Reagan demands full accounting, but arms talks still on schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, nearing a decision on American sanctions, said Saturday the Soviet Union must account for "the murder of innocent civilians" aboard Korean Air Line flight 007. Nonetheless, he said the "inexcusable act of brutality" would not interfere with arms reduction talks with Moscow

"It is up to all of us, leaders and citizens of the world, to deal with the Soviets in a calm, controlled, but absolutely firm manner," the president said. A senior U.S. official said the U.S. response would probably focus on measures to restrict Soviet air traffic.

The president met Saturday for a second day with his top security advisers and considered a list of retaliatory options.

In his weekly radio remarks, Reagan continued the tough language he has used since last Thursday's attack on the Boeing 747 jumbo jet, but gave no hint about what steps he would take. His spokesman, Larry Speakes, called for restitution for the families of the 269, including 61 Americans, who were aboard the aircraft.

Discussions in Geneva are to continue. Reagan told reporters.

"I don't believe that (the airliner incident) should reduce the importance of continuing the talks that we hope will lead to a reduction in the number of nuclear weapons in the world." he said

Ambassadors and diplomats from several nations, including Japan and South Korea, were called to the State Department for a briefing on the latest developments in the tragedy. The bipartisan congressional leadership was to meet with Reagan Sunday

The United States has said that a Soviet fighter pilot fired a missile and shot down the unarmed jumbo jet. In his weekly radio address, Reagan said Moscow owes the world an explanation and an apology for "this murder of innocent civilians

But the Soviet Union shunned responsibility for the plane's downing. moving closer Saturday to an outright denial. In a statement by the official news agency Tass, the Soviets called U.S. claims "slanderous allegations." Moscow has said it fired warning tracers at the plane after its entered restricted space near Sahkalin Island; the Soviet statement suggested that the plane was on a spy mission using its civilian status as a cover

Counties discuss airport work

PERRYTON (Spc) — Officials from three Panhandle counties and the Texas Aeronautics Commission met last week in Perryton to talk about improvements needed at the counties rural airports

The TAC wants to match improvements to meet expected changes in the local economies. Officials from Ochiltree, Hansford and Lipscomb Counties met with the TAC officials to talk about state and federal funding for improvements at airports in Perryton, Follett, Spearman and Gruver.

Several improvements are proposed at the Perryton Airport. Ochiltree County's strong economic base makes the Perryton Airport a good candidate for the state and federal funds. according to TAC representative Dana Ochiltree County reported a population of 9.588 in 1980. The county recorded $68 million income from agriculture in 1981 and $61 million in oil and gas income for the same year.

And Randy Brillhart, a member of the industrial board in Perryton, told TAC officials the board is now working to attract three major companies to locate in the area

Proposed improvements at the Perrtyon Airport include extending the 4.100 - foot runway another 900 feet soon and adding another 700 feet within the next six to 10 years. Airport lighting should also be improved in the near future, the TAC officials said. The airport at Follett meets state requirements for funds, and should be resealed within the next five years, the officials said. Also requested is a crosswinds runway.

lawsuit continues

The Spearman airport meets requirements for both state and federal funds. Projects proposed there include extending the runway, installation of a non - directional beacon and repairing the parking lot.

The airport at Gruver needs a crosswinds runway. The airport can acquire the necessary land for it, and residents believe the runway is needed. the officials said.

'Last year committee members had to actively seek people to display their crafts and to perform. We called upon friends to demonstrate their artistic talents and to sell food as personal favors to help us launch Chautauqua. "This year the whole committee has been overwhelmed by the large number of volunteers who have requested time and space. The city has been extremely cooperative, particularly (Director of Public Works) Jiggs Cook and (City Menager) Mack Wofford. Chautauqua has really become a community event," he said.

Mattox aide reveals studying bank laws DALLAS (AP) - An assistant to

Attorney General Jim Mattox has told prosecutors she was asked to research Washington state banking laws, the Dallas Times Herald reported Saturday Assistant Attorney General Deborah

J. Herzberg, who testified before a grand jury in Austin investigating Mattox's campaign finances, said she was asked to provide research in connection with First National Bank of Seattle, the newspaper quoted unidentified sources as saying.

Mattox strongly denied ordering Ms. Herzberg to do any such research, but said one of his assistants may have asked her to do so. Such a request would have been justified, he said, because the Seattle bank is suspected of leaking documents to Mobil Oil Corp. in a lawsuit filed by South Texas rancher Clinton Manges. The state is opposing Mobil in the suit

The Travis County grand jury is investigating allegations that Mattox may have violated state campaign reporting laws in connection with $125,000 in personal loans he made to his 1982 campaign.

Citing "confidential sources who asked not to be named," the Times said a Los Angeles County grand jury indicted Rick Kyle last Tuesday for the fatal July 22 shooting of his tycoon father at the elder Kyle's mansion in the posh Bel-Air section

The indictment included one count of first-degree murder and a separate charge of using a handgun in the commission of a crime, the newspaper said. The youth's lawyer, Michael Gibson, was not at his Dallas home when called for comment Saturday. Rick Kyle's phone number was not listed in Dallas.

He previously refused to discuss the shooting publicly, but told family friends that his father was shot by an intruder, who also shot him in the elbow while fleeing the mansion, the Times said. He was treated at a hospital and released. His Los Angeles attorney, Robert M. Talcott, said earlier, that an indictment would come as a surprise because his client "was the subject of the same attack that led to his father's death.

The paper said the sealed indictment was issued by the 23-member grand jury after hearing testimony from witnesses, including Kyle's half sister, Jackie Phillips.

Henry Kyle, 60, was president of Four Star International, the television and motion picture production company founded by actors David Niven, Dick Powell, Ida Lupino and Charles

Authorities are investigating a possible conspiracy to kill Kyle while he was contemplating changes in his will, the Times said

A copy of a 1978 will bearing "significant" changes was found in the father's briefcase after the shooting. Los Angeles police detectives have said. It was neither signed nor

Key testimony to the grand jury apparently came from Ms. Phillips and her fiance, Henry S. Miller III, whose family owns one of the nation's largest real estate firms. The couple's attorney, Frank S. Wright of Dallas, said the two appeared before the grand jury under subpoena and are expected to testify if the case goes to trial.

"I am sure that they will again be forced to testify just as they were forced to testify before the grand jury." Wright said. "I say forced because ... it's very traumatic for her. This

Duval County vote-buying trial focus narrows to two defendants

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - The focus of the trial of Duval County residents accused of buying votes for a county judge has narrowed with the acquittal of two of the seven defendants.

When the trial began, seven defendants were accused of handing out cash welfare vouchers in return for votes in the primary and June runoff races between incumbent County Judge Gilberto Uresti and his challenger. Freer pharmacist Frank Garcia

But on Friday, U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela ordered instructed verdicts of acquittal for two defendants - Rebecca Garcia, wife of Duval County Clerk Oscar Garcia Jr., and Elvira Garza, a campaign worker

Attorneys for all seven defendants asked for instructed verdicts of acquittal Friday after prosecutors rested their case. But Vela found inadequate evidence against only the two women.

Defense attorneys, who claim the prosecution witnesses are Garcia supporters who want to get even with Uresti and his punctuated with defense counsel objections and stiff admonitions from Vela after repetitious questioning by both sides.

In four days, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jack Wolfe paraded more than 20 witnesses to the stand to testify about the alleged handouts by Uresti's supporters. Accused of offering vouchers in exchange for votes are the judge's wife, Olga Uresti; former county welfare department employee Genoveva Garcia; Duval County Commissioner Fidencio Saenz; Benavides School District board member Domitilla Garza, and Uresti campaign worker Norma Solis.

Many of Wolfe's witnesses were Duval County residents who testified they were offered county welfare vouchers, in exchange for their votes for Uresti and candidates on his slate.

More than 10 witnesses testified they were given vouchers ranging from $20 to

The case has been $70, transportation to the polls and advice on filling out absentee voting forms. One 63-year-old woman testified she was given a six-pack of beer and a $20 voucher in exchange for her vote.

Cleodolina "Candula" Torres, 65. a county welfare representative from 1978 until January 1983, testified she handed out welfare vouchers on the orders of several of the defendants and Uresti, who is not charged in the case.

"I understood I was to give (them) those vouchers and "they would vote the right way," Mrs. Torres told the seven-woman, five-man jury.

Mrs. Torres, who testified under immunity from prosecution, said she handed out the vouchers because she feared she would be fired if she did not.

But Tony Canales, Mrs. Uresti's attorney, told the witness Texas Rangers and FBI agents "scared you to the extent that you would say anything to save your own hide because they were going put you in the Consuelo Ramos of Weslaco said Uresti came to her mother-in-law's home to solicit her vote and promise her "help."

"After they gave me the voucher they told me. 'Remember where you got this ... Remember who gave you this," she testified. Two of the defendants -

Genoveva Garcia and Saenz - took the stand Friday to flatly deny the allegations against them

Mrs. Garcia said allegations by two witnesses that she offered them vouchers in exchange for votes "didn't happen.

Church members build credit union

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - It took almost a year to do it but about 50 members of the Guadalupe Federal Credit Union have constructed a building themselves on church

The 1,000-square-foot structure is valued at more than $40,000, but took only $15,000 in materials. For the 400 members, the new office is more than a place where their money is kept.

And for Dennis Quiroz, a 31-year-old insurance salesman

Now the assistant manager-treasurer, Quiriz waited 10 years for the credit union to establish its credibility. He sees the building as a symbol of that. From the beginning, the credit union has survivied only on the determination of a few volunteers and the Guadalupe Catholic Church. Quiroz said the church played a big role in keeping expenses to a minimum while the credit union saved up its

"They gave us office space rent free and paid our share of the utilities.'' Quiroz said But the credit union found it hard to operate in an un-air-conditioned office located near a busy church "From time to time, there would be wedding receptions or bingo games and we'd just have to close the credit union because there was so much commotion that we couldn't conduct business," Quiroz said. There was a lot of apathy among members at this time and Quiroz, at age 22, served as president, treasurer and He called in a federal examiner who told him to "read the accounting manual. Instead of just letting the credit union fold, Quiroz took up the challenge, installed a "working" board of directors and drew up plans for a modest office building

They first got permission to build on church property, the only stipulation being that if the credit union moves or iquidates, the building becomes church property

The next hurdle was the city zoning board because it thought it would be a business that channeled profits back

After explaining the non-profit, self-help nature of the redit union, approval was granted. All that remained was actual construction

"We didn't say to our members: 'do it;' instead, we picked up hammers and said: "let's do it," Quiroz said.

A few helped with a concrete slab, others contributed carpentry skills.

Blocks went up, a roof went on and air conditioning went

"It took a long time to get the job done," said David Diaz, owner of an auto parts and appliance store and now president of the credit union. "But you can only push so hard when people are working free.

Minnesota attempts to force compassion

The state that gave us Hubert Humphrey, Walter Mondale and a long tradition of faith in government to do good has given us the nation's first "Good Samaritan.

Several states already have legislation that aims to encourage people to come to the aid of individuals in emergencies by relieving them of liability when they

The new Minnesota law goes one horrendous step further. It makes it illegal not to render assistance.

Minnesotans who fail to give "reasonable assistance" a foggy phrase which could mean anything from providing actual medical first aid to simply calling the police or paramedics in an emergency - can be fined up to $100 for their failure to help.

Minnesota legislators apparently have been horrified by a few highly publicized recent incidents in places far from Minnesota, most notably the alleged rape of a woman in a New Bedford. Mass., barroom while patrons stood and watched, some even cheering them on.

We, as well, are horrified by such indifference. But it is precisely because such incidents are so rare that they make headlines ... from Massachusetts to Minesota

And, frankly, given the nearly uncontrolled tendency of Americans to sue each other - abetted by our world leadership position in the number of lawyers per capita it is understandable if we have become less willing to rush to the aid of someone who may take us to court later.

The Minnesota law seems likely to make the situation more confusing, providing, as it does, a legal basis for suing our neighbor for not helping. Damned if we do, damned if we don't

We also wonder how the people of Minnesota view the low regard in which they are held by their representatives, who apparently believe only the force of the state can evoke compassion and responsibility.

To the extent that these qualities have diminished in America, in fact, we think it is in large part becasue government has intruded in the most basic human relationships, to the extent that individual initiative. responsibility and caring can seem almost superfluous.

In a community where government promises - beyond its ability and its legitimate purposes - to care for all human needs and to protect against all misfortune. where is the individual's reward for freely giving? Today government promises to the needy food, housing. education, transportation, medical care - virtually every basic human need - with the implication that if government didn't provide these things, no one would. Without the compassionate state, our social welfare system seems to say, its citizens would leave the unfortunate to die in the streets.

We can be forced to do good. But when we are, we do so out of fear rather than for the self - satisfaction that a free gift brings.

Laws which require us to "do good, or else," steal from us our human freedoms and can only, in the long run. make us less compassionate.

Jackson candidacy Demos' problem

BY WILLIAM RUSHER

NEW YORK-The Rev. Jesse Jackson's evident intention to seek the Democratic presidential nomination inevitably inspires some fascinating speculations. Whatever else he may accomplish, he has already made the 1984 battle for the White House a more interesting affair.

His bid comes at a time when blacks are acutely conscious of their growing power in the voting booth. The recent victory of Harold Washington in Chicago's mayoral election, and the nomination of W. Wilson Goode by the Democrats in their primary for mayor of Philadelphia, have demonstrated afresh that solid black support for black candidates can, in many areas, produce impressive results. Not unreasonably, many blacks are curious to see just how far they can push their luck.

The first result of a Jackson campaign in next year's Democratic presidential primaries will be a marked increase in the number of blacks who register to vote. That, in fact, is one of Jackson's major strategic aims; to increase black voter registration and thus black influence, not only in next year's elections, but for the foreseeable future

Such an increase will be an unalloyed boon to the Democratic Party and a corresponding blow to the Republicans, since something over 90 percent of these new black voters can probably be counted on to vote Democrat.

The GOP's likeliest strategic response is a vigorous bid for a larger share of the Hispanic vote, which now is predominantly

WHY, ACCORDING TO

A ONE-EYED

Democratic and growing fast. The Republicans believe, with some reason, that they can attract a substantial number of Hispanic voters, especially Cuban-Americans. President Reagan's recent speeches to Hispanic-American audiences make it plain that he is aware of this possibility-and also of the dangers posed by higher black participation.

But how is Jesse Jackson's presence in the Democratic primaries going to affect those contests? He will undoubtedly win some delegates in areas of dominant black influence, but in most places he will probably come in second, or third, or last, winning few votes beyond his intensely loval black base. The key point, however, is that almost every vote Jackson gets will be one that would otherwise go to one of the more liberal white candidates, such as Mondale or Cranston. The net effect of Jackson's candidacy, therefore, will be to help the most conservative Democrat: John Glenn.

Picture now the Democratic convention. Mondale arrives, perhaps still slightly ahead of Glenn in total delegate strength, but indirectly damaged by the Jackson candidacy. Jackson has a fairly small but loyal and vocal bloc of delegates, and is clearly ready to wheel and deal.

Is it possible, in such a situation, that one or another of the leading candidates might offer Jackson the vice presidential slot on his ticket? It would be a terribly dangerous thing to do-not only because it has never been tried and we, therefore, cannot be certain how American voters would react to the prospect of a black vice president, but because many voters, black and white alike, have reservations about Jackson as a personality But what if, despite a strenuous Jackson bid for the vice presidential nomination, the Democrats wind up rejecting him and choosing a white instead? Is there any doubt that millions of black voters would feel that Jackson was rejected solely on account of his race? And, if they felt that way, would they swallow their pride and vote Democrat in November anyhow.

or would they grimly sit on their hands? Would it matter whether Jackson himself endorsed the Democratic ticket or sulked, or would black voters refuse to follow his lead in the matter? Could Jackson publicly be promised something else-a Cabinet post, perhaps-without the gesture doing more harm than good?

At this point these are unanswerable questions, but on their answers may well hinge the Democratic Party's hope of victory in 1984. Before he is through, Jesse Jackson may have Democratic politicians wishing they were Republicans.

Needle points

The Department of Health and Human Services recently spent $180,000 to print a 40 - page report concluding that individuals in poor health are almost seven times as frequent users of physician services as those in excellent health." We can hardly wait for the next breathless, tax paid revelation from HHS - perhaps as earthshaking as that dead people are more likely to be buried than live people.

The West Virginia Department of Motor Vehicles is hot on the trail of another dangerous lawbreaker and menace to society - 55 - year - old disabled veteran Jack Myers. whose only means of getting around is a motorized tricycle. State bureaucrats have told local officials that Myers must stop using the cycle because it doesn't meet state vehicle requirement. Another triumph for law'n' order.

Have you ever been offered a free drink on an airplane to help compensate for delays or lost luggage? If Florida Democratic Congressman Charles Bennett has his way, it won't happen again. You see, a recovering alcoholic might be tempted to revert to a state of dependency under the temptation of a free drink, so there oughta be a law.

It had to happen. Officials in Iowa believe that the country's most productive agricultural land is now being used to grow the best marijuana in the world. "This is a serious problem." says Iowa official Tom Ruxlow. We're not holding our breath for Iowa to eliminate what it perceives as a "problem" by descriminalizing the stuff, of course. What would the enforcers do with their spare time?

Still, it's a little troubling that the FBI resorted to the ever - popular "sting" method of setting up agents as lawyers to offer bribes to judges and court officials in Chicago in order to expose corruption. It makes it tough to know whether law enforcement is promoting or deterring corruption.

Letters to the editor

Hospital policy questioned

Two years ago we, the citizens of Pampa and Gray County, were presented with a new hospital. Coronado Community Hospital, which was to afford us the best possible medical attention, whether from sickness or from traumatic injury suffered anywhere in Gray County.

It was my impression that the Emergency Room at Coronado Community Hospital was there to provide immediate medical attention to anyone who had suffered traumatic injury, regardless of the time of day it occurred. It was also my impression that the Emergency Room Coronado Community Hospital was available to us on a 24 hour basis

Well, my impressions have definitely been changed. In fact, here are a few questions that the citizens of Pampa and Gray County should demand answers:

1. What do we have for an Emergency Room at Coronado

Communiy Hospital? 2. What hours of a day must we suffer an injury before we can be treated in that Emergency Room? 3. Why are the citizens of this community being misled about availability of immediate medical attention in event of an accident or severe traumatic injury?

4. Why is space being wasted on an Emergency Room where it isn't utilized? The following events explain what created the above questions that need answers.

Thursday, Aug. 25, 1983, in McLean, Texas, a 71 year - old Pampa woman fell backward down a flight of 30 steps. This occurred in a private home and she was alone at the time. After regaining consciousness, and with her injuries being so severe, the only way she could get back up the stairs was to pull herself up by her fingertips using the nap of the carpet which caused blood blisters under her fingernails.

It was 1:30 p.m. before she was able to call her grandson in

Pampa to come for her. At this time her family doctor was called. He was out of town so the doctor left in charge of his patients was notified of the accident

COME ACROSS ANY ALIENS THEY HAVE TO

BE EDUCATEDY

At 2:30 p.m. the woman's grandson had reached Pampa with her, and since she was in severe pain took her directly to Coronado Community Hospital, expecting immediate medial attention for his grandmother. He was told she could not be treated at the Emergency Room until 5 p.m., but they would call the doctor on call for her family doctor

From the hospital, she was taken to another doctor's office where she was told he had six scheduled appointments before her. By this time, the woman's daughter had arrived from Amarillo. The third call was made to the doctor on call for the family doctor to inquire about possibilities of X - rays being taken. The daughter was told to bring her mother to the office.

Upon arriving at his office (this being the third time this injured woman had been assisted into and out of a private vehicle) they were told the doctor was in an examining room with a patient on a routine office visit and would not come out

Finally, he checked her over, but said she would have to return to the Emergency Room at Coronado Community Hospital, where they had told her earlier that she couldn't receive treatment until 5 p.m.

By this time, 4 p.m., the woman was in unbearable pain and swelling was occurring throughout her body. Her daughter, refusing to put up with more needless delay and frustrations in getting help for her mother and even possibly more harm to her from assisting her in and out of the vehicle, called a doctor in Amarillo. Within one minute the doctor was on the phone and was told of the accident and attempts at getting medical assistance. He told the daughter to get her mother to Amarillo as fast as possible and help would be waiting for her upon her arrival

Accompanied by her daughter and grandson, the injured woman was rushed to Amarillo. Now, keep in mind, the Amarillo doctor had never treated this woman prior to this time. Arriving at the Amarillo hospital no questions were asked about insurance or payment or any other paperwork before she started getting medical attention, only her name and age. Within twenty minutes she was examined, X - raved. medicated for her severe pain, and her family was told of her injuries. She had sustained a broken back in two places, sprained right ankle, bruised kidneys, and multiple bruises.

Citizens of Pampa and Gray County, why must any one of us in this community be treated in such a manner when a distant community can give such care, concern, and medical attention to a total stranger. Why did this 71-year-old woman ave to be assisted in and out of a private automobile three times and sustain five hours of anguish to finally receive medical attention more than fifty miles from her home.

I do not underestimate the demands made on doctors, sometimes unnecessary demands. I have high respect for the long hours they work with little time for a private life. I am aware of the sacrifices they make to obtain their educations, the expense of their educations, and beginning a practice. Office equipment, licenses insurance fees, etc. are all very But, doctors, please remember that it is your choice that you are having to meet these demands! When a citizen of our community is involved in an emergency situation and needs medical treatment immediately, it is not their choice, but becomes a necessity for the survival of an individual. What are the answers to the question at the beginning of this letter? We may never know. I can only say "Thank you, Amarillo, for having doctors who will care for Pampa citizens. Thank you for meeting the emergency needs of an injured woman with a broken back

The street bond election in my opinion was a no - confidence vote in our city government. Therefore, I suggest a return to square one with a termination of employees, a cancellation of city ordinances, codes and taxes, a resignation of the city commission, and a call for elections.

Vote of no confidence

For those who would aspire to serve as commissioners, I suggest a winning platform: 1. Restore only half the fire department budget and negotiate with a private company to provide as much fire protection as the reduced budget will buy

2. Restore only half the police department budget. Assign the duties of law enforcement to the department and transfer the burden of crime prevention to the public. 3. Sell the water department to a water utility

4. Sell or lease the public library, the municipal auditorium, and the public swimming pools.

5. Do not rehire animal control personnel. We can manage this problem ourselves.

6. Do not rehire city engineers. Without major projects, we can "make do" without them. 7. Do not rehire the city manager and his staff. The mayor and commissioners can assume his functions - without pay, of

Do not rehire sanitation department personnel. Everyone will be required to dispose of his own solid waste by means of his choosing. Independent trash hauling contractors should flourish. Property owners would be asked to clean adjacent streets, voluntarily

9. Sell the parks, piece by piece, at public auction. 10. Restore ordinances and codes only when petitioned and only ater public notice and debate.

11. Restore taxes only enough to meet reduced requirements and to create a fund for street and other capital expenditures. Submit propositions for capital expenditures to the voters each year. Should the propositions fail, no matter. Unspent funds would be transferred to the general fund and tax reductions made possible. We might have to endure pot holes in our streets, collapsing sewer lines, and other indignities, but think of the gain. We might have the lowest tax rate in the entire

A dozen or so reporters were momentarily caught off guard, but they quickly recovered and scurried to catch up.

Brown, who weighed well over 200 pounds when he underwent triple bypass surgery and suffered near-fatal complications, has reached his goal of reducing his weight to 180. He has also quit smoking and drinking alcohol and sticks to a strict diet and exercise regimen.

WHO WROTE THE BIBLE?

To deny that the Bible is God's Word is to deny God because the Bible reveals God to us. While we might be impressed as to the existance of an infinite being by the things of nature (cf. Romans 1:20), still we would not know the mind and will of God without the Bible (Romans 1:16,17; John 5:39; f2 Timothy 3:16,17).

The people of Athens believed in a god which surpassed all their other gods. It was then that Paul expalined the one true and living God to them (Acts 17:16-34). Paul knew about God through his background as an Old Testament scholar and about Jesus Christ through the inspiration of the Holy Spirit (Acts 22:3; Galatians 1:11-17). We can rely on his testimony, and that of the other inspired writers, because they spoke as they were moved by the Holy Spirit (2 Peter 1:20, 21).

It is impossible that man could have compiled all the historical and scientific information, contained in the Bible, in and of himself. Hundreds of years were involved in the recording of the Bible, yet the historical and scientific information contained therein is unerringly accurate. Only with the direction of an eternal being could such have been possible. God truly is the mind behind the Bible. The words of this greatest of all books are the words of Almighty God. To read them and to hear them is the same as hearing it directly from the mouth of God.

Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things that were heard, lest haply we drift away from them." (Hebrews 2:1) Billy T. Jones

He waits only a few seconds before, sure enough, there's a steady inexorable pull that ends with the contraption pointing straight at the ground

"Water," he says confidently. "I've never been wrong."
Schwope, 67, is one of about 25,000 known water "witchers" in the United States, but his "God-gifted talent" has a rather unusual twist. He drills water wells for a living, thousands of them

"I always 'witch' a water well before I drill," he declares.
"and I've never, ever drilled a dry hole."
He founded Schwope & Sons water drilling company 35 years ago in this Hill Country community, about 25 miles north of San Antonio, and it didn't take long for word to spread about his knack.

"I enjoy doing it," he said "You feel like if you get people water, you're really being a big help."

He discovered his rift he said during the 1053 decembed that water, you're really being a big help."

He discovered his gift, he said, during the 1952 drought that parched the local Hill Country terrain. He began with the most rudimentary equipment — a green forked wooden stick that folklorists say is directed to the water by the sap inside.

"Witching," or dowsing, refers to the practice of using a forked stick, rod, pendulum or similar device to locate underground water, minerals or other hidden or lost substances.

Schwope now uses a stick he bought in Florida many years ago for about $40 and then jazzed up with bits of a broom handle, plastic tubing and a "transistor." which strengthens the rod's pull.

the rod's pull.

A six-inch vial on the stick's tip holds whatever substance
Schwope is ferreting out — water, oil, gold or silver.

"We had a guy come here out of Houston and say, I'd just like to see that work once," Schwope said. "He put a Kruggerand under a Styrofoam cup and lined the entire road with cups.

"I put some gold in the tip of my 'witcher' walked right to

"I put some gold in the tip of my 'witcher,' walked right to that one Krugerrand and made a believer out of him," he said. Schwope has four sons, but only one is "God-gifted" with dowsing ability, he said.

"Very few people can do it," he said, "and a lot of people flat just don't believe it."

just don't believe it."

Skeptics insist that dowsers unconciously move the rods themselves, and that it's unusual to drill a hole and not hit at least a trickle of water.

One of Schwope's former employees, a Jehovah's Witness, was 'deeply disturbed by his boss' unorthodox method for seeking water. Schwope said.

"He said, 'Boy, if that ain't voodoo, then I don't know what is," Schwope said. "He said it was the work of the devil. He didn't mind if I did it, but he didn't want to be around when I did."

Schwope said he even relied on his "witcher" when he was hired by the state of Texas to drill two water wells.

'I told these two state engineers, 'I know you're engineers and you probably went to college and you probably won't believe this — but.watch,''' he said ''I witched and one of the wells we drilled pumped 450 gallons a minute.''

References to "witching" date back to the Bible, in a passage where Moses strikes a rock with a rod and water gushes forth. It wasn't until after 1675 that dowsing began to be mentioned in connection with witches and witchcraft.

There's even an American Society of Dowsers, headquartered in Danville, Vermont, but Schwope doesn't belong.

He doesn't want to be scholarly about it. For him, it works. End of lesson.

"It's certainly not something I think about," he said. "I just do it. And I don't charge for the 'witching.' I feel like if I charged for it, I'd lose it. If you're gifted enough that you can do it, then you ought to do it for nothing."

Collecting bank taxes a problem

By GARTH JONES AP Political Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — A $100 million problem in collecting taxes from Texas banks is an almost sure subject for the next legislative session, special or regular.

Whether Texas needs new laws or just different methods of collecting the taxes will be the big argument.

collecting the taxes will be the big argument.
On July 5 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that federal securities, such as Treasury bills and U.S. bonds owned by Texas banks, are exempt from property taxation.

That decision shook not only Texas banks but practically every Texas city, county, school district and other taxing unit.

Taxing banks' federal securities is the major source of revenue from banks for local governments which live mostly on property taxes.

The legal controversy began in 1980 when the American Bank and Trust Co. and 51 other Dallas banks sued Dallas County, alleging the county was unlawfully taxing federal securities held by the banks. According to the bankers, such taxation was prohibited by federal law that said federal obligations are exempt from state or local taxes.

The Dallas district court originally held for the county, but the Supreme Court, after three years, finally sided with the bankers.

"Statewide, the decision will reduce the annual tax collections of cities, counties, schools and other taxing entities by an estimated $100 million." said a statement prepared by the Texas Municipal League. "Of this amount, cities will lose about one-third."

Some authorities said the decision might void existing state laws authorizing local governments to tax any or all bank held securities.

Additionally, the judgment was retroactive to 1980.

After the suit was filed, some cities, counties and school districts put aside taxes collected from bank securities in escrow accounts, to await the final court decision. Others did

Localities that have already spent the bank tax revenue are faced now with two options, said the TML — either increase taxes or cut back spending to pay back the banks.

The impact mainly will be felt in major urban areas, where most banks are concentrated.

The ruling does not directly affect savings and loan associations, because they pay a state franchise tax on their operations, which banks do not

"I think that something will have to be done at the next session, whether its a special session or the 1985 regular session," said Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, which would have first vote on any tax bill considered in a special session.

"It probably will be some sort of a franchise tax for banks," collected by the state then returned on a pro rata basis to local governments," Schlueter said. "There are some problems with that, but I think we can do it."

While the bank tax case was going through the courts, the Texas Bankers Association backed unsuccessfully in 1981 and 1983 a proposal to remove the bank securities from taxation and substitute a state franchise tax for banks that would not apply to federal securities.

"We have not altered our position," said Leonard Passmore, general counsel of the Texas Bankers Association. "There is no reason why Texas banks should be taxed differently from other Texas businesses."

Passmore said if the law is not changed, some banks with extensive holdings of federal securities would have "zero renditions" except for the value of their buildings and equipment, usually a small fraction of the total tax.

The Texas Municipal League has opposed the proposed franchise tax for banks in the past, largely because it would bring in only about 30 percent of current collections of bank taxes.

In view of the court decision knocking out much of the revenue from present collections, the TML is considering "alternative taxation," that does not necessarily include franchise taxes.

"When the Legislature is called to meet we (the TML board) will meet beforehand and take a position," said Dick Brown, TML executive director.

"It's a misconception we need new legislation." said Buck
Wood, whose law firm has represented the TML and the Texas

Midland Reporter-Telegram MIDLAND, Texas (AP) - Midland's economy, despite rumors to the contrary, is not necessarily in a position of weakness. Still, growth has slowed to early 1981 levels after an unprecedented economic boom.

Economic indicators, in an economy prone to wide swings up and down, are bound to be mixed. For example, Midland revenues from its 1 percent of the 5 percent sales tax are 20 percent lower this year than 1982 year-to-date paybacks.

Sales this year are slightly above those made in 1980. The '81-'82 period was an unusual economic boom period, though, and can't be judged side by side with Midland's now stable economy. The $9.2 million sales tax payback from 1982 shouldn't be matched (and won't be) in 1983, a year running at a safer, slower pace, according to economic experts.

Midland's economy experienced a boom that many people still do not understand. Afterward, overextended credit and falling oil prices put numerous companies in bankruptcy and

Some sources maintain a turnaround in their particular industry (like contract drilling) will not come around for another 12 to 18 months.

"Regardless of its balance sheet, from $2 million to $200 million in sales, all drilling companies are very, very depressed," said Carl Ramsey of Sharp Drilling. "These are bad financial times

But oil companies continue making money, even with oil at $27 per barrel (it was $32 last fall). Those that have gone public, like Hendon Exploration, Mineral Development Inc. and Wyoming Resources, are looking profitable and are said to be good over-the-counter stock buys.

Another oil boom won't come unless something drastic happens, but industry analysts say efficient companies down to a bare-minimum staff can make a lot of money. It's much cheaper to have an oil well drilled this year than it was in 1982.

Many companies in Midland have public-offering drilling funds, and much of the millions involved will be spent from their headquarters here. Testing the strength of the oil business helps prove the entire economy. And "as a community we are in a better position to grow than we have been in a long time," Grant Billingsley. executive vice president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, said in a recent interview.

'It is a very exciting time,' said Frank King, manager of human resources for Braniff. "All we've been doing these past 15 months is counting the days until we can get this baby back into the air.

Flowers on Thursday approved a plan by the Hyatt Corp. to put Braniff back in the air with 2,000 former Braniff employees and 30 jets. Hyatt agreed to give Braniff $70 million in cash and loan guarantees in exchange for 80 percent of the new airline's stock.

The sooner they can get back to flying, more power to 'em." said L.T. Faircloth, a representative of the machinists' union. enthusiastic in spite of his organization's pending legal action against a new Braniff contract. "That's what it'll take to get our people back to downturn, there are only 150 fewer jobs in Midland than there were in mid-1982, according to statistics from the Texas Employment Commission. This performance pegs Midland as a city of drive and initiative despite its main industry's weakness from tax burdens and declining business volume. skilled people moving to Midland to take specific jobs, rather than unskilled workers flooding the city.

"It's a healthier economic environment (than the oil boom), Billingsley said

There seem to be more job-seekers in Midland than the TEC figures indicate, said Ed Miller of the local office. Many of them don't file for unemployment benefits - or don't qualify and thus are excluded from the numbers.

One oilman had 75 applications for an executive secretary Miller noted.

Billingsley said the overbuilding of residences, and even of office space, retail, and other ready-to-occupy properties, is necessary to position Midland for growth.

Dallas and Houston continue to be interested in Midland despite gloom-and-doom talk. A contingent of them during a recent visit expressed surprise at continuing multi-million dollar office projects going up: Independence Plaza, Union Texas Petroleum Plaza, and Jack Hightower's Forum.

Commerical building is up this year, with more than $30 million in office, retail and church development announced. ClayDesta Plaza has been a development hotspot through

'83. This creation of oilman Clayton Williams Jr. has hosted - second from the top in new construction for a Texas city its $110 million in construction so far. Gulf Oil has its $25 million office building there to house local operations. Oilmen Griffing and Burnett are building Sun Exploration's $6.8 million office in ClayDesta, and the area has spurred other development like the $9 million Mission Square retail properties and I. David Porras' Petroleum Center North. Cities Service recently became the first company to move into the ClayDesta bank building and Texaco leased a major part of HBF's Heritage building.

ClayDesta National Bank has performed in an exceptional manner, gaining more than $44.73 million in deposits in less than nine months. It started business in October at its drive-in. and its main building with 40-foot pine trees is now open. Bank participation in Midland corporate loans have been lentiful, with InterFirst and other bank holding companies buying parts of major loans to Midland companies. Some claim bad loans among these were exaggerated by the Wall Street Journal in a recent article. They said no Midland bank has hinted at weakness that might cause a failure or a serious restructuring. 'Outsider' bank companies also desire a presence in Midland. RepublicBanc Corp. recently acquired Texas

National Bank and an officer of the $30-billion Dallas conglomerate said it will soon open an energy loan department here, using bank officers with oil and gas experience to offer new "blood" to the economy. Other economic indicators bode well for Midland, including connections and telephone hookups, many of them business Realtors are selling homes. There are about 1,700 properties on the market and Laura Manulik, president of the Board of Realtors, said, "we are having a great deal of activity with 164 closings in June compared to less than 100 the two previous months. Outsiders are coming in and local people who have had an eye on the market are finding bargains are out there. When the boom was in full force, a housing shortage caused an extreme over-reaction annd a flurry of building. With the unoccupied homes and apartments here, some wonder what makes builders keep building. Some have quit. But the ones with confidence in Midland's economic future are staying, hedging bets and building fewer speculative houses. Tim Tabor, president of Permian Basin Home Builders' Association, said a new builder who has been conservative may build a house or two and have them sold "before the kitchen cabinets come in busy with harvest operations as the hot summer sun bore down this week, and ranchers in western areas continued to haul water and feed to livestock due to drought conditions.

Cotton harvesting extended from the Rio Grande Valley up through the Central Texas Blacklands, and some corn and grain sorghum harvesting continued in scattered areas. including grain sorghum harvesting in West Central Texas. Some early corn and grain sorghum were being harvested for silage in the Panhandle and South Plains.

Farmers along the Upper Gulf Coast were trying to salvage as much of their rice crop as possible following Hurricane Alicia. The storm downed a big portion of the crop that was ready for harvest; however, the crop was several weeks late this year due to adverse spring weather which delayed planting Losses to cotton, grain sorghum, corn, soybeans and pecans also were heavy--50 percent or more--in a number of Hot, dry conditions continued to cause crops and ranges to deteriorate over the western half of the state, said Dr. Zerle L. Carpenter, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Texas A&M University System. Some cotton was shedding squares and bolls due to drought stress. Where water was available, crop irrigation was heavy in the Panhandle, South Plains and Trans-Pecos areas.

Ranchers in western areas were culling their herds heavily as pastures, ranges and water supplies continued to decline, Carpenter said. Supplemental feeding was active in many areas, and some ranchers were hauling stock water to cattle as water holes and stock tanks dry up.

Some farmers were starting to plant small grain crops-wheat and oats-although most will wait for rain to get the crops up. Carpenter said. Reports from district Extension directors showed these PANHANDLE: Hot, dry conditions are stressing dryland crops, but irrigated crops continue to look good. Some early corn and grain sorghum are being harvested for silage, and harvesting of potatoes, carrots, onions and cucumbers continues in Deaf Smith County. Farmers in northern counties are sowing wheat. Some ranchers are hauling water to range cattle due to lack of rain.

SOUTH PLAINS: Dryland crops continue to suffer from lack of moisture while those under irrigation are doing fairly well. Some early corn and grain sorghum are being harvested for silage. Farmers are continuing to get land ready to sow wheat. Grazing is short on ranges.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton is shedding squares and bolls due to drought stress, and alfalfa yields, ranges and stock water supplies are also suffering due to continued hot, dry weather. Boll weevil damage is increasing in cotton. Some ranchers are hauling water to range cattle and are providing

NORTH CENTRAL: Cotton is moving toward maturity while grain sorghum harvesting is active. Peanuts and pastures need rain. Some hay making continues. Farmers are busy getting land ready to sow wheat and oats NORTHEAST: Crops and pastures remain in good shape although the area needs a good rain. Hay making continues and sweet potato harvesting has started. Fall gardens are going in. The peach harvest is over and growers are expecting an average pecan harvest.

FAR WEST: Drought conditions continue to plague the area, causing farmers to irrigate cotton heavily and ranchers to cull herds drastically. Along with irrigating, farmers are keeping a close check on cotton fields for pink bollworms.

WEST CENTRAL: Hot, dry weather is taking a heavy toll of crop and livestock conditions. Cotton is setting bolls but is drought-stressed. Grain sorghum harvesting continues, with yields generally above average. Pastures, ranges and stock water continue to decline.

CENTRAL: Cotton is opening rapidly under hot, dry weather, and the grain harvest is making good progress. Irrigated peanuts look good but those on dryland are in dire need of rain. Farmers continue to get land ready for small

EAST: Crops and forages are making good growth as most of the area continues to have good soil moisture. Hay crops have been good and producers hope for one more cutting. Fall gardens are going in. A good peach harvest is complete. Most livestock are in top shape due to plenty of grazing

UPPER COAST: Farmers are getting back in their fields to salvage what they can of crops heavily damaged by Hurricane Alicia. Losses were in the 50 to 75 percent range for most crops remaining in the field when the storm hit. About half the rice was still out while harvesting was further along on other crops. . Lo

The entire pecan crop was lost in several counties. SOUTH CENTRAL: Cotton bolls are popping open rapidly under hot, dry conditions, and some harvesting has started Most of the corn and grain sorghum is in, with generally good yields. Most pastures are providing good to excellent grazing

Fall crops are being heavily irrigated and ranchers are culling herds drastically in drought- 103. stricken counties. Cotton harvesting is in full swing while grain crops are in Sheep and goat shearing continues, with above average yields.

COASTAL BEND: Harvest operations remain active, with 75 percent of the cotton and 95 percent of the corn in. The rice harvest is complete. Hay making continues. Livestock have good grazing on pastures and ranges. The pecan crop is maturing rapidly although some nuts are shedding due to the hot weather.

Sugarcane and citrus crops are doing well along with early planted fall and winter vegetables. Vegetable planting continues. Livestock and range conditions are good.

In Agriculture

By JOE VanZANDT County Extension Agent

The long hot, dry summer is certainly having adverse effects on ranchers and farmers. The cattle business has gone downhill in a hurry the last few weeks. Market prices on calves, yearlings and fat cattle have certainly gone downhill the last month, and they were none too good before then.

In addition to the price decline, the dry weather is causing concern for feed supplies as some ranchers are considering starting to supplmental feed their cattle. Of course, the drought has caused feed prices to rise which adds to the cattlemen's plight

On the farmer's side of the dought picture, crop prospects on dryland acreage are fast disappearing. Irrigated farmers are having to pump a lot of water this summer, but at least, maybe their irrigated crops will bring a little better price because of the drought shortened crop.

Wheat farmers in our area are wondering when a rain will come as the lack of moisture has not sprouted any volunteer wheat this summer. Our topsoil is so dry that it will take several good rains to have sufficient moisture to plant on. TEST FORAGE FOR FEEDING VALUE

Just how "good" is the hay you harvested this year? It's really hard to tell without a forage test. The forage test is the only way that a definite feed value can be assigned to a particular lot of hay

While a forage test may cost a few dollars, usually $10, it can save you dollars in supplemental feed or livestock condition. Feeding low quality hay without supplementation can result in livestock weight losses and reduced rebreeding percentages. At the same time, feeding supplement with top quality hay may not always be necessary. Only when your hay's feeding value is known can you make a useful decision on the necessity of a protein or energy supplement. The hay's feeding value might be such that no supplement is needed or it might be such that the animal is slowly starving without a supplent A forage test can give a positive value on which to base a essential for a sound management program.

Anyone interested in getting hay tested for protein, fiber, nutrient and mineral content can bring samples to the County Extension office where information forms and mailing containers are available. Forage samples will be sent to the Extension Foreage Testing Laboratory, Soil and Crop Sciences Department, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843

TOMI" SUBJECTS FOR SEPTEMBER

September discussions for the Telephone Outlook and Market Information program, known as "TOMI", incluide a wide range of subjects of special interest to farmers and ranchers.

The information system, provided by the Texas Agricultural-Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, presents the latest information on a broad range of subjects to assist in keeping agricultural producers updated on commodity markets and other vital information useful in planning and managing their operations.

September subjects include cattle outlook concensus, ag export outlook, whether or not PIK may continue in 1984, the cotton situation, cattle on feed analysis, crop production estimates, hog and pig report, soybean situation, and the dairy

More detailed information on these subjects is available by dialing 409 845-TOMI, according to this schedule:

Sept. 2-5 - Cattle Outlook Concensus, Dr. Ed Uvacek Jr. Sept. 6-8 - Ag Export Outlook, Dr. Mickey Paggi Sept. 9-11 - PIK in '84, Dr. Ron Knutson

Sept. 12-14 — Cotton Situation, Dr. Carl Anderson Sept. 15-18 - Cattle on Feed Analysis, Dr. Ed Uvacek Jr. Sept. 19-21 — Crop Production Estimates, Dr. Ed Smith

Sept. 22-26 - Hog and Pig Report, Dr. Ernie Davis Sept. 17-29 — Soybean Situation, Johnny Feagan

Sept. 30 - Oct. 3 — Dairy Feed Situation, Dr. Bud Schwart The telephone information system operates seven days a week on a 24-hour basis., Messages are prepared by Extension Service economists, who provide the latest information feeding program, and with the high cost of feed, that's available to aid producers in making decisions

For Horticulture

By JOE VanZANDT County Extension Agent

The drought is having its effect on a lot of landscape plantings, expecially trees and shrubs. Some homeowners are giving to wonder what killed their tree or shrub. The answer in many cases is going to be either a shortage or a lack of water. I have said several times this summer that trees and shrubs need some slow soaking water applied in their root zone. I don't care if you watered every day for a 15 minute period, your tree roots may not have gotten any of that water if you have a good grass turf. This is particularly true of deep rooted trees — they don't have a lot of roots close to the soil surface. consequently they pull their water from several feet down in the soil TAKE ADVANTAGE OF MOTHER NATURE IN THE GARDEN

Nematodes in the vegetable garden can have a substantial effect on the production of vegetables such as green beans, okra, squash, cucumbers, tomatoes and many others. The standard recommendation has been to use resistant varieties, rotation, cereal rve as winter cover crop and apply Vapam as Vapam is watered down to a depth of six to eight inches. This is an expensive treatmenmt and must be applied three weeks prior to planting. Vapam must also be applied when the soil emperature is between 50 and 85 degrees. In the summer, the soil temperature is seldom below 85 degrees. When Vapam is applied at a temperature above 85 degrees, the pesticide forms a gas at too fast a rate and the nematodes are not exposed to a lethal concentration of the nematicide.

The period between spring and fall is an excellent time to reduce the nematode population by taking advantage of Mother Nature, and getting away with it. Don't gripe about that summer heat and dry conditions; use it to help in the control of nematodes.

Nematodes are animals that require water to survive. By removing the water and exposing them to high soil temperatures, they can be controlled with a minimum of financial expense. The month of September is an excellent time to till the soil and expose the nematodes to the drying effect of sunlight. The more times the soil is tilled or spaded, the more effective the treatment. Do not apply water during

Another version of this is known as solarization. Solarization is a technique in which the soil is covered with clear plastic and left for a period of six to eight weeks. The plastic is tightly sealed around the edges of the area to be treated. This allows for extreme temperatures to be obtained beneath the plastic. The advantage of solarization is that it not only is reported to control nematodes, but also many weed seed, soil fungi and certain soil insects

Now is the time to make use of the summer temperature for the betterment of your garden. Don't gripe about Mother

Nature, use her to you and your garden's advantage

FLEAS ABUNDANT DURING SUMMER Fleas attack both man and animals and most often become a major problem during the summer months. We have had a lot of calls this year on fleas. The tiny pests cause annoyance and discomfort and can also spread certain diseases, a major one being bubonic plague.

Adult fleas cause the most problems as they have piercing sucking mothparts and suck blood. Adult fleas may live from two months to two years. After each blood meal females lay four to eight eggs, which hatch in two to three weeks. They may deposit as many as 500 eggs in their lifetime.

Flea control may be difficult due to the circumstances under which the pests occur. Home infestations are often discovered a short time after a pet has been taken out of the home. Immature fleas have completed development and, with the absence of the normal host, turn to man for their life sustaining blood meal.

Satisfactory control of fleas for any length of time depends

(1. Both adult and immature fleas must be eliminated from the home and yard by proper chemical control and sanitation measures, such as replacing infested bedding materials and cleaning carpets and stuffed furniture.

(2. Pets must be rid of fleas by using registered chemicals. In the case of rat or mice fleas, these hosts must be eliminated. (3. Reinfestation must be prevented by protecting pets with flea collars or other preventative chemicals during times of likely infestations.

Chemicals registered for indoor flea control include Baygon, DDVP, Dursban, Malathion, Methoprene, Ronnel and SBP-1382. Use a coarse spray on floors and baseboards. Treat one foot up the walls and under the house where possible Check product labels prior to use.

Chemicals registered for outdoor flea control include Baygon, Cygon, Diazinon, Dursban, Malathion and Sevin. Treat animal's bedding or remove and replace with new material. Good coverage is necessary for good control.

To control fleas on host animals, use Dursban, Lindane, Sevin or Vapona on dogs and Korlan, Lindane, Malathion, Phosmet or Sevin on cats. Since some of these chemicals have specific restrictions, be sure to read the label prior to use. Some compunds may be harmful to greyhounds and whippets. Do not treat nursing puppies or kittens or animals that are ill.

Aggies drop squeaker to California on safety in closing seconds of game

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE STATION. Texas (AP) — California linebacker Ron Rivera tackled Texas A&M's Jimmie Hawkins in the end zone for a safety with 57 seconds to play Saturday night to finally quell a 17-point comeback by the Aggies and rally the Bears to a 19-17 victory

Hough's knuckler baffles Kansas City as Rangers claim 7-0 win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - The seven runs Charlie Hough got in support of his six-hit shutout over Kansas City came from an unexpected source — the last three slots in the Texas Ranger lineup.

"That's exactly what happened for us at the end of the first half of the season. Those guys were really swinging well for us," Texas Manager Doug Rader said after 'his club's 7-0 victory Friday night.

Hough, 12-12, struck out seven and walked only two in his eighth route-going performance of the year. He baffled the Royals with a knuckleball that was acting pretty much the way I came from shortstop Bucky Dent, catcher Jim Sundberg and second baseman Wayne Tolleson, the bottom third of the Rangers' batting order.

"It was kind of nice to have some breathing room," said Dent, who doubled and singled for Texas. Hough didn't need much in extending his string of scoreless innings to 20.

Sundberg's ground-rule double moved Dent to third ahead of Tolleson's two-run single that triggered a four-run fifth inning for Texas against starter and loser Paul Splittorff, 10-7.

Hough would like more appearances against Kansas City, whom he blanked 1-0 last weekend.

Seven years ago, when Heim was 15, he was in a car accident that police said was caused by a drunken driver. the accident left him paralyzed from mid shoulders down.

Until this year. Heim felt couldn't work or support himself. Now he is the president of a new corporation, A Victim Speaks.

The firm was formed recently by his nurse, Evelyn Mason, so Heim could travel to neighboring schools and tell students about surviving a serious alcohol - related

The big difference between AVS and other anti - drinking and driving campaigns is that Heim presents himself directly to the audience as a victim, he said.

"Most programs emphasize the number of young people killed in accidnts, but we don't emphasize death," Mason said. "We emphasize those who go on living with severe mental and physical answering questions. difficulties. "Lots of people think 'If I harm myself. I can live with it.' Then they see John and ask themselves 'How would I live with myself if I did that to an innocent person?" she

The program has two parts. First the audience sees a movie, "Not Me," in which Heim talks about his accident and how life has been for him since.

The second section of the program involves Mason and Heim performing a comedy act to lessen the audience's embarrassment and then

A major point he brings up is that he never tells people they shouldn't drink.

At first Heim was nervous about speaking to the students in public. He doesn't

Ms. Mason said several service organizations had asked Heim to speak. The first part of the program has been shown in 14 school

Ms. Mason took out a $20,000 personal loan for the . equipment to allow Heim to travel to every engagement.

Dear Abby

References to God offend atheist

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have become sickened by all of your references to the "lord" and to praying in your answers to people who are in trouble.

Did you ever stop to think that some of these people whom you tell to "pray" and to "keep faith in the 'lord' might be atheists? I'm sure these references would offend them, as they do me. Remember that there are people in this world who are strong enough not to need some imaginary being to cling to. Sign me ..

A HAPPY ATHEIST

DEAR HAPPY: John Stuart Mill (English philosopher, writer, member of Parliament) said: "It is conceivable that religion may be morally useful without being intellectually sustainable."

If your strength sustains your atheist convictions, fine. But others may need help from a higher power.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I will soon celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary. When we were married we had no celebration; we just had a little hurry-up ceremony because I was pregnant at the time.

Now for our 25th, we're planning a wonderful reception where we'll renew our vows, and then take off for a month's dream vacation to make up for the honeymoon we never had. I went to work part time for two years and saved the money to help pay for all this. We have a good marriage and much to celebrate.

My husband wants to add to our invitations: "Instead of gifts, donations to our church would be appreciated. Abby, I never got any wedding presents - ever - and I would love some. My husband's "no gifts" attitude is making me feel guilty and greedy, because I really do want presents.

I feel that he deprived me of a big wedding 25 years ago, and now he's depriving me of wedding presents.

What do you think? A DREAM COME TRUE

DEAR DREAM: What do you mean he "deprived you of a big wedding"? I assume you were a willing partner in the circumstances that deprived you of

You needn't feel guilty or greedy for wanting presents. I say, let the guests give you gifts if they wish, and you make a donation to your church.

DEAR ABBY: Gary and I have been married two years. He says he loves me, but he isn't satisfied with my body. I'm not fat, but Gary thinks I need to firm up. He lifts weights and has a muscular body, and he wants me to have one, too. It takes time and a lot of work to firm up, but I'm trying.

Gary says he sometimes likes to sleep with other women just for their bodies - not to get serious with. I've been trying to understand his thinking, but it doesn't seem logical to me.

I married Gary because I loved him, and I want to stay married for life. I will try to firm up my body to please him, but do you think I should give him permission to have other women in the meantime? What if I never firm up? A NICE SIZE

DEAR NICE: Tell Mr. Muscles that there is nothing in your marriage contract that makes flabbiness a legitimate ground for adultery. Firm up for your health, but don't condone his cheating or it will be the beginning of the end.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for Barbara, who dislikes being called "Barb":

My neighbor, Nellie, had a friend named Helen who insisted on calling her "Nell" after having been told repeatedly that her name was Nellie - not "Nell."

One day Nellie met Helen at the door and said, "Good morning, Hell!"

From then on, Helen called her Nellie. MARGARET, NOT MAGGIE

Shoes are usually a wardrobe "must" for the new school year. Children's shoes and feet affect the way they perform in the classroom and participate on the playground and in other activities. Even if last year's school dress shoes still look good, be sure to check the fit on your child's foot. Children's feet grow at a surprisingly fast rate. Sometimes the feet can change a whole size within one month. Since the soft bone structure allows the child's foot to fit into a shoe several sizes too small without any particular pain or discomfort, a regular check for size is important.

Check for the following signs of outgrown or ill - fitted - Sole of the shoe shows inside edge

Toddlers' and children's sizes 2 through 4 are based on the same weight and body measurements but the children's sizes do not allow for diapers.

Children's sizes are usually selected by height and weight. Boys and girls' sizes are designed for children who are taller with proportionately longer arms and legs and more adult posture

Sizes may vary among different brands and with the 6X are designed for boys and style of the garment. A child girls who are outgrowing may also have a minor figure variation that causes a fitting problem. For these reasons, the best way to be sure a garment will fit is to try it on. If a child is between sizes, the next larger size is usually a better choice because the child will grow into it quickly. Avoid buying garments several sizes too large. however, since loose, poor fitting clothes can cause accidents by catching objects or tripping the child.

To save time and money, easy care clothing is a good choice. Labels and hangtags provide information on fiber content and care instructions. Check for terms such as machine washable. permanent press, soil release, little or no ironing. crease resistant and stain resistant: Some flame retardant clothing needs special care to maintain a protective finish. Always follow the care instructions for longer lasting and better looking garments.

Selecting clothing that can "grow" with the child will save both time and expense by reducing the number of items needed

Specific features that allow for growth will vary in different styles, but the following are general features to look for: deep hems in skirts, pants and sleeves that can be lengthened, tucks in bodices, skirts, pant legs and sleeves that can be released for length, wide seams at the center back of pants and wide side seams for width adjustments. Two - piece garments usually provide more room for growth than one - piece items. Adjustable straps and waistbands allow

The second tale shows a top draw Hollywood producer who after three marriages is looking for fresh fields, and so calls up a childhood sweetheart now a suburban housewife, for a little sexual diversion. In the intervening years she has idolized him from afar, and is now more than the match he bargained for. Friendliness, like courtesy makes the give and take of life more enjoyable. And, like courtesy, friendliness is learned by experience as well s by example.

When a child begins walking is a good time to give him a start in learning the art of being friendly.

At two years old, children are so busy exploring, so eurious about people and things, that they have not yet become self - conscious about themselpes. This is the ideal time for them to meet other children in a play situation. Even though children don't usually play with other children until they are about three, two - year - olds are not too young to learn the fun of mutual exchange. Skills in ogetting along" with others will increase with each exchange and self confidence will grow with each new acquaintance made.

Friendlinessis basically a love of other people, and enjoyment of their company. and a spontaneous desire to please them.

This early play behavior is known as "parallel play." Only after a long period of parallel play do young

Kitchen herbs are fun, easy to grow

WINSTON - SALEM, N.C. — Fresh herbs for garnishing everything from salads to main dishes can be as close as the backyard garden, or even the kitchen window box.

Lawrence says. "People are more interested in eating natural, wholesome foods, and that includes using fresh herbs grown in their own gardens as flavoring."

Once confined mainly to decorative gardens or commercial farms, herb growing is gaining renewed popularly among home gardeners, says Dr. Brian M. Lawrence, director of research and development for the Avoca Division of RJR Technical Company, a unit of R. J. Reynolds Development

Corp.
Many commonly used herbs are hardy plants that can easily be grown in outdoor gardens or indoor planters, says Lawrence, whose work focuses primarily on the business of growing aromatic plants including commonly known herbs.

"The popular interest in growing herbs reflects overall changing attitudes on eating healthy, natural foods."

Although most herbs are undemanding plants, close attention to growing conditions can assure flavorfl, bountiful yields, says Lawrence, who also is scientific editor of the international publication, "Perfumer and Flavorist."

Here are some suggestions for would - be growers of utilitarian herb gardens.

In choosing an outdoor garden site, look for a level, sunny area with good drainage and soil that is fertile, but not excessively rich. Generally, fertilizer does not need to be added to herb garden soil.

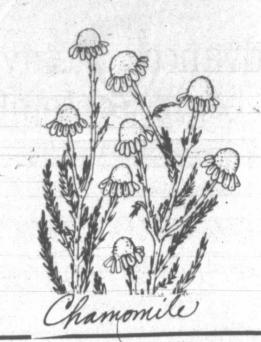

Garden centers and herb nurseries are the best sources for perennials, including chives, mints, sage, thymes, oregano, marjoram, rosemary and tarragon. Often gardeners need to buy just one plant, using it to propogate additional plants. Annuals must be grown from seed each year. Seedlings can be started indoors early in the year, then transplanted outdoors when weather permits. Popular annuals include anise, dill, fennel and basil

A large outdoor garden is not needed for growing herbs. Smaller plants are well - suited for growing in confined spaces such as window boxes, clay pots or planters of various shapes and sizes. Chives, lavender, parsley and small mints are good choices for small growing areas.

Many herb growers find exchanging plants and seeds with other gardeners is a good way to acquire new varieties of herbs. It's also a fun way to exchange information about the history and characteristics of herbs.

Family Crafts

Family Tree project helps teach kids about relatives

There's an old joke about the little boy who asks, "Mom, where did I come from?"

Somewhate startled, Mom launches into a 30 - minute essay on childbirth at the end of which the boy sighs and says, "I know, but Bobby came from Detroit, where did I come from?

The next time this question comes up in conversation, you may want to tell the children something about the family tree - liue how to make one.

This is an easy project that requires only a few materials, many of which you probably have at hand.

The tree itself is made from twigs and the apples, one for each family member, are made of dough. The tree and fruit are glued to a scrap of soft wood, such as balsa, which is etched with a ballpoint pen. >

Here's how to make the family tree. Select a scrap of wood and smooth any rough edges using a piece of sandpaper. The wood can be used as is or it can be stained or painted.

Arrange the twigs on the wood in the shape of a tree and glue them in place.

To make the dough apples, mix one cup of four, one cup of salt and enough water to make a soft dough. Add red food coloring, a few drops at a time, and work it into the dough until the desired shade is achieved. If the kids prefer another fruit over apples, simply change the color of the dough.

On a flour - covered board, knead the dough until it is soft and pliable. Add additional flour to the dough if it's too sticky. Pinch off small pieces of dough and shape them into apples Place an apple at the end of a twig for each family member. Glue the apples in place and let them dry and harden for

If the apples come unstuck after they have hardened, add a small amount of glue under each one.

Family names can be etched in the wood with the tip of a ballpoint pen. If your wood is too hard, simply use a felt tipped marker or acrylic paint.

Here at The Family Workshop we know how-important it is to keep cost on each project to a minimum, so feel free to adapt the Family Tree, as well as other crafts in Kid's Stuff, to use the materials you have available.

For example, tiny red pompons can be used for apples instead of dough. Or forget the apples and have the kids pick up tiny acorns outdoors. Just be prepared for the jokes about

Screw an ornamental picture hanger into the top of the wood, so you can hang the Family Tree in a prominent spokift know one really brave mother who let her kids build a stand for their Family Tree using nails, hammers and scrappiof

There are more easy projects kids will like in our Kid's Oraft Booklet, containing complete instructions and illustrations for

AP Television Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) - Alex Karras looks up from his nu at the Paramount Studio commissary and grouses. This is the city of thin.

The 230-pound former All-Pro defensive star with the Detroit Lions, who stars in the new ABC comedy series "Webster." shakes his head and points to the menu. "Where else but in Hollywood would they have a listing for 'thin foods?

Karras, who looks like he could still open a big hole in an opponent's line. says. "Whenever I go to a Hollywood party there's always a big table of food in the middle and 50 people staring at anyone who would dare to eat anything fattening. So I always grab a big plate and pile it high with stuff." "A conformist he is not, and after a dozen years in show business he is more skeptical than ever of Hollywood. "I could never submerge myself in this business," he says. "I can't take this business seriously. Talent doesn't mean anything - it's the deal. How can you get serious about that?

What I watch for is, will I lose my respect for myself doing a role? That's the bottom line. If I do it, that's my choice. I don't mind knocking out a horse if it fits the character ("Blazing Saddles"). Not too many times do you ever see one man kissing another on film, but I did that ("Victor-Victoria"). Even my most macho buddiès didn't say much about that.

In his first series. Karras stars as a former pro football player turned sportscaster. His wife, Susan Clark, plays his new bride. She's an ombudsman with a career of her own, and neither want children. Naturally, there's a blessed event - Webster, a black 6-year-old orphan, shows up on their

"I think mostly we're staying away from a black-white relationship. The fact that Webster is black is not the basis of the show or the humor. I hope, too, we can keep him as a 6-year-old and not as a 6-year-old who's 40."

Karras and Miss Clark frequently act together, and they also work together as producers. Their company is Georgian Bay Productions, named after an area in Miss Clark's native Canada Their daughter, Katherine, is 3, and they sometimes bring her to work.

They're preparing a movie for CBS called "Fats." comedy about an overweight high school student in the 1960s. They're also working on an ABC film they'll star in. He will play an old-fashioned pro football coach and she'll play a modern-minded woman who inherits the team from her father - a romance will develop

The new series is a first experience with videotape for Karras, who has always worked with film before. "It's the fastest process you can do as an actor," he says. "I don't like

'What don't I like? The beginning and the end. The coming in and the going. It's over before you know it. The actor's process is why am I here and why am I saying this. You can only draw from your motivation and I tend to lose it.'

Actress became a playwright

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Several years ago, Sybille Pearson, once an actress and now a playwright, got a call from her agent. "She said, 'Sybille, two gentlemen just called and asked if you'd like to write a musical

"I said, 'Absolutely not, Audrey, I'm just learning. I don't know anything about musicals," Miss Pearson recalls. She was revising her first play then, "Sally and Marsha," a comedy about two Manhattan housewives.

Three months later, the same agent posed the same question. It got the same answer from this veritable beginner, who'd written only one other stage piece, a drama entitled "A Little Going Away Party."

A theater friend seemed stunned at her behavior. "He said, 'Why'd you say no to Maltby and Shire? And twice?' I said. 'Who?' I was a little stunned myself.

The Maltby was Richard Maltby Jr., Tony-winning director of Broadway's "Ain't Misbehavin." The Shire was David Shire, Hollywood composer and Oscar-winner for the theme song of "Norma Rae.

Things have since been sorted out. And all three are now putting final touches on that new musical, now in rehearsal. It's scheduled to start previews Oct. 15 and to premiere Nov. 6. On Broadway, no less.

'Baby" is the show, a production budgeted at $2.7 million. Miss Pearson wrote its book, with Shire contributing the music and Maltby the lyrics and direction.

"Baby," she says, concerns the impact of impending parenthoood on three couples - a pair of unmarried college kids who didn't plan on having a baby, a married couple in their 30s who've been trying to have a baby, and another married couple in their late 40s, with three kids grown and gone, who thought they were all through having children.

'It's not a diaper-and-pins musical," emphasizes Miss Pearson, a short, plain-spoken woman with close-cropped brown hair. "It'll be a theatrical experience that's grounded in moments we all know

'But hopefully it'll soar above them, because life does soar.

It'll examine the fear and exhilaration of change. Her play had a first staged reading in 1980 at the O'Neill Theater Center's prestigious national playwright's conference in Waterford, Conn. Then came a production of it at Yale Rep. After that, an off-Broadway production in early 1982 at the Manhattan Theater Club, this one co-starring Christine Baranski and Bernadette Peters. It got mixed-to-good notices.* And then, out of the blue, came the calls from Maltby and Shire who had the idea for "Baby." She says they hired her to write it long before "Sally and Marsha" played off-Broadway. simply on the basis of having read that play and liked it.

"I'm very lucky. I've said that ever since the O'Neill. But" luck doesn't take you all the way. You always have to keep growing.

"Four years (as a writer) in theater, well, I'm a very young baby. But with each production I go through, the more I learn! I think, boy, I'm getting higher up in skill than I was before. And that's the brass ring you get.

Hurricane threats won't daunt holiday revelers

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) - Rio Grande Valley residents won't be scared off the island by two recent hurricane threats, but some other tourists may stay away during the long Labor Day weekend, officials say.

Colleen Carnevale, promotions director of the South Padre Island-Port Isable Chamber of Commerce, said residents of far South Texas, who make up the majority of island visitors over the holiday weekend, are expected to flock to the island.

"The people here have a savvy about the weather. It takes a whole heck of a lot to shake up these people," she said.

But it may be a different story with visitors from northern regions of the state, Ms. Carnevale said.

Barry may have done us some psychological damage." she said. "He certainly didn't do us any other kind." Hurricane Barry steered south of Texas' coastal resorts last

Ms. Carnevale said.

But she said the chamber isn't forecasting the number of people who will show up this year.

'It's conceivable that it would be less than last year." she said. "If it is less, I will put it down to the weather problems that we've had.

 John McDonald, general manager of the island's Hilton Resort, said, however, the hotel is nearly 100 percent booked for the weekend.

He said the Hilton's Labor Day weekend guests generally come from a 200-to 300-mile radius.

Those who have made reservations, he said, are planning to stay longer

"It's very encouraging," he said South Padre Island Police Chief Art Garcia said his department intensifies patrols over the weekend and, like during a hurricane, refuses vacation leaves.

Judge orders probationer to place sticker on vehicle

RICHMOND, Texas (AP) - A judge who issued a probationer a bumper sticker whose scarlet letters spell out 'Driving While Intoxicated" says he's afraid drunk driving defendants will use up his remaining 249 stickers quickly. Fort Bend County Court-at-Law Judge Thomas R. Culver III said Thursday night he has 249 stickers left after ordering Joseph Gutowsky to place one on his bumper.

Gutowski, who was the first defendant to receive a sticker as a conditionol his probation, pleade3 guilty to the offense Wednesday wouldn't want one of those bumper stickers on my car, Culver said. "I don't think anyone would." Culver said he only expected to issue the stickers to repeat offenders or defendants whose drunken driving caused an accident, but said so many DWI cases come through his court that he may use his stock in a hurry. 'I frankly hope that I don't have to use any more of them.' two weeks ago. "But at some point, I may have to reorder."

said Culver, who said he got the first batch of stickers about Eulver said he hoped the stickers will deter other motorists from driving after drinking. He said he also intended it as a reminder to Gutowski that he was on probation. The blue stickers say: "The driver of this vehicle is on probation in the County Court-at-Law of Fort Bend County, Texas, for DRIVING WHILE INTOXICATED. Please report msafe driving to the Adult Probation Department.

Culver said Gutowski was on probation for another drunk driving offense when he was involved in an accident and harged with DWI again.

But he said the prosecutor recommended probation, stating hat Gutowski had several dependents.

Culver sentenced Gutowski to 2 years' probation, during hich he must keep the sticker on his car, and ordered him to nake $400 restitution to the driver of the car he struck. Culver aid no one was injured in the wreck.

Culver said he offered to let Gutowski withdraw his plea fter he announced the terms of probation, but the defendant eccepted the sentence. Should he have been convicted, I doubt very seriously that jury would have given him probation," Culver said. Culver said he ordered the stickers because he was earching for a way to decrease the incidence of drunk driving in Fort Bend County, which is southwest of Houston.
