Zoning Commission Suggests Hobart Building Restriction

The Pampa Zoning Commission has tossed the ball back to the Pampa City Commission in the matter of restricting building for 100 feet east of the Hobart Street underpass, between Francis and the Santa Fe Railroad tracks.

Zoning commissioners Tuesday afternoon voted to recommend to city commissioners that no new buildings or additions be constructed in that area and that city officials go to work on getting options on all the property.

That area, which an estimated 1,000 vehicles pass by each day, now and will remain a "commercial" zone, however.

Action of the zoning commission follows the suggestion of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce's zoning committee. City commissioners Nov. 10 discussed the underpass committee's recommendation and turned it over to the zoning commission.

An hour-long discussion of the proposed Hobart St. Underpass preceded the final recommendation. Zoning Commissioner Paul Chambers, who owns three lots in the area in question, pointed out that the building restriction — eventually — will "completely isolate that property."

City Manager B. H. Cruce, sitting in on the session, commented that "it would not make sense to let people continue to build in the area, then have the city come along at a later date and have to pay more for the land."

"The day they start digging that underpass, (those property-owners) are out of business," Fred Brook, assistant city engineer, added.

"We need it and now is the time to protect" the city's interests, zoning Commissioner R. F. McCallip said.

The votes of Chambers and McCallip plus that of Commission Chairman Jimmie McCune formed a quorum and were enough to carry the recommendation to Bill Frayer, A. H. Doucette and Bill Frayer.

Though it was on the commission's agenda, the city's fire zoning situation did not come up — because commissioners decided it was out of their province.

Only mentioned was the fire zoning of the west side of the 600-block of South Cuyler, some land near Worley Hospital and T. B. Solomon's property at Francis and Gray.

Also on hand were James Cowan, city director of public works, and Bob Gordon, city attorney.

Baptist Men Hear White Deer Pastor

The First Baptist Brotherhood held its monthly dinner meeting Tuesday with approximately 125 men in attendance. The meal carried out the Thanksgiving theme with a main course of Turkey and dressing prepared by Mrs. Claude Wilson and a group of church ladies.

Main speaker for the event was Rev. Howard Lyons, pastor of the First Baptist Church in White Deer. His topic was "Gates May Swing."

Musical entertainment was provided by a quartet composed of Paul Biggs, John Holmes, Charles Tooker and Paul Barrett, which was introduced by Floyd Watson, entertainment chairman.

The business meeting dealt chiefly with the election of officers. Those chosen to lead the group for 1954 include Floyd Watson, president; Malcolm Hinkle, program vice-president; Jimmy Thompson, program vice-president; Shirley Nichols, activities vice-president; Artie Shaw, choir; and J. B. Huntington, secretary-treasurer.

Those elected to the Brotherhood Committee are Bob Clements, Calvin Whalley and A. C. Troop.

Lions Sponsor School Survey For Diabetics

Pampa's Lions Club is sponsoring a diabetic survey this week of 500 school children in observance of National Diabetes Week.

Pampa's school children will be given a letter for their parents urging them to take a specimen to the Highland General Hospital for a free checkup. If the tests are positive, the child will be referred to the family physician for treatment.

The Lion's Club's detection drive is part of a nationwide effort to uncover some of the estimated million persons in the United States who have the disease without knowing it. Although diabetes occurs less frequently in children than adults, the cases in children are usually more severe. At present, there are approximately 100,000 children in the country under treatment for diabetes, and most of them, like adult diabetics, are able to live normal and happy lives.

Diabetes is one of the few chronic diseases for which there is a known control. Found early enough and treated properly, it seldom interferes with a patient's normal life. However, if left untreated, diabetes is often fatal.

As diabetes afflicts people in every age, income and racial group, the Lions Club urges everyone to be tested for the disease this week.

Two Days Left In Canadian Dam Vote

Pampans late today had just two days in which to cast absentee ballots in the confirmation election of the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority.

Deadline is 5 p.m. Friday, according to City Secretary Ed Vicars.

A total of 17 absentee ballots had been cast by late this morning, Vicars said, pointing out that there must be three days between the absentee vote and the general vote.

The polls will be open all-day Tuesday for Pampans to decide whether they wish their city to remain in the authority.

Advocates of the project — an $85 million dam and reservoir on the Canadian River near Sanford, north and west of Borger — point out that this vote involves no money, that a second election will have to be held to determine that.

City Seeks Bids On Equipment

City Manager B. M. Cruce, late this morning, had received only one bid on the 15 pieces of automobile equipment provided for in the city budget, which will be opened at 2 p.m. Monday in Cruce's office in the City Hall.

Included are five four-door sedans; four half-ton pickups; two three-quarter-ton pickups; two two-ton trucks with dump beds; one 2 1/2-ton truck with cab and chassis only; and 2 1/2-ton truck with refuse packer body.

In its announcement to potential bidders, officials pointed out that "the city reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive formalities and technicalities."

Court House Job Has Month To Go

Those three men working today on the windows of the third floor of the Court House figured they had a month to go before they had finished the job of weather stripping all the building's 380-odd windows.

J. C. Godsey, foreman of the crew from E. Z. Tigh, Amarillo, this morning pointed out that they had finished putting in the felt material on the bottom two floors and had about half the third floor and all the fourth yet to complete.

"We put it (the felt) on both sides, the top and the bottom," Godsey said, adding that his crew is also fixing all broken windows while they're at it.

The county commissioners' court a couple of months ago approved the work.

Moose Variety Show Scheduled

Radio and television artists will appear in Pampa Friday at 8 p.m. in the Junior High School auditorium as part of the Tommie Scott Variety Show, sponsored by Pampa's Moose Lodge. There will also be an afternoon performance at 4:30.

The performance will feature a Western Hillbilly Jamboree and several circus acts. The visiting artists include the television star, Masked Rider; Sandra Yvette, young aerial artist; Floyd Rube Arnold, master of the musical instruments he created; Gaines Rivers; Jimmy Wayne; Charabelle; The Zany's; Heavy Willie; and Horse Fly.

Tickets are still available for the show and may be purchased from Earl Miller, at the Malone Drug Store, at the Petroleum Specialty Company or at the Moose Lodge.

Rodeo Officers To Be Elected

New officers of the Top o' Texas Rodeo association will be named when directors of the association meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce office.

Paul Crouch, president, said that last summer's rodeo program would be reviewed and that preliminary plans for next year's show would be discussed.

District Scouts Schedule Banquet

An estimated 200-300 persons are expected to be on hand for the third annual Boy Scout Santa Fe District banquet-meeting.

Slated for 7 p.m. Tuesday in the basement of the First Methodist Church, the affair will be for the purpose of reporting on the 933 district activities, according to Phil Pegues, district Scout executive.

All registered adults and parents in Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts have been invited, Pegues said, adding that each unit will supply its own "pot-uck" supper. All tables will be reserved.

Clinton Evans, president of the Pampa Kiwanis Club, will be the featured speaker. H. L. Gunter will be in charge of the banquet and Kay Fancher, in charge of the entertainment.

A special feature of the program will be the recognition of three persons who have earned Scouters awards, "a training award, with exceptional service included."

George Newberry, district chairman, will handle the year's report. Don Cain, incoming district chairman, will introduce the five district officers and the new district committee heads. Committee heads already picked are Jimmy Thompson, leadership training; Lufa Jordan, health and safety; Cyril Pingleton and Sheriff Clarence Williams, both of Panhandle, co-chairmen, finance committee; and John Campbell, advancement.

City Employees Study Insurance

City Manager B. H. Cruce late this morning called a meeting of all 175 city employees for 4 p.m. Friday in the Palm Room of City Hall.

Purpose of the get-together will be to discuss "group insurance plans, problems and proposals," Cruce said.

As "so many of the employees will have to remain on the job," the city manager urged those employees who can't be on hand to be represented by a member of their families.

This meeting arose from the fact that a Texas city is no longer able to pay insurance premiums for its employees, the result of a law which became effective two months ago.

The November premium is the last one that the city can pay.

Colder Weather To Hit Pampa

Pampa residents can expect colder weather Thursday, following several days of mild temperatures, according to the weather forecast for this area.

The forecast was for continued mild weather today, but a cold front was expected to move into the Panhandle tonight, bringing colder weather Thursday. Widely scattered thundershowers were forecast for the east portion of the Panhandle this afternoon.

Tuesday's high temperature was 55 degrees, according to the weather station at Radio Station KPDM, with Tuesday night's low being 49 degrees. The mercury stood at 57 degrees at 11 a.m. today.

Postcards Take Crack At Ike

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 18 — UP — Post Office officials Wednesday described as "in poor taste" the postcards inviting state cattlemen to a free picnic — with crow as the main dish — "day after you are foreclosed."

Postmaster Fred Shaw said the cards, mailed in Caddo, Okla., read in part:

"All day picnic and dinner on the ground — at the head of Salt Creek. All the cattlemen who voted for Ike will have their — picked free and all the crow they can eat."

It was reported from Washington that Ross Risley, former Oklahoma congressman who now is solicitor for the Post Office department, had ordered the cards banned from the mails, but Shaw said in Oklahoma City he had not received such an order.

Reds Reject U.S. Proposal

PANMUNJOM, Nov. 18 — UP — The Communists rejected Wednesday a major American compromise on neutral participation in the overdue Korean peace conference.

American Ambassador Arthur H. Dean had attempted to break the deadlock on who would participate by proposing that the neutrals be invited after the conference starts if they are needed.

Dean spoke only for the United States because the United Nations empowered him to discuss only the time and place of the conference, two items which also remained unsettled.

North Korean Delegate Ki Sok Bok told Dean at a two-hour, 40-minute meeting his proposal was "merely a maneuver of your side to cover up your unreasonable stand of obbling to the participation of neutral nations in the political conference. We cannot accept these so-called proposals."

Ki offered a plan on inviting the neutrals which puzzled Dean.

"I can't understand their proposal," Dean said.

The ambassador said the Red plan contained points that were "flatly contradictory" and he wanted to "find out what they really had in mind."

Communist correspondent Wilfrid Burchett told UN newsmen Ki had proposed inviting the neutrals as a powerless "third party" but the Reds failed to make this clear to Dean.

Dean refused to comment on the Australian-born Communist's "explanation" of the offer.

McLean Winner In All-Girl Grid Tilt

McLEAN, Nov. 18 — (Special) — McLean won the all-girls football game here Tuesday night, defeating the Shamrock girls, 12-0.

Both clubs were representing their respective FHA clubs.

The Tigerettes scored their first touchdown in the second quarter on a one-yard run by Marie Watson and counted again in the third quarter on a 39-yard run by Glenda Switzer. Nita Bayles, was the outstanding player for Shamrock.

The McLean girls team crowned James Smith as their king during the halftime ceremony. Both schools were represented by all-boy bands.

The game attracted a good crowd and proceeds were divided between the two FHA clubs.

Hopes Dashed for Barker — HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18 — UP — Flame-haired Susan Hayward Wednesday dashed Jess Barker's hopes of a reconciliation with his estranged wife with the statement she didn't believe there would be one.

Two McLean Men To Face Charges

Charges have been filed against two McLean men who went on a wild spree early Sunday, according to Sheriff Rufe Jordan.

Jordan Tuesday afternoon filed charges of robbery by assault, theft of property and impersonating an officer against Glenn Green and Charles Bailes, both 23, McLean.

Green was arraigned in Justice of the Peace John V. Andrews court on the first two of these charges. Bond on the robbery charge was set at $5,000 and on the theft charge at $3,000, Jordan said. The third charge, impersonating an officer, is a misdemeanor and will be handled in county court, he pointed out.

Meanwhile, Bailes still was in a Shamrock hospital, but his condition was reported to be considerably better. Sheriff Jordan said that he expects to have him in the county jail here within the next two days.

The two men are alleged to have held a Memphis, Tenn., man prisoner in his car near McLean for about one and one-half hours early Sunday morning and to have later driven his automobile about a mile down a bar ditch. They were reported to have later chased another car with their vehicle several miles before overturning their car.

Pampans To Speak At Amarillo Meet

A Pampa engineer is listed on the afternoon program of the Panhandle-Plains regional meeting of the National Gasoline Association of America, slated for Friday in Amarillo's Herring Hotel.

Bob Rasmussen, an employee of the Celanese Corporation of America, will speak on "Our Resources and Petrochemicals," according to the program. The afternoon session gets underway at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Two Gray County residents are on the meeting's program committee. They are L. H. Davies, Pampa, and Marvin Hindman, McLean.

Crosby Loses Plea In Court

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 18 —UP—Bing Crosby lost a plea to have $285,000 in punitive damages dropped from a $1,051,400 damage suit brought against him by three persons injured when his foreign sport car smashed into theirs last Oct. 11.

Walter Schell, the crooner's attorney, argued unsuccessfully before Superior Judge Ellsworth Meyer Tuesday in a demurrer to the action that punitive damages should be eliminated from the complaint prior to trial.

The singer was not in court for the hearing.

Builders Association Due To Construct New Building

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 —UP—The people who tell others how to build wonderful homes are about to build one of their own.

In fact the National Association of Home Builders already has broken sod here for a national headquarters office. The association also has its neck out. It has solicited the press for instructions on how to build the perfect press room.

I am about to reply to the latter. Spiffy Press Room

This, I understand will be a plush building with the best in construction, the best in the air-cooling department, the supreme in decoration. Plus, the builders hope, the spiffiest press room in the world.

Well, I think my colleagues will agree with me when I say the working newspaperman gets the wiggles when he has to work in fancy surroundings. Rugs on the floor, curtains on the windows.

Worse, I get it from one builder's mouth, there is the horrible suggestion of silent electric typewriters. A man who is asked to putting one little word after the other in the midst of bedlam never would be happy in complete silence.

My first suggestion would be that the builders make some sound recordings of city room noises, and keep some going whenever there are men at work. A city editor's voice giving a re-write man the old what-for. The awkward clomp of an office boy racing to tear a bunch of copy off the machines, and the sound of the teletypes hitting it off at 60 or so words a minute.

The room ought to be round with a pretty blonde sitting in each "corner." A man at work has to have some relaxation between paragraphs.

No Bugs, But Old Papers
There should be no rugs and the floor should be littered with yesterday's newspapers and false starts from the typewriters. Again, these should be typewriters which should make noises like typewriters.

There should be no indirect lighting. Light bulbs which hang from the ceiling are fair enough. Why do you suppose most newspaper old-timers look at the world through ground glass?

And builders, you can forget about the brass spittoons. Hardly any of us use eating tobacco any more, and the ones who do can lift the sash and let go on the peasants.

Free Bars
There ought to be free snack bars, and several of those other kinds of bars. Also free.

Also, there should be a Nelly-Bar-The-Door Nelly to stand guard to see that a working newsman isn't disturbed in his work or play by some crank busting in trying to sell the boys a story about how he shot a cooped up lion in Africa, or won World War II all by himself.

And as for the lady reporters, bless 'em! Build 'em another room down the hall.

Dairymen Attend Course At Tech

R. C. Griffith, superintendent of Pampa's Sunshine Dairy, and Doyle Hopper, assistant manager, left this morning for Lubbock where they will attend a three-day dairy manufacturers' course at Texas Technological College.

A seminar in sanitation and good dairy practices, the event will feature some of the best dairy teachers and speakers in the country. Talks by Dr. C. M. Trout of Michigan State College, Art Lund of the Cherry Burrell Corporation and W. E. R. Smith of the American Inc. Company of Illinois will highlight the final session Friday morning.

Other speakers during the period of the course include Dave Evans of the State Department of Health, George Hiles of the A. E. Hiles Company, J. R. Brant of the Foremost Dairies, L. C. Dornuth of the Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Company, Fred Fleming of the Rob-Laird Separator Company, Robert W. Wain of Precision Dairyable Company and J. B. Maury of the Borden Company.

In conjunction with the event, there will be a meeting of the Texas-New Mexico Dairy Technology Society Thursday evening.

Adult Education Members Organize Discussion Groups For Study Of Our American Heritage

At a luncheon meeting of the Adult Education group, Monday, in the Schneider Hotel, addressed by Miss Margaret Monroe of Chicago, advisor-director of the American Heritage Foundation, plans were laid for the immediate organization of several local discussion groups. Among the first to be organized will be American Heritage groups one of the best for beginning groups. Lasting a year, or longer, the American Heritage discussion groups give the average citizen a chance to examine their heritage and decide what it stands for; to realize where they have achieved the dream of their forefathers, where they have failed, and what they might do about the failures.

At the conclusion of the first year, many of the discussion groups continue with International affairs, or other topics of interest to the group as a whole. The American Heritage Foundation was started during the observance of the 75th anniversary of the American Library Association, which has a membership of 20,000, and received a grant from the Ford Foundation for the American Heritage Foundation.

Another group, nearing completion, is the discussion group for great books. Needing only a few more to complete the necessary card index, it will spend its first year studying a group of eighteen all-time great books, including Plato, Aristophanes, Plutarch, Shakespeare, Rousseau, the Federalist Papers and the Bible. There are five complete years in all, and the entire group of books for the first year is in a set.

There is also a plan for starting several language groups as well as a new radio series. Anyone wanting information should get in touch with Mrs. Lillian Snow, Club Librarian, or Mrs. Kenneth Chalmers.

GRACE FRIEND

Dear Grace Friend
 Late last fall there was written a very clever letter to a child explaining that Santa Claus is really the spirit of Christmas. It ran in the society page. I was wondering if you could get a copy for me. It begins "Dear Leslie" and is a letter written to his little boy by a Korea soldier. I believe.

I read your column always and find your advice wonderful. So many write to you for advice with real problems it makes me feel rich and contented.

Thanking you in advance for your wonderful advice.

Mrs. D.J.J.

Dear Mrs. J.
 I am sorry but I was unable to locate the article for you.

If someone has a copy of it and will send it to me I will be happy to publish the inspiring story for interested readers.

CHRISTMAS CARDS
 Dear Miss Friend
 I am a widower and recently my daughter who has left her husband came to live with me.

We are going to send Christmas cards together if it is possible but we are not sure how to do it. We want to have them printed but are puzzled about how to do it as our last names are different.

We would appreciate your help in this matter.

Rex H.

Dear Mr. H.
 Your name should be engraved on one line and that of your daughter on the line below.

If written by hand to close friends or relatives the parent's name is written first followed by that of the son or daughter.

ON MENDING CHINA
 Dear Grace Friend
 I have been waiting for an answer to the lady who wrote in for information on how to mend broken china. If any answer came in I didn't see it.

I use DuPont Duco Cement which comes in a tube. You can get it at the five and ten or at a hardware store. Don't put the mended part in water, hot or cold and don't handle the parts either. I find it quite satisfactory.

Emilio Caballero Discusses Art At Parent Education Guest Day Tea

Emilio Caballero, associate professor of art at West Texas State College in Canyon spoke to Parent Education members and their guests yesterday at their annual guest day tea in the City Club Rooms. Mr. Caballero, who has had extensive experience with children in relation to art, spoke on the Children's Art.

Mrs. Rex Rose, president, introduced the speaker and Mrs. Ed Williams gave the devotional. Caballero opened expressing that women must use their thought and energies toward improving the status of educational education since they are more receptive to ideas and intangibles than are men. "It is your responsibility," he said, "to create a rich environment so that your children may use their own interest, intelligence and desire with which to make choices. There are many forces around us that contribute to the vast unrest among youth. Tremendous advances in technology, television, etc. are beyond a child's grasp. He doesn't seem to really love any of the laborate toys provided him. The answer to the question of real security seems to lie in freedom of expression—which we parents can grant or deny." He stressed that every child is so completely unique and individual that no matter how well we think we know our children, we can't truly know him. We cannot teach a child anything, least of all art. We can only guide him, provide the stimulus and motivation. Expression of self is the outlet through which he grows toward spiritual betterment.

"We deny him this outlet when we 'show' him how to draw. When he copies or conforms as with coloring color books, he is obviously expressing someone else, not his own thoughts and emotions and becomes dependent on others and distrustful of himself. For that reason we do not say that one child is better at art than another. Each is drawing from his particular source of experience and we are not qualified to judge. Anyone can learn to draw or paint with experience—that is merely motor co-ordination. Don't attract natural tendencies to a child's drawings. If a child produces a lovely finished landscape, it is a sterile product; there is no revelation of child. He merely shows a concept of form that has been imposed upon him by his elders."

Caballero stressed that the common practice of teachers particularly in the elementary grades of labeling one child's work as best was particularly unjust and harmful. "Small children cannot understand competitiveness and it only serves to make them lose confidence." He suggested that children should judge their own work. "Most adults," he said, "are afraid to honestly express themselves. They act in a way that they feel will ward off criticism and this thwarts human understanding." He said that academic education doesn't allow a naturally honest child to remain so.

MATURE PARENT

By MURIEL LAWRENCE
 His name is Jimmy. Though he is only 9 years old, he has been struggling with a big moral problem.

For some time, he has known that his older brother was secretly carrying ice cream and candy on their parents' grocery account. When this truth came to light, he was asked why he hadn't told what was going on.

He was very troubled by the question. He said, "How am I to know when it's right to be a 'stool pigeon'—and when it isn't?"

Writes his mother, "I fumbled the answer. I just didn't know what to say. We certainly should have had this information—but it's not at the cost of Jimmy's regarding himself as a 'stool pigeon' doesn't seem right. What is the answer?"

I don't put such important answers into the mouths of other parents—but I certainly know what my own would be.

If Jimmy were my little boy, facing such an issue of human loyalties, I could say, "Darling, I'm going to give you a rule to solve such problems as well as to help you to your first loyalty to truth, not to people you love. Unless we give our first loyalty to the truth about the faults in ourselves and others, we cannot be either to ourselves or to them. We end up by supporting and encouraging what is wrong and should be made clear and straight."

Then I would add, "If you had told us what your brother was doing because you gave first loyalty to truth, you would not be a 'stool pigeon.' A 'stool-pigeon's' motive or exposing the wrong-doing of others is to gain something for himself—money, a pardon or a reward. Yours would not be this motive."

If Jimmy had been consistently trained to apply this rule of first loyalty to truth about himself and others, he might not have had to carry information about his brother to his parents at all. He would have gone straight to his big brother himself and said, "I think what you're doing is wrong. If you can't stop doing it by yourself, I will have to ask daddy and mother to help you stop it."

If Jimmy's mother can accept this rule of first loyalty to truth, she can give Jimmy a little lesson on how it works right now.

Since it requires us to expose the truth about ourselves as well as about those we love, she might say, "Now let's apply this rule to you. What, for instance, was your real reason for keeping silent?"

Are you thinking about Brother—were you just afraid of being called an ugly name like 'stool pigeon'? Was it affection for Brother that kept you quiet—or fear that he might try to 'get back' at you for telling us?"

All problems of talebearing should be handled by examination of the talebearer's motives. If we have been willing to expose the jealousies, resentments and fears that so often compel our behavior toward children, they will not be the least embarrassed when we ask them to explore similar feelings behind their tattling.

If we have proved where our own loyalty is given, Jimmy will become confused between faithfulness to truth and faithfulness to honesty, no matter whose dishonesty it may be.

Human relationships can get very fixed up indeed when we dare speak out against what we believe is wrong in those we love. When those who love us cannot see the same, under such circumstances, we do not love very long. We just placate, condone and resent.

JayCees View Fire Display

Then Henry Johnson, safety engineer in the Charlotte office, put a rag sprinkled with gas at the top of the trough and waited while the candle flame got bigger — till the fire flared up and raced up the trough top where he had to put it out with a fire extinguisher.

That was only one of the fire experiments Johnson showed JayCees Thursday noon as he pointed out, again and again, that any time air, heat and fuel (vapor) are brought together fire will result.

Emphasizing that the thing to do was keep one of those three elements apart from the others, the safety expert explained that — in the trough experiment — the vapor from the rag ran down the trough till it got to the point where the candle ignited it, sending fire back up to the top.

"It's the vapor, not the liquid, that burns," he said, cautioning JayCees never to carry inflammable liquid in an open container.

"You can never be sure of an empty container," the North Carolinian commented — after he had blasted JayCees' ears with an explosion resulting from an "empty" container.

Other experiments included the use of static electricity. "Even liquids from fling pipelines" can cause an explosion. And did at the JayCees' get-together. Misuse of equipment, he demonstrated, is a main cause for injury and death, in the home, garage and plant.

In earlier remarks, JayCee President Dick Stowers mentioned that next week there would be the election of officers and discussion of a proposed hike from $8 to $15 per month in club dues.

At 7:30 p.m. Tuesday JayCees were slated to be on hand in the Herford Breeders Barn in Recreation Park to get the city's Christmas decorations in order.

After passing out literature on the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority confirmation elections (Tuesday), Stowers reminded JayCees of the all-club meeting at noon Dec. 2 with the U.S. Sen. Lyndon Johnson in the Palm Room.

Mrs. W. W. Overton Dies
DALLAS, Nov. 18 —UP—Funeral services were scheduled Wednesday for Mrs. W. W. Overton, Sr., 79, widow of a Dallas sugar broker. Mrs. Overton, who died at her home Tuesday, was the daughter of Nathaniel Barnes, a U.S. Senator from Kansas before the turn of the century.

Writer Says Beria Tried To Change Flow Of History

By PHIL NEWSOM
United Press Foreign Analyst

The story of Lavrenti Beria is as good a cloak-and-dagger piece as has come out of Europe since the war.

Where else except in fiction could there be such a set of circumstances providing intrigue behind the dark walls of the Kremlin, the treacherous climb to power and the sudden fall, and now the mystery of his whereabouts and whether he is alive or dead?

But beyond the outlines of this mystery thriller also is the untold story of Beria's 100 days of power, and what his fall may or may not mean to the West.

One theory comes to two rather startling conclusions:

1. Beria, No. 2 man in the government, head of the secret police and of the atomic energy program, supreme boss of the Soviet's slave labor, was guilty of all the things Premier Georgi Malenkov accused him of, except for being an "agent of Western imperialism."
2. For the West, his fall was one of the luckiest things that ever happened.

Beria, according to this theory, is a man who tried to change the flow of history.

Beria sought to turn communism back into an "international" course to lower the West's guard with a policy of "peaceful co-existence" and to stake eventual world vic-

Malenkov saved himself by renouncing Beria and the policies he had actively supported.

The policy of "peaceful co-existence" gradually drifted into the discard, to be replaced by the extremes of the cold war. Negotiation with the West was postponed and finally refused.

It was a victory for the "Russian" portion of the presidium headed by Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov and Defense Minister Marshal Nikolai Bulganin with the support of the Soviet army bosses.

But the West was lucky.

As the short period of good-will from Moscow demonstrated, a policy of limited cooperation could have shattered Western unity and the will of defense more effectively than any Soviet H-bomb.

Russian policy is again in the hands of Molotov, the round-headed stubborn Russian whom Beria used to call "the stupid Ivan."

Bullock To Speak To Scout Council

George A. Bullock, director of the Philmont Scout Ranch, Cimarron, N. M., will be the featured speaker at the 28th annual Adobe Walls Council banquet-meeting.

Get-together is scheduled to get underway at 6 p.m. Dec. 10 in the Phillips School, Berger, according to Paul Beisenherz, council Scout executive.

Kicking off the affair will be a meeting of the council's executive board and other Scouters for the election of officers and a style show for the women, put on by the school's home economics department.

At 8:15 p.m., the locale will shift to the school auditorium, where Bullock will make his speech and two Scouters will be presented Silver Beaver awards, "for rendering outstanding service to boyhood."

HS 11 Returns 6th In Williamson Poll

Seven 1-AAAA Teams Ranked In Top Twenty

Pampa's Fighting Harvesters held pat on their No. 6 rating and the Borger Bulldogs pulled into the top 20 for the first time this season according to the weekly release of the Williamson System statewide schoolboy rankings.

The Harvesters, for the fourth straight week, have been given the sixth top team ranking of the entire Class AAAA setup over the state.

Seven of the eight members of District 1-AAAA are in the top 20 teams with three of 'em in the top 10. Besides Pampa, other 1-AAA teams in the top 10 are Odessa, third, and Abilene, eighth.

In the second 10, 1-AAA members Amarillo is ranked 11th, Lubbock 12th, San Angelo 19th and Borger 20th. The only 1-AAA member not included in the top 20 is Midland who is ranked 25th.

Waco continued to rank as the top team in the AAAA ranks. Lamar of Houston held the runnerup spot.

Leaders in the other schoolboy divisions are Texarkana in Triple-A, Stamford in Double-A, and Ranger in Single-A.

Included in the Class A rankings, Canadian is rated 38th, LeFlore 46th and McLean 54th.

Following are the top 20 teams in each schoolboy division:

Pampa Daily News Sports Editor

RED FACE DEPARTMENT — One of the largest press gatherings in history of Harvesters Stadium was on hand for the Pampa-Odessa game Saturday, but one of the crucial plays of the game slipped by the scribes without anyone knowing exactly who did what.

We're referring to the blocked punt that resulted in the Harvesters getting two points. On this play, we all agreed in the press box that it was Jim Phippen of the Harvesters that blocked the punt and that Bobby Ghornerly was doing the punting.

re-check, however, revealed that neither instance was right. It was Dale Sherrod doing the punting for the Broncos and it was Harvester end Bobby Holder that blocked the punt.

It's easy to miss the player blocking a kick but how everyone missed who the punter was is a mystery. It even got by the Odessa sports editor covering the game, Spec Gammon.

During the victory celebration by the Bronco players in their dressing room following Saturday's tilt, Odessa line coach Carl Cook heaped praise for Alton Flynn, Harvesters guard.

"That Pampa lineman Flynn is the best guard I've seen all year," Cook said and then added "wish we had him."

Fullback Sherrod told a reporter that "Ed Dudley is the hardest running back I've tackled all year."

It was generally conceived by all that Odessa had the best team Saturday but you couldn't get anyone to say that there is a points difference between the two ball clubs. That is our sentiments, also.

If the Broncos play rest of the year like they played Saturday they should go right on through and take the state playoffs in stride. About the only thing that can stop 'em from going through is for Schlemeyer getting hurt.

THE GENERAL REASON given for Baylor's downfall last week to a supposedly "weak" Houston team is that the Bears were flat from losing to Texas the week before and that there was nothing to play for in the Houston tilt.

We'll go along with the first reason but can't seem to see the second one. There was plenty to play for, $150,000 in fact. That loss to Houston may cost the Waco institution a Sugar Bowl berth with guarantees the participating teams 150 grand.

Over-confidence probably had more to do with the Baylor let-down against Houston than anything else. The Bears apparently figured they could take the oft-beaten Houston team in stride without putting out too much effort.

Even if Baylor had reversed the score, winning 37-7 instead of losing by that figure, their stock wouldn't have risen a bit. But it certainly hurt their prestige by losing to the Houston team, especially by such a lopsided margin.

The Bears fell all the way from eighth to 21st in the UP grid ratings because of the Houston loss. Two weeks ago, Baylor was ranked third in the nation. That's going down in a hurry to say the least.

Pass receivers are led by John Allen of the Houston team, 455 yards; John Howle of Texas Western is ahead of the punters with a 32.2-yard average, and Bobby Cavasod of Texas Tech topped the scorers with 62 points.

Individual rushing and total offense figures were held by Temple's Ken Cardella. He totaled 715 yards despite his being out of action per game against Texas Western.

Des Windor of Hardin-Simmons led the passers with 768 yards, but the 88 yards he's lost rushing pull him down to a second-place figure of 880 yards on total offense.

PAMPA COON HUNTERS — J. W. Daniels, left, and G. L. Taylor, of Pampa, went coon hunting yesterday and came up with three of the animals in only a matter of two hours. The coons are shown above along with the four dogs of the two men who aided in the hunt. The two men estimated they trailed the coon four miles before nailing them. The dogs, during the chase, backtrilled numerous times and would go to the right once in a while, the men said. The three coons weighed in at 22, 19 and 13 pounds. Daniels is employed at Ideal No. 1 and Taylor at Phillips No. 1 in Pampa. The coon hunt was held near McLean. (News Photo)

Badger Mentor United Press Coach Of Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 — Out among the Milking Shorthorns, Jerseys and Holsteins of America's Dairyland, there's a new football "Ivy League."

It is made up of students, alumni, and other top supporters of the United Press Coach of the Week, Ivan B. (Ivy) Williamson of the Wisconsin Badgers.

Their devotion reached new heights last Saturday when his perfectly-tuned gridiron machine ground out a 34 to 7 victory over previously unbeaten Illinois.

It was a resounding upset and was achieved with a brilliant defense that stopped those runaway Illinois backs, J. C. Caroline and Mickey Bates. After a few early forays, "Mr. Zoom and Mr. Boom" became "Mr. Dud and Mr. Mud."

The Williamson system penned them in as effectively as four-strand barbed wire fences keep Wisconsin cows from roving.

But Williamson disclaimed any credit for special tactics.

"We won the big one and it was our best game of the year," he said. "The boys worked hard and I'd have to say it was a team effort."

Offensively, he said, the team played its usual game.

"We didn't change the offense at all, didn't pull any different plays, but just used the same ones that we've had all season. But they have had steady development and the boys came up to their peak."

But as to the defense—well that was a different story. And the modest Williamson, who never has much to say anyway, didn't want to talk about it. There were plenty of others who did, though.

The idea was to let the Illinois backs, especially Caroline, have short gains and hold off the long ones. As the game progressed the Badgers learned more about the racy J.C. and fended him in. In the first half Caroline carried 17 times for 65 yards and in the second half eight times for only 18.

"I guess we concentrated on him," Williamson commented wryly. "We made up our minds we were going to stop him and our boys were alert. We were afraid every time he got the ball that he'd go."

Four Carries, Five Yards — The turning point of the game came after Illinois scored the game's opening touchdown and was threatening again. The Illinois had a first down on Wisconsin's 18. Caroline carried four straight times and made just five yards.

Williamson said Alvin (The Horse) Ameche, Wisconsin's great fullback not only was a standout runner but was a key man in the defensive effort. On the 5-3 defense with three close-up defensive backs on the side where Caroline might run, Ameche sat halfback Roger Dornburg nailed him time after time.

Broncos Donate 1-4 A Statistics

Odessa's Broncos, conquerors of all five District 1-AAAA foes they have met, completely dominate the district statistics, according to Clifford Wright of Amarillo, 1-AAAA's statistician.

The Broncos lead in all four team statistics, total offense, total defense, passing offense and passing defense, and furnish the leader in three of the five individual departments listed.

Schlemeyer holds a wide edge in passing. He has completed 49 out of 83 for 782 yards. His nearest pursuer is J. N. Wright of Pampa who has made 34 passes on 15 completions in 39 attempts.

In total offense, Schlemeyer has added 125 yards on the ground, giving him a total of 907 yards offense. His nearest competitor in this bracket is Rutledge of Midland who has made all of his total offense in rushing with 496 yards.

In addition to Wright being second in passing, the Harvesters have another runnerup in Ed Dudley ranking second in punting. Dudley's average in district games is 38.5, as compared to 41.4 average held by Abilene's Oliver.

Other Harvesters among the leaders are Harold Lewis third, and Dudley fourth, in rushing; Jimmy Bond fourth and Dudley eighth in pass receiving; and Lewis tied for second and Dudley fifth in scoring.

Following is the complete rundown of the District 1-AAAA statistics through last week's games (Averages include District games only):

President Needed

Sen. Joe McCarthy is pretty upset about our oldest university, where, he says, Red professors are sheltered and there is a "smelly mess." He says he couldn't conceive of anyone sending children to Harvard University where they would be open to indoctrination by communist professors.

The Senator has sent a wire to Harvard's new president, Dr. Nathan M. Pusey, asking him how he feels about Dr. Wendell H. Furry, associate professor of physics. Last May, after Dr. Furry refused to answer questions of the Senate Internal Security subcommittee regarding his alleged membership in the Communist Party, the Harvard Corporation decided to keep this scholar on the staff, but placed him on probation for three years. The gentlemen did not seem to think that Dr. Furry had been a Communist since 1947.

In recent testimony, says Senator McCarthy, Dr. Furry has said he is not now a Communist, but has refused to answer questions about his loyalty prior to March 1, 1951. The educator also told the subcommittee, according to the Senator, that from 1943 to 1945 he worked on radar research for the government, but refused, on grounds of self-incrimination, to say whether he turned over secret material to the Communists.

We can at least hope that President Pusey may take a position similar to that of President Eisenhower, whose recent executive order provides for summary dismissal of government workers who hide behind the Fifth Amendment — on the very solid ground that a job with Uncle Sam is a privilege and not a right.

Moreover, it would seem particularly fitting for this world-renowned university that was founded but 16 years after the Pilgrims set foot on this continent, to set a pattern of Americanism. There are others who could well follow.

Socialistic Trend

For many years the government has made a business of printing return addresses on stamped envelopes. It knocks thousands upon thousands of local printing establishments and country newspapers out of hundreds of thousands and probably millions of dollars worth of business annually. This deprives government of taxes which would be paid on the business were it carried on by private citizens.

There is nothing the local printer can do about it unless he can get the law changed. This is also a good example of how once government is established in business, its hold can seldom be broken.

While printing return addresses on envelopes might be called a matter of small concern in the field of business, it is the principle involved that should interest everyone. From printing envelopes government has gone into many lines of business, most outstanding of which has been a 20-year crusade to create a federal power monopoly. Already some 20 per cent of the nation's power production is included in such a program. A large part of it is wholly tax-exempt. Some of it contributes comparatively small amounts to help with local taxes — it escapes all federal taxes.

From printing envelopes to half billion and billion dollar tax-exempt federal projects is quite a step, but the principle involved so far as putting private citizens out of business is the same. It is only another step for the government to sell groceries, automobiles, or to print newspapers "at cost," etc. It is all in the socialistic picture as it gains headway.

Why Advertise?

The following is reprinted from the Wynne, Arkansas, Progress:

"The late William Wrigley was once riding with a friend in a crack express train from New York to Chicago. His companion was curious to know why the magnate continued to spend so much money on advertising. "Your gum is known all over the world," he said. "Why don't you save the millions you are spending on advertising?"

"Wrigley pondered a second and then asked, 'How fast is this train going?'"

"About 60 miles per hour," replied the other.

"Then asked Wrigley, 'Why doesn't the railway company remove the engine and let the train travel on its own momentum?'"

History Of Liberty

"Liberty has never come from the government. The history of liberty is the history of the limitations of governmental power, not the increase of it."

That was said more than 40 years ago by one of the greatest students of government who ever sat in the White House — Woodrow Wilson. And the warning he issued is a hundred times more important and timely now than it was then.

He took advantage of every opportunity for personal improvement. If there were no opportunities present, he created them. Shores didn't go to college, but you couldn't tell it by watching him perform.

As a friend puts it: "There is not a college in the country that would not be glad to have him on its faculty. . . as a professor of public-relations." He made up for the lack of an extensive formal education by self-instruction. He was an avid reader of "Buelah English Grammar" and still has a copy. He took correspondence courses and studied at night.

Shores had climbed to the top of his profession because he had the will and mind to succeed. . . and faith in himself.

I like to hear him recite his pet philosophy. He says: "It's awfully important to maintain a DADDY frame of mind. And to be happy."

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

"The Economic Trials Of Our Day"

Here is the third installment of "The Economic Trials Of Our Day," as reproduced from "The Free Trader." It was written by Paul De Hevesy.

Mr. De Hevesy's article continues as follows:

"There is another point that I should like briefly to discuss here: it has seemingly little bearing on salesmanship, though in reality it has very much to do with it. There is a crying need in Great Britain for more personal saving. It is only this kind of saving that produces what we call risk capital, and it is on risk capital that all the great enterprises of this country, and incidentally also of the United States and Canada, have been built. Only private capital, which is prepared to take risks, can win results proportionate to the risk involved.

Taxes, Reserves, Plant

"There are many British factories whose equipment, is remarkably up to date and whose performances are unsurpassed. But today the weight of British taxation — some 40 per cent of the national income — is so crushing that many companies are effectually prevented from accumulating sufficient reserves of cash to cover the renewal of obsolete plant and equipment, even when such a policy is indicated. The consequence is that often technically obsolete plant is repaired and maintained. This is in the interests neither of the company nor of the country. Trading with goods produced by obsolete machinery is surely a grave handicap for any salesman. Hence we must miss no opportunity of urging that there should be an early cut in taxation.

Time-Honored Virtues

"It is with melancholy that we contemplate the world today, divided as it is into two hostile camps, of which one contains millions of people deprived of freedom. Yet, if the concept of the State demands that our whole life should be run for us by others; if it means the destruction of our political liberties and the enslavement of our conscience; if the State is to abolish freedom of choice and to lord- it-over independent thought; if art, literature, and even sport, are to be subjected to State domination; and, finally, if so-called 'reasons of State' are sufficient justification for any cruelty and for a spirit in which right and wrong have lost all meaning; then this form of State should be repudiated. Instead of adopting one of the fashionable 'isms' of our time, let us hold fast to such time-honored virtues as humanitarianism, patriotism, parliamentarianism, and individualism. A people politically so mature and experienced as the British should be able from time to time to modify economic and social relations without abandoning those great traditions and institutions which history has bequeathed to them, and which have made them what they are.

III-Will Cannot Endure

"Though there is, unfortunately, much ill-will in the world today, I should like to express my conviction that ill-will cannot endure. Nowadays countries can remain isolated from each other only for a relatively short time. The old order of geographical, commercial, and cultural isolation, and of personal and national self-sufficiency, can return for an unhappy period like the one through which we are now passing, but cannot return for good. I would even dare to suggest that current events are but the inevitable forerunners of the ultimatum not only of Europe but ultimately of the whole world. "Whether the hope of lasting peace that lives in the hearts of so many millions will one day be fulfilled no one can tell. In the meantime, however, we must live and we must endeavor to be prosperous. Whatever the years may hold in store, our ends will be shaped, in Hamlet's words — by the virtues which with which we meet the difficulties that confront us."

Success Secrets

Jim Shores, president of the Railroad Public Relations Association of America, started out as a telegrapher in an obscure little railroad station in Fairfield, S.C. Granted, there's nothing unique about that. Many men have started out under such obscure circumstances. But the difference is that Jim Shores didn't remain there.

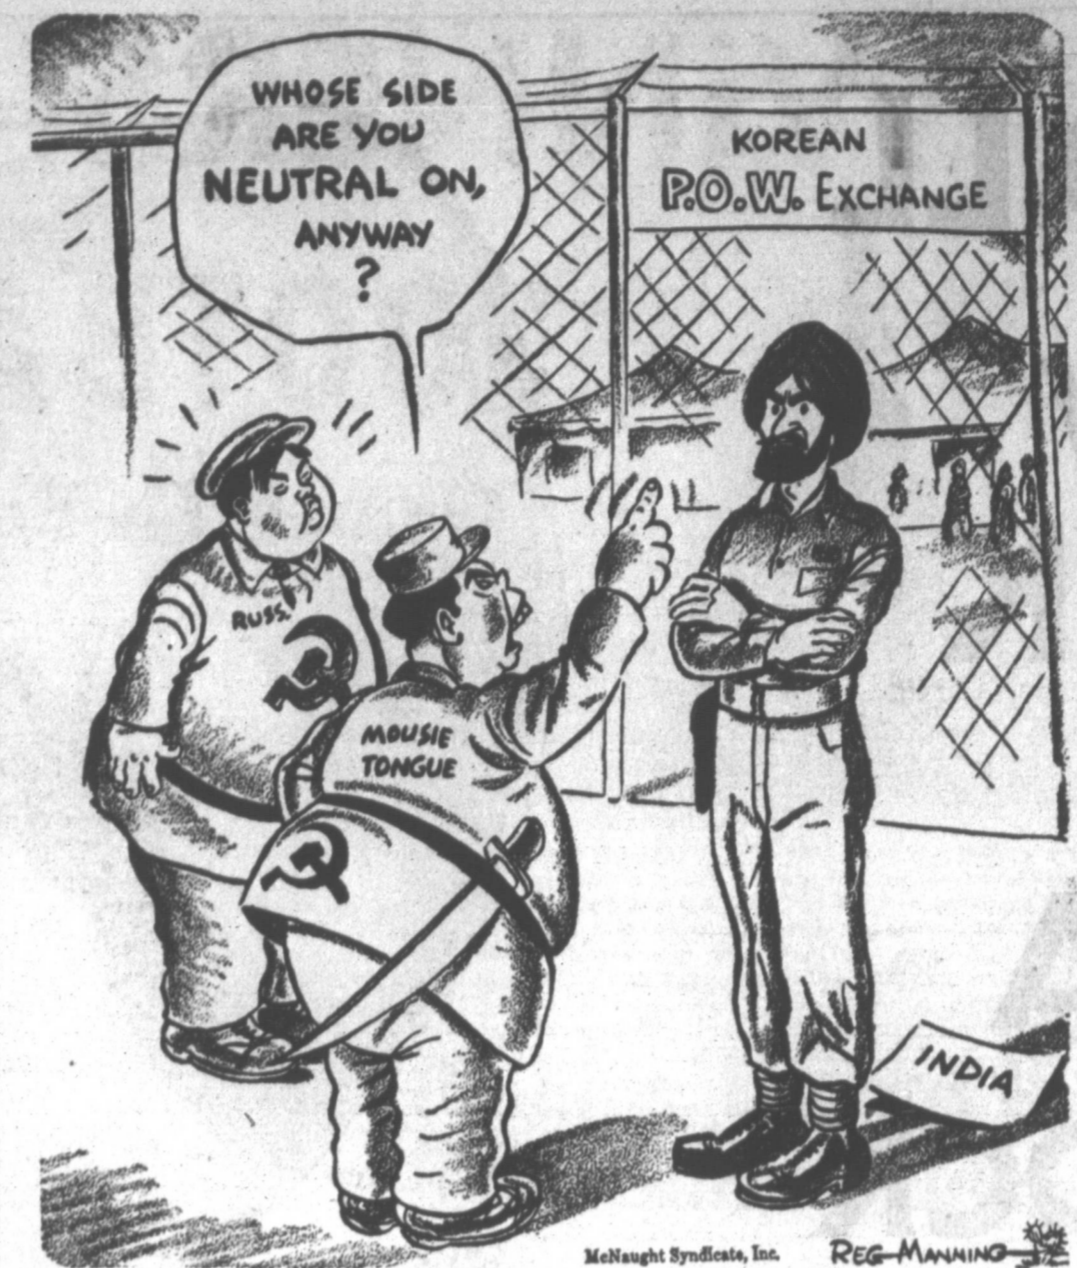

He took advantage of every opportunity for personal improvement. If there were no opportunities present, he created them. Shores didn't go to college, but you couldn't tell it by watching him perform.

National Whirligig... Ike Tentatively Okays Group To Check Trend Against GOP

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has tentatively agreed to creation of a tripartite political general staff in order to check the nationwide trend against the Republican Party, especially its slender representation in House and Senate. It will be designed to prevent repetition of Atty-Gen. Herbert Brownell's botching of the Harry Dexter White affair.

Despite the comforting victory in the special congressional election in the twenty-fourth California district last week, Ike is now convinced that what he dismisses as "skirmish" losses could lead easily to a Waterloo in next year's struggle for control of Congress. A hostile legislative body could also wreck his administration and result in a Democratic triumph in the 1956 presidential contest.

FACTUAL INFORMATION — But it required patient presentation of factual evidence of an adverse tide by two party experts, who had traversed the country before the Nov. 3 reverses in New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin and in numerous municipal scraps. At first, Ike refused to credit the bad news.

Incidentally, it now appears that these gloomy reports on political conditions contributed to Atty-Gen. Brownell's unexpected blast against Harry S. Truman, for promoting White in the face of FBI warnings of White's pro-Communist affiliations and activities. Monday, 24 hours before the Nov. 3 voting, was a dramatic day around the White House.

PERSONS IN ALL VOCATIONS QUESTIONED — The proposed reorganization and rejuvenation of White's creaking party machinery began when Representative Richard M. Simpson of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican's Congressional Campaign Committee, returned from a sentiment-sampling trip across the country.

Although he talked with GOP state, county and local leaders, he did not confine his interviews to them. Traveling incognito, he questioned farmers, factory workers, service tradesmen, Mrs. Carroll Kearns, the politically keen wife of another Pennsylvania member, also criticized the country. She quizzed housewives and working women in various income brackets. Simpson compiled their joint data, and submitted it to Sherman Adams, Eisenhower's chief of staff. It is understood that he passed the information onto Ike.

PATTERN OF GRIEVANCES — The Simpson-Kearns report presented a pattern of grievances now well known because of the election setbacks, but they were not recognized when Simpson visited the White House in early October. They were sore over the mishandling of patronage. Farmers were kicking against reduced returns. The women were peeved over prevailing high retail prices. These were the highlights of the two primis' findings.

But the sunshine boys at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue would not listen — that is, seriously. They said you must have something to do, something to love and something to hope for."

Friends of Jim Shores says he has all three.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M. D.

There is nothing particularly new to be said about shingles, or herpes zoster as it is also known, but Mrs. E. and others have asked for another discussion of its cause and treatment.

Herpes is a painful, acute inflammation accompanied by characteristic blisters on the skin, and involves only that part of the skin which is reached by certain nerves.

It occurs on one side of the body only and is particularly common around the chest, just over the parallel to the ribs, and on the forehead, face, and lower back and abdomen.

The blisters, which appear several days after the pain starts, begin to open and dry up in a few days and finally disappear altogether. In young and middle-aged people this usually ends the matter, but in older people severe neuralgic pains often last for months.

For some elderly people, shingles is a severe, long-lasting affair, causing a great deal of suffering, tending the patience, and presenting a real problem of medical care. This, unfortunately, is not uncommon.

Herpes often develops with or immediately after acute infections like pneumonia or meningitis. It can come in epidemics or without any cause which can be identified. It is caused by a virus.

Shingles has a curious relationship with chickenpox, which is also caused by a virus. Small epidemics of herpes have developed at the same time as epidemics of chickenpox, and there seems good reason to believe that a person can develop chicken pox from contact with shingles and the other way around.

MANY TREATMENTS USED Many kinds of treatment have been used for shingles with greater or lesser degrees of success. Among the more recent methods is the use of X-rays.

When herpes appears on the forehead, it can move down into the eye and this can be a most serious and painful condition. Some antibiotics may turn out to be of real value in treatment, especially if given early in the course of the disease.

In long-lazing nerve pain following shingles, nerve surgery may offer the only means of bringing relief. Those who have neuralgia after an acute attack are in a bad way.

Fair Enough... American Brother-in-Law Of Molotov Has Mysterious Past

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK — If Congress will just quietly ignore President Eisenhower's "and keep driving it can reveal at last the whole truth about the mysterious Sam Carp of Bridgeport, Conn. after "six or seven years" he didn't remember whether he had any other partners than one Morris Wolf, a New York lawyer. He even said he didn't know what the capital stock was nor how much money he had put in except "maybe about $10,000 or $20,000."

Carp freely admitted that "My object was to buy, to build battleships for Russia in this country." but said this did not make him an agent of Russia. So he thought it unnecessary to register as an agent of a foreign power.

This thought was amplified by this: "I always felt by Russia having all this defense to help our country, and it was well for me to make a dollar." He said on this occasion that Russia was "ready to spend $200 million" through him, but he couldn't remember firmly what his commission was to be.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

You didn't review a new play or walk Broadway or dart into theaters playing old plays the night before. You went home at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and had an early dinner, read until 8:30 and you were asleep at 8:30, just when the curtains were going up on Broadway. The result of this kind of hokey playing was that you got up at 5:15 in the morning, had breakfast with your bride and drove into New York with her. She parked her car at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue at exactly 7:29 a.m., and darted into her TV studio to go to work on her noontime show. You stood in the cool wind blowing off Central Park, waiting for a Fifth Avenue bus to take you downtown. None was in sight, but you decided not to spend $1.35 on a taxi. You were in no hurry.

A taxi pulled by slowly and you didn't even glance up from the morning paper. You were dimly aware that it was stopping. You heard a low complaint of the brake linings going to work. And then you heard a voice.

"Going downtown, Whitney?" You looked up. It was the taxi-driver speaking and for a second you wondered what hackie you knew that well. Then you took a second look. The cab was being driven by an actor. A character actor of long and respected contributions to the theater. Not a star, but even a featured player, but an actor well known enough to have his name in the ads. He had even made a few movies. It perplexed you, but you decided to "take it."

You smiled and said, "Sure, let's go," and got in. You gave him the address where you do your work. He nosed down through the West Side of the Park, rolling along nice and easy just under 25 miles an hour to keep in rhythm with the staggered traffic lights. You talked about a lot of things and kept away from what was haunting you; what was this man doing driving a hack at 7:30 in the morning?

You were down near 72nd Street, when he turned and said: "It's all right, you can ask. I found it better than being hungry." That broke it down and after that the talk was easy. He had not been in a show in seventeen months. He had not done a TV show in eleven months. He hadn't worked at anything at all for five months straight, not even ad modelling.

"It was irritating to my landlord," he said, laughing. "I don't like to irritate people. Most of all, I don't like to irritate myself. I remembered a fellow I met at a party. He told me he ran a fleet of 300 cabs. It took me three days, to run him down and I laid it on the line: would he put me behind a wheel for awhile until the theater picked itself up off the floor or something? He said he would and helped me get a hack license. I've been on this kick for five weeks, I keep running into other actors who have come to the same decision. I'm taking home about $80 a week. Not bad."

You both discussed the sorry plight of show business from Hollywood and Vine to Broadway and 52nd, a stretch of discouragement about 3,000 miles long. You talked about Ben Gazzara, who now has his name in lights after three years of struggle.

"It's not worth it," the actor-hackie said. "It kills you. It kills your pride and your freedom and your heart breaks too often. If a show comes along, I'll hang up my badge for awhile and take it. But I'm free for the first time in years. I know I DON'T have to starve and look proud ever again."

He stopped in front of your office and you got out. You glanced at the meter. One dollar on the nose. Thirty-five cents less than usual.

"I took off the cheap time bumper," he said. "Courtesy to the profession. We don't lip, either. Okay?"

Mona Douses Rumor About Plans To Wed

By ALINE MOSBY
 Marriage soon for Mona Freeman and Bring Crosby? The lady temporarily dampened that today by revealing she'd give any spicing "a lot of thought" because she'd have to give up her religion.

The actress, a soft-spoken, nice-type girl, took down her hair and talked for the first time about the romance that's had the Cinema City gossip predicting it will land at the marriage license bureau.

For one thing, Mona said, she and the world's most famous crooner haven't discussed marriage.

"But speaking in generalizations—not particularly applying to Mr. Crosby—I certainly would like some day to marry again," she said.

"But I'm Catholic. And I am divorced. I never could get an annulment of my first marriage (to auto dealer Pat Nerney) because I have no grounds for an annulment. If I marry again, and I repeat, this is a general statement, I'd have to give up my religion. Therefore I'd have to give any marriage a lot of thought."

Currently, she said, she and Crosby are "very good friends and I hope we always will be."

"I see him now and then," she said, nervously twisting her fingers. "We go to dinner parties, I'm sure he goes out with other girls, but I don't know who. Really, you just don't ask your date those things."

She won't deny outright there's a chance some day of her marrying Bing, however.

Her first date with the singer since he returned from Europe just happened to land in the headlines. That was the night Crosby wrecked his expensive German car. He testified in a deposition concerning the accident he already had taken Mona home.

"I certainly was not in the car at the time of the accident," she said firmly. "If I had I couldn't look like this. I couldn't have been any place in the car and gotten out without a scratch. The seat next to the driver was smashed."

"I didn't know about the accident until the next morning when I went out to a Catholic benefit and I read about it in the papers."

Mona said she met Bing ten years ago when she was a 17-year-old starlet at Paramount Studio. After the death of his wife, Dixie, Crosby and the little blonde actress began to date. When this news hit print "I thought it was rather distasteful at the time and the stories very definitely upset me for a while," she added.

"Bing and I are good friends and long standing and I hope a lot longer," she smiled.

'Don't Wait,' Girls Warned In Raid Test

By MERRIMAN SMITH
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 18 —UP—Backstairs at the White House: Mary Jane McCaffree, Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary and a stunning brunette, is normally the most even-tempered and unfazed member of the White House staff.

The other day, however, the chic Mrs. McCaffree came up with a beautiful flub. The girl reporters were talking with her about the first diplomatic reception by the Eisenhowers.

"Is the party really formal?" a lady reporter asked.

"Why, of course," said Mary Jane, "white tails."

The President was hurrying down into the White House bomb shelter during a recent air raid test and noticed several stenographers stopping on the stairway to let him go ahead.

"Don't wait for me," he barked. "You should be getting to the shelter as fast as you can."

The Canadian Department of National Defense took Mr. Eisenhower's presence in Ottawa over the weekend very seriously. Red-coated Mounties were with the chief executive every moment he went out of doors.

The Defense Department issued elaborate orders for the Eisenhower visit. Special instructions went to the Canadian troops lining the streets of Ottawa for Mr. Eisenhower's arrival.

The Defense Department orders specially instructed:

"Liners will face inward, individually, no halting."

This, in Canadian government-ese, meant simply that the troops lining the parade route should face the people, not the parade.

A blind child, an attractive little girl, visited the White House recently and met Mrs. Eisenhower.

Holding Mamie's hand, the tot asked, "Why don't you ever do any work around here?"

Mrs. Eisenhower blushed for a second and replied, "Oh, honey, but I do—who told you I didn't?"

"My mommy," said the little girl, quite firmly.

The President was posing for pictures the other morning with foreign delegates to the convention of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States. Counseling his guests as to how to get along with the lensmen, the President said, "I've learned this much—do what they say or they'll just keep you here that much longer."
