New evidence says Pope attack was KGB plot

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence from a Bulgarian defector supports testimony by Mehmet Ali Agca that he was working for Bulgaria when he tried to kill Pope John Paul II. The New York Times reported today

Iordan Mantarov. 48. a Bulgarian diplomat who defected to France in July 1981, told French intelligence agents that a plot to kill the pope was devised by the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency, and by the Bulgarian secret service, the newspaper said

The plan was drawn up, Mantarov said, because the two agencies believed the pope was the keystone of a United States effort to subvert the Polish government and move it away from the Communist bloc.

Mantarov said he was a close friend of Dimiter Savov, who he said was a high-ranking official in the counterintelligence division of the Bulgarian state security agency. The Times said independent intelligence sources confirmed the existence of an agency official by that name, although they could not be sure of his position.

The Bulgarian government has called the implication that Bulgarians were involved in the May 13, 1981, assassination attempt on the pope a fabrication by Western intelligence

The Soviet Union repeatedly has denied any role in the attack

Mantarov's account, according to French intelligence sources, represents the first report from a Bulgarian defector who was in an official position at the time of the shooting. It was uncovered during a two-month investigation by the Times, in seven countries, of the purported assassination plot

The Times said the new information was not conclusive. The Times said the investigation also found that Sergei I Antonov, 35, an official of Bulgarian Airlines being held by Italians on suspicion that he was Agca's accomplice. repeatedly contradicted information he gave to Italian authorities about his movements and contacts in Italy.

The newspaper said its investigation found that Turkish smugglers who Agca said financed his travels after his escape from prison in Turkey in November 1979 had close ties with the Bulgarian authorities, including state security police. Agca is Turkish

The ties were so close that the smugglers were provided depots to store their contraband goods and escorts for their boats out of Bulgarian waters, the newspaper said.

The information about the smugglers came from an associate of Bekir Celenk, a Turkish businessman who Agca said offered him $1.25 million in Sofia in the summer of 1980 to kill the pope, the Times said.

Mantarov was deputy commercial attache at the Bulgarian Embassy in Paris. His defection has been kept quiet by the French Internal Counterespionage Service and the French have only recently told the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency about it, the newspaper said

Pantex nuke train arrives in sub base despite demonstrators

By DOUG ESSER

BANGOR, Wash. (AP) - Demonstrators who failed to stop a train believed carrying nuclear warheads from Texas to a Washington submarine base say their protest still brought national attention to such shipments.

Six people were arrested Tuesday when they tried to get in front of the train as it pulled into the Trident nuclear submarine base here, and 10 people were arrested over the weekend as the train passed through Colorado.

Protest leaders said the 12 white cars of the Burlington Northern train carried 100 warheads to arm Trident missiles, a charge neither confirmed : nor denied by government and railway officials.

However, officials did say the train was equipped to carry nuclear weapons.

'We were trying to alert other people to the fact that these trains were moving." said Shelley Douglass, who lives with her husband, Jim, in a house on the edge of the Trident base. The couple help lead the anti-Trident group Ground Zero Center for Non-Violent Action.

The demonstration "helped people to realize the horror that is being created by the submarine program. The action of a few here will help influence the minds of many." said activist Leslie Redtree of Lopez Island.

The train's 2,000-mile journey ended around midday Tuesday as the train pulled into the base past a crowd of about 200

Protests followed the train's route over a five-day

The final protest was generally non-violent Japanese Buddhist monks prayed, and demonstrators threw daffodils and other flowers on a 100-yard stretch of track leading to the base gates. Ground Zero member Karol Schulkin had said that a small group of people would try to block the tracks. The six arrested were charged with attempting to obstruct or delay a train, and one also charged with resisting arrest. Ground Zero volunteers had traced a route between Bangor and the Pantex Corp. plant in Texas where hydrogen warheads are assembled after spotting a similar train last year. Ms.

Pampa votes to accept '82 audit

By LORI-ANN D'ANTONIO Staff Writer

Pampa City Commissioners voted to accept the audit of city finances conducted by Peat, Marwick Mitchell and Company of Amarillo at their regular meeting Tuesday morning.

Although Les Rhodes, the auditor's representative from Amarillo, said the city had enough money to pay its bills at the end of fiscal 1982, the firm told the city for the second year in a row that it needs to compile a "financial statement of the general fixed assets group," a list where the value of each piece of property the city owns.

Mack Wofford, Pampa city manager, said the city has never had a fixed assets ledger, but that one is continually being compiled. He said the city knows where everything is, and how much of each item the city owns. He said that in order to be correct, the purchase price of each item must be combined with its depreciation (how much less it's worth each year) to obtain a final value.

"We just can't agree with the auditors on what things are worth." he said this morning.

The audit, which covers the period from October 1. 1981 to September 30, 1982, showed the city spent $1.787.989 more overall in 1982 than in 1981, and also went over budget on several items. Included in the items that went over the amount budgeted are general services, police, auditorium, public works and inspection, sanitation, parks and recreation, engineering and library.

Grassed-out grannies

Rhodes said of the $1,787,989, $865,000 of it was spent to secure certificates of obligation for the Highway 70 drainage project. Of the remaining $923,000 that makes up that figure, he said. $440,000 went to the police and fire departments New employees were added to the police department and the fire department purchased a $96,000 fire

Departments in which there was an increase of approximately 30 percent or more over 1981 figures were finance, police, fire, sanitation, engineering and capital outlay

In an analysis of just the general fund and library fund, the city had projected a deficit of $752,578 and finished the year with a deficit of $342,468, which brought them to the close of the year with a "favorable variance" of $410,110. Therefore, the city came in $410.110 over budget on the general and library fund balance sheet. Rhodes said

The water and sewer fund revenues came in at about the same figure for 1982 that they had for 1981, and that increases in costs (about 15.8 percent) were mainly due to inflation. Operating income dropped slightly, because of inflation and the revenue staying flat. Some decreases in revenue were also attributed to federal budget

In a set of unaudited figures for the year 1982, the amount of water pumped into the waterwork's was listed as 1,421,115,000 gallons, and the water sold was listed as 1,068,821,900, representing a difference of 1,352,293,100 gallons. Wofford said the figures were misleading because the city does not sell water to itself, and that water sold should be listed as water metered instead.

In 1982, he said, the city metered out and-or accounted for 1.195,851,900 gallons of water. This figure represents the water metered to residential and commercial customers, two water contracts the city had with the Dorchester Corporation, and Cities Service, and the estimated amount used for watering parks.

The difference between the figure pumped into the water works and the water sold or used in parks is 224,264,000 gallons. This amount of water, Wofford said, is used in all city buildings and to fight fires. He said the figure did not seem unusual for the the purposes it's used for

In other business conducted at the meeting, the commission read for the second and final time an ordinance changing the zoning of three lots in the Northcrest Addition from Single Family-2 to Office District. The land in question is located on Hobart Street west of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church ne rezoning will allow Dr. J.A. (Jav.) Johnson. local dentist, to build an office there

The commission also gave final plat approval to the MeCullough Street industrial addition, to be developed by the LLD. Corporation of Pampa. The land in bordered by McCullough Street to the north and Farley Street to the west, and is in the southwest corner of the city

Jimmy Johnson, a 35 - year - old father of three, is looking for work

"I'll learn to do anything, but I am especially good with things mechanical." he said Jimmy was a machinist with Wells Machine for five years before he was laid off last November.

Even though he has been collecting unemployment, he has been out looking for another machinist job. He said he has been to every machine shop in the Panhandle and clear over to Elk City; no one seems to be hiring men with his qualifications.

He describes himself as a jack of all trades. In addition to being a machinist, he can weld, wire trailers and campers, do basic carpentry and drive a truck

Jimmy's dad has run Bill's Camper Sales for 20 years, and whenever his dad needed his help. Jimmy worked as a salesman, did the electrical wiring on the campers and trailers, or repaired campers

"I can do anything on campers because I've been working on them most of my life. I especially like working with my hands," he said.

He has also had experience selling cars, campers and trucks; however, with sales off the way they have been, there just isn't enough income for both our families."

It takes more than his unemployment insurance to feed his wife, son and two daughters.

Jimmy graduated from Pampa High School and studied electronics for a year at college. "I want to learn anything - anything to work. I can learn. If it means selling my house and moving to a new town, then I

It'll cost $730,000 to fix Pampa streets

It's going to cost about $730,000 to fix Pampa city streets, according to preliminary estimates by City Engineer Mike Walker. City Manager Mack Wofford said today that Walker submitted the preliminary estimates to him Tuesday. The estimate is broken down into two parts, the storm-related damage and repairs in

Wofford said the amount needed to repair damage done to the streets by winter storms will be about $360,000, and it will probably take another $370,000 to fix the general damage done before the winter storms, he said.

He stressed that the estimates are preliminary and may go up or down in the future. When asked where the city will get $730,000, Wofford said "that's a good question, because we don't have it."

Barney Clark worsens, may be sent back into intensive care

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Artificial heart recipient Barney Clark, his condition worsening, battled a 102-degree fever while "very concerned" doctors ordered more tests to pinpoint a puzzling ailment that was shutting down his kidnevs

Clark's wife Una Loy, who was described as depressed, kept a vigil at her husband's bedside today as the retired Seattle-area dentist entered his 112th day of life on an

'His death is not imminent," University of Utah Medical Center spokesman John Dwan said late Tuesday. "If the problems persist, however, they have the potential of being

Doctors planned to downgrade Clark's condition from fair to serious because of the fever and kidney trouble if the "negative trend" continued, Dwan said. Clark, 62, also would be moved from his hospital room to a surgical

"To say they are very concerned at this point would be an understatement," Dwan said. "His kidneys are shutting down. They have not shut down completely, but they are not doing very well. A decision on whether to move Clark was expected today at a morning meeting to be attended by specialists in infectious diseases, attending physician Dr. Lyle Joyce, and Dr. William DeVries, who performed the historic implant

Clark was on the verge of death from heart failure when he was picked to receive the Jarvik-7 heart by a University of Utah Medical Center panel. He was suffering from cardiomyopathy, a degenerative and incurable disease of the heart muscle

The seven-hour operation to implant the fist-sized, air-driven, polyurethane pump was successful.

But Clark required surgery three times more - to replace a broken valve in his new heart, fix tiny air leaks in his lungs and stop persistent nosebleeds. He suffered seizures Dec. 7. leading to a prolonged period of depression and disorientation. Recently, he had been recovering from aspiration pneumonia

Clark developed fever and his kidneys started weakening Saturday, said Dwan.

Clark was not in pain Tuesday, but was "less responsive than he has been," Dwan said. "He's coherent sometimes; other times he's not responsive." He was being given only limited doses of antibiotics, for fear the drugs would complicate his kidney problems.

Joyce tried to place Clark's latest setback in perspective. "We've been in tight spots before and we've got him out of them. It's a tight one," Dwan quoted the doctor as saying. Dwan said he spoke with Mrs. Clark at about 7 p.m.

In their consultations about Clark's kidneys, doctors said they believed "the possibilities vary from simple blockage to terminal kidney failure," Dwan said.

Pampa woman faces bad check charge

Sherry M. Hock was arrested Tuesday on a warrant from

Borger charging her with theft by check.

Following an accident in which Hock's car was struck by another car in the intersection of Decatur and Duncan, a Pampa police officer checked the records of the persons driving the cars. As result of this records check, the patrolman was notified that Sherry Manning Hock of 120 W.

24th Street, Pampa, was wanted on a warrant from Borger. She was arrested and booked into city jail on Tuesday. Hock was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Margie Prestidge Wednesday morning on a warrant from Borger charging her with theft by check. Bond was set at $5,000.

She is being held in Pampa City Jail pending word from Borger authorities.

Dow wants to bring the schools closer to parents, the public

The school board meetings should be held later in the evening and there should be special budget meetings, open to questions and comments by the public, said Dr. Dwight H. Dow, a candidate for Place 7 on the Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees.

The election will be April 2, 1983. Dow proposes the school board of trustees meetings begin about 7 p.m. instead of the current 5 p.m. to allow those who work later the opportunity to attend the meetings.

After spending a great deal of time studying the budgets and audits, Dow said he found that local enterprise funds are not included in the formal audit of the past fiscal year. He said $500,000 spent on gym and stadium and cafeteria operations were not included in the audit.

He would like to see more interest generated in the school

"We all pay taxes. The school makes an impact on the community; it effects the social, academic and moral lives of our children. The direction any organization takes is determined by where the money is spent," Dow said. "I feel the school administration and the board could do more about letting the town know what's going right. While things are going well, on the whole, Dow feels there is always room for improvement. For instance, he feels there is a need for more communication between the people involved in education: school administrators, teachers, board of trustees and parents. Dow said he feels there is also a need to create a favorable atmosphere in which teachers could appear before the board. He said he would like to see the creation of a faculty advisory committee to act as a direct communication link between the teachers and the board.

He proposes the advisory committee be made up of teachers elected by their peers from each school in the Pampa district. This committee, acting as a resource, a direct communication link, through which the board could learn of the wants and needs of the teachers in a favorable atmosphere of cooperation, would report to the board at the regular meetings.

Dow has set a list of priorities he feels a school should meet to best serve the students and the community

1. He feels the best classroom instruction can be had with quality teachers using adequate materials. "If we're going to improve the school system, academically, we need to give the kids from first grade up a strong basic background in reading, writing, math and science," he said.

2. He would like to see the needs of the special students met. He said "special education should include everything from remedial reading, teaching English to minority students, to the mentally retarded and the gifted and talented. The classroom teacher can tell which of his students needs special attention and refer the child to the proper area, Dow said. He said open communication between teachers and parents is essential to a good education. And, he said, the school system not only has to care about the student, but has to have the programs to handle problems as they're identified.

3. Dow feels more attention should be given to vocational education. He pointed out that at its last meeting the school board authorized construction of feeding pens for the vocational agriculture livestock. It would be more appropriate to have a school farm, he said. The students need not only a wider range of choice, but intensity of instruction; we need to prepare those who want to go into a vocation from high school, he said. "Not everyone needs or wants to go to college.

After the basics have been attended to, Dow feels fine arts. as in music, drama and art, and atheletics have their place in the well - rounded development of the student.

Dow said in the past there has been more complaining than voting. He hopes this year the eligible voters will get out and cast their ballots.

"My youngest son has nine years to go in this system. I want the best for him and all the students in the system."

Senators asked to end mandatory life sentences

AUSTIN (AP) - Texas prisons could be weeded out of non-violent criminals sent there for life under Texas' 127-year-old repeat offender law, a senate panel was told as it considered various bills to repeal or alter the law

-- Houston defense attorney Scott Atlas told the Senate Jurisprudence Committee Tuesday that a second-time rapist can get as little as 15 years in prison, but that a third-time hot check writer automatically gets life.

"In no other state or territory can you get a life sentence for petty property crimes," Atlas said. "I believe the vast number of Texans believe in justice tempered with fairness.

Atlas said he was the attorney who argued unsuccessfully before the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of a man who wrote hot checks and received Atlas was among several witnesses who lined up to give sometimes emotional testimony on a proposal by Sen. Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, that would allow juries to give anywhere from 20 to 99 years for third-time felony convictions.

By setting the mandatory punishment at 20 years with the possibility of a life sentence. society's concern for protecting itself and deterring crime can be satisfied without sacrificing the time-honored principle that the punishment should fit the crime." argued Atlas.

Harris County District Attorney John Holmes said an escalating crime rate, increasing recidivism and public sentiment dictated leaving the law intact.

Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Judge Chuck Miller testified in favor of Farabee's proposal, asking senators to "bring the law to the level of civilization and humanity to which we have

Holmes argued, "We haven't changed. We've gotten worse." He said the threat of a mandatory life sentence allows prosecutors to extract pleas of guilty for lesser sentences.

Other members of the committee bowed out of an exchange between Holmes and Sen. Craig Washington, D-Houston, a defense attorney who also is sponsoring proposals that would limit mandatory life sentencing. Washington argued that even innocent defendants would plea bargain for fear of being wrongly found guilty and sentenced to life. "Have you ever pleaded someone you knew was

Putting teeth into legal ethics

Lawyers have a tough problem. They are trying to draw up codes of ethics that will suit them and enhance their public image

Meeting in New Orleans this month, a majority of the 383 members of the House of Delegates of the America Bar Association rejected changes in the code which would have limited a lawyer's privilege to keep secret any guilty knowledge of a client's misdoing.

At present, a lawyer is required to blow the whistle on a client only if reasonably necessary to prevent a crime of violence. But what if the client is engaged in a scheme to defraud - non - violent but criminal? Is the lawyer required to conduct an independent investigation of his client's affairs? If the lawyer discovers that he is part of a criminal conspiracy, and his client refuses to give up the scam, is the lawyer required to break his silence and warn possible victims?

These questions are not easy for anyone to answer, and the ABA decided to err on the side of protecting the lawyer's privilege to keep silent. That has caused a barrage of critism against the legal profession.

A code of ethics that is unworkable and impractical is worse than no code of ethics at all. It instills a false confidence in anyone who relies on its pretenses. It can turn sincere practitioners into hypocrites.

There is another approach that can solve the problem handily. Let lawyers sue lawyers. Whenever a lawyer participates in a fraudulent scheme to use due care and caution, that lawyer is and should be liable for damages.

If enough victims recover large enough sums, lawyers will become more alert to signals of wrongdoing by their clients and more willing to forego the large fees tt such clients are customarily willing and able to pay

Let dishonest lawyers pay dearly for their dishonesty. and they will soon mend their ways. That is a penalty they will respect far more than they respect any toothless code of ethics.

Why Klaus Barbie must be tried...

Klaus Barbie was a bit overweight, but he liked to dress smartly. He didn't do especially well in school, graduating two years behind his class. But he did have 'dark blond sleek hair" and a "consistently strong, positive attitude," according to his employment file. These requisites helped him rise in the Nazi banks and get a job in France. Between the winter of 1942 and the summer of 1944, this seemingly common man participated in 4,342 murders and ordered 7,591 deportations to death camps. He sent Jewish children to the gas chambers of Auschwitz. He captured and tortured to death the French resistance leader Jean Moulin.

When the Allies defeated Germany, Barbie was taken prisoner by the U.S. Army. France requested Barbie's extradition for trial, but, according to U.S. interrogator Erhard Dabringhaus, Barbie sold U.S. agents intelligence about the Soviets and was given a sanitized identity and $1,700 a month. In 1951, U.S. agents may have helped him escape to South America, where he lived until January, when he was expelled from Bolivia. He now faces trial in Lyons, France.

Upon his capture, Barbie told an interviewer: "I am a convinced Nazi..and if I had to be born a thousand times, I would be a thousand times what I have been."

What is the purpose of prosecuting an old man, after all these years, for crimes of the past? To punish him for what he did to the people he butchered. To show other people who would commit crimes against humanity that they too will be relentlessly hunted and punished. And to remind us that the Nazis were people not completely unlike ourselves who, because of their belief that Jews and others were not human, caused untold suffering and destruction, first for scapegoats, and then for their own

U.S. complicity in Barbie's escape must be investigated. Protection of a murderer, even for intelligence - gathering, is intolerable.

In the village of Izieu, near Lyons, there is a plaque on the school from which Barbie had 41 Jewish children carried off, never to return. Its inscription is the only answer to the Klaus Barbies of the past and of the future. It reads: "Each man has a part in the deaths of all men, because each is a part of humanity.

America's going to the sue-ers

By PAUL HARVEY

Maybe when everybody is suing everybody, somebody will put a stop to this nonsense

Safeway supermarket in Alameda, Calif., is being sued for child support because "the contraceptive didn't work Hershey Chocolate and Walgreen were sued by a woman who claimed she found bug eggs in her candy bar

A Maryland seafood restaurant is being sued by a couple who claim they cut their fingers peeling their shellfish An Alton, Ill., woman sued Mogen David wine company because her husband, after drinking its wine, raped a themselves as a professional football team. Marijuana users in Florida are suing to prevent weed killer from being sprayed on marijuana fields.

A Chicago Bears fan is suing them for misrepresenting

Many frivolous lawsuits are settled out of court for cash because a protracted court fight would cost more. Usually that's the idea.

Sometimes it doesn't work. The McComb, Ill., woman who said she found a razor blade in her hot dog - and got a supermarket to take all its weiners off the market - later confessed she lied.

"In order to observe police procedures," she said. She got 30 days

Maybe when everybody is suing everybody, somebody will put a stop to this nonsense.

"Sixty Minutes" recently threw some light on the enormous proliferation of lawsuits being filed by convicts in prison - with you paying the court costs.

U.S. News recently counted 200,000 civil suits filed this year in federal courts; 14 percent more than last year.

And state courts report cases coming in too fast to count! The last year for which they have a complete count was 1977. when 12 million cases were filed.

The lawsuits binge costs everybody - in higher taxes. higher prices and higher insurance rates.

Our nation supports 610,000 lawyers. Japan, with half our population, has only 12,000 lawyers. Because in Japan most disputes are handled by "mediators" rather than by courts. They prefer to resolve disputes by informal negotiation.

Historically in the U.S., families, churches and neighborhood groups have helped resolve disputes - but the epidemic is now encouraged by generous judges and by ravenous public appetite for tax - free cash settlements.

As is, the sue - ers have nothing to lose. One suggestion that would separate legitimate claims from the silly ones would require that the plaintiff post enough bond to cover all court costs should he lose.

Don't expect much support for that. Maybe when everybody is suing everybody, somebody

Letters Blacks have been put down...

Waiting for change

In regards to the quiz in Sunday's paper (March 20, 1983) there are a few things I would like to square away.

1. Yes, it's possible to buy beer (on Sunday) in the black neighborhood, and if you would have checked a little bit better, you would have found beer being sold in white neighborhoods also.

2. Yes, every blue moon you find a black on the north side drinking beer, if five or six whites aren't either chasing him-her away, or beating him-her to a pulp

3. Yes, the people living on the south side of the track DO pay taxes.

The blacks have always been put down in Pampa ever since I can remember. Our parks, housing, streets and community needs a lot of work. I've been waiting for a change for years, but nothing has changed. And it never will. Tired of being second class

College concerns

As a student at Clarendon College - Pampa Center for the past three years, I would like to express two areas of concern

First, there is a lack of adequate lighting on the streets surrounding the college. This is especially a problem during the winter semester when classes convene and dismiss in darkness. Unless you get to the school about 45 minutes before class you have to park one or two blocks away and this presents a problem for the female students, both young and old. It is not only a problem because of the risk of being attacked or harassed, but it also presents the risk of stumbling or walking into hazardous objects.

Which brings me to the second problem, lack of parking space. I am sure that the people who live in the area surrounding the college as well as the college students will testify to the fact that this is indeed a problem. There is a dirt lot that sits to the west of the center but more times than not it is a mudhole. If adequate parking were provided, this would also help to alleviate the first problem since walking distance would be minimized.

Pampa should be proud to have the college here, I understand that it took many years to have a college located in Pampa. The enrollment has increased each year that I have been a part of it and I believe it will continue to increase under the direction of Larry Gilbert who has displayed both insight and enthusiasm to his position.

If we can get the City of Pampa to cooperate and give us proper lighting and the board of the college to obtain parking for the students, I feel that the community of Pampa will take renewed interest in and rally support for our college. With the varied curriculum that is now being offered at the college, every individual can and should become involved with OUR college.

Winning hearts in Central America

The Christian Science Monitor is must reading at this

Its reasoned, dispassionate approach to the news, good and bad, is certainly unexcelled and conceivably unequaled in

What prompts this observation is a recent editorial examination of death and disorder in Central America, and U.N. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick's suggestion that a coordinated aid effort similar to the Marshall Plan might be the most effective American response.

The Monitor's characteristically upbeat conclusion is that such an area-wide approach is at least worth a try.

Possibly. But if it is tried, Americans had better be prepared for something considerably short of the prototype program's success. The circumstances are not comparable. Western Europe in 1947 was struggling with one overwhelming problem common to every country. Both the van-quished and the theoretical victors had been flattened by the war, economically and physically.

There was a common resource, however, that was largely intact: educated, skilled populations. It should never be forgotten that the vast amounts of American money and material poured into Europe went to hands capable of making the most of it. Once provided with the wherewithal, Europeans swiftly rebuilt their own roads and rail lines, factories and

There are not enough American dollars to have bought the German miracle. That was wrought by miracle workers the Germans themselves.

None of this fits Central America. Far from being skilled, the populations — with one exception — are largely illiterate subsistence farmers. Far from being able to help themselves if given the tools, they must first be taught how to use the tools of the 20th century. The infrastructure for rapid economic development transportation facilities, distribution networks, power grids is virtually nonexistent. With economies completely dependent upon agriculture, all suffer from the slack world market for their products. But in differing degrees and ways.

Costa Rica, the region's one genuine democracy, spent itself into technical bankruptcy with expensive social programs. But the educated, homogenous Ticos are the most likely to succeed quickly if given a sufficiently generous helping hand.

Honduras is at the other end of the scale. Hondurans with a taste for black humor say the country is even too underdeveloped for revolutionary unrest such as torments their neighbors. Capacity to absorb material aid is limited. What Honduras needs is carefully measured doses over a long period of time.

Bleeding El Salvador's economic problem is not one of deprivation but of imbalance. The volcanic soil makes it a rich country, but all the wealth has gone to a tiny landowning elite. Which is what the war is about.

The most predictable result of a crash program for Central America would not be rapid development and containment of the Marxist threat to U.S. hegemony, but waste and the enrichment of a small number of rapacious local entrepreneurs. It has happened before in attempting to force-feed economic development and, given the apparently irresistible temptation to seek quick fixes for complex problems, will again.

For that is what the talk of a Central American Marshall Plan really is - a search for a quick fix to a problem without dealing with its real nature.

The Monitor editorial touched on that in observing that the United States has been slow in finding its conscience on Cen-"It cannot escape the fact that its misguided policies of the past - its support for oppressive rulers and regimes and its apathy to social and economic reform — have contribut-Fixing what ails Central America, and what is wrong with the American relationship with the region, is going to be a slow and painful process. It is going to require above all unequivocal identification of American interests with the social and economic welfare of the peoples of Central America, not with their oppressors.

Government food grading aids consumer shopping

WASHINGTON (AP) - What's the difference between USDA Prime Beef and USDA Choice beef?

A recent survey sponsored by the Closure Manufacturers Association (CMA) indicates that 64 percent of consumers could benefit from additional information for their shopping decisions. Of these, 26 percent said they were not sure what government food grades and shields stood for "Food grading is a service consumers can rely on to get the most out of their food dollar," said John B. Carroll, vice president of CMA producer of container caps for prepared fruits. vegetables, juices and snacks.

"Government agencies and food packers developed this efficient system of grades and symbols to provide a uniform standard of quality for meat, poultry, fruit and vegetables and dairy products

Government food grades. which are issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). first appeared during World War I.

To help promote understanding of these grades and other quality indicators, the CMA offers these tips:

-U.S. Prime grade beef and lamb is the tenderest. juiciest and most flavorful. with abundant "marbling" (flecks of fat) within the lean USDA Choice grade is high quality with slightly less marbling. USDA Good is leaner. lacking some juiciness and flavor.

-Select poultry by its age. grade and size. U.S. Grade 'A" is top'quality — the most meaty and attractive. Young smaller birds such as fryers. broilers or frver roasts are most suitable for barbecuing. frying, broiling or roasting The less tender mature birds. often called fowl or hen, serve well for stewing, baking, soups and salads.

-In prepared fruits and vegetables in jars, cans and frozen food sections. Grade A are the best, most uniform, flavorful and juicy. Grade B makes up a substantial portion of processed fruits and vegetables and are of very good flavor and overall

"Closure-sealed foods packed in clear glass jars offer visible evidence of their quality in color, uniformity and lack of blemishes." said Carroll. "Thus. many packers select the very best

Ham makes Easter worth remembering

It's the family traditions that make holidays so eagerly anticipated and so long remembered. Special Easter customs may include decorating eggs. hiding baskets, visiting relatives, baking Easter breads and attending church services. For most families, the Easter celebration also means a gala feast centered around an impressive baked ham.

You may be able to trace your family's tradition of serving ham for Easter back for generations for the custom of the Easter ham has actually been around for many centuries. Ham was served in pagan times for the huge feasts that heralded the arrival of spring. Since fresh meats were not available at that time of year, they served cured ham. This spring feasting was continued in the Christian era and soon became associated with

For a modern approach to the time - honored tradition of ham, choose a boneless "fully cooked" smoked ham and serve it with a sweet orange glaze. This lean, meaty ham need only be heated through and it's ready to serve. It's easy, too, to coat the ham with a shimmering glaze. Simply brush it on the ham during the last 20 minutes of the cooking period.

To add to the festive mood of the meal, suggest that the host carve the ham at the table. Because the ham is boneless with no waste, it carves beautifully into perfect slices. For best results, it's important to use a good, sharp knife and a large fork to secure the ham as you

Overweight gains favor

By Gaynor Maddox

Nutrition

Being slightly overweight is not necessarily a threat to life and happiness. Part of the weight control problem is an over-emphasis on thinness, particularly in all the

"Perhaps we should define those who must lose weight for medical reasons and leave the rest of the overweight in peace with less guilt and a happier mental state," suggest Prof Marjorie Devine and Dr. David Levitsky, speakers at a conference on health and fitness sponsored by the New York City Consumer Education Program and the new Brooklyn Center of Cornell University Cooperative Extension.

More good news. "Moderate overweight is not always a health risk, and being thin will not lengthen life for 90 percent of the people who are now moderately overweight," speakers observed

Nevertheless it is possible to lose five to 15 pounds a year by combining dietary changes, increased physical activity and behavior modification. Dr. Levitsky says to try to stay away from the concentrated sources of calories, "the fats, the sugars, the red meats, the pastries. Go to the fruits, vegetables and whole grains; and the net consequence is a decrease in calories." Dieters must also change their energy output. Today's technology does our work for us. However, his mother phoned me last week and asked me if I would please return the silver she gave us at the time of our marriage, as it has been in her family for many years. I told her that the silver now belonged to me, and I had no intention of returning it. She seemed very upset.

I am certain that she doesn't know the reason her son and I were divorced. Should I tell her the truth? And don't you think I'm entitled to keep the silver? VIRGO ON THE CAPE

DEAR ABBY: My problem is probably more common than most people think. I am a battered husband. My wife and I have been married less than two years, and because of this problem, we're both seeing therapists individually and she goes to group therapy. I am writing not only for myself, but for all those men who are beaten by their wives and are too ashamed to tell anyone. We hear a great deal about wife-beating but very little about husbandbeating.

Can you direct me to some kind of support group to help me deal with this while my wife and I try to work it out? She is aware that she beats me, except when she is actually doing it. And believe it or not, we really love each other.

Horned Frogs tangle with Nebraska in National Invitation Tournament

By KEN RAPPOPORT AP Sports Writer

The Texas Christian University basketball team features an all-senior front line that ranges from 6-foot-8

That could present some tall problems for Nebraska in Thursday night's National Invitation Tournament quarterfinal game at Lincoln. Neb., according to Husker Coach Moe Iba.

"They're a tough team for us to go against because of their size," says Iba. "They play a good matchup zone defense and the 30-second clock will favor that. They'll also run their motion offense as well as anybody we'll play all year.'

The TCU-Nebraska game is one of three NIT contests Thursday night. In other action. Wake Forest meets South Carolina in Greensboro, N.C., and Fresno State plays at Oregon State. The quarterfinal round will conclude Friday night, when Mississippi takes on DePaul in Rosemont, Ill.

Quarterfinal winners will advance to the semifinals Monday in New York's Madison Square Garden. The title game will be played March 30.

TCU is playing some of its best ball of the season. Two weekends ago, the Horned Frogs upset then sixth-ranked Arkansas 61-59 in the semifinals of the Southwest Conference tournament in Dallas. TCU followed that victory with a 62-59 loss to nationally top-ranked Houston in the SWC championship game.

In the first two games of the NIT. the Horned Frogs took a 64-62 decision over Tulsa, the 1981 NIT champion, and then beat Arizona State last Monday night.

"TCU will be a very physical team for us to play, says Iba, thinking mainly of the Horned Frogs' front line of 6-10 center Brian Christensen and 6-9 Doug Arnold and 6-8 Doug Cucinella at forwards.

"We're going to have some short practices, so we don't wear our kids down. They're better off fresh. You've got to make sure you have your legs and some bounce in a physical game. You've got to be able to jump.

Nebraska beat Tulane 72-65 in the first round and then knocked out Iona 85-73 in the second round.

In Monday night's other second-round games, Mississippi won 65-57 over South Florida, DePaul downed Northwestern 65-63. South Carolina trimmed Virginia Tech 75-68. Fresno State turned back Michigan State 72-58. Wake Forest beat South Florida 65-57 and Oregon State walloped New Orleans 88-71.

The Ole Miss victory has pumped up Ken Turner. Mississippi's assistant coach. 'We're in Newark, just across the bridge." said Turner, implying that he had the New York skyline in his

The most exciting game of the second-round was between DePaul and Northwestern, won by the Blue Devils on a 35-foot buzzer shot by Kenny Patterson. Ironically. Patterson wasn't even first choice to take the final shot for DePaul. The plan formulated by Coach Ray Meyer called for either Bernard Randolph or Tyrone Corbin to take the final shot.

"But they overloaded on both of them," explained Patterson. "So they threw the ball back to me, figuring the worst it would be would be a

Five more defense witnesses were expected to be called testified Wednesday that an alleged police brutality victim was afraid to answer questions about a patrolman's killing but he knew something about the slaying and wanted to get it off his chest

But Bonura denied he or his partner, Stephen Farrar, beat or threatened any of the men they questioned

Five men who lived in New Orleans' predominantly black Algiers section testified they were threatened with guns, beaten, stomped, kicked and abused during interrogations about the killing of white patrolman Gregory Neupert.

Another defendant, Detective Thomas R. Woodall, testified that he heard Farrar and Bonura question one of the alleged brutality victims, Robert Davis, but did not participate in the interview. Detective Richard LeBlanc, a third defendant, claimed he was not assigned to the case.

detectives Woodall, LeBlanc and Ronald Brink, Sgt. John McKenzie and Officer Stephen Reboul could be sentenced to up to 10 years in prison and fined $10,000.

Bonura said Tuesday that he and Farrar considered Davis a "possible vital link" in their investigation and said they wouldn't beat a witness whose help they might need later in

"You don't press a witness that might break the case for you," said Bonura. Instead, he said he and Farrar tried to win Davis' trust.

He said Davis was scared and nervous when they, acting on a tip from an anonymous caller, picked him up and questioned him about what he saw when Neupert was killed on Nov. 8,

"I believed he knew something but was afraid to say. You could see he wanted to get it off his chest but he was scared." said Bonura

Judges push CBS contempt

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - "Outrageous conduct" demands extraordinary action, said a federal judge who was joined by 11 colleagues in hiring private lawyers to prosecute CBS for contempt of court in a case involving the television show "60 Minutes.

The judges acted Tuesday after the Department of Justice refused to prosecute CBS for what U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier said was "outrageous conduct" in defying his attempt to censor the weekly television show.

An order filed by Judge J. R. Heebe, chief judge of the U.S. District Court's Eastern District of Louisiana, revealed that 12 of the 14 judges voted in secret last Feb. 2 to appoint special lawyers because the U.S. Justice Department would not take

The lawyers appointed were Don M. Richard, a former assistant U.S. Attorney, and Phillip A. Wittmann, a lawyer who has handled libel cases.

CBS angered Duplantier by refusing to give him an advance copy of a "60 Minutes" report on alleged police brutality in New Orleans.

Acting on a defense request, Duplantier wanted a preview so he could delete anything he thought would be prejudice the trial of seven New Orleans policemen now being tried in Dallas for alleged civil rights violations.

The officers were accused of beating and threating black murder of another policeman.

The trial is now in its third week in U.S. District Court at Dallas, where it was moved on a defense motion. In asking the judge to censor CBS, defense lawyers contended that the program would be seen in Dallas and thus cancel out whatever advantages might have been won when the trial was transferred to an area where there had been little 1 or no publicity about the case.

Every word of this pretrial confrontation between Duplantier and CBS lawyers was held behind closed doors, in his private office. His version of it was filed as part of the court record 23 days later.

Duplantier said CBS refused when he ordered the network to . produce the script of the program. He said CBS refused again when he threatened to hold the network in contempt of his

FORT WORTH. Texas (AP) - The year 2000 will see staggering economic and population changes in Texas but "cocky ... self confident ... can do" Texans can meet the challenge, a University of Texas researcher says.

Victor Arnold, director of UT's Bureau of Business Research, told newspaper executives Monday the fate of Texas 2000 lies solely in the hands of Texans past, present and

" "Nobody else is going to do it for them." Arnold said in a speech before the conventioning Texas Daily Newspaper

He said water looms as the most serious threat to economic growth and a population that will reach 22.5 million in the next 17 years.

But he also touched on such problem areas as energy. transportation, education, economic diverity and the state's relationship with financially embattled Mexico.

"The outlook for Texas is rather bright provided we meet all these challenges." he said.

'My picture of the year 2000 is as cloudy as anyone's, but we can and must understand the trends that move us foward and anticipate and adjust and not react to problems only when they

Arnold said the 1970 Texas population of 11.2 million will double by 2000 and with the increase will come changes and challenges and a new economy based on diversity rather than oil, gas and agriculture.

By 2000, one of every 12 citizens in this country will be living in Texas," he predicted.

He said the state population increased by 3 million from 1970 to 1980 and jumped another million, to 15.2 million, in the last two years alone.

"Texas is like a developing country in terms of population growth," he said.

Of the 3 million increase between 1970 and 1980, he said 1.7 million, or 58 percent, were newcomeers rather than native born Texans.

A bureau study showed that eight percent of the immigrants migrated here from the 11 northeastern states, 25 percent form the upper midwest, 25 percent from the Rocky Mountain region. 28 percent from the four surrounding states and 10 percent from California.

Arnold said the influx included a large number of young, single women in the "prime child-bearing age" and that a baby boom has begun.

"In 1982, there were 65,000 more babies born in Texas than 1981," he said, and that a 3,000 shortfall of kindergarten teachers can be expected in five years.

'There will be 45 percent more children in elementary and secondary schools by 2000." he added.

He noted also that his figures do not reflect the 'undocumented guests' from Mexico, whose numbers range today from 300,000 to 3 million.

"Your guess on that is as good as mine," he said. Regarding the labor force, he said Texas must create 190,000 jobs annually "just to break even" by 2000 and that 3 million more housing units will be required. Economically, Texas has been the "crown jewel" of the entire nation, a leader in the rate of growth of manufacturing. capital investment and bank deposits. But the Texas economy in 1993 will not be the same as in 1983." he said.

He predicted that a state economy once based almost solely on oil and agriculture will become even more diversited in the areas of energy development, finance, insurance, real estate and both wholesale and retail trade.

'Diversity is a blessing in that it provides lots of job opportunities," he said. "But it also may be a curse in that we will be more susceptible to fluctuations in the national

but at a decidedly slower rate. "Without question, the most critical issue is water," he said,

He said petrochemicals will continue to be a growth industry

"and if we don't do something about it it will become a crisis." The water shortage is not a regional but a statewide problem, he said, adding: "It is an absolute myth that we can move water from East

Texas to West Texas. There are not sufficient sources: He cited problems confronting Houston, the High Plains and the Rio Grande Valley and said a $30 billion investment in water development will be needed between now and 2000 to meet economic and population demand. Arnold pointed to the Missouri River as a potential source of water importation and said a pipeline would be economically and technically possible but probably not politically

On the energy front, he said oil production will continue to decline but that there is "cautious optimism" for new natural gas exploration and production.

He said the equivalent of one billion barrels of oil lies beneath Texas but that conventional technology precludes recovery Texas, he said, still enjoys the location advantages attractive to new industry: climate, land costs, housing, labor policy and the absence of personal and corporate income taxes He said all Texans must realize their economic future is tied to Mexico and that the federal government should "cut through the political rhetoric and gibber and draw up a meaningful national policy

Group gives Texans low consumer ratings

WASHINGTON (AP) - Members of the Texas congressional delegation generally received low marks on their consumer voting records last year in a study released today by the Consumer Federation of America, the nation's largest consumer organization.

Sen. John Tower, a Republican, was one of four senators who qualified as "consumer zeros" for failing to cast a single vote for consumer interests in the study of 14 key Senate votes on consumer issues in 1982, the organization said.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Democrat, voted 36 percent of the time for consumer interests during the 14 votes, it said. Only four House members from Texas received ratings of more than 50 percent from the federation. The federation ratings were based on a study of what it regarded as 14 key votes in the Senate and 13 in the House on legisation affecting consumers.

Included were proposals lowering interest rates on mortgages. scaling back tax cuts for the wealthy and for corporations, providing funds for low-income energy assistance, requiring used car dealers to inform customers of car defects, extending unemployment benefits and eliminating telephone and cigarette tax increases.

In each case, the federation interpreted whether a "yes" or 'no" vote on the issue was in the consumer interest and used the interpretation to draw its overall ratings.

It was the second time this year that members of the Texas congressional delegation had been given generally low ratings by a consumer organization.

A similar study released in February by Congress Watch. founded by Ralph Nader, reported that during 40 key votes last year only three members of the Texas delegation voted more than half the time in favor of what the organization regarded as consumer interests.

In releasing its evaluation, the Consumer Federation said that the overall Senate rating was 44 percent and the overall House rating 47 percent.

Among those rated were Texas' two senators and all 24 House members who represented the state last year. Three of the House members rated are no longer in Congress and the House delegation has since expanded to 27 members.

Following are the percentages that each House member from Texas voted in favor of the consumer interest, as interpreted by the federation, during the House 13 votes studied last year:

District 1: Sam B. Hall Jr., D-Marshall, 31 percent; 2. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, 31 percent; 3. Jim Collins, R-Dallas, 0 percent; 4. Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, 23 percent; 5. Jim Mattox. D-Dallas. 38 percent; 6. Phil Gramm, R-College Station, 15 percent; 7. Bill Archer, R-Houston, 8 percent; 8. Jack Fields. R-Humble, 8 percent; 9. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont, 46 percent; 10.
