Lawsuit against Energas for fire injuries set for summer trial

By JEFF LANGLEY Senior Writer

The Energas employee who last summer turned on gas service to a Pampa mobile home which exploded and burned later the same day, was threatened with termination just weeks before the explosion.

And after the explosion and fire, which injured three people, company officials again threatened to fire the employee for leaking gas connections at installations he made.

The employee has also been repeatedly warned by company officials about misreading meters and failing to read meters entirely.

The above information was submitted by gas company officials in response to a lawsuit on behalf of the family members who were injured in the mobile - home fire here Aug. 27, 1982.

James W. Boleman IV, 29, his wife Anna, 22, and their infant daughter, Ana, are parties to a lawsuit against Pioneer Corporation and its subsidiaries, Energas Company and Westar Transmission Company.

Pampa District Judge Don Cain recently set the case for trial August 29, with jury selection expected to begin the next day. Pre-trial motions in the case are to be argued April 11.

The lawsuit claims the gas company is responsible and negligent for the explosion and fire which burned the Bolemans.

The companies deny all claims made in the suit: "The defendants deny all and singular the material allegations of fact contained in plaintiff's original petition and demand strict proof thereof." the Pioneer - Energas response to the suit says.

The gas company also asks that the 'plaintiffs take nothing by their suit and that the defendants recover costs.'

The lawyer for the Bolemans, Dale Friend of Houston, said the damages in the lawsuit may be the highest ever requested before a Gray County jury.

award has yet to be filed.

Anna Boleman and her infant daughter received second and third degree burns over about 60 percent of their bodies, which included burns to their faces. James Boleman received less - serious burns to his hands and though a specific dollar - damage

James and Anna Boleman, a native of Mexico, were married June 20, 1981 in Pueblo, Colo. James got a job in Pampa with Halliburton Services Company. and in August last year, just after their first child was born, the couple bought a used mobile home from the company.

The Boleman's moved into their newly - purchased, three - bedroom trailer August 26. That afternoon, Boleman went by the Pampa Energas offices and ordered service at the trailer at 634 N. Roberta.

The serviceman came by the next morning and turned on the gas to the home. About 15 minutes after the employee arrived, Boleman got up from a nap in the bedroom at the west end of the trailer and told the Energas employee he smelled gas, according to his sworn testimony on file in the case.

He said the employee told him he was having trouble with a "regulator." but Boleman said the employee later assured him everything was in order and that there were no leaks. The employee then left just before noon, and Boleman went back to sleep, he said. About 4:30 p.m., the explosion and fire awakened Boleman. He said he opened the bedroom door to the hallway and saw smoke and flames. The Halliburton employee said he found his wife injured and sprawled on the living room floor. He helped her outside and then ran back into the burning trailer where he found his two - month - old daughter lying on a couch. A neighbor took the Bolemans to Coronado Community Hospital for initial treatment. Later that night, the three were flown to Galveston burn centers.

For weeks, Anna Boleman and the child were in critical condition at the Galveston hospitals.

Following surgery and skin grafts, both victims were released from the hospitals, though Mrs. Boleman continues to receive treatment as an outpatient.

During his family's hospital stay, the Halliburton company found James a job at a facility in Galveston. The Bolemans now live in a Galveston apartment.

After the fire, Floyd Steele, an investigator with the city fire marshal's office, said the explosion and fire probably erupted when leaking gas ignited. Steele said a disconnected, copper gas line, which once fed a clothes dryer inside the trailer, was uncapped and wide open.

Lawyers for the Bolemans demanded to know which Energas employee turned on service at the Boleman trailer and demanded company files about his work record. And among other things, the lawyers demanded a copy of the company's written procedures for turning on gas service.

The gas company's procedure for turning on service says in part: "Check all appliances making sure all appliances are off and are connected properly. If you find an open, house line, cap it off. If a range connector is not connected properly, cap it off."

After ensuring a home's gas appliances are off, the serviceman runs a "shut - in" test at the customer's meter outside to determine if there are any leaks.

"If shut in holds, light customer's appliances, making sure everything is in good working order," the procedure says.

"(If) any appliance (is) left off or is unsafe to operate, advise customer and be sure to write this on your route sheet and computer card." the service procedure continues.

The service order's computer card on the Boleman hookup was placed on file in the lawsuit.

Four questions are asked on the card, with a box to be checked "yes" or "no" by the serviceman.

The question: "Were there any leaks?" on the card filled out for the Boleman order was marked "no."

The man who turned on the gas at the Boleman trailer is still working for the company, according to Energas Pampa Manager Jerry Norris, though Norris declined comment about the lawsuit.

A series of "inter - office" memos between service supervisor Richard L. Taylor and Norris about the serviceman who turned on service and indicated there were no leaks at the Boleman trailer, outline several occasions in just more than the past year, when the employee was threatened with termination for a variety of reasons.

In a memo from Taylor to Norris, dated August 24, 1982, three days before the fire, the supervisor said: "In the past few weeks, I have noticed many re-reads. I found most re-reads were due to over - reads and some meters not he would be replaced."

Other memos exchanged within about the past year also outline warnings and threats of termination given to the employee for misreading meters or for not reading them at all.

Another memo from Taylor to Norris, dated September 30, 1982, about a month after the fire, tells of a warning given to the employee for leaking installations.

installations.
"On Septermber 23, 1982, I received a call from a leakage crew asking if I could meet them at 731 N. Dwight. When I arrived, they showed me six leaks on this meter setting. I visited with (name omitted here) concerning this and told him of the importance of this and that he should always check closely for leaks," Taylor's memo said.

closely for leaks," Taylor's memo said.
However, in that same memo, the supervisor rated the employee as "satisfactory."

"I rate (name omitted here) as a satisfactory employee based on his overall work performance. I feel (name omitted here) is a borderline between satisfactory and less than satisfactory," it says.

Also brought out in the pending lawsuit is that James Boleman knew about the uncapped copper line before gas was turned on at the trailer, though in his deposition Boleman said he didn't know the line carried gas.

"You saw that it was uncapped, did you not, sir?" the lawyer asked. "Yes," Boleman replied.

"You knew that the washer and dryer had been fueled with gas, did you not?" the attorney asked.

"I don't know." Boleman responded.

'Best Little Whorehouse in Texas' author, Larry King, visits an old Pampa buddy

By JULIA CLARK Staff Writer

"Prostitution should be legalized," said Larry L. King, author of the play, "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," during a recent visit to Pampa.

King, playwright, author and former newspaper reporter, said if prostitution was legal, there would be health controls, and definite red-light districts. Legalization would also eliminate the criminal element in one of the world's "oldest professions," he

He said control exercised on legal houses of prostitution would give people who want to use of such services, the opportunity without the present risks of social disease or other problems. And it would keep the prostitutes out of the family restaurants, hotels, motels and other places frequented by persons who are offended by these activities, he said.

King was in Midland last May to grant his hometown, amateur theater group permission to stage the first non - professional production of "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" (BLWIT).

Official release for amateur productions of the play is scheduled for this fall, he said.

As long as he was in Texas, King last week arranged to come to Pampa for a visit with his high school coach, Aubra Nooncaster Although they have kept in touch, it was the first time they had seen each other in almost 30 years.

"We had tried to get together three times since 1954, when I was here covering a Midland - Pampa football game for the Midland paper, but something always happened. Last spring, it was the big torando that rerouted my plane to Oklahoma City." said King.

said King.
Nooncaster was King's high - school
English teacher and football coach at

King said Nooncaster taught him he could do anything, if he was willing to work for it.

The playwright remembered an occasion when he and most of the football team were out because of the flu. He said although the team was not undefeated, all of its losses were tight games. But for this particular game, with most of the team out sick, morale was pretty low. One of his teammates told him later how 'Coach' gave them such a pep - talk on the way to the game that the boys really believed they could win. They played their hearts out but were soundly trounced. However, it didn't hurst quite so badly - they knew they had done their best - they had captured the spirit of the game because of the courage instilled in them by Nooncaster, he said.

"Nooncaster is responsible for my virtures and none of my faults. He brought stability and order into my life. He was my anchor," King smiled and nodded to the older man across the room. His old teacher, coach and mentor returned the respect and affection with a smile of his own.

King, who once described himself as "red - necked hardscrabble," hopes some of the rough edges have worn

He was born in 1929, the son of an oilfield hand. He said he sometimes draws upon this backround for material. He is presently working on a novel set in West Texas in 1950. His protagonist is a minor - league baseball player at a time in history when the minor leagues were big.

He is also working on another musical comedy, but couldn't say anything about it until the producers give the okay in about six months, he said. This time he thinks things will go more smoothly than they did while he was trying to write BLWIT because he knows more about what to expect, he said.

He had a difficult time writing

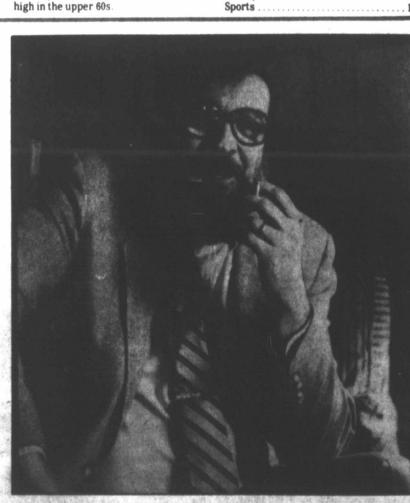

He had a difficult time writing BLWIT, his first musical comedy, because he wasn't used to working with other people on his creative endeavors. But he said it was worth it when the play became a hit.

The money he has made has affected his life, it helped pay the bills, but did bring with it a new set of problems, he said. Now he worries because the notoriety has brought threats to him and his family.

"People have misconceptions about the amount of money I have received. They don't realize that writers are not granted depletion allowances the way oil companies are. So when we receive large amounts money, the government gets most of it," King said.

Another thing that makes it hard on writers is that they may have only one big hit, so lifetime earnings may not be all that much, he said.

Reagan's Mideast peace plan mired Reagan, who edged closer to the PLO

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's Mideast initiative, seeking Arab acceptance of Israel and a stake in self-rule for the Palestinians, reaches the six-month mark Tuesday mired in Lebanon and barely alive.

Designed to draw King Hussein of Jordan into peace talks with Israel, the Reagan plan so far has failed to attract widespread support in the Arab world or the acceptance of the Palestine National Council.

As a result, Hussein, who set March 1 as an informal deadline for reaching a decision, continues to hesitate hinting that he is ready for peace with Israel but unwilling to make the kind of bold move that brought Anwar Sadat to Jerusalem in 1977 and led to Egypt's recovery of the Sinai last April.

On one precondition Hussein is intractable: a moratorium on Israeli settlement activity on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Byrd on Bucks What do we expect from investments?

By TOM BYRD Last week we began our discussion of objectives. Before we invest we should determine what we want our investments to do for us. When we invest we are using money in the hope of making more money. This is a hypothesis that I seldom receive any argument over. However, the money we use for investing should be special money - money that represents surplus savings or income not needed for essentials.

We might choose to invest these funds in mortgages, real estate, life insurance or securities (stocks and bonds). They are all basically different and no one fits the needs of every person.

Since we are directing our discussions mainly to securities, let's focus on some of the reasons why we might want to invest in stocks or bonds. Many people prefer them because they can be bought and sold readily. They represent a variety and reflexibility of interests as well as absentee ownership or creditorship. Securities are obtainable at varying prices, from very low to very high and small sums of money can be invested at convenient intervals. With the help of a good broker, securities can be selected, sometimes with excellent results, by people who have a limited, investment background. When investing in a security (stock or bond) you can profit from it in two major ways. First, you may receive dividends or interest payments which, in theory, are paid to compensate you for the use of your money and any risk you may assume. Also you may profit by buying or selling the securities. taking advantage of changes in their

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) - Despite his efforts to speed his death. Death Row inmate Charles Rumbaugh continued to receive treatment Saturday for a gunshot wound he suffered when he attacked a deputy U.S. marshal in a courtroom.

The convicted killer was testifying at his competency hearing Thursday when he lunged at a deputy U.S. marshal with a homemade weapon and shouted, "Shoot me!" He was critically wounded by a gunshot to the upper left Rumbaugh underwent emergency surgery to remove part of his lung at Northwest Texas Hospital and remained in critical but stable condition Saturday.

 Rumbaugh regained consciousness Friday and demanded to see his lawyer, saying he wanted to refuse But his court-appointed attorney,

Tim Hoffman, said his responsibility ended with the competency hearing. Dr. C. Patrick Oles, president of the Potter-Randall County Medical Society, said Rumbaugh's request might have been honored had the circumstances been different. "In general, if anyone who is an adult and has the presence of mind to make such descisions, the medical people would have to agree to it," Oles said.

"But if there is any doubt about the man's ability to make such a decision on his own, they would not agree to it. In this situation, however, I would think that this man has lost his civil rights and is now a ward of the state. I believe he has no privilege to refuse treatment. If the state says he has to have it, then

Deputy U.S. Marshal Olen R.

McClendon shot Rumbaugh after the inmate swung at him with a metal bucket handle covered with cloth on one end. Authorities said Rumbaugh's weapon probably could not have seriously hurt anyone Rumbaugh wrote a letter earlier this year to a state district judge asking that his lawyers not file any more appeals on his behalf. Rumbaugh said the jury that convicted him had decided that he was a "defective humanoid who must be eliminated."

Rumbaugh twice has been convicted and sentenced to die in the 1975 killing of an Amarillo jewelry store operator during a robbery. Rumbaugh had been scheduled to die July 22 last year, but U.S. District Judge George Cire issued a stay of execution on July 20, a day after Rumbaugh's parents filed an appeal on his behalf.

Some police officers countered with "I mugged Bennie" T-shirts, the mayor -called him a liar and the incident became, as one newspaper bannered it, the talk of the town.

Eureste, 39, since has resigned his professorship at Our Lady of the Lake University, a Catholic college, and told his wife, "I owe you one."

Now facing the three-term embattled councilman, whose district lies in this city's mostly Hispanic west side, is a tougher re-election campaign.

Eureste and his office aide, 23-year-old Kerry Pruett, were parked at Brackenridge Park early Feb. 18 when three youths attacked the couple. Eureste's left hand was severely cut by a knife wielded by one of the attackers, and Ms. Pruett was beaten up and raped, police said.

But Eureste hasn't completely dropped his allegations against the police department, despite a conciliatory meeting with Mayor Henry Cisneros, a fellow Democrat.

Eureste's constituents are criticizing the married councilman more for running from his three attackers - and leaving Ms. Pruett - than for being at the park with her after hours.

The week before the early morning mugging. Eureste had stepped up his criticism of the police department, accusing officers of widespread brutality against Mexican-Americans. He suggested citizens take the law into their own hands for revenge.

San Antonioans have grown accustomed to seeing the councilman's name in the newspapers since he took office in 1977.

When a local "madam" was forced by the city to close her brothel, Eureste waved - for the benefit of cameras - a purported list of its influential and well-known "customers" and threatened to disclose its contents. He Eureste also wrote a expletive-riddled letter to a constituent on city hall stationery - and then mailed copies to local newspapers. He likes the label pinned on him by the media: "champion of the underdog.' Eureste apologized for the embarrassing incident to the local AFL-CIO chapter Thursday and received their endorsement in his re-election attempt.

After initially telling reporters he and Ms. Pruett were "fooling around," he now contends they were merely talking when they were attacked. The pair had been drinking at local clubs before driving to the park, he says.

Ms. Pruett, a graduate student at Our Lady of the Lake, since has lost her job.

Mrs. Harrelson, wife of the man convicted of being the sniper who shot U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., goes on trial Monday in federal court at Shreveport on the perjury charges.

In a pre-trial hearing Friday, U.S. District Judge William Sessions rejected defense motions that three of the charges were repetitive.

He also rejected other motions, including a request to have a subpoena lifted from one government witness since both defense and prosecution had agreed on his testimony.

Mrs. Harrelson, 42, has already been convicted of obstructing justice in the investigation of the murder and of buying the rifle prosecutors say was used in the assassination. SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Some of the children who died in the pedatric intensive care unit at Medical Center Hospital could have been victims of "mercy killings," the San Antonio Light reported Saturday.

THE LIVING WORD

"For the word of God is living, and active, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing, even to the dividing of soul and spirit, of both joints and marrow, and quick to discern the thoughts and intents of the heart. And there is no creature that is not manifest in His sight: but all things are naked and laid open before the eyes of Him with whom we have to do" (Hebrews 4:12, 12 ASV). There are those who claim that the Bible is a dead letter, that it is irrelevant and insufficient for our modern age. insufficient for our modern age.

Yet the Bible claims to be alive, thus always relevant, consistent, applicable for any and all ages. People, basically, have not changed, and neither have their needs. People have always been concerned with the affairs of this live and with the life to come. People have always sought after God and still do.

In studying the Word of God, we find that it tells a man everything he needs to know about the one true and living God (Isaiah $5:8-11; Acts 17:16-34; Ephesians 4:6; etc.) The Bible tells us of the proper attitude to have toward God and toward this life (Matthew 6:19-34; I Timothy 4:6-8; I John 2:15-17; Matthew 22:37). The Bible tells us what to do to be saved (John 8:24; Luke 13:3; Matthew 10:32; Mark 16:16, Revelation 2:10). Therein is revealed the kind of lives the children of God are to live after being saved from their past sins in order to live with God in eternity (I Peter 1:13-25; 2 Peter 3:11-14). The Bible is indeed a relevant book for this age as it has been for ages past and shall be for all ages to come.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Louise Fletcher

Anthony Randles Managing Editor

The weaning of the Federal workforce

Federal employment has never been a path to riches but the pay has been good, security assured and the pension system superb.

But changes that began with the Carter administration anare accelerating under President Reagan may result in working conditions, pay and pensions for federal employees becoming more like those for workers in the private sector.

President Carter discovered, as presidents had before him, that it was next to impossible to fire anyone from the civil service and that pay increases had little to do with how well an employee did his job. Carter introduced changes that made it a little easier to get rid of bad employees and injected some degree of merit into determining salaries of upper - echelon employees.

Prodded by Reagan, Congress last year required federal employees to pay into Medicare, eliminated one of two yearly cost - of - living adjustments (COLA) in federal retiree pensions and cut in half the COLA increases for retirees under 62.

Reforms that seem likely to be enacted this year would bring future federal employees into the Social Security retirement system.

In addition, Reagan has suggested raising the retirement age from 55 to 65 for those remaining under the now separate federal retirement system, raising their contributions to that system and changing the formula for calculating retirement benefits in a way that probably would mean somewhat lower pensions. He also would eliminate pay and pension increases for this year.

Possible other changes being talked about in administration circles would base in grade raises on merit rather than seniority and would de emphasize seniority in deciding layoffs during reductions in force, instead placing more weight on work performance.

How many of these changes Congress will go along with remains to be seen. Members of Congress, after all, have also benefitted from generous provisions of federal pay and retirement plans.

But it could be that the salad days of federal employment are coming to an end. Pay may be geared more closely to work done, continued employment may depend on more than just showing up for work and retirement benefits may not be so handsome.

Although most of the 2.8 million in the federal workforce don't favor that prospect, we think it fitting that government employees share approximately the same risks and rewards available to other American workers.

The only hill?

In regards to the Sunday February 20th story by Julia Clark "Mystery on a snowy road."

The accident is not the mystery but, the only hill on the highway between Pampa and Perryton? Hmm.

The real mystery is, what in the hell are those other things between Pampa and Perryton?

Perhaps Julia should drive a truck or other large vehicle down this highway and then she could explain this mystery.

ROBERT RAPSTINE

(Ed. note - Mr. Rapstine, I have driven the road between Pampa and Perryton many times. Now perhaps it is because I've spent most of my life in the High Sierra and in the Talkeetna Mountains of Alaska, but I don't consider the dent in Highway 70 where Walnut Creek crosses as coming close to being a hill. With the exception of two miles north and two miles south of the Canadian River, I consider Highway 70 to be as flat as a pauper's wallet. - Anthony Randles.)

(Reporter's note - I have driven a 15 ton dump truck with a 13 speed Fuller Roadranger tranny for a living and I'm told that is considered a big truck. It has very close to the same over - all length as the truck which went off the road. While I have not driven north to Perryton, I have driven south to Clarendon. I also drove the ups and downs around Alanreed and McLean. None of these "hills" compare to the mountains I drove in Arizona. - Julia Clark)

Poor taste

I personally feel that the article on The Coronado Nursing Home (in the 17 - Feb - 83 paper) was in very poor taste. I have been to the nursing home and have seen happy and well-cared-for people living there!! Plus I feel that your "source" is wrong! Your article was not only in poor taste but also degraded the nursing home.

Social Security

In reference to G. O. Etheredge's letter to the Editor on social Security:

The first 15 years S.S. was in force from 1937 through 1951, the top tax was $30 per year.

In 1982, the top tax was $2,170 per year.

My way of figuring, that's over 7,000 percent increase in tax.

I sure pity these young fellers, God only knows how much increase tax they are going to have to pay.

If the tax keeps going up, it will be impossible for the workers to pay.

Then what's going to happen, the Social Security will be bankrupt? Who knows?

Gaining weight

I represent a group of people who are residents of Coronado Nursing Home who would like to tell you that we are not starving. Far from it. My doctor has me on a diet because I'm gaining too much weight. We feel insulted. We love our home. We can't think of anything else that can be done for us that isn't being done.

I have just come from the beauty shop. Our operator is the best. We have bingo games once a week with nice prizes and a dance once a week. We have all kinds of literature and books. Mr. and Mrs. Moore treat us with kindness and are always ready to help us with anything we need or any problem. They have always been there to help.

We each participate in our own birthday party. I don't know of anything else that can be done for us. Our cook is the best. The potato soup sounds as if someone was snooping around the potatoes before they had a chance to put the milk in. We have chicken and roast and fresh fish, strawberry shortcake, watermelon feast in its season, of course. We also have a bedtime snack, usually a sandwich and a glass of milk. We are far from starving. We can invite our families to dinners whenever we so desire. I am very well pleased. I couldn't begin to tell the nice things at home that are done for me at Coronado Nursing Home. This is our home and we love it. We are well fed and treated with warmth and kindness.

Since I am writing to you, I would like to add that my daughter came to see me from Natchez, Miss. Her name is Mrs. Warren Koon. They are editors and publishers of the Natchez Democrat Newspaper. They were very well pleased with the service, the food, and the attention I am getting. They were pleased to tell Mr. Moore, our superintendant, as we are telling you. There was no truth in last night's paper and we don't like it. We are all well fed and happy residents of Coronado Nursing Home.

Let's have war

The whole world today is in a state of utter confusion, and no one seems to have the complete answer.

The question that bothers everyone is, is it right or wrong to produce nuclear weapons and deploy them? The thing everyone wants is to survive. Nation after nation down through history has been aganst fighting wars and did not prepare. They have always been overrun, taken captive, and made slaves for the heathen nations. Plus ten's of thousands have been slaughtered and went to an early grave, men, women, and children.

The entire world still does not believe that Nazi slaughter of the Jews and Poles. Even this very day thousands of Jews and Poles are being killed to make room for the super race of Russians. Millions of Germans would be killed if it were not for the American forces in Germany.

The silly idea that Russia will stay quiet and at home and do nothing is pure and simple insanity.

The Evil Demons of the Bible have already been sent out by Satan the old devil to all nations to stir them up for war. America is the tool that God uses to keep the balance of all nations. To refuse to build arms and use them is only rejecting God Himself as the supreme power. To have God's protection, we must take the first step and prepare for an all-out 10 years war, then God will lead us to victory, as in World War I and II. We have paid dearly for the Korean and Vietnam Wars. They were strictly political wars of our own

Japan came close to taking this country because the President and other big wigs sat on their butts.

President Reagan is a man God has chosen to restore this nation and to keep a balance of peace and justice in the entire world.

We have degenerated to a very low and dangerous point in the last 30 years. Only by the powers of God, America has more of everything than all other nations put together in the whole world. We dare not relax one gun, shell or missile in being prepared. We need all the warships we can get, regardless of how old. All battles are fought on land or in the air. Our shores and islands need ships of every kind. We could use 12 more battleships, 50 destroyers, and 5 more aircraft carriers plus 1000 P.T. boats. We only have a home defense with everything combined. To fight an all-out World War now, we need four different navies; Atlantic. Pacific, Mediterranean, and Europe waters.

We are short on planes by 2000 of every kind. Russia does not think we are fools, they know for sure we are because we fight among ourselves.

We have the know - how, but the do - with takes time to build. If England hadn't held the Germans, they would've cleared the waters for Japan to take us and sat in Washington in the White House today. And now you are squeamish and want to become a Communist and let the state provide for you as the Poles are doing.

If you prefer non violence and are squeamish about war and bombs, then you should grab a fast boat to Russia where it is safe. Good, true Americans like a good scrap now and then just to keep in shape.

By JEFF LANGLEY

You probably still have time to meet Norman Rushing today he's preaching the sermon and leading the flock at the Central Baptist Church in morning and evening services. Speed on the highways around Pampa, and you may meet Norman tonight, as he writes you a ticket for speeding.

"Hallelujah" he seldom hears while he gives a driver a ticket - and sometimes drivers tell him words he said he and ministering to people presents no conflict for him.

"They just kind of blend — you're in the business of helping people, to make sure people do the right things," he said.

"The Bible supports capital punishment. We're to obey the laws of the land. They are set up to help and protect us. If I tell supports to slow down or not to run stop sizes. Sermons and funerals, bullets and bandits, sinners and salvation, speeders and drunks, 'Our Lords' and outlaws -Norman Rushing lives a dual role - he carries a Bible and

"I surrendered to preach when I was 15, and I've been preaching ever since," he said. Most of Rushing's sermons run about 30 to 35 minutes, he of Pampa's Central Baptist Church, Rushing leads three worship services each week and tends to a flock of about 1,200.

In addition to his dedication to preach, Rushing said he always wanted to be a police officer, from the time he rode with his dad in a squad car. He got his first job as a policeman on the Pampa city force, "the day after I turned 21. The preacher once even shot it out with a suspect.

Rushing worked about four years as patrol man and sergeant on the Pampa force, between 1974 and 1978. While working on the city force, the preacher had his shoot out with a suspect.

Rushing said as near as anyone's ever figured, the suspect. (he's still breathing in a Huntsville cell, Rushing said), broke into city hall about 11 p.m. and tried to retrieve a traffic ticket, which the suspect believed was stashed in municipal - court office files in the city - hall basement.

The janitor spotted the intruder and told officers at police headquarters, just steps away in the same building.

Rushing said an officer who went to check out the report discovered the suspect on an upper floor of the building. When the officer confronted the man, the suspect somehow grabbed the officer's gun and began firing, the minister said.

Two more officers and Rushing heard the shots and rushed to the location on the city - hall stairs. Rushing and the other officers began trading shots with the suspect. The preacher said the man fired twice at him, while he fired once at the suspect. All shots missed, and the man ran and crashed through a plate - glass door and temporarily escaped. He was captured a few hours later, Rushing said.

"I was just trying to protect myself and other people. The good Lord gave us common sense. I wasn't thinking about anything. I thanked God I was still alive." the preacher said about his exchange of deadly force against another man.

Rushing quit the Pampa force and went to work for the Department of Public Safety. His first assignment with the state police was in Childress, the town where Rushing also pastored his first church

He quit his job with the DPS and took over the full - time ministry at the Calvary Baptist Church in Childress. He served about a year as that church's pastor and later asked to be reinstated to his job with the highway patrol.

Rushing asked for and was assigned to the Pampa office in 1980. He now brandishes a radar gun on area highways. watching for speeders and drunks and working traffic

"When I work a fatal wreck, my first thought is, 'Were they Christians?' I know their lives are over, and they will stand before the throne of God.

"But then I have to move forward and investigate - it's my iob." he said

He said one responsibilty he sometimes has in both lines of work is telling families that a loved one has died.

"It's tough. I let them know God cares," he said Several weeks ago, the Central Baptist Church here lost its minister, and Rushing was asked by a church committee to "I let God do the speaking - he's got plenty to say," Rushing take over

He now works his full - time police job and tends to the full

"I don't have any," he said about his spare time. Rushing said his wife, Ida Beth, and his kids, Julie, 3, and

Billy, "one and three quarters," understand his busy work schedule and support him.

"We cross paths now and then, but she understands. She puts the Lord first too," he said.

He said he doesn't drink, smoke or cuss. But "I'm ornery," the preacher said. "I think God intends us to enjoy life and live it to the fullest."

He said his youth is no barrier to counseling church members, young or old, who come to him with problems.

"Maybe I can't tell them what to do from experience, so I take them to the Bible, the word of God. It's not hard. You just let God speak through you and to you," Rushing said. He said he isn't sure about his future plans as a preacher and a cop, but said he loves every minute of it.

"I leave that up to the Lord. I try to be sensitive to his will, recognize the doors he opens, and go through them," he said.
The highway to Heaven and U.S. 60 to Amarillo — Rushing tries to work both roads.

Amarillo is 'Birdsville, USA'

By MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer AMARILLO, Texas (AP) -In the beginning, there was a zany millionaire who raised camels and buried Cadillacs nose down, fins up and called it art.

There was a noisy policial scandal, Pottergate, so named for Potter County and some Nixonian-style hijinks.

For a spell, the newspaper and a television station amused the citizenry with a mini-war, while a crusty district attorney kept the courthouse in perpetual

More recently, a Catholic bishop touched off a firestorm by suggesting that employees of a local nuclear weapons plant consider another line of

Now comes a tiny, 40-acre playa lake with no official name but a multimillion dollar legacy of flooding, the last time during the summer

It's been called Lawrence Lake, Duniven Lake, the White Turkey and, during three floods, a few other things. Stanley Marsh, who buried the Cadillacs, calls it Golden Pond.

Let's just call it Loon Lake and move along.

Incidentally, Panhandle residents insist playas such as Loon Lake are little more than natural indentations created by buffalo wallowing in the rain.

"Amarillo's not Animal House but it qualifies as Birdsville, USA," suggests lawyer Tom Upchurch. "We've got one helluva lot of turkeys up here."

Upchurch represents a group of property owners whose homes and businesses surround Loon Lake and routinely catch the brunt of its floodwaters. He maintains the last lake

To that end, he filed a $22.5 million damage suit.

And in a running battle with the city, he appealed in a legal document for the court to "ask God's blessing upon the city of Amarillo, because under this current leadership, such blessings are needed.' An opposing attorney.

"My client just happened to be the last in line...the last batter up," said Stokes.

City commissioners seemed to agree, since they voted late last year to assume ownership of the lake and responsibility for keeping it drained.

"The city ends up with all the losers, sooner or later,' grumbled City Manager John

It goes without saying that taxpayers were hardly delighted by the acquisition. "Around town, people don't

He doubts that God should be blamed for the second and third floods.

Pruning season is here. This is the time of year that many fruit growers dread most. It's not that pruning is such a difficult or overly time consuming task; it's just the thought of cutting these precious trees.

The best time to prune your favorite fruit tree or grapevise is immediately before it breaks bud and begins to bloom or leaf. In Gray County, March and April is the best time. If you prune any earlier, buds and blooms are stimulated into early growth. Early growth plus a late freeze or frost equals loss of this season's fruit crop and possibly a damaged tree.

Pruning makes plants stronger. If strong branches are selected which point in the right direction, then the whole tree is stronger. A stronger tree produces and supports more and larger fruit. Nothing is more discouraging than planting and growing a fruit tree several years only to have the first heavy load of fruit break it down and ruin its appearance. So prune to select and strengthen

Secondly, pruning stimulates. Most fruit is produced on or from year - old wood. The peaches d grapes which you eat this spring were actually initiated and formed last year. So, if new growth is not stimulated each year by pruning, a fruitful plant can become a mass of old, non - productive wood. For each year a tree or vine is neglected, production is reduced.

The third reason for pruning is to make sure you have not been too stimulatory as outlined above. If you prune every year and follow proper cultural techniques, the tree or vine will initiate many more buds than it can possibly support if all bloom buds turn to fruit. To prevent too much fruit set and subsequent limb breakage or small fruit, much of this over - productivity can be removed at pruning time. Thinning the fruit probably will still be recommended, but pruning helps.

WHEAT WEED CONTROL Winter annual weeds are making their appearance, especially in early planted fields of wheat and other small grains. Moisture from winter rains and snow encourage the germination of additional weeds. Producers should inspect their fields and prepare to apply appropriate herbicides to eliminate the weeds before they utilize moisture and nutrients needed by the wheat crop.

Tansy mustard, treacle mustard, pepperweed and kochia are the weeds most commonly encountered in the major wheat - growing areas of

These broadleafed weeds can be easily controlled by one - half pound of 2,4 - D of carried and a surfactant. Translocated herbicides are most effictive when applied to weeds not under moisture stress. It is important that the small grain plants are fully tillered before 2,4 - D or otehr hormone type herbicides are applied. Yield losses and plant deformity may result if the plants are too young. Yield reduction can also occur if 2,4 - D is applied after the wheat begins to joint. This is the beginning of the reproductive stage when the embryonic spike or head begins to develop.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Loans made by the earlier. declined nearly 11 percent to $65.9 billion from $73.9 billion in 1981, according to an annual report.

The Farm Credit Administration, an independent federal agency which oversees the system, said Thursday the slowdown in loan activity was due to "the efforts of farmers to borrow only what is absolutely necessary in the face of low commodity prices and diminished cash flow."

Loans outstanding as of Dec. 31 totaled $80.4 billion, up 2.8 percent from a year earlier. The loan balance jumped 15.2 percent from 1980 to 1981 and 15.2 percent from 1979 to

The system includes federal land banks, production credit associations and banks for cooperatives. No federal appropriations are used in financing the operations.

Lending by the land banks declined the most sharply during they year, from 99,699 loans totaling $12.2 billion in 1981 to 63,399 loans amounting to $7.5 billion last year.

More than half of the land bank loans were made to refinance existing debts, showing that "many farmers are stretching out loan terms to lower mortgage payments or refinancing short-term obligations," the report said.

As of Dec. 31, land banks had 667,912 loans outstanding for a total of $50.4 billion,

SWC schools hope to bar USFL from campus

Football officials at six Southwest Conference schools are attempting to bar United States Football League representatives from their campuses, but at least two expressed doubts such a policy can be enforced

Officials at Texas, Rice, Texas A&M, Texas Christian. Baylor and Texas Tech angered by the league's signing of underclassman running back Herschel Walker of Georgia - told The Associated Press Friday they no longer would cooperate with USFL scouts.

But Texas coach Fred Akers said he probably won't be able to prevent scouts from talking with his players.

"They may not come to your football field, but they may worry your players to death around the campus and in the dormitory and everywhere else," he said.

TCU sports information director Glenn Stone also said he feared the fledgling league will find ways to circumvent SWC hostility.

members of those groups.

The school officials said representatives of the league would no longer be allowed to view school films of their athletes. The college officials said they would no longer arrange interviews between the scouts and players.

The USFL, which has a TV contract with the American Broadcasting Network and the Entertainment Sports Programming Network, will begin play this spring.

Texas Tech sports information director Joe Hornaday said officials at his school are similarly angered by Walker's signing.

"I believe that we will throw eggs and apples and whatever else we've got at those people," Hornaday said. "They are very unwelcome." He said the ban was backed by head coach Jerry Moore and Athletic Director John Conley. Akers said he wrote a letter

Wednesday to the USFL office notifying officials they are banned on his campus. He said his decision will stand "until I'm convinced that they've got a concrete, consistent policy" recruiting underclassmen.

"What they need to do is have a policy on keeping their word," Akers said. "The 've signed underclassmen. They agreed they wouldn't."

Wheeler races past Groom with fourth-quarter spree to win bi-district crown

CLARENDON-Wheeler raced to a 55-39 Class 1A bi-district win over Groom Friday night with a three-minute scoring surge in the fourth quarter.

Wheeler, which went into the game with a perfect 10-0 record in District 1-1A standings, couldn't pull away from a determined Groom club until the fourth quarter. Leading by seven (42-35) at the 3:00 mark, Groom ran off a dozen consecutive points, seven by guard Scott Wright, to put the game out of reach. Wright had only two points going into the fourth quarter, ing with nine points.

Groom, the District 3-1A runnerup with a 6-3 mark, trailed the taller Wheeler club most of the first half, but made a late charge in the second quarter to take a 24-21 halftime lead on a pair of foul shots by Aaron Wieberg and a layup by Scott Peoples.

The score was tied twice in the second half, but Wheeler jumped in front to stay on Paul Hartman's bucket with 1:53 to go in the third quarter. Groom, however, stayed within four points until Wright's three-point play with 3:00 to go in the game made it 42-35. That was followed by Billy Westmoreland's three-point play and the Mustangs were off and running.

DALLAS (AP) - Eric Dickerson, third-leading vote-getter in last season's Heisman Trophy balloting. has reportedly turned down a 5-year contract worth close to $5 million with the Arizona Wranglers of the U.S. Football League.

The Wranglers made the offer Wednesday in Phoenix to Jack Mills, the Colorado-based attorney of the Southern Methodist University running back, the Dallas Morning News said

The offer was considerably more than the $1.6 million over three years that the club had offered Dickerson earlier. But with 80 percent of the money deferred. Dickerson rejected the proposed pact.

With Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker of Georgia and several other top backs already signed by the new league, Dickerson is considered by many to be the nation's premier running back still available to the established National Football League.

The newspaper said it learned -from sources that under the proposal, Dickerson would receive 200,000 a year in cash for five ears, with the remaining $4 million deferred with payment beginning after he retires and continuing for 27

Mills said that made the deal less attractive, the newspaper said. The $1.6 better, Dickerson's attorney said, since it was his

Associated Press Writer AUSTIN (AP) - Rep. Anita Hill says it's as emotional an issue as she's seen in a long

"It's one that people aren't simply against. but they are emotionally against. Their voices rise and they get very heated," said Mrs. Hill, R-Garland.

The target of the ire is a safety bill - a measure to force Texans to put their children under 4 in auto safety seats. Doctors say the seats could prevent 90 percent of the infant traffic deaths and injuries in the state. In 1981, 68 Texans in that age group were killed in wrecks. There also were 6,221 injuries.

"We have an epidemic of children being killed in car accidents. We have a cure. Are we going to ignore it?" asked Mrs. Hill.

The car seat battle will be one in which opponents run the risk of sounding like they are against protecting babies. The opponents must counter convincing arguments offered by mothers with heart-tugging stories of death and injuries.

Laura Begnaud of Port Neches told a House committee about her 3-year-old son Adam. killed in a wreck in which the windshield acted like a guillotine. At the committee meeting, Mrs. Begnaud was accompanied by April, a 4-year-old whose face was left misshapen by the wreck. She also lost an

The Begnauds had safety seats and usually used them - but not for the short trip that ended with family members "in intensive care units 100 miles apart and our son in a funeral home.

At that same meeting, Rep. Chip Staniswalis, father of two, testified against the bill. It's none of the state's business, he

"The most difficult decision I had to make was making that political decision as to whether I wanted to appear against child safety." said Staniswalis, R-Amarillo. "I am terribly concerned that this intrusion of the government into our lives, if we don't slow it down, is going to feed off itself.

"The state has no business in the front seat of Texans' cars. No more than it has in the living room of their homes." he said.

Mrs. Hill, House sponsor of the bill already approved by the Senate, said the state has a definite duty to protect children, a duty already acknowledged by mandatory education laws, required immunizations and laws agains child abuse.

Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, agrees. "I don't think you're talking about personal freedoms. With freedoms go responsibilities.

In order to have responsibilities you have to have the ability to know what those are. Children 4 and under don't know what they Mrs. Hill says it goes beyond personal freedoms because a loose child in a car can become a hazard to other drivers. Mrs. Hill was injured in a wreck caused by a woman tending her child.

The bill as it's written now requires auto safety seats for children 4 and under. However, it does not require use of the seats. A driver ticketed for not having a child in a safety seat could beat the charge by showing up in court within 10 days with a safety seat.

The measure is in House subcommittee now, where legislators will try to mold it to meet a variety of complaints voiced.

Some cars are too small to hold safety seats for all the children in a family. Would drivers of car pools have to have seats for every child? Would neighbors need seats to transport kids other than their own? What about poor Texans who can't afford the seats - which cost up to $50? What about long distance truck drivers who take their families along?

"A lot of people in my district have little bitty pick-ups," said Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley. "That's their means of transportation. There's no room. You put a couple of kids in there and they've got to hold the kid in their lap.

"But I'd hate to exempt them and then some kid get killed and they'd say. 'There you go, Gibson," he said.

Rep. Ed Emmett, R-Kingwood, said he has fielded "kind of unspecific" complaints about the bill. Everyone is for safety, but everyone can find what sounds like a reasonable exemption.

"Schlueter said maybe we could make it apply only to children riding in their own parents' car. Well, that means it's OK to kill and maim your neighbors' kids, but not yours," said Emmett.

Emmett wants a bill that requires safety seats for young children and seat belts for children up to 12. Any bill that requires less than that would be tough to enforce, he said.

One of Pampa's own is rising to stardom

But that's 'perfectly normal'

By DEE DEE LARAMORE Lifestyles Editor

When I first spoke to Mary Jane Johnson, rising opera star and native Pampan, she was coping with broken beaters on her mixer, preparing supper and answering the many questions of her five - year old daughter. She was experiencing a perfectly normal afternoon, hardly what I'd expected from the glamorous woman in the photo at left who had sung opposite Luciano Pavarotti.

Johnson protests that she is perfectly normal, and she is ...

She did not dream childhood fantasies of becoming a famous opera star or even a singer. "Heavens, no!" she said. "Who that's normal would think that?" She has always sung, even as a child, but that was natural, she said.

"I'm one of those people who live one day at a time." she

Johnson, the daughter of Rex and Maxine Rose of Pampa, is the Community Concert Association's guest performer March 3. Her performance is scheduled to begin at 8 p. m., March 3. at M. K. Brown Auditorium.

"I want to perfect what I know," Johnson said. "My goal is to be better and better with each new role.

"I try to do my best at everything," she added. "I believe in character too. I become irritated if someone doesn't do me right — 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' I try live by the golden rule and I think others should too.''

While attending Pampa High School, she did all the normal things high school girls do, especially when it came to athletics. Tall and slender, she always participated in sports. volleyball and swimming — and cheerleading, too.

Johnson had never considered a career in opera until she had begun a masters degree in music. She had already received a bachelor's degree from Texas Tech University in Lubbock and had taught music in Abilene and at Amarillo College. She was not really serious about opera, however, before seeking her master's degree at West Texas State

Her first introduction to opera came when she was a 12 - year old visiting the Santa Fe Opera company in Santa Fe, N.M. She never thought that someday she would be performing on that stage as Rosalinda in "Die Fledermaus."

Johnson's singing while in Pampa was most influenced by two people: Rosemary Lawlor, her first voice teacher, and Hugh Sanders, the high school choir director.

Sanders is now Dr. Hugh Sanders, head of music at WTSU in Canyon. He recalls his first encounter with Johnson.

"I first became aware of Mary Jane at a spring choral festival. She was in the eighth grade at the time. She came right up to me and said, 'I'm going to sing in the acappella choir.' And she did, too. She sang in the choir as a sophomore and won state honors as a junior in the solo contests.

Johnson had a special potential, Dr. Sanders said. "She had confidence, was aggressive and knew what she was doing. I would think she has surpassed my fondest hopes for her.'

Part of Johnson's success is due to her genuine interest in people and her enjoyment of being with people, Dr. Sanders added. "I have had some talented students in my time, but none with more drive, encentive and enjoyment in fulfilling their potential. She is, by far, one of the most talented students I've taught," he said.

Johnson's professional career as an opera singer began in 1980 when she was triply honored as the regional winner of the Metropolitan Opera auditions, a National Metropolitan Opera semi - finalist, and as the recipient of the 1980 American Institute for Musical Studies Scholarship.

As winner of the first Luciano Pavarotti International Voice Competition, she was allowed to make her deput with the Opera Company of Philadelphia. Since that time she has performed with the Chicago Symphony, the Sante Fe Opera. the San Francisco Opera, the Annapolis Opera and New York Lyric Opera, in addition to concerts and recitals throughout Performing opposite Pavarotti, she was a tremendous success as Musetta in "La Boheme" which was telecast nationwide by PBS in August 1982.

Singing with the dynamic Pavarotti is one of the highlights of her career, Johnson said. Another high point was singing with the Sante Fe Opera. She credits Pavarotti with a nationwide trend of renewed interest in opera. "He's so personable. Even if people don't like opera, they like him, so they go to operas to hear him and eventually learn to like opera," she explained.

Balancing a life where she is wife, mother and opera singer has its challenges, Johnson said. "It's difficult, you have to have a lot more energy.

Fortunately, she has "wonderful support" from her husband and family. Johnson's husband is David Johnson, a jobber for an oil company in Borger. The couple have a five - year old daughter, Taylor. At the time of this interview, she was preparing a special dish for her husband's birthday, despite the broken beaters. "When I'm at home I'm more a mother and wife than around the house. When I'm away, I'm devoted to my work, but I try never to be away from home more than three weeks at a time." When her engagements last more than three weeks, she takes Taylor along. "It's exciting; I can tell you I'm never bored," she said.

You want to give your child every opportunity in life. That probably includes music through piano lessons. But how can you be sure your investment in a fine instrument will pay off?

Unfortunately some parents feel they will minimize their financial risk by purchasing a used piano. They don't realize that a poor quality piano can be responsible for a student's failure. In a way, such a purchase tells your youngster you don't really expect him to succeed. Further, an instrument that is hard to play and not easy to listen to discourages the young student.

There is an alternative. Rent a new Wurlitzer Piano. Your initial expense is held to a minimum. It gives your child a chance to learn on a really fine piano. And it tells him, "We believe in you."

At the end of the rental period, you can decide whether or not to purchase the instrument. If you do, all the rental you have paid applies toward the purchase.

So, there's no reason to delay introducing your child to music. You can do it now.

English artist's career 'mistake' leads him to America

By Lori-Ann D'Antonio Staff Writer

Thomas Campbell is a china painter through a "career blunder," he says. The young man who hails from England began painting china nine years ago, and today he's teaching classes in china painting.

Campbell was in Pampa to conduct a three - day seminar at C&C Ceramics on Wilks Street. Several area women gathered to learn the techniques of china painting this past week while Campbell was in town.

His "career blunder" occurred when he was in college and couldn't get into designing. The only job available in ceramics was in manangement.

"I always just wanted to make pots," he said, explaining the change in careers.

Campbell went from ceramics management to training in a china painting factory. In the factory, he painted plates to manufacturer's standards, mostly the same designs over and "We'd sit for day on end painting the same thing all day, and then the boss would come along and tell us it was all wrong. At his factory job, he learned how to use a brush and colors, and then was put on piecework, being paid for each plate he painted. He kept at it until the piecework rate dropped, and the work became "coloring, not painting," then he left for a job with Ainsley's China, which he liked better.

At Ainsley's he got to paint "trophies and other interesting stuff, not just plates." Ainsley's was more concerned with quality, not quantity, which made quite a bit of difference from the factory he'd worked at.

After two years of Ainsley's, he got an inkling for teaching. and secured a job in a workshop - teaching situation at an international china painting school in Yorkshire.

. The Yorkshire school taught mainly Americans and Austrialians, the English methods, and he tutored there. He was impressed by the enthusiasm of Americans in the school. He worked at the school until one of the Americans he'd tutored wrote from America and commissioned him to paint a large tea service.

"So I thought, why don't I deliver it personally? and planned a nine-week trip to the States."

He is taking nine weeks to tour the country from San Diego, Calif. to Detriot, Mich., visitng friends he met and tutored in England. He will end up in Detroit next week before flying back to England.

He came to Pampa because Floye Christensen, who owns C & C. knew a person he was visiting in Dallas and invited him here. Christensen said one woman came all the way from Saint Louis to attend the Pampa seminar.

Campbell loves teaching and holding seminars because he likes the people he meets, since Americans are more enthusiastic about painting than his English students tend to He likes the flexibility of freelance painting because he likes

'trying to make his own living." He says his visit to America has smashed all his stereotypes about Americans. "I'd love to stay, but I'm going back to England to teach in

He offers advice to china lovers on how to tell good china from poorer quality china. A plate should be rested on the hand and flicked with the thumbnail. If it "rings", it's structurally sound, and there are no defects in the plate. China also come with different types of "glazes," English bone china has a soft (not shiny) glaze, and European,

Japanese and American - made china has a hard glaze (shiny surface). Bone china is so named because is composed of large amounts of animal bone and flint stone, with a small proportion of clay, while other china is made with a higher proportion of clay, and sometimes no bone. The first step in painting a plate is drawing the design on it with a pencil or other writing instrument. Once the design is on the plate, the second step is covering it with a soft wash of color all over the surface to make it even, Campbell says. Then warm to dark colors are used to fix the design, like the first coat of primer on wood

The plate is then fired (heated to a temperature of about 1400 degrees Farenheit) to "cement" the work done. Plates are painted and fired twice before they are "finished", when body s firings is put into the picture. After that third firing is done to give the drawing definition, he says.

Each firing takes about an hour, and Campbell said in the factory, he used to paint about 8 plates a day, or one an hour. The paints used are mostly metallic oxides, he said.

Most of the plates Campbell's students in this week's seminars made will be show plates. Campbell was teaching his students to paint still life fruit, which he says best illustrates the method of English china painting.

What amazed Campbell most about the physical properties of the United States was the distances between places, he said. not at all like his native England. He was also fascinated by the age of the earth, citing in England that most of the ground is covered with green, and that in Arizona or New Mexico would not be possible.

However, what warmed Campbell most on his trip to America was the friendliness of the people here. His stereotypes of "arrogant Americans" were knocked, and he was pleasantly surprised.

How to define "stealing"

When you take something from a store and don't pay for it, that's stealing. When your four - year - old picks a pair of plastic sunglasses off the rack at the supermarket and wars them out of the store without you being aware of it, you might say that's stealing, too. But it's really not. according to Growing Child, a monthly child development newsletter. It's just that four year - olds have not learned how the world works outside their ome.

For most young children. all things seem available in abundance, there for the taking. When you want money you go to a bank and get some. When you want food, you go to the grocery store and put it in your cart.

Money is a medium of exchange is something children of four years, or even of six years, don't understand yet. They are still learning what is and isn't theirs. They're still learning what they can touch and what they can't. They're still learning what they can take without asking first and what they have to requst. That's a

So they're not thieves when they proudly put on sunglasses and wear them home. If someone says they stole, they will feel they've done something very bad and they'll feel sorry aboutit. They still won't understand the concept of stealing, but they are "bad."

So what do you do or say when children take something that has not been paid for?

No matter how much trouble it is, the most effective lesson comes from going back to the store

If you're going to let the child have the item, take the child back to the checkout counter and let him hold the money and pay for what he took like a regular customer.

If you don't want to buy the item, give it back to the cashier. Explain to the hild that everything in stores cost money and you have to pay for it if you're going to take it

If children don't have to go back to the store, they soon learn that, apart from a brief scolding, the consequences of stealing are not very great. Children who have to return

Homemaker's News

Calculating and contemplating the home computer

By DONNA BRAUCHT

County Extension Agent Welcome to the world of computer mania! That's right, the personal computer industry has swept the county. There are more than two million computers of all sizes, shapes and prices.

The computer is characterized by its components (screen, keyboard, disk drive or cassette recorder and printer), a price range of $99 to $6,000, and a size that fits compactly on a desktop.

Home computers perform a variety of tasks. They may be used as word processors, management of investment portfolios, membership rolls or mailing lists, running home security systems or appliances, monitoring collection of refunds from coupons, homework help for kids, family budgeting, 'spread - sheet' financial planning and many other

Are you ready to own a home computer? In addition to the good things computers can do for you, there are disadvantages. Some reasons for not buying a personal computer include: (1) don't buy one if all you really need is an electronic typewriter or a good programmable calculator; (2) don't buy one for a single use; (3) don't buy one if you don't have the time and energy to spend learning

There are several basic components that make up any computer system. First, there is the computer itself. With smaller systems, you get only the computer and keyboard. The next component is the screen. You may use your TV screen with some models or purchase an RF modulator screen or monitor

Some computer systems include a disk drive as part of the price, but most of the time you pay extra. Many systems use an ordinary cassette tape recorder to store information. A dot matrix or daisy wheel printer is another basic component. Finally, software or the programs which allow your computer to perform tasks are basic to the system.

Get to know computers before you invest in one. Good sources include books and magazines on personal computing for the beginner. your local computer retailers, and colleges and adult education programs.

Once you understand the possibilities of a good computer system, set some guidelines for yourself. Decide on a price range. Decide on a capabilities range. Determine what you expect to use your personal computer for, how much you plan to use it, and what applications you might have for it in the future.

Five basic outle available for buying a personal computer: mail order, office equipment dealers, computer stores, equipment manufacturer's outlets and department stores. Mail order houses offer the best bargains but include little or no follow - up support to customers. Office equipment dealers may not be as committed to satisfying the home computer buyer.

Computer retail stores are the safest bet for beginners. You may expect to pay more. but most offer more help to the buyer. Equipment company stores are the best if you know their product is the one you want to buy. Department stores are just entering the field. They soon may challenge established retail outlets.

Look at different models and talk to several dealers. Make sure you find a dealer who will service the computer and give you advice to get started. Ask for a demonstration of the computer you are considering and try it out yourself. Ask some good questions when you think you have found the system you want. Some areas you might consider asking about include the full price, clearness of instructions, the quality of hardware and software and support available after the deal.

A home computer is just the

And by the way, age is not necessarily the criterion - some older women are more broad-minded than the younger ones.

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago I purchased a pair of artificial legs for my husband. He wore them twice and then refused to wear them again. They are like new. Since that time, they have remained in the closet.

Last December my husband passed away and now I'm stuck with a pair of useless legs. Do you know of any organization I can sell them to? WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITHHOLD: Get in touch with your nearest orthopedic rehabilitation center.

If that doesn't get the legs out of the closet, you might consider donating them to the local chapter of the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults for a tax deduction.

I hate to leave the house because I know the minute I do he will start making these calls. When I'm away and call our house, the line is always busy. I think there's something wrong with him. What should I do?

WORRIED IN MAINE

DEAR WORRIED: Your hubby's hobby is a symptom of a sick mind. It could also bring him trouble with the law.

I urge you to get him to a doctor before he finds himself in serious trouble. He needs to be examined by a psychiatrist.

DEAR ABBY: My husband works for a cable TV service. Every day he comes home and tells me about parents who leave their kids at home to let the serviceman in. Today he told me about a sweet little 8-year-old girl who was left home alone to let him in! What are parents thinking of? Why don't they try to protect their children? These kids could be opening the door for a thief, murderer or rapist.

By CHRIS and JANET the picture with black BECKETT

We wanted something "really different and striking" to hang on a bare. unnoticed wall in our home, and spent many hours searching stores for the perfect thing. We found many "striking" things - the prices would strike terror in the hearts of anyone! We could have the wall moved for less money than decorating

So Janet designed these four quilted owl pictures. We're really pleased with the results, and our budget is absolutely joyous! The best part is that all four owls can be stitched up in just an afternoon.

Janet's owls are available as full - size, iron - on transfer patterns or make your own original designs.

Materials you need are inexpensive and few. To make four owls, it takes 51/2 yards of bleached muslin and a small amount of polyester batting to back the pictures. The only other items you need are straight pins, thread, and a sewing machine (or they can be quilted by hand). If you're making your own designs, you'll also need a waterproof black marker.

Cut the bleached muslin into eight squares, each 24 x 24 inches (four will be the fronts and four will be the back)

Posters or magazine covers are a good source of design ideas. And because one thickness of muslin is thin enough, you can place the fabric over the picture and trace your design with a black waterproof marker. If you're using our designs, simply iron them onto the fabric

After the design is completed, pin the design square and backing square together, sandwiching a light layer of batting between the two layers of muslin.

Machine or hand stitch around the outer edges of the design, and around all four edges of the square, and you're through!

If you wish, you can also add embroidery stitches to

Whirlwind courtship gets actress series

AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) Jennifer O'Neill is in her first television series as the result of a whirlwind courtship.

"It happened so quickly," the actress recalls. "I came out in December for meetings with NBC and Warner Bros. Television and we started shooting on Jan. 4."

The show is "Bare Essence," a glossy nighttime soap opera that focuses on power and glamor in the perfume industry. It's based on the miniseries seen on CBS in the fall, and NBC was mid-February. (It made its debut on Tuesday, Feb. 15.) They were rushing, yet they couldn't sign Genie Francis, who had starred in the miniseries, until her contract with CBS expired on Dec. 31.

Miss O'Neill stars as Lady Bobbi, an international beauty who is the mother of Tyger Hayes, played by Miss Francis. The role of Lady Bobbi was played by Linda Evans in the miniseries, but she stars in ABC's prime-time soap opera "Dynasty" and wasn't available

"I'd seen the miniseries and I thought it had more of an international flavor than any existing series," Miss O'Neill says. "I thought a lot more could be done with it, particularly my relationship with my daughter.

'I think people are interested in relationships. I love these kind of series. You can sit down after a day's work and be swept away by the romanticism. At the same time there are plenty of conflicts within the family. I find them entertaining and something I wanted to do.

"Bare Essence" also stars Jessica Walter, Ian McShane, John Dehner and Michael Woods, plus two actresses from the daytime soaps, Miss Francis and Jaime Lyn Bauer. Miss Francis was Laura, whose white-hot romance with Luke ended in a marriage on ABC's "General Hospital" - a celebrated event in November 1981. Miss Bauer was Lori on CBS' "The Young and the Restless." "My whole attitude toward television has changed," says Miss O'Neill, who says she watches TV after work while having dinner in bed.

When I started you were either a film actor or a TV actor and never the twain shall meet. Then I went to Europe for several years and when I came back I found there had been a metamorphosis. 'Rich Man, Poor Man' and 'Roots' had turned things around. You began to see a lot of film people on television."
Miss O'Neill, like many other film actors, moved into television because the movie business was in the doldrums.

Speculation on end of M-A-S-H

By JERRY BUCK AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) -The Korean War is over, but the people of the 4077th M-A-S-H will not walk away untouched by all the bloodshed they have

But what actually happens to Hawkeye and Hot Lips and the others in the final 21/2-hour episode of "M-A-S-H" is the subject of speculation.

Both CBS and 20th Century-Fox are keeping mum. There are no screenings of the final show and no scripts are being handed out. One tabloid claims to have obtained a script and reported that Hawkeye has a breakdown, Klinger marries a Korean woman and Father Mulcahy suffers a hearing impairment. Supervising producer John Rappaport, asked about the show, said, "I don't want these people to go home unscatched. These people spent a lot of time in Korea and for them to go home untouched would undo the whole anti-war foundation of the series.

"For people to get off the boat and laugh would be an incredible disservice to those people who served in war and had their lives permanently altered," he said. "Radar probably went home a better person. But Hawkeye and B.J. - to show them as the same person they were when they came to Korea would be contrary. But I won't divulge anything that happens in the movie. We want that to be a surprise.

It is, of course, in the interests of both the network and the studio to keep it a surprise. CBS is asking $450,000 for each 30-second commercial in the 21/2-hour movie. And Fox has a property worth upwards of $100 million in the reruns.

"M-A-S-H" completed filming Jan. 14, and the movie on Monday will be the last original show in the 11-year run of the series. After that, it goes into reruns.

Stock prices surge higher

NEW YORK (AP) - If the insistent message of the stock market proves correct, the recent improvement in the economic news may be just a sample of what is to come.

Stock prices surged ahead in the past week, carrying the Dow Jones industrial average through the 1,100 level that had loomed as a pyschological barrier for more than a month. Other major indicators also soared to new highs, in defiance of the many skeptics who have been warning that a 'correction' was due.

When the bull market began to stir last August, there wasn't much happening in the economy - other than declining interest rates - that seemed to support it. By this past week, though, the vital signs of business activity were considerably

The Commerce Department reported that new orders received by manufacturers of durable goods such as cars and appliances climbed 4.5 percent in January, for their third Sales of existing single-family homes rose a record 15.5

percent in the same month, according to the National The consumer price index, computed by a new method, increased just 0.2 percent in January. If the old system of calculating it had been used, it would have shown no change at

Meanwhile, oil prices around the world were coming down, giving rise to hopes for more favorable news on inflation in the months ahead - and at the same time conjuring up visions of big savings for both businesses and consumers on their energy

All in all, said Raymond F. DeVoe Jr., an analyst at Legg Mason Wood Walker Inc., "the stock market has done it again, forecasting recovery when things looked blackest. In the postwar period it has a perfect record in forecasting economic recovery. The lead time varies from three to eight months."

The Dow Jones industrials, at 777 last Aug. 12, closed Friday at 1,120.94, up 28.12 points for the week.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index rose .90 to 86.34. But the American Stock Exchange market value index, reflecting some selling in energy stocks early in the week, was Big Board volume averaged 95.57 million shares a day,a against 79.23 million the week before.

The Dow's climb past the 1,100 mark, impressive as it was, didn't erase all the caution many analysts have expressed about the near-term outlook for the market. By historical standards, 61/2 months is a long time for the market to rise without any significant setbacks along the way.

Recession spawns business caution

NEW YORK (AP) - In some ways it appeared to be the best of all worlds this past

Oil prices fell. The prime lending rate fell. Consumer prices only edged higher in January, the government reported. New orders for durable goods rose a robust 4.5 percent last month, the government said, instead of falling as some economists Watching all this, the stock market churned out a wave of buying that lifted the Dow Jones industrial average to a new record. Is it too early to predict substantially better times for this year? Or is evidence becoming overwhelming that a recovery stronger than previously throught is Perhaps because of the recession's severity, caution remains in force. And several thorny issues still loiter that warrant such an outlook.
