

Lefors council to propose tripling of tax rate

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

LEFORS - Members of the Lefors city council decided to propose a hike in the city's tax rate by as much as three times the current rate during a meeting Monday night which attracted a generally favorable crowd to the Lefors Civic Center.

The council also discussed improvements in the city gas distribution system, hired a new city marshal and discussed needs of the fire department at the 7 p.m. meeting which drew approximately 50 people from the city of 800 residents.

The City of Lefors has a current tax rate of about 16 cents per $100 valuation, which brought in $11,863.52 in tax revenue last year. But members of the council and various interested citizens voiced comments that revenue has not been enough to provide needed improvements and services for the development of the city.

Council member John Ashford, who had said he'd resign unless the public showed interest in city affairs by attending this meeting, said at least three times that amount would be required to provide road maintenance improvements, hire more city employees, hire a city marshal to enforce current city ordinances and improve services at the city dump.

Ashford claims the city needs "more pride in itself to get things done."

"We can do something about it, but we need more people on our side. You've got to be willing to do it" to make Lefors "a nice place to live," he told the residents in attendance.

"Now's the opportunity. Let's do something," Ashford said.

He said the new revenues would make it possible to clean up the city and increase property values.

Council member J. W. Frank estimated it would take about $25,000 a year for "a good road maintenance program."

Gray County Chief Appraiser Charles Buzzard explained that the city has a property valuation of $7,307,605 at 100 percent market value. This includes $417,000 deducted for exemptions to residents over 65 years of age.

Mayor Wendell Akins explained that Lefors in the past had not allowed any exemptions, but exemptions for those over 65 will now be allowed under measures recently adopted. Buzzard said residents wanting the exemption of $5,000 off market valuation of their properties need to apply with his office. Eighty-four residents have already done so, he said. He will provide application forms at the Lefors city office.

Asked how many would be willing to triple taxes, a large majority of those present raised their hands affirmatively.

Council members discussed the procedures of raising taxes with the city attorney and will set a public hearing on the new proposed tax rate at a later date.

Discussion among council members and assembled residents indicated a need for a more specific budget. Currently the city operates on what city secretary Van Pittman called a "semi-budget." Mayor Akins explained this was based on audits of past years to see what previous expenditures had been.

Lefors' current tax rate is about one-fifth that of Pampa.

In other business, Mayor Akins reported that a recent audit by the Texas Railroad Commission revealed that problems with loss from leaks in the city gas distribution system has dropped dramatically.

Pampa woman held after death of baby

12-month-old girl dies Monday

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

A 31-year-old woman was arrested Monday night on suspicion of murdering her 12-month-old daughter, police said today.

According to Pampa Police Department records, Lovenza Romero Valdez, 31, of 531 S. Somerville was arrested about 7:30 Monday night. The charge listed on the arrest record is murder. She will be formally charged and arraigned later today, police said.

The child, identified as 12-month-old Lisa Marie Valdez, was pronounced dead on arrival at Coronado Community Hospital Monday afternoon. According to the autopsy report, death was caused by "multiple blunt force trauma to abdomen and neck." There was evidence of a lacerated liver and spleen, the report said.

An investigation was launched after Pampa police responded to a call for help from Pampa Medical Services about 1:30 p.m. Monday. The ambulance attendants were attempting to revive an infant, according to the report.

Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge, acting coroner, ordered an autopsy. The baby was taken to Clarendon, where the autopsy was performed by Dr. Ralph Erdman.

Following an investigation of the death, Lt. Glen Carden and Det. Ken Hall of the Pampa Police Department, arrested Lorenza Valdez on suspicion of murder. Lorenza is reported to be the mother of the dead child.

Graveside services for Lisa Marie will be 2 p.m. Wednesday at Lefors Cemetery with Rev. Paul Pletcher, pastor of the Nueva Vida Church, officiating.

Besides her mother, she is survived by two sisters, Christina and Cynthia, and one brother, Espepan, all of the home; grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Valdez of Pampa and Juan Romero of Carlsbad, N.M.; and a great-grandfather, Merced Valdez of Mexico.

The three surviving children were taken into custody by the Texas Department of Human Resources, Pampa police chief J.J. Ryzman said.

U.N. condemnation draws Moscow veto

By CYNTHIA A. STEVENS
Associated Press Writer

Soviet warships began a live-ammunition exercise today in the area where Soviet jet fighters downed a South Korean airliner, Japanese officials said. The drill followed Moscow's veto of a U.N. Security Council resolution deploring the attack on the plane.

A Maritime Safety Agency official in Wakkana, Japan's northernmost city, said the Soviet shelling exercise began in waters west of the tiny island of Moneron, 55 miles to the north. The Korean Air Lines plane is believed to have crashed nearby after being struck with a missile Sept. 1, and the 269 people on board are presumed dead.

In other developments, the United States on Monday demanded compensation from Moscow for the 61 Americans killed in the plane attack. European pilots boycotted flights to the Soviet capital, and 13 of the 16 NATO governments got ready to bar the Soviet airline Aeroflot from their airports.

In Tokyo, the Japanese Foreign Ministry confirmed a Self Defense Agency analysis that the doomed jumbo jet was in the air for more than 12 minutes after a heat-seeking missile struck one or more of its four engines. Last week the agency had said its radar indicated the plane crashed after three minutes.

A headless body that washed up on Japan's northernmost coast was believed to be from the plane.

Plastic surgeon testifies

'She'll never look normal'

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

The kids will call her names and make her cry, a doctor says.

Jay Boleman, 29, the head of a family suing the local gas utility company over severe burn injuries, told jurors about the fire in his Pampa home last year after plastic surgeon who testified earlier Monday that school children will some day call the man's injured infant daughter "scarface."

Boleman began his testimony in the third week of trial in a $21 million lawsuit against Pioneer Corporation and its subsidiaries, Energas and Westar Transmission Companies.

"The baby's always going to be heavily scarred and will never look normal."

(When she starts school), "children are extremely cruel, and they will call her scarface," Dr. Duane Larson said about Boleman's infant daughter Anna.

"There are always a couple of the boys or girls who are cruel," the Port Arthur plastic surgeon said.

The child and her mother, Ana Boleman, 29, suffered third-degree burns over more than half their bodies in a mobile-home fire Aug. 27, 1982, just hours after the utility company turned on natural gas at the trailer.

Larson testified about the numerous surgeries the mother and child must undergo in order to restore both the function and appearance of their bodies.

The doctor, a former director of the Shrine Burn Institute in Galveston who now treats burn patients in a private practice, said the woman and child may need surgeries as often as every three months for the next three years. They may want additional surgeries after that, depending on their mental ability to withstand more multiple operations, he said.

"There is no way known to man to remove a scar," Larson testified.

He said plastic surgeons can only try and hide or cover scar tissue.

The doctor said the two burn victims will always "have ugly scars."

"There's no way to erase them. I cannot make an ear like God can. You do the best you can," he said.

Life as a burn victim, with scars over a major portion of the body, is "like living within a suit of armor, or old shoe leather," Larson told jurors.

"Some people choose not to be alive," he said.

"To show, or not to show," that is the question facing burn victims about displaying their scarred bodies in public, Larson said.

"Is my husband going to desire me anymore, or is he going to think I'm as ugly as I perceive myself?" the doctor said Ana Boleman may ask.

"I think she is so scarred, I would be surprised if she would be able to tolerate the stares from wearing shorts," he said about Mrs. Boleman's present condition.

The Boleman child, who was burned when she was two months old, will suffer a lifetime of physical disability and humiliation. Attending school with her disfigured face and body will be difficult, he said.

"The little girl's going to come home crying day after day," Larson testified.

"I hope she has some friends who will look beyond the scars."

"I suspect she's going to have some trouble finding teenage girls to run with," the doctor said.

The doctor's appearance will also cause her problems landing a job when she grows up, he said.

Under cross-examination by Energas lawyers, the doctor said any surgeries done to the Bolemans after the first two years would be for appearances' sake only, not to restore lost movement or function. But Larson objected to the defense lawyer's calling that later surgery "cosmetic."

The doctor said plastic surgery to cover the scars of a burn victim should not be equated to surgery to hide age wrinkles, "face lifts" or "turkey gobbles."

The surgeon also testified the victims have made remarkable recoveries in just more than a year since the fire.

Jay Boleman was the first of the family members to testify. He told jurors late Monday about meeting his future wife in Mexico, about getting married, having a baby, moving to Pampa to work for Halliburton, and buying the mobile home that his lawyers would later call a "crematorium out of Auschwitz."

Boleman testified Monday about ordering gas service at the Energas office in downtown Pampa on the same day he and his family moved their things into the mobile home.

Several witnesses have testified a leaking copper gas line inside the trailer caused the fire.

Boleman said the line was in plain sight in the utility area of the trailer when his family moved in.

He also testified that a gasoline can found in the area after the fire was empty. The can was dry and had been in storage before the Bolemans' possessions were moved into their new home, Jay Boleman said.

DA dismisses theft indictments against Hemphill County sheriff

WHEELER - Citing a lack of evidence, District Attorney Guy Hardin has dismissed felony theft indictments against Hemphill County Sheriff C.H. Wright and his wife and brother, Hardin said.

The district attorney said he cannot prove the alleged thefts occurred in Wheeler County, where a grand jury returned the indictments last June 28.

Hardin said he now wants to charge the sheriff and his family members in neighboring Hemphill County. He said Monday that he will present the case to a grand jury in Hemphill County, the sheriff's home county, and try to re-indict the Wrights there.

The sheriff at Canadian was unavailable for comment this morning.

The single felony theft indictment charging both Sheriff Wright and his wife Ann, both of Canadian, and a separate felony theft indictment against the sheriff's brother, Ronald Wright, of Miami, were dismissed by Hardin Monday. The motion dismissing the Wheeler County charges was signed by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny.

McIlhenny previously set Oct. 17 as the trial date for Sheriff Wright and his wife.

The indictments against the Wrights charged them with bilking Wheeler lawyer Lowell Lasley of more than $10,000 in oilfield business deals.

The indictments were returned as an original matter, which means that on his own initiative, Lasley asked to talk to the June grand jury and presented charges against the sheriff, Hardin said previously.

But now the Wheeler lawyer may drop his complaints against the Wrights, following an agreement for restitution, the district attorney said Monday.

Sheriff Wright owns an oilfield-transport company, Marly Hotshot and Hauling. Ronald Wright owns an oilfield servicing company, Chaparral Fork Lift Service. Both firms are based in Canadian.

The Wrights' companies performed services in the local oil patch in late 1982 and received invoices as claims to future payment for that work, the district attorney said earlier.

In order to collect up-front cash, the Wrights sold Lasley their paper claims to future payments at 90 percent of face value, the state alleged. The sheriff and his family members took Lasley's up-front money, but later also kept the checks paying the full amount due on the invoices sold to the lawyer, Hardin said.

The dismissed charge against Sheriff Wright and his wife says they defrauded Lasley of $1,285. The dismissed charge against Ronald Wright says he "exercised control" over $9,517 belonging to the Wheeler lawyer.

After the indictments were returned last June, Ronald Wright said the charges are "strictly political" and an effort to force his brother out of office.

The sheriff continued in office while the indictments were pending. After the charges were brought against the Wrights, Hemphill County Judge Bob Gober said the sheriff could not be removed from office without a conviction. Gober said then that since the charges weren't related to Wright's official duties as sheriff, there were no legal grounds to remove him from office before trial.

Wright was appointed sheriff in 1975. He was elected to the office in 1976 and re-elected in 1980.

Marines get authority to ask for air strikes

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan has decided to let Marine commanders in Lebanon ask for air strikes from Navy fliers if the action is needed to defend U.S. troops in Beirut, his spokesman said today.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said Marines in Beirut could request air strikes from the carrier-based fighters off shore and the request, if granted, would be approved locally rather than in Washington.

In addition, said Speakes, such support could be sought if other troops in the multinational peacekeeping force are threatened or if threats to the Lebanese Army could endanger the Marines.

But Speakes would not say who would make the local decision whether to call in air strikes.

It was not clear, however, whether today's announcement amounted to a change in policy. Nonetheless, the administration never announced that local commanders had the authority to order in air strikes.

The United States has 1,200 Marines in Beirut. Another 2,000 are being moved into position off shore. Speakes said there was no plan to increase the number of troops in Beirut.

While he would not discuss the chain of command, or say at what level a decision would be made - other than to say it would be made in Beirut and not in Washington - Speakes said in response to a question about the use of air strikes that a local Marine commander "can ask for it."

The firing on the U.S. positions has resulted in the deaths of four Marines in recent weeks.

The latest development in the role of the 1,200 U.S. Marines in the international peacekeeping force in Beirut and the 2,000 reinforcements offshore underscored the dilemma facing the president in Beirut crisis.

With the Marines coming under greater fire from the Druse-Muslim militia, which is battling the Lebanese army, there is pressure to step up the role of U.S. troops.

At the same time, Congress has returned from its August recess with renewed interest in determining whether Reagan should invoke a section of the 1973 War Powers Act, which would give lawmakers a greater say in how long the troops could remain.

At issue is a provision that requires the president to withdraw troops from hostilities or threatened hostilities in 60 days, with a possible 30-day extension, unless Congress authorizes a longer stay.

Secretary of State George Shultz has said this provision does not apply, because the Marines in Lebanon are not the target of hostilities but are merely caught in the middle.

Acting on recommendations from Robert C. McFarlane, the White House special envoy to the Middle East, options have been considered for stepping up the Marines' ability to protect themselves.

Marine artillery from U.S. ships stationed off Beirut was used successfully to silence Druse artillery batteries firing on the Marines last week.

In water torture

Ex-deputy says he was following orders

HOUSTON (AP) — A former San Jacinto County sheriff's deputy accused of violating the civil rights of prisoners said he took part in water torture of inmates only because his superiors told him to do so.

"I was troubled by it morally," Floyd Baker said Monday in his own defense. "I feel I was pushed in, forced in."

"I was doing what I was told," Baker, plus former colleagues John Glover and Carl Lee, and former San Jacinto County Sheriff James C. "Humpy" Parker, are named in a six-count indictment that accuses them of conspiracy to violate the civil rights of prisoners and depriving jail inmates of liberty without due process of law.

Final rebuttal witnesses were to be called today with closing arguments to follow in U.S. District Court in Houston. Judge James DeAnda said the jury of seven men and six women could get the case late today.

Baker on Monday joined Lee as the only defendants to take the stand. Lee earlier denied any involvement in water tortures, but Baker said he took his orders from Lee, the chief deputy in the county about 50 miles north of Houston.

"My chief deputy told me what to do," Baker said. "I don't feel a law was violated. I didn't think it was morally right."

Testimony has indicated the torture involved the victim being handcuffed to a table or chair and his face wrapped tightly with a towel. The victim's head then would be pulled back and water poured over the towel. The prisoner, faced with suffocation, would kick with his feet when he was willing to talk.

Two of the victims testified they wrongly admitted to crimes because of the torture.

Baker said he first became aware of the water torture in 1976, when he was working as a deputy in neighboring Polk County and was summoned to the San Jacinto County Jail to question a burglary suspect. While there, he saw two people getting the water treatment and "was sort of shocked at this thing."

He told his superiors and was advised to "just forget about it." Baker said after he took a job as deputy in San Jacinto County in 1979, he unexpectedly walked in on Lee and Glover giving someone water torture. "They both looked up at me, rather surprised," he testified. "I was scared to death. They quit what they were doing. I turned and left."

Baker quit the force a few weeks after a 1980 torture incident involving James Hicks, who was being questioned for theft. Baker, who had befriended Hicks in an earlier investigation, said he believed he could have persuaded Hicks to provide information without resorting to the water treatments but could not stop the torture.

"I didn't feel I could do it. He's the chief," Baker said, referring to Lee. "I guess I didn't think it would do any good (to stop the ordeal)."

Hicks and four other torture victims testified for the prosecution and identified Baker as participating in their ordeals. Baker is the only one of the defendants named in all six counts of the indictment.

Defense attorneys primarily have based their case on challenging the credibility of many of the prosecution witnesses, particularly the torture victims, who have long criminal histories.

PUC hearing on Ma Bell breakup begins

AUSTIN (AP) — Almost 40 percent of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s largest customers have found they can do business without Ma Bell, according to an SWB consultant.

Joseph Kraemer of Washington, in prefiled testimony offered to the Public Utility Commission on Monday, said the loss of business could mean higher rates for residential telephone customers.

Kraemer's comments about big business "bypass" of traditional phone use came on the first day of a PUC hearing on the future of the telephone industry. A court-ordered breakup of American Telephone and Telegraph Co. on Jan. 1 has left uncertainty in the industry.

"Good Lord," said Jon Dee Lawrence, Southwestern Bell attorney. "If we know anything, we know the world is going to change come Jan. 1."

Assistant Attorney General Geoffrey Gay, representing the State Purchasing and General Services Commission, told Hearing Examiner Mary McDonald that "every consumer in this state ought to be nervous and worried about what's going on."

Some of the contestants in the hearing called by the commission challenged Lawrence's prediction of change.

"Residential and business customers will not be getting any services on Jan. 1, 1984 that they are not getting today," said Martha Smiley, representing U.S. Telephone Inc.

Jim Boyle, the state public utility counsel, criticized the hearing — which could last a month — as "some sort of Star Wars approach" that "can't lead to very good ratemaking."

"This whole thing is without a rudder," he said of the attempt to gauge the changes forced by the breakup.

SWB, which has a $1.7 billion rate hike pending, claims the AT&T breakup will necessitate higher monthly bills for basic service because AT&T will keep most of the long distance business.

Kraemer's testimony was aimed at showing that SWB also is losing money to new technology that allows big companies to set up their own communications systems.

In terms of future plans, approximately one in two either engage in bypass now or intend to do so within the next three years," said Kraemer.

"Furthermore, the remaining subscribers must pay higher rates in order to compensate for the revenue lost through bypass," he said.

In Texas, the most common bypass system is the use of microwave or radio systems, according to Kraemer.

Ranchers opposing drought relief program

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — West Texas ranchers battling one of the worst droughts in decades say a government relief program supposed to help them weather their losses won't do them any good.

Agriculture Secretary John Block announced in mid-August that low-interest loans would be available to ranchers in 23 counties of Southwest Texas suffering from the drought.

But three weeks later, not a single rancher had applied for one of the Farmers Home Administration loans.

Veteran West Texas cattlemen told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the ranchers who will seek the federal disaster aid are those who engaged in unwise ranching practices or tried to walk a financial tightrope.

The more successful a rancher has been, the less likely he is to qualify for the current FmHA disaster loans. A proven loss alone will not qualify an applicant. And producers who can qualify for loans elsewhere are not eligible for the low-interest disaster loans. So many cattlemen say they would rather see Block provide a feed subsidy program than loans for the 23-county area west of a line from San Angelo to Abilene and southwest from Lamesa to the Rio Grande.

"The initial disaster program won't help anybody," said Michael A. Harrison, who manages two ranches for his family in the Pecos area. "I can borrow more money now than I can pay back."

But the ranchers, Block and state politicians disagree over whether enough corn remains in the bins to help.

A spokesman for Block said that with the drought spreading across the nation's Corn Belt, the secretary would "be opening a door in Texas and not be able to close it" if he approved the feed subsidies.

Meanwhile, ranchers in the area, where the average annual rainfall has dropped from about 10 inches to 3 inches, are taking their own advice and culling herds by as much as 50 percent.

In the Pecos-Fort Stockton area, a few operators have opted to let some cattle die rather than spend more money to feed them and sell them at a loss. Internal Revenue Service agents say these producers have only a slim chance at a tax break by abandoning their cattle.

"This is no place for anyone who can't survive a six- to eight-month setback," said Pecos rancher Herschel Cox.

Many ranchers believe that federal aid raises "a moral question," said Gene West of Marfa, who manages three operations in the Big Bend region.

"If I can't make it, is it right to take your money and keep me in business?" West asked. "We're a conservative people out here. I don't want any loan from the Farmers Home Administration."

He said that during the 1970s, "a lot of people out here got a bunch of money" they didn't need through the federal loan and feed subsidy programs. Some producers channeled their disaster aid into certificates of deposit or used it for purposes other than paying bills, he said.

Bill Prewitt, a Pecos rancher and oil and gas broker, said some farmers borrowed huge amounts from FmHA and operated until they were foreclosed upon.

Some FmHA officials say the disaster declaration was inspired more by political pressure than by a real need for the minimal help the loans give.

Naturally violent political system

The assassination of Philippine opposition leader Benigno Aquino may become one of those political mysteries that spark speculation for years to come. As you look at the circumstances, you get the feeling that you wouldn't be surprised to hear almost any convoluted tale of conspiracy as an explanation. At the same time, almost any explanation is likely to be just a little unsatisfactory. Too many people stood to benefit from Aquino's death.

Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos would benefit, but only if Aquino were killed in a way that the finger of guilt would not point to Marcos and his regime. Might he have ordered the assassination anyway, figuring to weather the inevitable storm and still come out ahead with his strongest opposition figure dead? Might it have been done by an underling, with or without Marcos' tacit approval? Might government security guards, acting on their own, have killed Aquino and produced an unidentified corpse as a conveniently silent scapegoat? There's plausibility in all these theories.

To complicate matters, however, there's also little doubt that the communist and radical opposition in the Philippines will benefit from Aquino's death. It creates a martyr to rally the masses while eliminating a competitor. It's not impossible that the communists or some free-lance individual terrorist did the deed. For that matter, Aquino's own party could benefit from his assassination. It's unlikely that Aquino was murdered by his putative allies or someone they hired, but not impossible. Stranger things have happened.

Aquino's death highlights the violence inherent in all political governance. Political violence is usually confined within rules and regulations and ostensibly legitimated by uniforms, mandates and word games (regimes and terrorists alike call their killings "executions"), but ever ready to erupt, shocking and sickening decent people.

One group how holds government power in the Philippines. Many other groups desire that power, for reasons ranging from noble to base. All the contenders could easily rationalize their way into believing they would benefit from the brutal murder of a decent and courageous man. Somebody killed him.

What kind of system is that? Is it the best that civilized people can devise?

Needle points

Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D - N. Y., just about said it all recently. "When the A - 6 Intruder (a plane built by Grumman, in Downey's district) was going to be killed, I'm the congressman from that district, and I'm on the Armed Services Committee. It's my job, whether I think the A - 6 is good or not, to support it."

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R - Iowa, has taken the concept of congressional immunity to new heights - or depths, he recently got out of $35 in fines for driving alone in a restricted Northern Virginia car - pool lane by telling the officer he was en route to Capitol Hill.

Here's on for the I'll - sleep - better - tonight - knowing - they're - protecting - me file. Four police cruisers, carrying 15 officers, pulled up at Curtis H. Kington's residence in Knoxville, Tenn., the other day. Seems the officers had received a tip from a reliable informant, confirmed by surveillance by a police helicopter, that Kington was growing marijuana plants in his back - yard garden. What they found in the 4 - by 60 - foot patch were watermelons, nothing more. One can never be too careful, we suppose.

Legal services fraud unnoticed

There are two nasty scandals developing in Washington.

One has to do with blatant fraud, perjury, and illegal conduct by the outgoing Carter management of the Legal Services Corporation (LSC). It makes the Carter "briefing gate" scandal look like a Sunday - school picnic.

The other is the total silence on this mess by the national media who haven't seen fit to report a word that the 1980 - 81 staff of LSC, top to bottom, were using millions of tax dollars, not to help the poor with direct legal services, but to intervene in the political process to savage the Reagan economic program. They turned LSC into a $300 - million, liberal political action committee.

There is, of course, nothing new about this. In 1976, for example, this column exposed the fact that an LSC - funded agency, the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute, was the driving force behind a Massachusetts referendum to push through a graduated income tax and was illegally using tax funds for this purpose.

The latest revelations started at a Senate hearing on July 12, 1983, when Dan Bradley, former president of LSC (through 1981), and Clint Lyons and Hulet "Bucky" Aske of his executive staff, were confronted by a series of memoranda written after the November 1980 election by Alan Houseman, the director of research for LSC. In it Houseman outlined a "survival" plan for diverting millions of tax dollars into an illegal nationwide grassroots lobbying and political effort to overturn the Reagan fiscal program.

Admitting that Houseman's plan was "stupid," improper," and "probably illegal," Bradley told the Senate committee under oath that the plan had never been supported or implemented. He was lying.

On July 15, Utah Republican Senator Orrin Hatch's staff produced a stunning array of 1981 training manuals, confidential memoranda, and even videotapes showing that Houseman's plan was not only "operational," but had Bradley's full support.

This was consistent with the May 1981 findings of the controller general of the U.S. (GAO) who warned Bradley and his staff, "LSC has itself engaged and allowed its grant recipients to engage in lobbying activities prohibited by federal law."

At the July 15, hearing, Greg Hartley, former director of legal aid of Southwest Missouri and currently director of LSC's Office of Field Services, admitted, "Everyone that was employed at the corporation, or by a recipient of LSC funds, knew exactly what was going on in 1980 and 1981. It was blatant."

Indeed it was. There was a political training manual published by Carter's LSC appointees in September 1981 designed to show "how community organizations and public interest groups can win political power and resources" and use them to influence Congress.

This grew out of an earlier handbook on "Tactical Investigations for People's Stuggles," replete with Marxist rhetoric, including a caricature of "The Chemakill Corp." founded by "Chester A. Prominent" whose main work seems to be "oppressing poor people."

LSC even funded a mayoral campaign in Georgia as "a project to educate clients about their rights in the legislative process." In 1980, they poured manpower into defeating Proposition 9 in California (a tax - cutting measure), and apparently had spies in the Reagan Transition Team.

But the most - damning evidence was a seventeen - minute videotape excerpt of a two - hour LSC 1981 training meeting of project directors in Denver, one of six tax - funded "political action" sessions.

On the tape, Dan Bradley's Denver regional director, David Gilbert, introduces Houseman, saying "Dan has asked to put together the overall strategy of the survival effort."

Then, with Bradley looking on approvingly, Houseman lays out his wholly illegal and improper agenda in unambiguous terms: "Our challenge is to manipulate the political situation to our advantage."

"What's at stake is the survival of the committed, aggressive political staff, the survival of aggressive advocacy, legislative, administrative representation (lobbying)... community (political) education, and the rest." Houseman then spells out his December 29th seventeen - page "survival strategy" memorandum, which is as comprehensive a political document as you could find.

What worries Houseman most is the fact that "there will be some serious effort to impose greater restrictions on the political activities of the staff." He reminded them that "We are... not (now) subject to the control of the president."

Houseman even outlines a strategy for manipulating Reagan's LSC board appointments, and admits that the 1981 LSC board, which is not supposed to have more than six members of any one party, in fact "has only two Republicans on it..."

More damning, large amounts of LSC funds were deliberately placed into what the national conservative weekly "Human Events" called, "a Legal Services Corporation in Exile." LSC executive Clint Lyons even went as far as to pump almost $3 million more into the National Legal Aid and Defender Association (NLADA), which he himself later joined as executive director, by inviting NLADA to apply for it.

Or as the "Wall Street Journal" correctly described this illicit process on August 19, "In other words LSC staffers were soliciting an independent group to ask for government funding which they had already made up their minds to hand out."

By the end of fiscal 1981, when the LSC was crying poverty it had loaded up its grantees' coffers so heavily that 30 percent ended 1981 with over 50 percent of their grants unspent. As a result, "LSC grantees... went on a $15 - million real estate buying spree after the Reagan election in an apparent attempt to amass non - depreciating assets to offset any future budget cuts."

Small wonder federal investigators and the General Accounting Office are now picking up files from LSC agencies.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 13, the 256th day of 1983. There are 109 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Sept. 13, 1971, 10 hostages and 30 convicts were killed when New York state police stormed Attica prison to put down a four-day rebellion.

On this date:
In 1521, Spanish forces assumed control of Mexico after an eight-week siege of the Aztec capital.

In 1759, during the French and Indian War, the British defeated the French on the Plains of Abraham overlooking Quebec City.

In 1788, the U.S. Constitutional Convention authorized the first national election in the United States.

And, in 1943, Chiang Kai-Shek became president of China.

Ten years ago: Israel and Syria fought their biggest battle since the 1967 war in a clash of jets off the Syrian coast.

Five years ago: An Elkhart County, Ind., grand jury indicted Ford Motor Co. on three counts of recklessness and one count of criminal negligence in the deaths of three women killed in the fiery crash of a Pinto.

Today's birthdays: Actress Claudette Colbert is 78 years old. Actress Jacqueline Bisset is 39.

How the U.S. mistreats its own

"The Princess Papooli has plenty papaya and she loves to give it away."

That vintage song is recognized by any Hawaiian as naughty.

The lyrics go on, by implication, to detail Papooli's sharing of herself.

In essence, the only difference between Papooli and a prostitute was that "she loved to give it away..."

Americans can see some of that "generosity" in their own mirror.

In Ventura County, Calif., tons of lemons are rotting on the ground. Most of the lemons from those beautiful groves will go to waste this year.

While the owners of some of those farms are buying lemons from Chile!

There is a pro - rata system imposed on American agriculture by our Congress which limits the amount of American - grown fruit which can go to market.

It places no limit on the amount of foreign - grown fruit which can be marketed in the U.S.

So the officials of Riverbend Farms in California - for just one example - are having to let their own high - quality lemons rot on the ground - while they fill orders from their customers with lemons imported from South America.

"The Princess Papooli... loved to give it away..."

The public school system in the U.S. is an unproductive disgraceful mess - with more than half of high school graduates unable to read a HELP WANTED ad.

Yet while New York City's public schools are neglecting the "Three R's" they seek to teach 13 other languages!

In Arlington, Va.'s public schools, students can demand and get instruction in such obscure languages as Vietnamese, Lao and Kymer.

U.S. News recently counted 80 languages being taught in U.S. schools.

No other nation in the world is so deferential to outsiders.

Most other nations insist that foreigners learn and speak the language of the host country.

Texans bust their budgets trying to provide separate bilingual classes for Mexican-Americans - yet in Mexico there is no effort to teach anything other than Spanish.

Japan is fiercely protective of its language. You go to Japan and want to share their life, their culture - then you will learn their language.

In West Germany you are taught in German. Italian schools teach only Italian.

Only in the U.S. do we dilute our culture and mongrelize our language and diminish our academic effectiveness to satisfy strangers.

I didn't finish telling you about the Princess Papooli. However freely she gave of herself, she ended up used up and cast aside.

Shooting of plane to cost Soviets

Assuming that the Korean jetliner carrying 269 civilians was deliberately shot down by a Soviet fighter plane as reported, the brutality of the act was equaled only by its stupidity. It turned the world against Soviet Russia.

A headline in the Cleveland Plain Dealer of September 3 reads: Angry Reaction in World Tarnishes Soviet Image. The story goes on to quote the shocked comments of the press in many nations. Even the editors of Communist papers were highly critical of the Soviet act.

Nothing the Soviet regime has done has turned the entire world against it as this has done. The Soviets gained nothing by it; they lost enormously.

The event, I predict, will cause a change in the West's attitude toward the USSR; a nation that will act so irrationally is not to be feared so much as it is to be disciplined. It deserves to be treated as a child is treated by a parent: it does wrong because it knows no better.

Even after the act was committed and the world knew about it in detail, the Soviets denied that they shot down the plane. That was a child - like reaction. Faced with exposure and punishment, the child denies that he is guilty.

If you have a recalcitrant child, you don't buy a gun and threaten him. You stay strong and keep alert to restrain him if necessary, but meanwhile you try to get him to see the error of his ways and to become peaceful and cooperative. You try to overcome the stupidity of his belligerence.

It seems incredible that the rulers of a major nation could make such a monumental error as to order the shooting down of a passenger plane whose only sin was that it had strayed off course. Evidently the Russians are equal to it.

Humanity can be thought of as consisting of races and nations. We of the democratic West tend to lump people all together and think of them as being fundamentally equal and therefore to be treated equally. The fact is that there are great differences. The white man is more intellectual than the black. The Nordic is less volatile than the Mediterranean. The slave is inclined to be physically strong but mentally slow.

One indicator of the mentality of a nation of people is the inventions and discoveries made by them. Almost no inventions have come out of Russia, either Czarist or Communist. One Russian, Igor Sikorsky, invented the helicopter. The non - inventiveness of the Russians does not prove stupidity, but it betrays lack of imagination and ingenuity.

Russia has rich soil, timber, minerals, oil, fisheries and other vast natural resources, but the Russians by our standards do not eat high on the hog. They make poor use of their resources.

The Russians were once big exporters of grain. Now they import quantities of grain, much of it from the U.S.

They are poor because they do not know how to get rich. They had Communism sold to them by Lenin and Trotsky, and they now cling to it even if they starve in doing so.

Because they are by nature non - inventive and unimaginative, they are not to be feared. They are not likely to attack the West even though they are Communist and we are capitalist, for the West is too big a conquest for them to undertake. They would not know how to go about it; it takes brains to fight a modern war. (And if they were at war with us, from whom would they buy their wheat and corn?)

Their act of shooting down the Korean airliner revealed their lack of intelligence. They lost global goodwill which they sorely need. This barbaric and brainless act stiffened their enemies against them.

Result: Americans can now breathe more freely. The world is safer than we thought. An ignorant monster is not nearly so dangerous as a malevolent one.

Mother of twins praises vitro fertilization

HOUSTON (AP) — A mother of newborn twin boys who thought she would never be able to have children says "women everywhere" who can't conceive by normal methods should try in vitro fertilization.

"There's nothing to it. And the babies come out perfectly normal," said Kay, a 36-year-old Houston woman who agreed to a news conference on condition she be identified only by her first name.

Kay "got two for the price of one" last Friday when she gave birth by Caesarian section to Brice Purcell, at 5 pounds and 6 ounces, and Blake Carroll, at 5 pounds and 2 ounces.

Kay, who had a diseased ovary removed when she was 16, has suffered from a disease that blocked her remaining fallopian tube, making normal conception impossible.

Earlier this year Kay and her husband enrolled in the in vitro fertilization program at the University of Texas Medical School at Houston.

Using the so-called test tube baby technique, doctors made a small incision in Kay's abdominal wall and removed eggs from her ovary. These were placed in a laboratory dish and united with sperm from her husband. Four embryos formed and then were implanted in Kay's uterus.

Three weeks later, an ultrasound examination determined that two of the embryos were developing.

"At that point, we knew we were going to have twins," Kay said.

"We were very, very lucky," she added. The boys were the eighth and ninth babies born in the in vitro fertilization program at the University of Texas. Most of the other parents chose to remain anonymous, but Kay requested the Monday's news conference.

"I feel very strongly about this," she said. "I wanted to encourage other women everywhere to try it."

Kay said she is keeping a scrapbook, beginning with news reports of the first test tube baby born, and plans to one day show the book to her twins and explain to them how they were conceived.

"We will tell them that as soon as they are able to understand it," she said. "There's nothing shameful about it. It's something to be proud about."

The twins were the first born in the University of Texas program, but at least two other sets were born in the U.S. this year and several multiple births have been reported from programs in Australia and Canada.

Dr. Martin M. Quigley said the so-called test tube baby techniques are now being widely used and offer hope to 500,000 to 1 million couples who otherwise would remain childless.

"It has come out of the lunatic fringe to a point where it is becoming a very accepted thing," he said.

The technique was first used for women who were able to bear children except for blocked fallopian tubes that prevented the migration of the egg from the ovaries. Quigley said the technique is now being used also for couples who are childless because of a low sperm count on the part of the husband.

Quigley said twins occur naturally in about one out of 100 births.

Soviet ships in Houston expected to leave Wednesday

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Soviet freighters docked at the Port of Houston — one the target of protestors waving red-stained model airplanes and singing "God Bless America" — are expected to set sail Wednesday, officials said.

About 150 protestors chanted slogans and waved signs Monday as they urged members of the International Longshoremen's Association to refuse to unload the Novovolynsk, which had arrived earlier in the day.

The protest came in response to a Soviet fighter shooting down Korean Air Line Flight 007 on Sept. 1, killing all 269 people on board.

Local ILA President Millard Barrington said his union had no choice but to try to send longshoremen to unload the boat because it recently lost a multimillion-dollar lawsuit stemming from its refusal to load Russian grain ships following the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan nearly four years ago.

Barrington said "many" longshoremen refused to hire into the unloading crew.

Although two 16-member work gangs were ordered by the ship's local representative, West Gulf Maritime Association, the ILA could only get enough volunteers for one, said George Sanders, executive vice president of the local ILA.

The Novovolynsk is scheduled to leave Wednesday, said Coast Guard officer Wayne Thompson.

The General Kravtsov, which arrived in Houston Friday, now also is set to leave Wednesday, Thompson said.

The vessel, originally scheduled to leave over the weekend, was detained because it did not have a required certificate of financial responsibility. After officials on the vessel produced the document Sunday, the ship was expected to leave Monday.

But officials on the boat asked Monday for an extended permission to dock at the port.

Thompson said he did not know why the extension was sought. "It could be one of a million normal things, like having problems getting loaded, or waiting for parts," he said.

Mattox investigation is continuing

AUSTIN (AP) — A Travis County grand jury investigating Attorney General Jim Mattox called a morning session today to resume the probe.

District Attorney Ronnie Earle said more witnesses in the case would be heard today, but he declined to identify them or even say how many would appear.

Mattox has been under investigation since July after newspaper articles questioned the source of a $125,000 loan on his 1982 campaign finance report, and a lawyer accused him of threatening to use the power of the state against the attorney's Houston law firm.

So far 20 people have testified, including several who have been called more than once. More than half the witnesses have come from the attorney general's office.

Mattox himself has testified three times, although his first appearance consisted only of a brief statement to the panel. He was "invited" back Aug. 30, and then last Thursday he was subpoenaed — ordered — to appear and bring certain tape recordings.

Partial transcripts of the recordings revealed a sometimes heated telephone conversation that took place last June between Mattox and Thomas McDade, a lawyer for Fulbright & Jaworski of Houston.

McDade told reporters in July that Mattox had threatened to ruin Fulbright & Jaworski's public bond business unless McDade stopped trying to subpoena Mattox's sister, which McDade said he was trying to do as part of his effort to defend Mobil Oil Corp.

Mattox has strongly denied McDade's accusation. He has accused Mobil Oil Corp. of leaking negative stories to the press in an effort to discredit him, because Mattox, on behalf of the state, opposes Mobil in a $1.67 billion lawsuit over disputed oil and gas leases.

That suit was filed last year by wealthy South Texas rancher Clinton Manges, a $50,000 contributor to Mattox's campaign.

Dear Abby

Mother pinches pennies at daughter's expense

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is 85 years old, is failing in health and fast approaching the time when she can no longer live alone. She has over $100,000 in savings, but she refuses to spend a dime of it because she wants to leave an "inheritance."

I am willing to take her into my home, although it is too small to accommodate three people comfortably. My husband is opposed to giving up our privacy and thinks my mother should spend her money on the care she needs.

We have no designs on her savings, and I agree with my husband that no amount of money is worth sacrificing our privacy. But Abby, how can I turn my back on my mother if she insists on living with me? She regards all nursing facilities as "sties." I'm afraid if I recommend one she would interpret it as an act of abandonment. I am frustrated and upset worrying about this.

What is your advice?

TORN IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR TORN: Since you can't accommodate her in your home and she can well afford to pay for her own care, suggest that she employ a live-in attendant to look after her in her own home. And don't feel guilty. Every 85-year-old person should be so fortunate.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had a very loving relationship almost every night. (I think you know what I mean.) If it matters, we're both in our late 20s.

Recently, my husband started a great paying job. Now the problem: Every two weeks he has to work swing shift, and he's exhausted when he gets home. I work from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. and don't see him until he gets home around 2 a.m., so we don't have any time for lovemaking. We want to be more than just weekend lovers.

How do other couples manage their lives when they work overlapping shifts?

NOT SWINGING WITH THE SWING SHIFT

DEAR NOT SWINGING: They somehow make do. And when they can't make do, they don't.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 34, fairly attractive, have a good personality and a sense of humor. I've never been married, and that is my mother's problem. We went to a friend's wedding (her second) and Mom was depressed the whole next day. She said, "You're so attractive, I can't understand why you can't find someone." I happened to mention that a patron of mine met her husband on a cruise. Immediately Mom said, "Go on a cruise!"

One day I may marry, but I'm not desperate. I was engaged twice, and thank God I didn't marry either one! I don't need a man for security or support. I own my own business and I'm independent. I'm alone, but I'm not lonely.

I like children, but I really wasn't cut out for motherhood. I like men, but am I going to get married to show the world I can get a man — or to make my mother happy?

Abby, please tell parents to enjoy their grown children for the people they are — not for what they want them to be.

SINGLE BUT NOT ALONE

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Why kids are bad—at the worst times

The ringing of the telephone signals bedlam.

As you lift the receiver, your toddler climbs onto the kitchen counter.

As you say hello, the five year old pulls him off. A nice long chat? Forget it!

That's the way it goes with kids. The night of your dinner party the baby fusses all evening. The day you set aside to get the house ready for the holidays the little one will scrape a knee, spill the iodine, not to settle for the small size bandage, even though it's the only one you have.

Funny how children are awful, just when you have no time.

Like other coincidences in childhood, this one is on purpose. Perhaps you remember. Remember how the comfortable framework that held your days together seemed to fall apart, frighteningly, when your own mother's attention was all absorbed somewhere else?

Remember the empty, abandoned feeling that washed around you, just because your mother was busy with her friends?

The bickering and skirmishing around your feet, as you press the telephone closer to your ear, is because a child feels scared when he thinks he is abandoned, angry when he thinks he is pushed out. Your children would rather risk a scolding than feel they don't exist for you.

Maybe the following ideas will help, and maybe they won't. At least you and your child will be dealing more directly with the real problems at hand.

To have a telephone conversation: Keep some special things hidden near the telephone — a puzzle, crayons and pads, a toy telephone for a baby.

Excuse yourself for a moment (it seems long to you, but it's only seconds) and give your full attention to the kids. Tell them how long you expect to talk — a little while or a long time. Take the time to help them get started on the puzzle or the crayoning. Then go back to your conversation.

Before a dinner party or an evening with friends coming in: Even if things are not quite ready, give the baby 15 minutes of undivided — and undistracted — attention, so he is sure you are really the same as usual, so he can sleep reassured.

Let older children help you instead of pushing them out of the way. They might help set the table or count silverware, crumple newspaper for starting the fire, or count the hangers in the hall closet to be sure there are enough.

And in the hassle of everyday: Try to echo back to children how you think they feel — "It must feel strange to you, with the house all torn apart this way." "It's hard for you when I can't listen." "I know you'd like me to spend some time with you."

Explain your side of things: "I'm really interested in talking to my friend about her sick mother." "I want to cook a very fancy dinner, and I have to concentrate." "I need this new dress for tonight and I don't want to read to you until I've finished hemming it."

But here and there, set aside a few minutes for your children — to read that book, to walk around the block a couple of times, to play a new game, to get a simple project started.

The time it takes to make a child feel things are okay is time well spent — especially when you have so little time to spare.

Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 6207, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

TV eye test to be aired in area

Is your vision normal? Or do you suspect that you may have an eye problem? A TV Eye Test that you can take for free on Wednesday may just answer those questions for you, says its sponsor, the Texas Society to Prevent Blindness. The test is to air Wednesday, Sept. 14, on KAMR-TV, Channel 4.

"This test is an innovative health care measure," says Bob Maitland, program chairman for the Amarillo Society. "We feel it is appropriate that television which has made us a nation of viewers can now offer a way to find out how well we are viewing. We also appreciate very much the public service time that KAMR is giving this."

"While the test is a screening device and not a complete eye examination, it will alert those who fail it that they should get that examination — hopefully, in time to correct the problem," Maitland said. "Early detection and treatment are important in saving sight. Half of all blindness is needless, a tragedy that too often results just because an eye problem was ignored until it was too late for it to be properly corrected or treated."

"The two-part eye test was designed especially for TV by Stanford ophthalmologists Milton Flocks and A. Ralph Rosenthal on a grant from the National Society to Prevent Blindness with which the Texas Society is affiliated," he explained.

The first part will test visual acuity — sharpness of central vision. To take it the viewers will be asked to stand back from the screen and read the letters flashed on it. The second part will test visual fields — scope of side vision. For it, viewers will stand close to the screen and count the Xs being flashed on it. Correct answers will be announced.

A question and answer period will be conducted immediately after the 12 minute test. This will allow Panhandle residents an opportunity to place free calls to Channel 4. Jim Blue of Channel 4 will host the program and Dr. Avery Rush, medical advisor to the Amarillo Society, and Dr. William Sansing of the board of directors will answer viewer questions.

The Texas Society to Prevent Blindness is an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, now celebrating its 75th anniversary.

Families with triplets form support group

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Janet Bleyl and Suzy Bivings, mothers of triplets, who live in the Stockton area 90 miles east of San Francisco, felt like loners during their pregnancies because their doctors and libraries offered little background on triple births.

Now they have formed what they believe is the first group for families with triplets to help spread word of the trials and rewards of births that come in threes.

"There's three times the loving going on in this house," Mrs. Bleyl said in a telephone interview. "It's just unbeatable."

Jeff and Janet Bleyl have 8-month-old triplets — Joseph, Jonathan and Jacob — plus six other children ranging in age from 6 to 15.

The condition of her babies, both 10 weeks premature, was "touch and go for a long time." All were born with lung infections. The last was discharged from the hospital after seven weeks.

"When we finally got them home, it was just absolute constant babies," she said. "You can take care of two. It's that third one that turns life into a total circus."

Without a careful watch, Mrs. Bleyl said it would be easy to feed one baby twice and skip the third, or give medicine to the only one who didn't have an ear infection.

The Bivings' only children are their 2-year-old triplets. "Having triplets happens to be the best thing that ever happened to us," Mrs. Bivings said. "It's the expense that gets us down most."

For example, a triple stroller sells for about $350. The Bivings bought a twin stroller and modified it to handle three.

Mounds of diapers give way to a need for three sets of the same size clothes. The Bivings have some dress-alike clothes for their daughters, Lindy, Libby and Lacey, but "the girls are starting to want to choose what to wear."

The girls slept together in a car bed for two months before switching to baby cribs. They played in baby swings during adult meal time "so you could eat dinner once in a while.

We'd have them all swinging in the living room."

A set of 30-year-old triplets has promised to attend a meeting of the triplets' group, Mrs. Bivings said. One told her that she resented the look-alike outfits.

"I'm anxious to talk to the 30-year-olds just to get some insight on what to do psychologically with the girls," she said.

Today's decorating prices perfect for middle-class

When it comes to selecting an interior designer, few clients are in a position to consider hiring Jay Spectre. The 54-year-old, self-taught designer, who likes to joke that he got a baccalaureate degree from the local movie theater in Frankfort, Ky., may have no college degrees, but his credentials include the homes he has designed for some of America's wealthiest families.

The "mystery super-rich" — Spectre's term for those individuals who, though wealthy, are not known to the public — appear to like his ability to meld rich materials, costly antiques and art into a 20th-century interior of uncommon luxuriousness.

His rooms look rich, and they are rich — $50,000 is a "very minimum" budget for any room he designs. Consequently few — if any — middle-income individuals are likely to be numbered among his clients.

Recently, however, he turned his attention to the decorating problems and solutions of the middle class in an interview he gave prior to acceptance of the title "Dean of Design" which will be bestowed on him Oct. 1 by the Chicago Merchandise Mart.

Spectre says now is the best of all possible times for a middle-income person to be decorating a home. Inflation has created a buyer's market for home furnishings and the entire home furnishings industry is more eager to please customers.

It has made designers aware of the need for professionalism, made furniture manufacturers work harder to find attractive and affordable furniture, and encouraged designers, manufacturers and retailers to work more closely together, producing better products, in his opinion.

With financial burdens and natural and manmade disasters constantly on the horizon, Spectre says, a requirement of the 1980s is the creation of a place of serenity at home. "Not an escape from reality, but a shelter from it" is the way he defines a home.

Creating this shelter is a matter of integrating one's taste and budget with what's available in the marketplace. Though he doesn't usually find himself in furniture stores, the designer's recent purchase of a country home sent him in search of furnishings in stores in the New York area.

"I saw things of incredible taste, classic design and affordable prices. Believe me, it would be no challenge at all to me to furnish an apartment very nicely for $10,000," he said.

Spectre, unlike many home furnishings experts, advises individuals just starting out in a new home to furnish it as quickly as possible.

"It is important to have your life and your home in order, to be able to take comfort in it, to relax and enjoy it as soon as possible," he said.

"If you've decided you will be staying put for a while — say five years — figure out what you might be able to spend per year and then spend that money immediately, taking out a loan from a bank and paying interest on it, if necessary.

"At the end of the five years, you'll have a good sofa, chairs, a coffee table, a bed, perhaps some nice old pieces that you'll keep for years. You can add antiques and accessories slowly, but do the basics at once." It's more satisfying and also easier to produce an appealing room this way, he believes.

"Borrowing for home furnishings is an investment in comfort that will pay dividends exceeding the interest you may have to pay a bank," he says.

Spectre, whose own New York apartment is filled with antiques, 20th-century artworks, and endless details of comfort and luxury, says he has come a long way from his origins in Frankfort, where he worked in a family furniture store catering to low-income customers.

"I swept the floors and demonstrated the washing machines and by the age of 20 was the top furniture salesman in the place," he says.

He credits a trip to Europe and constant self-education with starting him on his way to a national career as a designer. He owned a decorating business in Louisville, and a commission for a prominent New Yorker he had met there eventually led to national publicity.

more commissions and, in 1968, to the opening of a design firm in New York.

His own first New York apartment was featured in magazines all over the world. "I furnished it with dark stained floors with oriental rugs, vertical blinds and Art Deco furniture. Afterwards, every decorator in New York used the same elements," he recalled with amusement.

The legs have it in fashion this fall

An important part of this season's fashion look is the trend to novelty legwear.

For fall, tights feature mini dots, snowflake patterns, smart pinstripes, handscreened floral designs, and plaids. There's texture, too, with Spanish lace and ribbon striping, for instance. And, there's color. It runs the gamut from solids to exciting multicolor combinations.

Pantyhose make a bid for attention with sparkly accents: rhinestones combine with flocking on smoky gray or black to bring glamour to fall legwear. Diamond net and basketweave textures are other leggy looks.

Thousands greet Pope in mountain villages

MARIAZELL, Austria (AP) — Pope John Paul II was welcomed by thousands of residents in Alpine costumes as he arrived in this mountain village today to pay homage at the tomb of a Hungarian cardinal who became a symbol of anti-communism in the 1950s.

Also greeting the pope were about 5,000 members of religious orders, twice the number of inhabitants in the picturesque town. The nuns, priests and friars turned the central square into a sea of brown, white and black habits as John Paul exhorted them to remember their vows of chastity and their dedication to Christianity. An estimated 40,000 people lined the roads, many in traditional green, white and red Alpine clothing, to see the pope, who had spent the first three days of his four-day visit in Vienna, 60 miles to the northeast.

The pope knelt for about four minutes before a statue of the Virgin Mary and Child, lavishly adorned in gold and silver, in a basilica revered by Catholics since the 14th century.

No previous pope had visited the shrine. The basilica was built in 1377 by Louis I of Hungary to celebrate a major victory over the Turks, and nearly 1.5 million pilgrims each year visit the shrine, which also houses Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty's tomb.

Mindszenty's imprisonment by the Hungarian Communists in the 1950s after a sensational trial and later 15-year refuge in the U.S. diplomatic legation in Budapest captured the world's attention.

The cardinal fled to the U.S. mission after Soviet tanks rolled into the city to crush the Hungarian uprising in 1956. He left for the Vatican in 1971 and then resettled in Vienna, where he died in 1975.

John Paul began the final day of his Austrian trip with a celebration of the 300th anniversary of a Christian victory over Turkish invaders at Vienna.

Bareheaded and squinting slightly in the morning sunshine, the pope spoke to an audience of about 7,000 people atop the Kahlenberg, a mountain overlooking Vienna and the Danube River.

Many in the crowd were Polish immigrants who have taken refuge in Austria because of economic and political troubles at home. Red-and-white banners of the outlawed Polish union Solidarity dotted the crowd.

The pope spoke of the bonds between Austria and his native Poland created in 1683 when badly outnumbered Christian allies — under the leadership of Polish King Jan Sobieski — beat back armies of the Ottoman Empire who threatened to seize Vienna and move into the heart of Europe.

The pope also consecrated a new chapel which houses a copy of the Black Madonna of Czestochowa, Poland's most revered relic.

Agent says Nazis planned to bomb city

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Six avowed Nazis charged with conspiring to firebomb parts of Greensboro three years ago organized a "suicide team" with access to 20,000 pounds of dynamite, a former federal agent has testified.

Michael Sweat, formerly with the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, testified Monday that he was posing as a soldier of fortune when the six asked him for help in escaping the country after terrorizing Greensboro.

"They said it would be a suicide team, that some probably wouldn't make it out," Sweat said. Sweat was the first government witness to testify in the federal trial. The jury spent most of the afternoon listening to secretly tape-recorded conversations between Sweat and the defendants.

The panel was to continue listening to tapes and reading transcripts today.

The trial in Asheville is the third for the six defendants, all North Carolinians. They include Frank Lee Braswell and his wife Patsy Keeter Braswell, both of Penland; Raeford Caudle, of Winston-Salem; and Joseph Gorrell Pierce, his brother Roger Allen Pierce and James C. Talbert, all of Walnut Cove.

The first trial for the defendants resulted in a mistrial when jurors couldn't reach a verdict. In the second trial the six were convicted of one conspiracy count apiece, but the verdicts were thrown out by a federal appeals court because the defendants were not given free copies of the first trial's transcript.

The six face the same charge on which they were convicted — conspiring to blow up a fuel storage tank, a chemical company and a shopping mall in Greensboro.

Federal prosecutors say the bombings were planned in the expectation that six other Nazis and Ku Klux Klansmen would be convicted of murdering five communists in a 1979 anti-Klan rally.

Denny pitches Phillies into NL East Division lead

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

If not for John Denny, Philadelphia Phillies Manager Paul Owens thinks his team "would be planning for next year" by now.

As it is, the Phillies are in first place in the National League East after Monday night's 2-1 victory over the New York Mets behind Denny's strong pitching.

Denny pitched three-hit ball for eight innings and won his 15th game with Al Holland's relief help. The victory, combined with Montreal's 8-0 loss to Chicago, vaulted the Phillies into first place in the East by a half-game over the Expos.

"He's been so consistent," said Philadelphia first baseman Pete Rose of Denny. "I don't remember him having a bad game. Even when his arm was bothering him he gave a good effort."

"He had a good sinker and curve tonight, kept the hitters off stride. And he helps himself. He bunts, fields his position."

In the only other NL action Monday night, the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-5.

Denny, 15-6, struck out eight and walked two in eight innings before Holland pitched the ninth for his 19th save.

The Phillies scored both their runs in the third, on an RBI single by Von Hayes and a bases-loaded walk to Greg Gross by Mets starter Ron Darling, 6-2.

Denny, who had given up only one hit through the first four innings, was reached for a leadoff home run in the fifth by Darryl Strawberry. It was the 24th for the rookie outfielder and his 66th RBI in 106 games. It also extended his hitting streak to 10 games.

Owens said he went to Holland for the ninth inning because Denny told the manager he had had enough.

"He (Denny) has always been honest. He tells you when he's tired. He pitched his heart out in the eighth, and I had Holland well rested," said Owens. "That's what he (Holland) is there for and he did it."

Cubs 8, Expos 6

In Chicago, Dick Ruthven pitched a four-hitter and Keith Moreland drove in two runs and had two key hits in a seven-run sixth inning as the Cubs beat Montreal.

Ruthven, 12-11, struck out four and walked none to record his fourth complete game and snap a personal three-game losing streak against the Expos.

Montreal's Steve Rogers, 17-10, took the loss, his first against Chicago in five decisions.

Moreland drove in Chicago's first run in the third with a grounder. Moreland triggered the seven-run sixth with a double and capped it with an RBI single.

"Hitting is contagious and I'll tell you this much — you won't see Steve Rogers in that situation often," said Moreland. "Rogers is one of the best you're going to face and you need some breaks to beat him."

"There were a couple of bad hops, and once he (Rogers) was gone, we just kept on beating the ball."

Pirates 7, Cardinals 5
In Pittsburgh, Brian Harper hit a two-run pinch single in the sixth as the Pirates rallied from a three-run deficit to defeat St. Louis.

Streaking Tigers win fourth game in a row

DETROIT (AP) — He's a far cry from the Mill Wilcox who came within one out of a perfect game back in April, to be sure.

However, the stocky right-hander clearly has regained some of his old form since coming off the disabled list Aug. 1 and could be a valuable member of Detroit's starting rotation down the stretch.

Wilcox, 9-10, allowed nine hits Monday night and managed to pull out a 5-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians. It was the first triumph in three starts since recovering from a sore shoulder for Wilcox, who had not won since June 12.

"I think this can help us," Wilcox said. "You know, Jack Morris and Dan Petry have been our big horses and they're still the ones who are going to have to get us there. But, I hope now I'm in a groove, too. It's been a long time since I've won."

The victory was Detroit's fourth in a row and pulled the second-place Tigers within five games of the Baltimore Orioles in the American League East. The Orioles were rained out in Boston.

New York nipped Milwaukee 1-0 in the only other AL game Monday.

The Tigers were aided by Bert Blyleven's wildness. The Indians right-hander hit three batters and threw a wild pitch while giving up nine hits and four runs in the 4-2-3 innings he worked.

"I couldn't get my ball over consistenly," Blyleven, 7-10, who was making his third start since coming down with a sore shoulder Aug. 7. "I'm just getting the feel of it. I had bad control." The Tigers spotted the Indians a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Andre Thornton singled, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Ron Hassey's single.

Cowboys' Walls signs fat five-year contract

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys cornerback Everson Walls, who led the National Football League in interceptions the past two years, has reached agreement on a new five-year contract worth an estimated $125 million, the team announced.

The Cowboys said Monday that Walls, who had been holding out for a three-year contract, will sign a series of one-year pacts over five years. Walls received a considerable signing bonus, the team said.

He took out a $1 million insurance policy with Lloyds of London at the cost of $10,000 against a career-ending injury while he was negotiating with the Cowboys.

Walls had two years remaining on his current contract which paid him an estimated $60,000 per year. The new contract will pay him about $200,000 per season, the team said.

Walls, who reported to camp several days late and was fined by Dallas Coach Tom Landry, threatened at the time to negotiate with the United States Football League in two years.

Chargers slip by Chiefs, 17-14

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Don Coryell finally discovered a defense capable of clipping the wings of San Diego's high-flying passing game — his own.

And so the Chargers ran for 191 yards on a surprised Kansas City Monday night before finally emerging — thanks to a patented Dan Fouts-led drive — with a 17-14 National Football League victory.

Almost as satisfying as the final score to Coryell was the fact that the Chiefs ran off just 51 plays on offense.

"We just couldn't have our defense on the field for 82 plays like we did last week against the New York Jets," Coryell said. Despite rolling up almost 500 yards in total offense against the Jets last week before in the season opener, the Chargers came up on the short end of a 41-29 count because their defense was unable to keep up with the break-neck pace.

"As we've been saying, our defense is young and inexperienced, but they're talented and aggressive and they're just going to get better and better and better," Coryell said. "We just decided we had to keep the defense off the field, so we decided we were going to have to run more. If we hadn't been able to run, we naturally would have gone back to the pass."

But the Chargers ran with abandon. James Brooks carried 23 times for 86 yards and Chuck Muncie picked up 110 yards on 27 carries.

Fittingly, the game was decided when Fouts unleashed his passing arm on a five-play, 80-yard drive capped by a 12-yard touchdown pass to Wes Chandler with 1:45 to play.

Cannon begins prison sentence

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — Billy Cannon, a former Louisiana State University football hero, has begun serving a five-year sentence in federal prison for plotting a $6 million counterfeiting operation.

Cannon, a Baton Rouge, La., orthodontist, arrived at the minimum-security prison in Texarkana on Monday.

U.S. marshals said because Cannon cooperated with authorities, he was allowed to travel unescorted to the prison.

Cannon, 46, received the maximum punishment after pleading guilty to charges he masterminded a scheme to print and distribute $6 million in counterfeit $100 bills — which the government called one of the largest fake money schemes in U.S. history.

He will have to serve almost two years before becoming eligible for parole.

Cannon won the Heisman Trophy at LSU in 1958. After a pro football career, returned to Baton Rouge to become a dentist.

He will return to Baton Rouge to testify at the Oct. 11 trial of four co-defendants who have pleaded innocent. Cannon also could be called to testify in the cases of two co-defendants who asked that their sentences be reduced.

Gridder escapes serious injury

A Pampa ninth-grade football player escaped serious injury during contact drills Monday afternoon. Ron Wallace was rushed by ambulance to Coronado Community Hospital after suffering a neck injury, but he is expected to miss only about a week of practice, according to Athletic Director Bill Balcom.

"It looked like he took a pretty severe blow when his head hit the ground," Balcom said. "We didn't want to move him and he was complaining of his head and neck hurting at the time."

Hospital records revealed Wallace had pulled ligaments in his neck.

Quarterbacking situation a problem at Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas coach Fred Akers, guarding his quarterback plans for the Auburn game on Saturday, says, "If you're asking me if I'm capable of lying about my quarterback situation — yes."

Akers responded that way Monday when asked if he already knew who would replace starter Todd Dodge, who suffered a shoulder separation in practice Friday.

Akers said four or five quarterbacks might make the trip to Auburn, Ala., for the regionally televised game between the two top 10 teams.

not telling you my plans." Akers also disclosed Monday that starting middle linebacker Jeff Leiding had cut his lower leg on a rock during the Guadalupe River on Saturday, and 16 stitches were required to close the wound, making him doubtful for the Auburn game.

Akers acknowledged Monday that he had decided to start Dodge before he had not announced a decision. "Anyone watching our practices saw he was always with our No. 1 unit. ... There was not much question," Akers told a news conference.

Dodge's replacement apparently will be Rick McIvor, who was injured last year and missed spring training with grade problems, or two-year punt returner Rob Moerschell.

Leiding's injury was news to most — if not all — of the reporters, but Akers said when he talked by telephone Monday to a quarterback club in Alabama the first question asked was how was Leiding's injury.

Akers said doctors had told him Dodge would be out from three to five weeks, but "I've just got a gut feeling he'll be back before too long."

Nebraska still on top in AP grid poll

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON AP Sports Writer Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas remained 1-2-3 today in the Associated Press college football poll, while Notre Dame moved into fourth place and Penn State's winless defending national champions dropped out of the Top Twenty for the first time since 1979.

Nebraska, which crushed Wyoming 56-20, received 51 of 56 first-place votes and 1,114 of a possible 1,120 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Notre Dame's 52-6 rout of Purdue enabled the Irish to move up from fifth to fourth with 909 points. They passed Auburn, which slipped from fourth to fifth with 905 points despite a 24-3 triumph over Southern Mississippi. The Tigers also received the remaining first-place vote.

Michigan, which was hard-pressed to beat Washington State 20-17, slipped from sixth to eighth with 624 points. Rounding out the Top Ten are Florida State with 623 points and North Carolina with 622. Florida State jumped from 12th to ninth with a 40-35 victory over LSU, while North Carolina, which defeated Memphis State 24-10, fell from eighth to 10th. The Second Ten consists of Georgia, Alabama, Iowa, Southern Cal, Florida, Washington, Maryland, Southern Methodist, Pittsburgh and West Virginia.

Upsets stalk Texas and Oklahoma

By Major Amos B. Hoople Upset Specialist

Egad, friends. Would you believe we have two "Hoople Upset Specials" for you? Yes, dear readers, we are confidently — hak-kaff — predicting the Auburn Tigers will shock Texas while the Ohio State Buckeyes stun Oklahoma. Har-rump!

Some 73,000 fans in Auburn's Jordan Hare Stadium will be delirious with excitement as the awesome Tiger wishbone attack, led by Bo Jackson and Lionel James, scores a 31-21 win over an excellent Texas team.

Fred Akers' Longhorns, who we foresee winning the SWC crown, will give their usual fine account of themselves. But this isn't their day. The Tigers, with one game under their belts, should control the action.

At Norman, Okla., Marcus Dupree and his Sooner cohorts will be every bit as good as their pre-season clippings indicate. But look out for the Buckeyes!

Last year the Bucks lost their poise for three weeks in the early season, and then got it back to take seven straight, including a resounding 47-17 win over BYU in the Holiday Bowl. Joe Cleveland, our Ohio correspondent, reports QB Mike Tomczak and fullback Vaughn Broadnax, a mere brot of a brot at 252 pounds, are in top form. Ohio State will win, 35-28. This will be a beauty!

And remember, dear readers, you saw these upsets first in Hoople. Um-kump!

Elsewhere, the high-scoring Nebraska Cornhuskers visit Minnesota for the 48th renewal of their series with the Gophers. Nebraska trails Minnesota in the rivalry with 19 victories, 29 losses and four ties. But the truly exceptional Husker offense — and more than adequate defense — will give them victory No. 17, by a 38-14 count.

Nebraska still on top in AP grid poll

Senate Joint Resolution 13 proposes a constitutional amendment that would change the Board of Pardons and Paroles from a constitutional agency to a statutory agency and would eliminate the Governor's power to revoke paroles. The Legislature would be authorized to establish the Board of Pardons and Paroles and to require it to maintain records of its actions and the reasons for its actions. The amendment would empower the Legislature to enact parole laws. Constitutional language specifying the qualifications and terms of office for members of the Board of Pardons and Paroles is eliminated.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing use of the permanent school fund to guarantee bonds issued by school districts."

Groom, Lefors suffer losses

Groom and Lefors were involved in one-sided football games last Friday night, but unfortunately, the scores weren't in their favor.

Groom was blanked by Nazareth, 35-0, while Lefors took a 32-7 whipping from Perryton Junior Varsity.

"Nazareth came out ready to play and we didn't," said Groom coach Frank Belcher. "We're just going to try and forget about it and get ready for the next game."

Nazareth was ranked No. 13 by the Harris Rating System and Groom was ranked No. 24 going into the Class 1A game.

Tailback Chris Gerber had 182 yards rushing for the winners while Johnny Schmucker added 112.

Groom, now 1-1, had just 128 total yards and never advanced inside Nazareth's 40-yard line. Quarterback Jeff Britten suffered a bruised thigh in the third quarter and had to be taken to a Dimmitt hospital.

Britten is expected to miss Friday's game with Happy, but should be ready in time for Groom's District 1-1A opener with McLean on Sept. 30.

"We're going to try to beat Happy and get some momentum going again if we can," Belcher said. "I feel like the kids will bounce back. They had kind of a letdown after the White Deer game."

BOSTON (AP) — Actress Stephanie Mills, star of "The Wiz," was right up front — on the podium — as cast members of the touring musical visited the Massachusetts Senate, causing Senate President William Bulger to break into song.

"There's No Business Like Show Business," sang Bulger who later joined performer-director Geoffrey Holder in a duet of "Danny Boy."

As Ms. Mills, star of the updated stage version of "The Wizard of Oz," appeared on the podium Monday, Bulger eased legislative rules so photographers could take pictures as she had fun banging Bulger's gavel.

"When she banged the gavel three times, the big question was whether we were in Kansas or still in Oz," quipped Sen. George Bahrach.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television producer Aaron Spelling, touched by the story of a young man needing a heart transplant, has donated $100,000 to help pay for the operation.

"I was overwhelmed," said 20-year-old Derrick Gordon of the gift Monday from Spelling, who helped create such hit TV shows as "Dynasty," "Charlie's Angels," "Mod Squad," "Hart to Hart," "Love Boat," "Fantasy Island" and "Starsky and Hutch."

The contribution will give Gordon "a new chance at a new life," says Dr. Linda Koosis, who has been treating Gordon.

The operation would be performed at the Stanford Medical Center and Spelling's gift would pay most of the $125,000 guaranteed fee the hospital requires.

BOSTON (AP) — Cardinal Humberto Medeiros is able to walk about as he recovers from what was described as a mild attack and may be released from St. Elizabeth's Hospital late this week, a spokeswoman for the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Boston says.

"His eminence spent a restful weekend in the interim coronary care unit," spokeswoman Ethel Froia said Monday. "All signs indicate that his mild heart attack is healing properly."

Through the use of special monitors, the 67-year-old Medeiros is able to walk.

Card of Thanks

RUTH WAKEFIELD
Perhaps you sent a lovely card. Or sat quietly in a chair. Perhaps you sent a funeral spray. If so we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words. As any friend could say. Perhaps you were not there at all. Just thought of us that day. Whatever you did to console our hearts. We thank you so much whatever the part. A special thanks to Dr. Jack Prendergast, the Sisters and nursing staff, and her many friends at St. Ann's Nursing home. Also Terry Brown and Carmichael Whalley Funeral Directors. Rev. Francis O'Malley for his beautiful sermon and kind words. Minnie Reeves, daughter Frank Kowing, son and the other family members.
