedule and it's no secret he has high hopes of giving Wichita its first 20-game winner in the 47-year history of U. sport at the school.

Back of the top three, Houston, Detroit and Tulsa were bracketed to battle for fourth position.

Oklahoma A&M, with six veterans headed by six-foot, 11-inch Bob Mattick, got away to a typically fast start, exhibiting a masterful defense in crushing Harding's modest 83 to 60. Hearty's championship, defending last year's crown, then came right back with a 54 to 37 decision over Texas University.

St. Louis University, under crafty Eddie Hickey, unquestionably will make a strong bid to regain the supremacy yielded after the 1951-52 season.

But if any team is going to end the St. Louis-Oklahoma A&M domination, most observers believe it will be Wichita this year.

Tulsa managed a winning start at the expense of Hardin-Simmons, 61 to 46, and then squeaked past Arkansas, 52 to 50.

Houston, which may develop into one of the stronger teams in the loop, is headed by co-captains—forward Jim Hatton from Warren, Tex., and guard Jackie Bell of Fort Worth.

'Excessive Demands' Charge By Owners Denied By Players

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—UP—The surplus of money how it was to be distributed, Kiner said. "We are only trying to increase the hardships of the owners."
Reynolds, in a prepared statement, said the owners' charge was uncalled for, but that he still felt "the problem can be worked out on an equitable basis for all concerned."
Players' Plan Not Revealed
Lewis, apparently the storm center of the entire controversy, said he was "not at liberty" to say what the players will do but added: "I can promise they will do something about it. This brings out into the open for the first time the owners' belief that the World Series and All-Star game TV and broadcast money does not belong to the players and does not go into their pension fund intact."
It was this point which the owners attacked in their joint statement Wednesday, charging that "the players' attorney persists in O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers and a member of baseball's executive council.

Carlton Waxes Warm In Bowling

I. E. Carlton led Harvester Drug to a 3-1 win over Northern Natural Pipeline in last night's Industrial Bowling League at the Pampa Bowl.
Carlton was largely responsible for the Drug team capturing both the high team game and series. He averaged better than 200 a game in the three-game set (602) to turn in the highest individual series.
Harvester Drug had 847 for high team game and 2,476 for high team series.
Other results last night saw Tom Rose defeat Culberson Chevrolet, 3-1; Cabot Ordnance down Northern Natural Gas, 3-1; and Shell Oil win over Celanese, 2 1/2 to 1.
Calahan of Celanese had the high individual game with 207.

Club Owners Approve 3 Requests

NEW YORK, Dec. 10—UP—Major league club owners have granted three of the players' eight requests, including the raising of the minimum salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.
The list of concessions:
1. The minimum salary was raised from $5,000 to $6,000 a year.
2. Moving allowance was increased from $500 to $600 for players transferred from a western league team to an eastern and vice versa. (Players transferred to nearby cities will receive only $300, whereas they used to receive $500.)
3. Players do not have to take treatment, unless they consent, for injury or illness not incurred in the actual performance of their duties with the club.
Proposals turned down:
1. All four demands regarding the pension funds were refused. These asked for increased pension payments; a lower age for the start of pension benefits; reduction of player contributions, and that player representatives have active participation in pension committee meetings.
2. Players were not given permission to deal directly with Caribbean teams. (The clubs must deal for them.)
3. Players were refused a guaranteed yearly salary, even when released. (The old 30-day termination pay clause was retained.)
4. Players were refused a percentage of their sale price.
5. Players were refused a guaranteed minimum salary for the year following their incapacitation because of injuries incurred in the line of duty on the ball field.

Poly To Defend Tourney Title

ABILENE, Tex., Dec. 10—UP—Fort Worth Polytechnic will open defense Friday of the Hardin Simmons Invitational Basketball tournament championship it has won two years in a row.
Poly opens against Big Spring, with San Angelo playing Birdville, Abilene meeting Childress and Borger playing Levelland in other first round games.
The semi-finals will be Saturday morning, with the championship game in Rose Field House at 9:15 p.m.

Castellani In Unanimous Decision Over Gil Turner

CLEVELAND, Dec. 10—UP—A close but unanimous decision over Gil Turner strengthened Rocky Castellani's status Thursday as the leading American middleweight contender, although Turner's manager howled in anguish about everything concerning Wednesday night's fight.
Castellani, the cute-boxing Clevelander, got the nod in the nationally televised 10-rounder at the arena when he finally discovered he could slug with his right hand and came on with a furious finish.
But George Katz, manager of Philadelphia Turner, was angry about everything — starting with the weigh-in 12 hours before the bout and following right down to the decision. He declared the treatment of his fighter "stinks" and talked about appealing things to "higher authorities."
Katz was enraged by the manner of the weigh-in. Both men, he said, were to weigh 157 pounds. Castellani hit the scales at exactly 157, but Turner wasn't on hand. When Turner did show up, Katz demanded another weigh-in and this time, he said, Castellani tipped the beam at "160 1/2."
"It's the first time in boxing history that a fighter has been weighed in in private," stormed Katz.

Scribe Observes Change In Letters To Santa This Year

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9 —UP— The letter was from an eight-year-old. It read: "Dear Santa: I've been a fairly good boy. What for Christmas is a pair of handcuffs, a knife, some slippers and a raincoat." The lad then crossed out the handcuffs and the knife, and added:

Santa Brings Gls A Pretty Girl In Furs

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 9 —UP— Santa Claus' Christmas present to the GIs in Korea will be Terry Moore in a Whittier bathing suit—but, she said today, the Army wouldn't let her make it "too sexy." Forty-three Hollywood entertainers will give up their holidays at home to entertain in Korea, Alaska and Europe, and Terry is in one of three units to tour the Orient.

The boys in uniform first will see Miss Moore in Army pants and shirt. She then will do a dignified strip tease down to "Army regulation underwear"—a $1,600 fur, bathing suit whipped up by furrier Merrill Lowell.

"It can't be too sexy," explained Terry. "Some people called it a bikini suit, but it isn't! I'm really covered up. The Army passed on our skits and costumes, and it's just like in the movies—you can't show cleavage."

"Besides, it'll be cold there," she went on. "The fur suit is alluring, yet warm enough so I won't catch pneumonia. And it isn't like showing up in ski pants. The boys don't want to see girls bundled up like they are."

Terry will look like a sexy snowball in white ermine cap, gloves and long black opera hose—but she adds white fur boots up to her knees.

"I'm also wearing electric socks underneath the boots," she added. "You carry the battery in your pocket. After all, it'll be below zero there."

"I've worked very hard on skits and a soft shoe dance, and I'm doing one number with disc jockey Johnny Grant that originally was written for Jane Russell and Bob Hope."

"The fellows need entertainers this Christmas so much. After a war so many people forget about the boys over there."

Terry flew to New York today for the premiere of her curves in a cinch waist in "Under the 12 Mile Reef." She took home for a farewell party before the 43 filmstars take off Dec. 18 for overseas.

She isn't worried, however, about too many whistles from the boys when they see that fur bathing suit. Her mama is going along.

"The Army thought it would be wonderful for the boys to see a mother," said Terry.

"You've got the sniffles, too! You're the boss and could have stayed home, but I've got an important job to do!"
