Farmers taxed for grain they didn't raise

By BOB FICK

WASHINGTON (AP) - Farm Belt congressmen, trying to reassure their constituents that they won't be unfairly taxed, are rallying behind legislation to void a tax ruling they fear could undermine the administration's entire crop reduction

"This ruling will have the effect of discouraging many farmers from participating in the program," says Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, chairman of the House Agriculture

. "Legislation is urgently needed to help assure that the program will have a maximum chance to succeed in reducing farm surpluses," de la Garza says.

At issue is an Internal Revenue Service decision last week that farmers cutting back production in return for free surplus grain under the government's payment-in-kind, or PIK, program must pay federal taxes on the value of that PIK grain at the time the grain is provided even if they haven't sold it yet and gotten some cash income.

Taxes on grain actually grown by farmers are due when the grain is sold, and the depressed market prices of recent years has prompted producers to withhold crops for months and even years in hopes that prices will finally rebound.

Farmers have until March 11 to decide whether to get into the PIK program or, if they're already in, whether to stay in. Farm leaders say the tax issue could be a key factor in those decisions indicated that legislation to overturn it would be passed but probably not before the end of the PIK sign-up on March 11. But now there is growing optimism that a bill can be on President Ragan's desk before that date.

Shortly after the IRS ruling, congressional leaders

"We've made some progress on this IRS thing," says Dawson Ahalt, acting agriculture undersecretary for commodity programs. "We're pretty confident now that we can get legislation through before the end of the sign-up.

The House Ways and Means Committee, after initial indications that it would move slowly, has now scheduled hearings on the legislation for Wednesday. Sen. Bob Dole. R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and one of the measure's sponsors, says, "We're going to act very Although farmer response to PIK will not be known until after March 11. USDA issued its annual planting intentions report last week that gave some indication how producers are viewing things. It showed they had plans to make huge reductions in acreage this year.

But Ahalt and others say a lot depends on whether the tax'. question is finally resolved before sign-up ends because they fear many farmers won't agree to take as much as half their land out of production on only a promise that they'll be protected at a later date.

"A quick resolution of this is necessary for it could significantly impact on participation." Dole says. "We need as much participation as we can get so that these stocks can be reduced and the recovery in the farm economy can get Saudi oil cut could mean paying less than a dollar for gasoline...

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (AP) — OPEC oil ministers from four Persian Gulf countries met privately today to consider matching or undercutting price reductions by three other nations trying to beat an international oil glut.

A Saudi newspaper reported the Arab oil producers planned to slash their prices by as much as $7 a barrel.

Today's emergency meeting was supposed to include all six members of the Saudi-led Gulf Cooperation Council states, according to a council announcement. But only oil ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar attended. Bahrain and Oman, which are not OPEC members, did not show up

The absences sparked predictions of an immediate price

Such a move could ignite a worldwide price war, lowering gas prices for American motorists but making it harder for Third World oil-producers to repay their foreign debts.

To be competitive, industry analysts say, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries must drop its price of $34 a barrel. The 13-nation cartel controlled international oil prices in the 1970s but has lost some clout since then because of internal rivalries and a smaller market.

To be competitive, industry analysts say, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries must drop its price of $34 a barrel. The 13-nation cartel controlled international oil prices in the 1970s but has lost some clout since then because of internal rivalries and a smaller market.

Nigeria was the first OPEC member to break ranks when on Sunday it lowered its price by $5.50 to $30 a barrel. Its decision came after non-OPEC members. Britain and Norway, cut their price to $30 a barrel for North Sea Crude, the African nation's main competitor in the European oil

The state-run Saudi Press Agency reported that ministers of the Gulf Coordination Council meeting here would discuss 'current trends in the petroleum market" because of the action taken by Nigeria, Britain and Norway.

Saudi sources said the official announcement that the entire council would meet clearly indicated a price cut is

The council includes four OPEC members — Saudi Arabia. Kuwait, Qatar, and the United Arab Emirates - as well as Bahrain and Oman

Without saying when the action would take effect, the authoritative Saudi newspaper Asharq al Awsat said the council's ministers would cut prices between $5.50 and $7 per barrel "to maintain competitive levels after the North Sea and Nigerian reductions.

"The present structure has been debilitated after Nigeria violated it in a manner that surpassed all expectations." the

The report also said OPEC's troubleshooting committee composed of Algeria. Indonesia. Venezuela and the United Arab Emirates - might meet soon "to define a general framework for OPEC's future movements, since its present price structure has become vulnerable to total collapse as a result of Nigeria's decision.

The looming price war would help U.S. consumers because each $1 drop in the price of a barrel of crude oil represents a 21/2-cent drop at the pump. Third World oil-producers, however, would be hurt by price reductions because income from petroleum sales are used to pay off foreign debts.

In Mexico, the state oil monopoly Pemex said it would announce official prices no later than Friday after negotiations with its oil customers. Mexico, not a member of OPEC, set its price for its lighter crude at $32.50 a barrel on March 1, 1982. Previously it was $35.

but it could hurt the local oilfield business as well

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO Staff Writer

If OPEC. (the Oil Producing and Exporting Countries) drops its price for crude oil from $34 a barrel to $27 or $29, one of the negative effects will be a hardship on the Panhandle's oilfields and related industries, according to local producers and industry spokesmen.

E.C. Sidwell, a local producer, said the expected OPEC price cuts will be hard on the independent oil producers. He said he doesn't expect the price to drop to more than $22 a harrel and climb from there.

"I think it will hurt local firms, because it causes a stagnation of development and exploration," he said.

But Sidwell also said the Panhandle will probably not lose many jobs because of the price reduction, as most companies are operating with lean staffs now.

Vic Raymond, general manager of Ingersoll-Rand, Inc. in Pampa said his company will probably not be seriously affected by the price cuts if they come through, since most of the equipment manufictured by I-R is not used in the

Raymond also said the oilfields are at the end of the recovery train, that many other industries have to show some signs of recovery before oilfield-related businesses will. He also cited a dropping demand for the cutbacks already made in the oilfield industry.

"An awful lot of demand has to be built up so that a lot of people, a large number of independents and majors, explore for and drill new wells, before they put much of a demand on our customers, the contractors," Raymond said this

He said that, in the short-term, any move that reduces the demand for oil is "not terribly good for our business out

"In the long term, it's good, I think, for the national economy if it helps to hold inflation and fuel recovery, and in the long run, it'll be good for us.

Raymnond said no layoffs are anticipated at I-R because of the expected price drop, because it would take a dramatic drop in companies deciding to drill before I-R would be affected that way. He also said he wasn't sure the price cuts. if implemented, would be passed on to consumers in the form of lower gas or oil prices. Cabot Petroleum spokesman Jan Dilbeck said that Cabot is concerned about falling oil prices because they may mean less revenue to Cabot, and therefore decrease the taxes that companies pay to states and the federal government and will also reduce drilling.

"If we have less money coming in, that means we'll have to reduce our drilling program. Most companies traditionally take most of their profits and turn around and reinvest them in new drilling programs," she said this

Stan Burnham, plant operations manager for Cabot Carbon Black, said the oil price drop will probably not affect

Pampa Cabot employees right away. "People have to believe it first." he said

He cited decontrol of oil companies as the main reason why companies wanted to explore more, and with high prices consumers bought less, and supply got higher than demand, which tends to drive prices down.

Roger Schram of Diamond Shamrock in Amarillo said a $5 to $7 drop in Arabian prices would make OPEC nations competitive with British and Nigerian prices, which were dropped $3.50 and $5.50 respectively recently.

He also pointed out that since domestic crude oil dropped from $32 to $30 a barrel around February 1. American companies would be competitive with the proposed drop in OPEC prices. He said the price dropped because there was an oversupply of crude in the market.

Schram said gas prices will probably not drop significantly even if the OPEC reductions do go into effect. because crude price cuts usually follow product price drops. Gas prices drop first, then crude prices, he said.

He also said the recent workforce reductions in Amarillo and Dumas were mainly early retirements and a "streamlining" of operations and not directly attributed to the recession or any particular trouble in the oil industry. Dennis Kuempel, a local independent producer, said the drop in prices will definitely hurt independent drillers in the area, but he feels it won't hurt Panhandle drillers as much as producers in other areas like the Permian Basin Kuempel also said that his business, Energy-Agri, will probably not suffer as much because most of its revenue comes from casinghead gas, not crude oil

Al Hegburg, in government relations at Phillips Petroleum in Bartlesville, Okla, said he deals with international oil produces frequently, and he expects the Arabian Gulf producers to come down on the price. The question on the international market is how much, he says, and whether it will level off at a certain price or continue to drop.

Hegburg said Middle Eastern countries appear to be "realigning their prices to U.S. prices," a situation that is unique for the oil industry. This means the U.S. domestic market is setting the prices, which is quite a bit of change.

"In a tight market, OPEC has tremendous leverage because it is the marginal barrel, and it exploits others, while in a soft market, it is exploited.

Hegburg cites the reasons for the drops as the recession, and a "structural shift" away from oil, with Americans using other types of energy instead of oil.

"Oil's position in the world had eroded. In certain markets in the U.S. oil is the dominant fuel in other markets, it's sort of a residual fuel. In the world as a whole, oil's role is declining, partly because of response to price, there has been conservation and there has been fuel-switching to other

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court today agreed to consider reinstating the robbery conviction of a Texas man who, over his objection, received a court-appointed lawyer's help.

The court said it will use Carl Wiggins' case to decide whether such imposed help violates criminal defendants' constitutional right to serve as their own lawyers. Wiggins was convicted of robbing at gunpoint a San

Chinatown suspect once charged in another multiple shooting

SEATTLE (AP) — One of two men being held without bail in the Chinatown gambling club massacre of 13 people was charged two years ago in the shooting of four young men but the case was dropped for lack of evidence, officials say.

A second-degree assault charge against Benjamin Ng. 20. was dismissed in the Jan. 5, 1981, shooting before the case reached trial in juvenile court, according to police records.

Police would not talk Monday about either shooting. except to say there were no developments in the search for a third man wanted in the Chinatown massacre. But Mayor Charles Royer said he was told the 1981 case was dismissed for "insufficient evidence.

Ng was arrested Saturday within hours of the massacre at the Wah Mee Club. Also arrested and held for investigation of homicide was Kwan "Willie" Mak, 22, who has no previous arrest record.

Ng and Mak were born in Hong Kong and came to the United States five to seven years ago.

On Monday, District Court Judge Betty Taylor Howard ordered them held without bail pending formal charges in King County Superior Court expected by Thursday.

Police said all 13 victims, 12 men and one woman, had been shot one or more times in the head. All but one were "hog-tied" hand and foot. Police found the bodies in a sea of blood after one man staggered into an alley outside the club on the south edge of Seattle's downtown, not far from the

Need a job? Hamilton County needs deputies...and a new county sheriff

HAMILTON. Texas (AP) - Hamilton police, a Texas Ranger and a Texas Highway Patrol officer are protecting the 840 square miles of Hamilton County because the Sheriff's Department has no sheriff.

It also has no deputies.

John Harvey, sheriff for four years in the Central Texas county, said he resigned Monday because low wages had driven off all his deputies, leaving him with an unbearable workload and ill-feelings toward city councilmen forced to make budget reductions when voters cut the tax rate nearly in half.

"Fighting the county is harder than fighting the criminals," Harvey said. "You've got to have money and you've got to get and keep qualified people. At $920 a month (for deputies), I couldn't keep them.

Hamilton County was the scene of a taxpayer's revolt that forced a rollback of taxes when county commissioners were seeking an 80 percent tax increase. The commissioners lightened their budget by eliminating benefits to county employees and imposing a hiring freeze.

"It was just too many hours and only one man," Harvey said. "My jailer resigned a week ago Saturday. My two deputies resigned last week. They had a freeze on hiring and I was putting in 160 to 180 hours or better every two weeks." County Judge Betty Jenkins said the county was dispatching Hamilton city police, a Texas Ranger and a Texas Highway Patrol officer to calls. Ms. Jenkins said the commissioners decided Monday afternoon to begin interviews today for the sheriff's job.

"I feel just as safe in Hamilton County as I did last night and as I did last week," she said.

But Harvey, 44, said he didn't think the 8,500 Hamilton County residents didn't feel as secure. "Let's put it this way - I'm going to guard my property pretty close," he said.

Voters in Hamilton County, located about 100 miles southwest of Dallas, passed a referendum in December calling on the county to cut its tax rate from a proposed 29 cents per $100 valuation to 15.6 cents per $100.

Passage of DWI bills urged

AUSTIN (AP) - Most witnesses urged lawmakers to pass tougher laws against drunken drivers, including one woman who made an emotional appeal on behalf of her mother, a DWI fatality.

But one witness who testified Monday before the Senate State Affairs Committee hearing several DWI bills warned lawmakers not to go "too far."

Defense attorney Roy Minton of Austin said Texas simply needs to enforce the current laws.

Some senators, as well as observers in the crowded Senate chamber Monday. wore buttons saying, "Save a Life, SB 1, 2, 3." Others held up signs in the balcony that said, "Stop DWI, Vote for SB 1, 2, 3."

Senate bills 1, 2 and 3, were sponsored by Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford. Other senators who presented anti-DWI bills to the State Affairs Committee were Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso; Ted Lyon, D-Mesquite; and Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville.

Committee chairman Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, said all eight DWI bills would go to a subcommittee, which would be asked to make a report within two weeks.

Basically, the DWI bills would increase penalties. make it more difficult to get probated sentences and provide for driver's license suspensions.

Minton warned committee members not to abolish "deferred adjudication," a form of probation that allows a defendant to get his record wiped clean if he stays out of trouble for a period of time.

"That's the strongest prosecutorial tool we have today." said Minton, a former

Inmate's death ruled suicide

HEREFORD, Texas (AP) - A 20-year-old burglary suspect fashioned a noose from his coveralls and hanged himself in his jail cell, officials say.

George Ramirez Jr., who was being held on $3,500 bond. apparently did not leave a note and gave no indication of his suicide plans, although he talked to a jailer and an inmate only minutes before taking his own life early Sunday. Deaf Smith County officials said.

Ramirez was found hanging in his cell at 2 a.m. by another inmate. He was pronounced dead about two hours later at Deaf Smith General Hospital.

Justice of the Peace O.K. Neal said he ruled the death a

Taxmen abhor a vacuum

Some people just can't leave well enough alone. Now that OPEC appears to be crumbling, due to a combination of conservation, recession and market place pricing working its not so mysterious "magic," some people want the U.S. government to get into the business of socking it to U.S. consumers. If OPEC's scam is crumbling and prices are falling, now's the time to slap a tax on imported oil, say some.

Hasn't OPEC pushed us around long enough? Why, when the benefits or marketplace pricing are just about ready to be felt by the consumer, are some people so eager to snatch them away to fatten the coffers of government?

The usual excuse for a tax on imported oil is to sock it to OPEC a little harder and preserve some will - o' - the wisp known as "price stability." Occasionally a pseudosophisticate will drop a few ominous words about dislocations in international markets and expect the rubes to be impressed with his vocabulary

It all amounts to a thinly disguised snow job. Those who advocate an oil import tax want the government to hart consumers by making life more expensive and seizing more money for itself

Price stability is not a good in itself, except insofar as it makes the task of self - appointed observers of trends a fittle simpler. When government stays out of the business of affecting (almost always by raising) prices, fluctuations in price reflect fluctuations in supply and emand for a given commodity.

Price fluctuations are simply reflections of the way things really are out there in the messy, untidy real world. When some authority imposes price "stability," that represents an effort to prevent reality from intruding on a tidy plan. The price that is inevitably paid later is always higher than the temporary inconvenience of a few fluctuations.

If a tax is imposed on imported oil, can anybody magine that the higher price for imported oil won't come an informal "floor price" for domestic oil? There may be enough competition to keep domestic oil prices a little lower than the imported stuff. But you may be sure that if imported oil is taxed, domestic oil will be nore expensive than it would be without that tax.

The most cynical argument of the tax advocates is that since petroleum prices are going down, consumers won't mind a new tax, since they'll end up paying about the same as current prices.

Do you believe gas and oil prices are just exactly Where they ought to be? Do you believe you wouldn't be better off if they were a little lower? Do you have a hard time imagining what you might do with the extra money ypu'd have if gas prices were lower? Do you believe that economic recovery and job creation wouldn't be stimulated by the increased money that would be available if petroleum prices were lower?

If so, you'll love a new tax. If not, you may want to tell the tax advocates where they can put their proposal.

NEW YORK (NEA) - The most striking fact about President Reagan, as revealed in his State of the Union message to Congress, is how little his convictions and his policies have changed. His critics in the Democratic party and the Washington press corps (as if there's a difference) will try to portray this as blind stubborness in the teeth of disagreeable facts. But, in truth, they would have been much happier if he had changed course, for then he could be pictured as staggering haplessly from one policy to another, without either a clear notion of what is wrong or the foggiest idea of how to correct

Bear in mind that the name of the game in Washington is money - your money: how much it to take away from you, and what to spend it on. At the ry outset of his administration, and despite the urgent d for a fast and expendefenses, Mr. Reagan sive build-up in our deterioration demanded, and got, sharp, across-the-board decreases in income taxes for the next three fiscal years. That reflected his firm conviction that the government was taking far too much money from the American people for either their health or its own. He also demanded, and bot, impressive reductions in the rate of growth, and in some cases in the actual level, of domestic spending.

Unluckily for Mr. Reagan, the outset of his administration coincided with the onset of a major recession in this country, partly reflecting worldwide trends and partly induced by the double-digit inflation and 21 percent interest rates generated by the reckless policies of decades of Democratic Congresses. This development frustrated Mr. Reagan's perfectly reasonable hope - which he had expressed repeatedly during the 1980 campaign - that a quick economic upsurge, stimulated by the prospect of lower taxes, would bring in enough tax revenues, even at the lower rates and despite higher defense expenditures, to balance the budget. Instead, projected budget deficits ballooned to record dimensions.

This gave those who favor increases, or at least no further cuts, in domestic expenditures (and broadly speaking that means the Democrats) the handle they had been looking for. Professing to be appalled at the size of these projected deficits, they have called for the reduction or elimination of Mr. Reagan's tax cuts. In this, they have had the cooperation of a good many conservative economists, businessmen and Republican congressional leaders who sincerely fear that the projected deficits will reignite inflation, drive up interest rates and derail the nation's economic recovery.

The trouble is nat Democrats like Tip O'Neill haven't the slightest intention of using the revenues a tax hike might generate for any such unexciting purpose as reducing the budget deficit, least of all in the administration of what O'Neill regards as an "enemy" president. Once they have suckered the conservative Republicans into helping them overpower Mr. Reagan and raise taxes, they will insist on sluicing the proceeds straight into the eager hands of their importunate constituents, and let Mr. Reagan and his fellow conservatives cope with the deficit as best they can.

President Reagan knows this very well, however, and it is quite extraordinary how little his program yields to his opponents, despite its careful appeal for bipartisanship and its overall tone of reasonableness. Some White House sources estimate that Mr. Reagan's proposed freeze on domestic spending would result in a 3 percent "real" (i.e. inflationadjusted) reduction in such expenditures. Meanwhile, though appeasing critics of the Pentagon by proposing a $55 billion cut in its budget over the next five years, Mr. Reagan endorses "real" increases in defense spending amounting to about 9 percent in fiscal 1984.

Most surprising of all, the president - despite all the rumors to the contrary — remains adamant against any change in currently scheduled near-term tax reductions. He does endorse a "standby" tax increase beginning in fiscal 1986 - but only if his own goals for the economy are not met by then. It is obvious that, if he can help it, the standby tax will never take effect.

All in all, it was the speech of a man who still believes what he used to believe, and who is determined to continue the policies that he thinks will bring about permanent changes for the better. He is willing to compromise where necessary, but not to throw in the towel, and he is convinced that, in the long run, a majority of the American people are

Nuclear season

By ART BUCHWALD

We just got a Christmas card and letter from an old friend, Virginia Floogle. It made me realize that not everyone is spending their holidays as they have in the past.

I guess you're surprised to see the name Klingle instead of Floogle on the envelope. Well, George and I were divorced last summer and I married a wonderful man named Henry Klingle. George married a woman named Marietta Hagler who is 20 year younger than he is, and quite mousey looking.

The children are all well. Robert, our youngest, is spending the holidays with his father, and Susan, my Henry's youngest daughter, is spending them with us, as her mother wants to go skiing with her boyfriend. Jeff, my oldest boy, has gone to his fiancee's house to meet her mother and

Jeff's financee is a wonderful girl. Her father lives in San Francisco with his third wife and is a broker. Her present stepfather went to Princeton about the same time as my present husband Henry, and although they didn't know each other at the time, we feel better that the stepfathers at least went to the same school

Franny, our middle child, is living with us since she broke up with David. She's now going with a married man named Sam, who is separated from his wife. But Franny doesn't want to move in with him until the divorce papers are signed. We're happy to have her as her baby is very cute.

Charlene was coming home for the holidays, but she was invited to go to the Virgin Islands with a girlfriend in her office and one of the vice presidents of the firm whom the girl

We've decided not to make a big deal of New Year's Eve this year. Wilma Edelstein, I guess you knew her when she was Wilma Morton, is coming down as she just broke up with some fellow named Mike. This was after she moved out on Ed Edelstein, when she discovered he had a stewardess friend in Laguna Beach and was constantly making

"business trips" to California

We thought to cheer Wilma up we'd invite the Thompsons over. You remember Carol Wingate, don't you? Well, Carol left Ben Wingate eight months ago and married Don Thompson, an architect. Ben has remained a bachelor but we rarely see him any more, though I understand he keeps in touch with my ex - husband George. Those two animals have a lot in common.

There isn't too much to report except for the fact that Henry and I are deliriously happy. Of course we can't live it up until Henry's wife gets married again so he can stop his alimony support. Frankly, I think she purposely is not getting married because Henry gives her more money than her ski bum friend ever could.

I ran into Dick Lipscomb the other night. He was with a tall redhead so I didn't bother to ask him how Frieda was, though the way they were both hanging on to each other, it wasn't hard to guess

Have you heard anything from the Harts? I sent her a Christmas card at her last address and it was returned

"Addressee Unknown." I knew they weren't hitting it off but you would have thought if she ditched Al, she would have left a forwarding

Would love to hear from you two - or at least one of you whoeve is still living in the house. Ha, ha, ha. That was a oke. Have a wonderful holiday. The next time we're in Washington I want you to meet Henry. Now I have to go and wrap presents for everyone.

One more not of gossip. Remember our shepherd dog Cokey? He used to play with Terry Kelly's shepherd "Britches" and we always thought we'd get a litter out of it. But last summer Cokey took up with a Collie that moved in next door and Terry now thinks we're awful people if we can't even keep our dog under control. -- Love, Ginny

House panel to vote on Social Security plan

WASHINGTON (AP) - The first votes in Congress on a explanation of the reform commission recommendations for employees have claimed that bringing new government bipartisan Social Security rescue plan are at hand as tax-writers piece together legislation for the full House to consider next month.

The House Ways and Means subcommittee on Social Security was beginning work today on drafting a measure Social Security Reform.

The full Ways and Means Committee then will consider the package next week and a vote in the full House is expected by March 10

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee was continuing its examination of the reform commission package today. Aides said the House panel first would receive a review and higher payroll taxes, a six-month delay in cost-of-living increases in benefits, a levy on some retirees' benefits and inclusion of new federal workers under Social Security.

These elements are expected to become part of the legislation — with only technical or cosmetic changes — since backed by Reagan and O'Neill. based on the recommendations of the National Commission on they were part of the bipartisan package for which 12 of the 15 of President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. workers into Social Security will bankrupt civil service retirement plans.

However, the most explosive issues facing the tax writers are likely to be items not included in the consensus plan

These include whether to raise the retirement from 65 to 66, reform commission members voted. The plan has the backing and whether to adopt a "fail-safe" mechanism to guard against any severe economic downturn that could threaten the solvency of Social Security through the decade.

The House panel is beginning work armed with revised government figures showing the reform commission package is smaller than first estimated and Social Security's long-term deficit is larger than previously thought.

Dear Abby

Public restrooms provoke mother's private dilemma

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Today my jaw dropped! While sitting in the local cafe having coffee with my husband and our 21/2year-old daughter, "Cindy," we were approached by the owner of the cafe, who told us of a complaint he had about us the previous evening.

My husband, who has always shared in the care of our daughter, had taken Cindy to the "potty" in the men's room. There is only one stall, and while they were occupying it, another gentlemen had need for the facilities, so he poked his head in. My husband informed him that they would be out in a minute.

The other customer promptly complained to the owner, saying little girls should use the women's facilities. The owner then told my husband that in the future he should not take Cindy into the men's room - either I would have to take her to the ladies' restroom or she would have to go

What is the rule on this? Is it written somewhere that only women are allowed to take their children to the bathroom in a public place? And then only to the women's room?

How do mothers of sons - or single fathers of daughters - handle this?

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading about when a cowboy should take off his hat. Most men who wear western hats (and they're not all cowboys) wear them indoors.

When you invest $100 in a hat and $50 in the band, you don't take it off indoors. If you do, someone invariably sits on it, steals it, or some drunk wanders up, puts it on, and you have to dismantle his body to get it back.

In the movie "Smokey and the Bandit," Burt Reynolds, who always wore a cowboy hat, said, "I take my hat off for only one thing.

Grimsley's message that night concerned ways of living "on top of life's circumstances" rather than allowing life to pull a person down. He said three things are needed to achieve this: 1) goals, 2) strategies and 3) motivation or as he described

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The key to success today is to stick to proven methods, even if they are plodding and try your patience. Shortcuts could lead to dead ends. 1983 predictions for Pisces are now ready. Send $1 to Astro-Graph Box 489, Radio City Station 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign. Send an additional $2 for the NEW Astro-Graph Matchmaker wheel and booklet. Reveals romantic combinations and compatibilities for all signs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Disregard hearsay information today in matters affecting your only that which is factual to its best advantage.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Associates who rejected your proposals yesterday could be more compliant today. It might be worth your while to restate your propositions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Circumstances with a direct bearing on your finances or career appear favorable today. Instead of being hesitant, move boldly in these areas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your ideas will be better received by persons in authority today than they will be by their subordinates. Try to avoid using intermediaries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Companions will find you are a good person to turn to today if they need help in solving problems. You're capable of providing answers they can't. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Others can be swayed to move in your direction today if you define your objectives in practi-cal terms. Make your presentation brief and to the point.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Personal ambitions can be advanced today, provided you're capable of doing, don't get off on tangents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

Your good judgment and selfdiscipline will serve you well in many situations today, but they desert you in your financial affairs SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) One way to assure your needs will be looked out for today is to first look out for the needs of others. Kindness generates a reciprocal action. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The signs look encouraging today if you are embarking on a new project or venture. However, timing is vital so keep everything in proper phase.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Your possibilities for personal gain look encouraging today, but you mustn't let unrealistic expectations cause you to make the wrong moves.

Woman takes Sullivan

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Track star Mary Decker Tabb. recognized as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete for 1982, sees her selection for the Sullivan Award as a boost for all women in sports.

"The Sullivan is the most prestigious award anyone can win," Tabb said after Monday night's announcement at the Indianapolis Convention Center. "My career is so young still. and I haven't reached my potential. So winning this is a great honor. Men have dominated the Sullivan for so long, but that's because until recently there haven't really been many women

Tabb. 24. also named the 1982 Associated Press Female Athlete of the Year, is the sixth woman to win the Sullivan Award, named for a founder of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union and has been presented annually since 1930 by the AAU.

The first female winner was swimmer Ann Curtis in 1944. Others were diver Patricia McCormick in 1956, track star Wilma Rudolph in 1960 and swimmers Deborah Meyer in 1968 and Tracy Caulkins in 1978.

"There are a lot of young girls out there in athletics," Tabb said. "They should be able to look up to someone, and I'm proud they can look up to me."

Tabb, a native of Flemington, N.J., who now lives in Eugene, Ore., received 1,723 points in the nationwide voting by sports writers, members of the AAU and past winners. Second place, with 1,037 points, went to distance runner Alberto Salazar, and finishing third for the second time in three years was skier Phil Mahre with 979 points. The point totals for only the top three finishers were announced.

- A child with an eyeball partly gouged out by an arrow spoke to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi about the 19-day anti-election massacre that killed some 1.400 people in the northeastern state of Assam.

Mrs. Gandhi flew to the blood-soaked region on Monday for a six-hour visit and went to a refugee camp for 2.000 survivors, most of them Moslems with roots in neighboring Bangladesh.

The child was among those who stepped forward when Mrs. Gandhi, brushing aside her aides, asked people to tell her what happened when Hindu tribesmen wielding hatchets. arrows and spears rampaged through their villages. All-India radio reported.

The radio reporter, one of the few allowed to accompany Mrs. Gandhi. said the Bengali survivors asked the 65-year-old prime minister for protection by national security forces instead of the state police.

The violence, beginning with the slayings of more than 430 people, culminated in the massacre last Friday of as many as 1,000 men, women and children in 17 villages of

Pampa men enroute to Australia

Two Pampa residents are included in a group of six men representing business and agriculture in West Texas who left Lubbock Monday for a seven - week tour of Australia

An international venture of Rotary, the visit will repay a tour of West Texas last year by a similiar team from New South Wales. The program is designed to foster better understanding between enterprising young men of various nmationalities.

A past president of Pampa Rotary. Don Nelson is leading the delegation. One of the team members is David Crawford, local retail merchant.

Other team members include: Len Newsom, a business manager from Midland; Britt Birdwell, a Muleshoe farmer; Stan Smith, a ranch manager from Odessa; and Len Newsom, a Midland horticulturist.

Nelson, of 311 N Somerville, is director of vocational programs of the Pampa Public Schools. Crawford, of 311 N. Somerville, is associated with Hub Clothiers.

The group is scheduled to arrive on Australian soil at Sydney Friday.

While "down under" the team will study business. farming and manufacturing processes while touring extensively in Rotary Distgrict 970, New South Wales. They will be hosted by Rotarians and will stay in private homes.

Coordinating the exchange program was Rotary District 573 Governor John R. Collard Jr. of Spearman.

More bodies pulled from train wreckage

GUAYMAS, Mexico (AP) - Police and rescue workers searched for more victims today after recovering 56 bodies from the twisted wreckage of a passenger train that was rammed by a freight train, authorities said.

"The bodies are still coming out." Red Cross spokesman Antonio Grijalva Diaz said Monday night. He said a total of 78 people were injured in the crash.

The passenger train had been en route from Nogales on the U.S. border to Guadalajara, in central Mexico, and there was speculation that some Americans had been aboard.

Grijalva said at least three foreigners" were among the jured, but their names were not available and the report ald not be confirmed.

A duty officer at the U.S. bassy in Mexico City hearing "rumors"

the Nelli area 450 miles northeast of Calcutta. Troops moved into the Nelli area on Monday, but 31 more deaths were reported in other parts of the state.

Reports from the area said the Hindu tribesmen attacked because Moslem villagers voted in defiance of an election boycott declared by the Assamese Movement.

movement demands all Bengalis be removed from the voting lists and expelled from Assam, arguing that they will dominate the state culturally and politically.

Voting in the staggered election for 126 state assembly seats started Feb. 14 and officially ended Monday. Mrs. Gandhi's

The predominantly Hindu Congress Party was assured of victory because of a low turnout resulting from the violence and the election boycott

The 1980 India-wide elections could not be held in Assam because of anti-Bengali protests, and Mrs. Gandhi imposed direct federal rule in the state last March.

Millions of West Europeans are illiterate ANTWERP, Belgium (AP) - At 52 years old, Maria still hears the taunting of her fourth grade classmates. Unable to keep up with them, she sat in the back row of the classroom for two weeks, then guit school at 12 years old.

Born 12th and last to a poor farming family, Maria became a maid for rich folks at a mansion and stayed for 20 years. Then she did another 20-year stint at a second household.

Until she started taking literacy classes three years ago, she was illiterate like five of her brothers and sisters.

Now she can write simple sentences. Life without an alphabet was "like being blind," said Maria, who agreed to be identified only by her first name. 'Now I can see.'

"As a maid I always shopped by recognizing bottles and boxes. I was always tense, always afraid that in the post office or bank I would have to fill out forms," said Maria. "I lied to officials and said I had forgotten my glasses and could you fill this out for me, please?"

Last year a European Parliament report estimated that "between 4 and 6 percent of the population, meaning 10 to 15 million people are illiterate" in the 10 European Common
