

Jury panel selected in $21 million lawsuit

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Writer

A seven-woman, five-man jury was selected late Wednesday to hear the $21 million lawsuit filed against the local gas company by three former Pampa residents burned in a fire last year. Testimony in the trial began today.

Pampa jurors seated to hear the case include Imajeau Woods, Mrs. M.L. Earles, Charles C. Mandeville, Mrs. R.R. Jordan, Carol Lee Hermanski, Mrs. Thomas W. Kitchens, Betty S. Goldsmith, Charles Henry Skipper, John Mitchell Holland (a local Department of Public Safety trooper who told lawyers he had never heard about the lawsuit prior to the trial), Gerald Richard Elsheimer, Stella E. Airington and George J. Boyd.

"I'm sure glad they didn't pick one of us," remarked one lady to another as Judge Don Cain dismissed the remainder of the panel questioned as prospective jurors.

District Clerk Mary Clark summoned 309 people Tuesday for jury duty in the case. Those who reported filled out general questionnaires about their backgrounds. The lawyers in the case then reduced the panel to about 80 prospective jurors, who were questioned individually all day Tuesday and Wednesday.

Lawyers asked the prospective jurors about any relationships with anyone connected with the trial, about their families, jobs, hobbies and pre-trial publicity.

Most on the panel said they had heard about the case or read about it in the newspaper, and most said they had not formed opinions about the case because of that information.

One man questioned Wednesday morning, however, said he did have an opinion about the suit and should not sit on the jury. Judge Cain immediately dismissed him from jury service.

James Boleman IV, 30, his wife Ana, 29, and their infant daughter Anna are parties to the lawsuit against Pioneer Corporation and its subsidiaries, Energas and Westar Transmission Companies.

The Bolemans claim the giant natural gas utility company is responsible for a fire in their mobile home Aug. 27, 1982. Ana Boleman and the child suffered second and third-degree burns over about 60 percent of their bodies. James "Jay" Boleman received less-serious burns in the fire.

The lawsuit asks for $875,000 in damages for Jay Boleman for loss of his wife's companionship and sexual relations. The gas company should pay Mrs. Boleman $8 million, and the child should receive $12 million, their lawsuit says. The suit also asks for further relief and damages.

Ana Boleman and the child are badly scarred from the burns. Both continue treatments for their injuries.

The fire victims stood in the front of the courtroom as their lawyer, Dale Friend of Houston, introduced them to the prospective jurors Tuesday.

"You must not let sympathy, resentment or any emotion play a part in your deliberations," Tom Milam, lead counsel for Energas, warned the panel later.

The Bolemans' trailer at 634 N. Roberta exploded and burned just hours after an Energas serviceman, identified as Kenny Rodgers, turned on gas service at the home.

Investigators with the Pampa Fire Department and Fire Marshal later said the cause of the blaze was most likely the ignition of natural gas leaking from an uncapped copper gas line inside the trailer.

The lawsuit says the Energas employee should have found the leak when he hooked up the service. The company is responsible for the fire and negligent for not properly training its employees, and for other reasons, the suit claims.

The companies deny all allegations in the suit and ask that the family receive nothing.

Shultz calls act 'appalling'

Soviets shoot down jetliner

By The Associated Press

A Soviet jet fighter shot down a South Korean jumbo jet carrying 269 people after tracking it for more than 2½ hours when it strayed over the Soviet island of Sakhalin, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said today.

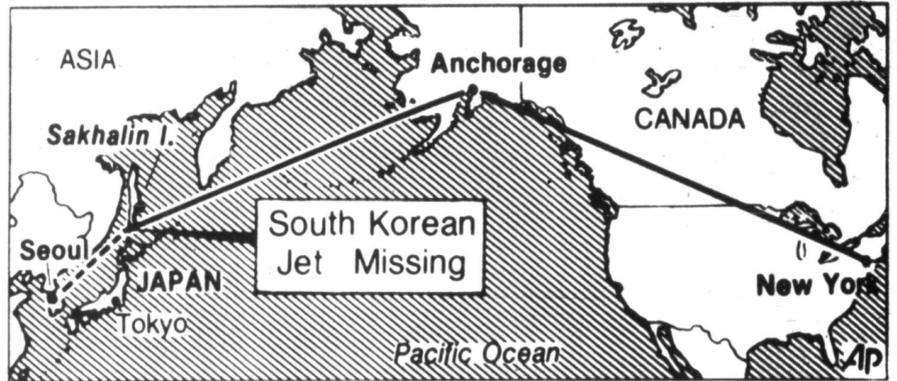

Among those aboard was a U.S. congressman and a search was under way for any survivors in the frigid waters off Sakhalin. Japanese and South Korean officials also believed the plane was shot down in the area.

Shultz told a Washington news conference the unarmed civilian plane was downed with a missile, that "there was no excuse whatsoever for this appalling act," and that the U.S. government reacted "with revulsion."

He said there was no evidence the Soviets had warned the plane, although he said the Soviet pilot was "close enough for a visual inspection." He said as many as eight Soviet jets were involved.

Shultz said the U.S. government called in the Soviet charge d'affaires in Washington and expressed "grave concern" and demanded an explanation.

There was no immediate reaction from the Soviet Union, which earlier denied an erroneous Korean Air Lines announcement that the plane had landed on Sakhalin. KAL did not say why it made such an announcement, but informed sources in Seoul said apparently it was based on premature information that proved false and a desire to comfort relatives gathered at the Seoul airport.

Jet missing in Sakhalin Island vicinity

Japan said today that it appeared "likely" the Soviets downed the airliner.

"If this (attack) is true, it should be regarded as very regrettable indeed," Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe told a Tokyo news conference. Japanese radar indicated the Korean Air Lines jumbo was pursued and shot down at an altitude of about six miles by two MIG-23s about 3:30 a.m. — 2:30 p.m. EDT Wednesday — and plummeted into the Japan Sea.

The seas in the area were reported calm, but the temperature was about 50 degrees. According to survival manuals, a person can last in such waters for about 50 minutes. Up to 3½ hours there is a 50-50 chance of survival, and after 3½ hours death is 99 percent certain.

South Korean officials said U.S. and Japanese search planes were scouting the area, and Japanese defense radar indicated a large number of Soviet aircraft appeared to be flying over the zone, possibly searching for survivors. Among the passengers was Rep.

Lawrence P. McDonald, D-Ga. Lawrence's aide, Tommy Toles, told reporters by telephone from Rome, Ga., that South Korean intelligence officers also said three Soviet fighters took part in the attack.

The Japanese newspaper Sankei Shimbun said Japan's Defense Agency picked up air-to-ground communication from Soviet planes over Sakhalin saying "open fire" and "shot down." South Korean newspapers said it was believed the Soviet MiGs downed the jumbo with air-to-air missiles.

Expert says Soviets will deny action

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — An American expert on the Soviet military says that the Russians will at first deny involvement in the downing of a Korean jumbo jet Wednesday but will later defend their action.

Lynn Hansen, former Air Force liaison officer to the Soviet Army in East Germany and now research associate for the Center for Strategic Technology at Texas A&M University, said he did not think the incident would develop into a major international crisis.

A Soviet fighter plane shot down the Korean Air Lines jet carrying 269 people. Pentagon sources said today. Japanese and South Korean officials said the airliner was shot down near the Soviet island of Sakhalin.

"I suspect the U.S. State Department will express the predictable concerns but will probably let the South Korean government take the lead in protesting the incident," Hansen said.

The Soviets will defend themselves on the grounds that the Korean aircraft failed to conform to the rules of international conduct and the violation of Soviet airspace.

"I understand that three blips showed up on the radar screens and then the jetliner disappeared," Hansen said. "With evidence like that it's going to be very difficult for the Russians to convince anyone of their innocence."

Hansen served 23 years in the U.S. Air Force, officially retiring Wednesday, and was a member of the arms control negotiation team which was involved in the conventional arms reduction talks with the Russians last year.

The Texas A&M Center for Strategic Technology is a defense think tank specializing in Soviet military studies.

'Works like a champ'

Shuttle shows its muscle power

CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger astronaut Dale Gardner flexed the shuttle's robot arm today in a weight-lifting test to prove it has the muscle to hoist massive satellites and to shift beams and girders in the construction of future space stations.

"It works like a champ," he reported as he guided the arm to grapple a 7,460-pound package berthed in the cargo bay, Challenger and its five-man crew were humming along smoothly 184 miles above the globe.

After capturing the target, Gardner, working by remote control from a post at the rear of Challenger's cockpit, unlatched the 50-foot robot's metallic muscles and shifted the package, moving it around the cavernous bay, careful not to hit other instruments there.

"It came out of the guides nicely," he said. "No problems at all."

The dumbbell-shaped package, 20 feet long and 15 feet wide, has twice the mass of any payload yet lifted by the arm. Purpose is to determine how an object with heavy weight and mass affect the arm and the spaceship.

The results will be of immediate interest to the 13th shuttle flight next April, when the bionic arm is to drop off a 20,000-pound scientific satellite.

Although an object has no weight in space, it does have mass, and that is a direct function of its weight on Earth. Even in the complete absence of gravity, moving an object requires overcoming mass and inertia. The greater the mass, the greater the force required.

Gardner, assisted by mission specialist Guion Bluford, blocked out seven hours today and five hours Friday for the important exercise.

Commander Richard Truly and pilot Dan Brandenstein were at Challenger's controls to fire maneuvering jets at various times to test the reaction of the arm to these forces.

Dr. William Thornton, the house doctor, continued medical experiments that concentrated on the nervous system as he probed the mysteries of space sickness that have at least briefly bothered nine of the 21 shuttle crewmen who flew previously.

While the astronauts slept Tuesday, mission control received no data from Challenger for three hours because of trouble with a computer at the White Sands, N.M., ground station. The spaceship's radio had been set to communicate through an orbiting satellite, which in turn beamed the signal to White Sands.

Mission Control in Houston awakened the astronauts about 15 minutes early, when they were conveniently over a station, and told them to move a switch that shifted the craft from satellite to station communications.

The wakeup music for Day 3 of the six-day mission was the "Illinois Fight Song," in honor of Gardner, a graduate of the University of Illinois.

The eighth shuttle mission, which began with a launch in darkness, is also to end in darkness, early Monday, at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

Accused nurse asks court to appoint new attorney

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A nurse charged with injecting seven children with a paralyzing drug says she will ask for a new court-appointed attorney to represent her.

Gene Jones said Wednesday that one of her two attorneys, Joe Grady Tuck, has expressed a desire to be removed from the case.

State District Judge Murray Jordan probably will rule on Ms. Jones' request at a Sept. 15 pre-trial hearing here, where he also will consider a motion to have Ms. Jones' indigency status reconsidered.

Kerr County Attorney Ritt Jones filed the motion after the nurse posted $225,000 bond.

Ms. Jones is charged in Kerr County with murdering 15-month-old Chelsea Ann McClellan with injections of a powerful muscle relaxant, and causing serious seizures in six other children.

Her trial on the murder charge has been set for Oct. 17 in Georgetown, about 100 miles away.

A Bexar County grand jury is investigating a string of suspicious infant deaths at San Antonio's Medical Center Hospital from 1978 to early 1982.

Prosecutors from Kerr and Bexar counties flew to San Diego, Calif., today to meet with Swedish toxicologist Dr. Bo Holmstedt.

Holmstedt reportedly found traces of the muscle relaxant in embalmed tissue from Chelsea Ann's exhumed body.

The doctor is attending a medical convention in California and prosecutors said they wanted to take advantage of his presence in the United States, rather than flying to Sweden to interview him.

Lebanon radio reports 40 Christians butchered

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The rightist-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio today charged that leftist Druse militiamen "butchered" 40 Christian villagers in retaliation for a Lebanese army sweep of Moslem Shiite and Druse militia strongholds in west Beirut.

The allegation came as the Lebanese army mopped up scattered pockets of militia resistance in west Beirut after the sweep, which the government viewed as a crucial test of its strength.

The Voice of Lebanon, operated by the Christian Phalange Party, said the "horrible massacre" took place in the village of Bmariam, in the Syrian-controlled Upper Metn mountains 19 miles east of Beirut.

The broadcast said the Druse militiamen stormed the homes of the village's few remaining Christians and "butchered about 40 elderly persons and children with knives, including the town's priest, Gergis El-Rai." It said only one resident survived.

In the capital, sporadic rifle shots echoed in the streets as the U.S.-trained army troops flushed out a few remaining rebellious militiamen from hideouts in residential neighborhoods.

However, the city was generally quiet just a day after 10,000 troops with tank and artillery support moved through Druse and Shiite strongholds in house-to-house fighting.

Residents were outdoors after a 24-hour curfew, taking stock of the destruction caused by four days of fighting and heavy bombardment that left at least 94 dead, including two U.S. Marines on Monday, five French soldiers, and 42 Lebanese troops. At least 413 people were injured.

Marines and civilians at the U.S. Embassy overlooking the Mediterranean Sea said they had no trouble during the night, and all was reported peaceful at Beirut's closed international airport, the base of the U.S. Marine contingent of the multinational peacekeeping force.

"It's great, quiet. Had a night sleep and washed for the first time in three days," said Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan, 45, of Shenandoah, Ga.

The state radio repeatedly said the sweep was a crucial test of whether President Amin Gemayel's government was "to be or not to be."

Senior Lebanese officials, pleased by the performance of the army in west Beirut, said they now felt the force could move into Lebanon's contested central mountains and establish order when Israeli troops pull back.

Israeli forces, who invaded Lebanon in 1982 to try to smash the Palestine Liberation Organization, plan to vacate the central mountains before Sept. 7 and take up positions in southern Lebanon in hopes of cutting casualties.

Begin successor unlikely to make policy changes

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Party colleagues of resigning Prime Minister Menachem Begin meet tonight to elect a new leader, but the winner of the closely contested two-man race is not expected to veer from Begin's policies.
The 930-member central committee of the governing Herut Party will cast secret ballots in choosing between Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Deputy Prime Minister David Levy. The new leader would then be in position to succeed Begin as prime minister, if Herut can maintain its coalition in Parliament.
Defense Minister Moshe Arens said that no matter who won the ballot, "we will continue the policies that have been followed under Mr. Begin."
A key to the outcome was whether Begin, 70, would endorse either candidate. In the past, he has preferred Shamir, 68, who was a comrade of Begin's in the underground fight for a Jewish state.
The leadership race was set in motion Tuesday when Begin said he was resigning the post he has held since 1977. He announced his decision to his Cabinet on Sunday, but gave his backers time to try to talk him out of his decision.

Begin has delayed submitting his resignation to President Chaim Herzog, apparently to give his party time to pick a successor, although Arens said Begin did not indicate how long he would postpone the move. Begin and his Cabinet remain as a caretaker government until the new Herut leader - or Labor Leader Shimon Peres - puts together a coalition.
Under the law, when Begin submits his resignation, Herzog must ask the parliamentary faction considered most likely to muster a majority to form a governing coalition. His resignation also means the entire Cabinet is considered to have resigned.
Shamir, 68, immigrated to Israel from Poland when he was 20 and fought in Begin's Irgun Zvai Leumi underground. He later broke away and led an extremist movement called "Freedom Fighters of Israel" which fought the British in the 1940s, assassinating diplomats and bombing British and Arab targets.

Shamir served 10 years in Israel's secret service, entered politics in 1970 and was appointed foreign minister in 1980. His hardline views were underscored by his abstaining in the 1978 vote on the Camp David peace accords because he opposed returning the Sinai peninsula to Egypt.
Levy, 45, immigrated to Israel from Morocco 26 years ago and was a construction worker who climbed the party ranks through labor union politics. He has served in Begin's Cabinet since 1977 and was appointed deputy prime minister in 1981.
Levy is regarded a pragmatic hawk expected to focus on healing the national split over the Lebanon war. If elected, he would be Israel's youngest prime minister and the first from the Oriental community, which is 65 percent of the population.

Jasper hit by tornado

JASPER, Texas (AP) - A tornado struck this East Texas town early this morning, knocking out power to many residents and leaving behind debris that closed several streets, authorities said. No injuries were reported.
Trees knocked down power lines around the city said Larry Todd, spokesman for the Department of Public Safety. The twister struck about 3:30 a.m., Todd said.
A Jasper radio reporter, Art Lay, said the tornado also removed the roof of a concession stand at the high school football stadium. A tree fell through a house and another fell on an automobile, he said.
The twister cut a swath from southwest to northwest across the city, said Johnnie Huckels, dispatcher for the Jasper County sheriff's office.
Houses in the Shady Acres development one-quarter mile west of Jasper on U.S. Highway 190 were damaged, she said. The tornado then struck Jasper elementary and middle schools.
But Ms. Huckels said the worst damage was on the city's fashionable west side, where large trees were uprooted and tossed onto cars and homes. Large sections of the area remained without power because of downed lines, she said.
Sheriff Aubrey Cole said the presence of large trees in the area heightened the damage.
All city schools were cancelled today, said Ms. Huckels.

Son of smuggler stages kidnapping

MIAMI (AP) - The dejected, mosquito-bitten son of a wealthy convicted marijuana smuggler stumbled out of the Everglades and confessed that a four-day siege of kidnap ransom notes demanding $2 million was part of a hoax, FBI agents said.
The young man's father had been threatened with revenge and his son's murder during the charade that ended Tuesday when David Hamilton Butler Jr. emerged from the swamp and was picked up by Miccosukee tribal police, authorities said.
Butler, his roommate and his girlfriend were jailed today, charged with extortion and conspiracy, officials said.
Bond was set at $150,000 for Butler, 20, and Joseph Leo Hickey, 19, son of a Dade County circuit judge, and at $50,000 for Carmen P. Carreno, 18, a fitness instructor and Butler's girlfriend.
Hickey helped Butler choose a hideout and develop strategy, and Miss Carreno typed five ransom notes delivered to David Butler Sr., vice president of Fort Lauderdale-based Trans Air Inc., the FBI said.
The scheme, described by FBI agent Chris Mazzella as "fairly well laid-out," began unfolding Friday, when Butler Sr. received demands by telephone and a typed note saying: "We have finally taken revenge against you, Mr. Butler. We are now holding your son, David Jr."
Over the next few days, more phone calls and letters were received. They said the younger Butler would be killed "without hesitation" if the father did not cooperate, according to FBI agent David Boner.
By Monday, FBI agents suspected they weren't dealing with a real kidnapping, Mazzella said.
But it wasn't until Tuesday morning, four hours after the beary-eyed and mosquito-bitten Butler was picked up, that he admitted the kidnapping was a sham, Boner said.
In 1979, an Alabama jury convicted Butler Sr. of smuggling marijuana into the country, according to The Miami Herald. He now owns a $300,000 home in southwestern Dade County and two luxury cars, the newspaper said.
At 2:45 a.m. Tuesday, the younger Butler was picked up on the Tamiami Trail, which crosses the Everglades.
"He was out there 26 hours waiting for his father," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Peter Kostopoulos. "He finally gave up. He got so dejected."

Prison inmates fight disasters

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) - When entertainer Barbra Streisand's exclusive Malibu Colony home was ravaged by storms last month, prison inmates quickly surrounded it.
They weren't looting the place, just piling sandbags to protect it and other nearby celebrity-owned structures from further damage.
"The inmates weren't allowed inside," said Capt. Clifford Dysart of the Los Angeles County Fire Department. "They were outside sandbagging the houses."
And this summer, when fires burned thousands of acres throughout Southern California, inmates helped cut the fire lines.
About 2,500 of the state's 37,000 prisoners serve as emergency crews in disasters. And while other states use prisoners for community projects, California has the most extensive program using inmates to fight calamities, said Hardy Rauch of the American Correctional Association.
The work is tough and can be risky.
"It is the most difficult part of firefighting," said Howard O'Brien, the California Department of Forestry's coordinator of the conservation camp program, referring to cutting fire lines.

"It's usually the steepest terrain that bulldozers can't navigate."
The state has 32 camps, 29 in rural areas separate from prison institutions, and 60 women inmates were included in the program this summer, said Phil Guthrie of the California Department of Corrections. Rainbow Camp in San Diego County, currently used for men, will be occupied by women in October, he said.
During the day, the inmates are assigned to the California Department of Forestry or the Los Angeles County Fire Department. At night, the CDC resumes responsibility.
"The only inmates we don't take are arsonists, naturally, and sex offenders," said Lt. Bill Dieball, who heads the Prado Conservation Camp located next to the California Institution for Men at Chino. The sex offenders ban "basically has to do with the community and the fact that they work essentially without supervision."

Billy Fonville, 37, of Bakersfield, was convicted of first-degree murder when he was 24. He spent time in San Quentin, Soledad and Folsom prisons before moving to Francisquito Conservation Camp near Saugus and then Prado, where he is awaiting parole in September.
"You really can't compare (camps to prisons)," said Fonville.
"There's a lot of violence inside the institutions," he said. "Everybody gets along (at Prado) exceptionally well. Soledad has a lot of riots. Here, there are none."
The camp's best feature is "just being able to walk outside, to walk around the grounds," Fonville said. "To me it's kind of an orientation to the streets. You can go to an officer here. Here you're treated like a human being inside, you're not."
While inmates live in a dorm instead of a small cell, the public has emergency crews on call 24 hours a day. They clean parks and clear fire breaks when there are no emergencies.

Reagan administration cheered by success of Lebanese army

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration is encouraged by the Lebanese army's apparent success in routing Moslem leftists from west Beirut and is voicing confidence that President Amin Gemayel can rapidly extend the army's control to nearby mountain areas.
State Department officials said Wednesday the next big test will be in the Chouf mountains. The Israelis have said they will withdraw their forces no later than Sept. 7, regardless of whether the Lebanese army is ready to move in.
While one official said he thinks the army can take control, he cautioned that "it is one thing to fight in the streets of Beirut, but it's a different matter in the mountains where the opposing forces are dug in with heavy weapons."
Gemayel is trying to forge an agreement between Moslem and Christian elements for safe passage to the mountains by the Lebanese army when the Israelis leave. He needs the approval of the Druze and its leader, Walid Jaballat. The Druze is a Moslem sect whose militia controls much of the area and is suspicious of the Christian-dominated Lebanese army.

The State Department official, who insisted on anonymity, said Gemayel is seeking a "national reconciliation" that could involve a redistribution of power-sharing in the Lebanese government in order to get the support of Moslem groups.
"It is a question of how much Gemayel will have to give to get them all to sit down," he said. "For the time being, an agreement could emerge that will set rules for the army's behavior and movements in the Chouf, with a promise for follow-up meetings on power-sharing."
Secretary of State George Shultz told a news conference Wednesday that the United States "firmly supports" Gemayel's latest efforts.
"We intend to help President Gemayel in his new initiative in every way possible, through our own efforts and through cooperation with our partners in the multinational force - France, Italy and Great Britain," he said.

The secretary said there are not any plans to increase the size or peacekeeping role of the 1,200-member Marine contingent in Beirut, but that there might be an expanded role as part of a general withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon.
Shultz also said Wednesday he doesn't believe U.S. Marines have been singled out as targets in Lebanon, although messages have been intercepted saying, "shoot at the Marines."
The Reagan administration has refused to declare a hostile situation in the Lebanese capital under the War Powers Act of 1973. Such a declaration would require President Reagan to withdraw the Marines within 60 to 90 days unless Congress authorizes them to remain in Beirut or declares war.
Shultz said Congress has been kept informed on a periodic basis about the role of the Marines, and that consultations will continue. "The War Powers Act is being complied with," he said.

DPS predicts 51 traffic deaths in Texas over Labor Day weekend

The Texas Department of Public Safety said the July 4 weekend was the most deadly recorded in the past decade and hopes history won't repeat itself this Labor Day weekend.
Fifty-five people were killed during the Fourth of July weekend this year and some who were seriously injured will probably die before the year is over, Colonel Jim Adams DPS director said.
The Texas DPS predicts as many as 51 people will lose their lives, unless people drive safely.
Adams recommends people stay sober, keep their speed down and wear seat belts.
"During the the 1982 Labor Day weekend, 27 people were killed in accidents where drunk driving or speed was a contributing factor. This represented close to half of all fatalities which occurred last year," said Adams.

Children should be taught to use safety belts from the beginning by the use of child safety seats, said George R. Gustafson, executive vice president of the Texas Safety Association.
In June, Governor Mark White proclaimed the summer of 1983 as "Make It Click-Drive Defensively Months" in recognition of the private and public organizations which are supporting occupant protection.
This year McDonald's corporation has joined the National Safety Council in a nationwide safety belt campaign, according to Gustafson. The Texas Safety Association and the Governor's Task force on Traffic Safety are engaged in a public service campaign to increase voluntary use of safety belts, he said.

"Safety belts worn during accidents reduce the chances of death by 60 percent, yet the majority of Texans still do not use them," Gustafson said.
"The efforts of many private and public sector organizations can make citizens aware of the need to use their safety belts and child safety seats. In the final analysis, however, the individual motorist or caretaker of a young child must choose to buckle up," he said.

Witnesses tell of water torture

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston man testifying in a federal civil rights case against a former Texas sheriff and three of his deputies says he was forced to endure three water torture treatments during which he falsely confessed to burglaries.

Two other men, including a former deputy, said they witnessed those or similar incidents.

The disclosures came Wednesday in the first day of testimony in the trial of former San Jacinto County Sheriff James C. "Humpty" Parker, Parker, along with John Glover, Carl Lee and Floyd Baker, are accused of violating jail inmates' civil rights and with depriving people of liberty without due process of law.

Vernell Harkless, a bulldozer operator in Houston, demonstrated to the jury of seven men and six women in U.S. District Judge James DeAnda's court how he was handcuffed to a chair, had a towel tied around his head and then had water poured into the towel so he couldn't breathe.

"When you're going to tell the truth — kick," Harkless said he was told. "I was frightened the whole time. I struggled. I kicked for them."

"I talked and signed something. I thought I was going to be strangled to death."

Harkless, the first of several torture victims the government says it will present, said authorities accused him of being the leader of a burglary ring. He subsequently served two years in the San Jacinto County jail where he said he "got along with them well after that."

Harkless had great difficulty under cross examination recalling names and dates. But he insisted Parker was present at two of the torture sessions and Glover participated in all three.

Bertrand Moser, Glover's attorney, noted that Harkless denied during sentencing in 1976 that he had been coerced or threatened into pleading guilty on the burglary charges.

Vernon Perry, who acknowledged Wednesday he was guilty of burglary and is on 10 years' probation for the conviction, said he watched as Harkless and another man, Robert

Jackson, underwent the torture "three or four times."

"He was gasping for air," Perry said. "He couldn't breathe. I was scared. I thought I'd be next." Parker, he said, was giving the orders. Glover poured the water and eventually hit Harkless with a blackjack, Perry said.

Perry said that at his sentencing, it didn't occur to him to tell the judge what happened to Jackson and Harkless.

Former deputy Gregory Magee, the prosecution's first witness, said he saw water torture applied to at least three prisoners as authorities tried to elicit confessions.

"It was shocking," Magee said. "It scared me. I really don't have any words to describe it."

Magee, who left the department about a year ago, said he told no other law enforcement agency of the incidents although he did discuss them with Glover.

"He said it wasn't necessarily the right thing but at the time we just had to go along," Magee said.

The government says as many as 15 people may have undergone the water treatments from 1976 to 1982.

Parker resigned his post and pleaded guilty to similar charges in March. But the plea was withdrawn after a federal judge ruled a plea bargaining agreement resulted in too lenient a sentence.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Scott Woodward, in his opening statement Wednesday, told the jury the government would prove its "rather simple case" with "convincing clarity."

Roy Beene, Lee's attorney, described the victims as "burglars trying to get out of the penitentiary."

The civil rights violation carries a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Each of the other five counts, all alleging deprivation of liberty without due process of law, carry maximum penalties of a year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Parker's withdrawn guilty plea — which would have sent him to a minimum security prison for three years, placed him on five years' probation and fined him $15,000 — cannot be used against him in court, Woodward said.

Dead cattle: drought victims

Cattle located on a ranch 25 miles south of Pecos near Saragosa are shown dead, apparently from the effects of a prolonged West Texas drought. Ranchers say when the feeding grass is gone, cattle turn to noxious weeds for food, some of which is fatal when ingested by animals. (AP Laserphoto)

Council expands hurricane clean-up

HOUSTON (AP) — City Council members, attempting to speed the removal of hurricane debris from Houston, revoked one of 10 contracts it awarded last week and made plans to issue 10 more.

James Scott, a 32-year-old laid-off construction worker who won seven of the 10 original contracts, protested Wednesday that the council was acting unfairly in revoking one of the pacts.

"That was my profit — $200,000," Scott shouted as council adjourned after a daylong session. Each contract pays a set amount per cubic yard of debris collected, up to a maximum of $200,000.

About 2 million cubic yards of the trash, which consists largely of downed timber, was dropped on Houston two weeks ago today by Hurricane Alicia.

The council revoked one of Scott's contracts after hearing reports from its staff members that his crews had collected no debris from the area the pact concerned.

Council re-awarded Scott's contract to the second-lowest bidder, G.M.S. Supply Co., which already held another contract.

It also approved bid specifications for 10 additional contracts, covering the same geographical areas, at $300,000 each.

Faced with charges of loose requirements in the original contract, the city added provisions for the new ones calling for a daily minimum pickup of 3,600 cubic yards in each area. The new contracts will also require all bidders to post a $10,000 bond to "demonstrate they are serious," and require the winning bidders to post performance bonds of $150,000.

Pickup in Scott's seven contract areas ranged from zero in the area where his contract was revoked to 783 cubic yards.

Welfare offered for votes

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Campaign workers for Duval County Judge Gilberto Uresti and County Commissioner Fidencio Saenz offered welfare vouchers in exchange for votes during a hotly contested primary government witnesses have testified.

Seven Duval County residents, including Saenz and Uresti's wife, Olga, are on trial in federal court on charges of conspiring to buy votes in the May 1, 1982 Democratic primary.

The other defendants are Domitilla Garza, a Benavides school board member; Rebecca Garcia, wife of Duval County Clerk Oscar Garcia; Genevieve Garcia, an employee of Duval County Welfare Department; Elvira Garza, a Uresti campaign worker; Norma Solis, also a Uresti supporter.

Uresti has not been indicted in connection with the investigation.

Manuel Arrendondo, an unemployed roughneck from Realitos, testified Wednesday that Saenz visited his home in April and offered him and his wife a welfare voucher in exchange for their vote.

Diana Leal of San Diego testified that Genevieve Garcia and Amelia Garcia, the director of the Duval County Welfare Dept., visited with her on April 15, 1982 and offered her a welfare voucher if she would support Uresti and Saenz.

Bertha Yarberry of San Diego testified that she received a welfare voucher and a six pack of beer in exchange for her vote.

Mrs. Yarberry testified that after Norma Solis left a sample ballot on her front door, Domitilla Garza told her over the telephone that if she "voted right" she would receive welfare assistance.

Mrs. Yarberry said that after riding with Mrs. Solis and Domitilla Garza to the courthouse to vote, she asked if they were going to buy her dinner for her vote.

"They took me to the store and bought me a six pack of beer," Mrs. Yarberry said.

President of NFO calls on ranchers to sell-off cattle

DENVER (AP) — The president of the Iowa-based National Farmers Organization wants dairy farmers to fight low prices by selling their cows this fall through the group's marketing department.

DeVon Woodland told reporters cow-calf producers "are on the verge of the most severe financial crisis in many years, if not in history."

Selling livestock through a coordinated marketing scheme this fall would help by reducing herds and cutting milk production in an industry troubled by overproduction, he said.

Woodland held a news conference Tuesday to promote the NFO annual convention, which is scheduled for Nov. 29 through Dec. 1 in Denver. It will be the first time the Corning, Iowa-based group has held its convention in a Western state.

"Next week, we will initiate a dairy cow sell-off," said Woodland, who farms and ranches near Blackfoot, Idaho.

Woodland said the NFO wants to start the dairy sell-off now in hopes of beating the beef cattle to market. Beef cattle normally are marketed in greatest numbers during the fall months.

"We figure it probably will be a month before beef cows come off the range," he said. "We think the beef are coming, regardless. What we're saying is, 'Let's organize the slaughter.'"

The National Cattlemen's Association, based in Denver, has urged dairy farmers to delay their herd reductions until after the first of the year to avoid a glut on the market.

During the news conference, Woodland charged that Agriculture Secretary John Block "has lost touch with those who till the soil" by promoting a farm policy that is forcing people out of business.

He claimed Block has accepted the view that "a certain number of farmers have to go broke." Woodland said Block should be advocating policies that help keep owner-operators in business, but did not offer specific ideas.

A spokesman for Block in Washington, D.C., denied the agriculture secretary is ignoring small owner-operators.

"Agriculture is like any other profession," said Gene Hemphill. "For a variety of reasons, some people go out of business. We want to keep that at a minimum and definitely want to make sure responsible, conservative people who face problems not of their own making have a decent chance to stay in business."

Report says consumer advocate top choice for PUC commissioner

AUSTIN (AP) — Consumer advocate Jim Boyle, who lobbied hard in the early 1970s for creation of the Public Utility Commission, appears to be Gov. Mark White's choice to represent consumers before the PUC, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today.

Texas House and Senate sources said they had been informed that Boyle, legislative director of the Texas Consumer Association, would get the job as public counsel, which was created this year by the Legislature, the newspaper reported.

White was expected to announce his choice at a news conference today.

Boyle confirmed that White had interviewed him for the $7,500-a-year post Monday, but declined to say whether he expected to be appointed, the Star-Telegram reported.

"I am not going to know anything until the governor calls me," Boyle said Wednesday.

"Our conversation was very general, but certainly the governor is very concerned that rates be kept as low as possible and any fat remaining in utility rate increases be removed," Boyle said.

Boyle said he had informed White that his father-in-law, Ken Hincley, is an executive with Houston Lighting & Power.

"He works in management. But I don't know what his functions are," Boyle said. Asked if that might influence his actions, Boyle replied, "Not at all. I believe I am a professional."

An H&LP spokesman told the Star-Telegram that Hincley is group vice president of external affairs, which includes lobbying, public affairs and customer relations.

During the past legislative session, Boyle supported White's unsuccessful effort to make the PUC an elected panel and a successful move to create the public counsel's office.

"For the first time, ratepayers will have representation where they can go toe to toe with the utility industry," Boyle said. "I believe that kind of atmosphere will provide better and fairer results for consumers."

Boyle, an attorney, helped create the Texas Coalition for Utility Regulation, which pressured the 1975 Legislature to create the PUC.

Recently, Boyle announced as a candidate for the state Senate seat that Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, is giving up to run for the U.S. Senate.

Lithograph stolen

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Toulouse-Lautrec lithograph valued at about $25,000 has been stolen from the McNay Art Museum by thieves who replaced it with a note reading, "Temporarily removed from exhibit," authorities said.

The print by the French artist, entitled "Marcelle Lender, En Buste," probably was stolen late Tuesday afternoon, police said. The theft was not discovered until Wednesday.

The 9-inch-by-12-inch lithograph was on indefinite loan from anonymous lenders and was insured, according to museum curator Norris Ferguson.

"(The owners) are not real happy about it," he said, "but they understand that museums are vulnerable to theft."

Pep rallies limited

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas Education Agency official has ruled schools may allow a "non-instructional activity" — including pep rallies for athletic events — to cut into class time one day each month.

The Wednesday ruling from Yvonne Katz, the agency's director of accreditation, came the week of the state's first high school football games.

"We've got to get back to instructional time, time on task," Ms. Katz said.

Carol Ritter, a trustee of the Pearland Independent School District, asked Ms. Katz for the opinion as a clarification of an earlier ruling by Richard L. Arnett, the TEA's deputy commissioner for legal services.

Arnett told the district in May that schools could only hold such events "one day per month."

Ms. Ritter said she asked for the ruling because she believed Pearland school officials would bunch the allowable days — one for each of the 10-month school year — and use them for football pep rallies.

What farm kids knew in 1911

Too often today we equate effectiveness with dollars, especially in education.

The record of the past 20 years counters this conventional wisdom. Since 1965, per pupil expenditures in public schools have doubled in real terms, but SAT scores have dropped 100 points. One explanation for the falling scores could be that public schools expect, and are demanding, less from students.

Seventy years ago, when many American students were taught on a shoestring in one-room country school houses, they were expected to learn facts that today would stump most adults. A recent letter writer to the Wall Street Journal listed the questions he was expected to answer before he could be graduated from elementary school into high school (he saved the test.) The year was 1911.

A sample of the questions:

In what state and on what waters are the following: Chicago, Duluth, Cleveland and Buffalo? State an important fact about each.

Name and locate two countries in which the following are important products: wheat, cotton, wool, coffee.

Write on the Panama Canal, telling who is building it, its location and importance.

What causes the change from day to night, and from summer to winter?

Name five republics, three limited monarchies, and one absolute monarchy.

Write a sentence with its verb in the active voice; change to passive voice.

What is meant by inflection? What parts of speech are inflected?

Write a model business letter of not more than 40 words.

A wagon is 10 feet long, three feet wide and 28 inches deep; how many bushels of wheat will it hold?

A rope 500 feet long is stretched from the top of a tower and reaches the ground 300 feet from the base of the tower; how high is the tower?

Give the structure of a muscle and of the spinal chord.

What do you think the author of "Enoch Arden" aims to teach us?

What kind of a man was Shylock?

That would be a difficult test today for any well-informed 45-year-old. It would mentally paralyze a typical American teen-ager. Yet, that is what a country school expected its eighth-graders to know in 1911. And, adds the letter writer, "When I took this examination there was no attempt to pass a pupil so he could keep up with his peers." In my days as a college student, I never heard of any institution of higher education giving remedial reading and remedial mathematics.

A serious defect of U.S. education today, particularly public education, is that little is demanded of students. Rigorous drilling of facts has been replaced with attention to the child's emotional well-being. Testing and grade advancement based on achievement have been largely abandoned. Nationwide only a small percentage of secondary and elementary student fail to pass into the next grade. Yet, the National Commission this spring that 13 percent are passing from high school into adult life as functional illiterates.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Sept. 1, the 244th day of 1983. There are 121 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Sept. 1, 1945, World War II officially ended when the Japanese surrendered aboard the battleship USS Missouri.

Spruce up that typist!

By ART BUCHWALD

The recent lawsuit concerning former Kansas City anchorwoman Christine Craft, who was demoted because her bosses allegedly didn't like the way she looked on television, points out once again the problem of delivering the news to people by TV as opposed to newspapers.

Miss Craft maintained the TV consultants hired by the station decided that the audiences wanted a woman who was more attractive and gave them "warmth and comfort" with their headlines. The station executives said it wasn't a case of looks, but ratings, that made them decide to demote her. Miss Craft sued for sexual discrimination and won $500,000.

I'm proud to say this could have never happened in the newspaper business, because if the consultants who work for TV companies had anything to say about our looks, 95 percent of us would be out of jobs.

I can just see a media consultant going through the city room of an American newspaper.

He says to the publisher who is escorting him, "Who wrote the lead story on President Reagan this morning?"

"Susanna West. She's sitting over there. Susanna is our best reporter and won the Pulitzer Prize for her series on hunger in America last year."

"She's going to have to get a new hairdo."

"Why is that?"

"The public doesn't like to read front-page stories written by a woman whose hair isn't perfectly coiffed."

"You tell her. I'm not about to," the publisher says.

"Miss West, you wrote a very good story this morning."

"Who the hell are you?"

"I'm a media consultant and I've been hired to up circulation. Have you ever thought about wearing something a little more sexy than a turtle-neck sweater and a tweed skirt?"

"Get lost, buster. I have a deadline."

"Please don't take it personally, but don't you think you're a little too old to be a newspaperwoman?"

"I'm 24."

Learning the lessons of Vietnam

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Time and again in the debate over communist Nicaragua there is talk of "the lessons of Vietnam." What are those lessons?

They are sharply etched on my mind.

In 1965, I arrived at Da Nang, South Vietnam, to serve for a short time as a correspondent attached to the Marine Corps' 365th helicopter squadron - the first Marine air unit in the country. For something over a week, I flew with the squadron on its mission to mountain outposts on the Laotian border and to the vicinity of the old capital of Hue, where small-scale battles were in progress.

Every time the helicopters took off from Da Nang and the other take-off points, they came under fire from the Viet Cong who posed as peasants in the ricefields. Under the rules of engagement established by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Marine gunners could not fire until fired upon. I inquired of the squadron commander, Lt. Col. Joe Kohler, why the helicopters weren't equipped with rockets. He told me that Washington forbade the use of such weapons. They were considered "provocative."

Therein is a lesson of the war in Vietnam. American forces, engaged in deadly combat with communists, had to fight with one hand tied behind their back. As U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond said at the time, the U.S. was fighting a no-win war. Weak-willed leaders denied American armed forces the right to go out and win the war. The U.S. had the means to do so. For example, the U.S. could have bombed the dikes of the Red River, flooded North Vietnam, and crippled it. North Vietnam's vital port of Haiphong could have been mined and closed early in the war. Again, there wasn't sufficient intestinal fortitude in Washington. The result of a weakness of will was the loss of South Vietnam to communist aggressors. Other results include the communist concentration camps in former South Vietnam, the boat people, and the appalling holocaust in Cambodia.

Today, President Reagan evidences the will to prevent the expansion of the communist beachhead in Central America. The liberal-dominated House of Representatives is insistent on an appeasement policy that would allow the Nicaraguan surrogate of Cuba and the Soviet Union to conduct a revolutionary war without frontiers that threatens to bring the entire region within the communist orbit. Unless the Nicaraguan communist regime is brought down, one can be sure that within a few years one Central American country after another will be subverted, the anti-communist leaders in those countries will be imprisoned in "reeducation" camps, and Soviet warships will operate out of Central American ports. Then, the peril to the U.S. will be very direct.

When nations lack vision, they perish. The liberals-in-the-House of Representatives are doing the work of forces that seek the weakening and humiliation of the U.S. These forces accomplished their goal in Vietnam. Their success in Central America would be much more ominous for the people of the U.S. We need to keep in mind the principal lesson of Vietnam: a lack of resolution and firmness leads to disaster.

New ideas in health centers

By OSCAR COOLEY

When you hear someone say, "There are too many doctors in this state," you may safely guess it is a doctor, or someone who dispenses the means to health in some form or other. He is simply protesting against the amount of competition he has.

Competition is a result of freedom. When people are free as they are in the U.S., they tend to choose an occupation which is in demand (and which they are able to do and enjoy doing). People compete freely on every Main Street in America, and we laud free competition as a breeder of excellence.

But competition makes people hustle, and we get tired of hustling. Then we complain about the competition, and we cry out for relief. "There oughta be a law!" we say.

Admittedly, we cannot have both freedom and a law denying freedom. So we calm down and conclude, "Well, there is too much competition." But how much is "too much?"

Health is an area in which people always want more. One can get all the housing he wants and all the food he wants, but seldom all the health he wants. So the services of doctors are in great demand. There seems to be little danger of overproduction in this area. However, the technology of medicine is difficult, and this tends to limit the number of doctors. Hospitals, too, are expensive to build and equip, and this limits the availability of hospitals.

In recent years, doctors have developed a new institution which is somewhere between a doctor's office and a hospital emergency room. It is called a Freestanding Emergency Center, or urgent care center. It can give immediate treatment to people who have been severely hurt or are quite sick and need more treatment than is available at a doctor's office but scarcely need to go to a hospital emergency room. It has more equipment than the individual doctor but less than a hospital. Normally, it offers X-rays, lab work, and minor surgery. It is open 24 hours a day.

Dr. Burton Kleinman, who has pioneered such centers in Cincinnati, says they are equipped to care for about 85 percent of the patients who have been going to hospital emergency rooms. And they cost the patient about 40 percent less.

It is not surprising that an estimated 1,000 such centers have sprung up throughout the U.S. in the last five years. Hospitals, themselves, are setting up such outlying urgent-care centers.

A development so extraordinary as this is bound to arouse questions: how good are the urgent care centers? Being new, are they required by law to measure up to certain standards as to equipment, personnel, etc.? If they can render the same service for 40 percent less than the hospitals, does it mean the latter are overcharging? As a result of this new competition, are hospital rates coming down?

The states, you may be sure, will not allow the new centers to go unregulated. In Ohio, Gov. Richard Celeste on July 21 issued an order that before an urgent care center can be built it must get a "certificate of need" from the state health department. Governors tend to ignore the regulatory power of competition. State regulation will add unnecessary legal costs to the establishment of urgent care centers, in the belief of James Hammer, president of a chain of such centers in Cleveland.

Doctors are best qualified to judge such institutions. In this as in most health matters, people will do well to "consult their family physician."

Berry's World

"Newspaper readers prefer to read stories by younger, more attractive reporters."

"If this is a gag, you got me at the wrong time. I'm trying to check out something with Henry Kissinger."

"Miss West, I'd prefer you not make that call until you change your make-up. Let's see if we can get those wrinkles out from under your eyes before you speak to Henry."

"Now you've done it. If you don't disappear in five seconds I'm going to dump this cup of coffee on that yukky Palm Beach suit you're wearing."

The publisher rushes up. "Hold it, Susanna, the man is only doing his job."

"Get him out of here before I drop the 1984 budget on his skull."

The publisher drags him away and the consultant says, "She doesn't seem to have the warmth it take to give the public the news about Ronald Reagan. I would replace her with someone your readers could be more comfortable with when they read about Chad. Who is that woman over there at the water cooler?"

"That's our science writer. What's wrong with her?"

"She's wearing a pantsuit. Our surveys show readers are very threatened by women reporters who wear pants."

"We gave up dress codes for women reporters years ago."

"Well, you're going to have to reinstate them if you ever hope to get your circulation up. Do you see that girl sitting at the desk over there?"

"Our film critic? What's wrong with her?"

"She's pregnant."

"But she isn't going to have a baby for four months."

"How do you think your subscribers would feel if they knew they were getting their movie reviews from a pregnant woman?"

"Look, why don't we just forget the whole thing. I'm not sure a media consultant is what this paper needs right now."

"It's your candy store. If you don't care about the way your women reporters look, don't come crying to me when your readers go somewhere else for their news."

Anniversary march

Lech Walesa, leader of the outlawed Solidarity labor movement, carries flowers to place on the union monument in the Baltic port of Gdansk Wednesday to celebrate the third anniversary of the agreement which forged the free trade union. Solidarity supporters demonstrate on the third anniversary of union

WARSAW Poland (AP) — Thousands of Solidarity supporters clashed with police in three Polish cities on the third anniversary of the outlawed labor union. It was first widespread protest since martial law was lifted last month.

Several people were reported injured in the street battles Wednesday in Gdansk, Nowa Huta and Wroclaw, but there were no firm figures. Less violent demonstrations were reported in Warsaw, Czestochowa, Lublin, Poznan, Krakow, Lesnica and Olsztyn.

Solidarity chief Lech Walesa laid a red and white bouquet at a workers' monument outside the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk where Solidarity was founded on Aug. 31, 1980. Martial law authorities outlawed the union on Oct. 8, 1982.

A police cordon stopped about 2,000 supporters from escorting Walesa to the monument.

Riot police charged about 6,000 Solidarity supporters marching through the Baltic port after Mass at the Church of St. Brysida, beating some of them and firing tear gas.

A number of marchers were arrested and several people were hurt, a police official said.

The most intense violence erupted in the southern industrial city of Nowa Huta where riot police blocked a march by about 10,000 steel workers by firing tear gas and spraying them with water cannon.

The demonstrators retaliated with stones, and police charged them with rubber batons in a street fight lasting more than two hours.

Western witnesses said at least 20 people were injured and many arrested, but official figures were not available.

In the southwestern city of Wroclaw, police turned back a crowd of 5,000 Solidarity backers trying to march to a union plaque at the main streetcar depot.

The demonstrators then tried to gather at the grave of a worker killed during a protest a year ago.

More than 1,000 steel and automobile factory workers marched without hassles from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. in Warsaw, but later police forced a crowd of 5,000 marching toward the Old Town into side streets; arrested several leaders.

Hundreds of riot police were concentrated in downtown Warsaw throughout the evening, keeping 200 to 300 Solidarity supporters in the Church of St. Ann for several hours. Several thousand people milled around the normally empty streets until late evening, but there were no new demonstrations.

In Poznan, central Poland, riot police turned away several hundred people chanting Solidarity slogans trying to march from a church to a union monument, official sources said.

Statistics used as smokescreen

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes things aren't at all what they seem, no matter how uncritically they are accepted or how often they are repeated.

There is nothing new in that observation, as can be attested to by almost any middle-aged person who was taught in a brief brush with high school economics that stocks fluctuate but bonds do not.

Any lingering faith in that overly simplistic view of the financial markets was, of course, dispelled in the past decade perhaps with a financial shock.

Fed up with the almost constant complaints that electric rates in its New York City market had risen and were rising at a faster clip than prices in general, Consolidated Edison this year sent a little reminder to users.

Not so, it said. While it conceded that electric bills had risen 391 percent since 1953, it reminded customers that the maximum amount deducted from their paychecks for Social Security had exploded by 4,329 percent.

When you can find percentages such as that a mere 391 percent seems small.

Unions in trouble: Looking for new members

EDITOR'S NOTE — This third part of a four-part series on the problems facing the nation's labor unions looks at their attempt to organize workers in the high-technology field.

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — The high-technology industries dotting the Silicon Valley landscape offer fertile organizing territory for a trade union movement that has suffered a greater erosion in membership than at any time since the end of World War I.

Yet, few inroads have been made by unions coveting these employees and others working in the high-tech corridors along Route 128 near Boston and at Research Triangle Park near Durham, N.C.

The labor establishment, apparently hoping to recoup its loss of members working in heavy manufacturing, is pushing for a new national reindustrialization policy. Its organizers seem frustrated in attempts to recruit high-tech workers, who are younger, more educated and unlikely to reach for a union card.

The movement laments the decay of "smokestack" industries while scoffing at the job opportunities presented by the "Information Age."

Since the recession put a hammerlock on the economy in the late summer of 1981, the AFL-CIO's membership roll has fallen by 1.2 million. Unions represent only a little more than 20 percent of the nation's nearly 90 million people on private business payrolls, down from a peak of around 35 percent after World War II.

Moreover, unions are winning fewer certification elections. In 1981, the most recent year for which the National Labor Relations Board has complete figures, unions won only 43.1 percent of some 7,512 government-supervised elections. That compares to a 94.3 percent success rate in 1938, for example.

Despite the drop in union membership, there evidently has been little coordinated targeting by unions to sign up members in the high-technology area, although in the Houston area the AFL-CIO has set up an elaborate joint organizing campaign involving nearly 30 unions.

For one thing, the AFL-CIO continues to devote much of its attention to the old-line industries which have been ravaged by international competition and the long recession of 1981-82.

In "The Future of Work," a 1980 employment prospectus released recently by the federation's Committee on the Evolution of Work, the AFL-CIO laments that "... high technology is an oversold promise to a nation suffering serious declines in basic industries like steel, auto and chemicals."

The American Electronics Association, whose headquarters are close to the Stanford University campus here, concluded in a September 1982 report that organizers weren't making much headway in attempts to sign up employees of the association's 1,900 member companies.

From 1977 to 1982, the report said, management won over unions in 30 of 37 government-supervised elections. And it said that through September 1982, there were only 90 union contracts scattered among the AEA's more than 1,900 members. Union officials did not dispute those figures.

In the report, "The Trade Union Interface," the association reminded its members that "unions may have much egg on the face in the quest for high-technology industries, but they have not eased up... Clearly, management should continue in its efforts to keep communications channels open to employees and to ensure that policies and procedures are in tune with the times."

Peter Cervantes Gauche of the AFL-CIO's Santa Clara Central Labor Council said electronics industry management had given unions an organizing issue.

"Prospects for organizing are good and they're going to get better," he said. "Remember, the auto industry was still a new industry in the 1920s. This (high-tech organizing) is going to be a matter of evolution."

"Until recently," Gauche added, "for a worker in the electronics industry, if he didn't like it where he was, he could walk across the street and get another, better deal. Now, the marketplace in high-tech (employment) is virtually saturated. The competition between the companies is fierce. They're looking to cut costs, and we've seen a lot of layoffs."

Typifying the frustration of unions to sign up workers in high-technology is the ill-starred campaign among some 450 production workers at Atari Inc. by Local 1621 of the Glaziers and Glass Workers Union in San Jose. Atari makes video games and home computers.

In late July, the union withdrew a petition to the National Labor Relations Board's regional office in Oakland for a certification election at Atari's plant in Milpitas, Calif.

The union had become embroiled in a dispute over whether it had met a requirement that it obtain sign-up cards from 30 percent of the targeted workers. It was the second time the Glaziers and Glass Workers had failed in an attempt to win a representation election.

Behind the failure was the union's inability to persuade enough workers to sign cards requesting an election.

A recent survey of AFL-CIO local union staff officials and activists showed that organizing labor is uncertain about the timing of sign-up campaigns in periods of high unemployment and plant closings.

When asked this spring, "Is union organizing now significantly more difficult than it was last year?" 77 respondents said "yes" and only 15 said "no." Only 48 percent said their unions had stepped up organizing attempts in the past year, while 44 percent said they had not.

In the face of this uphill battle to sign new workers, some unions are softening their traditional opposition to cooperative, rather than a confrontational, strategies in industries where organized labor still represents much of the workforce.

Railroad signal phone system begun by state

AUSTIN (AP) — Beginning Thursday, Sept. 1, Texas motorists will be asked to sound an alert when they find a railroad crossing signal malfunctioning.

Under provisions of a new state law, a toll free telephone number is available to report any railroad signal problems. Department of Public Safety Director Jim Adams said the program is a cooperative effort by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation, the state's railroad systems and the DPS.

"When a railroad signal is reported to us by the public to be malfunctioning, we will then notify the proper railroad authorities who are responsible for making the necessary repairs," Adams said. "This should help expedite the correction of the problem and provide better service to the public."

The new legislative bill requires the state highway department to place signs on about 1,700 railroad signals giving the toll-free number — 1-800-772-7677.

Remote islands are attracting tourists

By KERIN HOPE
Associated Press Writer

GAVDOS, Greece (AP) — Getting to this remote island, the southernmost in Europe, recalls the pioneer days of tourism in Greece when travelers depended on the winds and the whim of a fishing boat captain.

Twice a week in summer, determined tourists line up at dawn on the quay at Paleochora, a sleepy resort in southern Crete, hoping to sail to Gavdos.

It costs 476 drachmas ($5.60) for the four-hour trip aboard the caique, a traditional Greek fishing boat. The passengers are wedged on deck among crates of beer and soft drinks, supplies of bread and fresh vegetables and often a few goats or sheep.

"We get about 1,000 tourists a year, depending on the weather and how many people the caique crew are willing to carry," said George Tsigonakis, the island community's president.

Arid and windswept, Gavdos lies 20 miles south of Crete in the Libyan Sea. It is about 5 miles long and shaped like a triangle.

Eighty inhabitants, mostly elderly, live in four semi-deserted villages strung across the island. Since World War II, the majority of Gavdosians have left for Crete, or emigrated to the United States and Australia.

In winter and spring the island may be cut off for weeks. There is no electricity and only one spring on Gavdos. Islanders collect winter rainwater in cisterns and drink mineral water shipped in from Crete.

The islanders say Gavdos was once the home of Calypso, the beautiful sorceress of Greek legend who bewitched Odysseus on his way home from the Trojan war.

Located on the ancient Roman sailing route to the Holy Land, Gavdos is mentioned in the Acts of the Apostles. Later it was notorious as a pirates' lair and more recently as place of exile for Greek Communists and criminals.

Sheep and silky-haired goats roam all over the island, which is covered with bushy pine and juniper trees.

Offensive Punch

Senior signal caller Elson Rice (right) and junior fullback Bill Billingsley hope to give the McLean Tigers more offensive punch this season. The Tigers scored only four TDs last season, so the two backfield starters will try and put more points on the scoreboard in 1983. McLean opens the season tonight at Whiteface in a non-district game. In U.S. Open

Sweden's Wilander wins first match

NEW YORK (AP) — Mats Wilander, in the final tournament tuneup before the United States Open, beat two tennis giants, John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl.

But if you listen to the talented 19-year-old from Sweden, his success in the ATP Tournament at Cinx; weeks ago hardly guarantees him the same thing in the Open at Flushing Meadow.

Wilander got off to a promising start Wednesday, recovering after dropping the first set to defeat Frenchman Guy Forget 3-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-2.

Lendl, the icy-looking Czech, joined him in the second round with a 6-2, 6-0, 6-2 destruction of Florin Segarceanu.

In other important matches, defending champion Chris Evert Lloyd, seeded second, shot past Shelly Walpole 6-1, 6-0; No. 5 Pam Shriver eliminated Laura DuPont 6-0, 6-3, and French Open king Yannick Noah, No. 4, defeated Scott Davis 6-1, 3-6, 7-6, 6-4 in a rain-interrupted event.

The rain forced postponement of top-seeded Martina Navratilova's first match against Emise Rapponi Longo. It was rescheduled for today.

Wilander and Lendl both joined McEnroe in the tournament's second round but while the Czech, a finalist here last year, has championship aspirations, the teen-ager from Sweden has less lofty goals.

"I do not expect to win this tournament," Wilander said. "I'm glad I won the first round."

The problem for Wilander is the surface. He prefers clay and the courts at the National Tennis Center are composed of DecoTurf, a rubberized asphalt. Yet, it's the same footing he played on — and won on — at Cincinnati.

Lloyd, opening the defense of her title, lost the first Walpole and then swept the next 12, finishing the match in 52 minutes.

"She played very well in the beginning of the first set," said Lloyd. "I'm not the greatest starter, anyway. I had never seen her play and she's out there loose, without pressure."

But Lloyd soon took control. "Basically," she said, "she had nothing to hurt me with."

Lloyd said she enjoys playing the Open, a tournament she's won six times.

Noah, who sat out a 42-day suspension following the French Open and has been slowed by a knee injury, got a good workout against Davis. But he felt the effects of the layoff.

"You're not match tough," he said. "You need confidence from playing. My practice was not very impressive, but my play during the match surprised me. I moved much better than I thought I would."

Like Wilander, Noah doesn't think of himself as a title threat in this tournament.

"I'm not ready either," he said. "I feel like Mats. He probably doesn't want the pressure on him yet. Everyone is waiting for him in the semis or the quarters. It will be very tough."

Shriver, who knocked Navratilova out of this tournament a year ago, needed just 43 minutes to finish off DuPont.

In other matches involving seeded women, No. 9 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary defeated Jill Davis, 6-3, 7-6; No. 10 Zina Garrison defeated Leigh Thompson, 7-5, 6-1; No. 11 Barbara Potter defeated Beth Norton, 6-1, 6-2.

Ellis reconsiders, will return to defend Top Of Texas title

Richard Ellis, four-time defending champion, will be playing in the Top of Texas Golf Tournament after all.

Ellis of Plano and a Pampa native, will be among the 217-man field that tees off at 8 a.m. Saturday at the Pampa Country Club course.

"We had a player drop out (Clifford Pierce) and Richard was talked into playing," said Pampa Country Club pro Hart Warren. "This is one of the biggest fields we'd had in 20 years."

The championship flight tees off at 12:30 Saturday and Sunday with 18 holes being played each day. The 36-hole finals are Monday in all flights. The championship flight tees off first at 8 a.m.

"This championship flight is one of the fastest fields ever," Warren said. "The competition is going to be very tight among the top ten players."

Adam Kase, a Texas Tech

golfer, returns to challenge Ellis again for the title. Kase lost out to Ellis in a two-hole sudden death playoff last year.

Mike Stewart also returns, leading a six-player contingent from Cameron University which won the NATA Tournament last year. Stewart finished third a year ago.

Others expected to challenge Ellis are John Goodwin, this year's Amarillo City Champion, Bob Giese, a two-time winner of the Tri-State Seniors Tournament; Greg Turner, a second-team All-American from Oklahoma University; Randy Wiley and Andy Anderson, both of Texas A & M, and Harold Friga, Pampa. Friga finished fifth last year. Anderson led Berger High to district and regional tournament titles last year.

Wheeler has size, experience this year

The Wheeler Mustangs may be lacking a running attack going into the 1983 season, but their line should be just a little less solid than a concrete wall.

Manson Porter, a 200-pound all-state pick last season, returns at the tackle spot on offense and defense. Lance Reams, a 225-pounder, will be at the other tackle, while Wade Bentley, at 180, will start at guard.

There's good size from one end of the line to the other.

Bill Watson, 185, and Gary Ivey, 175, both seniors will be battling it out for the center position. Then there's Ronnie Jones, 175, at tight end, guards Don Magee and Ted Moore, both 170, and tackles Lyndol Loyd, 175, and Kirk King, 170.

A pair of big sophomores, Ed Ellison, at 190, and Rodney Bond, at 190, could fit into coach Preston Smith's plans.

Steven Snapp, a 160-pound junior is expected to start at quarterback. Senior tailback Wayne Benefield, 170, and junior fullback Darren Grimes, will be counted on to pick up vital yardage.

Wheeler finished with a 6-2-2 mark last season and 5-1-1, in District 1-1A play. Follett and Booker tied for first with 6-1 records, but the Mustangs may not allow that to happen this season.

With six starters on offense and six starters on defense returning, the Mustangs should make a strong charge

Houston meets Rice tonight in Southwest Conference game

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University football coach Ray Albarn has been collecting the barbs and feeding them to his team.

"Some guy called the other day and said we were pretty good for a flag football team," said Albarn, whose Owls open the season against crosstown rival Houston tonight with a 12-game losing streak, second longest in the nation. "I don't need that garbage."

Albarn records all the slights directed toward his team, however, and makes certain they hear all of them.

"Somebody on a radio talk show said the (Houston) Oilers defense couldn't stop Rice and the show host said 'don't put them that low,'" Albarn said, his usual good cheer wearing thin. "I hope the players hear all of it and get their bellies full of it."

Rice's 12-game string, which started in the final game of the 1981 season with a loss to the Cougars, is second only to the 13-game streak set by Kent State.

Houston finished with a disappointing 5-5-1 record last year, and will also be trying to erase some bad memories from the 1982 season.

The Cougars defeated the Owls 28-21 to close out last season but they were beaten by Texas, Southern Methodist and Arkansas, the top three teams in the SWC, by a combined score of 108-17 that included a 50-0 shutout by the Longhorns.

The two teams agreed to play on Thursday to allow Houston to face SMU Nov. 26 in the Mirage Bowl in Tokyo.

"It sounded like a good idea at the time but the closer to game time the worse it sounds," Albarn said. "We've both got some question marks but we should have some answers by about 11 o'clock Thursday night."

Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said the early start was good and bad.

"The good part is it gets the kids very serious early," Houston Coach Bill Yeoman said. "But the bad part is that you want to get off to a good start in the season and it's too serious too early."

Lionel Wilson will start at quarterback for the Cougars and a talented group of receivers could mean trouble for Rice's secondary.

Wilson threw 13 interceptions last season, a statistic Yeoman says must improve this season.

"Let's face it, if the quarterback asserts himself, it's going to be a lot more fun for the coach on the sidelines," Yeoman said. "Yeah, he'll make a big difference if he comes through."

Albarn expects a heavy passing attack.

"He's (Yeoman) talked a lot about his receivers and rightly so, so we've got to accept the fact that they are going to be throwing more," Albarn said.

Phillip Money will start at quarterback ahead of Doug Johnson, who was the starter going into two-a-days.

"Phillip has been throwing the ball a little better so we'll start him," Albarn said. "But Doug has started to improve. We'll start with Phillip but Doug will be ready."

Pampa hosts Hereford in season grid opener

The Pampa Harvesters open the 1983 season Friday night against the Hereford Whitefaces in Harvester Stadium.

Kickoff time is 7:30 p.m. Reserved-seat tickets are still available and may be purchased at the high school athletic office.

Season ticket-holders can

Martin suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin failed for a second time in two tries this season to convince American League President Lee MacPhail that he had erred in suspending the New York Yankees manager.

Not even four lawyers, who helped Martin present his latest appeal, and the insistence of the Yankees manager that his constitutional rights were being violated could sway MacPhail, and on Wednesday he upheld the two-game suspension he imposed for remarks made about umpire Dale Ford.

Martin therefore cannot manage the Yankees when they play the Mariners in Seattle Friday and Saturday nights.

"I've appealed and I can't do anything else," Martin said Wednesday night in Oakland where the Yankees played the A's.

He said last week that he if lost the appeal, he would sue the league and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for depriving him of his right to free speech, and though his comment Wednesday night seemed to indicate there would be no suit, he declared: "It's unconstitutional to take away a man's freedom of speech."

Martin had been warned by the league earlier this season that he would be subject to suspension if he continued to publicly criticize umpires rather than make his complaints to the league.

Roy Cohn, one of Martin's lawyers at the appeals hearing, questioned the directive, saying, "It's awfully difficult if he sees a call that he thinks is a bad call, to say, 'Get me a stenographer. I want to dictate a letter to Mr. MacPhail?'"

LOOSE MARBLES

LISA PATMAN

By LISA PATMAN
There are many articles which spell the advantages of spending "quality time" with your family. These stories advocate the thought that it's not the amount of time you dedicate to family life, but rather the quality of that time which you share with family members.

I'll admit that I'm a sucker for any article of this kind, especially one which I can

Dear Abby

Busy husband finds time for everything but wife

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This June was our 15th wedding anniversary. My husband told me he was so busy that I should just go and buy myself something. (Was I supposed to buy my own card, too?)

Two days later, my boss asked me to run an errand for him on my lunch hour. I nearly rear-ended the car ahead of me when I saw my "too busy" husband getting out in front of a very nice restaurant with a woman he works with.

When I asked him about it that night, he became furious and accused me of "spying" on him. (In broad daylight on a busy street — this is "spying"?) Then he said he took her to lunch to celebrate her 10th year with the company. I can't describe my hurt.

Abby, he didn't forget our anniversary. It just wasn't important to him. Later he said he was sorry and wanted to make it up to me by hopping in the sack. He got angry when I couldn't respond. I didn't feel I was made love to — I felt used.

I'm tired of being married to this thoughtless, insensitive man. He won't change. Am I a poor sport for wanting to throw in the towel?

FED UP IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR FED UP: No. Just be sure it's what you want to do. But first give counseling a chance — it could save your marriage. If it's hopeless, then throw the towel in — and your "too busy" husband out.

DEAR ABBY: I'm only 25 years old and have been married three times. My first marriage lasted three years. My second marriage ended after only 30 days, and I am now in my third marriage to a man I do not love.

I am expecting a baby any time now, which, by the way, does not belong to the man I'm married to. Now all of a sudden the man who fathered this child (I love him dearly, Abby) wants to marry me. The problem is the man to whom I am married believes that marriage is for better or for worse, 'til death do us part. Well, I don't want to wait that long. Besides, I want better, and better for me is to get out of this marriage and marry the man I love.

What should I do, Abby? Take a fourth walk down the aisle with the man I've loved since high school, or remain trapped in a loveless marriage?

A 12-YEAR-FAN IN FLORIDA

DEAR FAN: I think you've already made your choice. A marriage usually stands a better chance when you're married to the one you love — especially when he's the father of your child.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I are both 21 and want to get married, but we can't find a minister who will marry us because neither one of us belongs to a church.

I know we could go down to the city hall and get married by a judge or a justice of the peace, but we are both Christians and want a religious ceremony.

We can't afford to join a church just yet. Can you please help us?

THELMA AND FRANK

DEAR T. AND F.: Yes. Go to the Salvation Army and tell the people there what you've told me. Every commissioned officer of the Salvation Army is an ordained Christian minister, authorized to perform marriage ceremonies that will be legal and binding in every state in the United States. Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Still Upset," warning people against carrying priceless pictures and souvenirs in their purses, prompts this letter.

I learned another lesson the hard way. I lost my key ring. On it I had attached my name, home address and telephone number, thinking if my keys were lost, the finder would return them to me. Wrong! The "finder" beat me home and cleaned me out before I was able to get them. Print this, please. It might wise up some other dummies.

interpret as saying, "Look at your family intently for 10 minutes, then lie back with your favorite book." So I decided that I needed to devote some true quality time to the care of my little parcel of marbles at home.

I found Wacko first. He was outside, lying under a creeping honeysuckle bush, pretending he was a dirt clod. "How are you, my little lamb wiggle?" I said cheerfully.

"Please, Mother, I'm really into this dirt stuff right now."

"I know, my little pigeon beak, but right now is the best time for us to really get to know each other. Tell me, what are your secret yearnings and desires, your dreams for the future of the universe?"

"I think I'll go water myself and see if I turn to mud," Wacko gurgled as he slithered further out of reach. "Why don't you go talk to my brother, your other son?"

I found Mumbles the Obstinant in an old suitcase, his head wedged between two stereo speakers. "So there you are, my little peach pit."

I chirped. "How about some quality time?" I could tell by the dazed look on his face, and the froth on his lips that he was too excited by my attentions to speak, so I continued. "Would you like to discuss the history of our planet? the solution to computer printout? how to achieve the finer things in life yet still be humble? Tell me, O speaker of few syllables, how would you like to spend our quality time today?"

"Er," mumbled Mumbles, "do you remember how many decibels you can be subjected to before you completely destroy your brain matter?"

"No," I said wisely, as I tiptoed out of the room.

I decided that Old Dad was the only one left who could really appreciate the quality-time efforts I was expending. I found him murmuring sweet nothings to his newest putter. "Greetings, my adorable avocado peel," I twittered. "How would you feel about a little quality time tonight?" "Sounds great," he answered. "What channel is it on?"

What the heck, he'll love watching "Hart to Hart." And as for me, an hour of looking at Robert Wagner isn't the worst kind of quality time I ever spent.

Quality time hits the dirt

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who completed this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

A gritty problem

K-Y Jelly recalled

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Johnson & Johnson is urging customers worldwide to return certain containers of K-Y Lubricating Jelly because of grittiness that could cause irritation, a company spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The greaseless, water-soluble lubricant is used in surgical and gynecological procedures.

Spokeswoman Jane Yates said Tuesday that the company was asking customers who have any of the jelly made between Dec. 1, 1982, and Feb. 25, 1983, to return the product for replacement or refund.

"It is not dangerous," Ms. Yates said of the "whitish, yellowish, grainy substances." She said the grains are not toxic.

However, in some cases, the grittiness could cause irritation. The texture was caused by not keeping a batch of ingredients at the proper temperature during storage, she said. More than 350,000 recall notices were sent to doctors, hospitals, sellers and nursing homes.

The containers are coded and customers call Johnson & Johnson to find out if they have an affected container. Toll-free telephone numbers are 800-526-2433, and in New Jersey, 800-352-4777.

Nice 'n white

Many women prefer the look of unpolished nails but have trouble keeping their nail tips clean and white. That's because the porous edge of the nail is susceptible to staining from nicotine, cosmetics and dirt. To prevent this, clean under the nail tips with a cotton swab dipped in hydrogen peroxide, then rinse nails thoroughly with cool water. Next, brush nails thoroughly to clean the surface, then buff. Use a manicurist's white pencil under the edge then finish off with two coats of clear polish.

Short but sweet

Actress Jane Powell knows how to dress to make the most of her just-over-five-foot frame. "I try not to wear separates in different colors," she revealed in Beauty Digest magazine. That tends to make me look shorter. I stick to clothes in one color, even wearing a turtle-neck to give the illusion of height."

Crowds drawn to Metropolitan costume display

By JUDY AGUSTI
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Queen Margherita of Italy and Comtesse Greffulhe of France may not have imagined their evening gowns would one day be displayed as works of art in an American museum, thousands of miles from home.

But some 80 years after these famous Belle Epoque women first donned the dresses, hundreds of thousands of visitors to the Metropolitan Museum of Art have viewed the restored garments with the curiosity of a Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court.

Comtesse Greffulhe's 1896 black velvet evening gown - trimmed with white satin lilies and embroidered in gold thread, sequins and pearls - was only one of the recent exhibit's attractions.

Thousands crowded the small dimly lit exhibition galleries to view the wardrobe of the wealthy, self-indulgent upper classes of the Belle Epoque era, a time extending roughly from 1890 to 1914.

The Metropolitan has estimated that an average of 500,000 people visit each costume exhibition. More than a million people visited an exhibit on Russian costumes, former museum curator Stella Blum noted.

Not only do the exhibitions provide an education for the general public, but they are a school for professional historians and designers.

Mrs. Blum, who worked as curator at the Met for over 35 years, said the museum's costume exhibitions had been known to provide "stimulus" for designers and consequently had affected modern fashions.

This year, the elegant "Gibson look" of the Belle Epoque exhibit is showing up in Parisian showrooms, she said.

Designers play an intimate role in the success of the museum exhibitions. The Belle Epoque exhibit was funded by the Pierre Cardin Management Corp. Italian costume designer Umberto Tirelli is a major private exhibitor.

And the coming year's exhibit will show French designer Yves Saint Laurent's first 25 years of creation. The exhibition, which opens the first week in December, will include garments from private and public collections both in the United States and abroad.

All the exhibitions demand international cooperation. Hundreds of experts from all over the world must work in putting together even the Metropolitan's relatively small exhibit (three galleries) to assure a believable and accurate display.

The mannequins must be designed by experts. There are subtle - but important - differences in the shapes of 18th-century ladies and the 19th-century or 20th-century ones, assistant curator Jean Druessedow stressed. Corsets, or the lack thereof, can determine completely different shapes, she noted.

For the Belle Epoque display, a sculptor from Japan's Kyoto Costume Institute developed 18th- and 19th-century mannequins for the exhibition. The Swiss company Jacques R. Schlappi Jr. will develop the 20th-century mannequins for the upcoming Saint Laurent exhibition.

Metropolitan Costume Institute officials tend to view the exhibitions as a public service, putting research as a first priority.

With a museum collection of 45,000 costumes extending over four centuries of human history, the Metropolitan Costume Institute provides "the most comprehensive collection" of costumes in the world - though not the largest, claims Mrs. Blum.

Though the institute limits access to this permanent collection, certain professionals and students are allowed into its temperature- and humidity-controlled storage areas to view it.

Judith Jerde, the Costume Institute's head conservator, supervises the preservation of damaged garments. With the institute's West German Zeiss microscope, she can take color photographs of garments to 100 times their actual size and study damage to the fabric and details of workmanship.

She sometimes makes use of a larger scanning electron microscope to determine the chemical content and probable age of a garment.

Preservation chores range from washing a long neglected garment in deionized water to using a hypodermic needle to inject dyes or preservatives into a fabric, a process still in the experimental stage.

In preservation, as in acquisition or exhibition, the international community is an important aspect.

Fall designs

This season, designers are urging women to dress up in sophisticated style. But, it's a sophistication that's understated and wonderfully sportive.

Suits, for example, are soft in structure ... or softened with sweaters. Jacket interest is high here, with blousons, cropped jackets, waiters' jackets and capelets among the ways to top off the newest suits.

In dresses, the coatdress emerges as an important look, both for day and night.

Skirts are full and long, often cut on the bias, pleated, or softly gathered, as well as slim.

Thank You!

We would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone who helped in anyway to make our Family Night at the CORONADO NURSING CENTER such a success.

A very special "THANK YOU" goes to those who baked the cakes and made ice cream.

To Odessa East for the pretty tables. To those who stayed late to help serve. To the Sextons and all who played in the band. To Betty Sloan, who heads our refreshment committee ... THANK YOU.

Officers of the Family Council.

Dealings this coming year with large commercial organizations should work out to be more fortunate for you than usual. Don't be intimidated by size.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be treated with consideration and respect today by persons with authority and influence. Whether these encounters are planned or unexpected—Virgo predictions for the year ahead are now ready. Romance, career, luck, earnings, travel and much more are discussed. Send $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are extremely favorable for advancing important objectives today. Positive tides will help sweep you to success when you put out your best.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The quality of your thinking will be vastly improved today. You should be able to arrive at ways to readjust your plans for more desirable results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have excellent qualities of leadership today, but they may not surge to the fore unless those you're involved with display their ineptitude.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Harmony and balance can be restored today in a matter which has caused discord lately. Solutions which evaded you will become evident.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep plugging if you're working on a situation which you hope will provide you with additional revenue. What you envision can be realized.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today's happenings may disprove the old adage that you can't be both lucky in love and with money at the same time. You could prove to be the exception.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's important today to spend your time productively, but it doesn't have to be so where your vocation is concerned. Labors of love will fill the bill.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a possibility you'll receive some good news today. It's likely to come through someone with whom you're on a palsy-walsy social basis.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your financial prospects look encouraging today, but don't use this as an excuse to loosen your purse strings. Keep a rein on your resources.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have the ability today to promote situations which could add to your resources or enhance your security. Use your gifts profitably.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions are rather unusual today. You could reap the same benefits in areas where you expend little effort as you do in matters where you try hard.

Tiny town is nothing like its he-man name

By BENNETT SEGAL
Odessa American

TARZAN, Texas (AP) — The name conjures up images of exciting drama, and the postmistress of this tiny West Texas community is almost apologetic in answering that no, Tarzan has no roaring lions or charging elephants.

In fact, postmistress Doris McMorries says, "Don't drive down (Texas Highway) 176 too fast, or you'll miss it."

However, that doesn't mean there's nothing in Tarzan, she insists.

"There's more than it looks like," Mrs. McMorries said. Besides its post office, the small town 50 miles northeast of Odessa boasts a convenience store, a cafe, a cotton gin, two churches, two beauty shops, a crop-spraying service, part of a cattle farm, a few houses and a few trees.

Mrs. McMorries said she does not know how many people live in Tarzan, but she said her post office serves about 500 customers in the western half of Martin County.

Every school year, she receives two to three requests a week for information on how the unincorporated town got its name, she added.

One of her favorite letters was from a boy in Stockton, Calif., who wrote:

"Tarzan went to Texas and the people tried to drown him but it didn't work. They believed he was a god and named the town Tarzan."

Texas."

The second-grader from Stockton, Calif., knew his one-paragraph essay, "How Tarzan, Texas, Got Its Name," was wrong.

"Did my story come close to what really happened?" the pupil, Mike Gray, asked in a letter addressed to the director of the "Chamber of Commerce" in Tarzan.

The letter, written three years ago, included a copy of the essay with a tree etched at the bottom.

"Please write to me and explain the real reason for your town's name," Gray asked.

The youngster got a response, but he was lucky his letter found its way through the jungles of the U.S. mail — Tarzan has no chamber of commerce.

The town was named, Mrs. McMorries said, by "the old fellow that lived here when the town was first established" — Tant Lindsay.

Lindsay, the first postmaster and storekeeper in Tarzan, gave the town its name "because he enjoyed all the Tarzan books," McMorries said.

Lindsay's 77-year-old widow, Viola, said last week she had a part in naming the town, which originally was called South Plains when it was settled in the mid-1920s.

The Lindsays first came to Tarzan in 1926, she said, and opened a general store when the town still was known as South Plains. The store no longer stands.

Mrs. Lindsay said when her husband decided in 1927 to add a post office to his store, the U.S. Postal Service said the town's name would have to be changed from South Plains. She said the post office pointed out that there already was a town near Lubbock by the same name that had a post office.

Perhaps a touch of egotism overcame Lindsay when he learned he had to change the name. Mrs. Lindsay said he first wanted to rename the town "Tant" after himself.

However, she said, postal officials rejected the idea out of concern that a Tant, Texas, would be confused with Taft, Texas, which already had a post office.

After the rejection, Mrs. Lindsay said she and her husband looked around their store one night searching for ideas for a new name.

On a shelf in the store sat a stack of Tarzan comic books her husband had collected. Lindsay said her husband sold the books long before they had any value.

"I was the one who told him, 'Put down Tarzan,'" Mrs. Lindsay said.

She told her husband that he should add Tarzan to the list of suggested names he was sending to postal authorities. The list also contained Mrs. Lindsay's first name.

Two weeks later, Lindsay received approval to call the town Tarzan — a name that 56 years later still attracts the attention of postmark collectors and students from across the Northern Hemisphere. Lindsay died in 1972 in Stanton, where the couple moved to in 1943.

Mrs. McMorries, who has worked at the post office since 1956, said she has received requests for postmarks from as far away as Greenland.

Most of the requests, she said, come from elementary school students.

The postmistress sometimes wishes she wouldn't be inundated with requests for information about the town's name, but added, "I don't mind getting them from kids."

Mrs. McMorries' mother-in-law, 81-year-old Nellie McMorries, was the town's postmistress from 1949 to 1969.

"There used to be a lot more people here," Nellie McMorries said, "but a lot of these old-timers have died out or have gone to nursing homes."

But the town will live on as long as its namesake keeps swinging through trees, fighting for a sort of crude justice — and as long as the post office stays open to answer postmark queries.

News briefs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal safety investigators have recommended immediate inspections of 150 airplanes used for commuter and executive flights for possible hydraulic or oxygen line leaks that could cause cockpit fires.

The National Transportation Safety Board on Wednesday urged the Federal Aviation Administration to require inspections of the Swearingen SA-226-TC Metro.

The recommendation resulted from the NTSB's investigation of a fire that broke out while one of the planes, owned by Scheduled Skyways Inc., was about to take off last Saturday night from Hot Springs, Ark. The plane's occupants escaped without injury. The blaze was similar to a 1982 fire in Palm Springs, Calif., involving another Swearingen SA-226 TC Metro. The aircraft is manufactured by a division of Fairchild Industries, Inc.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dee Jepsen, President editor Reagan's liaison on women's issues, will soon resign to become an unpaid aide on the staff of her husband, Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, according to a spokesman for the senator.

Names in the News

NEW YORK (AP) — Philanthropist Paul Mellon has been given a double rating among America's greatest art collectors by Connoisseur magazine, which also ranked the late actor Edward G. Robinson "way up there."

In its September issue, the magazine put Mellon, 76, at the top of its list of the 10 leading living American art collectors while he and his father and sister top the list of 101 foremost American art collectors of the 20th century.

Concerning Hollywood bad-guy Robinson, whose name appears on Connoisseur's all-time list, editor Thomas Hoving, former director of the Metropolitan Museum Art, noted that the actor sold his collection in a divorce settlement.

However, he wrote that "Edward G. ranks way up there ... a movie actor playing against the big boys in the collecting racket, he started out with some strikes against him."

Criteria considered by Connoisseur included a collector's discrimination, vision and scope.

looks "better put together" now than when she was younger.

"Let's face it, you don't wake up at 40 with your arms suddenly sagging or a drooping fanny. Bodily changes are going on all the time so when you finally hit 40, it's no big deal," she said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Farrah Fawcett broke her wrist in an off-Broadway play called "Extremities," but the play's press agent says she's determined to be back on the stage tonight.

Agent Milly Schoenbaum says the 36-year-old star broke the wrist in two places Tuesday night during a scene in which she takes a fall. "She had taken the same fall at every performance of the play," Ms. Schoenbaum said Wednesday.

Although the wrist hurt, Miss Fawcett continued to perform. When she got home, the wrist swelled, and at 1 a.m. she went to a hospital where X-rays revealed it was broken.

Miss Fawcett was determined to return tonight and play the part with her arm in a cast, the agent said.

"Extremities," at the West Side Arts Theater, deals with a woman who captures and imprisons a man who attempted to rape her.

NEW YORK (AP) — Linda Evans and Joan Collins are rivals on the television series "Dynasty," but on the topic of what it's like to turn 40 both agree there's no need to panic.

The actresses were two of 10 well-known women age 40 or over interviewed by Bazaar magazine in the September issue on their views of "life, love and the pursuit of happiness."

On the subject of sex, movie star Carroll Baker, 52, said it only gets better.

"A healthy sexual relationship can be a source of great joy at any age, right? And doesn't the sexual experience start to improve from, let's say, age 30? If you agree, let me be bold enough to suggest that it can be better after 40 ..."

Michelle Lee of "Knots Landing" said if anything she BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The father of actress Kate Jackson got a surprise in his morning newspaper — a message from the former "Charlie's Angel" and her husband, David Greenwald.

As usual, Howard Jackson Jr. arose early Wednesday to put out the dogs and bring in the newspaper. As he thumbed through The Birmingham Post-Herald, he found a full-page ad on the back of the first section.

It read: "Happy Birthday, Daddy. Love Katie and David." It was Jackson's 70th birthday Wednesday.

"That's something. It's something, isn't it?" Jackson said after seeing the ad. "I can't get over it."

Mercedes made of granite is parked at cemetery as monument

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — A 36-ton granite replica of a 1982 Mercedes-Benz limousine has found its final parking space — in a graveyard by the tomb of the boy to whom it is dedicated.

"It looks like something Leonardo da Vinci would do," said Marion Brozowski, secretary-treasurer at Rosedale Memorial Park. "It's magnificent workmanship. The detail is phenomenal."

The monument, which took three stonecutters 17 months to complete, is an inch-for-inch reproduction of the elegant limousine, right down to the distinctive Mercedes-Benz insignia on the hubcaps. There are only a few things missing, including a Mercedes ornament on the hood and a side-view mirror — purposely left off to deter vandals.

"It looks like a regular car. It has windshield wipers, a name on the license plate. It's better than a regular Mercedes," said Terri Nuzzo, a secretary at the cemetery.

The name on the license plate is Ray Tse, who died in 1981 at the age of 15.

The monument was commissioned by Tse's brother, David, a New York City businessman who reportedly paid from $120,000 to $250,000 for the memorial.

The granite Mercedes arrived Tuesday on a flat-bed truck from a Vermont manufacturer and was lowered onto a 17-ton slab amid the trees and traditional headstones at the sprawling 120-acre cemetery in this northern New Jersey community.

Officials of the cemetery, the monument company and members of the Tse family who were at the graveyard Wednesday declined to discuss the monument or release any information, including where the family is from.

But according to those involved in the project, the older Tse apparently had once promised to buy his brother a car but never got the chance to do so.

Koch Monument Co. of Hackensack hired the Rock of Ages granite company to sculpt the car from a 66-ton granite block cut in a quarry in Barre, Vt., which is known as the granite capital of the world. The stonecutters used blueprints of the model and a real-life Mercedes to duplicate the car in granite.

"It was the hardest job I have done in my life," said Dante Rossi, one of the stonecutters who worked on the car.

Reagan remark denounced

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican United Socialist Party denounced former U.S. President Richard Nixon's remark that Mexico is the "big enchilada" on the Soviet shopping list for Latin American gains.

A statement from the communist-led coalition party, known by its Spanish initials as the PSUM, said Nixon's comment was false and strident. The party also said it is clear proof of the simplistic view held by some American officials.

Man forced to drive non-stop to New York

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An escaped convict armed with a rifle forced a man to drive non-stop to New York City without food or sleep, leaving the man so "shaken up" he did not report the kidnapping for three days, authorities say.

Brevard County sheriff's deputies refused to identify the victim, who reported his abduction Wednesday to the state attorney's office.

But police in Lakewood, N.J., where the victim wrecked his car after falling asleep on the return trip to Florida, identified the man as Todd Kevin Jackson, 26, of Cocoa.

Authorities said the alleged kidnapper was Steven Ruben, Barnette, an armed robbery convict who escaped in a sheriff's patrol car Aug. 18, leaving his jail guard nude and handcuffed to a tree during a trip to Orlando for medical treatment.
