By WALTER PUTNAM

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The attorney for Jamie "Jimmy" Chagra, found innocent in the slaying of a federal judge, says he "can't believe" that his client was acquitted. Chagra, a 38-year-old convicted narcotics dealer and former high-stakes Las Vegas gambler, was acquitted Monday of murder in the 1979 assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. He was convicted on two lesser charges.

The acquittal came although Charles V. Harrelson, whom Chagra was accused of paying $250,000 to kill Wood, already had been convicted of the crime in a separate trial in San Antonio, Texas.

Chagra's wife, Elizabeth, was found guilty at the first trial of conspiring to murder Wood and cover up the crime. Oscar B. Goodman, Chagra's Las Vegas lawyer, said he figured the odds that Chagra would be convicted were 8-to-5. "The fact that the jury did what it was supposed to do was incredible in light of the odds," Goodman said. "The verdict speaks more eloquently than anything I could say... I can't believe it."

The jurors, he said, "were able to face him in the most heinous of charges and do what was right" even though Chagra is serving a 30-year racketeering sentence for narcotics trafficking.

"Thank God for Oscar Goodman," Chagra said as he left the courtroom. "I'm glad I'm in Jacksonville where there are 12 honest citizens."

Assistant U.S. Attorney John Emerson, one of the team of government prosecutors, said, "None of us has any comment."

The jury did convict Chagra of conspiracy to obstruct justice and conspiracy to possess for sale more than 1,000 pounds of marijuana, allegedly to finance an escape from federal prison.

The trial, which began Jan. 10, was moved to Jacksonville because of publicity about the Wood murder in Texas, including the convictions last Dec. 14 of Mrs. Chagra and Harrelson.

Murderess begins five-year jail term

After three years of appeals, and a new husband, Cathy Smith's time runs out

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

Cathy Darlene Smith, who was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the January, 1980 shooting death of her husband, Dennis Smith, was spirited away to prison to begin serving a five-year sentence early this morning by Gray County sheriff's deputies 30 minutes earlier than they had told the press.

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan told The Pampa News that Smith would be transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections prison facility at Huntsville between 7:30 and 7:45 a.m. today. She was taken from the county jail at 7:10 a.m., without any press present.

Smith was convicted of voluntary manslaughter on August 22, 1980 by a ten-woman, two-man jury in 31st District Court. She said she killed her husband because he subjected her to perverted sexual practices and refused to let her have any friends or outside activities.

She said he forbid her to see friends or family alone and at times almost imprisoned her in their house. Smith told the jury he forced her to watch pornographic films, tied her to the bed, and subjected her to perverted sexual acts.

After her conviction, Smith filed for an appeal in the Seventh Court of Appeals, Amarillo, and her conviction was upheld, according to former district attorney Harold Comer, who prosecuted the original case.

She then filed a petition for "discretionary review," which would allow for the examination of any unique aspect of the case, Comer said. The Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin refused to review her case, he said, and their decision was announced "two or three weeks ago."

She was sentenced to five years in prison, with no probation, according to Comer.

Smith, who was living in Amarillo after reportedly marrying Andy Costley, was taken into custody at Gray County Jail Monday morning, after she and her parents, Mr. & Mrs. O.L. Cochran, of Pampa, came to the courthouse to surrender Smith to Jordan. Jordan said Smith was due to surrender Friday afternoon, but because of the bad weather, she did not appear until Monday.

Smith's former mother-in-law, Betty Hayden of Pampa, said she thinks "everybody should pay for what they've done," when asked about Smith's transfer to prison.

"The Lord didn't put her in charge to take anybody's life," Hayden said this morning.

Hayden said she feels it's unfair for Smith to benefit from her husband's death. She said Smith got $31,000 in insurance money and married her present husband the next day, eight months after Dennis Smith's death.

"She benefitted from his death, and I'm still grieving," Hayden said.

Hayden said Smith kept the restaurant she and her husband owned, Steddum's, for one year and then sold it for $35,000.

"And she's been living free and clear all this time," Hayden said.

She also feels that Smith wronged her when she promised to give Dennis's personal things to his mother. Hayden says Smith promised in a phone conversation to give her his things, but never did.

"I never got anything of his. It's bad enough to take his life, but she took all his personal things, too," she said.

The Cochrans could not be reached for comment this morning.

Pampa hero honored by Texas House

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

On February 2 the Texas House of Representatives passed a resolution memorializing Robert Glen Head for saving the life of a five-year-old child on January 25, losing his own life in the act.

The resolution, introduced by Representative Jim Parker (D - Comanche) praised Head as "an outstanding individual who so unselfishly acted with no thought for his own safety."

Head, who lived in Pampa for many years, "courageously saved the life of a five-year-old student by pushing the child out of the way of an oncoming car before he was struck himself by the vehicle," the resolution said.

A copy of the resolution was sent to Head's widow, Olive.

Head, 72, a school crossing guard in Brownwood, Texas, was on duty the morning of January 25, doing what he really enjoyed, watching out for the children, said the school principal.

"The child darted across the road and the elderly crossing guard ran across the road and pushed (her) out of the way," Police Lt. Dwayne Pluckman said. Head died of a massive heart attack as a result of the accident.

The school principal, Walter Hamilton, said Head had worked for the school as a custodian since April, 1982. In October, Head took over the additional duties of school crossing guard at a busy intersection about 200 feet from the school of Austin Street.

He was concerned that the children had no one to help them cross the street.

White calls for major restoration

By KEN HERMAN

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says the state's 150th birthday celebration should include a project to restore the Capitol its original "dignity and beauty."

The governor Monday called for a "rather dramatic restoration" of the historic statehouse, to be completed in time for the 1986 sesquicentennial party.

White said he wants Texans to donate to a project aimed at restoring the original "dignity and beauty" of the 95-year-old pink granite building, which was damaged in a Sunday fire.

"The tragedy of yesterday is also an opportunity for us to do a rather dramatic restoration... to make it both architecturally correct and an also a useable facility for our Legislature," White said.

The governor said he had no estimate on what the project would cost. He said he envisioned something similar to former Gov. Bill Clements' restoration project at the Governor's Mansion.

"I would like to see that same sort of thing undertaken with a first class architectural restoration. If you have a chance to go through the Capitol building, you'll see what I'm talking about," White said in a speech to the Texas Stock and Bond Dealers Association.

The Capitol has undergone many changes since it opened in 1888. False ceilings put in during renovations proved to be obstacles for firemen battling the weekend blaze.

Other changes have been made to increase office space. "They built a bigger bureaucracy and squeezed it into the same size room," said White.

"I'm very excited about the prospect of turning what has been a tragedy into an opportunity" to give Texas one of the nation's "most beautiful capitols," the governor said.

He called for a Capitol refurbishment project that would "restore it to the dignity and the beauty that was there when it was originally built."

The project would make the Capitol "truly a museum for the people of Texas as well as a working office building," he said.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, has agreed to sponsor a bill calling for the Sesquicentennial Commission to coordinate the restoration, White said.

The restoration would be a more worthwhile project that plans to build a science museum here, according to the governor.

However, commission director Randy Lee said the panel has nothing to do with building projects, but is in charge of approving sesquicentennial events. He said the Sesquicentennial Museum Board would be in charge of any project such as the restoration of the Capitol.

The governor said the state has adequate office space to house workers who might be pushed out of the Capitol in the project to leave the building "architecturally correct."

"We haven't put a cost estimate on it. The major portion of the cost will be requested from private sources. There'll be very little tax called for in trying to accomplish our purpose," he said.

White said he had thought about the restoration project before the Capitol fire.

The tax lady gets an embarrassing question

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — The Yellowstone County treasurer was surprised when she received a property tax check asking if she had recently committed an unnatural act with a large animal.

Treasurer May Jenkins admits she sometimes finds "negative comments" scrawled on checks to the county, so managed to be entertained by the latest message.

The payment for $285.12 from the N.B. Hunt Ranch in Dallas, Texas, arrived Monday. Typed on the check was a query: "Have you hugged your cow today?"

Weather

Pampa will experience partly cloudy skies today and Wednesday with a high today in the low 40s. Tonight the temperature should dip to the low 20s and reach near 50 Wednesday. Winds will be from the southwest at 5-10 mph today, increasing to 15-20 mph tonight and shifting north to northwesterly Wednesday.

Massacre report urges Sharon's resignation

By ARTHUR MAX

JERUSALEM (AP) — The inquiry commission on the Beirut massacre called for Defense Minister Ariel Sharon's resignation today and rebuked Prime Minister Menachem Begin in a report that could shatter the Israeli leadership.

Begin called a Cabinet meeting for this morning, but it was then postponed until 3 p.m. Israel Radio said Sharon was refusing to accept the commission's findings and resign.

The report said the defense minister, architect of Israel's June 6 Lebanon invasion, bears "personal responsibility" for last September's massacre of hundreds of Palestinians by Lebanese Christian militiamen, and that Begin acted "with indifference" during the slaughter in two Beirut refugee camps.

The Israeli leaders should have foreseen that allowing the Lebanese militiamen into the camp might result in needless bloodshed, said the panel, composed of two Supreme Court justices and a retired general.

If Sharon does not resign Begin should fire him, the report said. It also called for the dismissal of Israel's military intelligence chief, Maj. Gen. Yehoshua Saguy, and harshly chastised Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Raphael Eytan, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Brig. Gen. Amos Yaron, the Israeli commander in Beirut during the massacre.

It recommended no action against the prime minister. Begin aides have said in the past he would resign if any senior Israeli official were blamed in the massacre, but there was no immediate indication whether he stood by this position.

The commission's report is not legally binding, but it will have great moral weight and could not easily be ignored by the government.

The findings raise the possibility that the entire Begin Cabinet will resign and set an early election.

The reports comes at a time when Israel is under increasing U.S. pressure to conclude negotiations for the withdrawal of its forces from Lebanon and to make new concessions in the search for an overall Arab-Israeli peace.

"We have found," the investigators wrote in the 108-page public section of the report, "that the minister of defense bears personal responsibility. In our opinion it is fitting that the minister of defense draw the appropriate personal conclusions arising out of the defects revealed with regard to the manner in which he discharged the duties of his office."

The report said Begin, along with Foreign Minister Shamir and the head of the Mossad intelligence service — whose name is secret — "bear some responsibility." But it did not recommend their dismissal.

The report said the investigators were not satisfied with Begin's testimony that he never imagined that Israel, in letting the militiamen into the camps, was risking a massacre.

It said Begin acted "with indifference" and did not pay sufficient attention to the horrifying events as they unfolded.

The report expressed astonishment that the decision to send the Lebanese into the camps "seemed so unimportant that the defense minister did not see fit to inform the prime minister and receive his assent."

It concluded that Begin was not informed of the fateful decision until he held a Cabinet meeting shortly after the militiamen already were in the camps.

"For two days after the prime minister heard about the Phalangist entry, he showed absolutely no interest in their actions in the camps," the report said.

The report also said Begin should have known of the possibility of a massacre and should have expressed an interest and closely followed the events. It also said it could not accept Begin's contention that "such a danger was entirely absent from his mind."

If Begin had shown more concern about a potential bloodbath, it would have prompted Sharon and Eytan to take preventive action, the commission said.

Job Hunter

Twenty-year-old Kim Merica and her husband moved to Pampa in November because he had just landed a better job than the one he had in Plano. They were able to put a down payment on a small house, and Kim hoped she'd be able to get a job as well.

After two months of hunting, she has found nothing. She has more than two years of experience as a cashier, and has worked doing a little bit of everything in a supermarket.

In addition, she can also type, file, answer phones and do other office jobs, such as run a Xerox machine and a CRT (computer terminal). She has a high school diploma and has had some college.

She would like to learn something about banking, and her experience with various keyboards might help her as a teller-trainee. Her experience makes her special, she says, because of the variety of skills she has. Either full or part time work is fine, she says, and she will work some nights if necessary. To interview Kim Merica, call Charles Vance at the Texas Employment Commission, Corbado Center, at 665-9938.

Lawnchair pilot named 'Bonehead'

DALLAS (AP) - A Californian who rose to fame in a lawn chair carried by 42 weather balloons has been named "Bonehead of the Year" by the Bonehead Club of Dallas.
 Larry Walters of North Hollywood, Calif., will accept the award Friday from the club, which annually honors "a person or group that has committed an act or participated in an event which in the eyes of the Boneheads is a monumental goof."
 The club's motto is "to learn more and more about less and less, until eventually we shall know everything about nothing."

Bold ex-general may face near political oblivion after report

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Ariel Sharon, who crossed the Suez in one of Israel's most heroic moments, may now find his goal of becoming prime minister buried in the debris of one of this country's bleakest times.
 The special commission of inquiry on Israel's role in last September's massacre of Palestinian civilians in Beirut recommended today that Sharon resign or be fired as defense minister because he bears "personal responsibility" in the deaths.
 The commission said Sharon, in allowing Lebanese Christian militiamen into two Palestinian refugee camps, disregarded an obvious danger of bloodshed. The militiamen killed hundreds of Palestinians.
 The 54-year-old ex-general has never been far from controversy throughout a brilliant and stormy military and political career, which has marked him with the reputation for rushing headlong into the fray in defiance of his superiors' orders.
 During the struggle for the creation of Israel in the 1940s, the young Sharon's independent style won him many admirers. Born and raised on a farm, at home with guns

A trucker's plea

It's an unfortunate sign of the times, but an independent trucker in Utah scribbled this message in dirt on the back of his rig. There have been more than 1,200 violent incidents against non-striking truckers in the nine days of the strike. (AP Laserphoto)

Truck traffic nearly to normal during daylight in shutdown

By DEAN FOSDICK
 Associated Press Writer

States from Florida to California reported a sharp drop in violence and near-normal truck traffic as the independent truckers strike entered its ninth day, and federal officials said the shutdown was causing only "minimum delays" in shipments of perishable goods.

In Ohio and Pennsylvania, the most trouble-prone states on the heavily traveled Chicago-to-New York corridor, state police said they received no reports of significant violence Monday, although 17 men were charged with rioting after a rock was lobbed at a truck near Youngstown, Ohio.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said early today that although fewer truckers were pushing their rigs through the darkness, truck traffic appeared normal during daylight hours.

"They're not moving at night as much, but traffic's about normal in the daytime," Sgt. Robert Mudd said. "Looks like the strike is going to be short-lived."

More than 1,200 acts of violence have been reported in 38 states since the strike began, including one shooting death, at least 63 injuries and 93 arrests, authorities said. The strike was called to protest rising federal gasoline taxes and user fees for truckers.

In Louisiana, a group of independent truckers called Monday for a return of "peace and work," while in Oregon, support for the strike also appeared to be fading.

"Many feel they participated as far as they needed, and that they need to get back to their own jobs, hauling freight," said Abbott Lawrence, president of Jubitz Truck Stop in Portland.

The strike was having a minimal impact on food shipments except in isolated cases, federal officials said Monday.

Nine indicted by grand jury following weather delay Monday

The 31st District Grand Jury indicted nine people on various charges at its session Monday morning. The Monday session was scheduled to complete indictments after the first session, last Wednesday, was cut short by bad weather.

Larry Wellborn was indicted on six counts of "burglary-entering with intent to commit theft," ranging from January 2 to January 14. Levi Aubrey Moore was indicted on two counts of burglary, and William Dwayne Welch was indicted on one count. All three were indicted in connection with a burglary on January 13.

Richard D. Page was indicted on three counts of burglary, in connection with incidents ranging from January 2 to January 8.

Lloyd Remy was indicted on one count of "criminal mischief-damage or destroy," and Roger Rosalez was indicted on a count of "aggravated assault by use of a deadly weapon."

Fred Eugene Smith and Hoyt Eugene Larue were each indicted on single counts of "theft by taking." Johnny Rogers was also indicted for theft by taking.

Ricky Powell and Johnny Spotts were each indicted on single counts of "burglary of a vehicle."

In Brief

WASHINGTON - President Reagan, using some of his toughest language yet with the Israelis, says Israel is "delaying unnecessarily" withdrawal of its troops from Lebanon.

WASHINGTON - Millions of taxpayers are about to get acquainted with a new federal tax form. It's called a W-6 and if you're eligible, it will prevent withholding of taxes from your savings account.

WASHINGTON - U.S. officials, recognizing that President Reagan's "zero option" proposal stands little chance of acceptance by the Soviet Union, now concede an interim solution is the more likely outcome of the Geneva arms control talks.

PARIS - After trying to convince reluctant Italians, Germans and Dutch to base U.S. nuclear missiles in their countries, Vice President George Bush should find a congenial reception in Socialist France which has never wavered in its support of the NATO deployment decision.

Band hosts spaghetti feed to fund trip

A spaghetti supper will be held this evening from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. in the Pampa High School cafeteria to benefit the "Pride of Pampa" band.

Tickets are $3 and can be purchased at the door or from any band member. Homemade cakes and pies will also be sold.

The band students have participated in a number of fund-raising activities to help sponsor a spring trip to Tempe, Arizona, to compete in the Mountain State Music Festival. The spaghetti supper will be the last fundraiser this year.

Cleanup begins at tent city site

HOUSTON (AP) — Tent City, a controversial haven for the homeless and unemployed, has been evacuated and barricaded. Now Claude Crocker can begin a week-long massive cleanup operation.

"It's a dirty shame we couldn't have done all this before a man burned to death," said Crocker, a state highway department supervisor responsible for refurbishing the park that once was jammed with 200 residents crammed in tents and lean-tos.

Crocker said he stopped sending cleanup crews to the roadside park and overnight campground six months ago when crowds swelled beyond capacity.

"It was closed down to the public as effectively as if we had come in and barricaded it ourselves," Crocker said. "I feel the public was being abused by it."

He said it would take five or six dump trucks, a bulldozer and a front end loader along with about 10 workmen to clean up the debris left by the former residents.

Crocker was able to begin work at the site, about 30 miles northeast of here, because a state judge refused Monday to prohibit Harris County Fire Marshal J.J. Pruitt from evicting the park's few remaining residents for violating strict fire safety regulations.

State highway department crews moved swiftly to begin the cleanup, putting up barricades to block entrance to the park and posting a sign that read "Park Closed for Repairs."

Pruitt issued the regulations after James "Scotty" Bolland, 41, burned to death Wednesday when fire gutted his small tent, where he had built a fire to keep warm.

Bill Collins, who had been a spokesman for the tent dwellers since November, filed suit, seeking a temporary injunction to prevent Pruitt from closing the facility. State District Judge William Blanton denied the motion Monday.

Blanton took only about 40 minutes to refuse to grant Collins a temporary injunction despite the pleas of attorney Rod Phelps, who contended Collins and other residents should be allowed to stay because they had no other place to live.

Phelps said that was the reason Collins and other residents violated a state regulation that permits camping for only 24 to 48 hours.

"The same argument could be used for a man who has no food," Blanton said. "I can't justify that either."

Assistant District Attorney David Hurley said Harris County Fire Marshal J.J. Pruitt was merely carrying out his duties in trying to prevent a fire hazard.

"If every time a fire marshal or police officer tried to arrest someone and they could just go get an injunction to prevent it, police forces would be paralyzed and we would have anarchy," Blanton said.

"I don't think it's fair," Collins said. "That land is state property and the people are the state. They have a right to be there."

Pruitt said the people of Tent City had been provided with a list of social agencies that could help them.

"I am the fire marshal and we are in the firefighting business," he said. "Housing is not our line."

Autopsy shows alcohol, marijuana in capitol fire victim's blood

AUSTIN (AP) — An autopsy shows the man killed in a fire in the Capitol Sunday was drunk at the time of his death and had traces of marijuana in his blood, the Travis County medical examiner said.

Earlier Monday, fire officials said the cause of the blaze, which gutted the lieutenant governor's three-bedroom apartment and for a time threatened the entire statehouse, could have been either smoking materials or a faulty electrical appliance.

Gov. Mark White said he wanted answers on why heat sensors in the apartment did not signal an earlier warning, and called for an investigation into the effectiveness of the sensors.

"It seemed that that fire was almost fully out of control before there was any apparent alarm," said White. "I think it's important to make an inquiry there."

White asked lawmakers for an emergency $7 million appropriation to repair the damage.

Medical Examiner Robert J. Bayardo said a preliminary autopsy showed the man killed in the fire, Matt Hansen, 23, a horse trainer from New Caney, died of smoke inhalation and carbon monoxide poisoning.

Hansen was an overnight guest in Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's Capitol apartment. Hobby's daughter Kate, 18, and the couple that Hansen worked for also were staying in the apartment, but escaped the blaze unhurt.

"He (Hansen) had twice the legal limit" of alcohol in his bloodstream, Bayardo said, or 0.21 percent, as well as "a little bit of marijuana."

"If he was in a place where there was a lot of (marijuana) smoke, he might have had this low level of marijuana in his blood," Bayardo said.

Assistant City Fire Marshal Malcolm Light said Monday investigators were certain the fire started in a den where Miss Hobby said Hansen had been watching television. Hansen's body was found on the floor between two beds in a bedroom behind the den.

Bayardo said the alcohol level in Hansen's blood was the equivalent of having eight beers within one to two hours. Bayardo said Hansen might have drunk more over a longer period of time.

Sensors met Monday — despite the fact that because of the fire there was no heat or electricity — and passed resolutions thanking firefighters and police for saving lives and the Capitol.

One resolution commended four police officers for their "heroic and courageous rescue" of Kate Hobby and James and Joan Waterman.

The resolution said four Capitol guards who "dashed into the blazing inferno" to save the visitors "should be placed on any roll call of true Texas heroes."

"You can add the name of the lieutenant governor in capital letters to that one (resolution)," said Hobby.

One policeman and two firemen injured in the fire remained hospitalized Monday. Four others had been treated and released.

"By all accounts," said Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, the firefighters "saved the entire building from being destroyed. They sacrificed and risked their own lives to see that this building — so symbolic of Texas — be protected."

A third resolution praised workers who "labored tirelessly amid the smoke-charred ruin and rubble" in sweeping out water and removing debris.

More than half of the 31 senators wore topcoats in the darkened chamber, where the temperature was 52 degrees.

Nine senators made plans to move from their damaged third-floor offices to a nearby state office building that opened up when the Animal Health Commission hastily vacated the 10th floor. The senators learned later they would not be able to move back into the Capitol until after the current session ends May 30.

Hansen's father, C.J. Hansen, came to Austin to claim his son's body Monday. He said Hansen aspired to join the U.S. Equestrian Team.

The son had attended a Saturday night horseman's awards ceremony with Miss Hobby and the Watermans, owners of the New Caney stable where he worked.

Hansen said his son would be buried in Tucson, Ariz., where he grew up.

Research underway for tasty meals

HOUSTON (AP) — Researchers hired to make food aboard the space shuttle more tasty are reviewing records of past space flights to find out what foods astronauts don't like.

"NASA prepared 112 chicken sandwiches for the Apollo program, and only seven were eaten," researcher Ganesh Sivaraman said.

"Bacon squares were eaten 58 times during Apollo, which shows they were liked by the astronauts. Peanut cubes were eaten only once. I don't think they were liked too well," he said.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has given the University of Houston Hilton School of Hotel and Restaurant Management a $25,000 research grant to find ways to make eating in space more enjoyable.

Space food has improved both in taste and appearance, but there still is lots of room for improvement, said Charles Bourland, a university scientist working for a NASA contractor.

"People still think of astronauts eating from tubes even though they haven't for years," Bourland said. "Food packaged for space has traditionally had a different appearance. The appearance alone is enough to make the food less appetizing to astronauts simply because they are not used to it."

"We later made the food into bite-sized cubes coated with gelatin to keep crumbs from flying around," he said.

"The cubes tasted good, but they were just different from what the astronauts were used to, so they weren't enthusiastic about eating it."

Meals on the space shuttle will be more like home cooking, Bourland said.

Graduate student Sandy Louvier and Sivaraman, working on his doctorate in business, are studying past spaceflight menus and preparing a survey of past and present astronauts to determine which foods they liked and did not like — and why.

"We have to caution astronauts who might be going on the extended space station missions not to ask for 50 meals of the same item just because it's their favorite food," says Miss Louvier.

"We remind them that after a week or two of eating the same thing, they'll probably start getting tired of it."

Weeklong hearing on motions begins

HOUSTON (AP) — A car being driven too slowly led to the arrests made in an alleged plot to extort $15 million from Gulf Oil Chemical Co., a FBI special agent has testified in federal court here.

Special agent Douglas Hopkins of the Phoenix, Ariz., FBI office said two men were arrested after agents noticed a car creeping down a street near where extortionists had been making phone calls.

The agents moved in after the car stopped at a phone booth and one man made a call. Hopkins said Monday. One of the agents picked up the phone and found himself talking to Robert J. Quintana, a Gulf security officer who said he had been talking to the extortionists, Hopkins said.

Hopkins identified the men arrested as Worth and McKinney.

He said agents found receipts from a Mesa, Ariz., motel in suitcases in the men's car, and that phone calls made from that motel were traced to make other arrests.

A major issue during the hearings is the status of a government agreement to dismiss charges against Ms. Bird.

Government prosecutors had agreed not to prosecute Ms. Bird in exchange for information from McBride on the bombs, but the agreement was withdrawn when government attorneys said McBride was not cooperative.

The Cedar Bayou facility was shut down for several days during late September and early October. Five bombs were disarmed there and another exploded harmlessly.

Judge says man who killed wife didn't need punishment

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An elderly man who killed his bedridden wife to end her "extreme pain" should not be punished, according to the judge who found him innocent of murder.

"I'm not going to try to defend this decision," said State District Judge Donald Carroll.

Carroll acquitted Harvey McLellan Shick, 64, of murder charges Monday.

Shick was accused of shooting Marie Louise Shick, 62, twice in the head with a .22-caliber pistol as she lay in bed in their Holiday Hills home.

Shick pleaded guilty on Nov. 15, but Carroll refused to accept the plea and ordered a pre-sentencing investigation of the case.

According to Shick's lawyer, Eric Jensen, Mrs. Shick had been ill since 1977 and "was in excruciating pain all the time, particularly in the feet and legs," because of an advanced case of arteriosclerosis — hardening of the arteries.

She also had high blood pressure and was bedridden much of the time, Jensen said.

The Shicks had been married 45 years and did not have a troubled relationship, Jensen said.

Jensen said the June 1 shooting was impulsive. He said Shick was "distressed at her sickness and that he was not able to do anything."

Death was imminent, and medical treatment would only "produce a precarious and burdensome prolongation of life," Jensen said. He called it "an act motivated by love."

Man charged in attempt to sell secrets

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a former Monsanto Inc. engineer on charges of selling a secret chemical process for fattening cattle and chickens to an FBI agent posing as a representative of a rival company.

Nestor Ovidio Torra, a project engineer at a Monsanto facility under construction near suburban Clear Lake, used his access to the secret process plans to sell his company down the river," said Assistant U.S. Attorney Samuel Longoria.

Torra contacted officials at Rhone-Poulenc Inc. of Monmouth Junction, N.J., and offered to sell them "a chemical livestock and poultry food additive in liquid form of great value in fattening livestock and poultry," Longoria said. The asking price was $250,000, he said.

Monsanto has invested about $75 million in the secret formula by building the Clear Lake facility, the federal prosecutor said.

He said Rhone-Poulenc immediately contacted the FBI, which arranged for the sale to take place in Oklahoma City on Jan. 8. Torra was arrested by the agent.

Torra, who is free on $50,000 bond, is charged with one count of mail fraud, three counts of wire fraud and one count each of transporting stolen property and selling stolen property.

Hopkins' testimony came during a hearing before U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald, who is taking testimony on more than 40 pretrial motions.

Four men and a woman from the Durango, Colo., area are charged with demanding $15 million from Gulf Oil Chemical Co. in September and threatening to blow up Gulf's Cedar Bayou chemical refinery 30 miles east of here.

Charged in a 12-count indictment are Jill Renee Bird, 34; her common-law husband, John McBride, 46; Theodore Duane McKinney, 45; Timothy K. Justice, 30; and Michael Allen Worth, 34.

Justice has pleaded guilty to two counts and agreed to testify against the other four in exchange for dropping of the charges.

Ms. McDonald said the pretrial filings include motions to suppress the government's evidence and to dismiss charges against Ms. Bird. She said hearings could continue through the week.

Quintana presented a series of taped telephone conversations he had on Sept. 28 and 29 and Oct. 1 with a man identifying himself at the extortionist.

On the tapes, a man is heard demanding $15 million and threatening to blow up the refinery. A final tape ends as agents make the arrests.

The caller used a stress evaluator — a device that theoretically pinpoints lies by detecting stress in the voice — on each of the calls. Quintana answered the man's questions, but the caller expressed suspicions about his truthfulness during several of the calls.

At one point, the caller said, "I'm getting a real marginal response here, and called back to say the Cedar Bayou refinery would 'go up.'"

Eventually, Quintana was instructed to deliver $15 million in five boxes containing used and unmarked $50 and $100 bills. The Gulf security chief said he flew to Phoenix on Oct. 1 and then drove to a series of pay phones and made more phone calls, each conversation recorded.

At the last phone, Quintana was told where to drop the money and then told to drive 3.8 miles beyond the drop point, park the car and wait two hours.

The man told him he wouldn't be hurt "unless something goes wrong — then they will hurt you."

A moment later, a voice is heard to shout: "Get your hands up! FBI agents! Get your hands up!"

Another voice, identified as FBI agent Ed Hall, comes on the phone and Quintana asks, "Did you get them?"

"Yeah," says the voice. "We got them both."

The goal should be free trade

It is encouraging that Secretary of State George Shultz at least has been talking with French Foreign Minister Claude Chensson about trade with the Soviet Union. The kind of informal, relatively quiet diplomacy that seems to be Shultz's forte may be the most productive way to improve relations among countries which, if they are not really allies, should be basically friendly and able to disagree on occasion with a minimum of acrimony.

Is there substance behind the style, however? Consider what Shultz and Chensson arrived at this month. They agreed to a study of strengthening a Western group called Cocom which purports to coordinate the export of goods with potential military significance. They also agree to track Soviet - Western financial and trade flows, to investigate alternative sources of energy for Europe, and to see if the West is in effect enhancing the Soviet military.

Those studies are not likely to be harmful. At the same time, they do not seem to be guided by first principles or aimed at tangible goals. They therefore face the endemic danger of diplomacy: seeking agreements for the sake of saying that an agreement has been reached - to put it more bluntly, expensive wheel spinning.

It should seem obvious by now that the present U.S. administration and most countries in Western Europe have different perceptions of what faces them as a result of the Soviet Union's becoming a world superpower. President Reagan emphasizes a justifiable fear of Soviet aggression and is inclined toward such forthright steps as embargoes of goods. Whether out of cowardice, incipient pacifism, sophistication or awareness of vulnerability, most Europeans (and this perception is simplified and subject to change, as the new regime in West Germany may illustrate) are inclined to emphasize cooperation and trade with the Soviet behemoth - what some hardliners would call appeasement.

If coordination between the U.S. and Western European powers is desirable (and that should be subject to searching debate), it is more likely to be achieved not by trying to impose uniform quasi-embargoes, but by agreement on how trade is to be carried out. It is unlikely that most Europeans, whose domestic economies are all shakier than ours, will agree to strict trade embargoes. Even British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, a sturdy anti-communist, bridled at President Reagan's high-handedness over the Siberian gas pipeline.

A question that might more profitably be explored is whether various governments can agree to keep government trade credits and other forms of subsidies to a minimum when dealing with the Soviet Union and other communist powers. Some trade is likely to occur. But do Western governments have to lend the Soviets the money to buy goods at below-market rates? Why not get out of this racket and thereby let what trade remains deplete Soviet hard currency?

To be sure, most European leaders are committed, ideologically if hazily, to government management and stimulus of the economy. On the other, the near-bankruptcy of Mexico, the staggering debts of Third World countries, and the phenomenally being able to hold lenders in something akin to a hostage situation have not gone unnoticed in Europe. The U.S. itself is in the thick of that mess.

It may be that Secretary Shultz, with his background in economics, is aware of these economics, is aware of these issues and has been pressing them on the French and other Europeans in private talks. If so, well and good. If not, it is time to change course, to concentrate on trade that is free (and unsubsidized) in every respect.

IN WASHINGTON

Robert Walters

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — For a possible answer to one of the most perplexing questions in politics today — whether or not President Reagan will seek re-election — try to identify the next U.S. ambassador to Austria.

That apparent non sequitur actually makes sense with a relatively simple explanation which begins with the observation that supposedly reliable speculation both here and in Austria has centered on Helene von Damm as the leading candidate to fill the vacant ambassadorial post.

Miss von Damm has been an extraordinarily dedicated and loyal Reagan supporter throughout the president's entire political career, beginning with his first bid for governor of California in 1966 when she served as a campaign volunteer.

By 1968, she was Reagan's personal secretary, a post she held during the ensuing six years of his governorship. After service in the 1976 and 1980 Reagan presidential campaigns, she returned to the position of personal secretary when Reagan was inaugurated in early 1981.

How Republicans, Democrats differ

By OSCAR COOLEY

Hearing political speeches, it is hard to tell Republicans from Democrats, but their difference was succinctly stated by Charles Manatt, Democrat national Chairman, when he introduced his party's "state of the union" message, following Reagan's Jan. 25.

"The Republicans say and believe," he said, "the less government we have the better. The Democrats say government should and must have a creative role in stimulating growth, providing fairness of opportunity, and forging the partnerships of business, government, labor and education."

In short, the Republicans are strong for private enterprise. The people should have what they want, and they can best get it by their own free, voluntary enterprise. They do not want some powerful organization doing good for them, at the cost of the taxpayers.

The Democrats see the government as a highly useful agency, financed by the taxing power, with which to serve the public welfare.

Hello out there

By ART BUCHWALD

There is a communications revolution going on in the world right now. New technology has made it possible for people to communicate with each other by everything from satellites to car telephones. The only problem is that although scientists have made it possible to think up ways of keeping in touch with each other, no one seems to know if it's a good thing or a bad thing.

I came to this conclusion when I was riding with a friend in his car the other day. He had one of those new telephones attached under the dashboard.

"What do you need that for?" I asked him.

"I couldn't do without it. Look, all I have to do is hit this button and I can get my office." I heard the buzzing and a voice picked up the phone.

"Thunderbird and Thunderbird," the lady said.

"This is Mr. Thunderbird. Do you have any calls for me?"

"No, I don't, Mr. Thunderbird."

"No, calls at all?"

"No, Mr. Thunderbird. The phone hasn't rung since you left the office."

"We'll, I'll be driving in my car for another 25 minutes. If anyone calls put them through to my car telephone."

"Business must be slow," I said.

"We're hurting like everybody else," he said.

"When did your recession start?"

"Come to think of it, just about the time I put the phone in the car."

"That's tough. Just when it's possible for you to communicate by car phone with a client, there are no clients."

"You have to be ready for the turnaround in the economy," he told me. "When it comes I'll be able to handle all my business from my car."

Just then the phone buzzed.

"There you are," said Thunderbird. "You see the importance of the phone? If I didn't have it, someone else might have gotten the business."

He picked up the receiver. "Thunderbird speaking."

"Is that you, darling?"

"Yes, dear."

"Where are you?"

"Massachusetts Avenue and Western."

"Would you stop at Wagshal's and bring home a pound of roast beef, dill pickles and a case of beer?"

"I've already passed Wagshal's. Why can't you send Tommy?"

"He's out driving somewhere, but he doesn't have a phone in his car."

Thunderbird muttered something and turned around.

"I guess there are pluses and minuses to having a phone," I said.

"I should have never given my wife my number."

The phone buzzed again. It was Thunderbird's secretary.

"Mr. Thunderbird, Father Brooke of Holy Cross just called and said he needed the $10,000 you pledged for the new science building."

"Did you tell him you couldn't find me?"

"Yes. But he said to call you in your car. I didn't tell him you had a phone in your car."

"I did," Thunderbird said. "I thought he'd be happy one of his alumni had made good."

We picked up the roast beef at Wagshal's and started back out of Bethesda. The phone rang again.

Mrs. Thunderbird again. "Darling, be a dear and pick up Johanna at Holton Arms. She seems to have missed her car pool."

Thunderbird almost threw the phone out the window.

It buzzed once more.

Thunderbird brightened up when he heard the voice.

"Hey, Eddie, where are you calling from?"

"My car. Where are you?"

"I'm in my car. I can hear you loud and clear. What's up?"

"Nothing. I just wanted to say hello."

"Well, Hello, hello and hidee ho!"

"Roger and out."

"Now you see the true value of a car telephone," Thunderbird said. "If I didn't have one in my from seat, I wouldn't have been able to talk to Eddie until I got home."

(c) 1983, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

includes Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee and Rep. Jack F. Kemp of New York as well as "dark horses" such as Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon and Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

Because the first step in the delegate selection process, Iowa's precinct caucuses, now is only slightly more than one year away, a Reagan decision not to run announced in the fall would give those candidates little time to organize and offset Bush's unofficial status as heir apparent.

The "new right" wing of the Republican Party is almost certain to mount an intense effort to deny the nomination to Bush or Baker — a campaign which could leave the party badly bloodied with inadequate time to heal its wounds.

The prospect of a bitter internecine struggle for the right to succeed Reagan apparently was on the minds of many members of the Republican National Committee who recently gathered here for a routine meeting.

Former Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes unexpectedly offered a motion to endorse the Reagan-Bush ticket for re-election in 1984. That formulation probably was technically improper because the party apparatus traditionally maintains an official position of neutrality in all contests until after the primary elections have been held — but Rhodes' motion was approved without a murmur of dissent.

Many Republican insiders believe that Reagan hasn't even seriously considered his 1984 options yet — and he certainly isn't about to offer a disclosure anytime soon. In the meantime, watch Helene von Damm.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Woodrow Wilson, the college president gone political, was the first ardent Democrat do-gooder. Following him came a string of copycats: F. D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Lyndon Johnson, John F. Kennedy, James Earl Carter. Occasionally, a Republican such as Eisenhower and Reagan has wormed his way into the White House, usually by indicating that he, too, will use the government, at least to some extent, to share the wealth.

Americans, traditionally independent, have gone to depend on government so much that when a rock-ribbed Republican named Reagan became president and began saying no to the good-seekers, they cried out with pain and whined, "What goes on here?" It is easy to get used to pap.

An example is the farmer. He has had the government actively on his side for 50 years, supporting his prices and setting up agencies such as the AAA, FCA, REA, etc., to do him good at public expense, but this has not solved his problems. Farmers still beg for aid, as they did in the 1930's.

When money comes easily, as from taxing the world's wealthiest people, it goes freely. Easy come, easy go. Result: waste. The U.S. government has become the biggest spendthrift of all time. People come to look upon it as an inexhaustible source. Further, the school of economists called Keynesian has tried to justify the huge government budgets, making a virtue out of spending.

But Ronald Reagan, an old-fashioned fellow at heart, did not go for spenditis. He leaned to less spending, not more. He came out and said it would be nice to balance the budget and quit boosting the national debt into the stratosphere.

Reagan took his Republicanism seriously. Big government had become mammoth government. It was not the job of a Republican to make it still bigger. So he began to cut the government back at many points. It was not hard to find some that could be spared.

The battle is now drawn. On one side are the free spenders; on the other the laissez faire, free enterprisers.

Charles Manatt, who drew the line between the contenders, is a banker. This seems to contradict those who claim all the businessmen are semi-anarchists.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 8, the 39th day of 1983. There are 326 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 8, 1587, Mary Queen of Scots was beheaded after being accused of plotting the murder of England's Queen Elizabeth I.

On this date: In 1725, Russia's Peter the Great died and was succeeded by his widow, Catherine.

In 1974, three U.S. Skylab astronauts returned to Earth after 84 days in orbit.

Prospect seen of 'interim solution' at Geneva

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials, recognizing that President Reagan's plan to eliminate medium-range nuclear missiles from Europe stands little chance with the Soviets, say a more likely outcome of the Geneva arms control talks is a compromise interim solution.

That outcome, openly favored by many West European leaders, would permit the United States to achieve nuclear parity with the Soviets at levels far below those contemplated in the NATO deployment plan.

Thus far, the administration has said little publicly about the interim solution, hoping to keep attention focused on Reagan's zero option plan that would ban all land-based, medium-range weapons from Europe.

The Soviets have rejected the Reagan plan and offered instead to reduce their arsenal to 162 missiles, the combined number held by France and Great Britain.

In the face of what appears to be determined Soviet opposition, the administration has begun to consider alternatives to the zero option. U.S. officials, who were interviewed on the condition they not be identified, outlined some of them.

Under the interim solution plan, the Soviets would reduce their arsenal of more than 600 missiles while the United States would agree to deploy a number matching the reduced Soviet total.

Presumably, the figure would be considerably below the current Soviet deployment level and the 572 cruise and Pershing II missiles the United States plans to deploy in five allied countries starting in December.

Another alternative would give the Soviets the same number of land-based, medium-range nuclear missiles now deployed by France, the only other allied country with such weaponry.

A third scenario, according to the officials, would be total implementation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's plan. The United States does not rule out the possibility of total collapse of the Geneva talks. This would lead to full NATO deployment of the 108 Pershing II's and 464 cruise missiles starting in 10 months.

The biggest imponderable facing the administration is European public opinion. Officials here believe the Soviets have not yet negotiated seriously at Geneva, hoping the peace movement in Western Europe, staunchly opposed to deployment, will be too politically potent for leaders of allied countries to ignore.

The year in toys

NEW YORK (AP) — Pac-Man has a new life as a squirt gun. The Valley Girl is saying things like "Barf me out" to total strangers. Brooke Shields has a new smile. And E.T. simply refuses to go home.

Welcome to the world of toys — 1983.

The 80th American Toy Fair, the country's largest toy trade show, opened Monday with the usual stuffed bears, soccer balls and train sets. And with E.T., wildly popular last Christmas, in every shape imaginable.

There's a talking E.T. with a six-sentence vocabulary: "Be good," "Elliott," "Home," "Thank you," "E.T., E.T., E.T." and, of course, "E.T. phone home."

E.T. has his own stickers, the Sniff-Ums, which come in a variety of fragrances. There's an E.T. & Elliott Bicycle, an E.T. Spaceship Launcher and, for $25, an E.T. Spaceship playset with secret storage compartments, a moving walkway, a botanical laboratory and handles on the back so kids can pretend it's flying.

E.T. will collide on toy shelves with some familiar and some unknown film characters. Buttons, jewelry, wallets and other baubles show characters from "Return of the Jedi," the latest in the "Star Wars" series opening this spring.

The Valley Girl Talking Doll is "totally awesome," a salesman explained. When you pull its string, it says things like: "I'm a Val," "Grody to the max," and "Gag me with a spoon."

The Brooke Shields Doll, one million of which sold last year, has a new smile, a new wardrobe and longer hair.

"We've added glamour to her," says Harry Moorhouse, director of marketing for LNJ Toys Ltd. Prom Party Brooke comes with a rose-scented corsage.

Pac-Man, the popular video game, has spawned Pac-Man sunglasses, a Pac-Man-shaped Squirt-Um squirt gun and Pac-Man Putty, which glows in the dark.

More missile talk for Bush

PARIS (AP) — Vice President George Bush, who has crisscrossed Europe to ease doubts about planned deployment of U.S. medium-range missiles, arrived today for what are expected to be cordial talks with leaders of Socialist France.

Bush was greeted by American Ambassador Evan Galbraith when he flew in from Italy for the sixth stop on his seven-nation European tour. His last stop will be Britain.

France has never wavered in its support for basing 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Western Europe by the end of the year if no agreement is reached at the Geneva disarmament talks between Washington and Moscow. However, France is not one of the five countries in which the missiles would be based.

French President Francois Mitterrand reportedly has urged the Americans to consider any serious Soviet compromise short of the so-called "zero-option" — but only because he feels failure to do so could trigger a European backlash and prevent the installation of any new U.S. missiles.

The "zero option" calls for the Soviets to destroy medium-range nuclear missiles aimed at Europe in exchange for a NATO decision to forego deployment of the Pershing and cruise missiles.

French leaders say balanced nuclear deterrence is the only way to avert war, and that the Soviet SS-20 missiles aimed at Western Europe have disrupted the strategic balance.

Mitterrand has tried to encourage the West German government to stick by the deployment plan in the face of the strong grassroots peace movement that threatens Chancellor Helmut Kohl's re-election on March 6.

On Jan. 24, Mitterrand told the West German Bundestag: "It is our conviction that nuclear arms, the instrument of deterrence ... remain the only guarantee for peace."

Movie inspires organs donation

KILGORE, Texas (AP) — Anthony Pennington was so inspired by a television movie about a young man receiving a heart transplant that he expressed a desire to donate his organs when he died.

Pennington told his brother after the movie, "You know, when I die, I think I'll do that (donate organs for transplants)."

Less than 48 hours after he saw the CBS television movie "Thursday's Child," the 15-year-old Kilgore High School sophomore was struck by a truck as he rode his bicycle on a highway near this East Texas town.

Pennington was taken first to Laird Hospital in Kilgore and later taken to Tyler Medical Center in nearby Tyler.

"He was in critical condition. No response to anything," said Mrs. Mercedes Sarmiento, nursing supervisor at the Tyler hospital.

Dr. Lester Collins notified Dr. Thomas Lowrey, who heads the donor program at the Tyler hospital, when Dr. Collins learned of the family's desire to donate the organs.

Young Pennington was pronounced dead at 9:45 a.m. Monday.

Two corneas were donated to patients at Mother Francis Hospital at Tyler.

Dear Abby

False phone number causes real trouble

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted With Egomania" wrote to say that she always gave a phony name or telephone number to strange men who came on too strong.

Thanks, Abby, for saying, "What's wrong with looking them straight in the eye and saying, 'No, you may not have my name or phone number because I really don't care to see you again?'"

I wonder if it ever occurs to the person who gives a phony number that the "phony" number may actually be someone's real number?

I have had to change my phone number because apparently some woman had given it out as her own. For weeks I was pestered by the same man at all hours of the day and night. He even called me from another state — collect! I refused the call while he kept trying to convince the operator that I was the party he wanted. (This was at 6 a.m. on a Sunday morning!)

Changing numbers is an expensive procedure. It's also time-consuming and a nuisance. So, Miss Van Buren, please inform people who make up phony numbers that they may be giving someone the right to harass an innocent party.

PESTERED IN L.A.

DEAR PESTERED: Read on for another view:

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Disgusted With Egomania" was totally wrong. When a man is told that he may not have a woman's phone number because she doesn't care to see him again, it only adds to the challenge and heightens his interest. And since most of these contests take place in a drinking atmosphere, the scene can get ugly.

Before I grew up, in my tomcatting days, after one such joust with a woman, I finally talked her into giving me her number and felt that I had scored a victory.

When I tried to call her the next day, I got a recorded message informing me of the weekly bus schedule! Do you think she was trying to tell me something?

BENCHED IN FLAGSTAFF

DEAR BENCHED: Yes. "Hit the road, wise guy!"

DEAR ABBY: Every year at Christmas, my in-laws give my husband and me separate gifts of money.

My husband gets $150 and I get $25. During the holidays I try to forget about it, but after the celebrating is over, I feel very hurt and insulted.

I'm on very good terms with my in-laws, and they know that I manage money well, so I don't know why they do this.

I feel like telling them how much it upsets me, since the same feelings linger every year. What do you suggest?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Your husband should suggest that his parents lump together their cash Christmas gifts and address a single gift to both of you. That should avoid the "hurt" without mentioning it.

DEAR ABBY: "Ms. Living Alone" resented your suggestion to invite someone who's living alone over for leftovers. She said, "If they can't invite me over for the real thing, they can give their leftovers to the dog!"

Since when is good food not the "real thing"? She should live in countries where they don't give leftovers to the dog. They eat the dog!

Selecting the right light bulb

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures
Buying light bulbs ought to be the simplest home furnishings purchase a person can make.

But recent lighting industry changes have helped create confusion by virtue of the sheer number of current bulb offerings. One company, for example, included over 200 types of bulbs in a recent catalog.

Today's light bulbs come in a greater range of sizes, shapes and wattages than used to be the case. So, by selecting the correct bulbs for your needs, you may be able to cut the electric bill as well as bask in more comfortable and flattering light.

First step in unraveling the confusion is to understand the difference between the two basic bulb types: incandescent and fluorescent bulbs.

Though far less efficient than fluorescent bulbs, the common incandescent bulb found in every supermarket has been the main source of light in American homes. Not long ago, the incandescent bulb was almost the only type of bulb that fit the typical home lamp or lighting fixture.

Incandescent light was considered more flattering and comfortable than the harsher, more glaring bright white light of fluorescent bulbs and the initial purchase was less costly, so it was the light source of choice when energy was cheap.

With rising energy costs, however, there has come a search for more efficient energy usage. Since the fluorescent bulb produces almost four times as much light per watt and lasts seven to 10 times longer, energy savings efforts have centered around improving it.

Several companies now make a fluorescent bulb that comes with an adapter. Also it can be used in a lamp that normally takes an incandescent bulb. In addition, the color range of fluorescent bulbs has been widened. Depending on the coating on the tube, bluish, yellow, pink-toned or colorless light can be produced. Some of the newer fluorescents (which usually have the prefix "deluxe" on the package) provide a warm mellow light that compares favorably to incandescent lighting. Once they came only in long, slender tubular configurations, but now fluorescent bulbs are available in a variety of lengths as well as in circle shapes and spirals. Because of its longer life, a fluorescent bulb is a particularly good choice for out-of-the-way fixtures that are hard to reach and change.

Although it may be less efficient, incandescent light has many excellent attributes. First of all, incandescent bulbs can be dimmed if you install a dimming device switch. Nowadays, some lamps come with built-in dimmers as well. By cutting power flow to a bulb only 10 percent, you could double the life of the bulb and save on energy costs as well.

Other options include using new low-watt bulbs instead of regular bulbs. An energy-saving 69-watt bulb could replace a 75-watt bulb. Bulb manufacturers estimate that reducing the wattage this small amount will produce about the same light but require less energy and contribute to the longer life of the bulb.

Concert goes brave cold to hear 'big band sound'

A review by BILL HALEY

Third seasonal presentation by the Pampa Community Concert Association took place Saturday night in the ice encrusted M. K. Brown Auditorium. The attraction was Russ Morgan's band of the '30s together with a retinue of stars, equally famous, including Roberta Sherwood, Frankie Carle and the De Castro sisters.

Was it really the Russ Morgan Band? Well — yes and no. Russ, of course, is dead. His son, Jack, has taken over the leadership of the band. Many of its members also looked like they would have trouble remembering Dwight Eisenhower. However, the playing was top quality, perhaps even better than before and the "Morgan Manner" was unmistakable.

Jack Morgan played beautiful trombone with occasional musical shenanigans that approached the disturbance level. As the evening's master of ceremonies, he delighted the audience with anecdotes mostly about his father and the band's early days.

Vocalists were the renowned Roberta Sherwood and the De Castro Sisters. Sherwood sang with effective delivery and power while the De Castro's brought beautifully blended harmony, cute dance steps and neat hand mannerisms to the show.

Finale was pianist Frankie Carle at the auditorium's magnificent Steinway. Aside from Sunrise Serenade which is a little too simple and childish, his arrangements were well put together, excellently styled and masterfully presented.

All in all it was a sparkling array of charm, beauty and nostalgia which thoroughly warmed the hearts of the audience on such a cold, cold night.

Pampa whips Estacado; meets Borger tonight

Pampa controlled the boards on both ends of the floor, and the defense hammered the opposition, as the Harvesters led every quarter and thrashed Lubbock Estacado 79 - 62 Monday night at home.

Both teams shot well during the game, even though Pampa's inside game forced Estacado players outside for most of the contest. Pampa hit a hot 55 percent from the field for the game. Estacado canned 51 percent, with most of the opponents' shots coming "anywhere from 18 to 30 feet," Pampa coach Garland Nichols said.

"Everybody got to play. We got all 11 players in the game," Nichols said of the district win.

Pampa won the backboard battle 38 to 21, though Estacado has muscle underneath.

"We aren't all that much bigger than they are. They have a couple of kids at 6'4," Nichols said.

Pampa's all - everything Mike Nelson led all scorers with 30 points; Coyle Winborn popped for 20 for the hometown. Kelly Johnson led Estacado with 20; Reggie Gibbs added 14 for the visitors.

"We got back in the groove and played real good defense. We shot well from the field," Nichols said about the team effort.

The Pampa coach praised Estacado's outside shooting.

"They're tremendous shooters. They were shooting from 22 feet and putting it in the hole," he said.

The game was marred by few fouls. Pampa committed only nine fouls - Estacado was whistled for just 15. Pampa earned nine of the 15 charity tosses.

Pampa led all the way. The Harvesters were up 20 - 14 the first quarter; 39 - 30 the second; 54 - 42 the third; and won the contest by the 17 - point margin.

Nichols said the opportunity to substitute Monday night may have provided some valuable rest for the players prior to the contest with arch - rival Borger tonight in the Harvesters' Fieldhouse.

The game tonight promises to be a squeezing - room - only contest.

Borger started district trouble for the Harvesters when the Bulldogs whipped Pampa earlier this season in Borger. Both teams have been rated in the top - twenty 4 - A schoolboy polls most of the season. When Borger handed Pampa its first district loss, the two teams just about switched places in the poll rankings. The latest newspaper poll (see story this page) has Borger at No. 5 and Pampa at No. 9 in statewide ratings.

"We're gonna take it to 'em - go at 'em and play," Nichols said.

Borger had no problem with Pampa in Borger. In the earlier district contest, the Bulldogs led most of the game and broke away to score numerous easy layups.

Nichols thinks his team just wasn't ready to play in the earlier loss to Borger. He doesn't expect that to happen tonight.

"We just stood around too much. We weren't ready to play, and they executed well. But tonight, we're gonna give it our best shot," the coach said.

The coach said those who haven't bought reserved seats for tonight's 7:30 boys game are "on their own."

Pampa girls whipped the Estacado team 40 - 37.

Varsity girls go against Borger prior to the boys game. Girls action tips off at 6.

Nichols said the Pampa gym can hold anywhere from three to four thousand fans for tonight's game, and he expects that many or more to show.

"We're bringing in (extra) chairs. We'll try to get them in somehow," he said.

Pampa ranked 9th; Borger listed 5th

Wichita breaks top-twenty; then promptly loses a game

(AP) - The Wichita State Shockers have cracked college basketball's Top Twenty for the first time this season, but they may be in for a rude shock when next week's rankings come out.

The Shockers climbed into 16th place in today's Associated Press, but the votes were tabulated before they dropped an 85-73 decision Monday night to ninth-ranked Memphis State.

"The turning point came when it was 69 each and we made three turnovers," said Wichita State Coach Gene Smithson. "Then that little Turner did the rest."

Smithson was referring to Memphis State's "Little General," 5-foot-10, 150-pound freshman Andre Turner, who scored 10 of his 22 points in the final three minutes. Turner made two layups and six free throws down the stretch as Memphis State notched its 13th victory in 20 games. Wichita State is 17-3.

Only three other games involved a member of the Top Twenty and one of them, No. 15 Syracuse, was upset by Pitt 85-74. Meanwhile, eighth-ranked Arkansas trounced Baylor 81-66 and No. 11 Louisville thrashed Florida State 89-63.

Wichita State actually outscored Memphis State from the floor by five baskets, but the winners hit 33 of 37 free throws to Wichita's 11 of 20.

"The free throw line has been our friend this season, but tonight it was our enemy at both ends," Smithson said. "We just put them on the line too much and we did not shoot as well as we should have from the line."

Memphis roared to a 22-8 lead, but Wichita cut the deficit to 45-42 at halftime and tied it 69-69 on Xavier McDaniel's driving layup with 3:45 left. That's when Turner went to work.

"We played well in spurts, but that's not enough," Smithson said. "We didn't play for a full 40 minutes, and that's needed to win against a team like Memphis State."

Memphis Coach Dana Kirk said his Tigers "beat a good basketball team. I thought we did some things real well. We started out shooting the ball. We weren't standing."

Like Turner, Bobby Parks had 22 points for Memphis. Aubrey Sherrod led Wichita with 18, but Antoine Carr, the Shockers' leading scorer, played only 26 minutes because of foul trouble and managed just 11 points.

At Waco, Texas, sophomore center Joe Kleine scored a career-high 25 points and Darrell Walker added 20 as Arkansas rolled to a Southwest Conference victory over Baylor. The Razorbacks, 19-1 overall and 8-1 in the SWC, jumped to a 7-0 lead and never trailed. Kleine hit his first five shots and Baylor could find no answer to his muscle underneath the basket.

Sibson meets Hagler

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) - "What gets me psyched up," says Tony Sibson, "is achieving what people don't expect me to achieve."

What most people don't expect the 26-year-old one-time hodgepodge from the Midlands of England to achieve Friday is a victory over undisputed world middleweight champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler.

But while he is the underdog, there's no question that Sibson deserves the title shot. He has credentials - the European championship, a No. 1 ranking by the World Boxing Council and a 47-3-1 record with 27 knockouts.

And more than a few boxing people feel the 5-foot-8 challenger has the aggressive style and punching power needed to give Hagler trouble.

"You might see one of the best fights you ever seen... as long as it lasts," Hagler said by telephone Monday from his training camp at Provincetown, Mass., on the tip of Cape Cod.

The ingredients are there for an exciting fight, one, it seems here, that will go into the late rounds, if not all the way, with Hagler winning.

But Sibson will not be embarrassed, a fear he admits to.

"I don't want anybody to say, 'I told you so,'" said Sibson. "I came here prepared."

Tony Sibson is a forthright young man who knows where he stands, and he seems to know where he's going.

"The only reason I'm in this game is I can win and I don't get hurt," he said. "As long

Death of trucking

Bob Smith ties a black flag on the antenna of his truck at Mararrs, La., where a handful of Louisiana truckers met Monday and called for an end to the independent trucker's strike. Louis Allemen, head of the 3,700-member Louisiana Independent

Truck Operators Association, said black flags on the trucks marked mourning for those hurt or killed in the strike and the death of the trucking industry unless new federal taxes are repealed. (AP Laserphoto)

Oklahoma horse racing bill on the House floor

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A comprehensive pari-mutuel horse race betting measure, labeled "a good clean bill" by sponsors, is heading for a major test on the House floor this week.

The bill cleared its biggest hurdle to date on Monday when members of the House Rules Committee approved it on a voice vote.

Rep. Steve Lewis, D-Shawnee, said he was happy with the final version, especially provisions giving the seven-member Oklahoma Racing Commission broad authority to regulate horse racing.

"It gives the commission a strong hand to supervise racing I'm proud of that," said Lewis, co-author of the bill in the House with Rep. Cal Hobson, D-Lexington.

"I think it has escaped so far without anything in it that shouldn't be," he added. "It's a good clean bill."

Lewis said he planned to seek a vote on the measure in the full House on Wednesday.

The committee made only minor changes in the bill before approving it without dissent.

The bill received a major overhaul last week when committee members yielded to the threat of a gubernatorial veto and deleted a provision giving track owners a tax break for five years.

Putman distributed artists' drawings of a track he said he is proposing to build if he is licensed by the Racing Commission and "there is a profit in it."

He said the proposed complex would cost $72 million, including $52 million for the track itself.

His remarks drew a barb from Rep. Don Mentzer, D-Sallisaw, that he was "on the wrong floor."

"You need to go down to two," said another lawmaker in reference to the second-floor Governor's Office.

Nigh, in threatening to veto the bill unless lawmakers removed the provision giving track owners a tax break, contended that would usurp the intent of the pari-mutuel question adopted by voters Sept. 21.

Although the rules panel had previously approved a separate bill to bring in dog racing, House Speaker Dan Draper said at an afternoon news conference that plan would be returned to committee and ditched.

Names in the news

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy Jr., who lost a leg to cancer when he was 13, says the athletic contest that restored his confidence was a sack race he won right after the amputation.

"That experience for me was very important," said the son of the Massachusetts senator. "It helped me develop a sense of self-confidence, determination and freedom."

Because he was used to moving on one leg, Kennedy said he hopped over the finish line far ahead of his opponents. The Wesleyan University junior now skis with the aid of a prosthesis.

Kennedy spoke at Yale University on Sunday to launch the university's Disabilities Awareness Week.

Kennedy said he felt "very much alone" when he first became disabled. But now he says he feels thankful he's healthy and has a family and friends "who never let me feel disabled."

"I realized the only obstacles you have are the ones you make for yourself. Sometimes I see a long flight of stairs and I think that's a hell of a climb," he said.

"But you can look at things in two ways, as a challenge or as a problem you're going to be facing day and day out for the rest of your life."

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Although he was 100 miles away, comedian Danny Thomas stole the show — and the quorum — in the Missouri Senate.

Thomas was in St. Louis on Monday to do a benefit performance at the Fox Theater for hospitals in Lebanon that have been damaged during recent fighting. Simultaneously, the state Senate was scheduled to take up a flood insurance bill but had to adjourn when only about 15 of the state's 34 senators showed up.

Most of the missing senators were in St. Louis to meet Thomas, explained Senate Majority Leader Harry Wiggins.

Wiggins said the full Senate would be back in session on Tuesday, again to consider the flood insurance measure.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Drummer and bandleader Buddy Rich, who was discharged from the hospital after coronary bypass surgery, plans to return to performing.

The 65-year-old entertainer, who was reported in good condition, left University of Michigan Hospitals on Monday.

Rich suffered a heart attack in his hotel room Jan. 28, hours before he was scheduled to be the featured attraction at a "big band" concert at Hill Auditorium.

After being taken to the hospital, he underwent four hours of emergency bypass surgery.

Anger in the oil patch

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — It won't be difficult for Reagan administration official Wayne H. Valis to tell the president that people from the "oil patch" are angry — Valis found out about it first-hand in a meeting with royalty owners.

Among those trading angry barbs with Valis at a meeting Monday were Rep. Wes Watkins, D-Okla.; Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., and many Oklahomans who are members of the National Association of Royalty Owners, it was reported here.

Following the meeting, former Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., now chief Washington counsel for the royalty owners group, said, "No one likes to carry bad news to the president."

"But if Valis returns to the White House and tells about an angry bunch of people from the oil patch, well, it's better than if he goes back and says everybody is happy," Short said.

Valis, special assistant to the president for public liaison, met in Washington with the royalty owners to discuss the Reagan administration's energy policies.

The members are concerned about several current energy issues, including a move to cancel out the new windfall profits tax exemption for "stripper" well oil that took effect this year.

He disclosed to the group that Energy Secretary Donald P. Hodel will make recommendations on natural gas policy to a cabinet council today.

Sen. Don Nickles, R-Okla., told the group that he would work to stop the Reagan administration's proposed $5-a-barrel standby tax on imported and domestic oil.

"Don't believe" the administration's promise that the tax would become effective only in certain contingencies, he said.

Valis told the group that the administration had reversed some "fundamental government policies" that had brought on economic crisis.

The economy is on the mend, he declared.

"I hope you folks will support us on our budget cuts," Valis said. "If so, we will not have to send up contingency tax legislation. ... All kinds of bad things can happen to the oil and gas industry when an administration opens the door to contingency tax legislation."

Watkins questioned Valis on a statement by Secretary of the Treasury Donald Regan that a price decrease in oil from $30 to $25 a barrel led by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries "would be good" for the economy.

"Would it be good for the oil industry?" Watkins asked Valis.

"I don't speak for the administration," responded Valis.

Watkins challenged what he said was a Reagan statement that oil men can make a profit at $25 a barrel.

He said a price drop of $1 a barrel would shut down 1,000 stripper wells in Oklahoma, take $17 million out of the pockets of royalty owners in Oklahoma and cost small producers in Oklahoma $143 million.

Valis said he wasn't sure what he could do about OPEC oil prices, which are sagging under a glut of world petroleum.

"Are you suggesting we prop up the world price of oil?" he flared back at Watkins.

No, the congressman said. He just thought the administration committed some "unspecified errors" in 1981.

Furthermore, pressed Watkins, "nowhere (in the administration) do I see anything about repeal of the windfall profits tax."

semi-automated laboratory will be placed in a low Earth orbit by the space shuttle.

The official said the launch is expected to be delayed several months from the February 1983 date.

The Marshall Space Flight Center is in overall charge of the Space Telescope program, which has a total budget of some $790 million. The telescope, from its space vantage, is expected to be hundreds of times more powerful than larger earthbound models.

The NASA official said Perkin-Elmer has a good record in the production of quality hardware but ran into problems in producing the optical telescope assembly.

Officials of Perkin-Elmer were not available for comment late Monday.

The NASA official quoted by The Huntsville Times said Marshall will send four or five managers to Danbury and that the space center's director "isn't doing that out of the kindness of his heart. He's under the gun from us here at headquarters."

The newspaper said NASA also is considering moving overall management of Space Telescope to headquarters after its launch.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Assembly of the $790 million Space Telescope, which was scheduled for a February 1983 launch date, is running behind schedule because of contractor problems, a newspaper reports.

Scientists hope to use the telescope to observe the passing of Halley's comet in 1986 and provide targeting information for Voyager 2's approach to Uranus.

The Huntsville Times said a top official of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration confirmed that a team of NASA managers from the Marshall Space Flight Center here will be sent to review problems at Perkin-Elmer Corp. in Danbury, Conn.

The NASA official, who asked not to be named, said the contractor had been unable to maintain test and development schedules for the telescope.

Picking up the pieces

Penny Capstick is shown repairing the damage to her dreamhouse caused by unusual December floods at Times Beach, Mo. The resident of the dioxin-tainted town says the isolation and depression her family feels in the wake of the double disaster has affected them psychologically. (AP Laserphoto)

Comedian checks into hospital

HOUSTON (AP) — Comedian Jerry Lewis has been admitted to Methodist Hospital, six weeks after undergoing double bypass surgery, a hospital spokeswoman says. Lewis, 56, checked into the hospital Monday as a patient of noted surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey, but hospital spokeswoman Nan Bush refused to disclose why the entertainer was admitted or how long he would be hospitalized. Lewis underwent open heart surgery Dec. 21 at Las Vegas Desert Springs Hospital after experiencing chest pains caused by blockage in one of four arteries pumping blood to the heart. Doctors determined one of Lewis' arteries contained a lesion, which was blocking the flow of blood to a section of the heart. A section of vein was lifted from Lewis' thigh and spliced around the blocked artery to form a new blood pipeline into the heart. DeBakey, who traveled to Nevada after the operation and reviewed Lewis' case with the surgical team, said recently that Lewis was "doing fine and already started to resume his normal lifestyle — minus cigarettes." Lewis, national chairman for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, has hosted the annual Labor Day telethon for the past 17 years, helping raise more than $300 million for scientific research, patient care and public health education programs.

Depression follows floods and dioxin threat

By RAY FORMANEK Associated Press Writer
TIMES BEACH, Mo. (AP) — Angela Capstick, 7 years old, has nightmares of "spacemen" in white suits digging up the dirt outside her flood-ravaged home. She wakes up screaming. More serious than the dreams of the government cleanup workers, says her mother, Penny Capstick, is the child's burden of guilt, brought on first by the floods that devastated Times Beach, then the threat of the poison, dioxin, in the soil. As evidence, the mother of four displayed a prayer her daughter had composed as an assignment in school. "I'm sorry I was mean," reads the prayer. "Jesus help me. I can't do it by myself. Please make some of my friends come back." The rest of the family is also affected. "You feel like you're on an island all by yourself," said Mrs. Capstick, whose neighbors were driven away by flooding and urged not to return because of the dioxin. "There used to be lights and other people around. Now there's only darkness." Although officials have measured the physical damages caused by December's floods on Times Beach and surrounding communities, the authorities say they are just beginning to tally the medical, emotional, social and psychological costs. Four suicide attempts, two of which required hospitalization, have been recorded along with cases of severe depression, withdrawal from reality and increased alcoholism. "Generally what we're looking at is normal people under a lot of stress," said Dr. Karl Wilson, a psychiatrist who is organizing the counseling for the victims. "We know that under similar stress, suicide, child abuse and homicides all tend to increase," he said. "A lot of them have had their nerves stretched to the limits," added Judy Finnegan, a counselor for the Missouri Department of Mental Health. "Most of them have been living in motels at government expense since early December and they're going crazy." "The government pays for the room but they have to eat out so they're going broke, too." The anger and frustration of the survivors has been perhaps more painful than the original flooding and dioxin discovery, Ms. Finnegan said. "They've lost their support — their friends, neighbors and mementos which can never be replaced," she said. "It's especially hard on the children. We've seen as many kids as adults. Some of the children in Times Beach aren't being let outside because of the dioxin. They can't play and none of their friends are around." The isolation and uncertainty has made Mrs. Capstick and her husband, Joe, angry at forces that seem to be conspiring against their hopes and plans for the future. "We don't have much money left," she said as she patched a hole punched in her living room ceiling by her floating furniture. "We can't just walk out. This is everything we own." My husband went to church again for the first time since the flood last week," Mrs. Capstick said. "He's just so angry. He's still angry with God. Joe works all day and then works all night on this place." Ms. Finnegan listed pent-up anger and depression as the two most common symptoms seen by the interviewers. "We try to get them to talk about their anger and sadness," she said. "Once they get it out they're on their way to getting better." Ms. Finnegan said, however, that the victims' mental health depended on how they're received by their new neighbors as they move into government-sponsored temporary housing. "A lot of them are saying that people are treating them like they have a disease or something," Ms. Finnegan said. "And those still living in Times Beach are being called crazy by those who moved out." "We're being treated like lepers," agreed Mrs. Capstick angrily. "The mailman won't come down here."
