

Jack Coble faces IRS charges of not filing income tax returns

By JEANTIERNEY
Of the News

Jack D. Coble of Pampa was indicted March 9 by a federal grand jury in Amarillo for not filing income tax returns for 1976 and 1977, the Internal Revenue Service said this week.

The same day, a former Pampa couple was sentenced by an Amarillo federal court to a year in prison and fined $5,000 for intentionally not filing returns for 1977 and 1978, the United States Attorney's Office in Fort Worth announced.

Floyd D. Brobst, 43, and his wife, Sydney Jo Brobst, 42, were each sentenced to a total of 2 years' imprisonment and fines of $10,000, the U.S. Attorney's office said. However, one year and $5,000 of each's sentence were suspended pending completion of five years' probation to be served after their release from the federal penitentiary.

The Brobsts have appealed the ruling, and Judge Mary Lou Robinson has postponed execution of the sentences pending appeal. Floyd Brobst worked as a production supervisor for Gulf Oil Corp. while in Pampa, and his wife was an elementary school teacher here.

Jack Coble, 43, of Coble Motors, refused to comment today on his indictment.

The IRS District Office in Dallas said the indictment charges that Coble earned a gross income of $68,052.92 in 1976 and $19,552.84 in 1977 but filed no return for either year. Assistant U.S. Attorney Gary Kleinschmidt of the Dallas

District Office confirmed the indictment Wednesday, adding only "he did not file a return."

The penalty for failing to file income tax returns is a maximum prison sentence of one year, a $10,000 fine, or both, for each count, the IRS said.

Coble said today that his attorney, a Phoenix lawyer, would not comment on the indictment. "I didn't have anything to do with this, as far as the allegations are concerned," Coble added. "I hired him (the Phoenix attorney) about three years ago because I knew he had specialized in tax problems."

Floyd and Sydney Brobst, said the U.S. Attorney's Office, belonged to United Tax Action Patriots during the mid-70s, an income tax protest group. During their February jury trial in Amarillo federal court, testimony showed that they mailed returns to the IRS but filled in the blanks with simply "Object — self-incrimination" instead of supplying income figures, the IRS said.

The Brobsts testified then that "they had presented their returns in that manner to preserve their Fifth Amendment rights," the U.S. Attorney's Office said.

The couple's combined gross income for 1977 was $32,140.76, the IRS said, and for 1978 $36,140.38.

During their probation period, Judge Robinson ruled, they must file accurate tax returns, separate themselves from any group advocating violation of IRS laws and "refrain from encouraging others to violate those laws."

Dallas hotel fire hurts five

By TERRY LEONARD

DALLAS (AP) — A four-alarm fire broke out early today at the high-rise Regent Hotel, injuring five people and forcing the evacuation of 110 guests, authorities said.

The smoky blaze began shortly before 4 a.m. in the lobby, authorities said. Smoke filled all 13 floors of the hotel, and firefighters used axes to break out windows and ventilate upper floors.

Hotel guests were evacuated from all 93 occupied rooms and several of them were plucked from balconies, said fire operations chief Mike Freeman. Some guests used wet towels to cover their faces and shield themselves from the smoke as they fled.

Rescuers in a police helicopter repeatedly circled the building, using a public address system to give emergency instructions.

"There were three people who were on the ledge of the second floor," said fire department spokeswoman J.J. Howe. "The police helicopter told them not to jump, that they would be rescued, and the fire department did rescue them from the ledge."

Two of the injured were in fair condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital, where they were being treated for smoke inhalation, said head nurse Susan Martin. Two others were treated for smoke inhalation and released. Hospital officials declined to release the names of the injured until their relatives were notified.

A fifth person was cut by flying glass but did not require hospitalization, said fire dispatcher Mike Roach.

The fire was tapped out at 5:15 a.m. by 77 firefighters using 17 pieces of equipment, Ms. Howe said. Damage was estimated at $500,000.

Authorities were investigating the cause of the fire, which heavily damaged the lobby. Deputy Fire Chief Barry Gardner said the building "was charged with smoke from top to bottom."

He said firefighters conducted a floor-by-floor search and evacuated guests through front doors, by staircases and on fire ladders.

A blaze Jan. 14, 1982 caused $250,000 in damage to the hotel, Ms. Howe said.

Accused burglar is accused again, and...

By JULIA CLARK

Ricky Earl Mullins, already out on $1500 bond for burglarizing Sexton's Grocery, was arrested Wednesday on warrants charging him with burglary of Tom Rose Motor Company and Lovett Memorial Library.

Mullins, 19, of 1221 E. Francis was arrested by Det. Oren Potter of the Pampa police department and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge. Bond was set at $20,000 on each charge, for a total of $40,000. He is currently in the Pampa City Jail, awaiting transfer to the county jail.

According to the police, on March 3, Mullins allegedly broke into the car dealership, took the keys to a car, and then allegedly took a car from the premises. On the same day, it is alleged Mullins broke into the library and took various items, among them, a projector and a cassette tape. The car, projector and cassette tape have been recovered.

According to court records, Mullins was arrested on February 14 on warrants charging him with burglary of Sexton's Grocery and shoplifting. He was arraigned that same day and bond was set at $1,500 and $1,000, respectively. According to the county jail record, on February 15 Mullins was released on $1,500 bond.

Clarendon woman dies under her car wheels

By LORI ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

CLARENDON - Gurrie Easterling Stewart, 71, of Clarendon, died Thursday after being pinned under the wheels of her car for nearly 15 hours.

Mrs. Stewart died from shock and exposure. She was pinned under her car after she tried to stop it from rolling down her driveway after she got out to open the garage door. When she was unable to stop the car from rolling, she was pinned under the wheels.

She was discovered about 10 a.m. Thursday, and taken to Gilkey's Clinic in Clarendon, and transferred shortly afterward to the Amarillo Emergency Receiving Center at Northwest Texas Hospital. She died there at about 1:50 p.m. Thursday.

Services are pending with Robertson Funeral Directors of Clarendon.

Mrs. Stewart was born March 2, 1912 in Abbott, and married the late Dr. John Gordon Stewart on Nov. 17, 1941. She moved to Clarendon shortly afterward. She was a member of the United Presbyterian Church, and was a schoolteacher and homemaker.

Survivors include two sons, Larry Stewart of Houston and Dennis Stewart of Amarillo; two sisters, Effie Easterling of Kingsland and Dorcas Kelly of Dallas; two brothers, Wayne Easterling of Dallas and Estes Easterling of Kingsland; and four grandchildren.

Longhorns are back Wheeler sale heralds return of ancient cattle

By ANTHONY RANLDES

WHEELER - They're coming back, like ghosts of the past, but they're back to stay this time.

For those who have the time this afternoon, Wheeler will host the largest sale of Texas Longhorn cattle in its county since the gangly leftovers from the early Conquistadors vanished from the short Panhandle grass about a century ago.

Harvey and Lois Puryear became interested in raising Longhorn cattle a few years ago, when the breed began being popular for providing herd bulls for first-calf heifers. They now have Longhorns "all over Wheeler County," and figure largely in the official journals of the breed as one of the more substantial Longhorn ranches in Texas.

Their sale will begin at 5 p.m. at the 4H-FFA Activity Barn in Wheeler, and visitors are welcome. Fifty lots of cattle will be sold.

Longhorn cattle do everything well, except turning grass into beef efficiently. It was for this reason that the European breeds quickly shoved them off the range in the late 1800s. Hereford, Angus, and Durham, primarily, were the breeds responsible for the near demise of the Longhorn.

But this gaunt old animal, which was raised under anything but hothouse conditions in Texas for 400 years, has other qualities that more and more ranchers are finding it difficult to ignore.

The most notable contribution to modern beef cattle raising made by Longhorns are the ease of birth for first-calf heifers. Longhorn bulls, when bred to first-timers, give a calf that is easily born due to finer bone structure. More and more first-calf Hereford and Angus heifers now have a live calf to show for their debut into motherhood.

Waitresses to meet on tip taxes

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

The Panhandle's protesting waitresses will be meeting at the Amarillo Quality Inn Central Sunday at 3 p.m.

"We are hoping for a big turnout," said Neida Simpson, spokesman for the Pampa group.

They have designated Monday, March 21 as "telegram day": the day everyone is asked to send a telegram to their U.S. Senator and Representative, asking him to vote to repeal the part of the "Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982" which requires waiters and waitresses to report their tips as part of their income.

"We're not confused about the effect of the law - we have been reporting tips; however, if what we report is not enough, then there will be further audits" of our tax returns, Simpson said.

The local waitresses have collected more than 3,000 signatures on petitions protesting the law requiring them to report a minimum of 8 percent of their tips as income.

For restaurants in areas where the clientele does not tip 8 percent, a provision was made in the law whereby employers could file for an exemption, allowing for reporting of only 5 percent of the tips as income.

Simpson said the waitresses don't want to have to claim a certain amount of their tips as income.

Perryton library flap is 'one for the books'

By SHERILL McLEARAN
Correspondent

PERRYTON - Ochiltree County commissioners voted Tuesday night to overspend the budget for the new library addition in Perryton by $84,926. A spring 1982 bond issue was approved, allowing the county to spend $300,000 for the addition to the library. Groundbreaking was slated for 10:30 a.m. today.

However, since the bond issue was passed, commissioners decided the county itself had enough money to build the addition. The project had been slated to be built by a general contractor; but Tom Davis, an architect from Lubbock, recommended the commissioners use a construction manager instead.

The job was awarded to Golden Spread Construction

Company of Guyton, Okla. in the amount of $384,926. Only one commissioner voted against the awarding of the bid. Johnny Luthi voted no, saying he would rather stick to the original $300,000 figure. The commissioners' court has already spent $19,004 on architects, making the total bill $403,930.

In addition, Troy Barclay, a citizen of Perryton, had filed a petition protesting the change from a general contractor to a construction manager, since the original bond election called for a contractor. He also said that since a year has passed, and economic times have deteriorated so much, the bond election should be re-run. Commissioners took no action on Barclay's petition at the meeting.

In other business at the meeting, the commissioners were presented a new system for purchasing county equipment and supplies. Under the present system, any county employee can buy materials and supplies for the county. Under the new system, each department will plan a one-year budget with a four-year long-range plan, and all purchases must go through the county judge. New forms will also be used.

The commissioners court had lunch at the Lake Fryer Recreation Area Tuesday, and discussed specific plans for the repair and improvement of the boat dock, bath house, concession stand, picnic area and superintendent's living quarters.

Commissioners also will consider restricting the use of motorcycles in the southwest part of the park to help eliminate the erosion problem after viewing the area.

Three Perryton high school vocational occupational education students who are now employed by the library and the county judge's office will continue their employment with the county, commissioners decided.

The commissioners set 9 a.m. today as the time to act on bids received from All-County Supply, North Plains International, Callihan Engine Service and Supply and Panhandle Implement on various tractors and mowers.

Commissioners also voted to authorize county auditor Bob Bond to advertise for bids on asphalt resurfacing for about 20 miles of county roads in various parts of the county. The bids will be opened Monday, April 11 at 1:30 p.m.

The commissioners also paid bills totaling $165,784.84 and approved a contract with the First National Bank of Perryton to be the county depository from April 1, 1983 to March 31, 1985.

Trespassing preacher gets 30 days for his Pantex protest

By LORI ANN D'ANTONIO
Staff Writer

PANHANDLE - Rev. Charles Scott Andress, former pastor of the Forest Hill United Methodist Church in Amarillo, who was charged with trying to enter the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant February 18, pleaded guilty to a charge of criminal trespass in Carson County Court Wednesday.

Andress was sentenced to 30 days in jail, fined $157 and ordered to pay court costs of $68 after his guilty plea, according to Carson County Attorney Ed Henshaw.

The charge against Andress was a state, not federal charge. Therefore, the Class B misdemeanor carries a maximum fine of $1,000 and six months in jail, or both.

The state had originally offered Andress a plea bargain agreement of 30 days in jail, but he refused, and his trial date was set for April 7.

However, Wednesday, he apparently changed his mind and pleaded guilty. He was given credit for the 31 days he had already served in jail, and therefore he "just signed the dotted line and went home," Henshaw said.

Andress is reported to be staying in Borger with his mother, and may be joined by his wife later this month.

"I would have had to ask for the maximum (penalty) of six months and $1,000" if he had gone to trial, Henshaw said.

Champion steer at Houston disqualified for outside aid

By ANDREW M. WILLIAMS

HOUSTON (AP) - A teen-ager has not explained why he left his steer with a veterinarian for two months, an act which led to the animal's disqualification as the grand champion at the 1983 Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo, a show official says.

Clifton Smith, 18, said only that he had left the 1,255-pound Chianina steer with the Cordell, Okla., animal doctor "much longer than he had intended to," Leroy Shafer, the show's assistant general manager, said Thursday.

Show rules require exhibitors to feed and care for their animals personally from July 1 of the previous year until the beginning of the livestock show.

Shafer said Thursday's announcement marked the first disqualification in the show's 51-year history. He said Smith, of Lyford, admitted the violation Wednesday night when show officials confronted him in Harlingen.

"I don't know that we can say what he gained by the violation," Shafer said.

Longhorns...

But then these ghostly old figures, kept alive for decades by reserves like the Palo Duro Canyon, the Wichita Mountains in Oklahoma, and a handful of nostalgic ranchers, began to show their strength in other ways, too.

Longhorns were never a coddled breed. In fact, until the last few years, they were almost ignored. Those who lived to make the long drive to market, lived. Those who didn't, died. Period.

When a breed of cattle is left pretty much in the wild except for branding time and market time, an interesting thing happens...they develop survival skills.

Ranchers now find that Longhorns, and cattle with Longhorn blood in them, travel farther from waterholes to feed, fight predators better, take more severe winters, have more calves in a lifetime, and take better care of them while they have them.

When good grass was plentiful, the Longhorns didn't stand much of a chance against the tubbier English breeds. You feed identical amounts of hay to a Longhorn and a Hereford, and the Hereford will weigh substantially more when he's slaughtered.

But let's say your range is full of snakes and coyotes and mountain lions, has only one waterhole, and half the time there's nothing to eat but sagebrush.

Longhorns on that range will produce more beef than a Hereford will, and that's one of the many reasons for their comeback.

And Longhorns are back with a passion.

Top Kiwanis official visits here on Monday

Jack R. Frost, governor 1982-83 for the Texas-Oklahoma District of Kiwanis International, will make his official visit to Division Six and all its clubs on March 21.

Welcoming Governor Jack and First Lady Avonne will be Lt. Governor John H. Gattis of the Pampa Kiwanis Club, extending the official welcome from the city of Pampa. A banquet will be held in Frost's honor at the First Christian Church on March 21.

All Kiwanis clubs are being urged to implement two major service programs known as the "President's Projects." The first project is Special Olympics, and calls for Kiwanians to give support to and become involved in the Special Olympics program, the largest sports training and athletic competition for the mentally retarded in the world.

The second project is called "Share Good Health with Children," and through it Kiwanians are urged to make financial contributions to help provide primary health care services to children in third world countries through Project Concern International. It also calls for Kiwanians to provide direct assistance to children in local communities who can benefit from health care and health education services which Kiwanis clubs can provide.

Smith told KTRK-TV Thursday he was not aware he was breaking a rule when he left the animal with the vet.

"At the time, we didn't have any rule book. I didn't even think about it, really," he said.

Oil well firefighter Paul "Red" Adair bought the steer at a March 5 auction, paying a record $140,000. He said he planned to donate the meat to a local charity. But Shafer said no payment has been made and that Adair will not be held financially responsible.

At the show, Smith wept as bids mounted. He told reporters afterward he would invest the money in his education and in Chianina cattle.

Smith told officials the animal had a hoof disease and was sent to the veterinarian to have its hooves trimmed, according to Shafer.

Dr. Jerry Bonham, the veterinarian who kept the animal, said he would have no comment until he had spoken to Smith and to show officials.

In this day when you can drive to Amarillo and buy a beef heifer calf at about $120, a little registered Longhorn heifer calf will cost a minimum of 10 times that amount.

So in Wheeler this evening, ranchers and spectators alike are apt to be surprised at the money spent for these long handlebar descendants of the Texas wild days. They waited in near extinction and obscurity while the fat cattle ate the grass for 80 years, but they've come back as anything but the ten-bucks-a-head slab-sided beasts that walked the great trails to Dodge City and Abilene.

They are now the very expensive aristocrats of the beef cattle world...and, just possibly, the future of the beef cattle industry itself.

Man charged with starving horses

TYLER, Texas (AP) - Federal misdemeanor charges alleging abuse and inhumane treatment to wild horses have been filed against an East Texas rancher in whose pasture 36 dead horses were found late last year.

Six misdemeanor charges were filed Thursday against Joe Corbett of Pittsburg, who obtained 168 horses through the government's "Adopt-a-Horse" program. Corbett should be arraigned within a few days, Assistant U.S. Attorney William Cornelius said in a news conference here Thursday.

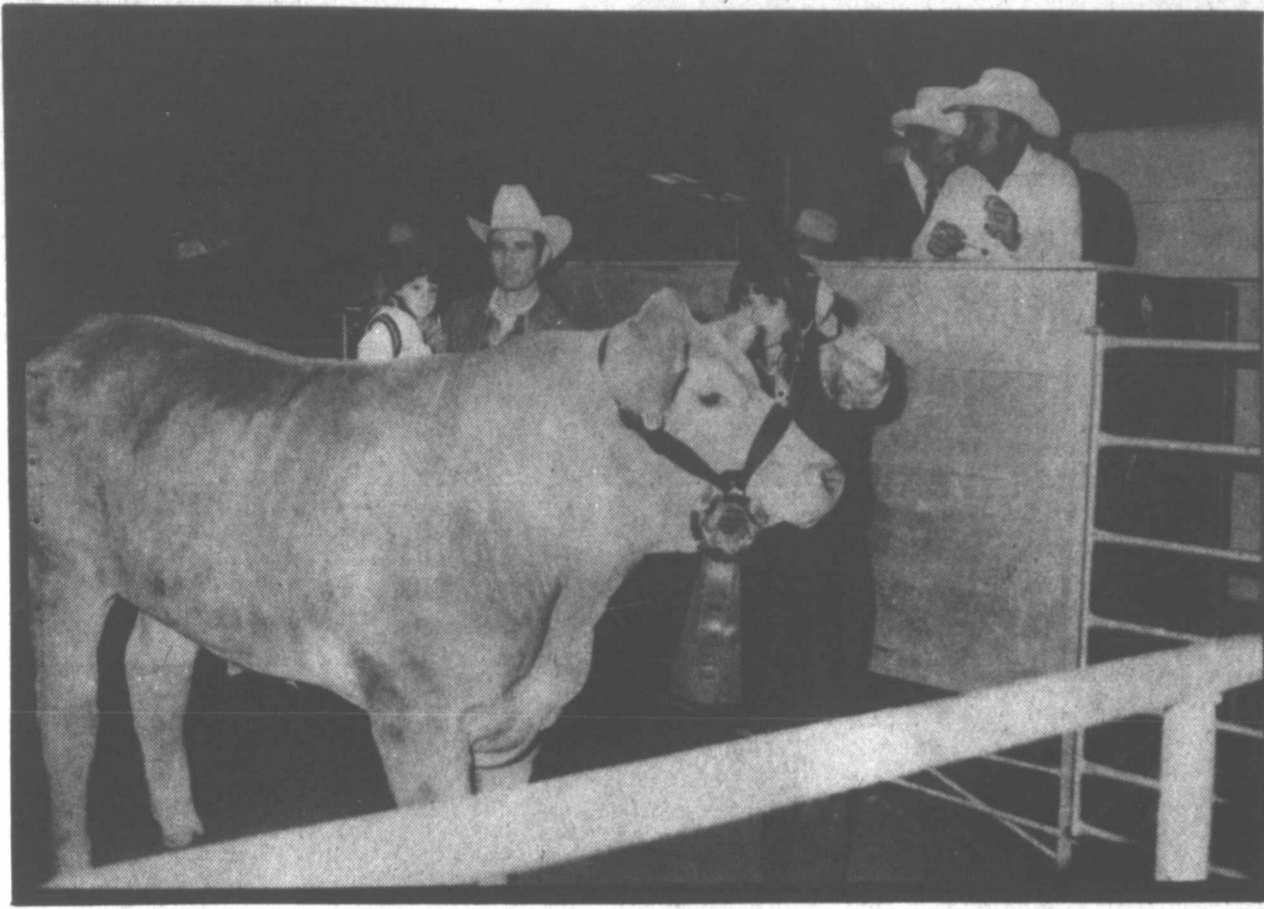

The charges stemmed from a lost deer hunter's discovery of a herd of starving federal mustangs in an overgrazed pasture that Corbett leased three miles east of Pittsburg. Officials counted 36 carcasses in the pasture.

The government's charges specified two counts pertaining to each of three horses. Corbett was accused with the U.S. of inhumane treatment and abandonment of each "without making arrangements for necessary food, water and shelter."

The allegations were contained in an information filed with the U.S. district clerk.

Happy school officials unhappy

WASHINGTON (AP) — When school officials in tiny Happy, Texas, found up filling out some 50 pages of evaluation forms to justify receiving $354 in federal vocational aid, they were anything but happy.

"I really wanted to throw it (the evaluation package) in the trash can, because I knew it was going to take an awful lot of time," said Harley R. McCasland, superintendent of the Happy Independent School District, which serves 240 students in the Texas Panhandle.

"At the same time, we had accepted the money," said McCasland.

So, following instructions, the district set up two special committees to help evaluate the high school's family relations class, part of the home economics program for which the $354 grant had been received.

Collectively, committee members put dozens of hours into the evaluation effort, sometimes tying up the class's teacher and producing a report nearly a half-inch thick, said McCasland.

"It just seems like it's a little too elaborate," said McCasland, whose district serves Happy, population 600, and the surrounding area.

When McCasland shipped the forms off to the Texas Education Agency, which had asked for the evaluation of the class, he also sent a copy to Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas.

Hance cited the case in testimony Thursday before a House education subcommittee, saying it reflected "a serious problem with the amount of work imposed on our teachers and administrators in the name of the federal bureaucracy."

The evaluation report in Happy, Hance said, "cost more than the $354 grant from the federal government."

In a telephone interview, McCasland said that the $354 in aid was for this school year, and that he had received the evaluation package from the state education agency in January.

"The cover letter and all the instructions plus the terminology were 36 legal (size) pages," McCasland said. He said that in addition there were 17 forms to be filled out, totaling more than 100 pages.

Only eight of the forms applied to the family relations class, he said. But he said such evaluations shouldn't be so elaborate "that it takes away from teaching, which is our primary objective."

Raymon Bynum, Texas education commissioner, said the forms were distributed on a test basis to various school districts to meet federal requirements for evaluating vocational programs.

Bynum said the Happy school district had misunderstood some of the directions with the evaluation and "they did a whole lot more than they were supposed to."

However, he acknowledged that the forms might have been "somewhat burdensome, on especially the smaller districts."

But if it were necessary to get another $354, McCasland said he would fill out the forms again.

"Our budgets are kind of tight," he said. "And of course, any time we can get a little money for our budget, I guess we'd go through the horror of what we have to do to do it."

Senators draw for two- or four-year terms

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Senators have drawn numbers for their political futures, with 16 getting four-year terms and 15 half as long.

Avoiding a re-election race in two years came down to a number written on a piece of paper, enclosed in a clear capsule which, in turn, was inside a sealed envelope.

The drawing for terms was held in the Senate chamber on Thursday, after Austin lawyer Steve Bickerstaff had told senators there was no reason to wait longer on negotiations over the 1981 Senate redistricting plan.

Whether the two- or four-year terms will stand, however, may ultimately depend on a court ruling. There is a possibility all senators would have to run again next year.

On Thursday, St. Patrick's Day, No. 13 was lucky, because all senators who drew odd numbers from 1 to 31 got four-year terms, and those who drew even numbers got two years. Sen. Don Henderson, R-Houston, got No. 13.

The GOP, whose strength fell from eight to five this session, only had Henderson and Sens. John Leedom of Dallas and Bob McFarland of Arlington draw four-year terms.

"Members would be happy to have the luck of the Irish today," said Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Doggett, however, drew No. 20 for a two-year term. His drawing was watched with interest because he wants to run for the U.S. Senate in 1984, and a four-year term would carry to 1986.

Another senator with statewide political ambitions, Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, also drew a two-year term with No. 10. Farabee thought of running for state attorney general last year but backed out when his friend, former Sen. Max Sherman, got in the race.

"Anybody want to swap?" quipped Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, after drawing No. 26 for two years.

There has been discussion about those who have so-called safe districts swapping four-year terms for two, but senators disagree over the constitutionality of such trades.

Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said senators raised the question 10 years ago, after the last drawing, and he remembers the parliamentarian saying it could not be done.

Senators normally have four-year terms, but all 31 members were required to run in 1982 after district boundaries were redrawn to reflect population changes revealed in the 1980 national census. As a result of Thursday's drawing, 15 senators would have to run again in 1984, 16 in 1986.

Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown, R-Lake Jackson, blew on his number for luck but got No. 24 and two years.

Brooks had a large green carnation in his lapel and was lucky, drawing No. 19 for four years. Sen. Oscar Mauzy, D-Dallas, also wearing a carnation, had similar luck, picking No. 9. But Sen. Carl Parker, who had donned a green sport coat, got No. 4 and two years.

Senators applauded when Sen. Glenn Kotlmann drew No. 29 for four years, presumably because the San Antonio Democrat had an extremely close primary election in 1982.

Sen. John Traeger, D-Seguin, at 61 the oldest member of the Senate, took a look at his slip of paper and dropped it as if it were hot, but the number was 7, giving him four more years.

Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, drew an envelope, handed it to Senate Secretary Betty King, and casually walked off. Mrs. King read No. 23 for a four-year term. Washington, the only black senator, had no opponent in the primary or general election last year.

Also, only odd numbers remained by the time Washington and John Whitmire and Lindon Williams, both Houston Democrats, drew for terms, so they couldn't miss.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, was absent, and Mrs. King drew No. 16 for him, two years.

Four people face sentencing today in Wood assassination

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The man convicted of firing the shot that killed U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr. faced sentencing today with a mandatory life prison term hanging over his head.

Charles V. Harrelson could receive two life sentences for his murder and murder conspiracy convictions, and up to five years and a $10,000 fine for his conviction for obstructing justice.

There is no death penalty in federal court, but conviction on a federal murder charge entails mandatory life imprisonment.

Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann Starr Harrelson, and Jamiel "Jimmy" Chagra and his wife, Elizabeth, also were to be sentenced this morning in the courthouse that now bears the slain judge's name.

Harrelson, who already has completed a prison term for another murder-for-hire, currently is serving a 40-year sentence on unrelated state weapons charges.

Chagra, 39, was acquitted of charges he paid Harrelson $250,000 to murder the judge, but was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice and to import marijuana. He also has been convicted of income tax fraud.

He could receive up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for both the tax fraud and obstructing justice convictions, and up to 15 years and a $125,000 fine on the marijuana charges.

The high-stakes gambler already is serving a 30-year sentence without parole on a continuing criminal enterprise conviction.

Mrs. Harrelson, 42, has been convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice and five counts of perjury for lying to the federal grand jury investigating Wood's May 29, 1979, murder.

Each perjury counts carries up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Mrs. Harrelson, a former professional blackjack player, already is serving a three-year sentence for using a false name to purchase a deer rifle 12 days before the judge was murdered.

Prosecutors said the gun was capable of firing the type of bullet used to kill Wood, known as "Maximum" John because of the stiff sentences he dealt drug defendants.

Mrs. Chagra has been convicted of conspiracy to murder and to obstruct justice and income tax fraud.

She faced up to a life sentence on the murder conspiracy conviction, and up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on both her obstructing justice and tax fraud convictions.

Prosecutors had agreed to let Mrs. Chagra's sentences for the tax fraud and obstructing justice convictions run concurrently, but the murder conspiracy conviction was not part of the bargain.

Chagra's brother, Joe, pleaded guilty to murder conspiracy in September in exchange for a 10-year prison sentence and not having to testify against his brother.

And now for those health care costs

No sooner has a presidential commission figured out how to bail out the Social Security retirement fund than we hear another distress call. The companion Medicare program, according to a new congressional study, will run out of money by 1987 or 1988.

Announcements of the imminent bankruptcy of Social Security are becoming so familiar that the public will be forgiven some cynicism. Having been told that higher payroll taxes and a delay in benefit increases are necessary to save the retirement system, are we being softened up to receive the same message about Medicare?

It is depressing indeed to realize that all the fuss about Social Security in the last year has dwelled mainly on problems afflicting the pension component of the system. The Medicare and disability components have problems of their own, with different causes and different solutions.

If there is a Medicare "crisis" looming in 1987 or 1980, it will not be treatable by the kind of tax and benefit adjustments recommended as the cure for what ails the retirement fund. The solvency of Medicare is threatened primarily by conditions lying outside the Social Security system itself - by runaway increases in the cost of medical care.

Medical costs are threatening not only Medicare but the viability of many private health insurance plans and the ability of federal, state and local governments to provide health care to those who cannot pay.

Hospital costs rose 17 percent in 1981 while the overall cost of living was rising only 8.9 percent. In 1982, the cost of living increased by a mere 3.9 percent while hospital bills were climbing at a rate of 13.3 percent. Payroll taxes and premiums paid by Medicare clients cannot remain at a reasonable level and keep abreast of cost increases of that magnitude.

Medicare now accounts for 1.3 percent of the 6.7 percent Social Security payroll tax paid by employees and matched by their employers. Under present law the Medicare share will rise to 1.35 percent in 1985 and 1.45 percent in 1986. Even accelerating those future increases would not keep Medicare out of the red.

There should be no talk about another increase in payroll taxes until there is more serious talk about cost-containment in the health care industry. It is now claiming 15 cents of every federal tax dollar, and as costs are being projected, it will claim 20 cents of that dollar within five years.

The Reagan administration has proposed reforms in Medicare aimed at making patients, doctors and hospital workers more cost-conscious. As it is, with either government or private insurance creating an illusion that health care is "free," there are too few incentives for all the parties involved to consider cost factors in treatment decisions.

An open-ended, fee-for-service system of medical insurance which simply reimburses doctors and hospitals for their costs is proving to be something the nation cannot afford. The solution to the Medicare problem does not lie with the amount of the Social Security deduction on our payroll stubs. It lies with the health care professions and their institutions. They have figured out how to provide the finest health care in the world, but not how to make it available at a cost the nation can afford.

Was Burford right in 'going home'?

By William A. Rasher
 NEW YORK (NEA) — On the very day EPA Administrator Anne Burford resigned, my brother columnist James Reston raised a question on its face so simple, so innocent appearing, that it may mislead a good many people unless it is answered promptly and carefully.
 Why, Reston asks, do people like Burford, Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, Interior Secretary James Watt and Arms Control Director-designate Kenneth Adelman insist on hanging onto their jobs?
 "They are all an embarrassment to the Administration," Reston declares, "and a barrier to the work they were appointed to do. Should they stick to their pride, or even if it's not their fault resign and relieve Mr. Reagan of his mistakes in the interest of the nation?"

 There cannot be many questions that overlook as many considerations of principle, of politics and of sheer humanity as that one.
 What do Reston's four nominees for self-sacrifice have in common? Well, for one thing, they have all been favorite targets of the liberal media, for the sound and sufficient reason that the liberals disapprove of their approach to their jobs. That is surely not, however, adequate reason for demanding their resignations, given the fact that they were all appointed in the first place by Mr. Reagan, who was himself elected president over the dead bodies of those same liberals. Since when has liberal disapproval become grounds for disqualification from holding high office in the Reagan administration?

 Another common bond among Reston's Gang of Four is that they have all undergone merciless attack at the hands of those same liberal media, in the course of which all sorts of dark questions were raised about their qualifications and actions — although (and this is something else they have in common) none of this mud has yet managed to stick to any of them.

Reagan's on the side of right

By OSCAR COOLEY
 If there is any subject on which the genial Ronald Reagan can be plainly serious - not to say downright emphatic - it is that of the Soviet arms build-up against the USA.
 In his speech to the National Association of Evangelicals, meeting in Orlando, he warned them to beware of the temptation blithely to declare yourselves above it all and label both sides (USSR and USA) equally at fault, to ignore the facts of history and the aggressive impulses of an evil empire, to simply call the arms race a giant misunderstanding and thereby remove yourselves from the struggle between right and wrong, good and evil."
 This stinging rebuke was followed by a call to action: "I urge you to speak out against those who would place the U.S. in a position of military and moral inferiority. I ask you to resist the attempts of those who would have you withhold your support for this administration's efforts to keep American strong and free while we negotiate real and verifiable reductions in the world's nuclear arsenals and one day, with God's help, their total elimination."
 Reason is not a war-monger. He would be only too glad to scrap our war planes and tanks, but he is fully aware of the nature of Communism, as many Americans are not. He knows that Communist regimes will never be satisfied until they have conquered the straghold of freedom and democracy, the USA.

 The Communist Party, is really not a political "party" as that word is understood. It tolerates no competition. Republicans recognize Democrats as a legitimate party, competing with them. Communists recognize no other group as legitimate. Any non-Communist in Soviet Russia has to remain silent or he will find himself on the road to Siberia.
 The Communist aim is to rule the world. To do this, it must overcome the most powerful nation in the free world, the U.S. Hence, Communists are especially hostile to this country. We are their No. 1 enemy.
 American idealists and peace-lovers everywhere should read the works of Karl Marx, Nikolai Lenin and Josef Stalin. To the rulers of Soviet Russia these are holy writ. The Communist aim of world domination is founded on these books.
 The latest Pentagon report, "Soviet Military Power," says Secretary Casper Weinberger, documents a "relentless" Soviet drive toward military superiority in all fields, including space warfare.
 Reagan's foreign policy is clear: he stands for freedom of all nations and against the threatened Communist dictatorship. A war rages throughout the world between democracy and totalitarianism. Reagan and his administration are unmistakably on the side of democracy.

"This lack of hard evidence doesn't bother Reston, though: 'I think they should resign, even if the problem is not their fault.' His rationale is that Mr. Reagan 'needs the confidence' of the individuals and institutions of whom these appointees have fallen afoul.
 We have here, then, what might be called the Reston Doctrine: A conservative appointed to high office by President Reagan ought to resign if he (or she) loses the confidence of the liberals, even if he has done nothing improper. In the circumstances, such unfortunates "should thank the President for his 'loyalty,' and in loyalty to the country go home."
 So, on top of everything else, these poor devils are to be accused of disloyalty to the country if they don't crawl away with their tails between their legs. Verily, as Anne Burford must be reflecting, "politics ain't beanbag!"
 What Reston has overlooked, of course (among many other things), is the whole human dimension of these four separate controversies. Let us assume, reasonably enough, that when President Reagan offered these people their present high posts and responsibilities, they accepted with a normal quota of pride and a fierce resolve to do their very best, and left for Washington with the cheers of their friends and neighbors ringing in their ears.

For Sale: high mileage satellite

By ART BUCHWALD
 The U.S. government is continuing its garage sale. First James Watt announced he was going to sell off a lot of federal land that we didn't need, and now the White House has announced President Reagan's plans to sell the U.S. Weather Service. The reason given, of course, is to save money and involve the private sector in activities that it might perform as well or better than the federal government.
 The irony of the decision is that while most Americans always complain about the weather, I've never heard anyone gripe about the U.S. Weather Service. It was one of the few services the government provided that worked well, whether you were on land, sea or in the air.
 I have no objection to Mr. Reagan selling off our weather satellites and ground stations to private enterprise, but the big question is how would a company make any money on the weather?
 A weather analyst with Merrill Lynch told me he thought the profits were there, provided that enough people were willing to pay for a forecast.
 "The company would have to set up a rate card for different types of weather," he told me. "For example, if you wanted to find out what the weather would be like tomorrow in your own town it might cost you a dollar. If you wanted to know what the weather was like in another area, it would be $3 a prediction. And if you wanted the weather profile for the entire U.S., it would be $10."
 "What about hurricanes and blizzards?"
 "I believe hurricanes and blizzards would be worth $25. Tornado warnings would be $50, and there would be a surcharge for any predictions coming out of Canada."
 "Why would someone pay for a weather forecast if they could get it free on television?"
 "No company would buy the weather satellites unless it was assured that they would be the sole distributor of weather information. The TV stations would have to pay substantial fees for the service, if they're going to transmit this copyrighted information to their viewers for nothing."

 "Who do you foresee as the large users of the private weather service?"
 "The government will probably be the number one customer. They need weather information for planes, ships, and when the Queen of England visits the West Coast. I predict the large government contracts for weather will pay for the system, and everything after that will be profit."
 "If the government is going to pay millions of dollars for the service, why don't they just keep it, instead of selling it off?"
 "The president wants the government out of as many things as possible. His philosophy is that the federal weather forecasters should get off the people's backs. He doesn't believe some Washington bureaucrat should be telling the farmers in Nebraska they're in for a hailstorm."
 "What worries me," I said, "is that if a private company takes over the weather service it might tend to predict better weather than is actually coming, just to attract new subscribers."
 "The company might at the beginning. But if they're wrong too many times, the customer will just cancel out on them, and tune into the BBC, for their weather reports."
 "What do you think President Reagan will unload after the weather satellites?"
 "The rumor on Wall Street is that he might sell the U.S. Coast Guard to the private sector. But no one has been able to confirm it. On the other hand, it makes a lot of economic sense. The Coast Guard is a big drain on the budget, and the federal government shouldn't be in the business of saving lives, particularly when they don't charge for it."

'Electronic handcuff' is unveiled

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — District Judge Jack Love is so confident in a new electronic device that would keep an eye on probationers that he is testing it himself.

Love had the so-called "electronic handcuff" strapped to his ankle Thursday afternoon and said he would keep a record of his comings and goings during the weekend to see how accurately the device reports.

"I'm wearing it right now," Love said in a telephone interview. "I don't even notice it. It's like having a package of cigarettes shoved down your sock. You don't notice it after a while."

Michael T. Goss, president of the Albuquerque-based company that is developing the device, said the ankle device is the prototype for a system of detention that will reduce crowding in jails nationwide.

The idea, he said, is to allow probationers to stay at home rather than spending their nights in already crowded jails.

The handcuff actually is a miniature radio transmitter that emits a signal picked up by a receiver in the probationer's home. The receiver is plugged into a telephone jack and sends its record of the probationer's comings and goings to a central computer. The computer produces a printout that shows when the probationer goes further than 1,000 feet from the receiver.

It also would show if the probationer removed the transmitter, Goss said.

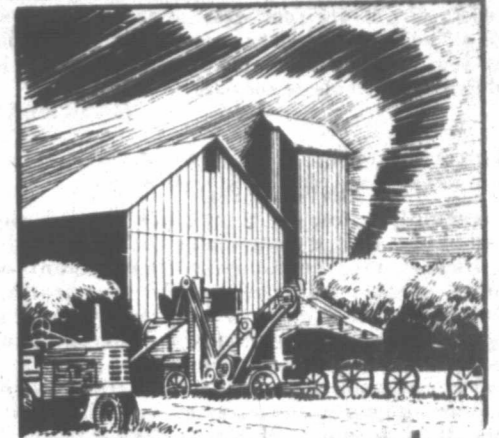

The ankle is a blue box, slightly smaller than a pack of cigarettes, with a band that holds it to the leg. Goss has said future models will be scaled down so they can be worn like a wristwatch.

Love said he expected to have a good record during his weekend of electronically monitored probation, although he wouldn't restrict his comings and goings.

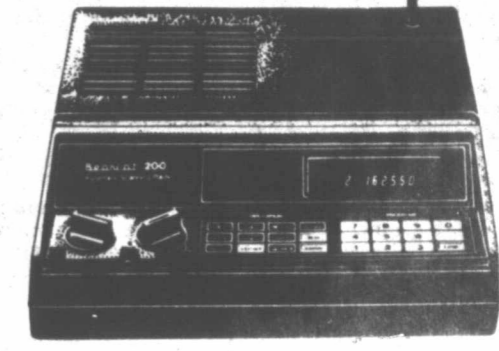

"When you consider curfews, I won't be too bad of a probationer," he said with a chuckle. "Curfew doesn't interfere too much with someone like me, not like it would with some of these younger guys who go out at night."

Love said he would keep a record of his movements for comparison with the computer printout on Monday. If the record is accurate, he said he would try the system on "the first appropriate case, which will probably be next week."

Goss has said the device would be most useful in driving-while-intoxicated cases because it would keep the DWI offender off the street without placing him in jail.

Former mayor, cable firm ordered to pay

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Former Houston Mayor Jim McConn and Gulf Coast Cable Television conspired to divide up the city's cable TV market and must pay a disappointed franchise seeker $6.3 million, a federal appeals court has ruled.

The scheme resulted in lower quality and higher prices, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Thursday. A three-judge panel voted 2-1 to overturn U.S. District Judge Carl Bue's decision against investor Billy Goldberg, who said his Affiliated Capital Corp. was cut out of the picture by the deal.

The appeals court awarded Goldberg $2.1 million, which will be tripled because his damage suit was filed under an anti-trust act.

A jury in Bue's court had originally made the award. But Bue cut off the jury verdict and imposed his own. The suit accused the defendants of a conspiracy to prohibit Affiliated's entry into the Houston cable TV market, thereby violating the antitrust act.

"It is abundantly clear from the record of this case that a group of Houston businessmen decided to ensure the receipt of cable television franchises by agreeing to seek separate parts of the city. That they joined together at least with the blessing of the mayor, if not at his behest, is also certain," the 5th circuit said.

Houston loses money on cable franchise income, compared to other Texas cities, the opinion said.

Maneuvering for cable franchises started in 1978. The top companies "were strong contenders based not on the strength of their proposals but rather on the political strength of the men behind them."

They were Gulf Coast, Houston Cable Television Co., Houston Community Cable Television Co. and Meca.

Westland Corp., a group controlled in large part by the mayor's personal lawyer, was later added to the group at the mayor's request, the ruling said.

While these companies were "cutting out competition by cutting up the city among themselves, the plaintiff, Affiliated Capital Corp., entered the picture," the 5th circuit said.

The opinion said a consultant hired by the city to give the franchise deal a nice image reported instead that the city was getting a bum deal. The 5th circuit said he was fired. The five companies were then pronounced qualified.

Two judges from Texas formed the majority: Reynaldo Garza of Brownsville and Thomas Gibbs Gee of Austin. A dissent was filed by Judge Charles Clark of Jackson, Miss.

First cousin has right to part of Hughes fortune

HOUSTON (AP) — Three first cousins of Howard Hughes have been affirmed as the rightful heirs of one-fifth of the late billionaire's estate.

A Texas appeals court ruled Thursday that a group of 400 distant relatives have no valid claim to the fortune, estimated to be as much as $2 billion.

The group of second, third and fourth cousins on Hughes' father's side contended the mother of the three first cousins was illegitimate and not kin to Hughes. They based their claim on a family story that Hughes' uncle, Rupert Hughes, was rendered sterile by a case of mumps.

The First Court of Appeals upheld a Harris County probate court's finding, which said Barbara Cameron, Elspeth De Pould and Agnes Roberts were legal heirs.

The appeals court's decision, written by Associate Justice James F. Warren, found groundless the distant cousins' argument that they were unfairly denied a chance to learn blood types of the first cousins in an effort to establish their kinship to Rupert Hughes.

Warren noted the blood types of Elspeth Hughes Lapp, the first cousins' mother, and of Rupert Hughes are not known, and they are dead.

He also found without merit the argument that Rupert Hughes did not consider Elspeth his child because she is not included in brief biographies in "Who's Who in America" and "Twentieth Century Authors."

Dear Abby
Teenage smoking sparks warning
 By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old son sent away for your booklet "What Every Teen-ager Ought to Know," and I happened to pick it up. Your message on smoking was something I wish every teen-ager could read. You would be doing your young readers a big favor by printing it in your column. Will you please consider it?

MARK'S DAD

DEAR DAD: Consider it "considered." Here it is:
ON SMOKING

You certainly know by now what doctors say about smoking: that it contributes to lung cancer, heart disease and emphysema (impairment of breathing). In other words, it's bad for your health.

So, let's look at it as a habit. Smoking makes your breath smell, your clothes (and you) stink and your fingers yellow. It's also expensive.

It makes non-smokers avoid you, particularly indoors. More and more, smokers are becoming social outcasts. It is, to put it bluntly, a stupid habit. It does nothing for you, a lot of things to you, and drives others from you.

If you want to smoke because you think it looks "grown-up" — don't. If you're sneaking it, how "grown-up" are you?

Boys, if you begin smoking to prove you are a man, 30 years later you will try to quit for the same reason.

Girls, a startling number of boys and men have told me they prefer girls and women who don't smoke.

So your grandfather smoked like a chimney and he lived to the ripe old age of 88? Well, good for Gramps. He was one of the lucky ones. Maybe you'll inherit Grandpa's luck. And maybe you won't. It's a fact that nicotine is habit-forming, causes cancer in mice, and it offends others, so what's the sense?

Millions of smokers already have kicked the habit. If you smoke, quit. If you don't smoke, don't start. Never mind that "everybody else" smokes. They don't. And even if they did, why be as stupid as "everybody else?" — Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who continuously makes dates with me only to show up at my regular "hangout" with another woman. He is very attractive and a real smooth talker.

I'd like to know how to handle him the next time he proposes a "date" because I've had better times at a funeral.

A FOOL IN FLORENCE, S.C.

DEAR FOOL: I am reminded of a little ditty I learned as a child:

"Fool me once, shame on you.
 "Fool me twice, shame on me."
 The best way to handle him is to smother him with indifference.

DEAR ABBY: What is the difference between saying you will do something and promising to do it?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST: If the person's word is good, there is no difference.

"I only did one thing wrong..."

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO
 Staff Soap Watcher

After 18 years of watching the soaps, I consider myself an addict, but I never realized just how bad the condition was until last Saturday.

Josh Taylor, Chris Kostichuk from "Days of Our Lives", an NBC soap, was due to be in Amarillo at a fashion show. Since I had to be in Amarillo anyway, I figured I'd go on down to the Westgate Mall to watch. The show was due to start at 3 p.m., so I got to the mall about 2:30. First mistake. There was already a crowd around the appointed spot. So I went on through the mall to kill some time. Second mistake. When I got back, there was an even bigger crowd around the spot, and I realized I'd never be able to see unless I got to higher ground.

I started to climb on the planters so attractively kept in the center portion of the mall. I walked on the edges of the thing gingerly, since it was only about six inches wide.

People kept getting in front of me, and then standing up, so I still couldn't see. I kept climbing. In the middle of the mall there's a fountain, with graduated stone layers that water runs off. As I teetered on the edge of the planter and nearly fell into the fountain, I thought "This is crazy. It's not worth it."

But I sat up there, precariously balanced for a while longer, thinking. Then I had a brilliant idea. "Since I'm a reporter for a newspaper, I'll go down and flash my press i.d. and get close." After all, there was already one photographer down front.

As I made my way down, I discovered it might be even harder than the way up. But then I simply walked across the surface of the fountain and jumped down onto a bench, much to the surprise of the people sitting nearby.

Well my scheme didn't work. My press pass got me nowhere unless I had prior approval from the show's organizers, which I didn't. I sat and stood and stewed about it, watched other photographers climb into the ferns, and finally got disgusted and began to walk around the audience in front of the stage.

There, right before my eyes, was an empty chair. Seizing the opportunity, I asked the people standing behind it if anyone was sitting on it. When they said no, I jumped up on the chair so fast I think I scared them. But that was nothing compared to the dirty looks they gave me when they found out I was going to stand in their way for the rest of the show.

Once I could take pictures and see, I began to enjoy the show. The format was simple: Donna Dick of Amarillo, whose models were in the show, had written a soap storyline centering around Josh, and her models filled in as the "stars" of her "soap". The storyline was thin, but it was more exciting than a traditional fashion show. The clothes came from various stores in the mall.

One thing that pleased me was that Josh Taylor wasn't phony. He made jokes, laughed, answered questions about himself and his soap, signed autographs, and of course, kissed pretty girls for the amusement of the audience. He also turned to be as good looking in real life as he is on television.

There's only one thing I did wrong. I forgot to take the lens cap off my camera.

Reader designs handy craft

By APRIL BAIL
 If you're away at college you love to get letters from home — especially if there's something green tucked inside.

Here at FAMILY WORKSHOP we love to get letters from our readers — especially if they include ideas for columns.

Which is exactly where we found this idea for a Barrette Keeper. It was sent in by one of our many talented readers, Dana Ravens of Ellisville, Mo.

Dana designed this pigtailed girl to hold all the barretts which "couldn't" be found when it was time for school.

Materials needed to make the Barrette Keeper are oval-shaped heavy cardboard, 5 1/2 inches wide by 6 1/2 inches long; flesh-colored fabric, 6 1/2 x 7 1/2 inches; oval-shaped yellow felt, 5 1/4 x 6 1/2 inches; six 42-inch long strands of yellow yarn; 12-inch length of white yarn; 17-inch length of white eyelet; 8-inch length of white cord; scraps of blue, white, brown and pink felt; and polyester fiberfill.

Glue a small amount of fiberfill to the oval-shaped cardboard. Stretch the flesh-colored fabric over the fiberfill and glue the excess material to the back of the cardboard. (It may be necessary to tape the edges down while the glue is drying.)

Glue the yellow felt to the back of the cardboard covering the fabric edges.

Cut out the facial features from the felt scraps. You'll need two white eyeballs, each a 1-inch oval; two blue eyelids, each a 1 1/4-inch half circle; two blue pupils, each a 1/2-inch circle; two brown eyelashes, each 1 1/2-inches long and one pink heart-shaped mouth about 1 inch wide.

Glue the facial features in place and add eyebrows using a felt-tipped brown marker.

Dana notes that the girl's hair should not be made of heavy yarn because it's too thick for barrette clamps.

Gather the six 42-inch strands of yellow yarn and tie them in the center using a small piece of yarn. Glue or stitch the center part to the top of the head.

On each side of the head, about even with the mouth line, gather and tie the yarn hair using a small piece of yellow yarn. Glue the hair to the head at this point and at several other points along the hairline to keep the yarn close to the head.

Divide the yarn below the tie into three equal sections and braid tightly. Tie off the braids about two inches from the bottom using another piece of yarn.

The girl's bonnet is made by gluing the white eyelet to the back of the head, placing it along the sides and top of the yellow felt.

To make a hanging loop, fold the 8-inch piece of white cord in half and tie the ends together. Glue the loop at the center on the back of the head.

Tie a small bow of white yarn and glue or stitch under the girl's chin.

Give your clothes a good look—Everyone else does.

Gospel concert this evening at First Free Will Gospel

The Brashear Family of Russellville, Ark., will appear in concert at the First Free Will Baptist Church, 326 N. Rider, at 7:30 tonight.

Proclaimed the "Ambassador of Goodwill" by the governor of Arkansas, the Brashear Family presents God's word through singing of gospel music, according to Rev. L.C. Lynch, local pastor.

The public is invited to attend the special concert.

Musical on Christian marriage at Central Baptist Church

A musical experience of Christian marriage, "I Promise to Love," will be presented at 7 p.m. Sunday at Central Baptist Church, 513 E. Francis.

"Harmony," a small group from the church, will be featured in this presentation. The musical deals with the creation of the family and ends with a musical prayer to "Keep Us One."

The public is invited to attend.

Reagan using the presidency as 'bully pulpit' in his way

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Theodore Roosevelt called the U.S. presidency a "bully pulpit" for moral leadership, and most outstanding presidents occasionally exercised it. So has President Reagan, in his own way.

But he nettled some religious sensitivities last week in urging preachers to back his opposition to a nuclear freeze, portraying this as a duty in "the struggle between right and wrong, good and evil."

Several clergymen objected that such a yardstick tended to classify those favoring a freeze as being on the side of "evil" and opponents as upholding "good," thus blessing a partisan position of a keenly debated national issue.

Preaching "must be determined not by the policy of any political administration but by the basic teachings of the Bible that all Christians must work for peace with justice," says the Rev. Ronald D. Sisk of Nashville, a Southern Baptist leader.

While presidents have invoked God's help and guidance in pursuing the "right," Abraham Lincoln warned against attributing God's righteousness to one side or another, even in wartime.

Reagan, in addressing the National Association of Evangelicals in Orlando, Fla., echoed a long-time presidential tradition in declaring that "freedom prospers when religion is vibrant and the rule of law under God acknowledged."

Reagan urged evangelical leaders to uphold administration policy for stronger U.S. defenses. He said a nuclear freeze would favor the Soviet Union and leave the United States vulnerable.

Most major Protestant denominations and the three wings of U.S. Judaism have urged a nuclear freeze and U.S. Catholic bishops are to act May 2-3 on a proposed pastoral letter doing so.

Officials of the NAE, made up of conservative evangelicals, said they were too divided on the issue to take a stand on it. Some, such as the Rev. Jerry Falwell, Moral Majority leader, strongly support the administration's arms buildup and opposition to a freeze.

But whatever their stand, some leaders objected to implying differences about it amounted to siding with good or evil. "We honor respectful dissent as an expression of patriotism, not its denial," said presiding Bishop David Preus of the American Lutheran Church.

"The word of God should direct our consciences, not the edicts of ecclesiastical or political leaders."

Rabbi Walter S. Wurzbarger of the Synagogue Council of America said "the president has every right to oppose a nuclear freeze but he has no right to stigmatize those who disagree with his brand of 'civil religion' as succumbing to the 'temptation of pride.'"

The Rev. Ronald J. Sider of Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary, head of Evangelicals for Social Action, said "it is intolerable to suggest that good citizens in favor of a freeze are duped by the KGB or by Satan."

"No one presumes to tell Baptist pastors what to preach," said the Rev. James M. Dunn of Washington, head of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs. "They depend upon the word of God and the leadership of the Holy Spirit."

Falwell's following

By George R. Plagenz

Jerry Falwell the second most admired man in the world? Well, he is by Good Housekeeping readers according to that magazine's poll.

Almost — but not quite — as surprising as Falwell ranking behind Ronald Reagan in the admiration of this cross section of American women is the fact that four of the 10 most admired are clergymen. Billy Graham is No. 3, Pope John Paul II is No. 5 and Norman Vincent Peale is No. 8.

If you read newspapers and magazines and listen to TV, you know of course that Falwell is considered a major force in religion today. But much of the media reporting centers on the danger Falwell poses with his avid efforts to reshape — some would say "control" — the morals of the country to his liking.

The seal of approval put on Falwell by Good Housekeeping readers indicates that, despite the media, women admire him and, by extension, the things he stands for — no abortion, prayer in the schools and cleaning up TV.

Maybe they even admire him for coming out in favor of a return of the old days when the "house detective" stood guard in hotels against any illicit sexual activity.

Falwell wants to go back to the 1950s and before when two unmarried people — or at least two not married to each other — who occupied the same hotel room could go to jail for defrauding an innkeeper. Or at least be ignominiously thrown out.

The worst fears of Falwell's critics were that the Moral Majority, the public crusading arm of Falwell's ministry, would gain the ear of the Reagan White House. For the most part, these fears have proven groundless. Furthermore, the Moral Majority's call for a boycott of NBC-TV because of violence and sex in NBC programs was a flop.

Yet, while the majority of Americans may feel a boycott is too strong a tactic to use to reform TV, they may still agree with Falwell when he says, "We are not against programs that are entertaining by today's standards. What we are asking is that the networks clean up their acts, not throw out their programs. You don't have to show people in bed together to get your point across."

Some of Falwell's followers are probably more to be feared than Falwell.

After a federal judge refused to grant an injunction against an issue of Penthouse magazine which contained an article that Falwell said damaged his reputation, the letter writers descended on the judge. One said he would "perish in hell." Another — in tones reminiscent of the days when people were accused of being card carrying communists — charged the judge with being a "card carrying democrat."

But you don't have to agree with Falwell's extremist followers to realize that many of the things Falwell stands for deserve our support.

We are a people today without any class. And don't let anyone tell you that hasn't affected the quality of life today for all of us — whether or not we try to maintain high standards in our own individual homes.

We all breathe the air of the culture in which we live. If we do not set standards of excellence for that air, the pollution affects us all. Like the rain "it falls on the just and on the unjust."

The Moral Majority has raised some important questions about the cultural air we are being forced to breathe. Many of us can see that something is happening to the quality of life today and we are ready to line up on the side of those who are willing to take up their cudgels in the cause of cleaner air.

IN THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

At this time we are living in a world full of tension. Fears of nuclear war are with us every day. In times past, men have made one of two choices... to rely on their own abilities... or to do what they can and place their lives in the hands of the Lord. The Bible tells us how men fared with the choices that they made. The strength of God is sufficient for all our needs, and men who humbled themselves and trusted in God always fared better. Let us judge our future by the past and rely on God for our needs.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Over the finish

Musher Rick Mackey of Wasilla, Alaska, drives his dog team to victory in the Iditarod Sled Dog Race from Anchorage to Nome. Mackey covered the punishing 1,137

- mile course in 12 days, 14 hours, 10 minutes and 44 seconds. The win was his first in six attempts. The 29-year-old carpenter will receive $24,000 of the race's $100,000 purse. (AP Laserphoto)

Son of previous winner leads race

NOME, Alaska (AP) — Rick Mackey won the 1983 running of the Iditarod Sled Dog Race from Anchorage to Nome in the second-fastest time on record, taking home the first prize of $24,000.

Mackey's team of seven dogs crossed under the carved log arch on Front Street that marked the end of the 1,137-mile trek at 10:10 p.m. Thursday. The $100,000 race began March 5.

The Wasilla musher's elapsed time was 12 days, 14 hours, 10 minutes and 44 seconds.

The Iditarod record of 12 days, eight hours, 45 minutes and two seconds was set by Rick Swenson of Manley in 1979.

Mackey's father, Dick, won the 1978 Iditarod race with a memorable one-second victory over Swenson. The elder Mackey was on hand Thursday night with a rib-wrenching hug for his son.

Drug, not transplant, to be used on youngster

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors at Texas Children's Hospital will try to treat an 11-year-old girl's heart disease with a drug, rather than performing a heart transplant, the child's father says.

Test results released Thursday show that Sharon Stohler's heart has some inflammation, but doctors will try to reduce it with the drug Prednisone, David Stohler said.

The Stohlers were previously told Sharon would die within eight months without a transplant. Doctors at Stanford University turned the child away, saying she was too small and weak to undergo such an operation.

By contrast, Stohler said, the Texas doctors said they believe the child is a suitable candidate for a transplant, if it is needed.

"It's definitely good news," said Stohler, of Anderson, Ind. "Now we've got two good chances instead of one possibility."

He said Sharon was in the room when doctors told them about their plans. She and her parents are encouraged by the hope the drug offers, but disappointed at beginning another "waiting game," Stohler said.

The family will remain in Houston for a week while treatment begins, then return home. Stohler said they will return in six weeks or two months so that doctors can examine the girl again.

Arab visit may ease British-Mideast frictions

LONDON (AP) — After months of haggling over British objections to the inclusion of a PLO representative, an Arab League delegation and government officials hold talks today that may improve Britain's troubled relations with the Arab world.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and Foreign Secretary Francis Pym scheduled talks with the seven-member delegation led by Jordan's King Hussein following a reception at the Foreign Office.

Later in the day, the delegation headed by King Hussein of Jordan drives to Buckingham Palace for an audience with Queen Elizabeth II.

British officials said the delegation's visit will provide an opportunity for a broad review of Middle East peace plans, including President Reagan's September proposal calling for self-determination for West Bank Palestinians in association with Jordan. Britain supports the initiative, which has made no visible headway.

The Arab League canceled its original visit to London, scheduled for last November, after the British government objected to the presence in it of Farouk Kaddoumi, the official foreign affairs spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Britain, which has refused to recognize the PLO unless it renounces terrorism and admits that Israel has a right to exist within secure borders, said Kaddoumi would not be permitted to participate in talks with Mrs. Thatcher and Pym.

Kaddoumi has been dropped from the current delegation.

Jacqueline Babbin, producer of "All My Children," and Bonkers, the show's new feline star, talk it over. He's her cat.

He's a New York actor who goes by the name Bonkers. He had virtually no acting credits before he won the role of wise confidant to a fascinating older woman in "All My Children," on ABC.

Nevertheless, he has the best dressing room of anyone in the cast. Bonkers, in fact, uses the producer's office for his dressing room.

"It's nepotism of the worst kind," producer Jacqueline Babbin said flatly.

Bonkers, you see, is her cat. He's kind of a Persian with personality.

After she became producer of "All My Children," Jackie Babbin began reviewing stars in the cast who would be most compatible with Bonkers. She found that star in Gillian Spencer, a talented, auburn-haired actress who plays Daisy Cortlandt, a woman of experience and spirit.

Currently, Daisy is having a romance with her former husband, Palmer Cortlandt, a business tycoon played by James Mitchell. When Ms. Babbin asked the script writers to create a role for Bonkers, they arranged for him to move in with Daisy as a gift from Palmer. Bonkers plays all of his scenes in Daisy's attractive apartment where he mostly listens with a knowing look. He's happy so long as there are fresh ferns to chew.

As a youth, Bonkers was pure white and fluffy. In 1976, he moved to Los Angeles where Ms. Babbin produced such award-winning television films as "Sybil" and where she became a Vice President of ABC Entertainment. Bonkers, meanwhile, lived a laid back life in California and turned gray. He doesn't like to talk about it.

Now back in New York, he resides on the upper West Side in a household that includes Azzie, a beautiful Burmese. Recap: 3/14 - 3/18 Preview: 3/21 - 3/25

GUIDING LIGHT -- Floyd and Nola argue about Stacey. Edward asks Susanna if she will join him again. Silas, Quint and Gunther are trapped in a cave-in after Silas threatened Quint that he will die in the cave. Mark finds proof that he is the rightful heir to Spaulding Enterprises but also finds proof that Lister had a hand in his father's death. Mark interrupts Lister as he attempts to kill Amanda.

THIS WEEK: Brian and Mark have the ultimate confrontation. Quint, Silas and Gunther fight for their lives.

RYAN'S HOPE -- Siobhan is heartbroken when Joe leaves town without her. Jack and Leigh continue their affair but he begins to feel guilty when he thinks about his dead wife Mary and sends Leigh packing. Faith brings Patrick to the St. Patrick's Day party as a surprise. Roger agrees that Patrick can convalesce at home. Deliah makes little Johnny look like a thief so that Frank will be compelled to spend more time with him. Deliah is upset when Frank considers running for Congress. Joe asks the boss of bosses to get him out of the country. He agrees but will expect a favor in return someday.

THIS WEEK: Deliah plays on Frank's guilt feelings. Jack confronts Leigh about her lie.

AS THE WORLD TURNS -- Karen admits to John that she's afraid of James and the trip to Spain. James warns Brian to stay away from Dee. Steve maintains that Craig blew up Steve's truck and asks Stan to help him prove it. John's life is in danger when an inmate tries to get even with Margot by hurting her father. Gunnar is concerned that James will try to harm Barbara while she's in Spain. THIS WEEK: Dee leans on Brian for support. Betsy loses respect for Craig. SEARCH FOR TOMORROW -- Liza flies to Washington to ask for Tom's advice. When she erroneously confesses to Rusty's murder, he tells her to go back to Henderson with him so he can help her clear things up. Travis refuses to let Liza suffer anymore and confesses to Rusty's murder because he thinks Liza is the real murderer. Warren asks Kristin to hide Rusty's briefcase in her apartment until after the investigation is over. THIS WEEK: Liza pleads for Travis's innocence. Kristin thinks Warren had something to do with Rusty's murder.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS -- Ashley makes a play for Kevin after she meets Nikki and finds out she's a stripper. Jill is shattered when she finds out she's not really pregnant. Traci spends time with a distraught Danny.

CAPITOL -- Sloane agrees to be totally honest with Kurt. Myrna finds out that Kelly was the girl in the blackmail tape and uses this information to blackmail Kelly. Ronnie and Danny make peace. ANOTHER WORLD -- Larry and Blaine's mother, Jeanne, return but Blaine refuses to see her. Stacie asks Mark not to hurt Jamie and she asks her to meet with him. Rachel approves of Gil and tells Quinn he reminds her of a young Steve Frame. Mac refuses to let Rachel gibe up on herself and forces her to work harder at her therapy. Elena warns Cass about Cecile. Later Cass and Felicia get together for a romantic evening.

THIS WEEK: Rachel is beginning to respond to Mac. Larry tries to reason with Blaine. DAYS OF OUR LIVES -- Tony and Liz decide to divorce when Tony finds out that he is not the father of Liz's baby. Tony rushes to reconcile with Renee only to find out she's pregnant with David's baby. He's so angry he could strangle her. David is angry because he wanted to wait to start a family. Liz rushes to reconcile with Neil only to find out that Neil has just eloped with Marie. Kayla is shocked when Chris thinks it's best that she move back in with her parents.

THIS WEEK: Maggie and Don date. Gene is smitten with Krista. GENERAL HOSPITAL -- Scorpio discovers that Tolliver had motive and opportunity in Susan's murder and decides to set a trap for him. Knowing that Heather is an eye witness to the murder, Tolliver follows her to the cabin. After he confesses to the murder, a policeman and Scorpio burst out of another room and tell him the confession is on tape. Before being apprehended, Tolliver gives Jimmy Lee some documents. Lesley is jealous when she sees Rose comforting Rick after a brawl. THIS WEEK: Jimmy Lee has a surprise for everyone. Lu is scared.

EDGE OF NIGHT -- Ian pretends to be a police officer and says there is a bomb in the safety deposit box and must have access to it. He does and when he opens it he finds a package inside. Raven tells Nancy how they went about fooling Ian by faking killing Snell to make Ian believe she really loved him. Spencer has a suitcase full of money. Mitzi asks Cliff to marry her.

THIS WEEK: Cliff puts Mitzi off. Ian examines the package.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE -- Brad is happy that Jenny is paying so much attention to him but is worried that she will go back to Larry when she returns to Llanview. Rachelle moves in with Edwina for a chance to win over Gary. Bo finds out his true identity and asks Delilah's mother to move out. Delilah says she needs her mother now more than ever and Bo relents. Becky wants to have a relationship with Bo but he is still not over Delilah. THIS WEEK: Delilah still cares for Bo. Brad plays on Jenny's sympathy. ALL MY CHILDREN -- Phoebe fires Opal and will run the Glamorama herself. Sam talks Opal out of leaving town and she thinks they may be able to rekindle their old romance. Jessie attacks Angie's father when he slaps Angie. Nancy stops Jessie but he is in trouble for hitting Angie's father. Daisy catches Nina and Steve in bed together. Steve asks her to come with him and she refuses but later she meets him at his hotel. Greg is still paralyzed. THIS WEEK: Nancy pleads Jessie's case. Jenny is feeling guiltier than ever.

Clears Rebound

Maryland's Ed Farmer (20) clears the boards as teammate Len Bias (34) and Tennessee-Chattanooga's Stanley Lawrence (40) battled for the ball in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regionals. Maryland won, 52-51. (AP Laserphoto)

Maryland rallies for 52-51 win over Chattanooga, Tenn.

By The Associated Press
The only clock that counts in college basketball these days is the one that ticks down to the final buzzer.
Beat-the-Clock heroics were the order of the day — or evening — in the NCAA Tournament Thursday night, with three of the eight first-round games decided in the closing seconds.
—In the Midwest Regional at Houston, freshman Len Bias' 17-foot jumper with two seconds left capped Maryland's comeback from a 14-point deficit for a 52-51 victory over No. 15 Tennessee-Chattanooga, the first Top Twenty team to bow out of the tourney.
"It wasn't my play; someone else had the shot," said Bias. "The play was designed for Adrian (Branch). They were double-teaming him, so when I got the ball I dribbled once and looked to pass but no one was open, so with six seconds left I knew I had to take the shot."
—In the Midwest Regional at Tampa, Fla., Steve Reid drilled a 22-footer from the top of the key with five seconds remaining as Purdue withstood a valiant second-half comeback to edge Robert Morris 55-53.
"I looked up at the clock and saw single digits," said Reid. "I didn't want to panic and I wanted to make sure we got a shot off."
—But the most dramatic finish took place in the second half of the Tampa twinbill when Ohio University freshman Robert Tatum hit an off-balance, 15-foot shot at the buzzer for a 51-49 upset over Illinois State.
"I didn't think it was going in. The feeling was unbelievable," said Tatum, who grabbed a long pass that was deflected by an Illinois State defender, double-pumped and netted the winning basket.
—In the second Midwest Regional game, underdog Lamar rode the shooting of Lamont Robinson and Tom Sewell and stunned Alabama 73-50.

In the East Regional at Greensboro, N.C., James Madison upset West Virginia 57-50 and Virginia Commonwealth trimmed LaSalle 76-67. And in the West Regional at Boise, Idaho, Washington State whipped Weber State 62-52 and Utah shaded Illinois 52-49.
Purdue's Reid was an outstanding substitute throughout the season and was making only his fifth start. But he led the way with 20 points, hitting nine of 11 shots — including his first seven. Robert Morris, which overcame a nine-point deficit in the final 7:28, saw Forest Grant's 45-foot heave at the buzzer bang off the back of the rim.
The victory advanced Purdue to a second-round battle with ninth-ranked Arkansas. Ohio U. now takes on Kentucky.
Tatum, who finished with 11 points, appeared to have given the Bobcats the victory with 14 seconds to go when he hit a layup after stealing the ball from Illinois State's Michael McKenny. But ISU's Reynard Malaine drilled a 20-footer from the left corner to tie the game with three seconds remaining.
But Tatum made that incidental when he caught the ball in traffic around the free throw line and hit the game-winning shot.
Maryland's triumph pushed the Terrapins into a second-round match against the No. 1-ranked Houston Cougars. Saturday's other second-round game in Houston will send Lamar against No. 13 Villanova.
The Terrapins trailed Chattanooga 32-18 early in the second half before Branch sparked their comeback by scoring 17 of his game-high 22 points after the intermission.
Lamar's Robinson, averaging only 7.2 points a game, scored 10 in the first half and finished with a game-high 20 — Sewell had 19 — as the Cardinals kept alive their record of never having lost a first-round NCAA game in four tries.

Pampa's Skate Town to sponsor speed meet

Panhandle Speed League is sponsoring a speed meet at Skate Town in Pampa this Sunday, beginning at 9 a.m.
Events range from a Tiny Tots division to the Masters event. Trophies will be presented for first, second and third-place winners while ribbons will be awarded to relay winners.
The meet is sanctioned by the United States Amateur Confederation of Roller Skating.

Nelson named to McDonald's team

Pampa High basketball standout Mike Nelson has been nominated to the 1983 McDonald's All-American High School Basketball Team by Harvester coach Garland Nichols.

Nichols nominated Nelson based on a combination of outstanding overall athletic performance and dedication to excellence in basketball.

In four years as a starter, Nelson has broken five Pampa High records, including highest single game score, highest single season score and highest four-year total score.

This season, the 6-3 senior led the Harvesters with a 23.8 ppg average while alternating between the forward and guard position. Nelson shot 70 percent from the foul line.

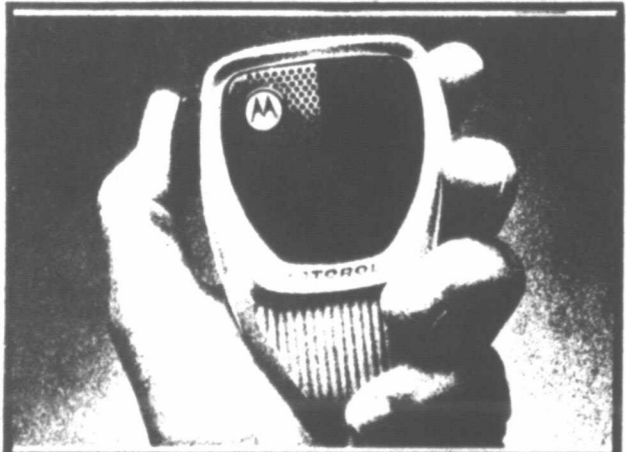

"Nelson's greatest strength is that he doesn't have any weaknesses," said Nichols. "He performs well in all aspects of the game."

McDonald's All-American Basketball Team was formed in 1977 to recognize and honor outstanding young athletes. Over 1,200 nominees are annually submitted by high school coaches from all over the United States from which a select 25-member team is selected.

The All-American team is selected by two blue-ribbon committees of basketball experts headed by John Wooden, legendary coach of ten national collegiate championships when he was at UCLA, and coach Morgan Wootten, coach of DeMatha High in Hyattsville, MD, one of the top-ranked high school teams in the country.

Members of McDonald's 1983 All-American team and their coaches will participate in the sixth annual McDonald's All-American Game in Atlanta, Ga. on April 9. Proceeds from the "East-West" game will be donated to the Atlanta Ronald McDonald House.

"We're really excited that Mike Nelson has been recognized as one of the top basketball players in the country," said Ronald C. McVean, owner-operator of the Tri-State McDonald's Franchise. "He's an exceptionally talented athlete and a real credit to the Pampa High School team and the Pampa community."

Lamar shocks Alabama to advance in Midwest

HOUSTON (AP) - The Lamar University Cardinals, perennial first-round survivors in the NCAA basketball playoffs, had a plan that even their coach didn't think would work.

"Before the game I thought it would be impossible for us to play with them," Lamar Coach Pat Foster said Thursday night, moments after upsetting Alabama 73-50 in a first round game of the NCAA Midwest Regional basketball tournament.

"We had a game plan and we worked it to perfection. We made them play defense so long they crumbled," Foster said.

Alabama, with superior talent, nonetheless became Lamar's fourth straight NCAA first round playoff victim without a loss.

"We were the underdogs and we were able to play loose, free and easy," Foster said. "I don't know if it was the fact we were underdogs or if we caught the moon just right."

Foster credited Lamont Robinson's defensive work on Alabama's Ennis Whatley as a key to the game.

"We shut down Whatley and cut off their running game," Foster said. "You can't run up and down the floor with people who had superior talent."

Instead of packing away the equipment, the Cardinals now will square off against 13th-ranked Villanova in Saturday's second round.

The No. 1-ranked Houston Cougars will play Maryland, a 52-51 winner over 15th ranked Tennessee-Chattanooga, in the other second round matchup.

Alabama Coach Wimpy Sanderson said "I don't think we overlooked them. We knew they had never lost a first round game so we weren't overconfident."

"We shut ourselves down tonight. You're just not going to shoot well when you're tired."

The Cardinals also held down Alabama center Bobby Lee Hurt, who was weighted by four fouls in the second half.

"We went to the zone in the second half and we paced the zone back in on him, Foster said. "We made them shoot from the outside and fortunately they didn't hit very many."

Instead of heading home like many fans expected, The Cardinals now must face the next hurdle.

Official testifies on Dow case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A regional Environmental Protection Agency official who says he changed a pollution report on orders that Washington denies giving, is telling his side of the story to congressional investigators.

Valdas Adamkus, head of EPA's Midwest regional office in Chicago, was scheduled to appear today before the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee.

In all, six congressional committees are investigating the EPA, looking into allegations of political manipulation, perjury, conflicts of interest and "sweetheart" deals with polluters.

Adamkus was testifying on an EPA report on dioxin contamination in central Michigan. Adamkus has said he was ordered by his Washington superiors to delete references blaming Dow Chemical Co.'s Midland, Mich., plant for the contamination.

"Some pressure was exerted by some people," Adamkus said. "This should never have happened. I hope it won't happen in the future. It will be a good example so we don't create any conflicts of interest."

His statements on the Dow report appeared to conflict with sworn testimony by the EPA's acting administrator, Dr. John Hernandez, who told another House subcommittee on Wednesday he gave no such orders. Hernandez said he allowed Dow to review scientific evidence and suggest changes in the draft report because he believed some of the conclusions could not be supported. But he added: "I had no idea what was deleted. I did not request anyone to delete anything."

The allegations concern a 1981 study of pollution in central Michigan from dioxin, a potent byproduct from the production of herbicides.

The draft report by scientists in the regional office blamed Dow, saying the chemical company "has extensively contaminated their facility with (dioxin) and has been the primary contributor to contamination of the Tittabawassee and Saginaw Rivers, and Lake Huron."

The report, authored by J. William Clark, health effects specialist of the regional office, recommended that consumption of fish from the waterways "should be prohibited."

Those sections did not appear in the final report.

Adamkus said that after Dow reviewed the draft, the company objected to the critical references.

After conference calls between regional scientists and the dioxin work group in Washington, he said, orders came from Washington to omit the conclusions from the final report.

Candidates have trouble getting funds

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter Mondale and Alan Cranston were in a big hurry to grab headlines in January as the first presidential kids on the block to qualify for federal matching funds.

But now both have gotten their fingers burned for trying to pry the lid off the U.S. Treasury cookie jar with a bit too much haste.

The fact is, neither campaign met the requirements for matching funds in January. Federal Election Commission auditors found problems with each campaign's initial filings, problems that blocked their meeting the FEC requirements.

Both campaigns say they have essentially cleared up the problems by now and have given the FEC an unchallenged list of $5,000 in contributions of $250 or less from each of at least 20 states — the minimum for qualification. Such small contributions are doubly valuable for presidential campaigns since the U.S. Treasury matches them dollar for dollar with federal checks.

This early, early episode of the 1984 presidential contest is illustrative of the mistakes and snafus that plague all campaigns — despite the image of computerized candidates with polls, data banks and teleconferences via satellite.

Even former Vice President Mondale's effort — lauded as the most efficient campaign of the current presidential contenders — was tripped up by problems similar to those that nailed Cranston's bid.

Each campaign made errors in rushing to the FEC office with their contributor lists.
