

'Big Sister' Phillips stands alone

Panhandle citizens solidly support independents at hearing

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

AMARILLO — The "Big Sister," one of the world's largest oil companies, was all alone when the citizens spoke here Thursday. They accused her of using her "big hand" to "slap down the independent businessman" and charged the mythical lady with the attempted murder of the free enterprise system.

With a capacity of 266, Amarillo College's Concert Hall Theater couldn't seat the crowd of people who attended and spoke Thursday at a state public hearing called in a legal battle over oil and gas between independent producers and Phillips Petroleum Company.

No one at the hearing spoke in favor of the new rules the major oil company wants the state to enforce in the local oil patch.

The new drilling rules Phillips wants to control production in the Panhandle Field, the huge local oil and gas reservoir, would change Pampa and other Panhandle cities into "ghost towns," one speaker said. The major oil company's requested rules' change would allow Phillips to rob royalty owners of their property, strip local governments of their tax base and would grant the company a monopoly over local oil and gas production, said others.

Rules changes would cause the death of the free enterprise system in the Panhandle.

—Ray Lockwood

Speaker after speaker, many from Pampa, who voiced opposition to Phillips and spoke in favor of the local independent drillers at the Railroad Commission hearing, were loudly applauded. Commission official Susan Corey, much like an angry school marm scolding a misbehaving class, told the citizens to stop the applause, as she repeatedly rapped a table with her knuckles and called for order.

"Other than the lawyers for Phillips, there may not be anybody in favor of changing the rules," Ivan Hafley, lawyer for the independents said after the show of support at the public hearing.

Phillips, supported by major oil and gas companies, Pioneer Corporation, Dorchester Gas and Diamond Shamrock Corporation among others, wants the state agency that regulates oil and gas production to ban refrigerated separators used on wells in the Panhandle Field.

Some independent producers are "stealing" natural gas that belongs to others, Phillips claims. The independents use refrigerated separators at the well sites to change the gas into liquids, then classify the liquids as "crude oil," the company alleges in its plea to the Railroad Commission.

The Panhandle Independent Producers Group, PIPG, claims the heavy hydrocarbon gas they pump was crude oil in its original, natural state in the underground reservoir. Drilling since the 1920s has lowered the field's pressure, and caused the crude oil to "boil off" and change into gas, the independents say. The use of separators only changes the rich gases back into their original form, and the commission should continue to allow their use in the Panhandle Field, PIPG says in the legal battle.

Whether a well is classified as an "oil" or "gas" well makes a big difference in the number of wells allowed in the field. Commission rules allow 64 oil wells per section of land over the field, but only one gas well per section. A well can be classified as an oil well if it produces one barrel of oil for every 100,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Banning the use of separators to change gas into oil would shut down many of the independents' wells in the field and destroy the local economy, the citizens said Thursday.

The independents' use of separators, which allows numerous "oil" wells on the field, are depleting the reservoir's gas and will drain it dry within a few years, the major companies complain.

The dispute is further complicated by different parties' ownership of "oil rights" and "gas rights" in the same field, with the major companies owning the rights to much of the gas.

Pioneer Corporation supplies "cheap" natural gas from the field to the City of Amarillo. Leases on the field and a fixed low rate for the gas produced were signed over to the city for the life of the field.

Pioneer officials have warned that the independents' alleged depletion of the field will rob the city and consumers of their supply of inexpensive natural gas.

But not even Amarillo Mayor Rick Klein supported the major companies' requested ruling at the hearing Thursday. An earlier report in the Amarillo Daily News suggested that the mayor and other city officials would support Phillips' position at the public hearing.

"We do not have sufficient information to determine what is in the best interests of our citizens. The City of Amarillo requests the Railroad Commission expedite the orderly, and we emphasize orderly, development of this field," Klein said on the record at the hearing.

The Amarillo mayor told the commission examiners that earlier remarks supporting Phillips and Pioneer by Amarillo city officials were "misinterpreted." However, one source close to the hearing told The Pampa News that a hard lobbying effort on behalf of the independents just

Meeting draws a crowd

North Crest zone change denied

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

Responding to the wishes of the people, the Pampa Planning and Zoning Board Thursday denied a request to change zoning of a parcel of land in the North Crest II Addition along Crane Road to office district and multifamily dwellings Thursday.

"When so many people turn out, we feel we should go with the people's voice," said Ralph Milliron, board member after a packed house of residents turned out for the board's regular meeting.

Although Lev Conner of Dalhart, owner of the property in question, said he had "no intention to disturb" the residents of the area with the planned construction of four-plexes (buildings with four separate apartments), property owners disagreed with his evaluation of the proposed rental homes.

Conner said he wanted to build offices on three of the lots and proposed eight rental four-plexes on the remaining six lots. He said his proposal would provide a buffer between the existing commercial developments along Hobart and the single-family homes to the west of Hobart.

One resident said he was afraid if the zoning were changed from the present single-family provision, sometime in the future a "honky-tonk" would be built in the area.

Board member Milo Carlson suggested guidelines for speaking at the meeting because he was afraid with "people just speaking up, the meeting would get out of hand."

However, the meeting remained unstructured and there was a free exchange of ideas and opinions, with everyone who so chose, being allowed to speak.

Stan Thorne, a resident of the area, read a petition which had been submitted to the board ahead of time.

The petition, signed by all of the affected residents, stated in part, "we who bought property (in this area) did so, being assured it would remain single-family."

Reading from the petition, Thorne said it is a family-oriented community, and the people don't want rental units built on its borders. The residents fear the necessity of buying guns and second dead-bolt locks to protect themselves in the event such rental properties were built, the petition said.

Jerilyn Brooks said she has five children, all of whom can safely walk to school. However, she said, if 32 more families moved into the proposed complex, she feared the additional traffic and "strangers" would present a danger to her children.

"We have a strong sense of neighborhood; we know everyone," she said. If that many more families were to move in, she felt it would be impossible to get to "know" all of them.

Other residents spoke of the additional trash and down-grading of the surrounding properties, should the zoning change occur.

After the public had finished speaking, the board members took a vote.

Leo Brazwell said, "It seems when we deviate from what is set up, we get into trouble. We should leave it zoned the way it is."

While he thought Conner's plan was not out of line, Milliron said he felt the board should go with the wishes of the people.

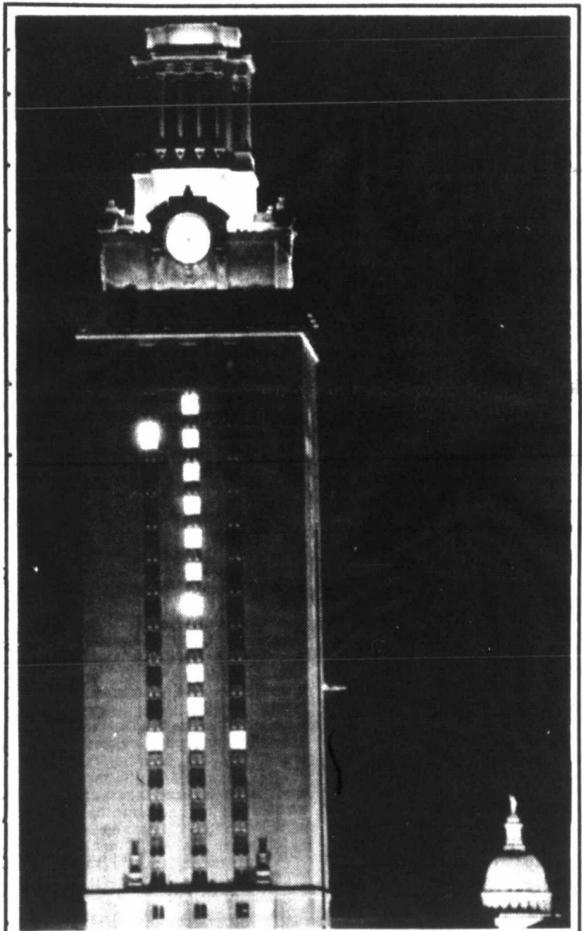

Jerry Noles said he didn't think multi-family zoning was a good idea.

While he had "no particular objection" to what Conner proposed building, Milo Carlson, said he didn't recommend going against the deed restrictions already on the books.

Several property owners said they had "single-family" restrictions on their deeds and were of the opinion, such restrictions were on all of the deeds in the area.

The request was denied unanimously.

In other business, the board approved a change in the plat of a parcel of land on the southeast corner of Somerville and Wells. The area was made into two lots, rather than one, so the Satellite School can be built on it.

UT begins second century convinced its 'first class'

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas began its second century today, apparently satisfied it is, at long last, a "first-class" institution and intent on becoming one of the great universities of the world.

Dr. Peter Flawn, UT-Austin president, said Thursday the school's mission is the same as it was 100 years ago — to teach students to think. Flawn and others, including Gov. Mark White, a Baylor graduate, addressed a convocation that was part of UT's 100th birthday celebration.

Wales Madden Jr., chairman of a centennial commission that prepared a report for UT's future, said 25 years ago a similar group decided that the school was not "first class."

Thursday, however, Madden told the convocation, "The University of Texas at Austin has passed through those portals of eminence and is now one of the truly great universities of this nation. It now stands at another portal of eminence. It will pass through this portal only when it is recognized as a world-class institution."

Flawn said the university had evolved from a small public university in a rural state to an internationally recognized school "that satisfies fully the constitutional mandate to be first class."

The university opened its doors on Sept. 15, 1883 — four years before Austin even had indoor lights — and 221 students were admitted the first semester. All were Texans.

The current enrollment is over 48,000, with students from every state and 148 foreign countries.

The 175-member centennial commission of UT alumni and friends recommended that school administrators require all students to become familiar with computers, but Flawn had this warning:

"We should not build 'computer literacy' at the expense of literacy. The vision of a student seated alone at a console hour after hour produces in me a certain unease, and I reassure myself by countering with a vision of that student arguing vehemently in a small seminar room. We must not lose the human interaction."

"Computers can calculate, learn, remember, compose, reason, infer, and deduce," Flawn said. "But certain entertaining motion pictures to the contrary notwithstanding, computers cannot think and cannot feel."

White, who described UT as "one of the state's most prized and priceless resources," and former governors John Connally, Allan Shivers, Preston Smith and Dolph Briscoe were among those at the convocation. All but White and Smith are UT graduates.

After 10 days of testimony

Plaintiffs rest in Energas suit

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

The plaintiffs in the $21 million suit against Pioneer Corporation and its subsidiaries, Energas and Westar Transmission Companies, rested their case at 3:07 p.m. Thursday, concluding their presentation of testimony and evidence that began Sept. 1.

Following a short recess, the defense began presenting its case as jurors prepared for the trial to continue into the fourth week.

Attorneys for Jay Boleman, his wife Ana and infant daughter Anna rested their case after 10 days of testimony aimed at proving the local gas utility company is responsible for fire in their mobile home on Aug. 27, 1982 and should pay damages for the severe burn injuries the wife and daughter suffered in the fire.

Yesterday morning, jurors heard Mrs. Boleman describe her feelings as she lay in the emergency room at Coronado Community Hospital, where she was taken after the fire.

"Too much pain, too much pain. I can't describe it," Mrs. Boleman said. She told of hearing her child crying and screaming in another area of the emergency room.

She said she remembered hospital attendants trying to remove her wedding ring and other rings from her fingers. Unable to remove them naturally, the attendants had to cut the rings off, she said.

A native of Mexico, she testified in English but had an interpreter present to clarify questions at times and to help her make her answers clearer when she needed a specific word.

After being taken to a burn center at Galveston, she said she wasn't told for weeks how seriously her daughter had been burned in the accident.

Much of her testimony concerned the three months she was in the hospital at Galveston.

"I don't remember the first week. The first days, no," she said. She said she knew she was in a hospital at Galveston, but could recall only "a lot of instruments," with a number of doctors and nurses standing around.

There was "lots of pain (when) moving me. All my body, my back ... It was painful." When she was taken to treatments, "I was screaming. I was "Based on conventional methods of investigation, we got nowhere" in the murder case of 53-year-old Donald Charles Neal, Sonora said. "As long as you don't contaminate evidence or confuse witnesses, sometimes you have to use unproven techniques. We really had nothing to lose."

Sonora said he would pay the woman out of his own pocket in the future if her information helps police find Neal's killer.

"If we solve the case with her help, you have to think of this life as having a lot more to it than we've been exposed to," he said.

Sonora said he met Ms. Renier during seminars at an FBI academy two years ago.

"She told me things about myself my mother doesn't even know," Sonora recalled of the meeting.

Detective Jim Hodges said Ms. Renier "scared us to death" during an examination of the slain man's apartment by acting out the part of the victim.

Ms. Renier entered a trance-like state, then "yelled out loud, grabbed her upper left chest and fell to the floor," Hodges recalled.

He said the woman apparently sensed that Neal, who suffered numerous superficial stab wounds, died of a wound to that region.

"It's amazing. It just blows your mind," Hodges said.

Ms. Renier arrived in Webster Sept. 1.

help, Mrs. Boleman said, but now she gives exercises to the child four times a day, with the assistance of a brother who has been living with her for several months.

While she was in the hospital, she never saw her child. Her mother-in-law had taken the child to Pueblo, Colo., after she was released from a burn institute in October, Mrs. Boleman testified.

After Mrs. Boleman was released from the hospital, the child was brought back to Galveston in December. She broke into tears while testifying of seeing her daughter for the first time since the accident. She could see the burns and scars uncovered by the sling, but "at that time I didn't want to see any more of her burns," because she was distressed at the sight, she said.

Attorneys had the child brought in the court to show jurors some of the burn scars. The child was wearing a complete burn-protection suit, including a face mask. The mask was removed, revealing a badly scarred

Hearing draws big crowd

prior to the hearing caused some Amarillo officials to soften their stand in the dispute.

Hafley said he was "pleasantly surprised" that the city official stated what he considered a "neutral" position in the dispute.

The more than 20 others who spoke for the record at the hearing, however, were anything but neutral in their support of the independents.

People in the crowd of more than 300 who wanted to speak were asked to fill out a card just before the meeting in the auditorium. The Railroad Commission's form asked for a person's name, address, title, the name of whom they represent, and whether they wanted to speak at the hearing.

"Check one: I support the position taken by: Phillips Petroleum Co.; Panhandle Independent Producers Group; neither," the state's form asks.

The remarks at the hearing were recorded by a court reporter, and transcripts will be available at a cost of $1.25 per page.

Three Railroad Commission officials and the court reporter sat at tables on the theater's stage. The officials called out citizens who wanted to speak at the hearing and asked them to step to a microphone below the center of the stage.

Lawrence R. Hagy, an oilman from Amarillo who said he drilled his first well in the Panhandle field in 1927, was the first citizen to address the hearing.

Hagy told about the early days in the field when the natural gas now described as precious was "vented" or flared off into the atmosphere (Hafley estimates that four to six TRILLION cubic feet of gas has been vented over the life of the field). Hagy said there was no market for the gas and no pipelines to ship it in the early 30s. He said the old cable - tool, open - hole method of drilling oil wells could not recover the accompanying natural gas.

"Many were venting gas to the air. It became a national scandal. There was a tremendous amount of gas being wasted.

"I encourage this commission not to change its rules.

"This commission should encourage the production of oil and gas that would never be recovered otherwise."

"It means so much in taxes to the local school districts," Hagy said.

The oilman's opening remarks were greeted with thundering applause from the audience.

"This is a formal hearing, and we would appreciate no formal expression of your sentiments," Cory said.

Mayor Klein spoke next, followed by Ray Lockwood of Pampa, an investor in independent wells. Lockwood said Phillips' requested change in production rules violates the "Protestant Work Ethic."

"The free enterprise system has made us the greatest nation in the world," Lockwood said.

The rules change would cause "the death of the free enterprise system in the Panhandle, and like cancer, it will spread throughout the nation," he said.

"A change in these rules at this point would drastically affect the economy of the Texas Panhandle," said Billy M. Smith, an investor and Pampa accountant who represents several independents.

"If the majors get their way, who will pay the tax dollars to our counties and state?" she asked.

George Bullard, vice president of B & M Tool Co. of Pampa, said his "company could not survive with the rules change."

"Without the independents, we wouldn't be in business," he said.

Charles Jones of Lubbock, an investor and oil company official, said he "resents the implication by Phillips Petroleum that (independents) are somehow taking something that belongs to Phillips."

"We bought and paid for our wells," he said.

More applause brought a stern warning from Cory.

Tim Epps of Pampa said local independents "created a large number of jobs."

"Why would you change the rules that created the growth of our entire community?" Epps asked.

He said the major companies "take" money out of the state's schools and banks.

Wayne E. Cox, tax assessor - collector for the Panhandle Independent School District, said the independents' oil properties in the district have a valuation of $107 million, compared to a property valuation of only $8 million controlled by the majors.

"If we lose the independents, we will have to increase our tax rate by forty percent," Cox said.

He said claims that the field is being rapidly depleted have been going on about as long as drilling in the reservoir.

Bill Davis, an oil and gas consultant, accused the major companies of "ripping off" consumers on the prices they charge for lower - cost gas produced from "old" wells.

He also said the major companies strip out the "goodies" from the natural gas at their plants and then use the products to make gasoline. The majors take out what is basically crude oil from the natural gas, but they pay no oil royalties on it, Davis charged.

He warned the commission not to let "Big Brother" cut off a "vital source of jobs."

John Watson of Pampa said he supports PIPG and asked the commission to keep the present production rules.

David Crockett Dodge, "third cousin of Davy Crockett who fought and died in the Alamo" said he was at the hearing to "represent retired senior citizens" who have invested in wells.

"Many of us would have to go on welfare, if we didn't have the income from this investment," he said.

"I can tell you for certain you're going to kill a lot of towns in the Panhandle," Dodge said.

Fred Haiduk, a Gray County farmer, said he supports PIPG.

He said Phillips wants "the right to step on anybody they want to."

Lottie Eller, of Panhandle, the first woman to speak, said the majors are using "propaganda" "to keep their grasp on the entire oil industry."

The dispute involves "the big hand of the majors, slapping down the independent businessman," she said.

Eller said the major companies never pay royalty owners their fair share.

"If the majors get their way, who will pay the tax dollars to our counties and state?" she asked.

George Eller said royalties from independents are the only thing that "kept me from going under."

He said the majors "have been robbing the royalty owners for years" and are "accusing the independents of the things they themselves are guilty of."

T.O. Bivins, of Amarillo, descendant of the pioneer Panhandle family, supported the independents' position and asked the commission to avoid letting the "tail wag the dog" on the issue.

"To change horses in midstream seems unfair at best," Bivins said.

He said his family has "come out with the short end of the stick" in dealings with Phillips.

The majors "strip out valuable liquids without paying for them," while independents pay royalties, Bivins said.

Bob Brent of Amarillo asked for no change in the rules and said present rules encourage development of "marginal" oil and gas wells.

Sanford School Superintendent Chester Cunningham said the estimate of how much gas is left in the reservoir is always changing from one study to the next. He said a current estimate of three million billion cubic feet of gas still in reserve in the field will not compute or fit on his calculator. Gas in the field may last another 200 years, he suggested.

Jim Walker and Joe Richardson III also spoke in favor of the independents.

The Railroad Commission had earlier announced that the hearings would last two days, Thursday and Friday. But when all speakers finished before noon Thursday, Cory said the hearing scheduled for Friday was canceled.

"I've never seen anything like this. I'm delighted with the turnout," Hafley said after the hearing.

Lawyers and parties to the dispute made opening remarks before the commission examiners last Tuesday in Austin and were not allowed to speak at the hearing in Amarillo.

The parties resume their testimony in Austin next Tuesday.

Hafley said after studying both sides of the dispute, a Railroad Commission's committee will suggest a ruling to the three elected commissioners.

The PIPG lawyer said it may take more than a year before the Railroad Commissioners rule on the dispute.

PERRYTON - Memories of the past will come to life for many on Saturday and Sunday at the sixth annual Golden Spread Antique Engine, Machinery, Tractor and Car Show, held on the Donald Sell farm east of Perryton.

The show is sponsored by the Golden Spread Antique Machinery Association, a non-profit organization formed to preserve and exhibit antiques. Guest exhibitors are welcome.

The Sell farm is located 10 miles east of Perryton on FM 377 and five miles south on FM 2711.

The show will feature antique vehicles, gasoline engines and museum items. An official parade of activities begins at 1:30 p.m. each day.

Plaintiffs rest case

face and head, with hair growing only on the back half of the head.

Mrs. Boleman also continues to wear a protective suit, but no longer wears the mask. She took off her gloves to show jurors her scarred hands and partially removed her jacket to reveal her scarred shoulders. The suit is "tight, it bothers me, a lot of pressure," she said, but she said she understands she needs to wear it to help keep the scars down.

Her attorneys read part of a deposition taken from her 27-year-old brother, who has taken a leave of absence from the Mexico Navy to stay with Mrs. Boleman and assist her and the child until full-time help can be found. Her husband moved back to Pampa in January, returning only twice to Galveston to see his family.

Her brother helps Mrs. Boleman bathe and feed the child, assists with the exercises, prepares meals, takes care of the clothes and takes care of the house, the deposition showed. He has been getting no salary from the Mexico Navy, using his savings at times.

The Bolemans' attorneys then read a number of excerpts from various hospital records concerning the care and treatment of Mrs. Boleman and Anna. The records indicated that initially Mrs. Boleman breathed room air with distress, was restless, had periods of sleeplessness and experienced a great deal of pain which required medication, hypnosis and relaxation treatments to alleviate her suffering.

She had periods of depression, several times saying she wanted to die, the records indicated. The records included a number of statements Mrs. Boleman made during her hospital stay: "Everything hurts. I don't want to see myself. I think I am confused. I hurt, I hurt. I am especially tired."

Dr. Robert J. Phillips, local physician with a general family practice, testified of seeing the Bolemans at the emergency room after the accident. He was not in the emergency room when the Bolemans were brought in, he said, but he was called out because he was their physician.

It was "one of the most severe burns I had ever seen," he said about the child. The two-month-old girl was in respiratory distress from smoke inhalation and heat to the lungs, had low blood pressure and slow circulation and was in shock, he said.

"I really didn't feel the baby would live," he stated.

He had to cut into a thigh to put an intravenous tube in a femoral vein to begin replacement of vital fluids. He also gave the child proteins, antibiotics, adrenalin and pain medication. But the baby was not sedated and was crying and screaming. The child had second and third degree burns over approximately 60 percent of its body, Dr. Phillips said.

Mrs. Boleman was "quite frightened" but very cooperative and concerned about her baby and husband, he said. She also received a number of fluids but was not in respiratory distress, he said. She also had second and third degree burns over 60 percent of her body, he said. He thought Mrs. Boleman had a "50-50 chance of living," he said.

The child was incubated for the flight to Galveston, with a tube placed in the trachea to be used to aid breathing in case respiratory distress required machine support, he said. Oxygen was given to the child, and a catheter was placed in her bladder, he said.

He said he had seen both Mrs. Boleman and the child in his office two weeks previous to the accident for check-ups. Both were in normal, good health at the time, he said.

The plaintiffs' attorneys then presented records of medical expenses and rested their case.

Energas defense attorney Tom Milam then opened the defense. In opening remarks, he cautioned the jurors, "You must not allow sympathy or any other emotion to play a part in your deliberations." He said that while he was sympathetic to the Bolemans' situation, he would present evidence to show that Energas was not negligent in the events leading to the fire.

First witness called by the defense was John Cook, member of the Pampa Fire Department who was at the scene of the fire.

Cook was off duty at the time of the accident, but had seen the fire truck heading to the fire and went to give his assistance.

He claimed that when he arrived, he saw the back door lying about six feet from the bottom of the trailer. Energas attorneys said fireman Capt. Charles

Mattox vows to stay in office even if convicted

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox says charges of commercial bribery against him show a "difficult twist of logic," and vows to remain in office even if he is convicted.

He said prosecutors "looked for 2½ months and couldn't find anything and they dreamed up the most trumped-up thing they could find to put out there."

Mattox was indicted on a charge of commercial bribery in an indictment that alleged he threatened to block the public bond business of a Houston law firm that was trying at the time to interrogate his sister.

"I think the ones of you who have read the indictment realize how profoundly twisted the whole matter had to be for them to put that forth. You can't have a bribe that comes out of a threat," Mattox said Thursday at a news conference.

He said the commercial bribery law was intended to be used "in a kickback situation."

"I noticed that you all had a very difficult time in trying to write and address the fact that somewhere another a threat became a bribe. It's a difficult twist of logic," he said.

At one point, the tough-talking attorney general suggested the matter could have been disposed with more directly in the old days.

"I can remember back in Texas history when a fellow used to be able to either whip the socks off another fellow that insulted or offended his family or his wife, and as a matter of fact even go to the point of killing him at times," Mattox said.

"I don't know what Texas has come to — now we got a district attorney over here who gets mad at me because he said I threatened somebody," he said.

Asked if he would resign in the event he is convicted, Mattox's one-word reply was "no."

Mattox repeated his accusation that Mobil Oil Corp. "conceived" and "orchestrated" the indictment, handed down Tuesday by a Travis County grand jury. Mobil has denied it had anything to do with any criminal action against Mattox.

The lawsuit between Mobil and the state involves mineral rights on Clinton Manges' South Texas ranch. Manges, a $50,000 contributor to Mattox's 1982 campaign, filed the $1.67 billion suit last year over disputed oil leases, and the state joined on Manges' side because Texas owns some of the mineral rights.

Mattox said he did not intend to use state resources of his agency as he prepares his defense, but he said he would be entitled to do so if he wanted to.

"I consider it an attack on my office — there's no doubt about that," he said. "It obviously arose out of a piece of litigation that the attorney general's office is trying to win."

He said he planned to spend four to five hours a day working on his defense, but he said since he usually works 18 hours a day, that would still leave 12 hours of work a day on usual state business.

Mattox said Austin lawyer Roy Minton would be one of his attorneys. Minton has represented several indicted public officials, including former Speaker Billy Clayton, who was cleared of federal bribery and conspiracy charges in 1980.

"I regard myself simply as a soldier in a war," Mattox said. "It's a war that takes some casualties at times. It's a war where I got into a fight with the big boys, and the big boys play plenty rough."

Mattox was accused of threatening to withhold approval of bond packages prepared by the Houston law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski, which represents Mobil, unless a lawyer for the firm stopped trying to subpoena Mattox's sister for a deposition.

Mobil's lawyers wanted to talk to Janice Mattox in hopes of getting a Laredo judge taken off the case by showing alleged political ties between him and the Mattox family.

Mattox said voters started a "revolution" when they elected him their lawyer, and he said the enemies were businesses trying to control state government.

"If they're going to get me because I try to make a big corporate law firm in this state deal with honesty and integrity with the attorney general's office, they'd better just move up there with me, because I'm going to stay after Mobil Oil, and Exxon and all the other big corporations that have been controlling the power structure of this state for so long," Mattox said.

He said he was not in a "big rush" to go to trial, but hoped it would be completed "by Christmas."

Mattox opened the news conference by reading from "If," an inspirational poem by Rudyard Kipling. The poem included a passage about keeping one's confidence when your words "are twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools."

Officials say resignation marks 'new day' for prison systems

HOUSTON (AP) — The resignation of state prison director W.J. Estelle signifies that "the rules of the game have changed" and marks a "new day" of increased state and federal government influence in the prison system, state officials say.

Estelle, citing the Legislature's rejection of more than half of the Texas Department of Corrections' proposed $1.5 billion prison budget, publicly announced Thursday he will resign within the next three to six months.

Harry Whittington of Austin, state prison board member, said "a lot of changes" will be made in the prison system, which is under a wide-ranging federal court order.

"The Legislature is beginning to ask a lot more questions and require a lot more things. We're in a changing time," Whittington said.

State Rep. Ray Keller, R-Duncanville and chairman of the House Law Enforcement Committee, said Estelle's resignation is "a loss to the state."

"But at the same time," Keller said, "I think it's part of what's more and more being realized as a new day in the corrections system."

Steve Dial, an administrative aide to Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, worked with Estelle and prison officials during the 1983 Legislature, when TDC officials got less than half the $1.5 billion budget they sought.

"I was down at the Board of Corrections meeting on Monday and one of the assistant directors said it appeared 'the rules of the game have changed.' Perhaps that's as good a way as any to sum up the situation," Dial said. "The rules of the game have changed."

"It's my impression that in past years the Legislature had a tendency to pretty much stay out of the operations of the system down there," he added.

When Estelle leaves the TDC after heading the agency 12 years, the administration will be restructured, officials said.

"We plan to make a total management study of TDC and restructure it," said Board of Corrections Director Bob Gunn of Wichita Falls. "Then we'll know the type of person we want to look for" to replace Estelle, he said.

"I'm of the opinion there's got to be a lot of change in there, and human nature being what it is, it may be difficult to make those changes with the existing people," Whittington said.

"I think we need to clean house," Keller said. "There are obviously some internal problems within the day-to-day management of the prison system."

"While I hate to see Estelle leave, the time is right to do pretty substantial housecleaning," Keller said.

Since 1981, the Texas prison system, housing about 37,000 inmates, has been operating under a federal court order to relieve overcrowding. Numerous other court-mandated reforms are being implemented under the supervision of a special master.

The 1983 Legislature approved a package of laws, pushed by Keller, aimed at reducing overcrowding by setting up community restitution centers and setting up new "good time" laws that allow for earlier release of some inmates.

In a speech before a group of Houston Rotarians Thursday, Estelle noted the prison system is about $38 million short of being able to comply with a compromise agreement made between prison officials and federal authorities concerning prison staffing.

Life sentence in death tape slaying

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A 21-year-old mother of two sentenced to life in prison for her role in the slaying of her former husband could be eligible for parole in 8½ years, according to a state official.

Sherry Wolf, whose silence on a tape-recorded slaying helped convict her of murder, was sentenced Thursday by State District Judge Darrell Hester.

Jim Bates, her lawyer, said the case would be appealed.

Mrs. Wolf was convicted of murder July 29 for her role in the bludgeoning death of her former husband, Billy Staton, who had captured the sounds of his own death on a hidden tape recording.

Mrs. Wolf, who cried when she heard the sentence, became the third person to receive a life sentence in connection with the double slaying.

Staton was bludgeoned to death with a metal bar and his fiancée, schoolteacher Leticia Castro, was beaten with a hammer and shot at the Wolf's La Feria home July 16, 1982.

State prosecutors alleged the killings were planned to end a bitter court battle over Staton's rights to visit his daughter by Mrs. Wolf.

Staton concealed a small tape recorder under his shirt the last time he went to the Wolf home to pick up his daughter, 2½ year-old Melanie. He wanted to gather evidence that the Wolf's were not obeying the court order that allowed him to see his child, his attorney testified at the trial.

Ted Campagnolo, Cameron County assistant district attorney, convinced the jury that although Mrs. Wolf did not strike the blows, she helped plan and carry out Staton's murder.

Mrs. Wolf's "punishment fit the crime," Campagnolo said after the sentencing Thursday.

"Judge Hester is one of the fairest judges I know," he said. "When he gives a person life, it is well deserved."

Paul Wolf, 21, was convicted of Miss Castro's murder earlier this year by another state district court jury sentenced to life in prison. He later pleaded guilty to Staton's murder and received a concurrent life term.

Another man, Glenn Henderson, pleaded guilty to Miss Castro's slaying and also received a life prison term.

Mrs. Wolf, who had remained in the Cameron County Jail in Brownsville since the conviction, was attacked by another prisoner during her jail stay, said Connie Anderson of the Cameron County Adult Probation Office.

"There was a rumor going around that she hated Mexicans," Ms. Anderson said.

Parents to get certificates

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston public schools, aiming to set new standards for the "third partner" in the educational process, plan to award "Parent Proficiency Certificates" to parents who watch specially-produced television shows on education and answer a questionnaire about them.

"There is evidence that a child's success in school is in direct proportion to the parents' level of involvement in the child's education," Houston Independent School District Superintendent Billy Reagan said in a recommendation for the program.

The parent proficiency program is the latest phase of the Houston Plan of Educational Excellence. The plan is aimed at improving education by upgrading the expectations placed on students, teachers and parents, officials said.

Under the plan, the board has approved competency testing for teachers and students.

The program adopted Thursday earmarks $84,500 for the production of nine TV programs. The first show, to be shown in October on Houston's public station, will address the "crisis in education" in general as well as city policies on attendance, discipline, graduation and promotion.

The purpose of the program is not to certify parents as parents but as partners in the education of their children, said Pat Shell, superintendent for instruction.

"Without parent participation, the spirit of what we are trying to do will be penalized," she said.

In the past, Houston schools "to some extent... have shut the parents out, and we pushed them away," Ms. Shell said. "Thank God we are now seeing a reversal."

A "position paper" for the parent proficiency program says schools cannot give students all they require for satisfactory education.

"No longer can parents send their children off to school each day and expect teachers to do all that needs to be done," the paper says.

"Even though we may extend the school day and the school year, the most powerful and pervasive option (to improve achievement) is to involve the home in significant ways."

Child care facilities 'real problem' to officials

AUSTIN (AP) — Many of the complaints received about day care facilities for children can be blamed on a reduced work force, the Texas Department of Human Resources board was told Thursday.

It is obviously a real problem," said J. Livingston Kosberg, Houston, board chairman.

"How much of it is related to the Department of Human Resources we can't tell at this point," he said.

Kosberg said he talked with Gov. Mark White on Thursday about published reports of abuse and neglect. "He expressed his concern over the situation," Kosberg said.

He said part of the problem is the reduction of personnel in the child care licensing division from 600 in 1977 to 240 at the present time.

Cliff Martin, director of licensing, said the staff of 600 employees regulated 12,000 children in day care facilities. Now, the much smaller staff regulates 21,000 children.

The Legislature has authorized 265 employees for 1984-85.

"However, I am confident that if we had 200 more inspectors, complaints of abuse and neglect would not go away," Kosberg said.

DHR Commissioner Marlin Johnston said his department was concentrating on "the very serious and complex situation."

"It needs to be handled delicately so it is done right," Johnston said.

"We are asking that all the cases named in recent published reports be reviewed. It will take a few weeks to do a definitive job."

He also told the board he would give them an outline in about a week of department plans for child care regulation, with a full report later.

The preliminary report on jury of six men and six women on multiple charges of torturing inmates to deprive them of liberty without due process of law. Lee was acquitted on one of those counts.

"I don't think there's any question he was disappointed in the verdict," Taylor said of Parker, who had no public comment.

Sentencing, originally set for Oct. 18, was rescheduled Thursday for Oct. 25.

Parker could receive up to 12 years in prison and a $12,000 fine. Glover and Lee each could get 13 years and a $13,000 fine.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Scott Woodward, who handled the government's case, said he would recommend the maximum sentences.

"I think what they did to people was inhuman and sadistic," he said.

Taylor said he felt the testimony of former deputy Floyd Baker "was damaging to all the defendants."

Baker, 40, originally was a defendant in the case. However, he was granted a mistrial on Tuesday because his defense — which acknowledged the water tortures took place but that he merely was following the orders of his superiors — was antagonistic to the overall defense. His new trial is set for Oct. 17.

Among government witnesses in the trial were six torture victims, all with criminal histories, who described how they were handcuffed to a table or chair and their faces wrapped tightly with a towel. Their head would be pulled back and water poured over the towel until, fearing drowning, they would talk.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Many issues await Begin's successor

The resignation of Menachem Begin as prime minister removes a determined, courageous, committed - and, in some ways, misguided - leader from the Israeli government.

There was no fiercer fighter for Israel. He helped create the Jewish state and decades later became its prime minister, riding a surge of nationalist fervor and widespread disenchantment with the Labor Party which had dominated Israeli politics until 1977.

The former guerrilla fighter and head of the right-wing Likud Party surprised many by becoming a strong, charismatic and popular leader.

The highlights of his administration were the signing of the Camp David Accords and a peace treaty with Egypt, which involved the withdrawal of Israeli occupation forces from the Sinai.

Begin's greatest mistake probably was the invasion of Lebanon. Not only did it create division within his own country but it resulted in widespread condemnation from nations that had been supporters of Israel.

The strike into Lebanon, costly in lives and money, was intended to secure Israeli's northern border by driving Israeli's northern border by driving out the Palestine Liberation Organization and stabilizing the Lebanese government. But the situation in Lebanon continues chaotic and the Israeli government is finding it difficult to extricate itself.

Begin's hardnosed West Bank policies also have brought heavy criticism from friends as well as foes. Contrary to what the U.S. thought was an agreement in the 1978 Camp David Accords to freeze settlements in the West Bank, the prime minister's government increased them. Begin again stepped up settlements after President Reagan suggested a Mideast peace proposal that would have turned the occupied West Bank and Gaza into an autonomous Palestinian state associated with Jordan.

After six years of Begin rule, peace in the Mideast seems as far away as ever. In addition, Israel is heavily in debt and its economy is in trouble. Begin's successor will not have an enviable job.

The dream becomes a nightmare

NEW YORK (NEA) - Reflecting on the big demonstration at the Lincoln Memorial on Aug. 27, one is struck by the number of other causes that succeeded in hitching a free ride on the movement for black civil rights. Is this what most blacks want? Or has nobody bothered to ask them?

The 1963 rally that this one was supposed to memorialize was a nearly spontaneous outpouring of black sentiment for change - sentiment superbly captured and expressed by Martin Luther King Jr. in his famous "I have a dream" speech.

The Aug. 27 demonstration, on the other hand, was reminiscent of one of Congress's "pork barrel" bills: There was a little something in it for everybody. The blacks, to be sure, weren't crowded out altogether, they still provided most of the speakers and the lion's share of the audience. But the feminists were on hand to toot their horn for ERA, and the environmentalists were there condemning pollution, and the gay activists showed up to make common cause with their political spokesman for the Salvadoran guerrillas, missed the rally only because he applied for a visa too late.

What in heaven's name has the cause of black civil rights in the U.S. got to do with guerrilla warfare in El Salvador? There is, of course, a Marxist analysis that unites them: the theory that the capitalist "power structure" in the U.S. is the root of all evil and therefore the cause of both discrimination in this country and hunger in El Salvador. But few American blacks this side of Huey Newton take such malice-laden jargon seriously.

And where, precisely, is the nexus between gay rights, however those are defined, and the just demands of America's black citizens? Homosexuals certainly have civil rights too, but the open countenancing of "gay lifestyles" in such sensitive contexts as our public schools undeniably raises special and serious problems.

To suggest that being black is somehow comparable to being an avowed homosexual does a disservice both to the dignity of blacks and to the intricacies of the problem confronting homosexuals.

As for environmentalism, how many blacks do you suppose are out of work today in Ohio's Mahoning Valley as a result of the mindless anti-pollution crusades that helped close down Youngstown Sheet & Tube and similar industries? Rampant environmentalism is par excellence the cause of the brie- and - Chablis set - people for whom industrial funds are the ultimate enemy. Marie Antoninette would have understood perfectly but many American blacks have grimmer and more immediate concerns.

Nonetheless, these sideshow impresarios all pitched their tents at the Lincoln Memorial on Aug. 27 - and they were there by invitation. The black leadership has made common cause with them in the holy name of chasing Ronald Reagan out of Washington.

And it is here that we reach at last the heart of the matter. The black demand for civil rights in the mid-1960s badly frightened Lyndon Johnson. He knew, as perhaps few whites save Southerners of his and earlier generations have ever known, just how badly American blacks had been treated in many areas of the country.

He reacted to the threat of mob violence like the medieval king he was: by throwing coins at the mob. Within a matter of years his Great Society had lined up the great bulk of black leadership in a subsidy-distribution network, polarized like so many iron filings by the magnetic power of money. At the base of the pyramid were (and still are) the masses of their followers, who have benefited least, and in some cases suffered terribly, by these supposed benefactions.

But there, on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial, stood the black leaders on Aug. 27: cheek by jowl with their fellow parishioners in the great Democratic church. They too "have a dream," but it is scarcely Martin Luther King's. It dooms many millions of their own people to a permanent and crippling mendacity, and for these unfortunates it all too soon becomes a nightmare.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, Sept. 16, the 259th day of 1983. There are 106 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Sept. 16, 1850, the slave trade was forbidden in the District of Columbia.

On this date:

In 1630, the village of Shawmut, Mass., changed its name to Boston.

In 1862, the Civil War battle of Antietam in Maryland began.

In 1919, the American Legion was incorporated by an act of Congress.

And, in 1940, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Selective Service Act, which set up the first peacetime military draft in the nation's history.

Ten years ago: the military junta that took over Chile said armed civilians were still resisting authorities.

Five years ago: Nicaragua's national guard said it had retaken the nation's second largest city, Leon, from guerrillas.

Today's birthdays: "Candid Camera" creator Allen Funt is 69 years old. Actor Peter Falk is 56.

Thought for today: "Think wrongly if you please - but in all cases, think for yourself." - Gotthold Lessing, German dramatist-critic (1729-1781).

Congresswoman one of new breed

Claudine Schneider - member of Congress - makes every woman think she can do it, too.

The 36 year - old U.S. representative is Rhode Island's first woman elected to major political office. She conquered cancer to become the state's first Republican representative since 1938.

An amazing accomplishment, yet she talked like a Dutch aunt to several hundred women at the recent National Women's Political Caucus in San Antonio, telling us about her campaign.

She ran first in 1978 and lost. "But I shook hands at every bowling alley, every church, every supermarket and Rotary meeting," she said. "In a state where Democrats outnumber Republicans 15 to 1, I got 48 percent of the vote." Thus encouraged, she ran again in 1980 and won, a victory repeated in 1982.

Since money is the biggest hurdle for most women candidates, she was happy to share her ABCs of fund raising. They are:

A. "Don't overlook the small stuff."

Because she wanted the women's vote and knew women make smaller contributions, she dreamed up "Claudine's 15's": women who contributed $14 but also gave 15 hours as campaign workers and convinced 15 people to vote for Schneider.

B. "Give people something for their money." She sponsored hoodlums, boat rides on Narragansett Bay, country-western parties and yes, even bake sales, to raise money and give people something in return for their investment in her.

C. "Don't take money you'll regret." Two thousand Political Action Committees (PACs) are ready to give candidates financial backing, but says Rep. Schneider: "I don't pick PACs I can live with. I sent back checks if what the group stood for made me uncomfortable."

The dark-haired congresswoman, who makes many of her own clothes, is tall and thin and married to Eric Schneider, an oceanographer. It was he who persuaded her to run for office after both had become activists when they saw how political decisions affected their taxes, school system and environment.

She spent four years winning a citizen's campaign to keep a nuclear power plant out of Narragansett, her hometown.

Yet another, deeper reason convinced her to want a voice in the nation's capital. In 1973, she discovered she had Hodgkin's disease, cancer of the lymph nodes.

"I had surgery, then radiation. I lost my hair and, worse, my memory. I forgot phone calls, even names of friends," she said. She was ill a year, then recovered slowly for another year. "That experience made me think we are here for some obvious reason," she said, "and I feel mine is public service. I also learned the importance of willpower as it affects our lives and our health."

Here are some other observations of Rep. Schneider:

About husbands of women candidates: "It's good if they are secure in their own field, as mine is. We are close and work as a team, but I don't put his picture on my fliers."

About the gender gap: "It won't go away with smoke and mirrors - only through legislation that gives women a break on pensions, pay, insurance and day care for their children."

About political issues: "There are too few women involved in some of the key issues - energy, for example. Women who want control over their lives should learn about solar and nuclear energy, trash-to-energy schemes, conservation, foreign oil and natural gas. If we don't understand the cost and supply of energy, we can be manipulated. Energy is a women's issue too."

About being in Congress: "I like being in a position to help other people, and I'm a junkie for learning new things. When someone says something is impossible, I like proving them wrong."

Claudine Schneider is among 24 women in the House and one of the new breed of political power brokers. You'll be hearing more about her kind.

Lack of water is a global concern

Is the world in danger of running out of water?

Probably not the world as a whole, but regions surely are. Some, such as the Sahara, long have been short of water. Others have an excess, an example being the Japanese island of Yakushima which has an average annual rainfall of 26 feet.

The United Arab emirates are so dry they have talked of buying water from Japan. Oil tankers which carry Middle East oil to Japan would fill up with water for Yakushima and bring it back to the Persian Gulf. A year ago the island of Bahrain called on its people to cut their daily consumption of water from 200 gallons per person to 50 gallons. (Per capita daily use of water in the U.S. is more than 2,000 gallons, half of it being used for irrigation.)

"I think we are headed for disaster," says Dr. Peter Bourne, who heads a group in Washington, D.C., called Global Water.

As population increases and as the level of living of the average family rises, more and more water is used. And people want clean water. To provide it for more bigger cities is becoming a chore. That part of Soviet Russia that lies north and east of the Caspian and Aral seas is demanding more irrigation water. Nature made little more than a desert of much of that land, but the Uzbeks and Kazakhs are determined to live there and grow crops. They are demanding water from the director in Moscow.

By moving a lot of earth, he could bring it, reversing the course of the Ob and other rivers that flow north and making them flow south into the dry areas.

This would be costly, but worse, those comparatively warm rivers would no longer be dumping their burden into the Arctic ocean, and hence the Arctic icecap would spread southward, creating a colder climate in Europe. One cannot fool with Nature without breaking some china.

In this country, too, there is talk of bringing some needed water from the north. The Ogallala aquifer, or groundwater which stretches from Texas to the Dakotas and waters much of our best wheat - growing land, is shrinking. Pessimists say it may be gone by 1990.

To renew it, water from the Yukon and Tanana rivers in northwest Canada, which now flow through Alaska into Bering Sea, could be diverted southward through the Rocky Mountain Trench, a 1,000-mile valley between mountain ranges of British Columbia, to the American midwest.

Another possibility is a 90-mile dike across the neck of James Bay, the southernmost part of Hudson's Bay, causing more Canadian waters to flow south into the Great Lakes. From there it could be pumped to the U.S. cornfields.

These projects are perhaps no more fantastic than digging the Panama Canal was at the turn of the century, but they would cost billions. Further, when the level or course of streams is changed, cities and towns along those streams are engulfed, or the opposite, not to their liking.

Before such costly projects are carried out, much can be done to stretch our present water supplies. The price system, through which other scarce goods are rationed to consumers, should be applied to water. At present, many users are not aware of water's marginal cost, that is, the cost of using one more gallon. Water is cheap compared to other goods, and the cheaper a good is, the less it is economized.

Water should be produced and distributed by private individuals and companies, competing with one another. It should be treated just as foods are. Only when it is sold at a price, as milk is sold, will the supply be rationed out to equal the demand.

Water to many seems almost as plentiful as air, but it is not. It is an economic good, and if it is not treated as such, we are indeed headed for Dr. Bourne's "disaster."

ROCKETS AT THE READY — Druse militiamen in the Chouf Mountains village of Kalounia, Lebanon, east of Beirut, man their 122mm truck-mounted multiple rocket launchers Thursday. Druse militiamen and Lebanese army troops exchanged rocket and small arms fire during the day as efforts continued to end the fighting in the region. (AP/Laserphoto)

Mortar shells hit Marine base as Lebanese planes take to air

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. Marine base at Beirut International Airport was hit by mortar fire today as Lebanese jets divebombed Syrian-backed Druse and PLO soldiers on the surrounding hills, government communiques and witnesses said.

The daybreak air raid by the Lebanese air force marked the first time in 10 years that its warplanes staged bombing sorties. The target was a Druse force attacking the mountaintop town of Souk el-Gharb with active support from the Palestine Liberation Organization, Lebanese command communiques said.

It also was the first time the air force actively intervened in the 13-day civil war between leftist Druse Moslems, rightist Christian militias and the army in central Lebanon's Aley and Chouf mountains. The fighting started after Israeli troops evacuated the area.

Four mortar rounds hit the Marine zone about 8:35 a.m. (2:35 a.m. EDT), sending the 1,200 American peacekeepers ducking into bunkers and foxholes, Associated Press photographer Don Mell said by telephone.

No Marine injuries were reported in the salvo that struck as a heavy battle appeared to be raging between the Lebanese army and Druse fighters near the neighboring Druse-held town of Shweifat, about 300 yards from the Marines' easternmost lines, Mell said.

Four Marines have been killed and 31 wounded by artillery shells fired from the mountains landing in the Marine compound since last month.

The air force sorties set ablaze artillery and armor of insurgent forces trying to encircle the town, located nine miles east of Beirut, the communiques said. The bombings followed five days of repeated attacks by the Druse against the army's U.S.-trained 8th Brigade.

The communiques said the brigade staged an air-supported counterattack at midmorning to mop up surrounding hills from attacking Palestinians.

State and privately owned radio stations said Druse gunners unleashed a massive barrage of artillery and rocket fire on residential neighborhoods in Christian east Beirut in an apparent retaliation for the air action.

There was no immediate report on the number of people killed and wounded in the bombing runs. Police said Thursday the Lebanese casualty toll stood at 653 dead and 1,484 wounded in the renewed civil war.

The Druse strongholds in and around the neighboring central mountain towns of Aley, Aitah and Keifoun also were blasted by the six British-made Hawker Hunter jets that comprise Lebanon's air force, the communiques said.

The Marines' zone is within artillery range of Souk el-Gharb, eight miles southeast of Beirut and four miles southeast of the Marine base.

The communiques said the attackers included units from the dissident guerrillas of PLO Col. Saeed Mousa who rebelled against PLO chairman Yasser Arafat's leadership with Syria's support in May.

Senate Democrats pushing to bind Reagan to war powers act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats, in their "final position" on the future of the U.S. Marine contingent in Lebanon, are pushing to legally bind President Reagan the 60 to 90-day time limit spelled out in the War Powers Act.

Under legislation introduced with a 29-0 endorsement by the Democratic caucus Thursday, the president would have to withdraw the troops within that time frame unless Congress declared war or otherwise authorized them to remain longer.

The legislation declares that the clock started to run on Aug. 29, when the first two of four Marines to die in shelling attacks in Beirut were killed.

"This is my final position and the final position of the Democrats in caucus," Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said. He added, however, that negotiations had not broken down.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., expressed "the hope that we can still exercise a degree of cooperation in bringing this problem to a bipartisan solution."

Earlier in the day, Baker offered a compromise under which Reagan would ask Congress to act on the matter "within the scope of the War Powers Act" but would not invoke its time-limit provisions.

Congress would then pass legislation authorizing the Marines to stay, which Baker said would "almost certainly" not be an open ended, or blank check, authorization.

This was not enough for the Democrats, who had voted unanimously on Wednesday to demand that Reagan invoke on his own part of the act that limits his authority to keep troops in a hostile zone.

Since Reagan has refused to do this, maintaining it would infringe on his powers as commander-in-chief, the Democrats decided to introduce a bill that would declare the time limits in effect. An aide to the GOP leadership, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Baker believes the issue is still open to negotiation despite Byrd's "final position" statement.

Miss Ohio, Miss New Jersey win beauty pageant preliminaries

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss New Jersey sang her way to a preliminary talent victory, while Miss Ohio won the swimsuit competition despite a year of law school that left her feeling she needed to diet.

Suzette Charles, of Mays Landing, N.J., won Thursday's preliminary talent competition with a rendition of "Kiss Me In The Rain," a song popularized by Barbra Streisand.

Pamela H. Rigas, Miss Ohio, predicted that when her law school classmates at the University of Cincinnati heard of her victory Thursday night, "they'll probably be screaming and bringing the newspaper articles to school."

Miss Charles, 20, has had 15 years of voice training during which she has performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., at a casino-hotel in this seaside resort and in 17 television commercials.

No black woman has ever been crowned Miss America, but Miss Charles was the second black contestant to capture a division of this year's preliminaries. The other was Miss New York, Vanessa Williams, who won the swimsuit competition Wednesday night.

If she were crowned Miss America on Saturday night, Miss Charles said, "I'd feel ecstatic, I think I'd make history. It would certainly launch my career, and that would be even better."

Miss Rigas, 22, said that "First-year law students have a lot of time to gain weight and sit around reading. I could tell a definite change in my body after this year."

But she said she did not feel self-conscious parading down the runway in her deep-lilac swimsuit. "I feel more intimidated walking on a beach than walking on the runway," she said.

A third of the 50 contestants competed in the evening gown 'Golden Triangle' recovery

10 years away, study says

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The petrochemicals industry in the Beaumont-Port Arthur area ultimately will become more cost-effective because of the current economic slump, a new report says.

However, the petroleum and petrochemical industries in the "Golden Triangle" of Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange — which lost more than 10,000 jobs in the 18-month period ending in June — won't recover economically for at least a decade, according to a John Gray Institute report titled "Energy Industry Outlook."

"The petroleum and petrochemical industries are probably not going to be significantly increasing in employment for the rest of this decade," said Art Adamson, editor and co-author of the report.

"And we also have found that there probably will not be a large amount of new construction in those industries for the rest of the decade," Adamson told the Port Arthur News in a copyright story published Thursday.

Construction employment in the "Golden Triangle" of Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange dropped 39 percent in 5 1/2 years, accounting for the loss of 6,500 jobs, Adamson said.

Currently, a problem in the petrochemicals industry is that some plants in the area are too large and costly to produce a small amount of a product at a competitive price, according to the report.

The report says the Golden Triangle petrochemicals industry has a third more capacity than it needs to meet current demand.

To adapt to new demands, the industry will restructure itself in order to become more cost-effective, the report predicts.

"This restructuring will take time," the report says. "Across the industry, development of cost-efficient processes, operations and products will be emphasized."

Adamson said the downturn in the oil industry — the root category Thursday night, but the judges' choice is kept secret to add suspense to the selection of the 10 finalists Saturday night. The contestants are divided into three groups for the preliminary competitions and by tonight will have competed in each of the three categories.

Winning a preliminary division gives contestants an edge in reaching the finals, but does not ensure a spot among the top 10 finishers.

Police locate body of child

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who allegedly fatally beat his 2-year-old daughter and then weighted her body down with two 30-pound automobile batteries and tossed it into a bayou faces murder charges after law officers pulled the badly decomposed body from the murky water.

After searching Buffalo Bayou since Sunday, officers on Thursday found the body of Monett Yvonne Cornelius in 28 feet of water, said Houston Police Department detective David Collier.

Police arrested Larrimore Cornelius, the child's father, last weekend after he brought officers to the bayou and said he had dropped Monett there. He was charged with murder and is being held in the Harris County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Ted Wilson, an assistant district attorney handling the case, had said the charge against Cornelius might have been dropped if the girl's body had not been found.

The girl apparently was killed Aug. 30. The apparent motive of the murder was a "discipline problem," Cornelius and his wife Tressie, 24, had with the child.

The girl had been placed in a foster home two months after she was born.

Katie McDonald goes to Washington

Katie McDonald, Gray County 4-H leader, is representing the Texas 4-H program this week in Washington, D. C. at the 1983 National 4-H Volunteer Leader Forum on Nutrition. She is one of three 4-H leaders selected from 4-H leaders across Texas to attend the forum.

While in Washington, Mrs. McDonald will be sharing innovative ideas in workshops with Extension staff, experts from the food nutrition industry and volunteer leaders from other states. She will also have the opportunity to explore the latest thinking concerning topics such as practical ideas and tools to promote nutrition education, letting food work for you, and expanding the leadership role.

Also included as special dividends for participants will be an opportunity to investigate cultural heritage through field trips in Washington, D. C., a tour of the Campbell Soup Company in Camden, N. J., and a visit to Independence National Historical Park in Philadelphia, Penn.

Mrs. McDonald is to become a member of the Texas 4-H

Food and Nutrition Planning Committee responsible for planning the 4-H Foods and Nutrition Leader Training at the Texas 4-H Center in Brownwood. She will also be sharing ideas with other leaders in Gray County as well as other counties on request.

Mrs. McDonald, her husband Lee, and two of their four children have been active in many phases of the 4-H program.

She has been an outstanding 4-H leader in Gray County while serving as a 4-H foods and clothing leader. This year she will also be working as a leader with the E. T. 4-H Club in Pampa.

Dear Abby

Bachelor can't seem to help following female drivers

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am an unmarried man, 34 years old, and I've got what I think is a serious problem that I can't seem to correct myself.

Although I date a few women and don't consider myself sexually starved, I have a compulsion to follow women drivers whom I spot on the freeways and find attractive. I've done this probably 50 or 75 times in the past two years. I never approach them, never talk to them, never even smile or wave. I just follow their cars until they pull into a garage or up a driveway. Then I usually park nearby and watch them walk into their homes or into a shop.

Now, believe me when I say I get no sexual arousal from any of them, although it leaves me feeling very good. I can't figure out why I do it and can't seem to break the habit, even though it sometimes costs me a couple hours a day, not to mention gas money.

I am a professional man with a few degrees and lots of awards for my work. Please don't tell me I need professional help, because I don't think my habit is hurting anyone, or even me. It's simply puzzling.

Have you any opinions on my problem and how to stop it?

JUST LOOKING

DEAR JUST: I think you have a form of voyeurism. (You get your jollies from looking.)

The "harm" can be in carrying it to the point of violating the privacy of another, which is punishable by law if you should make a nuisance of yourself.

Better nip this in the bud, buddy. A professional man has a lot to lose. And don't dodge professional help, because that's exactly what you need.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I gave up drinking. It's been several months now and I am much happier with my life. I've had no shaking, craving or other symptoms associated with alcohol withdrawal.

I do not plan to drink again, but here is the problem: The very people who decided that I drank too much before now tell me that since I'm not drinking I'm not "any fun" to go out with anymore. How should I respond?

SOBER IN ST. PAUL

DEAR SOBER: This way: "Sorry to disappoint you, but if one of us has to be disappointed, I'd rather it be you."

...

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man, getting married soon to a wonderful young woman. This is a first for both of us. I earn a good living, have a nice amount of equity and am financially secure.

However, I have one great insecurity. No matter how perfect my fiancée and I seem for each other, there's always a possibility of divorce. I would really like to have a prenuptial agreement, but I'm afraid if I mentioned it, she would be against it.

Your opinion would be greatly appreciated.

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: Today there's a 50-50 chance that your marriage will end in divorce, so don't be a dumb cluck. Explain this to your "chick," and if she really loves you, she won't fly the coop.

...

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Ice Capades to appear in Amarillo

Ice Capades' newest musical revue "Hello World, Hello" continues today through Sunday, Sept. 25, at the Amarillo Civic Center with six performances.

Headlining the cast is World Professional Champion and Canadian Men's Champion Ron Shaver.

The vibrant and interpretative skills of U. S. National Silver Medalist, Lisa-Marie Allen, are showcased in Ice Capades' all-new extravaganza, "Hello World, Hello."

Five local artists win in Perryton show

Four Pampa artists and craftsmen placed in the First National Bank of Perryton's Art Show.

Gerald Sanders won first place in the open medium division with his cast paper entitled "Ghost Canyon."

Karen Bonnell won second place honors in the watercolor division with her painting of a landscape with ducks. Tom Gibson, a former Pampa resident now living in Canadian, won second place in the open medium division with an etched glass piece entitled "The Garden."

Lois Minnick brought home third place honors in the oil painting division for her painting called "Creek Bed."

Peggy Palmetier won fourth place in the open medium with a copper enamel creation named "Moon Glow."

Pampa's artists were among 116 entered in the Perryton Show. More than 350 works of art were displayed.

United Way kickoff luncheon

Hats, hats, hats — these young women from Genesis House, a United Way agency, are preparing hatbands for more than 500 hats to be worn at the United Way kick-off during the Pampa Chamber of Commerce luncheon,

Tuesday, Sept. 20, at noon. Keynote speaker is to be Senator Bill Sarpaulis. Pampa High School's stage band and the Gold Coaters are to be on hand. Reservations for the luncheon should be made through the Chamber of Commerce, 669-3241. (Staff photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

Computer craze hits camping

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — If Steffan Gross is asked to write an essay on how he spent his summer vacation, the 11-year-old computer whiz is likely to tell of making decisions involving no less than the future of the world.

adventures in software. Steffan, who lives in New Providence, N.J., is one of thousands of youngsters across the country combining fantasy with hands-on learning by taking part in the computer camp boom.

Drew University here and other colleges have offered day programs taught by mathematics professors on campus; a few camps are run by corporations.

Many camp directors say they plan to continue or expand their programs next summer.

MADD here plans organization meeting

In the last 10 years, more than 250,000 Americans have died as a result of an auto crash with a drunk driver, according to officials of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers (MADD).

Officer Jerry Burgdorf is to show a film, "Epidemic."

"There's such an interest in computers, you have to keep up," said Tim Moss, special projects coordinator for the Appel Farms camp in Elmer.

"You've just got to do it since the kids are much more likely to sign up for a camp with computers."

MADD is fighting to stop the senseless slaughter of Americans by intoxicated drivers. Every time a drunk gets behind the wheel of a car and pulls on to the road, he's risking someone's life.

MADD membership is not limited to women or mothers. For more information, call 665-8072 or 665-8887.

Computers help brain-damaged

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Therapists at Good Samaritan Hospital and Medical Center have harnessed the magic that mesmerizes video-game junkies to rehabilitate brain-damaged patients.

relations, said. "These people often stop paying attention to what happens on their left side."

The 9-month-old "cognitive retraining" program has proven so successful that plans to expand it are under way, Daniel Blackwood, program director of Good Sam's Neuropsychological Services said.

"In reading, their eyes go from left to right but don't return," he said. "They may eat only on the right side of their plate and, in fact, may start eating off the left side of the plate next to them. Or they may bump their wheelchair repeatedly into the left door jamb while trying to go through the door. The computer helps this with a variety of visual scanning games."

Most of the patients are stroke or accident victims battling to regain the lost memory and to improve concentration ability or lengthen attention span.

"Memory is also a problem with stroke or head injury victims," Riggs said. "They may have difficulty recalling something read or retaining facts. Some fascinating recall games are used."

Under the guidance of a behavioral health technician, they use specially written programs tailored to restoring specific functions.

So far about three dozen people — both inpatients and outpatients — have benefited from the program, Blackwood said. "The youngest is 4, and it goes through the 70s."

Gospel meeting at Church of Christ

Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ will have a series of special meetings Sunday through Wednesday with Gene Glaeser Jr., son of present minister Glen Glaeser, speaking.

Services will be at 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7:30 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

His theme is "Real Love Is from the Heart." Subjects to be discussed are "Liberating Myself for Involvement," "What Involvement Involves," "Who Am I?," "You Are an Important Part" and "Our Goal: Perfection in Christ."

Glaeser will discuss "The Lessons of Tears" in a special Ladies Class at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Currently pulpit minister at the Hillcrest Church of Christ at Gainesville, Glaeser graduated from Plainview High School. He has a bachelor of arts degree in Bible from Abilene Christian University. He served in Pearsall before moving to Gainesville.

Lessons for women planned

First Christian Church will begin a series of weekly lessons on woman's personal development at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Flame Room of the Energas building, 220 N. Ballard.

Julie Riphahn will teach the first lesson of the series, which will be based on material from the Bible concerning the role of women.

"A relationship with God can permeate every aspect of a woman's daily life," Ms. Riphahn said.

The first lesson will be followed by a pot-luck luncheon at 11:45 a.m.

Subsequent weekly lessons will be from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at 820 N. Christy. Babysitting will be provided.

Bookdealers protesting 'silent' censorship

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Protests came from many Christian book dealers this week against what they call a "silent censorship" of books with a religious perspective — even those for which demand is big.

They said many religiously oriented books, even big sellers, are mostly skipped by reviewers, general bookstores and as a result, by general best-seller lists.

"This also tends to keep such books from libraries and schools, which look to the authorities to see what is happening in the reading world," says William R. Anderson of the Christian Booksellers Association in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"It's a kind of selective, silent censorship, but it's just as damaging as the more overt types," he said in a phone interview.

The "banned books" charge, raised in displays in numerous Christian bookstores across the country, provided an ironic counterpoint to the "banned books week" being observed in many general bookstores.

They, under sponsorship of the American Booksellers Association and others, cited a list of 93 titles challenged or restricted, often in schools on grounds of belittling chastity, parents or religion.

"Don't take the First Amendment lightly," reads a poster for the secular campaign for freedom of ideas.

To that, the religious booksellers add their "amen," although they don't back morally questionable reading fare for school children — a parental complaint in some cases of books listed as restricted by general bookstores.

The problem of "silent censorship" of religious books doesn't result from some planned conspiracy, writes Cal Thomas in his current big-selling "Book Burning," published by Crossway Books.

"He contends 'everyone has a right to speak' but 'the Christian voice is being choked off' despite the fact that most Americans espouse Judeo-Christian values. He writes:

"There is a tendency to keep Christian thinking out of the mainstream, to marginalize it and make it look like a product of a 'fringe' group."

Anderson and various religious publishers cite numerous other high-selling, religiously based books, their outlets mostly restricted to religious bookstores and largely bypassed in outlets for the general public, including:

"The Act of Marriage" by the Rev. Tim LaHaye, which has sold 1.2 million copies since 1979; "Joni" by Joni Erkson, which has sold 1.4 million copies since 1978, both published by Zondervan.

Also several books by pediatrician James Dobson, published by Tyndale House, including "Strong Willed Children," which has sold 400,000 copies since 1978; "What Wives Wish Their Husbands Knew About Women," about 1 million copies since 1980, and "Dr. Dobson Answers Your Questions," 175,000 copies since 1982.

Most any of these, statistically, would qualify as best sellers, but don't make the general lists, since the sales are mostly in religion bookstores, which aren't included in compiling the lists.

Religious Roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious leaders express dismay and condemnation at the Soviet's shooting down of a South Korean airliner, but they also insist the event must not deter efforts to curb the arms race and secure peace.

Calling the attack which took 269 lives "an act of murder," Archbishop John R. Roach, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said it also shows the "danger and fragility" of current international relations.

"Despite this massive and evil tragedy, U.S.-Soviet negotiations on nuclear arms limitation must continue," he added.

United Methodist Bishop James Armstrong of Indiana, president of the National Council of Churches, and its general secretary, Presbyterian Claire Randall, telegraphed Russian church leaders that the shooting demonstrates the "disastrous consequences" of relying on armed force.

They said it also "highlights the important roles of our respective churches in seeking to heal political divisions separating our nations if trust and hope are to replace fear, anger and the growing arms race which claim a rising toll of human lives."

Lutheran Presiding Bishop David W. Preus of the American Lutheran Church said the attack was both "personal tragedy" and a "blow to the entire human family's hopes for peaceful resolution of conflicts."

But he said "we must continue talking with our adversaries and friends to seek safeguards so that members of the human family are not sacrificed to any nation's pride or obsessive concern for security."

The American Friends Service Committee, representing Quakers, said "no explanation can justify so brutal an act," but added:

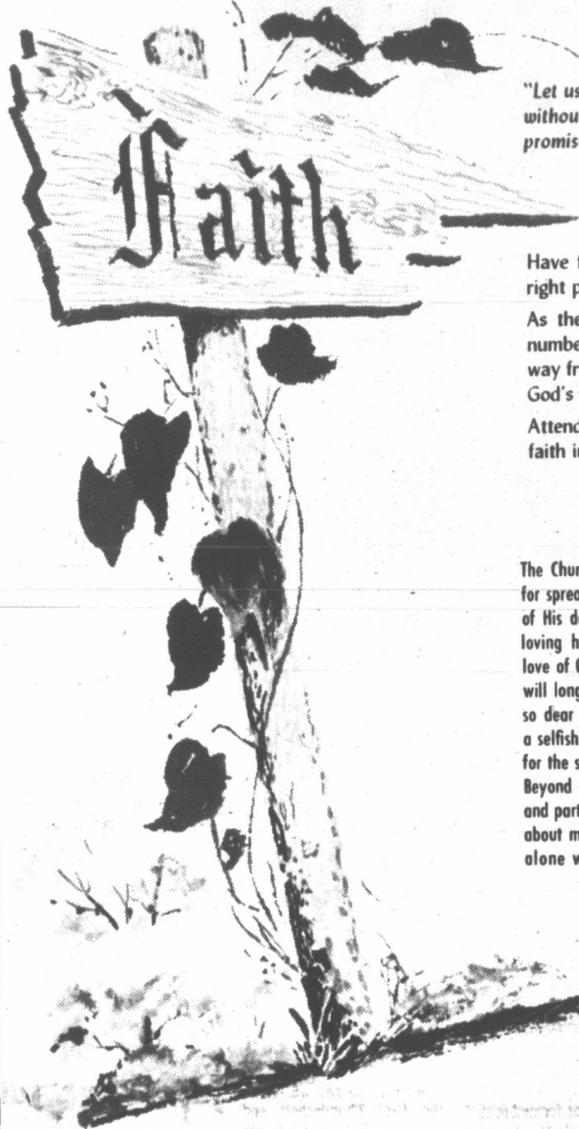

"We are made fearful by President Reagan's use of the incident in hate-mongering against the Soviet Union and in pushing for a greater increase in arms production by the United States."

The "incident demonstrates the inevitable consequences of militarization and extreme nationalism," the committee says, adding that "what is needed now is not more anti-Soviet, or anti-American rhetoric, not more arms," but "increased dialogue and understanding, a reduction in tensions."

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Catholic Women, an independent organization, challenges Pope John Paul II's assertion that the church's barring of women from the priesthood has nothing to do with discrimination against them.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Coleman Adv. Serv.

"Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised.)"

Have faith in God. He will lead us in the right paths. He will never fail.

As the highways are clearly marked and numbered so that we might easily find our way from city to city and across the nation, God's word clearly marks life's paths.

Attend church regularly and exercise your faith in God.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Missionaries back anti-government protests

By KERNAN TURNER
Associated Press Writer
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Roman Catholic missionaries are providing strong moral support for the exploding anti-government unrest among Chile's poor.

While Chile's Catholic hierarchy takes a conciliatory role to promote talks between the government and the political opposition, priests who live and work in Santiago's slums defend demonstrations against President Augusto Pinochet's military regime.

Scores of Chilean and foreign missionaries have been caught up in the confrontations between demonstrators and armed riot police during the monthly opposition-led "Days of National Protest" that began in May.

Some have played heroic roles defusing confrontations and called for peaceful protests. Others preach the legitimacy of violence to counter repression that has left 50 people dead in five months of unrest.

Their involvement is a continuation of the role priests and other members of the clergy have played in recent political drives to end poverty and illiteracy and promote human rights throughout South and Central America. In Nicaragua, for example, some priests are leading members of the Sandinista movement.

"It is very difficult to condemn violence," said the Rev. Ronaldo Munoz, a theologian who lives in the Santiago slum neighborhood of La Granja. "I have the obligation to tell people to think about their actions. But I don't have the right to tell a father to watch his wife or children killed before defending himself."

The Rev. David Murphy, an English priest in the Maip section of Santiago, says, "The church always accompanies each side in a battle between armies. If my people go out to risk their lives at barricades, I must go with them. The church must be present."

Bishops in this largely Catholic country have long irritated Pinochet by criticizing the disappearance and torture of hundreds of political prisoners. They have also spoken against the government's tolerance of high unemployment, which is 30 percent nationwide and double that in many slums.

The government often accuses the church of being infiltrated by Marxists. Three foreign missionaries were expelled in March for what the government called politically suspect activity.

Since the monthly protests started, the bishops have been more restrained.

But many priests have become involved in the protest movement. Last Saturday some of them organized a funeral Mass and march for an unarmed worker shot to death by policemen in Santiago's La Victoria neighborhood.

Eleven people were killed in four cities during four nights of protests that ended Sunday on the 10th anniversary of the coup that deposed elected Marxist President Salvador Allende and put Pinochet in power.

More than 6,000 mourners marched in the nine mile funeral procession while another 30,000 lined the route, chanting anti-Pinochet slogans. Police greeted the marchers with tear gas as they arrived at the cemetery.

A battle was halted single-handedly by the Rev. Pierre DuBois, the French parish priest of La Victoria, who rushed between police and mourners shouting, "The people can be calmed, but not if you assault them." The police withdrew.

Two of DuBois' parishioners have died in the monthly protests. The windows of his home have been shattered with rocks and bullets, and his chapel has been the object of an arson attempt.

In an interview, DuBois said his role in the demonstrations is to act as a witness "denouncing what we have seen." Government agents, he said, "have come after the church with new fury because they know the church is going to blame them for the violence."

Chilean slum dwellers have a high political consciousness. For many years before Pinochet took power, they were accustomed to working and taking part in a democracy with the encouragement of priests who organized "Christian communities" in the slums starting in the 1960s.

"The Chilean people are being oppressed by a system that takes their work away from them," said DuBois.

World War II pilot proud of all-black unit

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — There's no bitterness when Charles Bailey remembers segregation policies in World War II when he flew 133 combat missions as a fighter pilot against the Luftwaffe and protected white bomber crews on sorties against the enemy.

But he proudly recalls that the all-black 99th Fighter Squadron never lost a bomber to enemy aircraft.

"There's no other unit can say that," Bailey says with a smile as he relaxes in the small office of the funeral home he operates in this quiet college town.

The 99th was formed in 1941 although actual training didn't begin until early the following year.

"It was the first all-black squadron in the world," Bailey says, browsing through memorabilia pulled from a desk drawer. Behind him on a wall hang photos of him and five brothers who served in U.S. armed forces in that war. A sixth brother, Carl, flew jets in the Korean War.

Ground school, primary, basic and advance flight training were all concentrated at Tuskegee Institute in Alabama, he recalls. There, pilots learned to fly in PT-17s, BT-13s and AT-6s.

Bailey joined the cadet program in late 1942 after finishing two years at Bethune-Cookman College.

At 6-foot-2, Bailey still shows the physical strength that earned him a football scholarship to college and carried him through 3,000 hours in the air — most of it combat time.

He received his wings and commission as a second lieutenant in 1943 and went to Casablanca to join the 99th, which was later moved to Tunis in the fight against Rommel, commander of the German Afrika Korps.

In Africa, the black U.S. Army Air Corps squadron was assigned P-40 fighters and Bailey recalls the transition to that warplane.

"There was no practice. They told us, 'take that plane and fly it.'"

After Africa, the squadron was sent to Sicily.

"I flew missions all over Italy, to France, Austria, South Germany and Poland," he recalls. His squadron also went with the bombers that made repeated raids on the Ploesti oilfields in Romania.

In Italy, the 99th was given the P-47 Thunderbolt and later the P-51 Mustang. It was then the squadron was nicknamed "The Red Tails."

During the fighting at Anzio, Bailey shot down two German fighters and, by the time the war ended, was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters.

There were few problems with whites, he explains, because the races seldom came in contact — even at airfields.

"The whites had their landing strip, and we had ours," is his explanation.

Don't believe report from Census Bureau on McAllen

By CAM ROSSIE
Associated Press Writer
McALLEN, Texas (AP) — Home buyers will be surprised if they rely on a new Census Bureau report that says the nation's lowest median-valued homes are found in the McAllen area, local real estate agents say.

"They make it sound like we're all living in little cardboard houses here," said agent Laura Mesquita of McAllen.

The report, based on the 1980 Census of Housing, says the median value of owner-occupied homes in the McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area of South Texas is $23,900.

That means half the area's houses were valued at more than that price and half at less.

The national median for an owner-occupied home in any metropolitan area was $47,200, according to the Census Bureau, which listed the $138,000 price of a home in Stamford, Conn. as being the highest median value in the country.

"There aren't many $23,000 homes or even, really, $30,000 to $40,000 homes on the (McAllen area) market,"

Mrs. Mesquita said.

Fred Ruthven, McAllen Board of Realtors president, said the median value of homes in the three-city area is about $69,000.

"I really was very disappointed in it (the report) because most people don't answer very truthfully the questions regarding the value of their homes on the census forms," he said.

"They really don't feel the government should be involved in their personal net worth and some people don't understand the question. Some pass it over," Ruthven said.

A $23,900 home, according to Mrs. Mesquita, "is probably frame, two bedroom, one bath and not in a good location."

"It's something you could probably live in if you had to," she said.

A home that sold for $24,000 in Edinburg recently fit that description.

The tiny, white frame home has two small bedrooms, one bathroom and a carport. It has no foundation, but sits on beam supports.

Mrs. Mesquita obtained a computer printout of all homes sold in the area over the last three months by real estate agents who belong to the area's board of realtors.

The cheapest home in McAllen sold for $25,000 during that period, while the most expensive went for $420,000.

In Edinburg, the least expensive home was purchased for $14,950. The three-bedroom, one bath was listed as "in need of repair" and sold in that condition.

The most expensive home in Edinburg sold by a real estate agent went for $149,000.

In Pharr, the cheapest two-bedroom frame house went for $26,500. The most expensive house sold for $80,000.

"I don't know what they used for records," she said of the Census Bureau. "I'm just going by the Multiple Listing Book."

The book, put out by the board of realtors, contains all the homes listed by member real estate agents, she said.

The Census Bureau compiled the housing information during the 1980 census in basically the same manner as the national population is counted.

People mailed in their forms, stating the value their property would sell for. If the house were being sold, they were asked to list the asking price for the property, said Bill Downs of the Census Bureau's housing division in Washington.

Using these responses, the bureau then came up with the median-priced home in the nation's metropolitan areas.

The figures were for single-family dwellings on property of less than 10 acres and do not include the price for mobile homes or live-in boats, he said.

Using the responses, the bureau then came up with the median-priced home in the nation's metropolitan areas.

"The facts are not substantiated by any real estate marketing procedure," he said.

Tourism is big business

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite the recession, travelers in Texas last year spent $13.7 billion, up 9 percent from the previous year, the Texas Tourist Development Agency said today.

The agency, quoting figures compiled by the U.S. Travel Data Center in Washington, D.C., said the Texas travel industry's rate of growth was five times that of the national travel rate, which grew by only 1.8 percent.

State taxes paid by travelers reached $317 million, the agency said, while another $162 million was paid in local taxes.

Travel-related jobs in Texas increased to 283,917, up 4.1 percent. Nationally, travel employment fell 2 percent.

The travel payroll in Texas was $2.9 billion.

Harris County led the 254 counties in Texas with travel receipts of $3.3 billion. Dallas County had $3.1 billion and Tarrant County $1.2 billion.

Fourteen more counties collected $100 million or more in travel money, including, in order:

- Bexar $895 million, Travis $356 million, El Paso $346 million, Cameron $301 million, Nueces $274 million, Galveston $217 million, Hidalgo $189 million, Jefferson $174 million, Potter $165 million, Lubbock $162 million, McLennan $114 million, Midland $112 million, Webb $106 million and Bell $100 million.

The study includes spending by Americans on overnight trips, and day trips at least 100 miles from home.

Wright powers Rangers past A's

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — George Wright's back and shoulder muscles seem too big for his body, as if he wears football pads under his Texas Rangers uniform. Sitting without a shirt in the dressing room, it seems as though the pads must be hidden under his skin.

At the plate, Wright uses those muscles to propel the ball with more power than a 5-foot-11, 180-pounder normally has, swinging the bat smoothly through the pitch.

In his second major league season, Wright has emerged as a legitimate slugger, although he's the first to admit that he's far from reaching his potential.

Wright walloped his 18th homer of the season in the first inning Thursday, then capped a four-run rally in the seventh with a long, two-run double off the bat handle as he led the Rangers to a 6-5 victory over the Oakland A's.

The three runs batted in gave him 80 RBI, tops on the club.

"I'm not really where I want to be, but I'm trying to learn," Wright said. "Every day, I'm just trying to learn something...I think you can learn just by sitting back and watching what everybody else does."

He doesn't sit back too often, though. He's played every game this year, except one. A couple of weeks ago, he felt himself getting into a rut and sat out a game.

"One was enough," he said. "I don't want to sit out too long. I get anxious sitting and watching, want to get back in there."

Wright said he'd probably have more homers, perhaps another 10 this year, if he were playing in a more accommodating home park than Arlington Stadium, where the fences are deep and the wind frequently blows potential homers into outfielders' gloves.

Wright hit 11 homers in 150 games in his rookie season and had only 21 homers in four minor league seasons. But his ability to hit with power is no surprise to him.

"I hit for power in high school," he said. "I know it's not the same caliber of pitching, but I can hit the ball hard."

Teammate Bucky Dent also can hit the ball hard, but he doesn't usually knock it over fences. Against the A's, though, Dent connected on what he called his "second annual homer," a solo shot in the second inning that gave Texas a 2-0 lead.

"We thought about giving him the silent treatment," said Wright, "but we went out there and shook his hand. We knew Bucky was going to get his sometime. He's been just missing, and he finally got it."

Dent's first homer of the year came almost exactly one year after his only homer of 1982.

"I've been hitting lots of line drives like that, but this one carried over," said Dent. "In Texas, with the wind blowing in, it would have been an out."

Davey Lopes saw a big day at the plate wasted. He singled twice as the A's took a 4-2 lead with a pair of runs in the fourth and fifth. After the Rangers' rally, he cut their lead to 6-5 when he scored after a triple in the seventh. He was in the on-deck circle when the A's made their final out.

College Picks

Big weekend ahead on college football scene

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

It's only September, but one of the most important weekends of the college football season is coming up.

Rarely have there been this many big games this early — Ohio State at Oklahoma, Texas at Auburn, Michigan at Washington, West Virginia at Maryland, all members of the Associated Press Top Twenty. And that doesn't include Georgia at Clemson and Iowa at defending national champion, but 0-2, Penn State.

Now that second-ranked Oklahoma has managed to overcome pass-happy Stanford, the Sooners have to face No. 6 Ohio State and the Buckeyes merely have the nation's No. 1-ranked passer in Mike Tomczak.

Woody Hayes never would believe it, but there stands Tomczak at the top of the NCAA's complex passing chart with 228.5 points. In the Buckeyes' opening 31-6 victory over Oregon, Tomczak completed 21 of 25 passes for 273 yards and four touchdowns. If you know how that figures out to 228.5 points, go to the head of the class.

At any rate, the Sooners, playing at home, are a 6 1/2-point favorite. The pick is Oklahoma 24-14.

Last week's record was 37 right, 17 wrong and one tie for a .685 percentage. For the young season, the count is 57-30-1—655. Against the spread, last week was only 9-13—409; for the year, 11-17—393.

No. 3 Texas at Auburn (favored by 2): Texas hasn't played a game yet, but last weekend was a bad one nevertheless. Quarterback Todd Dodge suffered a separated shoulder (not his throwing one) and star linebacker Jeff Leiding wound up in the hospital with a 16-stitch cut on his leg from a boating mishap. Auburn 14-10.

No. 8 Michigan at No. 16 Washington (4): Washington 21-14.

No. 20 West Virginia at No. 17 Maryland (3): Jeff Hostetler and Boomer Esiason, two of the better quarterbacks around, square off. West Virginia 24-21.

No. 1 Nebraska (28) at Minnesota: Nebraska 49-7.

Michigan State at No. 4 Notre Dame (17): Notre Dame 38-14.

No. 7 Arizona (7) at Washington State: Upset Special of the Week. Washington State 28-27.

No. 9 Florida State (10) at Tulane: Florida State 35-21.

Miami of Ohio at No. 10 North Carolina (no line): North Carolina 28-7.

No. 11 Georgia (1-1-2) at Clemson: Clemson 20-17.

Mississippi at No. 12 Alabama (19): Alabama 31-14.

No. 13 Iowa (3) at Penn State: Penn State 20-14.

No. 14 Southern California (22) at Oregon State: Southern Cal 42-7.

Hit by Pitch

Los Angeles Dodgers' manager Tom Lasorda, left, checks out Pedro Guerrero who was just hit in the head by a Nolan Ryan fastball during fifth-inning action Thursday against the Houston Astros. Guerrero was okay and remained in the game, which the Dodgers won, 6-0. (AP Laserphoto)

Dodgers blank Astros

HOUSTON (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers left town Thursday night with Alejandro Pena's 6-0 shut out victory over Houston that virtually shattered the Astros' hopes of a National League Western Division title.

Dodger third baseman Pedro Guerrero just had a shattered helmet.

Pena's shutout, which lowered his earned run average to a National League leading 2.18, helped the Dodger cause but Houston starter Nolan Ryan also contributed to the loss with six walks and two hit batsmen, including Guerrero in LA's three-run fifth inning.

"I feel extremely pleased, extremely happy, mainly because I beat Nolan Ryan," said Pena, 26. "I never expected this. But these things happen. I'll take it any time.

Ryan sent Guerrero sprawling in the fifth inning with a pitch that hit Guerrero in the back of the head, shattering his batting helmet.

"After he hit me I was thinking I was... dead," Guerrero said. "It's a very good helmet."

The Dodger victory made believers of the Astros.

"If pitching is the name of the game, they are going to win," Astros first baseman Ray Knight said. "They are going to win a lot of games on pitching alone."

Ryan's problems started in the third inning when Mike Marshall singled, stole second, went to third on Guerrero's single and scored on Ryan's wild pitch.

Two more runs scored in the fourth on Bill Russell's two-run single before Ryan's wildness finally sent him to the showers in the fifth.

Ryan yielded a double to Marshall and hit Guerrero and Ken Landreaux to load the bases. A sacrifice fly by R.J. Reynolds, Rick Munday's single and a wild pitch by reliever Mike LaCoss provided three more runs.

Los Angeles Manager Tommy Lasorda was glad to see Ryan leave the game in the fifth inning.

"I've never seen Ryan this wild," Lasorda said. "He liked to put our guys out of commission. It scared the daylights out of me when he hit Pete. He's very lucky."

The victory dropped the Astros 8 1/2 games behind the Dodgers' lead in the National League Western Division and diminished the Astros' chances for a title.

DALLAS (AP) — Here are highlights of Southwest Conference football games upcoming this weekend:

TEXAS (9-3 in '82) at AUBURN (1-0 in '83) — 11:38 a.m., CBS-TV. The third-ranked Longhorns open their 91st season against fifth-ranked Auburn on national television. Texas lost their last game, the 1974 Gator Bowl, but holds a 3-1 series advantage. Tigers opened this year with a 24-3 win over Southern Mississippi. Longhorns' last opening loss was to Boston College in 1976. Texas quarterback picture is a bit muddled with five-way competition for starting job. Leader Todd Dodge was injured last week. John Walker gives Texas an experienced runner behind a senior line headed by guard Doug Dawson. UT defense is among the SWC's best with linebackers and a swift secondary. Auburn's Lionel James rushed for 172 yards on 16 carries against Southern Mississippi.

ARKANSAS STATE (2-0) at TEXAS A&M (0-1), 6 p.m. — Arkansas State

Indians have shown versatility in two victories, coming from behind under guidance of reserve quarterback Tim Langford for a 27-14 victory over Tennessee-Chattanooga, and opening the season with a 31-0 win over Tennessee-Martin. The Aggies had a big offensive day before losing their opener to California-Berkeley, 19-17 in a wild finish. New Aggie quarterback John Mazur, a Southern Cal transfer, hit 20 of 33 passes for 243 yards and two touchdowns. Doug Siler caught six for 107 yards and the two scores. Aggies are number two in SWC passing offense, and fifth in total offense. Indians run a wishbone offense under Coach Larry Lacewell, former Oklahoma assistant. It is the first meeting between the teams.

TCU (0-0-1) at KANSAS STATE (0-2), 7 p.m. — Both teams looking for their first win. TCU had 16-16 tie with Kansas last weekend in home opener and debut of new coach Jim Wacker. Wildcats suffered 31-12 loss to Kentucky last week after losing opener 28-20 to Long Beach State.

HELEN REDDY JEFFREY WALD

Names in the News

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Helen Reddy and her former husband, Jeffrey Wald, have agreed to settle the differences in their bitter divorce without a trial. Ms. Reddy's attorney says.

Under the agreement, the two will share legal custody of their 10-year-old son, Jordan Sommers Wald, said lawyer Gary Olsen on Thursday.

The boy will move each week from Ms. Reddy's home in Brentwood to Wald's home in nearby Beverly Hills, but he will remain at the same private school that he has been attending, Olsen said.

"I think that arrangement is probably the boy's best interests, rather than forcing him to undergo a custody battle," he said.

The agreement reached in nine hours of negotiations Monday says that Ms. Reddy, 42, will keep all her earnings as an entertainer and Wald will keep all his profits as a personal manager, Olsen said.

The agreement forestalled a trial scheduled to begin Wednesday, and Olsen said he, expected to "walk the agreement" through Superior Court with Wald's attorney, Marvin Gross.

The couple was divorced last January, but property and custody issues were postponed for separate trial. In June, Ms. Reddy married her drummer, Milly Ruth, with whom she had been living.

NEW YORK (AP) — James Levine, music director and principal conductor of the Metropolitan Opera, will also carry the title of artistic director starting in the 1986-87 season.

Under terms of a five-year contract, the 40-year-old Levine will be responsible for all the musical and artistic aspects of the company, general manager Anthony A. Bliss said Thursday.

Levine became music director of the Met in 1976. He made his debut with the company in 1971 conducting "Tosca" and was named principal conductor in 1973. John Dexter, the Met's last artistic director, left in 1980.

LONDON (AP) — Entertainer Tommy Steele, who was discovered singing rock 'n' roll in a coffee shop 25 years ago, was honored for a quarter-century of stardom with a lunch attended by a host of show business personalities.

Ex-beatle Ringo Starr and his actress wife, Barbara Bach, attended the affair put on Thursday by the Variety Club of Great Britain at the Savoy Hotel.

Steele, 46, is pulling in capacity audiences at the London Palladium with a lavish musical, "Singin' in the Rain."

American actor Gene Kelly, who starred in the original film and has danced with Steele, sent paced congratulations.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Outgoing Miss America Debra Sue Maffett has a few gripes with the media, but that won't stop her from getting into the business herself.

The 26-year-old former Miss California told a news conference Thursday that some reporters failed to see the Miss America pageant as "a stepping stone for education."

Instead, she said, they wrote about such things as her nose.
