What happened the night Jim Grandstaff died?

(Ed. note - Ever since the morning James Grandstaff died, police agencies have denied responsibility for the killing. The information in this series of articles, however, was pieced together from documents filed in federal court in Amarillo and from investigations by a state grand jury and the Texas Rangers.)

6666 RANCH — It was 4:30 on a rainy black summer morning, just about time for cowboy Jim Grandstaff to wake up for another day of chores at the Four 6s' north camp. He had about half an hour to live.

What happened in that next 30 minutes has left a grieving widow and children, a $3 million lawsuit for wrongful death pursued by the most flamboyant lawyer in Texas, a pall of secrecy cast by five separate law enforcement agencies, and a bad taste in the mouths of many police officers who privately feel an unnecessary tragedy took place that morning.

Weeks of investigation by The Pampa News have uncovered the name of the officer who shot Jim Grandstaff, the names of all the other policemen who participated in the deadly episode — and even more questions about that tragic morning.

Why was a fatally wounded innocent man handcuffed and thrown in a ditch? Why didn't police officers tell his wife he had been shot? Why was a 19-year-old police officer with less than five hours experience told to fire a semi-automatic rifle at a man when there was no supervisor on duty? And why, when the basic facts are that police officers fired at an began shortly after 4 a.m. that rainy August 11, 1981, on the 6666 ranch about six miles east of Borger.

At 4:19 a.m., Aug. 11, 1981, Borger police spotted a man who they believed was wanted in Oklahoma driving a late-model, dark blue Ford, four-wheel-drive pickup.

Borger officers Bailey Roberts and newly-hired recruit John Wayne Turner saw the pickup on a Borger city street and tried to stop it, but it sped away.

The fugitive was Lonnie Cox, 26, an Arkansas native, and police in two other squad cars joined the high-speed chase which led east onto Texas 152. Officers from other area police agencies drove toward Borger to help.

During the car chase, Cox fired at the officers, and they returned the fire. Roberts handed his Colt semi-automatic AR-15 rifle (a slightly altered version of the military M16) to Turner, who had been a Borger police officer about five hours and was still wearing street clothes, and told the new recruit to return fire. Turner fired the weapon "10 or 15" times at the fleeing Cox.

Near the Grandstaff home south of the highway, and with a bullet in his back, Cox lost control of his truck and crashed through two fences onto the ranch property.

More shots were fired on the property, and Cox abandoned his truck and raced away on foot across the pasture. The officers lost sight of Cox in the dark and the rain.

Cox hid in the scrub on the sprawling ranch and watched as officers searched his truck. Borger officer John Robert Alonzo removed a Mini-14, 223-caliber rifle from Cox's pickup, and Roberts said he loaded his AR-15 with some of the large amount of 223-caliber ammunition officers found in the fugitive's truck.

Up at the house, James Grandstaff, 31, was awakened by the commotion just a few hundred yards away and by at least one bullet whizzing through the walls of his family's home. He dressed and went outside to see what was going on.

He drove his truck partway down the drive toward the action. Watching, he realized police were trying to arrest a man on his property and backed up to his house to warn his wife to keep the doors locked. He told her he was going to help, took his rifle from the house and placed it on the seat of his truck.

Grandstaff then drove the few hundred yards back down the road and parked his truck near the three Borger police cars parked on the inner pasture.

Police said they saw Grandstaff's truck come down, back up to the house and come down the road again.

They later said that when they saw the pickup go up and down the road, and when they saw lights going off and on in

'Above all, he loved the life of a cowboy'

By JEFF LANGLEY

BORGER — Like a true cowboy, he was buried with his boots on.

But contrary to the Code of the West, he died unarmed — shot in the back by Borger police.

And he isn't buried on Boot Hill, a place reserved for outlaws — because James Clarence Grandstaff was an innocent man.

His grave is marked by a simple stone at Westlawn Cemetery near Borger, the town where he was born and where 31 years later he was buried.

Though much has been written about the events leading to his death, not many people outside his family and friends know that Jim Grandstaff loved his life as a cowboy.

Not many people know because, "Nobody ever asked," his wife, Sharon Grandstaff, said in a recent interview.

And commenting on how he died, she said, "...and nobody ever said they were sorry."

Grandstaff was born March 7, 1950, and lived in Borger all his life.

He was raised by his father, J.H. "Joe" Grandstaff, after his parents' divorce when Jim was 13. The elder Grandstaff has worked for Phillips Petroleum Company in Borger for about 30 years. At one time, Joe Grandstaff ran the company's recreation area in Phillips the Frank Phillips Men's Club, a place where employees could fish and picnic. From his father, Jim learned to love the outdoors, later, fishing, hunting and camping would be Jim Grandstaff's favorite leisure activities.

But the thing Jim loved most, the thing he worked at so hard that he came home "bone tired" many nights, was the rough life of a cowboy, his widow said.

"He started day-work for some of the area ranchers when he was still in high school in Borger. He would help round up and brand cattle after school," she said.

Jim Grandstaff also participated in rodeos both before and after high school, before most schools in the area formed official rodeo clubs. And his contest riding took its toll in injuries.

"He had a big scar on his face where a bull kicked him. And he had a bum knee and a broken arm from falling off

Inquiring minds ask: Where's the Miami Chief?

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

Miami had its own newspaper for most of the last 80 years, and now it has none.

The Miami Chief served its city and community well, and now it is gone. Just when and if the Chief will live again is a matter of controversy in Roberts County these days.

Don and Nell Williams, former publishers of the paper, closed it down last March after deciding it was no longer a profitable venture.

And then along came David L. Smith.

Smith came to Miami last September, sold many people in town a year's subscription to the paper, published two editions and no one in Miami has seen or heard from him since, according to Sheriff Eddie Brines.

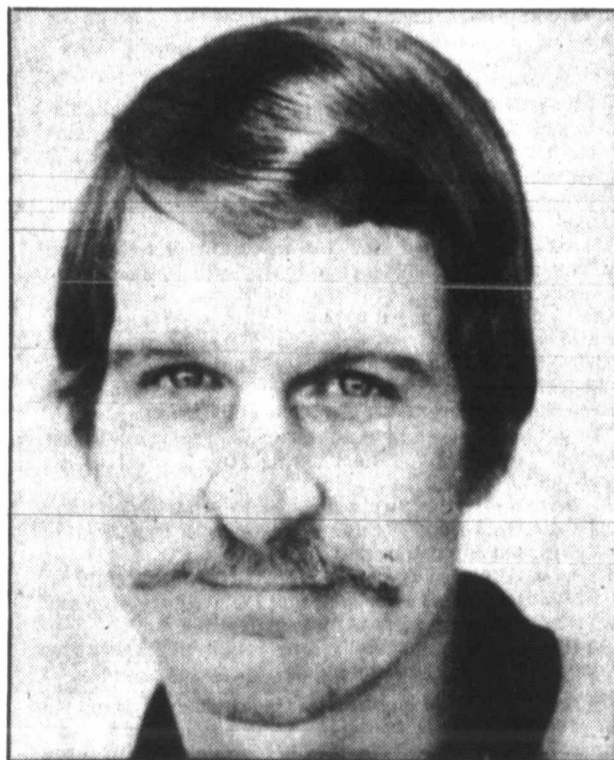

The Pampa News located Smith in Pampa, who says he still has "100 percent intentions" of publishing the Miami Chief. But Miami Mayor Tom O'Laughlin said Smith "left town without notice" after a publishing only two editions in October.

Smith said he operated a successful restaurant chain - Der Weinerschnitzel - in Corpus Christi four years ago. But, he said, he sold his three restaurants and came back to Pampa, "where my roots are," because he wanted to publish his own newspaper.

Smith went to Miami in September and talked with the people of the town about the need for a city newspaper. Smith told Miami citizens he was going to reopen the Miami Chief.

He printed his first edition the first of October and the second edition the fifteenth. Then no one heard from him.

"At first, we thought it was just late," said Linda Jones. "Those things happen."

David Smith

Jones is one of the many people in Miami who subscribed to the paper.

Many the people in Miami bought subscriptions to the paper before it was first published because Smith "came up to the court house and talked about town a lot," said Nancy Mears, dispatcher in the sheriff's office. He charged $10 per year for subscriptions.

Sheriff Eddie Brines has a list of 79 people who bought a total of $976 in subscriptions, but said the list did not reflect the total number of subscribers to Smith's version of the Chief.

Addie Mae Lard bought eight subscriptions, one for herself and seven for her out of town children, for a total of $80. Eleanor Gill bought $60 worth of subscriptions. Both ladies are widows.

"We were anxious to have a paper," said Evelyn Heare, city secretary.

Heare said Smith talked with people at the court house and the county judge. She asked him if he would publish official notices in the paper, because of the "need to be in a paper which will reach the most immediate area people."

In an interview on Friday Smith explained why he decided to revive the Chief. "I fell in love with Miami," he said.

"I want to continue publishing the Miami Chief, and live up to the slogan, 'The New Newspaper That Gets Involved,'" he said.

The people of the town expected the Miami Chief to cover local news, "who's doing what," the way it had in the past.

Several people said everyone jumped at the chance to subscribe to the paper because they were eager for the local news but they were disappointed.

Heare said Smith ran a story on the Miami football coaches and their plans for the season, along with pictures of the local football team and the cheerleaders, but the names were mixed up.

Then in the second edition, Smith ran stories about a fashion show and dinner theater in Amarillo.

Smith said he wanted to show that the paper could be broader in scope and that he wanted to give the people something to think about.

"Subscribing sight unseen, we couldn't be too upset with what we got, but we were disappointed," Heare said.

Then, no more Miami Chiefs arrived. At first the people thought it was just late. "Those things happen, you know," said Linda Jones. "Sometimes the mail is late, or something."

"We don't feel it's right. Here in Roberts County people are as good as their word," said Mayor O'Laughlin.

Smith said Friday he has "100 percent intentions of publishing" the Miami Chief. He says he needs time to get organized, to get an office and a phone.

"The fact that I haven't left town" should prove that "I haven't backed out on my commitment" to publish the paper, he said.

"I would call it fraud," said O'Laughlin. Sheriff Brines said he took the list of people and how much they spent to District Attorney Guy Hardin, but nothing has been done.

Smith said he wants to publish, but his finances are almost depleted and he needs financial backing. He said he tried to get local backing from the Miami bank but was turned down.

He said he would continue to try, and plans doing "whatever is necessary" to get the paper going.

"We are trusting people," said O'Laughlin, "and believe anybody ought to be man enough to make good."

"I believe in what I write. I am a promotionally minded person. I need the backing of the Miami advertisers," said Smith.

"I take pride in my honesty and integrity, but I am like any other businessman. I have a family to support, and the business takes money to run. I feel that the business people of Miami let me down to a certain extent," Smith said.

But Sheriff Brines disagrees, adding that a number of business people complained in his presence about Smith's raising the price of his advertising space.

Smith said he cares about the people in Miami and he wants to make good, but it is going to take time.

He sold subscriptions through the mail and now that the paper is not being published on a regular basis, he thinks the post office could prosecute for felony use of the mails, Smith said.

"I need time to get to know the people and the paper."

Smith said, adding he would publish the paper from jail, if necessary.

Smith said, "I believe in my product. I can make it a profitable as well as a good paper. I just need time to work things out. It is as I said on the window of my office, 'If you think this issue was bad, consider it's like fine wine, it'll get better with age. I will make it a better paper.'"

He feels that all he needs is someone to believe in him enough to back him financially.

After what has happened, it "sure will make it hard for someone else to start up a paper," in Miami said Heare.

Despite the controversy, the lack of any edition of the Chief being published since October, and Smith's conspicuous absence in Miami itself, he still had enough confidence to add "subscriptions are still $10 per year...and letters to the editor are welcome."

New bank coming along slowly

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

The new bank project is not dead, it's just still on the drawing board.

The National Bank of Commerce is being built from the part of the old Highland General Hospital building. After a flurry of activity last summer, construction slowed to almost a standstill.

"This type of construction is the hardest kind," said W. G. McMillian, of Lubbock, general contractor for the project. McMillian said that when using an existing structure, there are problems which are not encountered with a "from scratch" building. The original structure has to be tested for soundness, strength of supports, proper function of existing facilities, these operations take time, he said.

The architect, Ron Sebring, of Lubbock, said some of the support members have to be re-designed to meet specifications for bearing the additional weight of the vault and vault doors. However, he needed the information from the supplier of the vault before he could do that work. He now has the specifications.

McMillian said he awarded some of the sub-contract bids last week, so construction activity on the bank building should pickup within the next two weeks.

Leonard Hudson of Hudson Drilling, Pampa, part owner of the new bank building, said they are hoping for completion of the bank near the first of May, 1983.

Paying attention really paid off

A team of five Pampa Gifted and Talented students was crestfallen last week when they learned they placed fourth in recent statewide competition in Future Problem Solving Practice, except for the sharp eye of the students.

The students caught one of the teachers making a mistake! The Pampa team thought they certainly should have placed better than fourth place - and on checking the addition of their score, they saw they were right! Instead of fourth place, they ranked Second Place!

Fifth Grader Troy Peet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peet spotted the error in the tabulation of their score. The numbers had been inverted when posted.

A quick letter written by the students went to competition headquarters in Austin, and this week, a much-chagrined contest official apologized and sent their much-deserved Second Place Award.

Other members of the team were Wendi Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hill; Chris Hite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hite; John Fruge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jame Fruge; and Paula Swindle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Swindle. Sometimes it pays to double check.

Grandstaff...

the Grandstaff home, they believed Cox had taken Grandstaff's truck and was driving toward them.

Police said they twice ordered Grandstaff to come out of the truck with his hands up. They said Grandstaff stepped from his truck, and when it appeared he was "going for something in his waistband," they shot at him.

Four officers fired volleys of bullets at Grandstaff. Only one bullet hit him - in the back.

He fell to the ground, squirmed around, and moaned. Thinking it was Cox they had just wounded, police handcuffed the innocent and dying man with his hands behind his back.

They threw him face down into the dirt.

"He kept trying to stand up and was mumbling something," one officer said later.

Cowboy...

bulls," Sharon Grandstaff said. From that first contact with riding, roping and branding, Jim Grandstaff was always a cowboy. His hat, boots, jeans and big belt buckle were his attire of choice. And a pickup truck was his chosen mode of transportation.

"Whenever he got a chance, he even wore his spurs," his wife said. Jim Grandstaff loved kids, his wife said. His choice of marriage partners is evidence of that. Sharon, "Jo Jo," Grandstaff.

After a divorce from his first wife, Jim married Sharon. She also had children from a previous marriage, three sons. He didn't mind the "instant families," Sharon said; he loved his stepchildren as his own.

When Sharon met Jim, it wasn't love at first sight. "We were introduced by mutual friends. We were both just divorced; and when you start dating after a divorce, it's always a little strange," she said.

On their first date, "we went over to Amarillo and had supper at a restaurant. We didn't go steady at first. I dated other guys, and Jim dated other girls."

But later, after seeing how well their respective children got along together and after their mutual love grew, Jim and Sharon decided marriage was the best decision.

"I fell head-over-heels in love with him. I never met anyone else I felt that way about," his widow said.

"He was the kind of guy who wanted to do everything for everybody. We always had a big Christmas and Thanksgiving. Jim always wanted his family and my family to come to our house," she said.

Just before they were married on Nov. 9, 1979, Jim told Sharon he wasn't entirely happy at his job. He had quit ranching and was working for Phillips Petroleum. He came to Sharon with his problem.

"He didn't like his job - he wanted to go back to cowboying. I told him anything that would make him happy, that was fine. Jim took a big cut in pay to go to work for the Four 6s," she said.

While the pay couldn't match the money at the oil company, the ranch provided housing in Borger for Jim, Sharon and the three boys.

And it wasn't long before the Grandstaffs moved into a new house just built on the north camp property. The house is a large, modern three-bedroom place with plenty of room for a family to grow. It sits on a hill, about half a mile off Texas 152, just more than six miles east of Borger, across the Carson County line.

The ranch provided the house, but it was up to the Grandstaffs to finish it inside. They put carpet, drapes and furniture into their new home. They fenced off the inner pasture and rolled out a lawn around the house.

Police went to check Grandstaff's house while other officers were told to "babysit" the wounded man.

When Sharon Grandstaff told them it was her husband in the pickup, the police officers said nothing about the shooting and drove back to where the victim lay.

Realizing they had shot the wrong man, police took the handcuffs off Grandstaff and called an ambulance. Officers later said they couldn't remember when they called for an ambulance or which officer made the call.

The cowboy died about 5 a.m. His last words as he was placed in the ambulance were: "I can't breathe laying down."

A short time later, and farther up the road, Cox surrendered peacefully to the police.

(Tomorrow: We reveal who killed Jim Grandstaff)

Cowboys play "whenever he had time."

And once in a while, Sharon and Jim had a night out for a little dancing, Texas style.

"Jim was a good dancer. We two-stepped and jitterbugged," she said. Jim kept a kennel of greyhounds and a bird dog behind the house in the barn.

The family fished and camped and hunted together. Life was good to the Grandstaffs, Sharon said, but more good things were in store for them - Jim's daughter by his first marriage, Jo Jo, now 10, came to live with them.

The divorce and consequent separation from Jo Jo, save for short visits, had been hard on Jim, Sharon said. After Jo Jo moved to the ranch, he was a changed man. "He was more settled. He had always worried about whether or not she was sick."

"Getting his daughter was the big thing. He enjoyed every minute of it while he had her. Jo Jo would drive the truck while Jim fed the cattle - and she loved to ride."

"She's a very sweet little girl. Jo Cheryl could wrap him around her little finger."

James Grandstaff was a happy cowboy that summer of 1981.

But the high-powered blast of a .223-caliber bullet fired into his back by Borger police cut short the life of the happy cowboy.

His survivors include his wife and father; his mother, Leola Ross of Borger; his daughter, Jo Jo; his stepsons, Joe, Robert and Randy Gatlin; and his grandmother, Emma Grandstaff of Chandler, Okla.

Now his relatives are asking the courts to decide how much the life of a cowboy is worth.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A trial that will hinge on a purported tape recording of a construction foreman's murder has been delayed from its scheduled start Monday because a prosecution witness has been hospitalized.

Paul and Sherry Wolf of La Feria are accused of killing Mrs. Wolf's former husband, Billy Staton, and his fiancée, Leticia Castro, both 26 and from San Juan, over a child custody dispute.

The Wolfs now are scheduled to stand trial in state district court here March 14, assistant District Attorney Ted Campagnolo said Friday.

Staton, on advice from his attorney, concealed a micro-cassette recorder on his body when he went to visit his 2½-year-old daughter, Melanie, at the Wolf home last July 16.

His body was found three weeks later when it was dragged from a Rio Grande Valley drainage canal.

An autopsy revealed he died of a blow to the head with a blunt instrument.

Ms. Castro's body, showing signs of a shattering gunshot blast the head, had been pulled from a separate canal a few hours earlier.

Staton and Ms. Castro were to have been married the next day, Aug. 7.

The cassette tape was found intact and depicts the killing with "terrible clarity," prosecutors said. District Attorney Rey Cantu said the tape reveals "23 minutes of murder."

Prosecutors theorize Ms. Castro waited in the car while Staton went inside the Wolf house to pick up his daughter. Staton was attacked and bludgeoned while in the house and dragged to the trunk of his car while Ms. Castro was shot, Cantu said.

He said it will be his job in court to prove the sounds on the tape are "those of Billy Staton being murdered."

Asked if he will have trouble doing so, Cantu replied, "I don't believe so."

Mrs. Wolf's attorney, James Bates of Edinburg, has requested his client and her husband be tried separately, Campagnolo said.

District Judge Darrell Hester is to rule on that motion March 3.

Glenn Henderson, a La Feria mechanic, was visiting the Wolfs the night authorities said Ms. Castro and Staton were killed.

He has pleaded guilty to the murder of Ms. Castro, is serving a life term in prison and will testify against the Wolfs at the trial, Cantu said.

Wolf is free on cash bonds totaling $100,000. Mrs. Wolf posted two $35,000 surety bonds for her release.

Cosmos to hit mid-February

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union said today that the fuel core of a falling nuclear-powered satellite will enter earth's atmosphere in mid-February.

The official news agency Tass said most of the radioactive fallout from the fuel core of Cosmos-1402 will burn up or be dispersed into fine particles posing little threat to life.

The report was the first detailed projection of when the tumbling satellite's demise will be completed. On Jan. 7, the Soviets confirmed U.S. Defense Department claims that the satellite was falling from orbit, but they said ground controllers separated the reactor from the rest of the craft for safety.

Tass said today the main part of the Cosmos' structure will enter the atmosphere "late in January" with the uranium fuel core entry put at "mid-February."

On Friday, Canada's Defense Department said the satellite would hit the Earth's atmosphere Jan. 24 — plus or minus 54 hours. The department, working with U.S. defense officials tracking the satellite, did not say how the estimate was reached.

The Soviets previously have not reported an estimated timetable for the debris to reach the atmosphere. The U.S. government says it has sent detailed questions to the Soviets in an effort to determine the potential hazard.

Tass quoted Oleg Belotserkovsky, director of the Moscow physical-technical institute, as saying the satellite completed its program of operations on Dec. 28 and "ceased its existence."

A Texas sheriff sees law enforcement change

By MARCY BOYCE
Waco Tribune-Herald

MARLIN, Texas (AP) — Gone is the old jail where Falls County Sheriff Larry Pamplin grew up, peeping through key holes to watch his father at work.

A new one with computerized security monitors and electrically locking doors replaced it in 1978.

"Gone is the 'old school' of law enforcement. Ever-changing and more complex laws have superseded the pistol-wielding method of maintaining law and order.

And criminals just aren't what they used to be either, says Pamplin, 34. Maybe they're smarter. Maybe they aren't. But they sure escape faster and farther away than crooks of yesteryear.

In fact, not much at all remains that Pamplin recalls from his childhood at the Falls County Jail. The son of Falls County Sheriff Brady Pamplin, he lived in the old jail nearly 18 years with his mother, father and two brothers before going to college.

There was no such thing as a jail commission in those days, he says, explaining that operating a jail was not the headache it is today, with inspectors continually peering over county officials' shoulders.

Nor were there jailers in those days, Pamplin says, explaining why the family grew up in the jail during his father's 30-year term of office.

"I was raised on the first floor of the old county jail," he said. "Started out peeping through keyholes when I was 3 or 4 years old. Then I'd stand at the door and look in. And when I got bigger I went with (Dad)."

Pamplin says the experience "would be impossible" to describe. But many who know his father describe him as a "legend in his own time," a "lawman of the old breed" and "a fierce pursuer of those wanted by the law."

Brady Pamplin was feared, but respected. And according to one of the tales about him, he met a bank robber at the edge of the county with a machine gun and pumped the weapon empty, practically ripping the getaway car in half.

The criminal still escaped. The Texas sheriff is said to have grieved, the foiled capture for quite some time. But still he was credited with keeping crime in Falls County at perhaps the lowest level of anywhere in the state during "his reign."

Pamplin disputes the tales of his father, dubbing them exaggerations and lies. The man he knew as Falls County sheriff and the man he still knows as his father is the person others describe as "a kind man with a rough exterior."

In high school, Pamplin decided to follow in his father's footsteps, despite discouragement from his parents, who pointed to the field's low pay and long hours.

And when his father realized his mind was made up, Pamplin says his father offered only a few words of advice: "Make up your mind to treat people the way you would like to be treated. And treat them all the same."

"He told me there would be a lot of things I would like to do, but under the law would not be able to do, and that at other times, there would be a lot of things I would have to do that I would not want to do," Pamplin says. "But he said the whole trick would be to do my job without hurting anyone."

Many years have come and gone since that conversation. And Pamplin since has encountered numerous opportunities where hurting someone while performing his duties as a law enforcement official perhaps would have been justified.

Take for example, the day in 1973 when he had to arrest a man wielding a shotgun just moments after the man gunned down two Falls County deputies.

Pamplin says the deputies, Elbert Watkins and Dean Humphus, were like "kin." And the day they were killed was probably the most memorable of his career.

Slain teen bullrider was experienced

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — A 16-year-old high school sophomore killed by a 1,700-pound Brangus bull at Gilley's honkytonk here was an experienced rider who knew his way around a rodeo ring, his employer says.

"It wasn't just a fling," Johnny Ludtke, owner of the feed store where the Baytown teen-ager worked, said Friday. "He liked it and wanted to do it, and that was his purpose in going to smaller rodeos. He was testing himself. He had a want and a yearn to do it."

Peter J. Belknap Jr. was pronounced dead at Bayshore Hospital at 11:06 p.m. Thursday after being injured about 10:15 p.m., police Sgt. O.J. Miller said.

Ludtke said Friday the boy's weight and the force with which he fell across the bull's horn punctured the teen-ager's side.

"He had a lot of ability," Ludtke said. "More than anything else was just the want to do it. You know how some people are."

The accident occurred during a practice session the arena conducts every Thursday night, primarily for younger riders, Ludtke said. Miller said it was the first serious accident he knew of at the indoor arena attached to the huge Gilley's Club, a country music dance hall and tavern that gained widespread attention when the movie "Urban Cowboy" was filmed there.

"The bull bucked him off. The bull then hooked him in the side, causing a large laceration," Miller said.

Belknap, a sophomore at Ross S. Sterling High School in Baytown, was a chapter vice president of Future Farmers of America club. He showed hogs and steers, and last year won first place in showmanship at the Harris County livestock show and at

Armed man saves fiancée from stabbing, rape

By CHARLES C. HILL

HOUSTON (AP) — Larry Villalobos says a fluke phone call and a 25-caliber pistol he kept under a couch cushion enabled him to save his fiancée from a man who stabbed her with a screwdriver.

His fiancée, 16-year-old Sonia Flores, was asleep on the living room couch when he called.

"I don't usually go home to lunch, but for some reason I just decided to call and go home," Villalobos said. "When she answered the phone, she looked over at the bedroom and she said, 'There's a man in there.'"

Villalobos, 19, said he rushed home, kicked open the front door, struggled with the intruder, grabbed the gun and shot the man dead.

"When I walked in, I saw her face and it made me furious," he said Friday. "I saw her face bleeding and I just started getting on top of that guy. I didn't give him a chance really."

The man was not immediately identified, and Villalobos said he had never seen him before.

Police said no charges would be filed in the case, though all homicides routinely are turned over to a grand jury.

Villalobos said three stitches were needed to close a stab wound on Miss Flores' chin.

"He stabbed her in the face with the screwdriver and she had a couple of scratches on her, but he didn't get to rape her or nothing. I got there just in time," Villalobos said.

Villalobos said Miss Flores, who he plans to marry in September, had been staying at his family's home since Monday.

She had fallen asleep while watching television when Villalobos called her about 10:30 a.m. Thursday. It was then that she looked toward a bedroom and spotted the intruder, who apparently broke into the house by prying open a window with a screwdriver, Villalobos said.

Villalobos told her no one had any business being there at that hour. He said he'd rush home from his job as a car mechanic and be there in less than 10 minutes.

"I made it in about seven minutes," he said.

His fiancée warned him as he tried to get inside the house, he said.

"She was just saying, 'Larry, be careful when you're coming in. He's going to try to stab you.'"

He blocked a stab attempt and the two men struggled on the couch, the 19-year-old said.

"There is a 25 I keep under the cushion. I managed to get to that and I used it on him," firing two shots, Villalobos said. "He just fell on the floor. He was dead before the ambulance got there."

The Harris County medical examiner's office said the man was killed by a gunshot wound to the chest.

Villalobos said he kept the gun under the cushion for emergencies, and never had used it in the two years he owned it.

He said the intruder had told Miss Flores to take her clothes off.

"She was trying to stall him as much as possible," Villalobos said. "Then he tried to force himself on her and she tried to fight him off, and did until I got there."

an attorney says.

FORT WORTH — Participants in a federal court hearing on Braniff International's proposals to avoid liquidation continued debate today on the merits of the grounded airline's two plans, after a flurry of legal maneuvering.

LUBBOCK — Two West Texas state senators contend Gov.-elect Mark White already is making enemies in the young legislative session by "twisting arms" over lame-duck Gov. Bill Clements' appointments.

SAN ANTONIO — Dwindling water supplies, overcrowded highways and overpopulation south of the border are problems that will challenge Texans between now and the turn of the century, a business expert says.

BEAUMONT — An attorney for condemned killer James Autry says he will base a new appeal on a judge's refusal to grant immunity that would have allowed Autry's alleged accomplice to testify.

HENDERSON — Handwritten legal motions filed by a murder defendant delayed a decision on whether to order a psychiatric evaluation of the man, who police say held them at bay 16 hours while he demanded two dead chickens, two parakeets and other animals.

EL PASO — Police suspect three phony motorcycle patrolmen, who conned at least three unsuspecting motorists out of $763 this week, may be former members of the department who have turned from law enforcement to larceny.

AUSTIN — A Houston-based nursing home corporation that pleaded no contest to an involuntary manslaughter charge would be forced to declare bankruptcy if a state agency decides to cancel the company's Medicaid contracts, an attorney says.

Arthur wasn't just legend

An American historian and a British genealogist have collaborated to brighten the Christmas season for romanticists around the world. They have discovered historical support for the chivalric legend of King Arthur and his Round Table of noble knights. There really was, we are led to believe, a place and time of Camelot.

"We seem to have a British king in the 5th century as the original of the Arthurian legend," said Geoffrey Ashe, a British genealogist, writer, lecturer and specialist on King Arthur. "The research by Professor Barbara Moorman of the University of Southern Mississippi confirms my long-held feeling that Arthur was more than a legend," he said.

That the mystical Camelot saga is being given flesh and bone is, of course, as mighty a contribution to the world of history as it is to the world of romance.

Could this be compassion?

Syndicated columnist William Murchison, who's based at the Dallas Morning News, has come up with a "compassion test" that just might be a thought-starter, to wit:

1. Is it compassionate to permit an inflation of nearly 300 percent in just 15 years' time?
  2. Is it compassionate to let federal taxes rise apace (the phenomenon called 'bracket creep'), eating up pay raises as fast as they can be dispensed, the hindering, if not discouraging, the creation of new wealth?
  3. Is it compassionate to sit back and watch the American standard of living stagnate for a whole decade?
  4. Is it compassionate to promise more Social Security benefits than Social Security taxes even at today's lofty levels can finance?
  5. Is it compassionate, through inflation and a tangled tax code, to discourage savings, meaning private provision for private needs and necessities?
  6. Is it compassionate to leave all the foregoing problems unattended for so long that solutions are harder and more painful than would earlier have been necessary?
  7. Is it compassionate to duck the above questions by raving about the other fellow's lack of compassion?
- Seven "nos" get you an "A" in common sense. Unfortunately, representatives of both major parties have been flunking the test for years.

Law of the sea folly

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

The Reagan administration was wise not to sign the law of the sea treaty in Jamaica last month. The proposed international regime to regulate undersea mining is not in the interest of the U.S. and other advanced countries.

The law of the sea treaty is best described as a dangerous collectivist experiment. The beneficiaries would be hostile Third World countries which lack both technological expertise and capital.

One of the best analyses of the meaning of the law of the sea treaty has been made by Prof. D. R. Denman of Cambridge University in England. Writing in The Times of London, Prof. Denman points out that approval of the treaty would mean:

1. Authorizing the U.N. to go into business against free enterprise.
2. Giving the U.N. agents (the International Seabed Authority and its Interpriser) calculated advantages over their competitors.
3. Levying compulsory funds from state parties and companies to finance and maintain the collectivist enterprise to operate against them.
4. Compelling companies to hand over vital technical know-how and training facilities to the competing enterprise.
5. Setting up in the world a new absolute sovereignty, the ISA, over the deep ocean resources.
6. Denying the deep seabed resources to those bold, and willing to risk men and money to win them for the benefit of mankind and who should, in consequence, be guaranteed the property right to exploit them.
7. Giving power to the ISA to control indirectly and ultimately directly and world mineral markets.
8. Closing the doors to better alternative regimes.
9. Gaining nothing more than what is now achievable from world consensus by way of navigation rights and national operation zones.
10. Signing against an almost universal opinion, among developed and developing nations, that the proposals of the convention must in any attempted operation lead to breakdown.

The stalemate

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

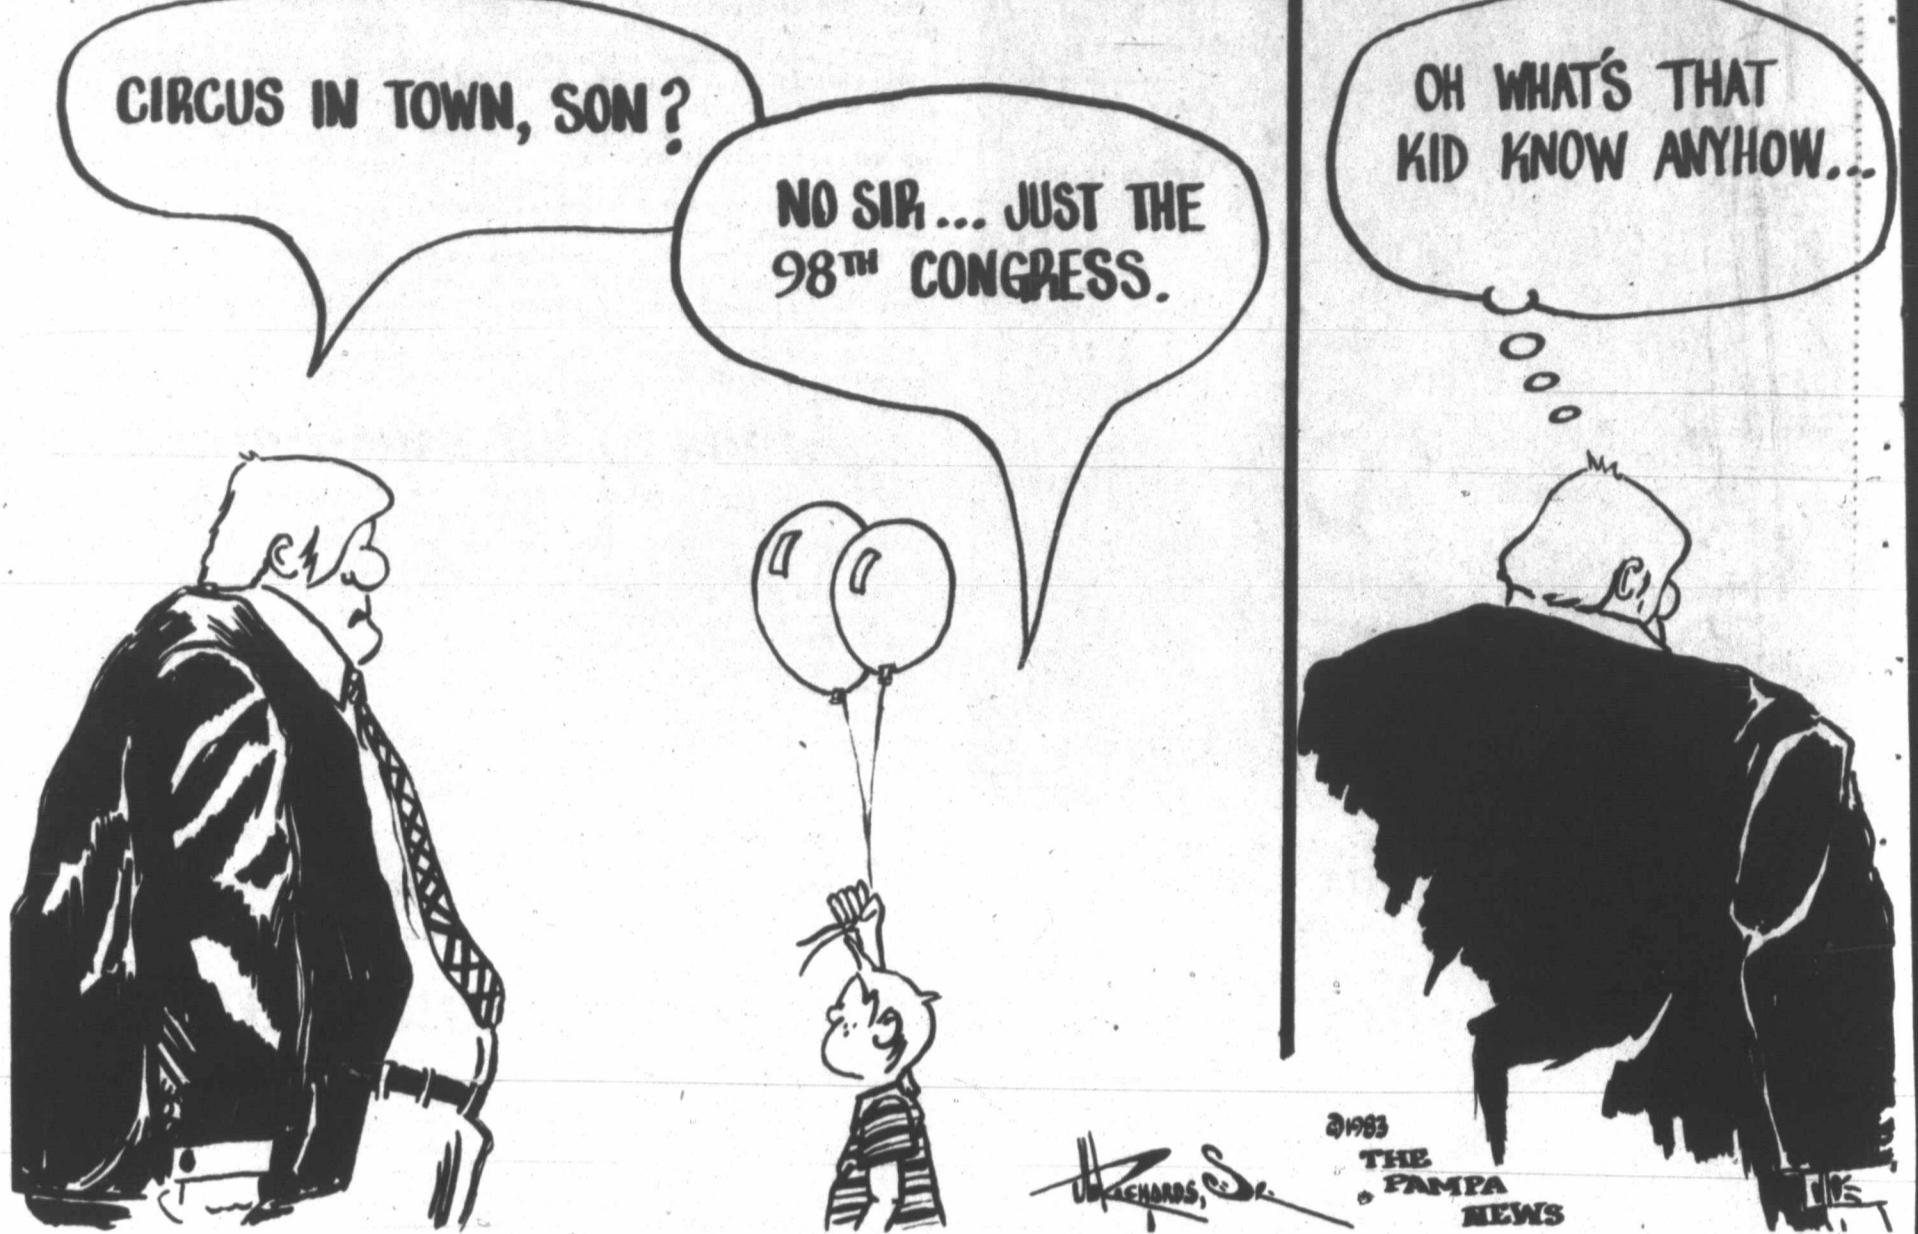

The turbulent lameduck session of the 97th Congress suggests that worse is yet to come in the new session.

In shifting the political balance in the House of Representatives, the voters set up the conditions for a stalemate. That's what we saw emerging in the lameduck session. And the stalemate is likely to become more pronounced in the new Congress. The sufferers in this will be the American people who need strong, clearly defined national policies in a period of adversity.

The American governmental system has its strong points as compared to the parliamentary system in Great Britain. On the other hand, it is an adversarial system, with resulting checks on the formation and execution of policy. On many occasions in the past, the U.S. has been almost immobilized by a stalemate between the White House and Congress. We may be in for another such period between now and the next presidential election.

The nation's problems cry out for consensus solutions - on Social Security reform for example. Consensus solutions are almost impossible to achieve with the kind of political balance in effect because of the recent congressional elections.

The stalemate occurs at the worst possible moment for the U.S. The nation's economy is in deep trouble.

NASA facts and fictions

By Robert Walters

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Although very few people ever heard of Vance D. Brand, he'll soon be a nationally acclaimed celebrity — and therein lies the story of the strength and weakness of this country's manned space program.

Brand is destined for fame because he has been designated by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to be mission commander on the fifth flight of the Space Shuttle, scheduled to be launched in mid-November.

But is this trip necessary? Although the exploration of space has been a resounding success, very few of its benefits can be attributed to the manned flights for which NASA is famous. Nevertheless, the inclusion of astronauts on space flights has added uncounted hundreds of millions (perhaps billions) of dollars to the agency's budget.

The astronauts do, however, provide the human drama which captivates and intrigues not only the public but also Congress and the White House — the indispensable sources of political support and federal funding for NASA.

Like other government agencies, NASA is willing to do whatever is necessary to enhance its prestige and its budget — so the agency has fabricated an elaborate myth about the importance of manned space flight. The program's purported benefits include miniaturized implantable medical devices, fire-resistant clothing, long-life waste disposal bags and impact-resistant foam for football helmets, ski boots and wheelchairs. The list also includes radar-reflecting covers for life rafts, grooved runways, glider wings, adjustable ceilings, infrared tire thermography, backpack resuscitators and composite materials for skis, golf clubs and tennis racquets.

In fact, every one of those items was conceived, designed, engineered, tested and manufactured on the face of the earth. In no case was a flight into space — manned or unmanned — necessary to develop or produce the product.

By far the most spectacular "spin-off" benefit from space exploration is attributable to a military program that involved no astronauts: A 1959 Air Force initiative led to the development of integrated semiconductor circuitry whose first major application was in the Minuteman ICBM.

In addition to integrated circuits, most of the major benefits derived by society from the space program can be ascribed to communications and remote-sensing technology.

"Advances in space technology are revolutionizing the telecommunications industry," notes a report on "The Economic Benefits of Space Development," released earlier this year by the Los Alamos National Laboratory.

International telephone calls, formerly routed through inadequate undersea cables and unreliable short-wave radio circuits, now are inexpensively and reliably transmitted by satellites orbiting the earth.

Similarly, international and domestic television signals now are routinely transmitted by RCA's Satcom, Western Union's Westar, Comsat's Comstar and scores of other satellites.

Nimbus, Tiros and Geos meteorological satellites provide weather-sensing information whose accuracy, quality and timeliness are far superior to data previously gathered.

Other remote-sensing satellites map the earth's magnetic field, track changes in atmospheric ozone distribution, chart the planet's heat flow and measure the earth's shape.

The numerous military applications of space technology include greatly enhanced command, control and communications; weapons delivery; reconnaissance and navigation.

All of those functions require only relatively inexpensive unmanned satellites, while NASA is confined to essentially duplicating the same accomplishments at far higher costs imposed by the requirements of manned space flight.

In 1977, NASA established a "special introductory offer" of $18 million for civilian customers paying for a full lead in the Space Shuttle's cargo bay. By late 1985, however, that price will soar to a prohibitive $90 million.

"The agency that put a man on the moon," says the Los Alamos report, "finds itself trapped in the mundane activity of trying to reverse a negative cash flow."

Ignoring Soviet outrages

invited to butter him up on the theory that he is a "closet liberal!"

What's left? How about waging highly sophisticated chemical warfare against the native populations of backward but refractory nations like Afghanistan and Cambodia? Would that at least if proved against the Russians, rouse the sluggish conscience of Western liberal opinion? Apparently not; the first American charges about Soviet use of "yellow rain" were attacked and dismissed by our liberal media as too insubstantial to credit. The most recent official State Department report on the subject, being far too detailed and well-documented to dismiss that way, has been given the absolute minimum of media attention.

And by the way, don't fall for the liberal excuse that they see no point in making heavy weather over misdeeds of foreign countries that "the United States can't do anything about." We couldn't "do anything about" Hitler in the 1930s either, but that didn't prevent the world's liberals from yelling bloody murder — and rightly — about his domestic per-

Letter to the Editor

I am inviting citizens of Pampa to join with me in writing to the Texas Attorney General protesting the pricing of gasoline in Pampa.

The price of gasoline in Pampa is about 10 cents higher than a year ago while the New York price shows that the wholesale price of gasoline is 10 cents less than a year ago.

This shows that the local dealers are taking a 20 cents more mark up over a year ago. The local price of gasoline in Pampa is about 10 to 14 cents than the price in Panhandle and Amarillo. I would like the local dealers explain this.

I am sure if the Attorney General would start on investigation of the local Gasoline dealers in Pampa he would find that the people of Pampa are getting a rip-off.

Berry's World

managing editor of The Denton Record-Chronicle, because although she loved reporting, "I hated being stuck on the desk 18 hours a day. They hired three people to take my place when I left Denton."

Reporting was what she loved most, and her first interview proved to be one of her most interesting ones. When she was a sophomore at Texas State College for Women, she interviewed Norman Thomas, a socialist candidate for president.

But her favorite of all political events she covered was the 1940 democratic convention in Chicago, where FDR was nominated for an unprecedented third term. Hurley was there, representing the smallest paper in the nation to cover both conventions. "It was really an experience."

Although she never got her wish to be a full-time sports editor, she was the first woman in the Lufkin press box and covered high school football as a stringer (correspondent) for a Houston paper. While in Lufkin, she also was a stringer for the Dallas News and the Houston Post. She confesses that

But she finally applied, and then discovered that a friend of hers was in the same competition.

When she hadn't heard anything by the time the fellowships were supposed to be awarded, she sent the following telegram to New York: "Need that fellowship. Need refreshing. Help." The next day she was notified she'd received the fellowship, but to this day she's not sure if the telegram had any effect.

Looking back on her years in newspapers, she tells stories that chronicle history. She was in New York when Howard Hughes returned from his round-the-world trip and was given a tickertape parade in Manhattan.

Her friend in town wouldn't go with her, but she wanted to see a tickertape parade, so she went alone. In the crowd she was befriended by an Irish cop who told her, "You can't see she first learned how to write weddings, engagements, and teas using clips from the Dallas papers. Her "beats" in Lufkin were women's news (society), city hall, chamber of commerce, county extension and courthouse.

As a managing editor, she trained reporters, but she says she was lucky in that the editors who trained her were enterprising and taught her well. She, in turn, came to Pampa to teach Pampa High School students as well as she had taught professional reporters.

"I wouldn't lower my standards," she says, and in later years students would drop or flunk out of her classes in larger numbers than when she started. Part of her classes was a 100-word spelling test every Friday, a requirement that each student learn two new words each week, and a weekly current events test.

"I was very fortunate, because my predecessor was an English teacher, and she wanted to get rid of it, so they were glad to get me." She'd owned an interest in the Denton paper, and she sold it and used the money to travel for a year before coming to Pampa.

First, she drove all over Texas to visit friends, then to New York to visit college friends. She was in Ohio when she learned that Texas Christian University (TCU) was playing Fayetteville in Arkansas, and pressed a friend to get her tickets.

In Virginia, she met a "friend of a friend" whose father was a professor and had connections with a travel service. "I started thinking about Europe," she says. She then spent time traveling across Europe with eight college students.

After she got back from Europe, she thought "I've gotta make a living," and decided to try teaching, which she had started in Denton, substituting for a college professor who was in the Korean War. So she came to Pampa, even though "nobody comes to Pampa," she says, referring to her friends. She's had to visit her friends, it's harder to get them here to visit her, she says.

One of the first things she did for PHS publications was start an advertising course. It had never been done, and the publications department had a $6,000 deficit when she took over. There was no other course in advertising at the time, and she had to bring her proposal before the school board and sell the idea to local businesses.

She started with Cabot and Celanese, who bought the idea. "They're business people, they understand," she told the school board. She planned the advertising department, and although it took 14 years to erase the $6,000 debt, the department never ran in the red again.

She started her teaching career in Pampa with one filing cabinet, one typewriter ("we got hand-me-downs from business education"), one desk, and the "smallest classroom in the building."

So Hurley planned, a little bit at a time. One filing cabinet one year, and one the next, and once the department started making money instead of losing it, it became easier.

While she admits that she's not much good at the mechanical drawing part of planning, she drew plans for a real department and presented them to the school committee. When the school district passed a bond issue to expand the high school, her department went into the new addition.

Hurley and her Harvester (yearbook) and Little Harvester (newspaper) won numerous state and national awards.

"We were the top high school newspaper in the state," and won the Gallup award every year, and yearbook prizes at Columbia Scholastic Press Association Conferences in New York for several years.

Although she taught college while she was in Denton, she "liked the high school-age group," and so she stayed at PHS instead of going on to teach college students.

"My students were the best thing to happen to me," Hurley says, and she's enormously proud of them and their accomplishments. Former students of hers are now on newspapers, magazines, and in advertising. She still hears from a lot of them—they're scattered "from New York to California," she says.

Since students had to have a minimum average in English to take journalism at all, Hurley usually got the top students in the school. But she did have problems with some students who "thought it was going to be a snap course."

And she did have some trouble the last few years with deadline-breakers. She speaks fondly of some of her earlier "stars," from "back when they knew what deadlines were."

One former student remembers Hurley as "someone who was a hardboiled journalist herself. Working under her, we got a real impression of what it was to work under a real journalist. It wasn't a game."

She was proud of her students, and took as many as she could to the Columbia Scholastic Press conferences in New York. "My first year, I took both my (newspaper and yearbook) editors," she says. However, most of her students couldn't afford to go, she said.

One thing she nearly missed by being "isolated" in a school system was the changes being made in her craft on newspapers. She saw her first video display terminal (VDT) at the Associated Press in New York, and her first thought was "heaven help me, I'll never live to see them. Electric typewriters frighten me."

But she did live to see them, along with style changes as well. However, some of the style changes don't suit her as well. She thinks there's too much editorializing (a reporter's own opinion in a story) these days.

"I guess I'm passe," she says, "the editorial page is for that." She feels that television has helped bring about a lot of the editorializing in newspapers, because "they (tv newscasters) do a lot of that."

She predicts that newspapers will always be around: "I can't believe the day will ever come when we won't have a newspaper, even if you cuss 'em while they're here."

Hurley has won about as many awards as her publications have. She's won golden quills, and awards that call her a "pioneer" and a "trailblazer" where newspapers are concerned.

One year she was in competition for a Newspaper Fund Fellowship that would take her to New York for refresher courses. She had never applied before, because she thought they were all for the young reporters who needed to learn.

back here, let me take you down front," and proceeded to do so.

She interviewed Douglas "Wrong Way" Corrigan, who tried to fly across the Atlantic but went the wrong way. On his way back to San Antonio, The Lufkin News got him to pass through town.

She met him at the airport, but they put him on a fire engine and made a parade through town, so she went right along beside him and did her interview that way.

When she looks back on the personal side of her life, she says she has no regrets. She says she never got married because she was too busy to get married. "I didn't want to when I was young; maybe if I'd met the right one I would have. If I could find a rich man who likes to keep house and stay home and let me travel, I'd marry him now."

Up Close

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

Elizabeth Hurley has experienced a lot of life, and she's not about to stop now.

Her green eyes sparkle when she smiles, and she waves her hands when she makes a point in conversation. Her grey hair is pinned neatly back and her fingers make perfect "pointers" at the things about life she's experienced so far.

Her smooth fair skin shows little sign of her age or the scars from a serious airplane accident many years ago, and there's no visible sign of the ailments that typically afflict people as they age. The small, spry woman doesn't fit the image of a "senior citizen," or "women's libber," although she's probably been called both at one time or another.

She spent 12 years in the newspaper business before coming to Pampa High School in 1953 to teach journalism and advise the newspaper and yearbook.

"Now that I'm retired," she says, "whenever I get the chance, I flit."

Traveling is one thing that she always wanted to do and now she has the chance to do it.

She started her newspaper career in 1934 on The Lufkin Daily News, a small paper miles from her home in Fort Worth. Her father's first reaction was "can't you find a job closer to home?" but she felt that she hadn't gone to college for four years for nothing, so she took the job.

"I wanted to be a sports editor, not a 'society' editor," she says, but because she was a woman she ended up being the society editor anyway. She covered society and half the town, and the male reporter on the staff covered sports and the other half of the town.

Hurley had a most memorable day to change jobs—December 7, 1941. She had spent most of the fall of 1941 in a Fort Worth hospital recuperating from an airplane accident in which her head was caught by a propeller as she "walked into it." She broke her jaw, nearly lost her left eye, and still has faint "slashing" scars down the side of her face. It was after this painful accident and two months of hospitalization that she reported for work at the Marshall News-Messenger on Sunday, December 7.

"I pulled into the parking lot and they had just put out an 'extra' because of Pearl Harbor," she said. The managing editor of the paper left shortly afterward to join the war effort, and Hurley had her first post as managing editor.

"I'm not a 'women's libber,' she says, "but I've been through it all and they don't pay you (women) what they pay men. Women were the bottom rung on the ladder (in her days on the city desk)," she says. But she also acknowledges that when she worked during the Great Depression, she was grateful to have a job at all while some people didn't.

She moved to teaching from her third newspaper job.

AGE 14-16...
To the adolescent, he may want to shelter his guilt feelings. He is not easily understood. He may refrain from emotions or expressions, but clinical studies show that teenagers often have more intense grief than any other age group. Encourage his friends to share his grief and attend the service. This gives him the support he needs. He wants to think of himself as an adult, so treat him as such.

World grain production said record In Agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — World grain production in 1982-83 is estimated at a record of more than 1.66 billion metric tons, up 2 percent from last year's harvest, says the Agriculture Department.

The latest estimate, issued Thursday, was slightly above the December forecast. Crop estimates were raised for China, Argentina, Mexico, Vietnam and the United States.

According to the report, U.S. grain output — from last year's record harvest — accounted for 339 million metric tons, or 20 percent of the world total.

Oilseed production, mainly soybeans in the United States, was estimated at 181.4 million metric tons, slightly less than a month ago but substantially more than the 169.5 million tons produced in 1981-82. The U.S. share was 70.8 million tons or about 40 percent of the world total.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds.

METHOD DEMONSTRATION TRAINING
The Gray County 4-H and Adult Leaders' Council will sponsor an area Method Demonstration training presented by Preston Sides, state 4-H and youth specialist. The training will be Monday, Jan. 24, 7 p.m., at the Courthouse Annex on East Frederic. All interested 4-H'ers and leaders from Gray and surrounding counties are invited to attend.

4-H YOUTH COMMITTEE
The Gray County 4-H and Youth Committee met Jan. 11 at the Courthouse Annex. Martha Couch, state 4-H and youth specialist, presented a training on the duties and functions of a 4-H and Youth Committee. Ten of the 12 members were present. Mrs. Dorothy Neslage of Pampa will chair the committee and Mrs. Charlotte Watson of Lefors will act as secretary-treasurer. The committee examined an overview of 4-H in Gray County for the last eight years. Membership numbers and age of 4-H'ers, number of leaders and popular 4-H projects were discussed.

Nineteen concerns for youth in Gray County were considered. The three which received top priority were drug and alcohol abuse, family involvement in community and 4-H, and 4-H programs emphasizing projects which were low cost and that would teach a vocation such as babysitting, and lawn mowing and care. The group divided in to sub-committees which will develop programs to tackle these concerns.

The committee will meet again September 27.

4-HERS DEVELOP X-RAY VISION
In the 4-H livestock judging program, youngsters learn to look at a live animal and tell what the carcass will look like when it is hanging on the rail. This may not be exactly what a person would call x-ray vision, but the title should have caught your eye.

Livestock judging is important because the 4-H'ers can observe a group of animals and decide which animal has the greatest lean to fat ratio; most desirable finish; and many other economically important factors which comprise a desirable carcass of a given species.

The selection of superior livestock by means of visual appraisal is a skill of great importance to anyone in the livestock production business. The 4-H livestock judging program gives young people a starting point to work toward skillful evaluation of the live animal.

This is the time of year for all boys and girls ages 9-19, who are interested in being on the livestock judging team, to contact the Gray County Extension Service for more information.

We need to get going on this program because the team will travel to Wheeler for a contest on February 19 and entries must be in by January 28.

4-H'ERS IN AGRICULTURE PREPARE FOR THE FUTURE
Between now and the year 2000 the world must learn to produce as much food as it has learned to produce since the beginning of time. By the turn of the century there will be an estimated two mouths to feed for every one mouth being fed today.

Supplying enough food and fiber to meet future needs will not be an easy job. It will require more and better research and technology, more efficient use of land and energy, and improved crop and livestock production methods.

Young people in 4-H may one day play a key role in helping to feed the world. Many of these 4-H members may decide to apply their training and experience in choosing careers in agriculture.

America's future is in the hands of our young people, and America cannot survive without agriculture; so America's future depends on its citizens to arouse interest for agriculture in our young people. This can be accomplished through the 4-H program in your community.

The 4-H agriculture program is conducted by the Extension service for boys and girls 9-19. The program encourages 4-H'ers to "learn by doing" the skills and practices that make for more efficient, profitable farming and ranching.

SAFETY WITH FARM ANIMALS
Animals have been entwined in agriculture since primitive times. We are both fond of and dependent on them and dislike viewing farm animals as potentially dangerous. But each year they are involved in thousands of farm injuries, some of them fatal.

Most animal related mishaps could be avoided by following some safe practices.

The following safety tips are suggested:

- Have adequate restraining and handling facilities. Keep equipment in good repair.
- Be calm and deliberate. Speak gently. Don't startle or abuse animals, but still be alert for sudden movements and kicking.
- Stay away from animals that are frightened, sick or look suspicious. Be extra cautious around strange animals. Beware of bulls, sows with pigs and other potentially dangerous animals. Restrain known kickers and biters.
- Train your help. Entrust livestock handling jobs only to those with ample strength and experience. Children and bystanders must be kept safely back.
- Wear safety shoes or boots and a bump cap. Use a filter respirator in dusty or chaff conditions.
- Never tie a lead line to your body.

Reputed mobster chief dies at age 81 in Miami

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Meyer Lansky, the reputed financial genius of the underworld, died today at 81, according to officials at Mount Sinai Hospital.

Miami Beach hospital Dec. 31 suffering from dehydration, according to spokeswoman Joyce Clark.

patient, who had been hospitalized about seven weeks ago for tests.

Lansky died at 6 a.m. of cancer, said hospital spokeswoman Judy Stanton.

Lansky lived in a waterfront, high-rise condominium, the Imperial House, in Miami Beach, with his second wife, Thelma, whom he called Teddy.

After the war, Lansky moved part of his operation to South Florida but the heat generated by the Kefauver investigations in the early 1950s caused a shutdown of Lansky's gambling operations.

In November 1970, Lansky showed up in Tel Aviv, Israel, with his wife, Thelma, with the intention of becoming an Israeli citizen.

Four months later, while he was still in Israel and already becoming a controversial figure and an embarrassment to the government, he was indicted by a federal grand jury in Miami on a charge of criminal contempt growing out of his failure to heed a subpoena to appear before the grand jury.

Jazz singer with new challenge

By TIM KLASS
Associated Press Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — True to her theme song, jazz singer Ernestine Anderson didn't make her move too soon — she waited until the second set of music to sing.

And not until the more than 100 fans at her new jazz club clapped and shouted did she glance heavenward, nod to the band and swing into the title song of her Grammy Award-nominated album, "Never Make Your Move Too Soon."

But then, she also waited nearly 25 years, after she had soared to acclaim as an entertainer, to make what might be the move of her career — becoming part-owner of a jazz club and lending her name to it.

After introducing the other three co-owners of Ernestine's midway through the second round of music by keyboard artist Terrell Prude (pronounced proo-DAY), Miss Anderson said, "If you wonder why I'm not singing, tonight's my night to paaaaaarty!"

She did sing, though. Before she was done, the smoky, steamy power of her voice and the finger-popping, hip-swinging drive of Prude's quartet had couples dancing wherever they could find room.

She has three partners in the corporation that bought the 6-year-old club late last summer: Heather Tillman, who sells real estate; Chuck Clark, a homebuilder and former tenor saxophone player; and John Hester, a drummer.

Born in 1928 in Houston, Miss Anderson's parents moved to Seattle when she was 13, partly hoping to nip in the bud a singing career that had gotten their daughter the heave-ho from a Baptist church in Texas.

Nonetheless, Miss Anderson quickly moved from occasional work around town with other locals, such as Quincy Jones and Ray Charles, to tours with Johnny Otis and Lionel Hampton, eventually becoming a raving success in Sweden.

Tapes recorded there were released in 1958 as the album, "Hot Cargo." The next year she won Downbeat's new star award.

Just as quickly, her star faded. From 1964 to 1966, she lived in London. Then she retired for a short period.

At the urging of bassist Ray Brown and with an infusion of inner peace from Nichiren Shoshu Buddhism, she resumed her career in the 1970s, signing a recording contract with the Concord label in 1976. Five years later came the release of the album that got her the Grammy nomination as best female jazz vocalist of 1982 (Ella Fitzgerald won the award).

On tenors, horses and toscas

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera diva Dorothy Kirsten was told that she had to tear apart people when she wrote her autobiography, "A Time to Sing."

But she didn't. "Why should I do that when it isn't so? And I never wanted to hurt anyone," she says. "It takes so many years of serious study to be an opera singer. I have great respect for them."

Television talk shows haven't been interested in Miss Kirsten because the book isn't salacious. But she is proud of the way it turned out. She's also pleased that it has 72 pictures, though that large amount of art caused Doubleday to price "A Time to Sing" at $16.95.

Miss Kirsten has had a long and distinguished career in opera, mostly at the Metropolitan Opera and San Francisco Opera, since 1945.

She made her debut in 1940 with the Chicago Opera Company.

"I have broken in so many tenors," she says. "I'll bet I've broken in more than anybody else in the whole business. If they're nervous on the stage, it doesn't make me nervous. It makes me stronger. And I do everything I can to encourage them."

"Franco Corelli, in the first act of 'Tosca,' always found the first bang-up aria he had to sing a nervous spot for him. I would never miss saying to him, 'bravo, bravo,' before I had to sing anything. That seemed to relax him. And he always was good."

Miss Kirsten's husband of 27 years, Dr. John French, hasn't been well and she has been spending a lot of time with him.

"But I've got to get back to singing," she says. "I'd like to do 'Tosca' again and 'Louise.' My voice is still all there, and I've taken good care of myself."

"Fortunately, I had the right kind of training from a wonderful man. The even scale was the Bible of learning to sing — an even voice from top to bottom, no breaks — no top, middle and chest voice."

Miss Kirsten recently was interviewed for a TV show about great Toscas. She is the only one of 17 chosen for the show who is American born.

She also has recently put out two recordings. One is duets sung on the radio with Nelson Eddy. The other is arias sung with symphony orchestras throughout the United States. Her next recording will be songs she performed with Frank Sinatra on radio's "Light Up Time" in 1947-49.

Three charged in dope flight

BRADY, Texas (AP) — Three people remained jailed in lieu of $1.2 million bond Saturday after U.S. Customs agents forced down a plane loaded with marijuana at this central Texas town.

The twin-engine aircraft was forced to land at Brady Municipal Airport about 4:45 a.m. Thursday by a plane load of federal agents.

Former Starsky now househusband

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — He was once half of the macho law enforcement duo, "Starsky and Hutch." Now Paul Michael Glaser sheds gun and badge to play a football coach who becomes a househusband for the summer in a new television movie.

He plays Bob Peters in the NBC-TV project, "Wait Till Your Mother Gets Home," which airs Jan. 17. It's an often humorous look at what happens when the coach switches roles to show his wife how to run the house more efficiently — or at least, that's the plan.

Superb performances by Glaser and Dee Wallace, and artful direction by Bill Persky more than compensate for the predictable plot, which is based on a true story.

"I welcomed it as an opportunity to do some comedy because as an actor, that's always been my strongest and least played suit," said Glaser, whose career took him to Off-Broadway, Broadway and television soap operas before he broke into the movies.

He played the hero's rival in "Butterflies Are Free," and the revolutionary son-in-law in "Fiddler on the Roof," then went on to fame in 63 countries with "Starsky and Hutch."

Top Country-Western hits

Best-selling Country-Western records of this week based on Cashbox magazine's nationwide survey:

1. "The Bird," Jerry Reed
2. "A Love Song," Kenny Rogers
3. "Marina Del Rey," George Strait
4. "Going Where the Lonely Go," Merle Haggard
5. "Wild and Blue," John Anderson
6. "I Don't Remember Loving You," John Conlee
7. "Can't Even Get the Blues," Reba McEntire
8. "I Wonder," Rosanne Cash
9. "Like Nothing Ever Happened," Sylvia
10. "Somewhere Between Right and Wrong," Earl Thomas Conley

Glaser said the role of the coach-turned-househusband challenged him because of the combination of drama and comedy.

"You have to walk a very delicate line between pathos and humor," he says, adding that as a husband and father, "I'm somewhere between where Bob Peters started and where he ended up."

Having a baby daughter, Ariel, has taught Peters new respect for parents.

"When things get difficult for me, my tendency is to take care of myself, not my daughter. I'm talking about what I feel, not what I do," he said.

"My child's only 17 months old. I don't know what kind of father I'm going to be when she's 2 years old, or 5 years old or 7 years old," Glaser said. "I have times when I feel very generous and times when it's all I can do to take care of my business."

Partners map progress.

Lewis and Clark were men of destiny who challenged over 2,000 miles of trackless wilderness west of the Mississippi. Captain Meriwether Lewis, army officer and frontiersman, chose the artist and mapmaker Lieutenant William Clark for his partner. From 1803 to 1806 the two young men combined their skills and talents to search for a northwest passage to the Pacific Ocean. As partners, Lewis and Clark provided detailed maps and valuable scientific journals which later encouraged rapid settlement and development of the West.

Today there is a new frontier to challenge - an energy frontier. You and Southwestern Public Service Company are partners like Lewis and Clark. Partners working together making energy decisions to make a difference. For instance, when you install a High-Efficiency Add-On Heat Pump in your home, you and SPS work together to better manage electricity. And when electricity is efficiently managed, it makes the difference. Together, Lewis and Clark charted the maps that made the difference which helped win the West. Together, you and SPS can work as partners, charting progress for a new frontier in electricity management.

You and SPS, partners managing electricity, make the difference.

Cable television debate heats up in Utah

By MICHAEL WHITE
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jim Bunnell has been called everything from smut merchant to godless, but he still can't understand why some Utah residents are disturbed.

Bunnell, regional marketing director for Tele-Communications Inc., has become a reluctant soldier in a major legal and legislative battle over whether some R-rated films will be banned from the households of cable television subscribers in Utah.

"I have gotten calls in which people have accused me of being everything from a smut peddler to secular humanist," he said. "I just see the whole thing as ridiculous."

But what Bunnell calls ridiculous others view as a serious threat to home and family. More than 60,000 Utah residents have signed a petition forcing the state Legislature to consider an initiative that would ban up to 30 percent of the R-rated films shown on cable systems.

"The Constitution and First Amendment do not guarantee to you the right to receive pornography or indecent material in your home," said Lorraine McKay, president of the Utah Association of Women, which supports the initiative.

The proposed law would prohibit cable companies from showing films that portray explicit sexual conduct, erotic nudity or violence with erotic overtones.

John Harmer, author of the initiative and a former California lieutenant governor, said the initiative would extend Federal Communications Commission rules on program content to cable television.

Opponents say that would be unconstitutional because cable movies are not broadcast to the public at large.

Legislators who must consider the initiative within the next 60 days say the cable debate has generated much interest.

In North Ogden, more than 75 families responded to the city council's request for donations to pay the costs of defending the city's restrictive cable ordinance in court. Some families, said Mayor Don Colvin, donated $1,000 to the cause.

Growing support for cable restrictions has placed many legislators in an awkward position.

"You vote against it, and it's like voting against motherhood and apple pie," said Senate Majority Leader Kay Cornaby, a Salt Lake Republican.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, whose members make up 70 percent of the state's population, has not commented officially on the initiative. But a recent editorial in the Mormon publication "Church News" urged members to resist the corrupting influences of indecent movies and television programming.

"The invasion of putrefaction into many homes is now no longer a threat. It is a reality," the unsigned editorial said. "The sad thing about it is that these families sign up for it with their eyes wide open, and invite the worldly into their homes."

Cable operators say such a law would effectively prohibit sale of subscriptions to such cable movie channels as Home Box Office and Showtime, which do not edit films before showing them.

While this would not put Utah cable firms out of business, Bunnell said it would seriously curtail revenues. Worse, he said, would be allowing government to control what people watch in their homes.

"Basically, it comes down to making a choice of what to watch. Utah is either going to allow the government to tell them what the right choice is or they are going to retain the right to make that choice," he said.

The initiative marks the third attempt in as many years to regulate cable television statewide.

Harmer argues the legislation is necessary to protect children, who could be harmed by "indecent" programming. He said he is not persuaded by the cable operators' argument that parents can control what their children see by putting a lock-box on the television, or simply by not subscribing. "Why should I as a parent have to order my children not to go into any other home?" he said.

In 1981, the Legislature approved a bill which later was declared unconstitutional by U.S. District Judge Bruce S. Jenkins. Jenkins said the bill, which would have outlawed films deemed indecent and obscene, was too vague and broad.

A similar bill was introduced during the 1982 Legislature but lawmakers, concerned about losing another court fight, failed to move it out of committee.

The city councils of Roy and North Ogden took a more sophisticated approach, passing ordinances that would apply the same restrictions to cable television the FCC imposes on the program content of network television.

Jenkins struck down the Roy ordinance last month, saying he would rule on a lawsuit challenging the North Ogden law.

White Deer cagers split with Sunray

WHITE DEER—Larry Martin hit the winning basket with one second left to give White Deer a 55-53 win over Sanford-Fritch Friday night in a District 1-2A thriller.

White Deer is now 13-5 overall and 1-1 in loop action. "We had an eight-point lead in the third quarter, but they came back and tied us up," said White Deer Coach Robert Lee. "We were just fortunate that we had that last shot at the buzzer."

Darin Russell and Martin led the Bucks with 14 and 13 points respectively.

Brad Francis led the losers with 16 points. White Deer dropped the girls' game, 47-34. Leisa Durr led the winners with 16 points. Kay Ford's 10 points led White Deer while Rose Williams chipped in nine.

White Deer had led by two when the first quarter ended, but fell behind by five at halftime.

White Deer travels to Sunray Tuesday night for more district play.

Tech wins squeaker

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Freshman Tony Benford sank four free throws and Bubba Jennings added two more to lead Texas Tech to a 55-52 squeaker over Pan American Saturday night in a non-conference basketball game.

The Raiders, who trailed most of the way, took the lead for good, 53-50, on a pair of free throws by Benford. Terry Jones countered with a crisp shot with 10 seconds left to cut the margin to a point, but Jennings iced the victory with a pair of free throws with 9 seconds to play.

The game was as close as the score indicated. The lead changed hands nine times and was tied twice. Pan American's biggest lead was at halftime, when the Broncs led 27-22.

Jones led the visitors, who fell to 3-9, with a game-high 23 points. Jennings had 13 while Quentin Anderson and Benford each had 12 for the Red Raiders, who climbed to 4-12.

Record-Breaker

Mike Nelson scored 45 points in Pampa's 93-60 win over Brownfield Friday night to set a new school single-game scoring record. The old record was 42 set by George Bailey during the 1968-68 season. Nelson broke the record on a foul shot in the fourth quarter.

Nelson breaks record

Pampa sweeps Brownfield in games

Mike Nelson's record-breaking 45-point output led Pampa to a 93-60 runaway win over outmanned Brownfield in District 1-4A action Friday night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

Nelson's 10-foot jumper inside the lane with 5:28 left in the fourth quarter gave him 45 points and Pampa a 85-44 lead. Time was called and Nelson accepted the congratulations of his teammates and the cheers of the Harvester fans. The 6-3 senior spent the remainder of the game on the bench with 45 points and seven rebounds.

Actually, Nelson broke the school single-game scoring record just a minute before from the foul line when he sank the second half of a one and one. Nelson came within two-points of breaking George Bailey's 42-point mark last season. Bailey had held the single-game record since the 1967-68 season.

There was little doubt as to the outcome of the game as Pampa jumped out to a 10-1 advantage over poor ballhandling, erratic-shooting Brownfield. Head Coach Garland Nichols shuffled players in and out the entire game as Pampa led by 30 points (55-25) at halftime.

Brownfield had 26 turnovers, a good portion of them walking violations. It forced the Cubs into a faster-paced game than they would have preferred.

Pampa downed 38 of 68 shots from the floor for 55.8 percent, including a red-shot 65.6 percent the first half. Brownfield hit only 22 of 62 from the floor for a paltry 35.4 percent.

Pampa badly beat Brownfield on the boards, owning an 18-3 rebounding advantage the first half.

Nelson, who had 25 points at halftime, hit 18 of 28 shots from the floor and was 9 of 10 from the foul line.

Coyle Winborn, Pampa's 6-6 post, finished with 19 points and a dozen rebounds. Craig Chapin added eight points while Marty Cross and Randy Harris had six apiece. Paul Prentice four. Terry Ferguson and Al Buchanan two apiece and Troy West one.

Dexter Hill was high scorer for Brownfield with 13 points. Pampa is now 15-4 overall and 4-1 in district play.

Pampa's Lady Harvesters snapped a five-game losing streak with a 45-28 win over Brownfield Friday night.

"It was super win for us," Pampa Head Coach Jerry Johnson said. "It should give us a lift going into the second half of district."

Debi Young tossed in 13 points and collared 12 rebounds to lead Pampa's well-balanced attack. Keva Richardson had seven points and eight rebounds for the Lady Harvesters. Pampa guards Gaye Hendricks and Trecia George added six points apiece and helped force Brownfield into 27 turnovers with their ballhawking antics. George was credited with six steals while Hendricks had four steals and seven rebounds.

Pampais now 3-13 overall and 2-5 in league standings.

Rangers defeat River Road in District 1-3A contest

PERRYTON—Perryton shut down River Road's high-scoring offense to come away with a 72-54 District 1-3A win Friday night.

Perryton Coach Charles McLarty said it was the best game the Rangers have played all season.

"River Road was averaging 71 points a game and we hit 44 percent from the field which was real good for us," McLarty said. "There's no doubt it was our best game."

Perryton pulled away from the visitors in the fourth quarter and leading by only three points, 46-43, after three periods.

Clint Allred led the Rangers' scoring attack with 16 points while Chris Smith chipped in 14. Lane Schollenberger and Wes Cranford added 12 points each.

Donald Gaines had 21 points for the losers. Perryton is now 2-0 in district play and 11-9 overall.

Playing without the services of leading scorer Stacy Blasingame the second half, Perryton's Rangerettes came from behind the fourth quarter to edge River Road, 52-51, in the girls' contest.

Blasingame, a 6-1 senior, was rushed to the hospital and was diagnosed as having a kidney infection.

"We thought at first it was an appendicitis attack," McLarty said.

Shonda Schoon had 20 points for River Road.

East captures Shrine thriller

TANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Illinois quarterback Tony Eason led the 58th annual Shrine East-West Game with a record yard touchdown bomb and closed it with a 6-yard scoring pass to Oliver Williams with 14 seconds left to give the East a 25 triumph Saturday.

Stanford's John Elway completed 21 of 34 passes for 202 yards before he was shaken up late in the game. He was named the offensive player of the game, but the balloting was held before Eason's game-winning toss to his Illinois teammate.

The East offense got possession of the ball with 41 seconds left in the game after the West was forced to punt from its end zone. Eason hit Williams, an Illinois teammate, on a 29-yard completion in the winning drive.

The game in Stanford Stadium drew a crowd estimated at 100,000, and about $240,000 was raised for Shriners' hospitals for crippled children.

Eason, who set nine NCAA passing records in his career, led the East the lead at the start when he launched a pass to receiver Mike Miller on the first play from scrimmage. He finished with 207 yards on 10 completions in 20 attempts. Eason flung the ball 50 yards as Miller outleaped Arizona quarterback Al Gross and jogged into the end zone just 19 seconds into the game.

Elway then marched the West 71 yards in 11 plays, capped by a 14-yard touchdown run by Tim Harris of Washington State, to close the gap to 7-6. Chuck Nelson of Washington, the most-accurate field goal kicker in NCAA history, missed the extra point when his low line drive was deflected, and he missed another conversion attempt later.

Nelson kicked a 29-yard field goal late in the first period to give the West a 9-7 lead. Elway, who completed 12 of 19 passes for 95 yards in the first quarter, drilled a low 7-yard touchdown pass to San Jose State's Tim Kearse early in the second period. LSU's James Britt fumbled away a punt return on the West 34-yard line.

San Jose State quarterback Steve Clarkson took over for Elway in the second period and combined with Stanford's Vincent White to give the West a 22-7 lead.

White bobbed but held onto a Clarkson pass for 25 yards and two plays later rammed into the end zone from five yards out. Indiana quarterback Babe Laufenberg brought the East back to 22-14 with a 14-play, 78-yard drive capped by a 9-yard touchdown pass to Miller with 1:28 left in the half.

Nelson gave the West a 25-14 lead with a 22-yard field goal at 1:05 of the third period.

North Carolina's Kelvin Bryant scampered 12-yards for a touchdown with 8:18 left in the game to bring the East back to 25-20. A two-point conversion failed.

Morgan leads LA Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gil Morgan, a winner last week, led a hole-in-one as the spark that ignited an 8-under-par 63 and gave him a share of the third round lead Saturday in the $100,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open Golf Tournament.

Morgan's ace, the second of his career, came with a 5-iron shot on the 173-yard seventh hole at the Rancho Park Municipal course. It opened a string of four holes that he played five under par.

But that was only a small portion of the heroics scored by a varied cast on this mild, cloudy day. Among the others:

Veteran George Archer, who scored consecutive eagles en route to a 10-under-par 61 that brought him from the cut figure to within a single stroke of the lead.

Arnold Palmer, who is seeking to break a 10-year victory drought, shot a 66 and was a single stroke back with 18 holes to play.

Gene Littler, 52, who one-putted 10 times with a new, strange utter that has the brand name "Basakwerd" and looks the part. He shot a 66 and was tied for the lead at 202 with Morgan, Mark McCumber and Lanny Wadkins. Wadkins, a playoff loser to Morgan last week, had a 67 and McCumber shot 65, finishing it off with a 31 on the back.

Tied with Archer and Palmer at 203, 10 under par and one off the pace, were Fuzzy Zoeller and second-round leader Gibby Gilbert. Zoeller had a 69, Gilbert 71.

Tom Watson, the current U.S. and British Open title-holder and the defending champion here, missed the green and bogeyed the final hole and dropped back to 204. He had a third-round 69.

J.C. Snead, with a 66, Lon Hinkle, with a 65, Keith Ferguson, with a 69 and Andy North, with a 68, were at 205.

That places 13 men within three strokes of each other at the top of standings going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $54,000 first prize.

"That just shows the caliber of the pros out here. They're earning the course and you can see what's happening," Watson said.

The Winning Margin

Jets slip by Raiders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Todd's 45-yard pass to Wesley Walker set up a 1-yard scoring plunge by Scott Diierking with 3:45 remaining Saturday, giving the New York Jets a 17-14 victory over the Los Angeles Raiders in a second-round National Football League playoff game.

Walker, who caught seven passes for 169 yards on the day, got open deep over the middle and Todd was right on target. Diierking scored the game-winning touchdown on the next play.

The upset by the Jets, seeded sixth among American Football Conference playoff teams, advanced them into next weekend's AFC championship contest against the winner of Sunday's San Diego-Miami game.

The conference title game, scheduled next Sunday, will be played at either San Diego or Miami since both are seeded higher than the Jets.

Todd completed 15 of 24 passes for 277 yards on the afternoon, and linebacker Lance Mehl had two key interceptions for New York in the waning moments.

The Jets, who are 8-3, drove 67 yards on five plays following a Los Angeles punt for the winning touchdown.

New York led at halftime 10-0, but seemed on the ropes when the Raiders scored a pair of third-period touchdowns to take their first lead. Los Angeles threatened to extend its advantage early in the fourth quarter, but New York defensive end Joe Klecko recovered a fumble by the Raiders' Marcus Allen at the Jets' 14.

The Jets then moved into Los Angeles territory, but Burgess Owens stopped the threat with an interception in the Raiders' end zone.

Shortly later, the Raiders punted and the Jets put together their winning drive.

The Jets had a chance to lock up the victory when Mehl intercepted a Jim Plunkett pass and returned it eight yards to the Los Angeles 27-yard line with 2:49 left. But 23 seconds later, the Raiders had the ball back when Ted Hendricks recovered a fumble by Freeman McNeil and returned it eight yards to the Los Angeles 33.

The Raiders moved to the New York 42-yard line, but Mehl picked off another Plunkett pass with 1:37 to go to wrap up the victory.

The Jets took a 7-0 lead on a 20-yard scoring pass from Todd to Walker with 3:52 remaining in the first period to climax an 80-yard, 10-play drive.

The Jets made it 10-0 with 2:55 left before halftime on a 30-yard field goal by Pat Leahy.

North Carolina shocks Virginia

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — "Sam Perkins was just unbelievable. Not only in scoring, but he was also very active on defense."

Those words came from Dean Smith, coach of the 11th-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels, who hung on for a 101-95 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over No. 2 Virginia Saturday.

Perkins, a 6-foot-9 junior, scored a career-high 36 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and did a good job tying up Virginia's 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson. Hitting mostly from the outside, Perkins tossed in 12 of 17 field goal tries, including a perfect 4-for-4 from three-point range, and made all eight of his free throw attempts.

"We tried a bit of everything against Perkins," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said. "He had a great day. It's tough when a guy that big can go outside that way. They did a good job on Ralph without giving up things to other people. They kept us out of our offensive rhythm."

It was the ninth straight triumph for the defending NCAA champions, who are 12-3 overall and 2-0 in ACC play.

In having its 34-game, home-court winning streak snapped, Virginia dropped to 12-2 overall and 3-1 in the ACC.

North Carolina led by its biggest margin, 85-62, with 9:41 remaining, but Virginia rallied to close the gap to 97-95 with 50 seconds left. A 23-7 spurt by the Cavaliers had brought them within 92-85 with 3:24 remaining.

After Jim Miller's off-balance jumper cut the lead to 97-95, Jim Braddock and Michael Jordan each connected on a pair of free throws to clinch the victory.

Perkins, a 6-foot-9 junior, scored 25 of his points in the first half, when the Tar Heels took a 56-44 lead. Perkins hit 12 of 17 field goals, including 4-for-4 from three-point range, and made all eight free throw attempts.

Other Tar Heels in double figures were Jordan with 16, Buzz Peterson with 14 and Braddock with 13.

Ralph Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 All-American center, was held to six points in the first half by North Carolina's zone defense, but got more opportunities in the second half and wound up with 17 points and 12 rebounds. Othell Wilson paced the Cavaliers with 25 points.

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Riggins thundered through Minnesota's defense for 185 yards and a touchdown and set up two scoring passes by Joe Theismann as the Washington Redskins beat the Vikings 21-7 Saturday, and advanced into the National Football Conference championship game.

Riggins carried 37 times, one short of the National Football League playoff record, and gave a deep bow to the crowd as he left the field seconds before the game ended. Theismann completed 17 of 23 passes for 213 yards, including touchdowns of 3 yards to tight end Don Warren and 18 yards to wide receiver Alvin Garrett.

The Redskins, whose only loss during the strike-shortened nine-game season was to Dallas, will play either the Cowboys or Green Bay in next Saturday's conference championship game. The Packers play in Dallas Sunday in the NFC's other second-round playoff game.

Riggins, who had rolled up a Washington playoff-record 119 yards on 25 carries a week ago, when the Redskins opened their pursuit of the Super Bowl with a 31-7 romp over Detroit, was virtually unstoppable in the first half against the Vikings. He gained 75 yards on 19 rushes as the Redskins opened a 21-7 lead.

Two of the yards came on a scoring plunge on fourth-and-inches situation for Washington's second touchdown and a 14-0 lead with one minute remaining in the opening period.

The Vikings, who had the ball for barely 1 1/2 minutes to that time, then scored when Ted Brown swept around left end for 18 yards and a touchdown. It was Brown who last Sunday had run 5 yards on a similar sweep with less than two minutes remaining to beat Atlanta 30-24 in Minnesota's playoff opener.

Theismann, who had hit Warren with a scoring strike to cap a 66-yard drive with the opening kickoff, followed Minnesota's TD 1:57 into the second quarter by driving the Redskins 70 yards in eight plays for their third touchdown.

He began it with an 11-yard pass to Garrett and completed it with the 18-yarder to the 5-foot-7, 178-pound wide receiver. Last week, Garrett, who had caught only one pass during the regular season, replaced injured Art Monk and caught three TD passes against the Lions.

For the second straight week, all of the 55,045 seats in RFK Stadium were sold. This time, though, there were 452 no-shows, fans possibly deterred by the threat of a snowstorm that never materialized.

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League officials were refused permission to see an advance screening of a controversial public television show in which a jailed crime figure charges that he fixed a dozen games between 1968 and 1970.

The show, "Frontline," will be presented on the Public Broadcasting System Monday night. In it, a gambler identified as John Piazza says he fixed the games with bribes to an unnamed quarterback, defensive captain and coach. The names of the persons Piazza says were involved are not revealed.

"We are not prepared to release the names, games or dates until we are prepared to publish them ourselves," said Lou Wiley, editor of the Frontline series. "We are continuing our investigation and will continue it up to and after broadcast."

the producers. Wiley refused to confirm that Piazza is the same man who, under the name John Charles Piazza III, testified at a West Palm Beach, Fla., drug smuggling trial two years ago. At the time, Federal Judge Norman Roetiger, describing Piazza's testimony, said: "He has admitted just about everything under the sun. I think his testimony is impeached."

"Mr. Piazza's allegations came to our attention after we interviewed the commissioner," Wiley said. "We went back and asked if he had heard of Piazza and his claims. The commissioner said he had not."

Wiley said Piazza was paid $10,000 and Jimmy "The Weasel" Frattiano, another alleged crime figure, received "less than $3,000" for their disclosures on the show. Both men passed lie detector tests, according to identifying him as John Piazza. That is the name he was using at the time he fixed games. He currently has a different name.

In September, Piazza, using the alias John Petracelli, was arrested on a gun charge. He was convicted Dec. 14 and is awaiting sentencing while in the custody of the Federal Witness Protection Program, awaiting sentencing.

Wiley said the $10,000 PBS had paid him was to go to Piazza's wife for moving expenses.

Pampa couple catches epidemic

...wants to share it with others

LELA BECKHAM with hand-made rose arbor.

HAROLD BECKHAM relaxes in his workshop.

Passion for miniatures spreading to the West

Story and photos by
Dee Dee Laramore

Harold and Lela Beckham, a retired couple from Pampa, succumbed to a contagious epidemic sweeping west from the east coast and they're looking for other Pampans to join them.

Their affliction consumes their time and thoughts to the point at times where they don't eat for nearly a day. It's called miniaturism — a passion for anything not just small, but tiny.

Lela first felt the symptoms about three years ago while leafing through a craft magazine. She felt a wave of nostalgia and a reawakening of a childhood desire spurred by an advertisement on a Victorian-era dollhouse kit. When finished the dollhouse would be like one she had wanted since she was a child. Harold urged her to order the kit.

Harold, himself, had managed to escape miniature fever until the doll house kit arrived one evening. The couple eagerly opened the box and found a pile of what looked like kindling wood. Perhaps a might discouraged, they decided to wait until the next morning before assembling the doll house.

Early the next morning, Harold and Lela had their usual cup of coffee and began assembling the doll house.

Finally, Lela asked Harold if he wanted something to eat and looked at her watch. Three o'clock! Where had the time gone? They had to admit, they were both thoroughly hooked on miniatures.

Since then, the Beckhams have discovered a whole world of tiny objects — doll houses, figures, paintings, furniture. Anything that exists, can be duplicated in miniature.

Harold, as an engineering specialist at Celanese for 30 years, is no stranger to tiny things. Before retiring he spent his days maintaining electronic controls and computer equipment at the chemical plant. He retired in October of last year.

"Now I don't know when I found the time to work," he says. Harold spends his time building tiny chairs, desks, bookcases to scale in a shop built from the front half of the couple's garage. The craftsmanship is unbelievable. He uses fine woods to build the furniture, such as ebony, mahogany, walnut, teak. He gets his wood from otherwise, useless scraps given to him by a friend who builds bases for art work.

Lela sews curtains, bedcoverings, rugs, tablecloths for the dollhouses. (They've built three now.) She molds miniature, real-looking roses and food items from bread dough. Beautiful chandeliers, light fixtures and lamps were made from jewelry items.

They won a ribbon for one of their doll houses at a miniature show in Amarillo. This blue and white Victorian mansion is fully furnished, mostly with furniture Harold has made. One room has two real paintings, about an inch square. The bathroom has little soap, toilet paper, toothpaste, toothbrushes, and even a shaving mug and razor.

In the dining room, the lace-covered table is set with silverware and food. Porcelain figurines posed before a mirror, at the sewing machine, and in the parlor. On the front porch, a potted plant hangs in a macrame holder and a bird perches on the roof. All the rooms are electrically lighted. A control board for the lighting hides under the shingled roof.

As a child 8 or 9 years old, Lela would visit relatives in Farmington, N.M. Here is where she first noticed adobe houses.

"Indians would get the red dirt, pour water on it in a pit and mix in dried hay and stomp around in it with their feet," she remembers. "Then they'd put it in molds to make bricks and after the bricks dried, they'd build houses from them." A trip to the library will help her find out what she needs to make her adobe house authentic. She already has a tiny painting of an Indian girl that she wants to hang in it.

Harold has dozens of ideas for building miniature furniture and houses he wants to try sometime in addition to the authentic frame of a house. Some of these ideas include windows that can be raised or lowered and different types of lighting. Everytime he sees an interesting house he wants to build one like it.

"But you know what I really would like to do?" he confided. "I'd like to build the house on 'Dallas,' you know, the Ewing home."

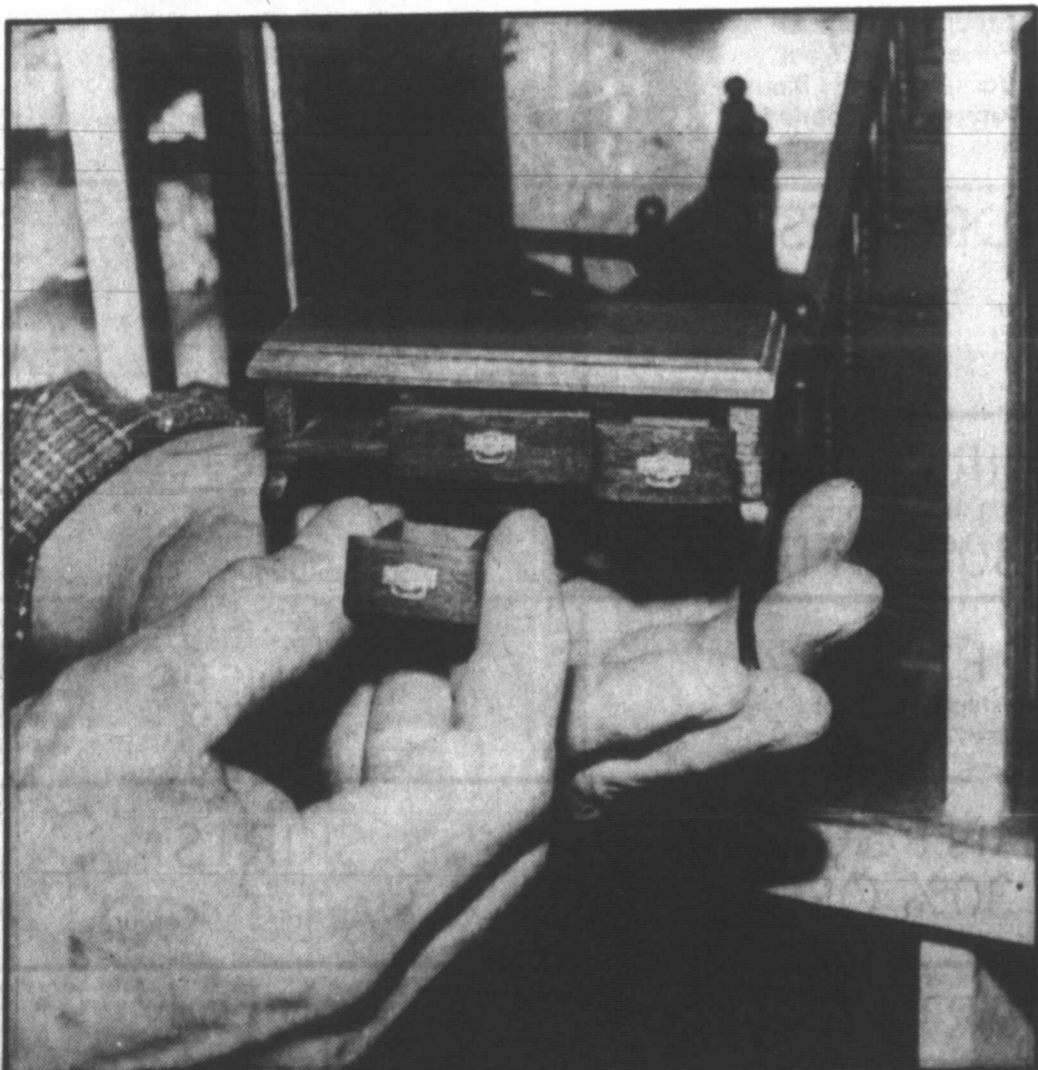

Both Beckhams receive a tremendous amount of happiness from their hobby. "I can't explain the satisfaction you feel when you see what you made from a block of wood," Harold said.

"It's not just miniatures, though that's what we like to do," said Lela. "I think it's the same with any hobby. It's not whether anyone else likes it or not, it's whether or not you get self-satisfaction from it."

Loving their hobby as they do, the Beckhams want to share their interest in miniatures with others. They're hoping to find enough people in the Pampa area interested in miniatures to form a club where they can meet to exchange ideas and knowledge. Anyone interested can call the Beckhams at 665-5698.

If you didn't know this was a miniature you might think you had walked into someone's living room. Mrs. Beckham made the turkey and ham and candied apples from dough art.

Harold Beckham holds a tiny desk he made which just fits in his hand. Little drawers move in and out, their working handles were attached with screws so small they can barely be seen.

The Beckhams have completed three complete dollhouse, two are pictured above. Now they're thinking of expanding their expertise to include a constructing a realistic adobe house from red mud and grass clippings "bricks" and a tiny house built exactly like ones we live in.

Dear Abby

Babysitter turns on, tunes in, drops out

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I recently had an experience I hope you will share with your readers. Our daughter (14) was baby-sitting two children (5 and 7) on a military base about two blocks from where we live. We felt she was reasonably safe, and, of course, she had access to a telephone if she wanted to contact us.

She was supposed to have been through baby-sitting around midnight, so when she wasn't home at 12:30 we called her. No answer. We called again and again and nobody answered, so my wife and I became alarmed and went to the home where she was baby-sitting.

We kept ringing the doorbell. No response. By this time we were frantic, so we called the police. Two officers were sent to the house, and they started pounding on the doors and windows until finally our daughter came to the door, wondering what all the commotion was about!

We were notified that our daughter was all right — the reason she didn't hear the telephone or doorbell was because she had been listening to music with headphones on, which completely shut her off from everything around her, including, of course, the two children for whom she was responsible!

Abby, I sincerely hope that you will print this letter warning your readers that headphones should never be worn when a person is alone in the house, and certainly never by anyone who is responsible for the safety and welfare of others.

DEAR BEN: Thank you for a very valuable message.

BEN C.

DEAR ABBY: Would you please tell me if it's all right to enclose money in a sympathy card?

I know people who have done it. I think it's OK myself, but I don't want the people I send money to to think that I think they need it. I'd just rather send money than flowers — especially when I know there are going to be more than enough flowers.

Answer in the paper if you think it's important enough.

RATHER SEND CASH

DEAR RATHER: If you think the family could use the money instead of flowers, by all means send money. It will be deeply appreciated — by everyone except the florist.

DEAR ABBY: We were invited to a wedding and reception. The affair took place at a restaurant that was owned by the daughter of the groom.

Community Concert presents:

Mexican folklore dances

Pampa's Community Concert Association presents Silvia Lozano's Ballet Folclorico Nacional de Mexico Tuesday, Jan. 18 at 7:30 p.m. in M. K. Brown Auditorium.

The ballet is considered the most authentic exponent of Mexico's folk dance and musical heritage. The company is the Mexican government's official representative troupe of folklore in Mexico and abroad.

With exhilarating dancing, colorful music and dazzling costumes, the ballet promises to take spectators on a whirlwind journey through Mexico's diverse provinces and traditions.

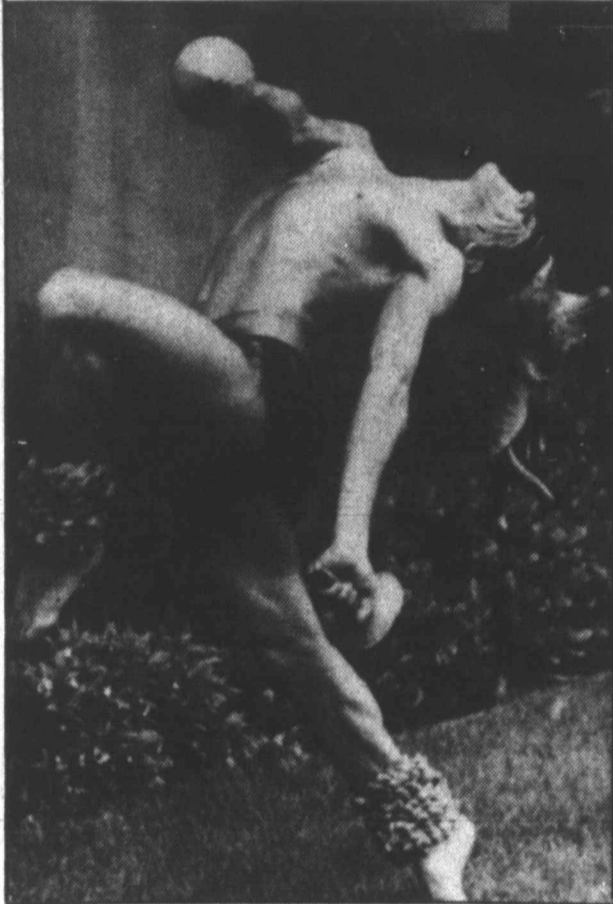

Dedicated to the preservation of Mexican folkloric dance, the Ballet Folclorico presented its debut performance in October 1960 under the guidance of Silvia Lozano.

founder, director and choreographer.

For the past decade the company has performed throughout the world, giving command performances for heads of state, participating in inauguration celebrations and international festivals and presenting its own concerts.

Columbia Artists presented the Ballet Folclorico in its first major U. S. tour during the 1978-1979 season. The company played to packed houses, standing ovations and glowing critical acclaim, all repeated on its second coast-to-coast tour in 1980-1981.

The group also won the Gold Medal at the International Festival of Osaka, Japan, and the prestigious El Corazon de Oro (first prize) at the International Folkloric Contest of Latin America in Ecuador.

This member of the Ballet Folclorico Nacional performs the Deer Dance, one of the Mexican folk dances to be presented in concert Tuesday, Jan. 18., at Pampa's M. K. Brown Auditorium, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The performance is sponsored by the Community Concert Association.

Exhibit to feature local artists

Pampa Fine Arts Association members are to sponsor an Invitational Gallery Show for eight local artists Jan. 29 through Jan. 31 at the Lovett Memorial Library.

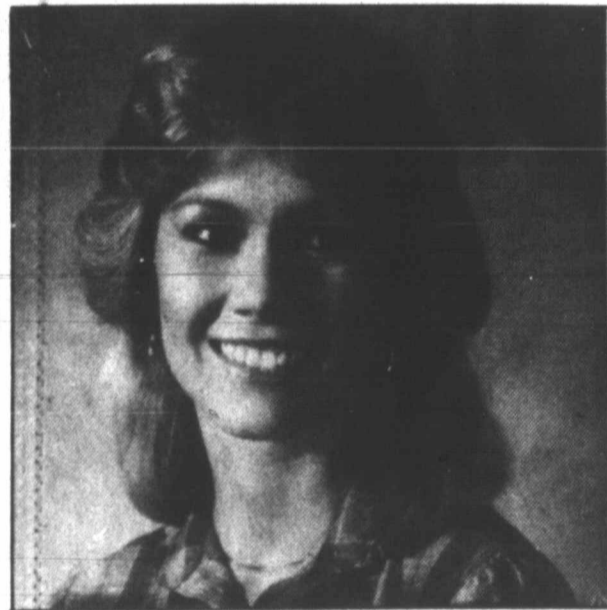

A champagne reception for association members in honor of the artists Jan. 29 will begin the exhibit. Those being honored and their area of expertise are Karen Bonnell — watercolors and pottery, Bonnie Chambliss — sculpture, Viola Coffee — oils, Darlene Holmes — watercolors and oils, Cameron Marsh — watercolors and pastels, Janice Sackett — watercolors, oils, jewelry and pottery, Loyd D. Waters — watercolors, and Pernie Simon — jewelry.

The exhibit is to open to the public Sunday, Jan. 30, from 2 to 5 p.m., and Monday, Jan. 31, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Marian Stroup is association president and Greta Arrington is gallery chairman. Lois Minnick is Pampa's 1982 artist of the year.

Mending Mature Marriage

By LOUISE PIERCE

"DEAR LOUISE: Is almost everybody disturbed because we can't live as well as we used to and can't do all the things we like to do? My husband and I fret because we can't take the trips we used to like — or wear as good clothes as we wish we could.

"It takes all our retirement money, plus the little we make on the odd jobs we pick up, to pay the bills, and there's not much left. He gets more annoyed than I do. What can I say to keep up his spirits? C.R."

DEAR C.R.: Quote him a few statistics. Everyone feels better about his own situation if he can compare himself to those less fortunate. Statistics abound that show us how well off we are in comparison to the people of other countries.

Columnist Virginia Payette says average Americans are better off than anyone else in the world. A month's groceries in New York cost $281; in Tokyo they cost $554. A three-room furnished apartment in Los Angeles is $560 a month if you search awhile; in Tokyo you'd pay $2,160. In Los Angeles you can buy a medium-priced car for $8,700; but in Singapore you would have to spend $17,710 — and in Tel Aviv it would be $11,774. High as gas prices are here, they are higher in other countries, as are many other things we use and enjoy.

So take heart. Things really are worse elsewhere. And no recession, or even depression, has lasted indefinitely.

"DEAR LOUISE: You hear a lot about younger husbands, say 30 to 50 years old, playing around. But I'd never known a man 65 who might be suspected of having a lady friend on the side — until now, most of all my husband.

"We still own the store we've had most of our lives — and he still runs it. Well, suddenly he started coming home a couple of hours late, sometimes even longer. I asked him why he was so late and he said he stopped to have coffee with 'the boys'. I asked him why it took so long to drink a couple of cups of coffee and he said sometimes he went back to the store and worked awhile.

"If it happens only once a month or so, I'd think nothing of it. But it goes on four or five times a week.

"Should I accuse him of having an affair? Or should I drive downtown and find out what he's doing all that time? Or do you think I should ignore the whole thing and assume he's behaving himself and really is just drinking coffee with his men friends or working overtime? WONDERING & WORRYING."

DEAR W & W: Personally, I think I would be trusting and unsuspecting. But I've never had cause to give unfaithfulness a thought.

Since you are troubled, I believe you should refrain from accusing your husband of infidelity or even of mental straying — unless you have real cause to suspect him of straying.

But for your own peace of mind, you might drive downtown to the store the next time he is working extra late — and look for him. If you find him with the coffee boys or laboring alone in the store, you might tell him you just got lonesome for him — which you did — and came down to be with him.

If you fine him playing around, you'll end your wondering and worrying. I hope you find him faithful. I believe most husbands are. I like to believe the philanderers are few.

"DEAR LOUISE: I've read about young wives wanting to know whether they should tell their husbands what they did before marriage. Well, what about us older wives, married over 40 years, who have felt guilty all these years — but haven't got up the nerve to tell them we — well, did whatever was wrong that we did before we knew them?

"One of my friends told me she was once arrested for a small theft. Another friend had a week-end affair when she was a teenager. I was guilty of a couple of things I'm not proud to remember.

"LL OUR HUSBANDS NOW? Is it important after 40 years and more? N.N."

Dear N.N.: In my opinion and the opinion of many counselors, those offenses are not important now. You wives are the ones who committed them; you are the only ones who need to suffer in the memory of them. You have no right to rid yourselves of youthful worries by passing the load on to your unsuspecting husbands and thus causing them distrust. After all, your teenage problems are not likely to come to light without your unearthing them. If they do pop up, you can deal with them then. But they are not likely to be resurrected after these 40 years.

Write problems to DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa 79065.

Workers pool their talents to help

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Workers in Fresno, Calif., applied their electronic skills to design special learning tools for severely handicapped children.

Omaha, Neb., volunteers cleaned the debris from inner-city buildings scheduled for rehabilitation.

In New York City, a contest was run to find the "best deed of the year" by an underprivileged youngster.

Dallas workers refurbished a day care center — painting, laying floors, cleaning the grounds and repairing equipment.

These are among 2,500 projects accomplished by 40,000 workers — largely on their own time — who have participated in the Xerox Community Involvement Program.

The plan, now entering its 10th year, combines the efforts of employees and company workers have taught arts and crafts.

At each of more than 125 major company locations in the United States, employee committees are encouraged to participate in the program. The only company criterion is that the projects be innovative, provide opportunities for the involvement of employees and have the potential to make an impact on the community.

There are local projects in virtually every metropolitan area of the United States. In 1982 alone, 6,200 people took part in 296 projects.

Tips on saving energy

By DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Because energy use strongly affects our families' well being, energy issues deserve our attention! The energy problem in our country arises because of diminishing supplies of fossil fuels, increasing dependence on foreign oil and rapidly rising prices, coupled with an energy-intensive lifestyle.

Short term solutions must be implemented while longer term ones are sought. Conservation is an immediate, short-term means to extend our energy supplies. It has been described as a key energy source, as providing the greatest return on capital investment for energy production and as the least expensive pollution-free solution to the problem. Although conservation is only one alternative and is only a partial answer to the energy problem, if practiced to a sufficient degree, it will allow time to develop additional solutions.

Our key thought should probably be — "to conserve is to save." Let's take a look at some ways to conserve and save.

To save on hot water, try the following tips: (1) repair leaking faucets promptly; (2) do as much household cleaning as possible with cold water; (3) insulate your hot water storage tank and pipings.

Tips for draft-proofing include: (1) close off unoccupied rooms and shut their air vents; (2) use kitchen, bath, and other ventilating fans sparingly — in just one hour these fans can blow away a houseful of warmed or cooled air; (3) keep your fireplace damper closed unless you have a fire going. An open damper in a 48-inch square fireplace can let up to eight percent of your heat out of the chimney.

Energy saving can be accomplished with light bulbs: use energy saver light bulbs which require 10 percent less electricity. (Don't confuse these with "longlife" bulbs which actually use more electricity.) Use lower wattage bulbs wherever possible and use fluorescent lights when you can. They are three to five times more efficient than regular bulbs.

Oldham County is sponsoring a solar collector workshop, Jan. 21 - 22, at the Research and Extension Center in Amarillo. There will be a $15 registration fee per person.

Workshop will begin Friday, Jan. 21 from 6 to 10 p.m. Solar energy applications to home, agriculture, food drying and other uses will be discussed. Also covered will be technical information on construction of solar collectors and storage. The session on Saturday, Jan. 22, will be from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Participants will go to a lumber yard, select materials and construct one solar collector as a group. Bob Dunsmore of the San Luis Valley Solar Energy Association will have the major role in conducting the workshop.

If you would like to attend this workshop or would like further details on the workshop, call the Gray County Extension office at 669-7429.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of social-economic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Make a card table playhouse

FAMILY CRAFTS

by Chris and Janet Beckett

All little kids love a playhouse and this one will be a favorite with Mom, too! It's made of fabric and fits over a card table. So when playtime is over, it can be folded and put away until next time.

You can order our complete playhouse plans or design your own version. We made ours from canvas, but any fairly heavy fabric will do. The doors, shutters, windows and flowers all are cut from felt, so it's easy to sew. You and your sewing machine can turn out this dream house in double-quick time.

The card table supports the house itself, and the roof is raised by a cardboard box. The chimney on top is an oatmeal box which has been covered with felt and decorated. The cardboard box roof support can be used to store the disassembled house.

To make the house, you need sturdy fabric for the house, felt for trim, sewing thread, scissors, straight pins, fabric remnants (for curtains), and of course, a card table, cardboard box and an oatmeal box.

The basic house is made by joining together five fabric squares: one square covers the top of the card table and four squares serve as house walls on the sides.

If you're designing your own house, cut the felt pieces for doors, windows and flowers and lay them on top of the square fabric side. When you have an arrangement you like, pin the pieces in place, then sew them to the fabric. The sewing is easier if you construct each of the four sides separately, then attach them to the center square. Don't forget to include a front door, and cut it partially open for entrance and exit.

If you would like complete instructions to make this Card Table Playhouse (includes full-size pattern for flowers, shutters, window and chimney trims, plus complete sewing directions), send $3.95 and specify project No. 1842-2.

For our new catalog of more than 200 other projects, send $1.50. Mail to Family Crafts, P.O. Box 52189, Dept. 79065, Tulsa, Okla. 741152.

Peeking at Pampa

Hope all you bright and beautiful girls hereabouts are making plans to enter the Miss Top O' Texas scholarship pageant 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 22, at M. K. Brown Auditorium. Pampa and vicinity always bring out a lot of real beauties. Lovely to watch if you don't enter the contest. Past contestants say it takes beauty and brains and a few other fine qualities to win this contest.

Also heard there will be a Defensive Driving Course in the Flame Room of the Energas Building Tuesday, Jan. 18, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. Assume it's for everyone but better ask. Maybe we can all go — and should. Who of us doesn't need to improve our driving?

Much good music going on around here. Aren't we glad Sue Higdon is retired from teaching and is entertaining at various musicales around Pampa? She taught music and did it extremely well.

Hear she and a drummer from Tarpley's (didn't learn his name but will do so right away) are playing for entertainment and dancing at various places now. She plays piano and organ and is alternating with Roy Brown on Wednesday nights at a local nightspot.

Many of us remember when Sue and Buster's son was growing up here and used to play drums to Sue's piano. Somebody once asked Sue if she had to coax the boy to play and she said, "Oh no! He likes to play. The three of us Higdon's are friends." Isn't that a beautiful comment on family life?

Isn't it good that Pampa is a city where many families grow up and continue to live, often several generations of them? Heard that four generations of Culbertsons are Pampans, which I think I mentioned before. Wonderful community family.

Another four-generation family are the Carmichaels, a charming group at a recent baptismal service for the youngest member. She is Lee Allison, daughter of Sara and Doug, granddaughter of Bob and Virginia, great-granddaughter of Paul and Myrtle.

While speaking of new babies, ask Joe Wheelley how proud he and Sarah and the two older girls are of Joanna Beth who arrived in December. Bet she gets more attention than most new arrivals.

By the way, did you know that Joe's father is also named Joe — and that his mother is named Sarah? That's unusual we think.

Spring planning, at least in sporting events, is starting. Heard a couple of senior golfers saying they wanted to get ready before long for the Tri-State Tournament to take place in Pampa July 24-29. All you older golfers might mark down the dates and start practicing. We always have some top golfers here that week, Texans and others.

Just heard Dora Meech is moving to Amarillo before long. So sorry to have her go. She has made so many friends here. Such a gracious lady. But her daughter and family will be living near her so we know she'll be happy.

So wonderful to see Coyle Ford looking so well after his recovery from serious surgery. J. E. Gunn looks good too. Bet he plays golf by next summer.

Such a bunch of little cuties, named the Cougars, won the Optimist Girls' Basketball Tournament Championship and placed two players on the all-tournament team. Heard that some of them hoped they'd be mentioned in this column, so here they are. The team included Christy George, April Epperson, Lisa Whiteside, Shellie Duke, Mary Clark, Chastity Moody, Yolanda Brown, Gwen Jones and Kandy Winton. Their head coach is Gib Winton and the assistant coach is Penny Whitesideby.

Got a letter from a Pampa resident reminding me of two more New Year parties that have become more or less annual events here.

"One is a pre-New Year's party hosted by Ann and David Crossman, which usually begins about 7 p.m. with refreshments and games which goes on until midnight," the writer says. "After everyone has properly welcomed in the New Year, then David Crossman, the master chef, prepares a breakfast fit only for queens and kings."

"The other annual event is held New Year's Day and hosted by Susie and Jerry Wilson. This gala affair begins a little before noon New Year's Day with some of the most delicious salads, meats, pies and cakes ever prepared for human consumption. The men gather around the TV watching football and the women gather around the dining table to visit.

Heard two attractive ladies talking outside a Pampa clothing store, one lady younger, the other a little older. It went like this:

"I think I'll buy that blue dress back there..."

"Mama, that dress was chartreuse..."
"Then I'll buy the green one..."
"Mama, there was only one dress you liked. It was chartreuse..."
"Then I'll buy a red one. You can't mix up red!"
They both smiled, apparently happy with the decision.
Think Spring! PAM.

Top O' Texas Cowbellees promote the beef industry

"Cowbellees" are a group of women who have one common goal - promotion of the beef industry. The Texas Cowbellees are an affiliation of the American National Cowbellees, Inc. and the auxiliary of the American Cattlemen's Association.

Local organizations, such as Pampa's Top O' Texas Cowbellees, work towards meeting the needs of their communities through distributing educational material, teaching about beef, helping with 4-H projects and Home Economic classes, demonstrating how to buy, cook and use beef and making displays on beef information.

Cowbellees have also been able to influence state and national legislation for the beef industry.

Top O' Texas Cowbellees last year worked hard on Beef for Father's Day which included promoted beef gift certificates, supermarket promotions, selling Texas Cowbellee Cookbooks and passing out free literature and recipes.

Profits from selling the new state cookbook were used to send nine Cowbellee members to the national Beef Cook-off in San Antonio. Also, the Cowbellees conducted their annual fall style show attended by 300 people. These profits were used for beef promotion and education in the area and to purchase half a beef for Genesis House in Pampa for troubled youth and beef donated to the Huey Home for the mentally-handicapped.

Top O' Texas Cowbellees are open for new memberships, available in three ways: active, associate and supporting. For more information about membership and dues, contact Treasurer Mrs. Lem Greene, Box 24, White Deer 79097.

Ear infection is costly condition

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Ear infections, known technically as "otitis media," are consuming $2 billion of the approximately $100 billion spent annually on healthcare in the United States, says a pediatric ear, nose and throat (ENT) specialist.

Reporting in The New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Charles Bluestone, director of the department of otolaryngology at Children's Hospital here, says that ear infections add up to a much larger problem than many parents and pediatricians realize.

He cites physicians' costs, trips to the doctor's office, medication and surgical treatment of the condition in the tally. Furthermore, ear infections can take a significant toll on a child's health, according to Bluestone.

Although many of the serious complications of otitis media have been virtually eliminated with the development of effective antibiotics, he says, today's children are plagued by effusion, or fluid, that builds up behind the eardrum during the course of the infection.

Some children experience this fluid for weeks or months, resulting in temporary hearing loss. For children with chronic ear infections marked by effusion, fluctuating hearing loss may threaten language development and eventually educational achievement, Bluestone warns.

Chase winter chills with beef soup

Try this super beef soup made with favorite southern vegetables

Beef soup is surely one of winter's most appreciated entrees, but it can also become one of the most routine if it is made each time with the same basic vegetables and seasonings. However, with so many different and delicious vegetable and seasoning combinations to choose from, there are enough beef soup variations to keep the family warm and happy all winter long.

To help you break the same - soup - for - supper habit, here's a recipe for flavorful Beef - Okra soup made with a medley of favorite Southern vegetables. In addition to the okra, the chunks of beef are cooked with tomatoes, corn, onion and green pepper. Red pepper pods and garlic lend special flavor appeal to the beef as it gently simmers to tenderness.

A beef soup such as this one is popular in the post - holiday season not only for its satisfying hearty goodness but also for its economy. During this time of year when most families are particularly budget - conscious, beef for stew is a good buy for it provides a delicious beef flavor at an economical price. The chunks of beef also help stretch the budget for they are boneless, with little waste.

Beef for stew is more economical than many beef cuts for it is cut from less tender sections of beef such as chuck, fore shank, short plate and round. These sections are in less demand than tender sections such as the rib and short loin and therefore, carry a lower price tag.

Or try buying a chuck roast on sale and chunk up your own stew meat. Three meals of stew meat can be cut from a 3 to 3 1/2 - pound roast. Chuck or seven - blade roasts are usually cheaper than buying already - cut stew meat.

While beef for stew may not be naturally tender, it will be tender and delicious when simmered in liquid.

Fortunately for the family on a budget, the quality of beef's nutrition is high no matter what the price. Like all beef cuts, beef for stew is an outstanding source of complete protein needed to build, maintain and repair body tissues and resist infection and disease. Beef also supplies many important vitamins and minerals, including the B-vitamins thiamin, niacin, riboflavin, B-6 and B-12 and the minerals iron and zinc.

BEEF-OKRA SOUP

- 1 lb. beef for stew, cut into 1-in. pieces
- 2 T. cooking fat
- 3 c. water
- 2 t. sugar
- 1/4 t. salt
- 1/4 t. red pepper pods
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 T. flour
- 1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes
- 1 lg. onion, chopped
- 1 can (8 oz.) whole kernel corn
- 1/4 c. chopped green pepper
- 1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen cut okra

Brown beef in cooking fat in Dutch oven. Pour off drippings. Add water, sugar, salt, red pepper pods and garlic. Cover tightly and simmer 1 hour. Drain tomatoes. Combine flour with 1/4 cup tomato liquid; stir into beef. Add tomatoes, remaining tomato liquid and onion and continue cooking, covered, 30 minutes or until meat is tender. Stir in corn, green pepper and okra and continue cooking 10 to 12 minutes. Four servings of 1 1/2 cups each.

Salad is always a good choice to serve with a hot and hearty soup. Especially tasty will be a lettuce salad tossed with a variety of crisp and colorful vegetables. Accompany the soup and salad combo with favorite crackers, then end the meal with fresh fruit and cookies.

THE FINEST FASHIONS TO WEAR NOW AT THE LOWEST PRICES YOU'LL FIND ANYWHERE

Fashion influences actionwear

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — They used to call informal clothes sportswear. Then sportswear got split into separates and active sportswear. Another phase saw separates enter the mainstream of fashion and active sportswear turned into actionwear.

Now actionwear has yet another new name: weekend wear. That sounds a little livelier and implies fashion influence. It's as functional as before, but Regatta Sport's cotton knit shorts are in gold, its pullover in turquoise, gold and coral. At Unicorn, a rainbow, it's fashionable all-white for pull-on shorts and a drop-shoulder oversize top.

At Catcher, flared shorts can be purple, with a big-sleeved cotton knit top striped in red and white, and trimmed in purple. Their green baggy pants take a red knit top and a white vest with red and green Indian-style geometrics. At Loomtogs, tennis dresses come in effects like the knit with a flip white miniskirt, a crossover bodice striped in black on one side, reverse-striped on the other.

Weekend wear seldom is styled any differently from its actionwear predecessor. It's color that livens it, as in Jantzen's paper bag pants striped in lilac and periwinkle, with a cotton interlock shirt on which one wide lilac band splits the soft blue. Aileen Sport's French terry rugby shirt surprises in white and scarlet panels, goes with white twill long pants.

A lot of non-sports people have been donning actionwear to look as if they're part of the current emphasis on fitness. However, they've often disliked the clothes, thinking they were dull. But they'll go for leopard in leopard print or matched to a flip miniskirt, both in stripes, florals or blocks of vivid color. Adolfo does the jogger's cotton velour jumpsuit in jade green, while Wendy Gray's cotton jersey T-shirt top and shirred shorts are in blocks of emerald and grape, with neck and sleeves edged in red. Weekender clothes, you see, look like sportswear but are really fashion wear.

The geometric look, once called "Mondrian" after the painter when it was an avant-garde fashion trend several years ago, is now widely used in weekend wear. Sometimes it's in precisely balanced color blocks, like the Mondrian paintings, but it's also often free-form, as on Britannia's shorts, skirts and tops, where navy and red insets float freely on the background color.

Stripes lend dash to weekend wear, often combined with solid color, as in Judith Lowe's separates for R & R Sportswear, with red shorts, white vest and striped top. She adds a stripe-lined red warm-up jacket to go with the outfit. Liz Claiborne stripes her T-shirt to go under a stone-washed blue denim work shirt jacket, or pairs khaki shorts with a cotton knit top striped in caramel and khaki.

The one piece in weekend wear not derived from active sportswear is the vest. Cable-knit in cotton, luxurious in cashmere, colorful in leather, the vest is fashion's own contribution to weekend wear.

FOR TENNIS or fun, Loomtogs' tennis dress with long-torso bodice of white cotton/poly blend knit.

from the open neckline both in front and in back. Like many other new sweaters, it's tunic-length. So is Miki's airy acrylic/wool crewneck in random blocks of deep and pale colors.

Classic argyles come back, looking toward spring, in refreshing new colors. Maggie Veir at Status Signature knits a silk/acrylic crewneck with the body in red and cream argyle, the sleeves in cream alone. Her knit vest argyle combines navy, red and cream. Pringle of Scotland's cashmere V-neck pullover is argyle-patterned in black, white, purple and red. At Irka II, a cotton knit pullover vest is in black and white argyle.

Cotton has recently become a year-round favorite knit. Static gives it tweedy texture in periwinkle blue for a scoop-neck tunic with sleeves in tiers of scalloped draping. Gitano's tunic is in royal blue cotton knit with sporty black stripes. Maggie Veir's cotton sweater knits are rugby-striped in red, yellow and blue against black.

For spring, knit vests extend to knee-length

Blouses follow fashion

By Florence De Santis

NEW YORK (NEA) — The blouse has come a long way from the days when it was a demure, always white accompaniment for a suit. Today, the blouse follows fashion, and may look like anything from a T-shirt to a Victorian antique. There's a blouse to brighten every moment until it's time for spring fashions.

In resort-early spring collections, the blouse appears as a soft, oversized tunic shirt. At Blassport, it's detailed down the front in diamond-patterned fagoting on the white linen. Ronaldus Shamask's version has a fly front and crispy boyish collar. Norma Kamali adds poet sleeves and snap closings to her cotton shirt for the Jones Apparel Group.

For city scenes, the blouse goes tailored, often striped or dotted, and softly detailed. Pierre Cardin Boutique spaces grouped stripes in red and white on cognac poly taffeta, bows the neck and broadens the shoulders with padded, tucked sleeves. At Reve, poly-cotton menswear shirtings are used for crisply striped or checked blouses with big sleeves gathered into delicate cuffs and ruffles trimming plackets.

Chantal Thomass, the Paris designer, gives a purple and white striped cotton blouse a side-bowed high neck, draped body and hip sash for a dramatic style. Her all-whites are far from dull, with eyelet or lace jabots and pierrat collars to dress up suits. Fall's tuxedo look continues at CEO, with a high, black bow-tied neck and crystal-pleated placket front.

'Frontline' sued before airing first film

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Documentary filmmaking for television can be a risky business. "We've already had a suit against us, and we haven't had a program on the air yet," says David Fanning, executive producer of "Frontline," a Public Broadcasting Service documentary series scheduled to be launched Monday night with a sure-to-be-controversial film on gambling and professional football.

Jessica Savitch, on temporary leave from NBC News, is anchor for "Frontline," which will include, in its first season, 26 hour-long productions. "Our goal is to make challenging documentaries, based on hard, tough reporting," Fanning says, "and we have to be especially careful, because we are up against such a litigious society these days."

The TV networks routinely face lawsuits seeking millions of dollars in damages. One recent example is Gen. William Westmoreland's $120 million libel suit against CBS News stemming from a documentary broadcast in January, "The Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception."

"We are being very careful," Fanning says, "trying to work with people who know the business and understand the responsibilities of good journalism. I spend a good part of my time with lawyers, going over every script, line by line."

The premiere program in the "Frontline" series is called "An Unauthorized History of the NFL," and though Fanning says the lawsuit was filed in connection with another documentary still in production, publicity for the first show promises to reveal "a history of hushed-up scandal" in the National Football League.

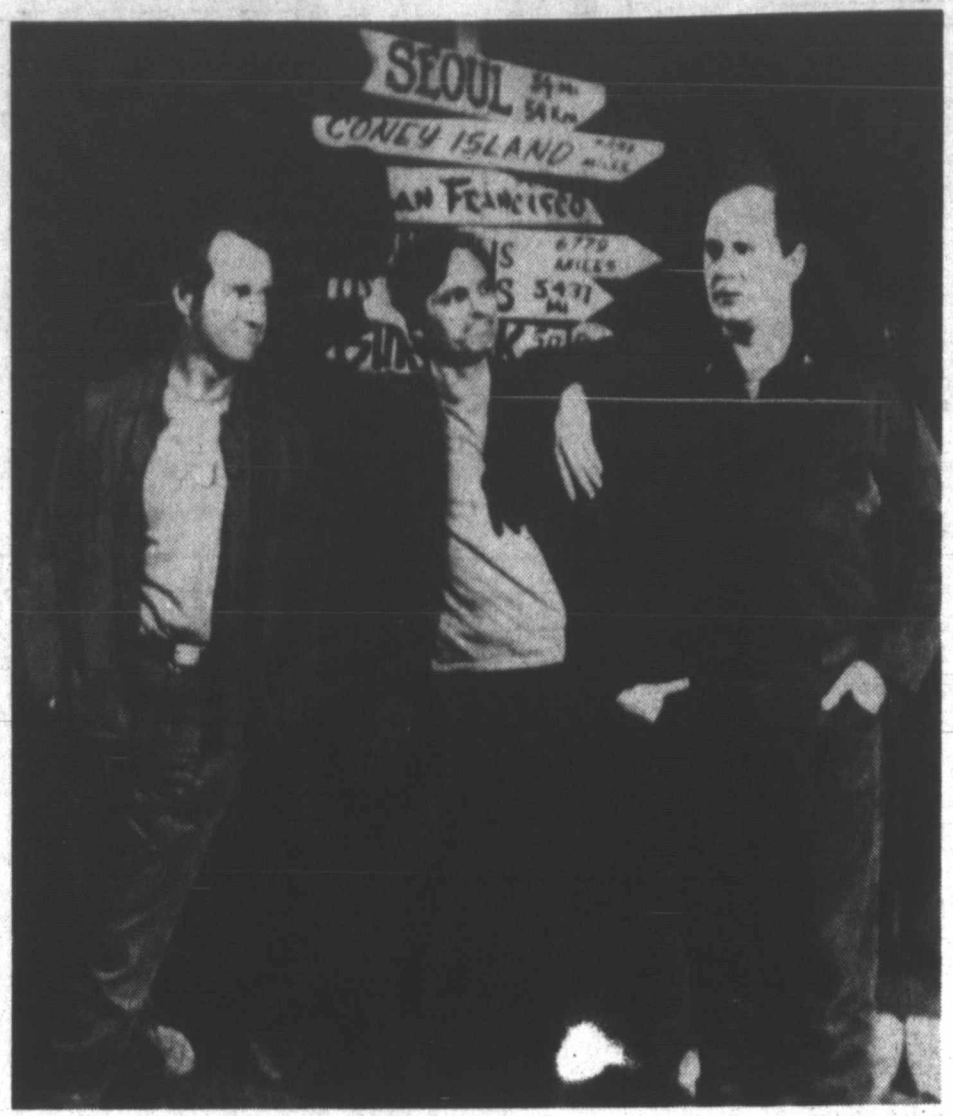

"An Unauthorized History of the NFL" was not available for preview, and Fanning would not discuss the lawsuit, which he said was an attempt to hamper "Frontline" reporters in their efforts to obtain certain information.

Fanning, a South African by birth who has produced public TV's "World" documentary series since 1977, is no stranger to controversy. He co-wrote and co-produced "Death of a Princess," a docudrama broadcast as a "World" special in 1980 that enraged Saudi Arabia's royal family and irked the Mobil Corp., one of PBS' most generous supporters.

"Frontline" is an ambitious project modeled after public TV's "American Playhouse" series introduced a year ago.

'Oh! Calcutta!' spoofs sex

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The show's authors include the late John Lennon, Jules Feiffer, Robert Benton, the Oscar-winning writer of "Kramer Vs. Kramer," and Sam Shepard, actor and Pulitzer-winning author of "Buried Child."

The show employs five actors and five actresses. They appear both clothed and in their birthday suits. They spoof sex, simulate it here and there, kid mate-swapping and such, sing and even commit ballet while stark naked.

The show opened off-Broadway in June 1969 amid much publicity, controversy and critical grumbling. One carper even sniffed that it "gives pornography a bad name." It ran until 1973, then was revived on Broadway in 1976. The show is "Oh! Calcutta!"

A lot of fuss about it way back then. Mention it now and the local reaction usually is, "Is that still around?"

Yes, says beaming producer Norman Kean. It's still around, a $250,000 investment that to date, by his reckoning, has grossed $300 million from performances here, in 150 other cities and in 15 countries.

Still at the 500-seat Edison Theater he owns, it recently logged its 4,000th New York performance. It's had, he says, about 28 cast changes — approximately 100 actors and actresses doffing their duds in the cause of art — in the 13½ years since it opened.

"Oh! Calcutta!" was born in the era of anything-goes permissiveness. All that is said to be over, the revolutionaries now into corporations, suburbia and mortgages.

So what keeps the show — once thought so wicked it was raided by the vice squad in San Francisco — going in these sedate times?

Producer Kean, a hearty, energetic native of Colorado Springs, Colo., thinks a minute.

"I think it's partly because of my marketing," he says, referring to his aggressive promotion campaign here and abroad, a campaign that includes a playbill printed in nine foreign languages, including Russian.

"Another big thing is word-of-mouth. When you see this show, whatever you may think of it, the next day or that evening you have a comment to make about it."

But it's also my passion for the show. It's one of a kind, it never will happen again.

"Oh! Calcutta!" was devised by the late Kenneth Tynan, the British drama critic and writer. In a 1976 interview, four years before his death, Tynan explained his battle plan this way:

"You know, what we wanted to do then was provide a show that would bridge the gap between the Ziegfeld Follies and a raunchy exhibition in a bordello — something that was about sex, for intelligent people, with no holds barred, but without trying to shock people."

Chey Chase is full of promises-without falls

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Chey Chase, newly famous from his falling-down comedies on television's "Saturday Night Live," arrived here in 1977 with the promise of becoming a bright new film star.

Five years and six movies later, the Chey Chase promise still seems to be on hold.

"I'm not concerned," he says. "I'm working at a job that's fun, and I think I'm getting better at it. My personality seems to have set in with people, and they like that. They enjoy knowing what to expect. I have no fears of disappearing."

Chase believes he has his best shots in two new films. He recently completed a part in "National Lampoon's Vacation" as a family man facing the perils of a cross-country trip. He is now filming "The Deal of the Century," a comedy-drama about dark dealings in international weapons.
