

Gray, Carson, Donley farmers may qualify for disaster funds

By ANTHONY RANDES

Farmers whose crops were badly damaged by hail last spring in Gray, Donley, and Carson counties may now qualify for millions in disaster relief loans, according to the office of Sen. John Tower (R-Texas).

These are three of 33 counties in Texas that were found eligible for the emergency Farmers Home Administration loans.

According to Tower's assistant press secretary, Terry

Ware, Tower received a notice from Agriculture Secretary John Block listing the 33 counties eligible for relief from the heavy hailstorms that destroyed at least 30 percent of the total crops in each of these counties early last summer.

Ware said the loans are immediately available, but local and district FmHA administrators hadn't been notified of the money at press time.

Phillip Madely, assistant district director of FmHA in Amarillo told The Pampa News the amount of the loans available to farmers would be computed by determining the actual dollar loss the farmer's had. In order to qualify for the low-interest loans, the farmer must be certified as having lost at least 30 percent of his total crop due to the weather. The interest in the loans would be eight percent.

Marvin Crabtree of the FmHA office in Clarendon, and which serves Pampa twice each month, said farmers may pick up applications at the Donley County office, or in the Pampa office (located in the Courthouse Annex on Highway 60 near the fairgrounds) from 10 a. m. to noon on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month. Crabtree will be in Pampa again next Thursday, Jan. 27.

Madely said the announcement was good news for farmers in the disaster counties, but said this procedure was nothing new to them.

"We're already carrying most of these guys with loans now," he said. "About all this does is reduce the interest rate a bit on their loans."

For more information on the emergency farm loans, call Crabtree at 874-3552.

Snowstorm paralyzes the Panhandle

More snow on the way, and police advise keeping travel to minimum

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

If Pampa had a hill, residents would be able to enjoy a ski weekend without leaving town, which would be a good idea because motorists are being warned to stay home. Two inches of snow fell on Pampa overnight Thursday, and another one to three inches was expected today.

More snow could arrive through Tuesday.

Across West Texas and the Panhandle, snow depths ranged from one inch in Shamrock and Canadian to eight inches in Amarillo and five inches in Skellytown. The National Weather Service (NWS) forecast called for another one to three inches to fall on the Panhandle today, with light snow possible for tonight.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies Saturday through Tuesday, with daytime temperatures in the mid to upper 30s and nighttime lows in the mid teens, according to the NWS in Amarillo. The NWS also expects "a slight warming trend" from Sunday to Tuesday, which would bring temperatures into the upper 30s.

A winter storm watch will be in effect for the Panhandle through tonight, with traveler's advisories in effect through Saturday. Department of Public Safety troopers and Pampa police are warning motorists to stay off the roads except for emergency travel.

Snow was reported as far east as Abilene, and Lubbock reported 16 inches with more falling this morning. Ten inches at Canyon cancelled classes at West Texas State University. Fourteen inches were reported at Hereford, nine at Dumas and 8 at Tulia.

Officer Rod Bishop of the Pampa Police Department said the police are advising people to stay off the roads unless travel is absolutely necessary. The department is also advising motorists not to go out of town, especially west, where snow accumulations are higher.

Bishop said heavily traveled roadways will probably be in better shape than the side streets in Pampa, and that anyone driving should go slow and use extreme caution.

Jiggs Cooke, Pampa director of public works, said the roads in side the city are being sanded, and if the snow gets any deeper than the two inches on the ground this morning, his crews will start plowing. He said traffic was moving well this morning. His crews started sanding about 7:30 a. m. today.

Amarillo had eight inches of snow this morning, and it was still snowing at 9 a. m. Canadian and Shamrock were reporting about an inch of snow, and Wheeler had an estimated one to two inches. All areas should get more snow today.

Broken tree limbs were reported from Wheeler to Amarillo, and ice and downed trees knocked out power to the entire city of Wellington, and parts of Wheeler.

The snow fell on icy roads, making driving much more treacherous than if no ice were beneath the snow. DPS troopers were also warning motorists not to drive, and several trucks jacked off of Interstate 40 and several motorists were stranded on the highway.

Amarillo International Airport, reopened Thursday afternoon after being closed for 45 hours due to fog, was "officially open" this morning, but each flight was being cleared individually, according to American Airlines in Amarillo.

Flights were leaving if runways were cleared, and there was a possibility that the airport would probably be closed again if any more snow fell on top of the eight inches already on the runways.

Fog shrouded Pampa's Central Park Wednesday night, giving Cuyler Street an eerie appearance. When the fog lifted, Pampans thought the worst was over. But snow came in on the heels of the fog, blanketing the icy roads and making them more treacherous than ever.

Wednesday night may have been the last time city residents were able to see the pavement on Cuyler. More snow was predicted for today, and motorists are being urged not to drive. ### Higgins and New Orleans brought closer by a Girl Scout's balloon

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

When you see a child's balloon filled with helium drifting up into the wild, blue yonder, have you ever wondered how far the balloon will go before it finally pops or the helium leaks out?

Well, the Girl Scouts of Higgins, a small town north east of Canadian near the Oklahoma border, discovered at least one balloon could travel about 850 air miles in less than 18 hours.

Last Friday, Jan. 14, 23 Higgins Girl Scouts stood on their elementary school grounds at 3:30 p. m. and released a flurry of 58 red balloons into a strong northeast wind. The "balloon rally" kicked off the Girl Scouts' annual cookie sale.

Each balloon carried a short note saying "Cookie Sale, Jan. 14, 1983, Girl Scouts, Box 194, Higgins, Texas 79046."

Who knows what one of those 58 balloons encountered in its travels, but, somehow, about 17 1/2 hours later two duck hunters in New Orleans, Louisiana saw the depleted little orb drift from the sky, skim across some sharp whistle grass, skid across a pond and tangle up in weeds.

Nicholas P. Sicomo, 53, of New Orleans, and his 18-year-old son thought someone was trying to scare their ducks away and they weren't too happy about it. However, when the son went to move the balloon so it wouldn't scare ducks, he saw the note inside.

The two were hunting on their land in east New Orleans, in the extreme southeast corner of the state by Lake Ponchartrain, Sicomo said.

Sicomo told the Pampa News Thursday that he was surprised and delighted to see the balloon was from Higgins, Texas, although he had no idea where in the world Higgins, Texas was.

His wife thought somebody might be playing a joke, but Sicomo countered, "Would you say you were from Higgins if you weren't from Higgins?"

Curious to find out if anyone else had found a balloon, Sicomo penned a note to the address and enclosed a $2 donation to the Higgins Girl Scouts, asking that they let him know if any of the other balloons were discovered.

The address belonged to Marki Laughlin of Higgins, an assistant Girl Scout leader and mother of a nine-year-old Brownie Scout, Tiffany. Surprisingly, even though a number of people wrote notes for the balloons, Mrs. Laughlin had written the one found by Sicomo.

Naturally, Sicomo, a life-time resident of New Orleans and employee of the U. S. Coast Guard, has been added to the Higgins Girl Scouts list of pen pals, Mrs. Laughlin said.

So, the fragile balloon's travels took the lives of an ordinary government worker in New Orleans, Louisiana and two dozen Girl Scouts from Higgins and brought them together in a way that would probably never have happened otherwise.

Next time you see a balloon drifting up into the sky, who knows? It may be starting a journey that will bring the world a little closer together.

And just for the record, Sicomo reported he'd already bought a dozen boxes of Girl Scout cookies.

Lawyers will argue on just how much a cowboy's life is worth

Richard "Racehorse" Haynes

(Ed. note: Cowboy Jim Grandstaff, 31, was shot and killed in front of his north camp home on the 6666 Ranch on Aug. 11, 1981. Borger police chased a fleeing man east from Borger on Texas 152. The fugitive's car crashed onto the ranch, where officers lost sight of him. Grandstaff drove the few hundred yards from his house to investigate, and was cut down by police gunfire. No one has ever admitted shooting the ranch worker — and no one ever apologized to his widow. The cowboy's wife, Sharon, and his family hired "Racehorse" Haynes and filed a $3 million lawsuit against the police and others. Trial for the suit is pending in federal court in Amarillo. Sworn testimony on file in the lawsuit and investigators' reports following the shooting provided most of the information for this series.)

HOUSTON — A decision about whether or not famed Texas lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes will personally try a lawsuit in Amarillo seeking damages for the death of James Grandstaff will be made "on the eve of the trial," according to a Haynes associate in Houston.

But the suit seeking $3 million damages from Panhandle law officers and governmental entities is the type of case Haynes likes to handle himself, Jan Fox said.

"Depending on his schedule, Mr. Haynes may be there for the trial," Fox said.

But she said the gross injustice which saw Borger police kill an innocent man is a case suited for the busy and well-known Texas trial lawyer.

The case is a federal civil suit — but Haynes reputation was built in the area of criminal law, usually when he defended those charged with being on the wrong side of it.

Haynes is no stranger to Amarillo courts. He successfully defended Fort Worth multi-millionaire T. Cullen Davis during a trial moved there after Davis was charged with murdering his 12-year-old stepdaughter. Three eyewitnesses claimed Davis was the killer, but with Haynes at the defense table, the jury acquitted Davis. The lawyer later won acquittal on a charge Davis conspired to hire a hitman to kill his divorcee judge. The FBI made video tapes of what they said was Davis making a payoff for a contract killing.

Haynes' wealthy client was in the news again this week. Only now, Davis says he has found religion. A story this week said Davis and his religious mentor, evangelist James Robison, smashed $1 million worth of what Davis believed were unholy art objects with hammers.

The Houston lawyer later successfully defended Potter County Sheriff T. L. Baker in a removal suit alleging official misconduct and prosecuted by former District Attorney Tom Curtis.

Haynes first became nationally known when he defended Houston plastic surgeon John Hill on a charge Hill murdered his socialite wife with poisoned pastries. A mistrial was declared during Hill's first jury trial. Before a new trial was prosecuted, Hill was gunned down by a man reported to be a contract killer.

That trial was detailed in the late Thomas Thompson's book "Blood and Money."

Fox is laying the groundwork for the pending lawsuit in Judge Mary Lou Robinson's U. S. District Court. She has previously been on the other side of civil-rights suits, once defending a Houston police officer, who was accused of a shooting and placing a "throw-down" gun at the scene to make it look justified.

The Haynes legal eagles aren't the only talent drawn into the pending court battle over the death of an innocent man.

Most of the Panhandle officers and entities involved as defendants in the suit are using both "in-house" governmental lawyers and outside counsel.

Storm... (continued from page 1)

Trailways Bus System was reporting service in and out of Pampa this morning, but a spokesman for the bus lines said "I'm sure they're running late."
DPS and Pampa Police were reporting many more accidents during the day on Thursday than overnight, and most of the accidents reported were "fender-benders." Pampa Police reported only one more serious accident for the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. this morning.
The one saving grace for Pampa may be that the winds will not blow over 10 or 15 m.p.h. and temperatures are not expected to drop below the teens. According to Joe Van Zandt, Gray County extension agent for agriculture, livestock will not be in serious trouble unless the temperatures drop close to zero and the winds blow harder. The NWS also said that the cloud cover will keep temperatures down.

"It's nothing more than ranchers are used to in the winter here," he said.
The snow closed Amarillo College and Amarillo Public Schools, as well as Miami schools. Pampa Public Schools were open this morning, but some private schools were opening late or cancelling classes.
Icy roads moved a pretrial hearing for two men charged with rape from Stratford to Dumas because officials decided it was too dangerous to transport the prisoners from the Dumas jail 34 miles to Stratford.
Wheeler County Judge Wendell Morgan summed the situation up with "You can't get there." Amarillo DPS reported stranded motorists along I-40, and strongly advised that people not drive unless absolutely necessary.

ACLU attorney says Barefoot will probably die on Tuesday

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - An attorney for the Texas Civil Liberties Union says Thomas A. Barefoot, a Texas death row inmate condemned for the killing of a police officer, has little chance of avoiding a date with the executioner next week.
A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals refused Thursday to stay the execution. The decision came only one day after an emergency hearing on the case in Houston, during which Barefoot contended a prosecution witness had admitted lying at his trial.
Barefoot is scheduled to die by lethal injection before sunrise Tuesday. If the execution is carried out, he would be the second prisoner to be put to death in Texas in less than two months.
John Duncan, a spokesman for the Texas Civil Liberties Union, said Thursday that attorneys working on Barefoot's behalf intended to file a request for a stay with the U.S. Supreme Court sometime today.
But Duncan told the Dallas Times Herald that Barefoot's legal predicament is "identical" to that of Charlie Brooks Jr. of Fort Worth, who was executed on Dec. 7.
"He (Barefoot) is procedurally in the same position that Charlie Brooks was the day the panel said 'no' to a stay," Duncan said. "It is probably virtually certain that it (the execution) will happen."
Barefoot, 42, of New Iberia, La., was sentenced to die for the Aug. 7, 1978, shooting death of policeman Carl Levin, who was killed while investigating a suspected arson fire at a nightclub in the town of Harker Heights, near Killeen.
At the time, Barefoot was a fugitive from New Mexico on unrelated charges and the state contended he killed Levin to avoid arrest.
Gov. Mark White said Thursday he would not automatically grant a 30-day stay of execution to Barefoot. Such stays had been traditionally granted by past governors, but one was not given to Brooks by then-Gov. Bill Clements.
"I am persuaded because there are now so many more avenues for appeal and so much more strenuous review of each case by such a whole host of different judges that there may no longer be any need for an automatic 30-day stay," White said.

The federal appeals panel said it could block the execution "only upon a showing that the Constitution of the United States has been violated."
In addition, the panel said, there had to be a substantial reason to believe the appeal involves serious legal questions.
The panel said the same basic issues came up last month when the 5th Circuit had to rule in the Brooks case. A stay was denied by the appeals court and then the U.S. Supreme Court, and Brooks became the first prisoner to be executed by lethal injection in the United States.
Barefoot's plea contended more hearings were needed because of newly discovered evidence. His lawyers said a prosecution witness, Mary Richards, had admitted she lied during his original trial.
The defense said Ms. Richards now says the man she saw running from the scene of the crime could not have been Barefoot.
In her latest statement, Ms. Richards said she lied because prosecutors frightened her.
"It is difficult to accept this current statement of Richards," the appeals panel said. "No rational prosecutor would have called her as a witness if she had told him what she now says she did. Her testimony was not important, to begin with."
Furthermore, the opinion added, other witnesses made strong identification of Barefoot.
"His presence on the scene was clearly established, as was his guilt," the appeals court noted. "He admitted (actually, boasted of) his guilt to his friends. The gun which fired the fatal shot was in his pocket when he was arrested."
Also rejected by the appeals panel was an argument that testimony by two psychiatrists regarding Barefoot's dangerous character amounted to constitutional error.
Both psychiatrists, responding to hypothetical questions, said Barefoot's past history was the conduct of a severe sociopath, lacking in conscience.

Archaeologists are awed by the age of woman's bones found

By LAURA RICHARDSON

DALLAS (AP) - She was past her prime when she died, and she had been crippled for a long time. Comrades laid her on her side in a shallow grave, drew her legs to her chest, and pillowed her head on her hands.
Ten thousand years later, a Texas archeologist found her bones.
During the millennia since her death, 10 feet of dirt had been deposited on her grave, and the great weight had crushed her skull. But the skeleton was intact - the archeological find of a lifetime.
"Most archeologists never have this kind of opportunity," said Dr. Frank Weir in a telephone interview from Austin, where he is director of the Texas Highway Department's archeology division. "I don't ever expect to be involved in something like this again."
Months of study are ahead. After the skeleton's age is established, physical anthropologist Al Wesolowsky of the University of Texas-San Antonio will begin his study of the bones.
The bones of the head and face will be pieced together, and Weir - who is also a painter and sculptor - hopes that eventually he will be able to reconstruct the woman's face.
"We think that the ancestors of this woman, who is an ancestor of modern Indians, came to North America by crossing the Bering Strait. We hope with this we can find out something about the way they lived, and maybe even what they looked like," Weir said.
Highway department workers had been digging for a year at the site near Austin, hoping to find and preserve whatever they could before highway construction began. It was a routine excavation in the Central Texas Hill Country, an area rich in Indian artifacts.
It was cold Dec. 29, and rain was in the forecast. The archeologists were working with trowels in a 1 1/2-foot-deep and 6 1/2-foot-wide hole. A slice of earth was turned, and there - before the stunned eyes of 34-year-old archeologist Wayne Young - were three skeletal fingers.
Two inches away, the rounded shape that proved to be the skull was unearthed.
"It's hard to put into words how we felt," said Young. "There was no doubt we had a burial. People have been looking for early skeletons in North America for 80 years, and here it was."
"I was the one who identified it as human. I'll never see anything this good again. It's a once-in-10-lifetimes experience."
It rained. Workers went to the site and bailed the water out of the hole with buckets. It was cold. Workers camped at the site to guard the precious find.
Weir said that only five such graves have been found in North America, and only 10 skeletal remains approaching the estimated age of the early Texas woman.
"She could be the oldest, could be as old as 12,000 years. But I'm being conservative, and saying 9,000 or 10,000 until we have an exact age," Weir said.
The oldest human bones found so far in North America are fragments from the Anzick site in Montana. They are thought to be 12,000 years old.

Perryton sued for $1 million

PERRYTON (Spc) — A Perryton man has filed a $1 million police brutality suit against the city and Perryton officers, who the man says worked him over when he tried to visit his son in the county jail.

George Hinshaw is suing because he said he was "attacked and brutally beaten" at the Ochiltree County Jail by Perryton police officers Ron Wyrick and Donny Richardson and by sheriff's deputy Joe Boren.

In addition to the officers, the lawsuit seeks damages from former Police Chief Bob Doffer and the City of Perryton.

The suit was filed last week in U.S. District Court in Amarillo and claims violations of Hinshaw's civil rights. The lawsuit asks for $500,000 in compensatory damages and $500,000 in punitive damages.

Hinshaw's son was arrested and jailed for a traffic violation Nov. 7, 1981. City prisoners are housed in the county jail.

Later the same day, Hinshaw went to the jail to try to get his son released, according to reports. According to Hinshaw, the officers said his son would spend the night in jail. The Perryton man then asked to see his son, but was refused, Hinshaw said.

When he persisted in trying to visit his son, the officers began punching and kicking Hinshaw, his suit alleges.

Officers arrested the elder Hinshaw for resisting arrest, a charge which was later dismissed by the county attorney.

The charge against Hinshaw was dismissed March 7, 1982, the same day the issue was to be prosecuted in court.

The man's wife later that evening was successful in posting bond for both her husband and son, and they were released.

Friends and relatives immediately took Hinshaw to the Perryton hospital, where he was hospitalized for several days for treatment of injuries — injuries the suit says came courtesy of the Perryton officers.

The lawsuit also says that after the beating, officers "deliberately delayed medical treatment," while Hinshaw was jailed.

The federal suit says the beating of prisoners in Perryton is a matter of routine policy for Perryton officers, and it blames city officials for the alleged policy of brutality.

According to the petition, the city's lawmen "summarily punish persons who refuse to obey police orders, whether lawful or not, by means of unlawful arrest, detention, excessive use of force and denial of necessary medical attention."

Officer blamed others

HOUSTON (AP) — A deputy constable accused of fatally beating a teen-age burglary suspect tried to blame two sheriff's deputies after he was told that criminal charges would be filed against him, an assistant district attorney has testified.

Terry Wilson said Wednesday that defendant Billy McCreight told him twice in formal interviews that Steven Barnette, 17, was not injured while in custody of three law officers on March 19.

But Wilson said McCreight became "very agitated" when he was told the next day that charges would be filed against him and that information would be presented to a grand jury about the two sheriff's deputies.

"Well, I'll tell you who did it. They did it," Wilson said McCreight told him then.

Both sides were to begin closing arguments at 9:30 a.m. today in U.S. district court here. McCreight, charged with federal civil rights violations, could face a life prison sentence if convicted.

Wilson's testimony followed that of a couple who said they heard another law officer boast of beating a young suspect who later died.

Gene and Clara Harris, testifying separately, both said that former deputy William F. Whigham came into a restaurant where they worked and bragged of beating up a young burglary suspect arrested nearby.

The Harrises, appearing as defense witnesses, said Whigham was a regular in the restaurant and that they had known him for some time.

Mrs. Harris said the day Barnette was arrested, Whigham talked of the suspect and said, "He (Barnette) had a smart attitude" and "a smart mouth."

Show pigs killed

A pack of big dogs attacked and killed two FFA show pigs in a pen at 1042 S. Farley. Ray Shults said his son, Wendell, 17, went out to feed the pigs earlier this week and was about to enter the pen, when a big dog snarled at the youth and dashed away. Shults said three other dogs then ran from the pen through a hole the dogs dug under the fence. Also killed in the attack was a show pig owned by Troy Drinnon. (Staff Photo by Bruce Lee Smith)

Love letters evidence in trial

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jailhouse love letters from the man convicted of killing a Texas federal judge to his stepdaughter have been introduced as evidence in the trial of Jimmy Chagra, accused of ordering the murder to get the judge off a narcotics case.

"I love you with every particle of my body," Charles V. Harrelson wrote in 1981 to Teresa Starr, the daughter of his wife, Jo Ann, by a previous marriage.

"I can't wait until your sweet voice is the first voice I hear every morning," he said in a letter urging her not to talk to authorities.

At the time the letters were written, Ms. Starr was 24 and was spending six months in jail for contempt of court for refusing to testify before a federal grand jury investigating the May 29, 1979, murder of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. in San Antonio, Texas.

Harrelson, 44, was suspected of the murder but was jailed on weapons and narcotics charges.

Ms. Starr was called by the prosecution Thursday to testify about a trip to Las Vegas, Nev., in June 1979 in which she picked up a beige suede briefcase bulging with a package that was supposed to be a gambling debt owed to Harrelson.

He and her mother had sent her on the mission, telling her not to use her own name and to use pay telephones because all others were wiretapped.

When she turned the package over to them in Corpus Christi, Texas, on June 25, she said, her mother said: "There must be over a quarter million in there."

Around Christmas 1979, she said, she began a sexual relationship with Harrelson that lasted about four months. After six months behind bars in 1981, she testified before the grand jury.

Under cross examination, Ms. Starr admitted she had used cocaine and marijuana during 1979. She also said none of the letters she received in jail, nor transcripts of secret tape recordings made while her former husband visited her, made any mention of Chagra.

Chagra, 39, is accused of paying Harrelson $250,000 to murder Wood because he feared the judge, known as "Maximum John," would give him a harsh sentence in the narcotics case. The murder trial was moved to Jacksonville because of pretrial publicity in Texas.

Gas price hikes are over

HOUSTON (AP) — Consumers have seen the worst of the heating gas price increases and utilities now are sponsoring legislation to blunt any future boosts, the leader of an industry trade group says.

The recent severe price increases in heating gas will not be repeated, said Joe LaBoon, president of Atlanta Gas Light Co. and chairman of the American Gas Association, a group of gas distributors.

LaBoon said the increases were brought on by the combination effects of de-control and tough contracts.

"The high jump is over with," he said in an interview Thursday. "There'll be a moderation in increases in the future. It (gas prices) will only increase as inflation increases."

Gas prices in many states jumped by 25 percent this winter and, in some areas like Kansas City, by as much as 37 percent.

Much of the increase in prices was caused by long-term contracts between pipeline companies and producers that included what are called "take or pay" clauses. LaBoon said.

Such contracts, he said, require the pipeline companies to pay the producers for a certain amount of gas even though the pipeline may not be able to sell it all.

As an example, he said, if a pipeline company has a 100 percent "take or pay" agreement for a million cubic feet of gas, the company must pay for all of the gas in the contract, even though the firm may be able to sell to only a portion of the fuel to the distributor.

Thus, if the utility needs only 60 percent of the million cubic feet of gas, the pipeline company can deliver only 600,000 cubic feet.

But the pipeline company still has to pay for the entire million. To recoup the loss, the company passes it along to the utility, which, in turn, passes it on to the consumer.

A strong conservation effort by consumers and manufacturers that use gas has lowered the demand for the product, causing the pipeline company to deliver less gas, leading to the price escalation, said LaBoon.

The association president said many contracts also contain "fly up" clauses that allow producers to raise prices if wellhead gas prices were de-regulated. After the Natural Gas Policy Act started phasing out controls, the producers were able to charge more for the gas and the increase was passed along to the consumer.

Legal service should be axed

President Reagan was right in the first place about the Legal Services Corp. It should have been abolished when he and Congress were weeding programs of doubtful merit out of the federal budget in 1981.

But Congress would not part with this Johnson-era agency, which provides lawyers at government expense to represent the poor in civil cases. The administration settled for a reduced budget for the corporation, and Reagan appointed new directors who were supposed to make its activities more justifiable.

Now, an activity which the president regarded as superfluous is also becoming an embarrassment. His appointees are accused of feathering their own nests by billing the government for exorbitant fees while they are implementing cutbacks in legal services for the poor.

The office of Management and Budget is investigating whether there is any basis for those accusations. Maybe there is, maybe there isn't. It must be noted, however, that the charges are coming from persons who would like to discredit the effort by Reagan to lead the agency down a different path. There is a whiff of politics in the fuss about the stewardship of Reagan's appointees.

That should not be surprising. The case against the Legal Services Corp. is that it has never been able to keep politics out of its affairs. It has tended to confuse the quest for justice for individual clients with a quest for social or political reform on the grand scale.

The corporation has become a fountain of class action lawsuits in which the defendant often is the government itself. The taxpayer is footing the bill for lawyers whose main occupation is filing suits which run up costs of government paid by the same taxpayer.

That is hard enough to swallow, but the corporation's interest in politics can be even more direct. One of its publications announces that President Reagan's 1983 budget "declares war on our nation's children." Legal Services Corp. lawyers around the country are urged from Washington to defolop the political consciousness of their clients so they will pressure Congress to resist cutbacks in entitlement programs.

Congress insisted on appropriating $241 million for the corporation for the current fiscal year in spite of Reagan's preference to do away with it. Hopefully the president will put it down for zero in his next budget, but no doubt Capitol Hill will once again respond with the argument that state and local bar associations and other private organizations are not set up to provide free legal counsel to the poor if the government program is dropped.

It's true that bar associations have fallen short on their responsibility to provide pro bono services to needy clients. But there is little inducement for them to do so as long as the government is spending $241 million a year to hire its own "poverty lawyers." Privately sponsored agencies to provide legal counsel to the poor would find fertile ground if Congress would accept the fact that the government's Legal Services Corp. is a luxury that does not belong in a deficit budget.

Change in '83

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Before another year has passed, the global scene will have changed in many ways. The changes will have an impact on the security and economic well-being of the American people.

The situation in the Western hemisphere is more unstable than usual. The major countries of Latin America - Mexico, Brazil, and Argentina are in grave economic peril.

Brazil has a very strong government, and almost certainly will be able to weather the storm. Argentina's military dictatorship, which was humiliated in the Falklands war, is likely to collapse and be replaced by an even more unstable populist regime which may repudiate the country's foreign debt. It is too early to predict what will happen in Mexico. The new government of President de la Madrid is well intentioned and may be able to conduct effective crisis management.

Mexico and Venezuela will be effected by a drop in oil prices. This is a real possibility inasmuch as the OPEC oil cartel is slowly disintegrating under the pressure of an oil glut.

The Persian Gulf region could be plunged into new turmoil if the Ayatollah Khomeini dies. The Soviets may be tempted to intervene in Iran. The U.S. is poorly positioned to deter such action.

Hopes for improvement in the overall Mideast situation aren't bright. The government of Israel is determined to expand its settlements on the West Bank of the Jordan and maintain a military presence in Lebanon - over the objections of the U.S. and the NATO countries.

What happens in Europe depends in large degree on the spring elections in West Germany or Germany is the heart of the NATO alliance. If Chancellor Kohl, the conservative, is reelected, the alliance will be stabilized and strengthened. Europe's missile defenses undoubtedly will be augmented with new American weapons. If the socialists return to power, they will be more radical and anti-American this time.

The great unknown is the Soviet Union under General Secretary Yuri Andropov. The signs to date suggest that the Soviet regime will tighten its control over the Soviet people, becoming even more of a policeman for its ruler. At the same time, the Soviet Union will step up its campaign of disinformation and propaganda aimed at promoting a nuclear freeze in the West and forcing an abandonment of the policy of nuclear deterrence.

Americans aren't in a position to influence these far-flung changes. Each country has its own dynamic. The pace of change, however, means that the American people must strengthen their own resolve and understand the global forces of propaganda that are directed at them.

Without a strong, resolute United States, freedom will disappear from the face of the globe.

Computer age is here

By OSCAR COOLEY

Say "computer" and all I think of is "adding machine." Those have been around quite a while but have not created a revolution. Today's computers are said to be ushering in a new age, the "computer age."

Its stock in trade, I am told, is information. We are entering the information age. Computers pick up a vast amount of information, reduce it to small compass, and store it for instant use. You little know how much the computer setting there in the head office can tell about you.

(If I say much more about computers, I'll be revealing my ignorance of them, which is profound. I lack information.) The point that interests me most is the notion that we have come to the end of the industrial age and are entering the computer age. If the industrial age is coming to an end, I am concerned.

Industrialism is identified with mass production - the using of machines to turn out many copies of one good, the machine replacing the craftsman who hammered out each specimen slowly and laboriously, but conscientiously. In pre-industrial times, nobody had much, but it was well made. With the industrial revolution, people began to have vastly more, population multiplied, and so did wealth. Do we want to give that up?

Of course, computerization is not a denial of mass production. It just lays stress on information, facts - an incredible lot of them simplified, assembled, classified, and prepared for use.

The Japanese are good at computerization. Some think they will surpass us Americans. Nature did not do very well for Japan; it is only about as big as Montana, and hasn't much more in natural resources, but it has a lot more people, and they are sharp. They have brains to enough to make up for their lack of bodele.

We thought we were the automobile geniuses, and then came the Toyota. Well, something similar in computers seems to be occurring. We have developed the supercomputer and built, quite a few of them, but the Japanese are hot on our heels.

Our latest supercomputer can perform about 100,000,000 arithmetical operations in a second, and a new supercomputer, to be computing by 1984, will be capable of 1,000,000,000 operations per second. But a new Jap supercomputer, I read, will be equal to doing 10,000,000,000 operations per second. It also will have four times as good a memory as our 1984 baby.

Well, you get the idea. This is a competitive world. If computers can perform such wonders, will there be any need for people, for workers? Maybe computers are responsible for our present unemployment!

Hostility toward machines on the ground that they replace men is not new. It has cropped up ever since the Luddites invaded British mills and with sledge hammers smashed the hated machines. That was 170 years ago.

Only a few weeks ago, a fellow columnist wrote, "The country can't afford to be indifferent to the long-term employment caused by the computerization of industrial and office procedures."

To save labor is to create unemployment. The saved laborer is a resource we now have but didn't have before the labor was saved. So inventors wrack their brains to come up with advice and methods that will create more unemployment.

But what of the laborer, who is human being and a consumer who has to have the wherewithal to consume? Answer: he is never certain of his job as a way of earning a livelihood. He may lose it at any time. Hence, he faces two necessities: one, he must save a part of his present earnings, however small they may be, and two, he must always be ready to live on his savings while he finds another job, for keen brains are busy trying to eliminate his present one.

The invention of the internal combustion engine eliminated many jobs - of horses as well as of men. The coming of the typewriter made countless writers and copyists unnecessary. We may be on the verge of seeing the computer wreak similar havoc.

It will help if we keep in mind that economic progress is the production of more wealth by the expenditure of less energy.

Leaving the hijacked plane

Second attempt in 2 1/2 years ends in death for plane hijacker

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A retarded man who hijacked a plane, then was shot and killed by an FBI agent who climbed through a cockpit window, had commandeered the same flight in 1980 and was free on probation, authorities said.

None of the 41 passengers and crew aboard the Northwest Airlines jet were injured in the 2 1/2-hour seizure Thursday.

The hijacker, who was shot as he began releasing some passengers, had falsely claimed to have a bomb in a shoebox and said he wanted to go to Afghanistan, witnesses said.

Authorities said 20-year-old Glen Kurt Tripp took over Flight 608 as the white-and-gray Boeing 727-200 approached Portland International Airport from Seattle.

Tripp, of Stanwood, Wash., had held another Northwest jet, also Flight 608, for 10 hours on July 11, 1980, at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, claiming he had a bomb in a suitcase and demanding $100,000.

Just before being arrested in that hijacking — in which no passengers were harmed and where the "bomb" turned out to be a jacket in a suitcase — Tripp reduced his demands to a fast car, a head start and three cheeseburgers. Experts described him as a mentally retarded 17-year-old, and said he had the intellect of a child between the ages of 9 and 12.

During Thursday's hijacking, Tripp railed against the United States for failing to help Afghan guerrillas fighting Soviet troops, said a passenger, John Boyle of Falls City, Wash.

Tripp made no demand except to be flown to Afghanistan, said Donald R. Jones, Port of Portland police chief. "He said he had been in prison and it wouldn't hurt the folks on the plane to sit with him for awhile." Airline officials said the jet was not capable of such a long flight.

The plane landed in Portland about 1:45 p.m. As the hijacker spoke to the crew in an otherwise empty first-class section, two FBI agents climbed through a cockpit window and waited.

Tripp agreed to release about half the 35 passengers, and as they slid down an emergency exit chute, the agents moved in, according to police and witnesses.

"At that time, the suspect made a sudden motion with the box as if to throw it at the agent," said William Baker, agent in charge of the Portland office. "The agent fired one shot."

Tripp was killed with a .38-caliber revolver, he said.

The man claimed he had to get home to his wife and two children in Afghanistan, according to Boyle.

Tripp was on 20 years' probation for first-degree extortion and first-degree kidnapping in the 1980 hijacking, said Dick Paulson, spokesman for the Washington Department of Corrections. Tripp served no time in prison in that hijacking.

He had reported regularly to a probation officer and was being treated at a center for the developmentally disabled, as required at sentencing in November 1980, Paulson said.

Better crop insurance terms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is offering improved terms for federal crop insurance to farmers who enroll in the new payment-in-kind program to cut production of wheat, corn, sorghum, cotton and rice.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Thursday those who take part in the 1983 PIK program — and receive surplus commodities for cutting acreages — will be able to get higher yield guarantees on crop losses insured by the USDA's Federal Crop Insurance Corp.

Block said the higher yield guarantees could be increased by as much as 10 percent for farmers who participate in PIK at the maximum land-idling level.

Merritt W. Sprague, manager of the corporation, said that "no additional action will be required by the insured farmer who is a PIK program participant to qualify for the increased yield guarantee. No additional premium will be charged for added coverage."

The PIK signup will begin Jan. 24 at local offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Habib offers American spy posts

By The Associated Press

U.S. troubleshooter Philip C. Habib is trying to forge a compromise between Israeli and Lebanese leaders that would have Americans staff spy posts for Israel in Lebanon, news reports said today.

In Israel, a storm of public criticism followed the announcement that PLO chief Yasser Arafat and three prominent Israeli leftists had held unprecedented political talks.

Israeli and Lebanese negotiators clashed at the bargaining table Thursday over Israel's demand for early-warning outposts in Lebanon, which would be used to monitor Syrian troop movements once Israeli troops withdraw, officials attending the talks said.

A Lebanese government spokesman quoted by Lebanon's state-run National News Agency said Lebanon rejected the establishment of early warning stations for Israel on its territory, but is willing to set up such stations on its own and man them with Lebanese experts.

Israeli news reports said Habib was working on a compromise proposal for listening posts manned by Americans, but conference sources said the U.S. delegation did not put the idea on the table at the formal talks, held Thursday in the Israeli border town of Kiryat Shmona.

Lebanon's state television said Habib, under orders from President Reagan to speed up the negotiations, also propose a partial pullback by Israeli and Syrian forces in Lebanon central mountains by mid-February.

Habib planned to meet today in Jerusalem with Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir to try to mediate Israeli demand and come up with some new proposals. State-run and private radio stations in Lebanon said Habib was to meet with Lebanese President Amin Gemayel later in Beirut before flying to Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile, the PLO and the Israeli leftist Sheli Party issue an historic joint announcement of political talks this week between Arafat and three Israeli doves. Neither side said exactly when or where the meeting took place.

The Israelis who met with Arafat were Uri Avnery, 59, publisher and former Parliament member for Sheli; retired Maj. Gen. Mattityahu Peled, 59; and Yaacov Arnon, 69, retired Treasury official.

The three head the Israel Council for Israeli-Palestinian Peace, a group that advocates Palestinian statehood in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The meeting drew a storm of criticism from mainstream Israeli politicians ranging from members of Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Likud Bloc to the opposition Labor Party. Avnery described the meeting as "an historic turning point."

US set to certify El Salvador progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Reagan administration official says a case can be made for certifying that El Salvador is moving to curb human rights violations, but critics contend political murders are unchecked in the embattled country.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz was expected to sign such a finding today, clearing the way for $26 million in U.S. military aid to the Salvadoran army in its war with leftist guerrillas.

Certification that the Salvadoran government is making a "concerted and significant" effort to protect human rights is required every 180 days by Congress as a pre-condition for military aid. This would be the third certification approved by the Reagan administration.

One administration official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said a "certifiable case can be made" in support of such a finding, but he conceded that the government's human rights record was far from perfect.

Specifically, he cited the freeing of a politically well-connected Salvadoran army officer implicated in the slaying of two Americans in 1981 and the alleged involvement of government civil defense forces in the torture-murders of seven peasants two months ago.

Meanwhile, the American Civil Liberties Union and Americas Watch on Thursday denounced human rights abuses in El Salvador as "worse than ever" and called on the administration to withhold certification.

In a 115-page report, the two groups charged that Salvadoran security forces and allied paramilitary

Police take sign-language course

By KATHIE BUCKWALTER
Temple Daily Telegram
TEMPLE, Texas (AP) — "Ticket."
It's a simple word to say, so why would 20 Temple police officers spend eight hours on a Saturday learning it and words such as "murder,"
"policeman," and "law?"
—Because words are not always spoken.
The officers were taking part in a basic sign-language course — something new to the department's continuous education program.
Lt. Denny Knight heaped launch the course, with the help of Linda E.
Taylor, community education coordinator for the Temple school district.
Knight said it may be the first time that Texas police have used a sign-language course in a training program. Because of that, the department's results will be "looked at carefully" throughout the state, he said.

Officers are required to take about 40 hours of classes each year, depending upon the division they work in. The classes, used for "brush-up" training, teach advanced skills, new techniques and concepts of law.
If the sign-language program is successful, the department also might offer intermediate and advanced courses, Knight said.
The course was approved by the
Certified Texas Commission on Law
Officer Standards and Education.
Officers will be able to use their new language to communicate with the hearing-impaired. They also can use it on assignments where they wish to communicate but where silence is necessary, Knight said.

For example, if two officers surround a building and need to tell each other something without giving away their positions, they can use sign language.
Knight said the hearing-impaired might not go to the police department because of the difficulties they have in letting officers know their needs.
Patrolman Ricardo Castillo said he would have used sign language in the past, but until Saturday had to get by without it.
Recently, he investigated a burglary in which the victim was hearing-impaired. The two had to communicate through writing and by pointing to items, Castillo said.

Fearful associates may have had Dorfman silenced, authorities say

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Teamsters consultant Allen Dorfman was "silenced" in a gangland-style execution because criminal associates feared a looming prison term would make him reveal secrets learned in 30 years of mob dealings, officials believe.
Dorfman was shot in the head five times at close range Thursday as he and a friend were going to a restaurant in Lincolnwood, a northern suburb. His companion was unharmed, and the gunmen escaped.
Forty FBI agents were assigned to assist police from Chicago and Lincolnwood in the murder investigation. A nationwide alert was issued for two unnamed male suspects. Police were also seeking a third man, believed to be the driver of a getaway car.
The millionaire insurance executive had longstanding ties to the Teamsters union and organized crime. He escaped unharmed from an attempt on his life 16 years ago.
"There's no doubt in my mind that Mr. Dorfman was killed to keep him quiet," said Patrick Healy, the Chicago Crime Commission's executive director. "A lot of people in the criminal world will sleep better tonight knowing that Dorfman is silenced."
Dorfman was convicted Dec. 15 with Teamsters President Roy L. Williams and three other men of conspiring to bribe Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., with a lucrative Las Vegas land deal. Cannon was not charged but lost a bid for re-election.
Dorfman, 60, faced up to 55 years in prison — tantamount to a life sentence. He was also under indictment in Illinois and California, and a federal grand jury was investigating an alleged kickback scheme involving Dorfman and the Teamsters health and welfare fund.
For more than 30 years, Dorfman maintained a grip on the murky billion-dollar business of Teamsters loans, land deals and insurance, officials said. His stepfather was a friend of Jimmy Hoffa, the former Teamsters boss who disappeared in July 1975 and was believed killed during a power struggle for control of the union.

U.S. Attorney Dan K. Webb "categorically" denied Dorfman had been cooperating with authorities. But he said Dorfman's background in organized crime "always raises the specter in the mind of criminal associates that he could possibly cooperate some day" and enhanced the likelihood he would be killed.
Healy, saying the killing had the earmarks of a mob hit, termed Dorfman "a good candidate" to cooperate with authorities.
"It was only a question of time. ... When push comes to shove, they make the best deal they can," he said.
With Dorfman's knowledge of "underworld deals," Healy said, "You can't overemphasize the damage he could have done by singing. I'm surprised he wasn't hit long ago. It was the conviction that sealed his fate."

Agency approves planning on five projects

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal agency designed to spur development of synthetic fuels has moved a step closer to distributing funds for the first time by approving planning on five projects, officials said.
Directors of the United States Synthetic Fuels Corp. found Thursday that planning on the projects was near enough to completion to make them eligible to enter the final phase of negotiations for funds.
The agency, created in 1980, has yet to disburse any of its $15 billion budget.
Ralph Bayrer, the agency's vice president for projects, said nine proposals were dropped from consideration, eight of them because design engineering and site preparation were incomplete.
A ninth proposal, which sought funds for the Grace-Baskett coal gasification project in Henderson, Ky., was turned down because the agency is not prepared to offer the type of funding its sponsors proposed, Bayrer said.
W.R. Grace & Co. proposed to finance a portion of the plant and arrange for the synfuels project to build and operate it. The project, which was scheduled for completion in April 1988, would have produced more than 13,000 barrels of gasoline per day and 1,760 barrels per day of butane, according to its proposal.
The directors also approved competitive solicitation of oil shale production, specifying that proposals should be for projects which will produce a minimum of 10,000 barrels of synthetic fuel product per day from Green River Formation shale. That formation lies in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, spokeswoman Karen Hutchison said.
Directors said these projects may enter negotiations for financing: the second phase of the Union Oil Parachute Creek project in Garfield County, Colo.; the Downsyn coal gasification project in Iberville and West Baton Rouge Parishes, La.; the New England Energy Park coal gasification and coal-to-methanol project in Fall River, Mass.; the Scrubgrass coal-to-gasoline project in Venango County, Pa.; and the Memphis coal gasification project in Shelby County, Tenn.
Ms. Hutchison said the board will consider more of the 46 proposals submitted under the corporation's third solicitation at its meeting next month.
The third solicitation is the corporation's first which has set specifications for projects. Ms. Hutchison said. Three projects from the second solicitation entered financial negotiations last month. She said those proposals could receive loan or price guarantees in four or five months.
In addition to the Grace-Baskett project, directors decided to drop from consideration the California Tar Sands Development Project in Kern County, Calif.; the MONTX International Corporation project in Ione, Calif.; the SESCO Project at Ashtabula, Ohio; and a purged carbons project to be built by the Integrated Carbons Corp. at an unspecified site in Pennsylvania.
Directors also turned down the U.S. Shale project in Clay County, Tenn.; the International Hydrocarbons project in Grand County, Utah; and the Thunderbird II project in Campbell and Johnson counties of Wyoming.

Bayrer said all but the Grace-Baskett project failed to meet specifications for "project maturity."
W.R. Grace & Co. interpreted a section of the act which created the Synthetic Fuels Corp. differently from the way the agency read it, Ms. Hutchison said.
She said agency officials intended the clause to allow them to "decide what kind of plant we want and hire a contractor to build it." But, she said, W.R. Grace & Co. officials had submitted a proposal for a plant and had offered their firm as the contractor.
The Synthetic Fuels Corp. is designed to provide price supports and loan guarantees for firms interested in developing synthetic fuels.

There is no political compass

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consider the congressional freshman, in a new job in a new city, looking for a political compass. There may not be any, not even for the politician bent on following the precise instructions of the constituents back home.

That's the suggestion of a scholar-pollster, who thinks the old formulas and the old ideologies offer no guide to what's going on in the minds of the voters.

Everett C. Ladd, writing for the American Enterprise Institute, says that "liberal and conservative, or left and right... simply do not capture the predominant drift of the last 10 to 20 years."

As a result, he says, the congressman looking for guidance is bound to get a mixed message.

He sees the frustration of the voters with the federal government. "Again and again they tell him that their government has become too powerful, too intrusive, far too wasteful, and has become as well the main cause of inflation and other plagues," Ladd writes. The conclusion is obvious: the country is turning to the right.

But it isn't that clear or that tidy.

"At the very moment three-fourths of the people are saying tax money spent for human services is poorly used, three-fourths are arguing that the federal government should provide medical care and legal assistance for everyone who can't afford them," Ladd says. "Overwhelming majorities say federal spending is too high — but majorities just as big say even more should be spent for basic services like education and Social Security."

To further complicate the message, he says, "it is the very same people who offer the contrasting assessments," and both their support and their criticism of government have intensified.

More people than ever before believe that government is too powerful, too wasteful, too inflationary. More people than ever before believe that government is a proper and necessary vehicle to provide an assortment of services and guarantees to the public.

"Americans have mixed minds about government and say so to all who care to listen," Ladd writes.

At the same time American values are more liberal, in that they are more responsive to individual choice, they are more conservative, in new dedication to traditional values.

As a result, Ladd says, the old politics of aligning conservative or liberal groups into coalitions won't work any more.

So the politician looking for an old-fashioned compass is going to be frustrated. But Ladd suggests that the split-personality voter may offer an opportunity to leaders with ideas, rather than ideologies.

"The political marketplace in post-ideology America is well suited to arguments on the merits in virtually every area where policy choices must be made," he says. "Innovative politicians have an extraordinary opening."

Racing backers woo legislators

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Singers Willie Nelson and Merle Haggard joined a throng of horse racing enthusiasts here for a so-called "Million Dollar Horse Spectacular" to kick off a new campaign to bring pari-mutuel gambling to Texas.

Nelson, an 11th-hour fill-in for Dolly Parton, and Haggard headlined the fund-raising gala Thursday at Billy Bob's Texas, the state's largest night club.

Texas' 181 legislators and most of its top officials were among the invited guests, some of whom paid $500 to attend.

A "service auction" for breeding rights to many of the nation's top thoroughbreds and quarterhorses raised tens of thousands of dollars to finance the push to restore horse race gambling to Texas after a 45-year hiatus.

"The time has come for the 'sport of kings' to take its place in history here in the state of Texas," said Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi, co-sponsor of the legislative proposal in the Texas House.

Before heading to Billy Bob's, Berlanga and a handful of other supporters conducted a chilly, windswept news conference at a luncheon-reception on the showcase North Texas ranch of horse entrepreneur B.F. Phillips Jr.

Berlanga said he was "very, very optimistic" the county-wide local option proposal would win legislative approval because of a tax shortfall, a sagging economy and widespread unemployment.

"We're talking about billions of dollars in state benefits and millions of dollars in direct tax revenues," said Don Essary of Amarillo.

The difficult long-term decision

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Judging from the way it is avoided, making the long-term decision seems almost impossible today.

Ask the Social Security reform commission, the politician, the corporate chief executive. Long-term decisions, they agree, should be made. Often, however, they settle for the short-term expedient.

The result, say those who observe the phenomenon, is self-perpetuating. Problems pile to such mountainous proportions that a major effort is required simply to dig away a shovelful at a time.

"If the commission continues to postpone recognition of the large future financial problems, it may soon be too late to develop rational solutions," says A. Haeworth Robertson, Social Security's former chief actuary.

An atmosphere of crisis, which develops from decisions postponed, seldom yields satisfactory results, said Robertson.

A group of 500 business, academic and former government officials has just delivered a similar message to President Reagan, who, in contradiction of his stated intentions, finds it impossible to trim the budget deficit.

If federal budget deficits aren't brought under control, said the group, headed by former Treasury Secretary Peter Peterson, future economic growth will be curtailed.

"The basic contours of the solution are, we think, dictated by certain stark realities we face as a nation."

The group's solution to the problem of escalating deficits requires changes or cuts in social spending, defense and taxes. It calls for cuts in projected outlays for nonmilitary items, for example, of $60 billion in fiscal 1985.

Possible, or impossible? Since most of the $60 billion involves social spending, would the impact be too great to bear for those losing their checks? Would it make Reagan a one-term president? Would such a cut be possible at all?

For three decades, more or less, corporate chairmen and presidents have faced the dilemma of short-term versus long-term policies.

Short-term policies often make the bottom line shine while causing the corporate core to erode. Long-term policies sometimes produce dull bottom lines while building inner strength that becomes visible years later.

Generally speaking, corporate chairmen have just five or six years in which to show their stuff. Moreover, their performance is measured every three months by investment analysts who help determine the price of the company's shares.

If you were the chairman, wouldn't you be tempted to make the short-term decision? To push the sales effort while letting long-range planning and research take care of itself?

If you still think the decision is easy to make, consider that the long-term chairman often is fired. And then replaced by a short-termer who takes credit for the strength the former chairman built into the company.

Kick off of Obverse English

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A lady stamping the snow off her moon boots in the foyer of the post office the other day announced to one and all that she hated this wicked winter weather because "it gives me chill brains."

She thus got the new year of Obverse English off to a marvelously mixed-up start.

My mother, who was fluent in the language, could have told her it was even colder out than the thermometer on the supermarket indicated because of "the Chill Wills factor."

Former Gov. Bruce King of New Mexico, I am reliably informed, was a master of this difficult and imaginative speech form. King, who recently completed eight years as governor, livened up the old Capitol at Santa Fe with random bursts of rhetoric that turned the most immutable clichés to silly putty.

He once warned an Albuquerque legislator that loading down an administration bill with a lot of amendments — known as the Christmas tree effect in Washington — "could open up a whole box of Pandoras." Because after all, as he was fond of saying, "the best laid plans of men sometimes go awry."

As do their best laid sentences: witness King's masterful blend of the best of John Kennedy's inaugural address with Neil Armstrong's moon talk. "Ask not what you can do for yourself but take a giant step for New Mexico."

Earl Long, who was governor of Louisiana in my formative years as a reporter, was a master of the down home homily, delivered in the most rudimentary grammar, to point up the urbane sophistication of his opponent, invariably a big city lawyer. Old Earl never emphasized an oratorical point without a double snap of his galluses and always deliberately mispronounced his opponent's name: thus New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison became "DeeLaSoups."

As President Eisenhower once put the elusive factor of time in context: "The future lies ahead." Unless, of course, the spokesman is Sir Boyle Roche, the famous Irish orator who worried out loud about "what our future forefathers will think."

Then there was the peevish lament of a man at the back end of a long bus queue on O'Connell Street in Dublin one rainy rush hour evening: "If we all get on the next bus, half of us will be left behind."

A woman on the train to Limerick told me she didn't like Irish comedian David Allen because "he used double entendres in more ways than one, if you know what I mean."

I thought I did, at least until she admitted that "despite his X-rayed material he can be funnier than sliced bread." Wry, of course.

Norman Rushing was called to be the interim pastor of Central Baptist Church, 513 E. Francis, during evening services Sunday, Jan. 16.

Rushing is a member of Central Baptist Church and is a Department of Public Safety officer.

Rick Darnell, a church spokesman, said, "We as a church are very happy and proud to have such a fine young man as Norman to serve as our pastor."

REV. TROY BOULWARE

Guest evangelist Sunday at Calvary Assembly of God

Rev. Troy Boulware, evangelist and gospel vocalist of Webb City, Mo., will be ministering in word and song at Calvary Assembly of God, Crawford and Love streets, at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday, according to Rev. Mike Benson, pastor.

Benson said Boulware employs his talents to inspire many people to live life to its fullest through God's truths. His personal, dynamic style of ministry refreshes both young and old alike, the pastor said.

Catholic canon law ready

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Drafted and repeatedly redrafted, Roman Catholicism's new code of canon law finally is ready for promulgation, the first overall revision of the church's rules of operation in 66 years.

It's shorter, simpler and stresses policy flexibility for local bishops, bigger roles for lay people and other modern reforms, say those familiar with the latest draft.

Work on it has gone on, in a broad process of sifting and cross-consultation, for about 20 years.

Pope John Paul II, who has been overseeing final refinements since last fall, has said he will issue the finished product next Tuesday.

U.S. church experts on canon law have termed it generally acceptable, and a vast improvement over the old code, although some still see shortcomings.

"A workable tool of renewal," Msgr. John A. Alexandro of Rockville Centre, N.Y., says of the new code, a "valuable instrument of ecclesial reform."

"In general, the code is said to incorporate into church law the reforms of the Second Vatican Council of 1962-65 and practices that have evolved in its aftermath."

"The recurring strong criticisms by clergy and laity shaped the new code," writes Msgr. Frederick R. McManus of the Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., a consultant to the code commission.

"The first draft was completed long ago, in 1966, seven years after the revision was ordered by the late Pope John XXIII in 1959 and a year after the 1965 conclusion of the reforming council he summoned."

"But that draft has been replaced in the long line of reworkings since then under a succession of three other popes — the late Paul VI, the short-lived John Paul I and the present John Paul II."

"For the first time, the code spells out a kind of bill of rights both for clergy and laity, including rights of free assembly, inquiry and speech in the church community, rights of due process and to choice of spiritual life style."

"Rights are balanced out by a statement of duties — obligations to spread God's plan of salvation, to educate children in accordance with church teachings and to support charitable works of the church."

"The code, in its latest circulated form, authorizes preaching by lay persons with approval of local bishops — something already common in many dioceses."

Religious Roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the 10th anniversary this Saturday of the Supreme Court decision of Jan. 22, 1973, legalizing abortion, opponents are intensifying their protests.

A "national tragedy," New York's Archbishop Cardinal Terence Cooke called the decision. During the decade since, he said, "the lives of more than 15 million human beings have been destroyed."

The anniversary date has become an annual occasion of protesting marches, rallies and statements by anti-abortion forces. Cooke, head of the Catholic bishops' pro-life committee, urged a "rededication to the principle of the sanctity of human life."

FUN... AND WORK

To receive pleasure we must put out some effort. The building of a sled, or pulling it afterward is work, but all of these things add up to a wonderful time. The same holds true with the Lord, those who serve him receive the greatest pleasure.

"Serve the Lord with gladness... enter his courts with praise."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Dear Abby

Man feels exposed in woman's world

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Everyone says, "It's a man's world." It isn't. If anything, it's a woman's world. Explain this: If a woman undressed in front of a window with the shade up and a man stood outside and watched, the man would be arrested as a peeping tom.

But if a man undressed in front of a window with the shade up and a woman stood outside and watched, the man would be arrested for indecent exposure.

A MAN IN A WOMAN'S WORLD

DEAR MAN: Not necessarily. It is doubtful that a man — or a woman — who disrobed inadvertently before an unshaded window would be arrested for indecent exposure.

Nor would one caught in the act of observing someone of the opposite sex disrobing before an uncovered window necessarily be arrested as a peeping tom (or tomette, whichever the case may be). Intent is all important. Gender is not.

DEAR ABBY: For 14 years my wife and I have had a running battle over a difference of opinion that has left us both somewhat battle-scarred. Before I invite guests (including my relatives) for the weekend, I always get my wife's OK first.

When my wife invites guests for the weekend (usually her relatives), she never asks for my OK ahead of time. If I am told at all, I am simply informed that so-and-so is coming for the weekend.

When I remind my wife that I always ask for her approval before inviting guests and think she should give me the same consideration, she says, "You are eccentric."

Short anthology has good and bad

ALFRED HITCHCOCK'S DEATHREACH. Edited by Cathleen Jordan. Dial. 348 Pages. $12.95.

The one thing a collection of short stories by different authors is sure to do is cause controversy.

The editor of the book — the person responsible for selecting the stories gathered together into the volume — obviously thinks his picks are good ones. The reader, however, often disagrees.

And so it is with the 27 items included in "Alfred Hitchcock's Deathreach." Some of these little mysteries are quite good, some adequate, some poor, and one so bad the reader can't help but wonder why it was selected.

This is the item titled "A Moment, One Night," by Michael Van De Ven. It's silly in the extre and despite its very short length it seems to take hours to slog through because it is loaded with patches of purple prose such as, "I stood in a semi-somnolent trance, half asleep, half awake, like the souls of the newly departed, I imagined descending to some new and mysterious kingdom."

But if the reader skips that one there are some pretty good stories in this book. One such is "Who?" by Michael Collins. A nicely told tale of murder that ends with a clever little twist.

Another good one with a trick ending is "The Big Bajoor" by Borden Deal. It's all about a woman who cheats another woman out of her savings and then discovers the money is worthless — or is it?

Phil Thomas
AP Books Editor

Then she reminds me that she is an adult, and she sees no reason to ask for my "permission" to invite guests to her home.

How do you view this, Abby?

MIFFED IN MARYLAND

DEAR MIFFED: Marriage is a partnership. The home is not hers — it belongs to both of you. It's not a matter of asking for permission to invite weekend guests, it's simply "clearing" with one's partner before issuing an invitation. It's the courteous and considerate thing to do.

***

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old, average-looking male with a four-year college education who seems to have terrible luck finding a young woman. I have joined dating clubs, which cost me a lot and got me nowhere. I am not in the habit of going to bars, but I was so desperate for female companionship one night I went to a bar and picked up a young woman and she turned out to be a prostitute.

I see guys all around me with girls, and they don't appear to have any more on the ball than I have. What's wrong with me? I'm starting to worry about myself, Abby. I've even prayed to St. Jude, and I'm not even Catholic.

I consider having a companion of the opposite sex more important than a job or career. I want someone to share my life with. Without that, everything else is meaningless. Can you help me?

LONELY IN DENVER

DEAR LONELY: What are your outside interests? The theater? Music? Museums? Art? Dancing? Sports? Antique cars? There are any number of places to meet people (church included) that will bring you into contact with women whose interests are the same as yours, which is a good starting point. Enroll in some extension courses at your local university.

And let everyone at work know that you're interested in meeting someone. Everyone has a "lovely" cousin, niece, neighbor or friend who is aching to meet a nice guy who doesn't want to go to bars to meet a nice girl.

Gena on Genealogy

By GENA WALLS
Have you traced your ancestors across the water? Are you Irish? Did you learn that a member of the family was an "undertaker"?

Before you complete the occupation column, make sure what kind of "undertaker" was meant. "Undertaker" was the term used for Scottish land poachers brought over to Ulster by the Stuart kings after the breaking of the Irish clans. They actually took the land "out from under" the original owners.

Many Irish names were originally written in the Gaelic alphabet and spellings often changed when they were written in English. Without positive information, you might think you are descended from royalty and actually be the progeny of a sheep stealer.

Much of the Irish genealogy was destroyed during the 1922 Irish civil war. If you are Catholic, no record might have been made until the penal laws were repealed in 1824 because priests were afraid to keep such records. After 1864, you stand a better chance of locating Catholic births, marriage and baptismal records as civil registrations.

If your family can identify the clan your ancestor belonged to you will be more successful than the average researcher. The clan system kept many families rooted in the same place for centuries. It will help if you can discover Irish town names and chapels. These might be found in the family bible, diaries and photo albums.

Many people sent photograph postcards in the 1800s. If you know the name of the town in the photograph and need the location, you might check "Alphabetical Index to the Townlands and Towns of Ireland" by Alexander Thom. It is not available locally. However the Genealogical Society of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Salt Lake City, Utah, has the publication on microfilm and will check for you for a small fee. Write them for additional information. Remember, in genealogy the only way to dig up the elusive ancestor is to run the subject into the ground — no just to the water!

6 Picks

Cowboys favored over Redskins

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Now we find out whether the Washington Redskins really are the best team in the National Conference or whether the Dallas Cowboys are still a "money" team.

Now we find out whether the Miami Dolphins, a team with one of the best coaches in the game, can beat the New York Jets, a team with one of the best rosters.

The view from this vantage point: the Cowboys vs. the Jets the Super Bowl.

Last week's mark against the spread: 3-1. The record through 11 weeks: 70-65.

This week's picks (home teams in caps):

Saturday
National Conference

Dallas Cowboys minus 2 vs. WASHINGTON REDSKINS: This is a game of psychology as much as it is one of football. The question is: Do the Redskins really believe, deep in their hearts, that they are as good as the Cowboys? Are they going to the game believing they've got it won — or are they going hoping they can win it?

The last time the teams met, Joe Theismann spent an inordinate amount of time buried under a half-ton of prime allas beef. And John Riggins carried the ball only nine times for 26 yards.

The Redskins can win only if they score first and build on their lead, allowing Riggins to run, run, run and permitting Theismann to pick his passing spots.

We think they won't. We think the 'Skins are hoping, not believing. Take the Cowboys.

Sunday
American Conference

New York Jets plus 1½ vs. MIAMI DOLPHINS: It's one thing to tee off on a quarterback who does only one thing — top straight back and throw, throw. The Dolphins impaled San Diego's Dan Fouts into submission last weekend.

They can't take such liberties with the Jets' Richard Todd. He can drop back or roll out or just plain run. He's got an awesome collection of receivers and a solid group of running backs.

Not that Miami is a pushover. With Tony Nathan back, the round game is back in gear. But can David Woodley overcome the Jets' fierce pass defense? Can the Dolphins make it three in a row over New York?

We think not. We think Freeman McNeil will run up the yards and Todd will hit just enough bombs. Take the Jets.

Losing Control

Top-ranked UCLA downs Cal

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Forward Kenny Fields scored 19 points to lead topped-ranked UCLA to a 68-63 victory over California in Pacific-10 basketball Thursday night, extending the Bruins' winning streak to 22 years over the Bears.

UCLA beat Cal for the 47th straight time and improved its record this season to 12-1. The Bruins lead the conference with a 5-0 record.

UCLA guard Ralph Jackson scored a career-high 17 points. His previous high was 15, and he matched that in the first half when he made seven of eight field goal attempts.

California, which got a game-high 22 points from center Michael Pitts, held a six-point lead three times in the first half but trailed 38-35 at halftime. The Bears stayed close in the second half and twice pulled to within one point.

With 6:45 remaining, UCLA led 56-55. But the Bruins outscored the Bears 10-2 over the next four minutes, with Jackson contributing two assists on lob passes which were slammed through the baskets by teammates.

Cal dropped to 7-5 this season and is 2-2 in the Pac-10.

Cowboys look forward to playing in RFK stadium

DALLAS (AP) — It sounds bizarre, but some of the Dallas Cowboys say they actually enjoy playing in RFK Stadium, where they will be the object of boos and scorn Saturday.

"It's a stimulant to play there. It gets your adrenalin going," said Dallas linebacker Bob Breunig on the eve of the Cowboys' departure to meet Washington in the National Conference title game.

"I love to play on natural turf. It's my favorite surface," Breunig said. "Having all the fans against you gets you motivated."

Former Cowboys Charlie Waters and Cliff Harris used to delight in playing at RFK.

"There was nothing like getting dirt and grass all over you — that was football," Harris said.

"Yeah, I feel that way, too," Breunig agreed. "There's a noise factor you have to deal with, but it's nice when you can quell it with a good performance."

"It's good to get ahead early if you can and take the crowd out of the game," fullback Ron Springs said.

Dallas has had spectacular success at RFK Stadium, winning there the last three times — including a 24-10 triumph on Dec. 5.

The Cowboys have beaten the Redskins six consecutive times.

"The Redskins fans really get involved," said wide receiver Drew Pearson. "They are diehard."

The Cowboys also are prepared for the worst of field conditions. They worked out all week in Dallas in frigid temperatures and on the soggy natural surface of their practice field.

"It (the field) will be to their advantage because the play on it," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

Dolphins hope to set record against Jets

MIAMI (AP) — Good things come in 3's. So do bad things. It all depends on which end of the score you're on. That prospect — along with the Dolphins' concern over the lower back injury bothering Miami place-kicker Uwe von Schamann — is a principal subject of discussion as the game approaches.

"If we lose to them three times, we don't deserve to be in the Super Bowl," said Jet quarterback Richard Todd. Other New York players spoke of "revenge" for the losses, the first of which — an opening day in 1982 — ended the Jets' eight-game unbeaten streak against Miami.

But Shula doesn't see it quite that way. "I don't look at it as having to beat the Jets three times in a season," he said. "I look at it as beating them for the first time in 1983."

Shula would, of course, love nothing more.

Morris sentenced to 20 years

MIAMI (AP) — Former All-Pro running back Mercury Morris, a member of three Miami Dolphins Super Bowl teams, has been sentenced to 20 years in prison on drug charges.

He was convicted last Nov. 5 by a six-member Dade County Circuit Court jury of conspiracy to sell cocaine, trafficking in cocaine and two counts of possession. Morris was acquitted of two charges of selling cocaine.

Florida's get-tough drug trafficking law requires a minimum 15-year sentence, without appeal bond, without parole, and with a $250,000 fine, upon conviction of dealing in more than 400 grams of cocaine.

Morris owns Dolphin records for single-game rushing with 197 yards and highest rushing average, 5.1 yards per carry. He finished second in career rushing with 3,877 yards on 754 carries and tied for fifth in career scoring with 198 points on 33 touchdowns.

Morris was a member of Dolphins' teams that won Super Bowls VII and VIII. He also played in Super Bowl VI, which the Dolphins lost.

Registration begins for Pampa Adult Soccer League

Although its below freezing outside and there's snow on the ground, the Adult League of the Pampa Soccer Association is preparing for the spring season.

Registration is now in progress and will continue until Feb. 5 for the soccer season, which is scheduled to begin in early March.

The adult league was created last fall, fielding seven co-ed teams and approximately 130 first-time players. Teams consist of women and men, 18 years and over.

"No past experience is needed, only the desire to join in America's fastest-growing participation sport," said Randy Linville, an Adult League official.

Interested women players are particularly encouraged to register so co-ed teams can be increased.

Registration can be completed at the Pampa Mall this Saturday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., or by calling Thomas Lewis at 665-5352 before Feb. 5.

Hogs, Cougars square off

HOUSTON (AP) — Akeem Abdul Olajuwon immigrated to this country from Nigeria two years ago to get an education at the University of Houston and to contribute his seven-foot frame to the Cougar basketball program.

He has acquired an appreciation for American ice cream, jelly beans, and steak, along with blocking shots and grabbing rebounds.

But Olajuwon doesn't like "the step." Any center who ever played for UH Coach Guy Lewis knows about "the step."

It is a power move to the basket that eliminates the dribble, using instead, one giant step and a leap off of one foot. It often is mistaken for traveling.

That's Olajuwon's problem. "I don't have confidence in the step," Olajuwon said. "Every time I use it, I get called for traveling."

Olajuwon will need his footwork Saturday night when the 14th-ranked Cougars host fourth-ranked Arkansas before a capacity crowd in Hofheinz Pavilion in a key Southwest Conference showdown.

Houston, 14-2, leads the SWC with a 5-0 record, but the Hogs are 14-0 and one-half game behind at 4-0. It is no time for a misstep.

Olajuwon spent last summer playing pickup games against Philadelphia 76er center Moses Malone and acquired some of Malone's traits. Malone's move to the basket invariably includes a dribble and jump off two feet.

"Mo taught me about posting up down low," Olajuwon said. "I did it all summer long. But I try to do that here and the coach don't want me to do that. He wants me to use the step."

"I am not confident when I take the step so that's hard for me. I like to put the ball on the floor and take a step, but he (Lewis) doesn't want me to do that."

She clings to X-rated boom

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — The recession or depression or dip or whatever you choose to call it is hurting a lot of businesses. But one that is booming amid the bust is the production of sex films.

"Our business is good," says Marga Aulbach, who makes sex films. "The big studio productions are hurting. Actors are on the headline. But our business just keeps rolling along."

In fact, it is doing a lot more than just rolling along. Because of the impetus of cable television and cassettes, where X-rated movies are big business, sex films are doing better than ever.

Marga Aulbach says that, today, cable and cassettes are opening up "a whole new market, a whole new public" for sex films.

She says that because of the slump in ordinary movies, sex film makers virtually have their choice of actors, directors and technicians. Many actors — not star caliber, of course, but recognizable faces — are happy to work in sex films today. They reason that it's better than the unemployment line.

Marga Aulbach says that is only one factor behind the big change happening with sex films today. There are other factors.

"Our movies are getting better all the time," she believes. "From the kind of things it used to be, what we do now is 'Gone with the Wind.' I've been in the business 14 years now, and the change is incredible. Today's sex films have good stories, we deal with feelings and relationships, not just sex scenes."

She says that in the average sex film today, only about one-third of the footage is devoted to explicit sex scenes. The rest is devoted to a cohesive story.

"Take my own latest film, 'Dancers,'" she says. "It's about three male strippers. It is concerned with them as people, with their conflicts, their involvements. And, of course, their women and their affairs. But it is well-acted and has a good story."

Another factor behind the continuing success of sex films, she believes, is that the average theater showing sex films is maintained better than the average theater showing regular movies.

"The public is becoming aware that it's safe to go to porno movies. Porno theaters, by and large," she claims, "are cleaner than regular theaters."

She thinks the part of the public that has never attended a sex film has a misconception about them, and believes they are all the same, one sex act after another.

"But that's not so," she says. "Our films are changing. Where the majors stop, we go on. We deal in fantasies. And our films are not all the same, any more than regular films are all the same. Our stories differ, our action differs, our quality differs."

Marga Aulbach is a blonde from Germany (where, she says, she grew up in a culture with fewer taboos than in the United States), who came here at 18 and accidentally got a job as a receptionist for a sex film production company. She worked her way up in the industry. Until she started her own production company two years ago, she assisted her brother-in-law, Sidney Niekirk, one of the big names in the sex film field.

Now she makes two or three films a year, and has plans to increase that eventually. She sees nothing wrong with the work she does, or the kind of film she makes.

"I think that violence is the real pornography," she says. "I think we should let people do what they want. The world is so full of so much violence and war and crime — why not show something that's happy?"

Second TV season: little new, much old

By David Handler

A measure of stability has returned to network scheduling. Recent seasons have seen so many swift lineup shuffles and cancellations that you could no longer tell what night your favorite show was on, or if it was indeed on at all anymore.

Meanwhile, overall network viewership has steadily declined.

Despite an undistinguished fall season that has brought us only one really good new show, NBC's "Cheers," and two ratings successes, CBS' "Newhart" and "Gloria," the networks are standing remarkably pat this winter.

That's the big news of the coming second season: very few quick hooks, even though viewership continues to fall.

A heap of shows that doubtless would have been canceled in past seasons — steady bottom-third performers dismissed by both critics and viewers — have survived the cut.

NBC has picked up "Voyagers," "Powers of Matthew Star" and "Knight Rider"; CBS, "Bring 'em Back Alive" and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers"; and ABC, "Ripley's Believe it or Not." There are others.

Why stay with such obvious losers? It's an economy move, largely. It's more expensive to tool up production of a new show — a show that may also be a loser — than it is to stick with what you've got. Only two new shows got the quick hook this fall — CBS' "Tucker the Witch" and ABC's "The Quest." Both were replaced by movies.

Actually, neither CBS nor

ABC is introducing a new show this winter — they're merely recalling programs previously placed "on hiatus." The one CBS cancellation, "Private Benjamin," yields to that horrible "Filthy Rich." ABC has dropped "Joanie Loves Chachi" and "Star of the Family" for "The Greatest American Hero."

Third-place NBC is holding on to its low-rated critical successes — "Fame," "Cheers," "Taxi," "St. Elsewhere" and "Family Ties." In past seasons, they'd be out. NBC is, however, making a few moves.

Gone are "Father Murphy" on Tuesday nights and "Gavilan," to be replaced by "The A Team," a soldier-of-fortune actioner starring George Peppard and Mr. T., and "Bare Essence," a cosmetics industry soap that was formerly a CBS mini-series.

Saturdays, "Love, Sidney" goes on hiatus and "The Devil Connection" gets the boot.

NBC is also breaking up its wonderful Thursday night lineup.

Actor John Aniston as Martin Tourneur on the daytime drama "Search For Tomorrow."

If it weren't for a football injury and a foreign revolution, John Aniston, who plays Martin Tourneur on NBC's "Search For Tomorrow" might never have become an actor.

Back in his junior year in high school, Aniston was avidly pursuing an athletic career until a hip injury sidelined him. For some time, an English teacher had been coaxing Aniston to follow in his two sisters' footsteps to the school stage, but "acting was for sissies," he recalls. "After the doctor told me I couldn't play football, I had nothing else to do, so I tried it (a school play), and I liked it."

During college, an advisor suggested he become a doctor, so Aniston decided to pursue a dual career — drama and medicine.

Aniston took his pre-med studies at California State University at Northridge, but he couldn't get into an American medical school. He left for Greece, near his native Crete (he came to America at age 2) and tried to enroll there. But because of the revolution, the government was overthrown and the university was shut down. Also, "foreign" students weren't that welcome.

As for the character he plays today, Aniston calls Martin Tourneur the 'black sheep' of the southern aristocratic Sentel family. "In one respect he's a throwback to the genteel New Orleans life, and in another he represents the fantasies of the American male. He's a semi-Victorian parallel of the American playboy."

District attorney spurns condemned man's offer

HOUSTON (AP) — Falling interest rates signal the housing industry may be emerging from its three-year slump, says the president of the National Association of Home Builders.

"With falling interest rates, with new sources of mortgage money, with freer access to secondary mortgage markets and with better understanding of the new forms of mortgage instruments, I think the worst is behind us," Fred Napolitano said as his group prepared for its 40th annual convention.

Interest rates for loans for new houses now are fluctuating between 10 percent and 12 1/2 percent, down from 16 1/2 percent a year ago, he said Thursday.

The U.S. Commerce Department reported this week that home builders nationwide had suffered through some rough times as construction of new homes and sales dropped sharply in 1982.

Builders started work last year on 1.061 million new houses, a 2.2 percent decline from the previous year and lowest number since 1946, the department said.

But Napolitano said builders were encouraged by the number of houses started in December.

New construction was up 43 percent in December from the recession low point of October 1981, and building permits for future construction rose through four straight months, the government reported.

"The trend over the last three or four months has been on the upside," Napolitano said.

"If interest rates and prices continue to stabilize, then 1983 will be the year that turns the corner of the most devastating recession since World War II."

But he warned the recovery "won't be like turning on the faucet and having a powerful surge. It will be a slow, steady process."

"During the next 12 months, we should build about 1.4 million units of new housing — 300,000 more than were constructed last year. Next year, that figure should hit 1.6 million and in 1985 reach 1.7 to 1.8 million," he said.

Napolitano, who is from Virginia Beach, Va., predicted the industry would strengthen most in the South, particularly in Texas, Arizona and Florida.

"You have people who are leaving the Snowbelt and moving south. The weather isn't as harsh, it's not as expensive and a lot of oil and high-tech corporations are moving their headquarters there, which makes those areas ultra-strong," he said.

Napolitano said the extent of the industry's woes will be reflected in the attendance at the four-day convention, being held in a city where builders started and sold a record number of single-family houses last year.

Houston Metro-Study, a research firm that monitors the housing market, said builders here started 29,000 single-family homes last year and sold 27,000. That surpassed records set in 1978, when 26,270 homes were started and 24,580 were sold in Houston.

Napolitano estimated about 40,000 people would attend the convention.

"Usually we have about 50,000 members attend. But this year, that number probably will be down because some of our members have gone out of business or bankrupt because they had no work," he said.

The convention is one of the nation's largest trade shows. More than 600 exhibits of the home appliances building equipment will be spread over 17 acres of a complex that includes the Astrodome.

Educational seminars also are planned on building design, sales, finance and federal housing programs.

Home builders head sees end of slump

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A prosecutor says he is not interested in a condemned killer's offer to testify against an alleged accomplice in the slaying of a Port Arthur convenience store clerk.

James David Autry, who was ordered Thursday to die by injection Feb. 21, offered to testify against another man, said his attorney, Charles Carver.

But Jefferson County District Attorney James McGrath spurned the offer.

"I'm not biting," McGrath said. "I've never heard of a person on Death Row who wouldn't grab any straw he could find."

Carver contends it is unfair Autry is condemned for the April 1980 slaying, but John A. Sandifer is not. Sandifer pleaded guilty to an unrelated burglary charge and is serving a seven-year sentence.

Carver said Autry's testimony would not affect his client's case but would delay the execution, set by State District Judge Leonard Giblin.
