the jail foyer, Hall stood erect and silent. Mrs. Heady wore a dark blue suit with red trim. The facial bruises she received in a beating by Hall more than a week ago appeared to have healed.

Neither spoke as four deputy U. S. marshals hustled them up to the 11th floor of the skyscraper Jackson county courthouse. Hall and the Heady woman appeared composed as they walked untouched ahead of two jailers to the isolated cells which awaited them.

American Student Chased By Crowd

BELGRADE, Oct. 13 —UP—An American student was chased into the United States information service by a mob Tuesday and Yugoslavs who attempted to get copies of the American daily news bulletins were beaten.

Tempers were growing hotter in the crowds that surged through the streets for the sixth straight day protesting against the Anglo-American decision to turn over the northern part of Trieste to Italy.

William B. King, an official of the United States information office, was beaten up Monday and seven Yugoslav employees of the information service, including two women, were beaten when they left for home Monday night.

Jeering, whistling crowds milled around the American and British information offices Tuesday and prevented all but a handful of the daily news bulletins from being distributed.

The American information center was kept open only for about one hour. Almost every one of the few Yugoslavs who braved the crowds to enter the building through a protective police cordon was grabbed and roughed up as soon as he left.

The American student — who asked that his name be withheld — was one of several persons on whom the demonstrators pinned signs which said: "Bitch" or "bulletin," because they accepted the news bulletins.

Russia Backs Position Russia popped up in the Belgrade press Tuesday as a backer of the Yugoslav position against the western Allies for the first time since President Marshal Tito broke with the Kremlin in 1948.

The capital's two major newspapers publicized the stand taken on Trieste by the bitter foe of Yugoslavia for the past five years. At the same time, the newspapers

Mental Patient Bludgeons Wife

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 13 —UP—A grim manhunt was ended Tuesday with the capture of a schizophrenic war veteran who admitted he bludgeoned his wife to death when she came to visit him at the Fort Roots mental hospital.

A hurriedly-organized posse fired five shots at Mike H. Wolfe, 36, before he was hauled covering from beneath a railroad trestle here Monday night.

Wolfe's 26-year-old wife, Betty, was beaten to death Sunday with an automobile jack while three of the couple's four children played nearby on the hospital picnic grounds.

"Others Control My Actions" "I killed her because others control my actions," Wolfe muttered to officers when they took him into custody.

He pointed to a long scar across his chest and said: "They control my heart." Wolfe escaped from the rambling hospital grounds by climbing a nine-foot fence shortly before his wife's body was found by their nine-year-old daughter. The girl had returned to the scene of the family picnic with a bottle of formula milk for her eight-month-old brother.

Posse of 100 Men A posse of more than 100 city, state and county police launched a hurried search for Wolfe when he was spotted by M. J. Kuespert near the entrance to Burns Park, about two miles away from the hospital.

North Little Rock Patrolmen Woodrow James and Howard Spinks soon flushed a shadowy figure in the woods and James fired five shots at the fugitive.

Additional officers were called to the scene and bloodhounds trailed Wolfe to the railroad trestle. He surrendered without resistance. None of the shots had struck him.

Wolfe has been in and out of mental hospitals for the past five years after receiving a mental discharge from the Army.

Fire investigators had not determined cause of the 3:50 a. m. blaze but believed it may have been caused by a lighted cigaret.

The Rains Came—But Only A Trace What appeared to be an early morning shower wasn't.

ON ALERT — US Infantrymen are on the alert at a machine gun emplacement on "Morgan Line" in Trieste. Line was manned following threats by Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito that he might send troops into Trieste's Zone "A" if American-British plan to turn area over to Italy is carried out. (NEA Telephoto)

'Explainers' Told To Begin Thursday

PANMUNJOM, Oct. 13 —UP—American engineers cleared the way Tuesday for the "counter brain-washing" of war prisoners and both the Allies and Communists were asked to start talking to the men Thursday.

The United Nations Command announced the engineers, who have been working continuously in shifts will complete explanation sites to be used by the Communists by midnight.

A UNC spokesman added the hard-working engineers had refused Communist charges of "starvation" by constructing the 32 permanent booths demanded by the Communists in one-fourth the allotted time.

Investigate Red Buildup The Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission then requested both sides to begin attempting to talk to the prisoners in going home at 8 a. m. Thursday (5 p. m. est Wednesday).

Another neutral commission charged with supervising the armistice ordered one of its teams to go into North Korea to investigate UNC charges the Reds had violated the truce by bringing in planes from Manchuria.

The Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission ordered the first inspection mission into North Korea since the armistice signing in August.

Button Invention For GIs Is Newest Morale Builder

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (UP)—It has been said that the American soldier can lick anything in the world but a busted button. The Army does wonderful things for a man who is awkward, clumsy, unschooled, and untrained. It can teach a playboy how to lug and clean a garbage can. A ballet dancer how to build a log bunker. A kid with fingers made for piano playing how to have at the enemy with a bayonet. Or it can give a Texas plainsman claustrophobia by setting him down inside a tank. But hand any one of these a needle, some thread, and a button and he starts yanking his top-knot out by the roots. The Army across the years, until now, has messed up on this vital training. And still, the services demand that all buttons be on, and all buttons buttoned.

Few books on subject. A lot of books have been written on buttons—where they come from, etc., but very few on how to tack a four-hole to the front of a man's shirt. A soldier can stand long marches along the dusty trail. He is willing to master any obstacle course, or sweat out the rifle of the foe. He can polish his brass. He can clean his rifle so well that he can see himself in the mirror of the barrel.

But buttons! Quartermaster laundries commonly are operated by guys who were in the laundry business in civilian life. These fellows long ago mastered the technique of cracking buttons through the ironing process but still leaving them intact. Comes reveille, and the soldier is rushing like crazy to make formation. He grabs a clean shirt. Then he starts to button buttons. The collar button pops off. That's not so bad. The tie will cover that. Then, off comes the second button. He can maybe fix that with a stapler in the orderly room. Then to the cuffs. Another cracked button. A paper clip? No, any platoon leader can spot that shiny thing at 50 paces in a heavy fog. So, kitchen police.

Snap-On Button
But now, the kids can relax. Now appearing in Army Post Exchanges around the world is a button that answers the GI's prayer. These buttons, with neat loops of brown thread through the fourholes, can be clipped to Army shirts and pants; to the platoon leader they look for all the world like sewed-on buttons. Behind the buttons are two sword-like metal prongs which are pushed through the cloth—without damaging it—and bent double. An old trick put to a new use.

Philippine Slogans Are Anti-American

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst
The Philippine political campaign is the latest to have added to it a note of anti-Americanism. Anti-Americanism is an increasingly popular theme among world politicians—even among those classed as friends of the United States—since, like slogans against sin, it is a good safe subject. The farther away the better because distance increases the chance that it will divert the electorate from unpleasant subjects nearby.

Philippines Battle
The Philippines are in the closing stages of a bitter campaign for the presidency, vice presidency, eight seats in the senate and the entire house of representatives. Running for re-election is President Elpidio Quirino, 62, on the Liberal party ticket. Opposing him in the Nacionalista-Democrat coalition is Ramon Magsaysay, 46, a former blacksmith and bus line operator, who gained fame as the scourge of the Communist-led Hukbuhap revolutionaries. Filipinos take their elections seriously. Blood was shed freely in the elections four years ago, with more than 100 deaths traceable to political differences. Quirino won but his defeated opponent, Jose P. Laurel, charged the liberals stole the election through terrorism and coercion of the voters by the army. Four years ago, Manila cafe owners displayed signs which in effect said: "Please check your gun at the door." Now, as tempers again reach the fever pitch, those signs may be dusted off for use again. The elections are Nov. 10. Magsaysay, colorful but a rela-

Follow Directions

DETROIT, Oct. 13 (UP)—Lester W. Trombly, 37, found it easy to track down a hit-and-run driver who dented a fender on his car. Trombly picked up the radio telephone in his car and called police. Then he followed the fleeing motorist, giving police details of the route. A patrol car following Trombly's instructions stopped the motorist, Arthur Holt, 64, at an intersection and gave him a ticket. Trombly, a newcomer to politics, is a former close friend of Quirino and served as Quirino's minister of defense. He quit his post to stump for the Nacionalista party nomination. Aligned in his support are Laurel, Philippine president during the Japanese occupation, and Carlos P. Romulo, former Philippine ambassador to the United States and also its delegate to the United Nations. Romulo, who once had presidential aspirations of his own, probably will get his old job back if Magsaysay wins.

Speaker Says Conservation Of Oil Is Way To Prosper

A. E. Hall, Bartlesville, Okla., an area supervisor for the Phillips Petroleum Company, believes that conservation in the oil business is "the only way and the best way to prosper."

An estimated 150 area oilmen and other interested persons were on hand to hear him at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Palm Room of City Hall for the first fall meeting of the American Petroleum Institute, Panhandle chapter.

Pointing out that gas prices today are actually less than they were in 1930 (30 cents a gallon in 1920; 27 cents, 1922), Hall emphasized that petroleum technology "has advanced a lot" in the last few years and has resulted in much greater recovery. For an example he gave the West Pampa field.

Introduced by B. W. (Smokey) Berthelot, another Bartlesville oil specialist, Hall said that there were three things in the oil business to stress: (1) oil is found in rocks; (2) oil cannot be produced without energy; and (3) oil is produced by creating a pressure differential.

"You can get oil from reserves as long as pressure can be maintained," he stated, adding that an oil well has two purposes—to prove an outlet for oil and to bring oil to the surface.

Illustrating his talk with a detailed model of the Caddo County, Okla., field, 70 miles southwest of Oklahoma City, he went through the operation of an oil well by means of water and gas injections. He was aided by Berthelot.

Following Hall's remarks, Clayton Husted, Pampa, chairman of the A.P.I.'s oil industry information committee, insisted that the oil industry has "added more of the better things in life than any other product."

In speaking of Pampa's first Business - Industry - Education Day, Husted said: "Most teachers, we must admit, are completely satisfied to get the security of their jobs for life—they are not high advocates of the type of person who has made the oil industry what it is today."

His words were followed by an impressionistic film, "Man on the Land," which dealt with man's rise in the world from very early days. Coffee, cakes and doughnuts were served to all hands at the conclusion of the program.

VI of the Constitution, as it now stands, treaties are made by the President or the State Department. After they are signed by the President, they are sent to the Senate where they must be approved by a two-thirds vote of members present. "This could be a dangerous thing," he added, "for in most cases the President controls the majority of the Senate and if only a few members of that body were present, the people would not be fully represented."

Mrs. Sidwell, in discussing Section 2, said that it was the opinion of many that the "which" clause of the section was not necessary since the amendment would provide that a treaty that conflicts with the Constitution is not valid.

Section 2 states: "A treaty shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation 'which' would be valid in the absence of a treaty."

The amendment only affects domestic and internal law, Cair said, gives the President broad powers but that under the Bricker amendment, the "State Department cannot get us involved in an agreement with another country that affects domestic or internal laws."

He pointed out that those opposed to the amendment say that it would place an unnecessary burden on the President and Secretary of State in dealing with foreign powers. They state that the President would be put at a disadvantage if he had to present the matter to Congress before signing the agreement.

Mrs. Culbertson asserted that "if we were bound to a treaty, such as the United Nations' Covenant of Human Rights, we would have to change our form of government."

She pointed out that if the United States enters an agreement of any kind, "we should at least know what we are doing."

The principal argument against Section 3, Stallings said, is that it would "slow down executive agreements, since the President could not make the agreements without lengthy judicial study."

This section states: "Congress shall have power to regulate all executive and other agreements with any foreign power or international organization. All such agreements shall be subject to the limitations imposed on treaties by this article."

He explained that any treaty made by the President or the State Department would still go to the Senate for the approval of two-thirds of the members present. Then it would go back to the President and that would go back to Congress for action of both houses.

"This would put the President at a disadvantage, since some agreements must be made in a hurry," he added.

Cair said that he was of the opinion that the people should have more voice in the making of treaties and that the treaty making powers of the President should be curbed.

Welfare Workers Open Meet Here

Approximately 20 field workers of the State Department of Public Welfare of the Amarillo-Pampa area met at 9 this morning in the Grand Jury Room of the Court House to discuss policy procedures.

Opening the meeting was E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who extended a welcome to the group.

Led by Thurman Covey, State Department of Public Assistance, the meeting dealt with policy procedure and the introduction of a new simplified system of interviewing and recording.

Movie Will Depict Late Glenn Miller

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—UP—It's about time somebody got around to telling the life story of the late Glenn Miller, the Iowa lad who made good.

That story soon will be told via the movies. It's a story about the famed orchestra leader who actually lost his life over a cup of coffee.

Glenn was a native of Clarinda, Ia., but was reared in North Platte, Neb. There he worked out as a butcher boy and was paid off with a beat-up trombone. He ironed out the dents, went to the University of Colorado, and before he knew what had hit him found himself with a "name" band.

Along came the War. His records outsold all others. He arranged the music for other big bands.

Then along came World War II. Gen. Hap Arnold, about this time, noticed Glenn was attracting young kids — the kind our Air Force needed. He planted a thought in Glenn's mind.

He joined up, and was given captaincy, and before long was taking his band of 82 pieces around the country, giving a spiel about the life of an Alpinist.

Col. Ed Kirby, chief of radio for the War Department, was brought back from Europe to set up radio to reach the Allied forces to be engaged in the invasion.

Took Whole Band
Ed also was to pick up a staff band and talked to Miller over coffee in New York.

He had in mind a few saxes and trombones and such to make a network show for morale purposes. Eight men, to be exact.

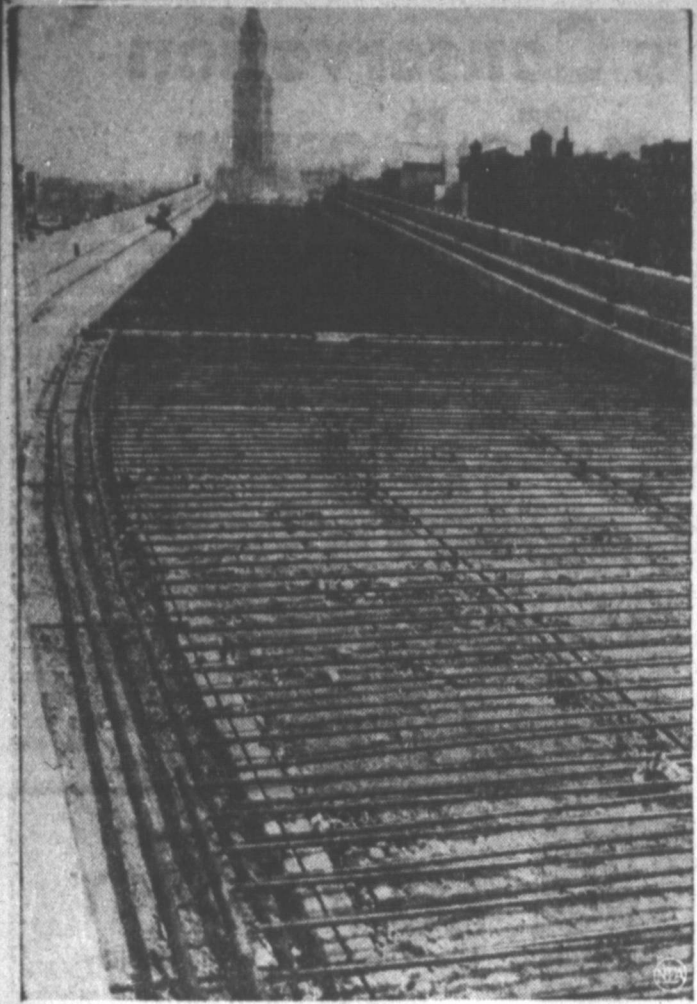

Miller had worked hard to put this band together, and it was a dandy. He said he was not about to leave most of it behind—and he had 62 men. That called for some doing on the part of Col. Kirby. He got hold of his boss, Gen. Ray Barker who finally got the nod from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, to fetch the whole band to England. Miller and his boys arrived the day after D-Day. They did a job. They played day and night, under some pretty awful conditions.

Christmas Eve Call
The whole crew went. All of them came home, except the leader. He was flying the English Channel ahead of the rest of the boys on Dec. 15, 1944. He went down and never again was heard from.

He was on his way to Paris to arrange a special broadcast on Christmas. Helen, his widow, and their two children, were alerted to listen here at home.

Ed Kirby, by this time, was back at the Pentagon. It was his misery to have to call Helen on Christmas Eve and tell her her husband was missing.

It was the toughest assignment in the "Colonel's" life.

PIPESFUL OF HIGHWAY SAFETY—In order to eliminate ice and snow hazards which will snarl traffic during the winter, snow-melting systems are being installed in ramps leading to the new Boston Aerial Highway. Some 200 tons of wrought-iron pipe, chosen because of its ability to resist corrosion and vibration damage, are used in the system. Heated water and antifreeze are circulated through the pipes, which are embedded in concrete.

Tiny Trieste Looms As Big Trouble Spot

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst
Geographically, 300-square-mile Trieste may be small, but in the world scheme of things it looms large.

Since World War II it has been the principal source of difficulty between Yugoslavia and Italy—difficulties which often seem more emotional than real, but which are a real block to Mediterranean unity.

Russia used failure to settle the future of Trieste as an excuse to block a peace treaty with Austria.

Exploded Last Thursday
Trieste is back in the news today with all the old conflicts magnified out of all proportion.

The situation exploded last Thursday when the United States and Britain announced they were turning the administration of Allied-occupied "Zone A," which includes the port city of Trieste, over to the Italians.

They proposed Yugoslavia should continue to hold the territory's "Zone B," but Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito reacted quickly and angrily.

Tito Caught by Surprise
A part of his violent reaction seemed due to the fact he was caught by surprise, and thus without a plan.

Hence, the bewildering assortment of ultimatums, threats and proposals coming out of Belgrade, and the mob attacks against the United States and British information services which resulted in the serious injury to an American information service employee.

Mobs do not ordinarily roam unchecked in Communist countries without government sanction.

On Monday, Russia entered the picture.

Italians Quiet
It said the United States and British plan violated the Italian peace treaty because it "obstructed" the setting up of a free territory of Trieste, and accused the Western allies of transforming Trieste into an illegal Anglo-American military base.

The Anglo-American proposal was an obvious attempt to break by positive action a Yugoslav and Italian stalemate.

Surprisingly, it has been accepted calmly by the Italians who apparently had some warning it was coming, but angrily by the Yugoslavs who in the past have indicated they would settle for permanent possession of "zone B," but who now apparently have raised their price.

Animal World Awaits Birth Of America's First Platypus

By BARBARA BUNDSCHU
NEW YORK, Oct. 13—UP—The big question in the animal world—whether the Bronx zoo has America's first baby platypus—should be answered now in a matter of weeks.

It was three months ago that Penelope, the mother platypus went through all the motions of reproducing and bringing signal distinction to the local zoo.

But her egg was hatched, if it was hatched, deep in a mud-bank burrow and officials at the zoo have been waiting patiently to see whether she at long last will bring out a young platypus, the first ever in this country. She may even have two or three hidden in the depths of her burrow.

It is now expected that sometime within the next four weeks she will introduce her offspring to the outside world — unless she's been kidding the experts all this time. The answer may come even sooner if the weather turns cold. In that event officials at the zoo will dig into the mudbank and take the family indoors.

Penelope and her husband Cecil, with their broad duckbills and small furry bodies are the only representatives of the species ever mated outside of their native Australia. The species itself is one of only two extant which both lays eggs and suckles its young. Only one baby platypus has ever been born before in captivity—as far as records show.

At that point, presumption set in. Presumably she laid an egg, or maybe two or three; presumably she's been nursing since the middle of July. For a fact, she's been coming out every night since the presumed hatching and eating heartily of worms and crayfish, then going back in.

An electric water heater is already at work taking the chill off the water beside the mudbank, but the zoo attendants don't believe it's powerful enough to offset a really prolonged cold spell.

They don't expect a crisis before Nov. 1, and they're crossing their fingers the winter will hold off until about the 15th. But if it's necessary, they'll dismantle the mudbank as gently as possible and take the baby indoors with its parents—let them find a baby.

State Fair Names Santa Gertrudis As Grand Champ

DALLAS, Oct. 13—UP—Red Cain, a bull owned by Charles Pearce of Rush Creek Ranch at Kerens, Tuesday became the first champion Santa Gertrudis ever designated by a major show.

It was chosen by the State Fair of Texas beef-cattle show Monday as grand champion. Reserve animal was Prince Albert, owned by A. P. George of Richmond.

The Santa Gertrudis breed was developed between 1910 and 1940 by King Ranch of South Texas. The cherry-colored, heavily bodied, mixture of Brahman and Short-horn strains was recognized as a distinct breed by the American Cattle Raisers Association just 13 years ago.

Grand champion bull in the Brahman show Monday, third day of the fair, was JDH Okaloo Cardo Manso, owned by J. D. Hudgins of Hungerford. Reserve champion bull was JTG Resota Manso Jr., 167, owned by J. T. Garrett of Danbury.

The Garrett bull also won first place in the senior yearling class and the Hudgins animal took top honors in the two-year-old class.

Cherokee King entries of C. E. Yoakam Ranch, San Sabo, won all three prizes in the aged bull class.

Other first prize winners were: Junior Yearling Bull Class—JDH Aristocrat Manso 666, owned by Hudgins Ranch.

Duron Howard of Ryan, Okla., took top three honors with his entries in the Southdown sheep contest. There were 237 sheep entries in the event.

London Officials Concerned Over Possible Fog Disaster

By ROBERT MUSEL
LONDON, Oct. 12 —UP—Less than a year ago London suffered the worst fog disaster in history, with more than 4,000 deaths, and today worried officials admitted it could happen again.

The "killer fog" settled on London Dec. 5 and the suffocating blanket lifted Dec. 9. But for two weeks afterward the aged and middle-aged and even some children died of ailments brought on by the struggle to keep from choking.

Deaths from bronchitis jumped 10 times over the average of previous weeks, influenza deaths increased seven times, pneumonia fatalities five times and tuberculosis and other respiratory deaths went up sixfold.

Scientists who have filled volumes with studies of the great fog concluded there was only way to prevent a recurrence—produce less smoke.

But the annual Congress of the National Smoke Abatement Society disclosed it will be years before London is safe from such fogs, partly because of the stubborn insistence of British householders on "a nice open fire."

The coal fire is the most wasteful form of heating used in this country. Its fumes are responsible for about half the air pollution.

Demand Open Fires
Britons, however, still demand them despite the pleas of scientists like Prof. F. E. Simon of Oxford. "The immediate abolition of open fires would be, in my opinion, the greatest and easiest step toward economic recovery," Simon said.

He pointed out that, health reasons apart, a ban on open fires would save from 10 million to 15 million tons of coal a year. He said it would go so far toward restoring full prosperity that the government ought to offer to pay the cost of replacing all fireplaces with stoves.

Subsidies Offered
Some local councils already are offering subsidies to householders who replace their coal fires with grates burning smokeless fuel.

Experts believe British industry, given a subsidy, could produce enough smokeless fuel to eliminate the fog danger in four years. In the meantime, London health officials will be advised by the weather bureau when fog danger conditions begin to develop this winter.

The pattern that became the December death is now well known. Warm windless weather is followed by cold weather without wind, and the city with an immovable blanket of cool air in which the noxious fumes of chimneys and automobiles are trapped.

Important Issues

So far as domestic problems and issues are concerned, two subjects are being given intense attention now. One is whether or not there is going to be a business recession of substantial proportions. The other is what, if anything, will happen to the tax system and the tax rates.

A high official view on these and other matters was recently provided by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey in a question-and-answer session at the National Press Club.

Mr. Humphrey made it clear at the outset that he doesn't claim to be able to see far into the future with accuracy. However, he found no reason "why anybody should anticipate any calamity or any great difficulty." He pointed out that production and employment are at the highest peaks we have ever known. At the same time, he recognized the fact that soft spots must inevitably appear. Then he made this observation: "The greatest thing that could happen to us in this country would be to have one industry at a time do a little readjusting in its own affairs and then be back again. The thing we don't want is to have everybody readjust all at once. I see no reason why anybody should be alarmed about business conditions today. In fact, I am very discouraged about them and I am optimistic."

The secretary was then asked if the Administration has plans to offset a recession should it appear. To this he replied with an emphatic yes, though he did not go into specific details as to what the plans involve. No administration, he said, could permit an economic catastrophe if there were any way to prevent it. He said: "I think the proper way to stop it is to do the sound things in money and finance, the sound things in business and production, in distribution, that can be done to let free, competitive enterprise operate itself in the right kind of way."

Moving on, Mr. Humphrey came to the question of taxes. A short time before the President had made an address in which he warned, in effect, that the Soviet menace to the free world was unabated, and many commentators assumed from this that past Administration plans for tax cuts would be abandoned. Going by Mr. Humphrey's remarks, that is not the case at all. He said: "If the deficit we are going to run is as we now expect and anticipate, if we can continue to make the progress in the reduction of expenditures for the rest of the year that we have made so far, I think the tax cuts should go through just as planned." Specifically he said that, under these conditions, the excess profits tax will be allowed to expire, and the personal income tax reduction scheduled for the first of the year will go into effect.

The Secretary made another very important general statement on the tax question. As economist after economist has argued, the federal tax system is chaotic and inequitable — like Topsy, it just grew without any cohesive plan. Apparently the Administration shares this view. Mr. Humphrey said that the whole tax system is being intensively studied, and added: "There are many, many things that determine how taxes react and reflect on earnings, on jobs, on employment, on the volume of production . . . It isn't just who pays what; it is much broader than that. It covers the whole field of the success of our economy. We are going to try to come up with a program we can defend because we have facts in abundance to support us in it."

Probable Answer

Many theories have been offered as to why the Soviet Union has not attacked and overrun Western Europe. One of these is not so widely known as it should be. It is that Russia's lack of a modern railroad system has made invasion too risky.

Russia is larger than the United States in both population and land area — yet she has but 78,000 miles of railroad as compared with our 223,500 miles. Moreover, track gauge is not standardized — which means that goods frequently must be unloaded and reloaded at a heavy cost in time and effort during a long trip. Actually, say some experts, the Soviet railroads are about in the same shape as ours were 75 years ago.

No doubt Russia is working hard to make up her inadequacies in this field — but that is a matter that can't be attended to overnight. It demands human and material resources of high caliber, and in great quantity. The American railroad system is the world's best because science, initiative, drive and competition made it so. The highest military authorities have told us how vital a service our railroads performed for the nation in war. And in time of peace their contribution to the welfare of us all is almost beyond exaggeration.

The Iron Horse has his competitors. But he still pulls the biggest load by far.

"Education For 1948" Or The "Aimlessness Of Education"

I want to continue to quote from a pamphlet issued by The Foundation for Economic Education, Inc., which is a summary of an article written by Dr. Arthur E. Bestor, Jr. under the heading of "Aimlessness in Education." Dr. Bestor continues as follows:

A Concept Repudiated
"The concept of education that I have just stated is not guiding the American public schools today. An alarming number of professional educators — school superintendents, professors of education, and members of the state educational bureaucracies — have repudiated it in favor of something which is apt to be called 'life-adjustment education.' As an example, let us examine a study sponsored by the superintendent of public instruction in Illinois, looking toward the reorganization of the public-school curriculum in that state. Its starting point is a document entitled 'Problems of High School Youth,' prepared by a professor of education. Questionnaires based upon it have been widely circulated, and the answers are supposed to be helpful in 'engineering' an improved, broadly based consensus regarding what the local high school should be doing for its students."

"The first thing that strikes one on reading the list of problems is the grotesque disproportion among the different matters presented. Trivia are elaborated beyond all reason, and substantial matters are lumped together in a very small number of separate items, thus reducing them to relative insignificance in the whole. Among the 55 points are these: 'the problem of improving one's personal appearance,' 'the problem of selecting a family dentist' and acquiring the habit of visiting him systematically,' 'the problem of developing one or more 'making things,' 'making it go,' or 'tinkering' hobbies,' and 'the problem of developing and maintaining wholesome boy-girl relationships.' Not a whit more weight or emphasis is placed upon the following, each of which constitutes but a single point among the 55: 'the problem of acquiring the ability to distinguish right from wrong and to guide one's actions accordingly,' 'the problem of acquiring the ability to study and help solve economic, social, and political problems,' and 'the problem of making one's self a well-informed and sensitive citizen of the world.'"

No Place For Disciplines
"Needless to say, the scholarly and scientific disciplines have no place among these 'real life-problems.' Arithmetic has sometimes been considered of importance, but, although 'athletic games,' 'camping,' 'collecting art objects,' etc., and 'doing parlor stunts' are mentioned by name, each in a separate item of the list of 55, not one of the branches of mathematics is even hinted at. The word 'science' occurs nowhere in the list, nor any term synonymous with it or descriptive of its various branches. That history and foreign languages are absent, even by remotest implication, goes without saying."

"If these basic things are left out, how can we possibly rely on the educators' vague promise that they will deal effectively with 'the problem of acquiring the ability to study and help solve economic, social and political problems?' The question for the educator is not whether the school should do anything in the matter, but how. The traditional curriculum offered a clear-cut answer through careful and systematic study of history, political science, philosophy, economics, sociology, and other relevant disciplines. The aim was to cultivate sound judgment based upon critical thinking and thorough knowledge. To the new pedagogical medicine man, however, all this is sheer pedantry, just as bacteriology is so much learned nonsense to the happy faith healer.

Short Cut To Wisdom
"Political, economic, and social problems that have taxed the intelligence of the best-educated men from antiquity to the present are to be solved, so the educator blithely assures us, through a 'common learnings course' in the high school, wherein 'materials from science, literature, history, mathematics, industrial education, homemaking, business education, art, music, and all other areas of the curriculum would be included.' We must not detain him to ask for proof that his short-cut to wisdom will actually produce it. After all, he has 54 other problems to wrestle with, and he must hasten on to the next — 'The problem of acquiring the ability to select and enjoy good motion pictures,' perhaps, or 'the problem of acquiring the social skills of dancing, playing party games, doing parlor stunts, etc.'"

"If men and women prefer the latter things to intellectual training, the educator will argue, should they not have them? The question is really irrelevant, for the questionnaires do not provide and cannot provide, one iota of evidence that the public is making any such choice. The most damning part of the whole study is that the questionnaires used are patently dishonest. They purport to ask parents, citizens, teachers, and pupils what they think is the job of the secondary school. But the persons questioned are not

DOWN SOUTH Welfare Of Individual Should Be Only Object Of Labor Laws

By THURMAN SENSING, Southern States Industrial Council, Nashville, Tennessee

There has been too much talk in connection with labor legislation about what favors management or favors labor. The object of management is to get the most out of the individual citizen and the people generally — which is really one and the same. What is the best for the people is what is best for management. After all, the people are the masters of management, and the welfare of the one rises and declines together.

What is best for the individual is best for labor. Labor legislation should never be devised in the interests of labor unions — any more than in the interests of management. The welfare of the individual worker should be the object of all labor legislation. After all, we must not forget that the interests of labor bosses and the interests of the individual worker are quite often not one and the same.

Moreover, we must not forget that organized labor only comprises about twenty-five per cent of all labor. Therefore, even if labor bosses could speak completely for the entire membership of the labor unions, they do not mean always the case; they would still be speaking for only one-fourth of those who work.

These are some fundamentals that many are overlooking in connection with the current discussion of the Taft-Hartley Act, which is the Labor Law of the land. The Taft-Hartley Act — if we are to have federal labor legislation at all — is more nearly a "Worker's Bill of Rights" than any law we have ever had. It to a large extent protects the welfare of the worker from the dictatorship of labor bosses and the imposition of management.

That this is true is evidenced by the fact that labor union members themselves, when polled on the separate provisions of the act, vote overwhelmingly in favor of them. It is the labor bosses who have termed the Taft-Hartley Act a "slave labor law" — not the union members.

As we consider revision of the act, therefore, we should forget the differences between the Democrats and the Republicans, we should forget the special interests of labor bosses and management; we should concentrate on what is best for the free American citizen. When we do this, we find that the act needs amending in two highly important respects. There may also be minor adjustments necessary, but these two stand out. They are: (1) outlawing compulsory unionism of any sort; and (2) making labor unions as well as industry equally subject to the anti-trust laws.

There is no place in the American scheme of life for compulsory unionism in any form. The "right to work" is fundamental to our way of life. This right is denied just as surely by the union shop, which is permitted by the act, as it is by the closed shop which is forbidden by the act. The union shop is simply an effort on the part of labor bosses to go through the back door and get something they cannot get through the front door and get.

Management which accepts the union shop is just as guilty as the labor bosses who demand it. One of the major reasons for the success of the American economic system has been the existence of our anti-trust laws. They assure the competition and the absence of economic monopoly which are absolutely necessary to a progressive economy. One of the great handicaps of our British friends, for instance, is that they have not had such laws.

Anti-trust laws are in reality "fair play" at work — and certainly this is a fundamental American characteristic and in fact a characteristic of freedom itself. As applied to labor unions, they would make it impossible for a small percentage of the workers of the nation under willful and irresponsible leadership to strangle the economy of the nation — something that is inexcusable in a free country.

A group of third-graders visited the art museum for the first time. There they saw a French eighteenth century drawing room correct in every detail. The teacher asked them later what there was about this room that interested them the most. One little girl piped up: "No tele-

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

What can be the cause of a scalp disorder with big red blotches, white flakes, and itching, asks T. L. C. These go away, he says, but then come back as bad as before.

The most likely explanation for Mr. C's difficulty — which, by the way is also often associated with falling hair — is a condition known as seborrhea. Seborrhea is commonly divided into two varieties, one, dry seborrhea, or dandruff, and the other, oily seborrhea. Both of these conditions are more common in the scalp than elsewhere, but may extend down to the eyebrows, face, and even other parts of the body. In oily seborrhea, the hair and scalp feel greasy and are hard to keep clean because dirt floating in the air sticks and the hair follicles tend to clog up with oil and tiny scales of skin, dirt and the like, and this certainly does not make for healthy scalp or hair.

Sometimes a true inflammation of the skin follows, or accompanies seborrhea and then the condition is called dermatitis, and this can be painful as well as annoying. What is responsible for either form of seborrhea has not been determined. No germs have been associated with the condition. However, seborrhea of either kind commonly starts after the general health has been lowered by such things as infection or fatigue. Anemia, constipation, indigestion, lack of fresh air and exercise, and the wearing of still and ill-ventilated hats are also said to contribute.

Boy (finally) — Look here, my boy. What do you want for a penny—the whole world with a fence around it? Boy — (without hesitation) Let's see it.

Miss Sophie Tucker Paid High Honor By Miss Sophie Tucker

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The most lavish and unstinted testimonial to any living human being that I have ever seen and heard was the magnificent tribute without warning that was paid to Miss Sophie Tucker at the Waldorf recently by Miss Sophie Tucker. This lady is the acknowledged prima donna of an art form which is still widely popular, although it is getting obsolete.

Not many among our people who patronize public amusement and who don't now, with radio and television — without admiration from that method of singing which frankly relies so much on noise that it acknowledges man's sense of himself about their tunelessness and blatancy. Like Jocko on his cart-horse, they come at a high one with a thunderous rush only to refuse in a way so abject that comedy, though hardly humor, is substituted for virtue.

The acceptance of this compromise by the public is no fault of the performer, just as the toleration of disgusting vulgarity in the discourse of the humorist at the microphone is the responsibility of the public. On a Christmas night, three years ago, a pundit on moral and political matters, holding forth from a New York steak-house, without warning, to his unequipped audience with a sally about sexual depravity so horrible in the religious atmosphere of the hour that the wonder was that a crusade did not go howling over 48th st. to lead the pluckiest of Yankees a time came when Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt put herself at this scholar's disposal for a sly babble including one flagrant lie about a defenseless individual who promptly called her a vicious liar in writing.

The vulgarity, from the aesthetic standpoint, of the lyric which is Miss Tucker's professional "signature" is not disgusting to the moral sense. But it is, however, an incident in a large-scale degradation of literary taste and culture. When Miss Tucker bawls, as she has bawled for many years, "Yer gonna miss me honey—" she awakes in a few of these more sensitive palate, a quiet longing for the sweet dignity of "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "Jeannie With The Light Brown Hair" sung by gentler voices. Sometimes a true inflammation of the skin follows, or accompanies seborrhea and then the condition is called dermatitis, and this can be painful as well as annoying.

What is responsible for either form of seborrhea has not been determined. No germs have been associated with the condition. However, seborrhea of either kind commonly starts after the general health has been lowered by such things as infection or fatigue. Anemia, constipation, indigestion, lack of fresh air and exercise, and the wearing of still and ill-ventilated hats are also said to contribute.

New Italian Boy Haircut Is Called 'Surry With Fringe On Top' By Star

By ALINE MOSBY
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13 — UP— Those Italian haircuts are the hottest fashion for movie queens and cover girls, but the Hollywood males today dubbed the coiffures "hunks of spaghetti combed with an eggbeater."

This stylish haircut has several variations. One is a combed-straight-into-the-eyes business, recently worn by Elizabeth Taylor.

Then there is the uncombed version, pulled straight back, no part, with spilt curls over the forehead and ears. That style is displayed by Jeanne Crain and virtually every wide-eyed New York model in those high fashion magazines.

"The snakes for hair," "One thing I like about the Italian haircut, though," he reflected, "it looks as if the girl just got out of bed."

"Then, too, it's practical. After all, you don't have to comb it. And," he added, "I'm sure the girls don't!"

"Marilyn Monroe has one Italian haircut that just won't quit."

Long hair, he went on, is feminine and can look much neater than the short bobs. You never see sex queen Rita Hayworth cutting her hair these days, he said.

Handsome Bob Wagner termed the hair fashion "too mannish."

The way one hairdresser explains it, you're supposed to look like an Italian street urchin.

"So who wants females to look like urchins? That hair resembles spaghetti combed with an eggbeater," is the verdict of Cameron Mitchell, new heart-throb at 20th Century Fox studio.

Each hairdresser has another of movie-land's new leading men, agreed, he furthermore thinks the hair-do "looks like Medusa, the gal with CHICAGO — (UP)— Judge Julius H. Miner, mender of broken marriages, believes money problems account for more than 50 percent of divorces.

Sexual incompatibility is "very infinitesimal" in its contribution to broken marriages, he said.

Miner, a judge of the Cook County Superior Court, has been credited with saving hundreds of marriages through reconciliations. He is the author of Illinois' new "cooling off" divorce law which he hopes will help save more marriages.

Mature Parent

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
He is four years old. His two-year-old sister is a friend of Mrs. D.'s little girl.

The other day they were playing together in the yard when he came by with his dump truck. It was loaded with his sister's heavy wooden blocks. She wanted one—grabbed it. He snatched it from her and with it, struck her across the face, splitting her lip.

There followed screams, blood, panic and a spanking. Later, when he came calling on Mrs. D., she slammed the door in his face.

"He is a cruel child," she writes me. "His tantrums so frighten his sister that she hides in her crib till they're over. He's a menace to my youngster, but his mother has no control over him and I don't know what to do."

We might try opening the door to him instead of slamming it in his face.

At four, we cannot be called cruel. We just don't have the experience for cruelty. When we are enraged, we may split sister's lip, but we simply don't possess the imagination to evaluate what we have done.

So, instead of spanking us, grown-ups try to help us evaluate. If they love us, they open our infant minds most carefully to realization. For though they recognize that it's physically shocking to our sister to get a wooden block in the face, they also understand that we are emotionally shocked by reactions to our impulse.

They see that we are utterly bewildered by the screams, blood and excitement we've created.

They know that these sensational results can fill us with such confused terror of ourselves that we, not our sister, may be the ones to suffer the more serious scar.

Therefore, under such difficult circumstances, the adults who love us try to remain as composed as possible. They don't spank us for something we can't appreciate because they don't want to add to our terror, but to release us from it.

The little boy who came knocking at Mrs. D.'s door did not bring menace with him, but an unheard cry for comfort from terror of himself.

Does this sound sentimental? If it does, it's because we don't know our own angry selves very well. If we did know what shrieking creatures we are in anger, we could not possibly have slammed the door in our small neighbor's face. We'd have opened it and said, "Come in, Billy. How glad we are to see you."

CHARACTER PLAYS PART
"Or the man can't face the burden of financial arguments. He leaves home and it's desertion."

"Lack of character" in a wide variety of forms is in second place as a home-breaker, Miner said. In this category he puts "aloofness, selfishness, domination and callousness."

Other reasons for divorce are only minor, Judge Miner said.

"Sex is highly exaggerated. Not even as many as five per cent of divorces can be blamed on bad sex relations," he said.

Differences in religion also have a small role as a home destroyer, Miner said. "It is a difference in religion has become so important that it makes the man and wife want a divorce, something much deeper is behind the dispute," Miner said.

60 DAYS TO CONSIDER
Miner's new "cooling off" divorce law went into effect in Illinois courts July 1. A resident of the state who wants a divorce, or a legal separation or annulment, must file a "declaration of intention" to sue with the court clerk and wait 60 days before the action may be entered.

During this period Judge Miner talks to each couple in his chambers, first separately, then to the husband and wife together.

Often he gives them a tongue-lashing.

"I think you're just too arrogant," he told one wife. "You'd better give him another chance. After all, it's not going to be a cinch finding another man who'll want to support those two children."

Miner said 75 per cent of the couples he talks to go back home together to make another try.

Judge Miner has no formula for happy marriages. "Mrs. Miner said I have one fight," he told a couple, "but there are the children to think of (the Miners have three) so we just stick it out and the argument is forgotten."

lice Trap Set, But oe Didn't Bite

By OSWALD JACOBY
 Written for NEA News
 "You might like this hand," cries Paul M. Hummel, of university, Ala.
 At all the tables except one, South or North played at three-trump-down two. At one table, however, the bidding was as giv- ing in the accompanying hand.
 "West made the excellent lead a small spade. This was taken by the king, and the closed hand as entered with the queen of dia- onds. South finessed the ten of rbs, and East held off.
 "This was a nice trap, but with wasn't biting. He followed with the ace and a low club, put- ing East in with the king of clubs. East shifted to a heart. West ok the ace and returned a heart of three tricks. East led a third round of hearts.
 "South naturally played the queen of hearts, and West ruffed with ten of spades. Dummy over- ruffed with the queen, and now was South's turn to be a hero.

is led the eight of spades from the dummy. East played low, and South finessed the nine of spades like a man. This rest was routine.
 "The East-West pair moaned about being fixed because all the other North-South players were down at three no-trump. They were fixed, all right, but don't you think they brought it on themselves? If they hadn't made such fancy bids, their opponents would have wound up in three no-trump likewise, right?"
 "Quite right. East didn't have the values for an overcall of one heart, and West didn't have the values of a free bid of two diamonds. When they made those interference bids, they knew that the effect might be to push North or South into an unusual contract.
 "Unfortunately for East and West, they pushed South away from an unmakeable contract into one that could make.
 "Incidentally, South was very clever to avoid the trap in clubs. If he assumes that the finesse is working, he will draw two more rounds of trumps and repeat the club finesse. Thereupon, East will take the king of clubs and lead a heart to grab three heart tricks!

Baseball Involved In Antitrust Suit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 —UP—The Supreme Court scheduled argu- ments Tuesday on whether or- ganized baseball is still a sport or whether it has become a busi- ness—subject to the antitrust laws.
 The justices are examining com- plaints by two ball players and a minor league club owner. The three are seeking damages they claim they suffered under the present rules of the game. An hour's time has been allotted to each case. The arguments will carry over Wednesday.
 Lower courts dismissed the cases without trial on the basis of an opinion rendered 30 years ago by Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. The Supreme Court found then base- ball was merely a sport—outside the scope of the antitrust laws.
 If the present bench reverses the Holmes decision, the cases can go to trial to determine whether there actually have been violations and if so what damages the complain- ants have suffered.

Williamson Drops Harvesters 2 Notches Despite Victory Over Amarillo Sandies

HERE TOFORE WE HAVE BEEN going along with the Williamson System schoolboy ratings that hit our desk each week. But today, we've certainly got a complaint to make.

Despite defeating a highly regarded Amarillo Sandie team, Williamson dropped the Harvesters two notches from last week's ratings, 5th to 7th. Just how he arrived at this decision is beyond our reckoning.

On the other hand, the United Press thought more of the Harvester win over Amarillo than Williamson. As you'll note elsewhere on this page, UP has the Harvesters ranked fourth over the state in the AAAA ratings.

We don't believe we are being prejudiced in complaining about Williamson putting the Harvesters in seventh. After all, even seventh is a pretty high mark. But, how could he rank them fifth last week and seventh this week is a mystery. That's sort of an insult to the Sandies, who lost to the Harvesters last week which not only railed to help Pampa's rating—it hurt them.

Irish Hold Top Spot In UP Grid Poll

By NORMAN MILLER
NEW YORK, Oct. 13 —UP—Even without throwing a single pass or making a buck at the line, Notre Dame widened its lead over explosive Michigan State Tuesday in the United Press College Football Ratings.

While the Irish took a day off from their rigorous schedule last Saturday, Michigan State was involved in a tough struggle with Texas Christian, being forced to put on a three-touchdown last period rally before winning 26-19. The triumph was Spartans' 27th in a row.

As a result, the 35 leading coaches who comprise the United Press Rating Board, chose Notre Dame tops for the third straight week. The Irish attracted 27 first place votes, and 231 points to four first place ballots and 283 points for the Spartans. Only one coach put the Irish lower than fourth.

Notre Dame's next test comes against Pittsburgh Saturday, while Michigan State meets Indiana, UCLA, unbeaten in four games, retained third place, while Maryland moved up one notch to fourth, and Georgia Tech vaulted four places to fifth.

There were three big changes among the top 10 this week. Oklahoma, which beat Texas, 19 to 14, in the nationally televised game, moved back in the select group, advancing from 15th place to ninth; Southern California, held to a surprise 13 to 13 tie by Washington, dropped all the way from sixth to 10th, and Ohio State, beaten by Illinois 41 to 20, dropped from fourth all the way to a tie for 19th.

Michigan and Baylor, both unbeaten in three games, moved up one notch each to sixth and seventh respectively, and Duke, with a 4-0 record, jumped from 10th to eighth.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 —UP—The United Press College Football Ratings:

UP's All-American League 9 Lists Four New York Yankees

By CARL LUNDQUIST
NEW YORK, Oct. 13 —UP—Four Yankees were named Tuesday on the annual United Press American League All-Star team but top honors went to Cleveland's slugging third baseman, Al Rosen, the only unanimous choice.

That 1953 was a year for new stars was emphasized in the fact there were only three holdovers from last year's team, Rosen, and Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle of the Yankees.

Rosen received every vote of the special 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers of America while catcher Berra and first baseman Mickey Vernon of Washington, the league batting champion, were named on all but one ballot.

The other Yankees to be selected were Hank Bauer and Billy Martin, Washington with Vernon and Chicago with outfielder Minnie Minoso. Red pitcher Billy Pierce, was the only other team to place more than one player on the honor squad. The other players selected were rookie shortstop Harvey Kuenn of Detroit and Rosen, who was the lone Cleveland representative.

Wildcats, Panthers Sharing 1-A Lead

Canadian's Wildcats and Panhandle's Panthers took early leads in the District 1-A race Friday night by opening the conference race with victories.

Six of the seven members of 1-A opened conference play last week. McLean, one of the pre-season favorites, and the lone unbeaten team in the full season, will not open its conference slate until this week.

Canadian paced past White Deer, 33-7, and Panhandle rolled over previously unbeaten Clarendon 26-5, in conference openers last Friday. In a third conference game, Lefors and Memphis battled to a 6-6 tie.

More crucial games are on tap this week. The feature game will be McLean-Panhandle tilt at Panhandle. McLean, while the other

Miami, Mobeetie In Traditional Tilt

MIAMI, Oct. 13 —(Special)—The Miami Warriors are heading down in workouts this week in preparations for the coming battle with rival Mobeetie Saturday night at Mobeetie. It will be Mobeetie's homecoming game.

Bobby Paige of Wichita Falls will also be a District 1-B tilt. Miami racked up an impressive 39-19 victory over Follett last week thus avenging an earlier 24-6 loss to the same club. Last week's game, however, counted in the District 1-B race whereas the first game was a practice tilt.

In last week's game with Follett, Bill Russell was the big gun. He scored two touchdowns and passed for another. His touchdown runs were for 10 and eight yards and he passed to Tommy Wells for 15 yards and another TD. In addition, Russell blocked a Follett punt that resulted in a safety against the Follett team, giving Miami two points.

Others scoring for the Warriors were Don Watson, two touchdowns and Jimmy Bean and Tommy Wells one TD apiece.

Midwestern Wins In Cotton Bowl

DALLAS, Oct. 13 —UP—A last-half rally by Midwestern University of Wichita Falls, Tex., pushed the Indians ahead of National University of Mexico Monday night for a 27 to 19 victory before 2,500 fans in the Cotton Bowl.

The lead see-sawed during the first half, and ended in a 13 to 13 tie at intermission. Bobby Paige of Wichita Falls put the Indians ahead in the third quarter, 20 to 19, and the Mexico Pumas never caught up again. A fourth-quarter Page-to-Bobby Patrick scoring pass clinched the contest this clinaxed Mexico Day at the State Fair of Texas.

49ers' Tittle Is Injured

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 —UP—Coach Buck Shaw of the San Francisco 49ers said Tuesday he would start Jim Powers as quarterback against the Chicago Bears next Sunday as a precaution for the injured Y. A. Tittle.

Tittle was in a Detroit hospital where he will undergo a second operation to correct a triangular fracture of the right cheekbone, an injury he received in last Sunday's game against the Detroit Lions.

Shamrock To Host Wolves Friday Nite

By UNITED PRESS
Four standout district games and a full schedule of attractive inter-district clashes bring 16 of Texas' 18 unbeaten, untied Class AA football teams into action this week.

Four of the 32 districts in the state have two unbeaten teams within their ranks. Dumas and Dalhart boast perfect records in 1-AA, Floydada and Spur in 5-AA, Weatherford and Comanche in 9-AA and Yoakum and Refugio in 30-AA.

The other unbeaten and untied eleven are Olton in district two, Stamford in four, Andrews in six, Terrell in 13, Mount Vernon in 14, Carthage in 16, Huntsville in 20, LaVega in 21, Liberty in 28 and Del Rio in 29.

Dumas, 38 to 13 winner over Littlefield last week, tries to make it four straight in a district encounter against Perryton, which lost its first game Friday night to Phillips.

Miss Fry, previous singles winner in France, Australia and England, teamed with Beverly Baker Fleitz of Santa Monica, Calif., to win the women's doubles finals from Melita Ramirez and Maria Tapia of Mexico, 11-9, 2-6, 6-4.

Although the first "inn" was opened in Lydia in the 7th century, B.C., the modern hotel is an American invention.

Stamford, the team generally regarded as the No. 1 threat to Terrell's chances for another state title, hosts Graham Friday night. Stamford may get a good test from its district 11-AA opponent which has lost two games but both were to higher classification teams.

Twenty-eight district games are on this week's schedule.

ONE PRESENT BY VING FULLER

BLAZES, I'D FORGOTTEN THEY LAUNCH GUIDED MISSILES INTO THE ATLANTIC FROM A BASE IN FLORIDA!

YES, FROM THE MISSILE TEST CENTER NEAR COCOA-- ABOUT 250 MILES FROM HERE. AT PRESENT, THEY LAND BETWEEN GRAND BAHAMA AND ABACO ISLANDS.

WE'RE IN THAT AREA NOW! AND TH' QUICKER WE GET OUT, TH' BETTER!

THERE'S NO HURRY, IN MASSA I HEARD THE SEVENTY-FOUR HOUR NOTICE FOR AIRCRAFT TO AVOID THIS AREA DAY AFTER TOMORROW!

THE WATER IS STILL TOO ROUGH FOR A SMALL CRUISER WITH ALL SORTS AWAY FROM THE SHELTER OF THIS ISLAND, MAYBE BY MORNING...

ANYWAY, THEY SEVERAL HOURS BEFORE FIRING A MISSILE!

Boots

MARY, I DON'T MIND ADMITTING THAT, SINCE YOUR ARRIVAL, I'VE NOTICED A MARKED IMPROVEMENT IN MY CONDITION!

I'M GLAD, SCOTT!

THAT WAS MARY LAVE, THANKING ME--

BUT I MUST SAY, SHE DIDN'T SEEM VERY RELATED OVER HER NEW JOB! PERHAPS SHE'S CONCERNED ABOUT LEAVING THE MORLEY BOY!

HIM! FROM WHAT I HEAR, THERE WAIN'T A THINKING WRONG WITH 'IM THAT A GOOD PADDLE 'PATIN' WOULDN'T FIX UP!

Mickey Finn

OH, SO THAT'S WHY YOU RAN UP TO THE CLUB HOUSE-- TO GET LOUKE TO CADDY FOR YOU AGAIN?

Y-YEAH! BUT THE PRO SAID HE WENT HOME ABOUT AN HOUR AGO!

GEE, LOUKE-- WE'D HAVE BEEN HOME 1-2-3, IF WE'D KEPT WALKIN'!

I DON'T LIKE WALKIN'! THIS ONE IS GONNA STOP!

THE SHERIFF AND MR. DRIPP WERE TIED BY SOME OTHER TEAM?

YEAH! THEY'RE GOING TO PLAY IT OFF RIGHT NOW! I ONLY WISH I COULDN'T STAY TO SEE IT!

Freckles

STARTS PUT ON BY BOONE HIGH STUDENTS DURING LAST TWIRP SEASON!

HEAR THIS! YOU'RE IN FOR A GRAND SWIRL AT THIS YEAR'S TWIRP SEASON!

TWIRP TWIRP!

Night of Twirp Twirp girls called for the boys, paid all expenses, opened doors for them, asked for dances, etc.

Day before the hop, twirp taps were passed out to girls to sign and tie them on a boy--
