Fire engulfs Caldwell Production

Pampa and Hoover firefighters are tired but safe today after battling a blaze at Caldwell Production for more than 11 hours Friday (Jan. 16), and managed to save more than half of the structure. Firefighters remained on scene throughout the night to make sure there debris. The cause of the fire at Caldwell Production, owned by Pampa businessman Dennis Caldwell, will be under investigation by the Gray County Sheriff's Office, but no cause was known as of press time Saturday, Jan. 17.

The fire was reported at 3 p.m. Friday when a an employee heard a crackling noise, investigated and found the building on fire.

During the next 11 hours, 18 members of the Pampa Fire Department and five additional personnel from the Hoover Volunteer Fire Department, using 10 pieces of apparatus, worked to extinguish the blaze.

The initial challenge for responders was access to the fire, according to Capt. Jesse Hanes of the Pampa Fire Department. "Entry areas were limited and there was extensive heavy smoke,"

Shortly after they arrived, there was an explosion inside the building. There were numerous barrels of chemicals, acetylene, oxygen, paint cans inside, but firefighters did not have that information early on. "It was unsafe for us to make an entry without knowing exactly what types of materials were in there," Hanes

Personnel had trouble with access door and used a big gasoline powered circular saw to ventilate and gain entry to the fire.

The City of Pampa Water Department brought a backhoe to the scene and ripped the tin covering from the east end and part of the north side of the building to add in suppression.

Amazingly, damage was limited to east side of the structure, the firefighters saved over half of the building that will still be usable, according to Pampa Deputy Chief Randy Dunham.

"As always, our personnel did an outstanding job. This was a large incident, and we're a small fire department, Dunham said. "We had great help from Hoover. They supplied water with two tankers, one large and one bobtail, shuttled all the water for us. They did and outstanding job. I would really like to thank the water department employees who

Jakes, Caldwell, Wuerl join inaugural services

By RACHEL ZOLL

AP Religion Writer Bishop T.D. Jakes, the Dallas megachurch pastor, will preach at the private church service that President-elect Barack Obama will attend the morning of his inaugural, The Associated Press has learned.

The next day, an interfaith National Prayer Service will be held in the National Cathedral to cap the inauguration, featuring Roman Catholic, Jewish, Muslim and Hindu clergy, along with pastors from mainline Protestant, evangelical and Orthodox Christian traditions.

Jakes will give the sermon Tuesday at St. John's Episcopal Church, according to an official who Jakes is founder of The Potter's House, a multiethnic church with more than 28,000 members. He is also a Grammy-award winner, filmmaker and author of more than 30 books. The megapastor did not make an endorsement in the 2008 presidential election, but participated in the Obama campaign's prayer conference calls and expressed admiration for the then-candidate.

Sheriff seeking information on stolen cars

by Rachel Stennett

rstennett@thepampanews.com The Gray County Sheriff's Office is seeking information on two cars that were stolen and later found that may be linked to the same person.

According/to Lt. Joe B Hoard of GCSO, a 2003 Chevy Silverado was reported stolen between 6 p.m. and midnight on Jan. 14. The deputites found the vehicle wrecked on County Road 6 and H about 30 minutes after the call.

At 1 a.m., deputies received a second call concerning a 2003 Jeep Grand Cherokee, a quarter mile away from the vehicle that was wrecked, Hoard said.

The second vehicle was recovered undamanged. "The second vehicle was found yesterday (Jan 15) around noon near the Wal-Mart parking lot," Hoard

The case is still under investigation, and there is speculation that the two motor thefts may be connected to each other. Anyone with information is encouraged to call GSCO at 669-8200.

Texas lab picks up tremor from Asian quake

GIDDINGS, Texas (AP) — A state lab near Austin felt tremors Friday from a 7.3 magnitude earthquake nearly half a world away.

Supersensitive scales at the Texas Department of Agriculture's metrology lab picked up shockwaves 45 minutes after the quake struck the Kuril Islands, a chain of Russian islands found northeast of Japan in the Pacific Ocean.

The Giddings lab is about 50 miles east of Austin — and nearly 6,000 miles from Russia.

"I always knew our state-of-the-art equipment was in great working order and sensitive to the slightest weights, but I had no idea it was so powerful it could pick up tremors from an earthquake thousands of miles away," Texas Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples said.

The United States Geological Survey Center confirmed the tremors in Giddings were from the quake in Asia. The quake happened in a sparsely populated are, and no injuries were reported.

The lab in Giddings calibrates equipment used for the ordinary — such as weighing tomatoes at a grocery store or pumping fuel at a gas tank — and the not-so-ordinary, such as keeping time on an atomic clock.

Court asked to take child off life support support for a 6-month-old Dallas baby who has suffered severe brain damage, dozens of bone fractures and numerous scars, allegedly at the hands of his parents.

Besides severe brain and spinal cord injuries, a physician noted that David Coronado Jr. had 42 skeletal injuries. His hands and feet appeared to have been pulled, twisted crushed. His skin injuries include bruises and human bite marks, The Dallas Morning News reported in Saturday editions.

The only child of David Cesar Coronado Sr., 23, and Ruthy Marie Chabolla, 22, wasn't breathing when they took him to Methodist Dallas Medical Center one evening last month.

Hospital staff revived the infant with CPR and rushed him to Children's Medical Center of Dallas, where doctors were appalled by his injuries, including a bite wound to the bone of one of his fin-> they were a few weeks old. "Neurologically, David is exhibiting minimal movement," a doctor wrote. "If he survives his injuries, he will have severe and permanent disability as a result of these injuries."

Police on Dec. 23 arrested Coronado and Chabolla on charges of injury to a child. Each was being held in the Dallas County jail in lieu of $500,000 bail: Interview requests sent to the jail by the Dallas newspaper drew no immediate response Friday.

Both parents told detectives that their son sometimes had trouble breathing and was given to blank stares. They denied deliberately causing any of his injuries.

"I would never hurt my child," Chabolla told police, according to a Child Protective Services report.

Coronado, who stands 6-3 and weighs 260 pounds, said he may have picked his son up "too hard" in the middle of the night, but that he never hurt David intentionally.

"Both parents responsible for long-term, extensive physical abuse to their only infant son," a CPS report says. "Neither parent is able to provide a safe, nurturing environment for this or any other child, given the magnitude of the physical abuse and life-threatening physical neglect this infant has sustained while in their care."

This week, the infant's court-appointed guardian filed a motion in Dallas County juvenile court asking that doctors at remove David Jr. from life support. The motion notes that the parents have not consented to withdrawing the support but argues that it is in his best interests.

Today in History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, Jan. 17, the 17th day of 2009. There are 348 days left in the year.

Highlights in history on this date:

1595 - France's King Henry IV declares war on

1759 - Holy Roman Empire declares war on 1893 - Hawaii's monarchy is overthrown as a group of businessmen and sugar planters force Queen Liliuokalani to abdicate.

1945 - Soviet troops and Polish forces liberate Warsaw, more than five years after it fell to Nazi Germany; Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, credited with saving tens of thousands of Jews, disappears in Hungary while in Soviet custody 1959 - Federal State of Mali is formed by Union of Republics of Senegal and French Sudan.

1961 - In his farewell address, U.S. President Dwight Eisenhower warns against the rise of "the military-industrial complex.

1991 - Second and third airstrikes against targets in Iraq and Kuwait are launched. At least six Iraqi Scud missiles are launched at Tel Aviv, Israel. Three hit civilian areas, slightly injuring 12 peo-

1992 - Israel begins enforcing a sweeping curfew on Palestinians from the West Bank to the Gaza Strip. 1993 - The United States unleashes a shower of Tomahawk cruise missiles against a nuclear fabricating plant 13 kilometers (8 miles) from Baghdad, delivering the point that Iraq must comply with U.N. resolutions.

1994 - An earthquake devastates suburbs in the San Fernando Valley, California, killing 61 people and injuring over 10,000.

1996 - Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman, the spiritual leader of Egypt's main Muslim radical faction, is sentenced to life in prison by a U.S. court for plotting to blow up the United Nations and other New York-area landmarks.

1997 - In Dublin, with little fanfare, a court grants the first divorce in Ireland's history.

1999 - Fighting erupts near a village in Kosovo, Yugoslavia, where 45 ethnic Albanians were massacred a few days earlier, forcing mourners to halt funeral services for the slain and flee.

2005 - Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas orders his security forces to prevent attacks against Israel and investigate the most recent deadly shooting of Israelis.

2006 - In his first statement since becoming Israel's acting prime minister, Ehud Olmert says he wants to resume final peace talks with the Palestinians and take harsh action against Israeli squatters in the West Bank.

2007 - Jainal Antel Sali Jr., a top leader of the al-Qaida-linked Abu Sayyaf rebel group in the Philippines who was accused of kidnapping three Americans in 2001 and of masterminding one of Southeast Asia's worst terror attacks three years later, is killed by Filipino army forces.

Celanese plant still a vital asset

Let's talk Celanese for a few minutes. An old friend is going to be laid to rest. She started in 1952 and has run for some 56 years.

I came in 1976 with a new professional job that looked extremely promising and it turned out to be everything one could hope for.

The time just passed so quickly until 2000 when my time was up. During this time she gave me many good friends, many challenges, a chance to travel some of the world and, most of all, a chance to build something.

Back in 1987, we saw her fall and the price was very, very high. On that afternoon when some of our closest friends were lost and a host of others were seriously injured. That night was a very scary time. She was totally dark and silent. We went in there with everything we had and several we had and everyone we had and brought her back to life. No jobs were lost.

Pampa's people were the most helpful of all in the efforts that followed that difficult time. The families of the plant people were the real backbone of this effort. They gave up a lot. The great result was that we had a new and modern plant. The latest technology and everything was new and shiny.

Now we look at the immediate future and this does not look as we had hoped. Good things do not always stay forever. She has been good too everyone that gave her their all.

You only get out of it what you put into it.

I do not remember who said that but they were right on target. Times change and if you always look for the best and never look back, things will usually work out exactly that way.

Celanese Pampa Plant will one day be a power plant and some jobs will be obtained probably by those that were Celanese people. Babcock Brown, the new owners, have promised to bring the number of jobs back to somewhere near the current level at Celanese and that will be good. These people seem to have things moving, but let us hope hey will provide the same atmosphere of family that has been enjoyed by so many over so many years.

Remember that she was a vital asset to Pampa and the people that worked there. She gave us everything one could expect and then some. She was a good girl and she will long be remembered even after power comes out rather than the products we remember.

Analysis: The Obama stimulus plan. What if they're wrong?

by Tom Raum WASHINGTON (AP) — Barack Obama and his congressional allies are gambling that the largest public spending program since World War II and a new round of tax cuts will pry the economy from the recession's iron grip and avert another Depression.

But what if they're wrong? Some conservative economists say that additional stimulus may only prolong the grief at best, triggering runaway inflation down the road and resulting in an even more bloated federal bureau-

"I think the economy will recover regardless of what Washington does. But the long-term effect here will be to reduce the standard of living of the next generation because they will be saddled with all this debt," said Chris Edwards of the libertarianleaning Cato Institute.

Even without the new spending proposed Obama, the U.S. has a $1.2 trillion budget deficit this year, he noted. "If that isn't already enough of a Keynesian stimulus, what

Early 20th-century British economist John Maynard Keynes argued that the government should intervene to avoid depressions by increasing its own spending and controlling interest rates. President Franklin D. Roosevelt based many of his New Deal spending initiatives on Keynesian theory. But not all economists and politicians subscribe to that world view

While there is broad support for some kind of major stimulus, the skeptics offer this as Exhibit A: The trillions hurled at the problem last year by Congress, the Bush administration and the Federal Reserve have yet to yield many tangible results.

Unemployment continues to climb, reaching a 16-year high of 7.2 percent in December and is expected to keep on rising through 2009. U.S. manufacturing remains in a serious slump. The decline in consumer spending in late 2008 is expected to continue.

Home values keep eroding. For many people, loans are hard or impossible to obtain. Millions of retirement accounts have been slammed by sharp stock market losses. Financial collapses, bailouts, rescue plans, foreclosures and profit reversals litter the landscape.

"What in September began as an emergency response to stabilize our financial markets has morphed before our very eyes into a string of taxpayer funded bailouts," said Rep. Spencer Bachus of Alabama, the senior Republican on the House Financial Services Committee. "Trillions of dollars in taxpayer backed guarantees and loans have been

In short order last week,

Congress cleared the way for a new $350 billion installment of bailout cash for the financial industry while House Democrats rolled out details of a $825 billion twoyear stimulus package incorporating most of Obama's priorities. About one-third of it would go to tax breaks, with the rest to government spending. The plan could reach $1 trillion by the time Congress sends it to Obama's

Allen Sinai, president of Decision Economics, a Boston-area financial consulting firm, said that even with Obama's aggressive spending program, the economy seems unlikely to show a true recovery this year in terms of sustainable gains by consumers and businesses.

"There are forces going on that are 1930s-like," Sinai said. "There is incredible asset deflation, a huge loss in wealth by households. In the '30s, even when funds became available from the financial system to borrow, the pessimism by consumers and businesses was so great that no one wanted to spend." Sinai wouldn't rule out a repeat of that mind-set.

Some economists who are not fans of Keynesian economics or stimulus packages argue that FDR's vaunted New Deal programs, highly touted today as a model for job creation, did little to spur a U.S. recovery.

"It was finally World War II that finally ended the Great Depression," said Bruce Bartlett, a White House economist in the Reagan administration and a top Treasury official in the first Bush administration. Bartlett is author of a study showing that nearly all postwar stimulus packages passed by Congress came too late to be of much help, and just increased the deficit and fueled inflation. Obama shrugs off expressions of skepticism and casts his stimulus package as the right formula for creating long-lasting, well-paying jobs, despite its big cost.

"It's not too late to change course — but only if we take dramatic action as soon as possible," Obama said in Ohio on Friday just days before taking office.

Mark Zandi, chief econoof Moody's Economy.com, said the economy could stabilize by year's end under a big stimulus package, government steps to reduce the number of foreclosures and continued monetary easing by the Fed.

"But many things could go wrong," Zandi added. "The financial system is still obviously under extreme pressure. It's not hard to paint a picture. Global investors could panic and stop buying the bonds we issue and send interest rates higher. Oil prices could spike again for whatever reason. It's not hard at all to be pessimistic."

Texas drought worsens, cattle dying

By BETSY BLANEY

Associated Press Writer LUBBOCK. Texas Drought conditions in Texas are so bad cattle are keeling over in parched pastures dving.

Drought conditions worsened significantly in the past week, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor map released Thursday. Seventy-one percent of the state is now in some stage of drought, up from 58.3. percent last week.

A week ago the two worst drought designations, extreme and exceptional, covered 9.1 percent of the state. This week the two categories cover 15.1 percent of the state, with a circle near San Antonio and Austin widening in all directions. Only the eastern and southeastern parts of Texas are without any drought status.

It all results in death for dozens of cows in Bastrop, south of Austin. At Dr. Lee Davis' veterinarian clinic, up to 10 cows a week have been brought in for treatment over the past month. They fell in pastures from weakness due to lack of grazing forage, and most didn't survive, Davis said. "The problem is they're not getting enough energy because the grass is dead,' Davis said. "Everywhere you go there's no grass. It's nothing but dirt.'

Once a cow falls, bloodflow to muscles is diminished and chances of survival go down with time. "It's hard to bring back a Lack of rainfall this past fall and into 2009 has left pastures barren. Cattle producers are instead feeding animals hav.

But there is a shortage of protein in some hay because some hay producers don't pay the high cost of fertilizer, which aids in building protein. Fertilizer prices are tied to natural gas prices.

The state has been drying out for several months. In late October, 71.3 percent of the state had no drought designation.

The parched land will respond if Mother Nature comes through.

Painter Andrew Wyeth dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Artist Andrew Wyeth, who portrayed the hidden melancholy of the people and landscapes of Pennsylvania's Brandywine Valley and coastal Maine in works "Christina's such as World," died early Friday. He was 91.

Wyeth died in his sleep at his home in the Philadelphia suburb of Chadds Ford, according to Hillary Holland, a spokeswoman for the Brandywine River Museum.

The son of famed painter and book illustrator N.C. Wyeth, Andrew Wyath gained wealth, acclaim and tremendous popularity. But he chafed under criticism from some experts who regarded him as a facile realist, not an artist but merely an illustrator. A Wyeth retrospective at the Philadelphia Museum of Art in 2006 drew more than 175,000 visitors in $15 \neg \Omega$ weeks, the highestever attendance at the museum for a living artist. The Brandywine River Museum in Chadds Ford, a converted 19th-century grist mill, includes hundreds of works by three generations of Wyeths.

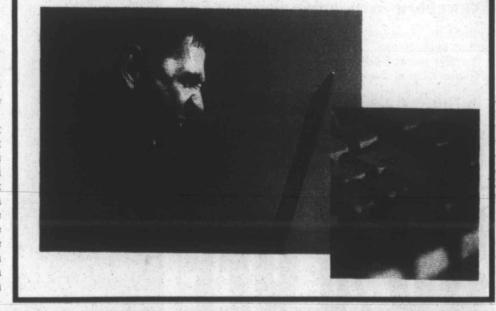

It was in Maine that Wyeth found the subject for "Christina's World," his best-known painting. And it was in Pennsylvania that he met Helga Testorf, a neighbor in his native Chadds Ford who became the subject of the intimate portraits that brought him millions of dollars and a wave of public attention in

Houston sculptor preparing massive Obama bust

HOUSTON (AP) — As Barack Obama considers the pantheon of larger-than-life presidents who came before him, David Adickes pauses to consider Barack Obama.

The Houston sculptor carefully examines the president-elect's profile: his slightly furrowed brow, the firm mouth pursed somewhere between smile and frown, the expressive eyes. Adickes squints. Something is not quite right.

"Looking at him, I see that his ears have to go back about a quarter of an inch," Adickes says, then reaches to gently tweak the features on a life-size model of the president-elect's head.

The bust is the first step in plans for a replica of Obama's head to join dozens of other presidential busts the size of two-story buildings sitting behind a chain-link fence in the parking lot and camped in rows inside the vast studio space in an industrial part of Houston.

They are the faces of American history past and present. On the table, the unfolding countenance of the 44th president. In the lot outside, looming 18 to 20-feet tall, the supersized sculptures of Teddy Roosevelt, Ronald Reagan, Bill Clinton, Harry Truman, Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln.

The enormous statues, created by Adickes using a painstaking technique of layered concrete and steel, will line a winding waterway at the planned Presidential Park and Gardens at Waterlights, an 18-acre mixed-use development in Pearland, a suburb just south of Houston.

Six statues — George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, John F. Kennedy, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Thomas Jefferson and George Herbert Walker Bush — are already in place at the site.

Soon, a Barack Obama statue — sculpted using the model resting on Adickes' studio table — will join them.

Adickes, who began fashioning the Obama piece last week, is pushing to finish the statue by Presidents' Day, Feb. 16. The enormous sculptures normally take two to three months to complete, but Adickes says he is being driven by the intense interest in the president-elect.

est in the president-elect.

"The whole Obama thing, I've never seen anything like it," said Adickes, who has created two other Presidents' Parks (one in the Black Hills of South Dakota, another in Williamsburg, Virginia). Only the Houston-area park will feature an Obama statue.

The Obama piece also marks the first time Adickes has started a statue before the president depicted has been sworn in. His George W. Bush piece was produced just after the 43rd president's first inauguration day.

In contrast to the public fascination with Obama, "there was no interest in W," says Adickes, as he leads a visitor through the rows of presidential sculptures inside his studio. It is a surreal sight.

Adickes, a slight man who turns 82 the day before Obama is inaugurated, is dwarfed by his own creations. He walks past an oversized set of shoulders adorned by giant epaulets. They belong to Andrew Jackson. Another set of Sculptor David Adickes' bust of President-elect Barack Obama is shown at his studio Friday, Jan. 9, 2009 in Houston. shoulders featuring a finely detailed tie will be joined to FDR's head.

Adickes stops in front of the statue of "41" (George H.W. Bush) — the only president who has posed for the artist. The other pieces were conceived using photographs, paintings and historical depictions for inspiration.

For the Obama statue, Adickes is working from photographs of Obama pinned to an easel in front of the evolving model on his work table.

"I'm trying to make it recognizable, to fit everyone's idea of what he should look like," said Adickes, who is guided more by the spirit of his subject's personality than their historical legacy. "I did George W. before he got into trouble, and with Nixon, I already knew about his troubles, so I just have to make it look like them and let the viewer decide."

Adickes, a native of Huntsville, Texas, has built a reputation carving towering statues, including a 67-foot-tall rendering of Sam Houston, the president of the Republic of Texas. The giant statue has become an iconic symbol of the Lone Star State.

Another of Adickes' sculptures — a 36-foot-tall cellist — sits outside the Lyric Centre skyscraper in downtown Houston.

But Adickes' biggest undertakings — the creation of his Presidents' Parks — was motivated by a trip to Mount Rushmore. There, he says, he was disappointed that the famous faces were so far away and untouchable. He wanted to build a place where visitors could get up close to the presidents and learn more about their historical accomplishments.

"I wanted people to be able to look them in the eye and be interactive with them," said Adickes.

For the developers of the Houston-area Presidential Gardens, the keen interest in Barack Obama and renewed curiosity about the office of the president could not be more well-timed. The attraction is set to open this September.

"We were hoping for something dramatic with the next president, but we could not have scripted something as dramatic as this," said David Goswick, executive director of Historic Real Estate, which is developing the project. "It sends chills down my spine to think about the importance and the timing of the Obama statue."

YOUR AT-HOME GUIDE TO THE INAUGURATION

By MEGAN K. SCOTT Associated Press Writer

Don't worry if you aren't brave, or lucky, enough to attend the historic presidential inauguration.

There will be plenty of media coverage for those at home. Here's a guide to making the most of watching the big event, and those leading up to it: THE THEME

"Renewing America's Promise." Full details on the history of inaugurations and this year's events can be found at the Inaugural committee's Web site, www.pic2009.org.

SATURDAY

CNN's Wolf Blitzer will follow President-elect Barack Obama's train ride from Pennsylvania to Washington. The train will stop in Wilmington, Delaware to pick up vice-president-elect Joe Biden and his family. Obama will give a speech in Baltimore before heading south.

SUNDAY

"We Are One: The Obama Inaugural Celebration at the Lincoln Memorial."

The free concert features top performers, such as Bruce Springsteen, Stevie Wonder and Garth Brooks. Obama and his family are due to attend, with Obama expected to speak. The special will air later that night on HBO at 7 p.m. Cable and satellite subscribers who don't have HBO will be able to watch for free.

The Disney Channel will air a concert honoring military families, "Kids' Inaugural: We Are the Future," expected to be hosted by Michelle Obama,. Entertainers include the Jonas Brothers and Miley Cyrus.

During the day, Obama, Vice President-elect Joe Biden and their families, joined by Americans across the country, will participate in activities dedicated to serving others in community service activities.

THE BIG DAY

On Inauguration Day, if tradition holds, the Obamas will visit the White House in the morning before Bush and Obama ride to Capitol Hill together for the swearingin ceremony.

Festivities begin at 10 a.m, and include musical selections , Aî Aretha Franklin is slated to perform , Aî an invocation, swearing-in of the president and vice-president, the inaugural address, a benediction and the playing of the national anthem, according to the Presidential Inaugural Committee Web site. Obama will be sworn in at noon. He will take the Oath of Office, using President Lincoln's Inaugural Bible, administered by Chief Justice John Roberts. Scheduled around noon.

Obama will then escort Bush to a departure ceremony and go to a luncheon in the Capitol's Statuary Hall.

THE DEPARTURE

Bush and his wife will leave the Capitol in a helicopter. Look for the wave.

THE INAUGURAL PARADE

Down Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House. The parade will begin after Obama's lunch.

THE WEATHER

The current Weather Service forecast is morning clouds giving way to afternoon sun with highs in the upper 30s and a 10 percent chance of precipitation.

THE BALLS

There are 10 official inaugural balls. The Obamas are expected to attend all of them.

THE TELEVISION COVERAGE

Expect coverage all day Tuesday on the major networks.

At night, many are planning specials, including: NBC's Brian Williams will anchor a one-hour special at 10 p.m. that visits several inaugural balls. ABC will be on site at the "Neighborhood Inaugural Ball," covering musical performances and the new president and first lady's first dance of the night. At 10 p.m. EST, ABC will track the other inaugural balls.

CBS' Katie Couric will anchor a 9 p.m. EST special on Obama's journey to the White House, then do a live Webcast reviewing the day's events on CBSNews.com and CNET.com.

TV One is reporting from the scenes of Obama's inaugural balls from 10 p.m. EST to midnight.

MTV will be broadcasting from the "Youth Inaugural Ball."

Nick Cannon hosts "Yes We Will!: BET's Inauguration Celebration." The one-hour special that was taped earlier premieres at 8 p.m. and includes live shots from BET's first inaugural ball.

On Fox News Channel, the inauguration will be the first big political event in years not anchored by Brit Hume, who has taken on a part-time role. Chris Wallace and Shepard Smith will be the main anchors, with Hume replacement Bret Baier getting both morning and evening duty.

WEDNESDAY

The president, vice president and their families will participate in a prayer service at the Washington National Cathedral.

NAMES TO KNOW

Bishop V. Gene Robinson: The first openly gay Episcopal bishop. He will say a prayer at the welcome event on Sunday.

The Rev. Rick Warren: His selection to give the invocation on Inauguration Day sparked protests from the gay community and even the National Organization for Women. Warren backed a recent ballot measure banning same-sex marriage in his home state of California. Obama has said his selection reflected a desire for diversity at the event and insisted he remained a "fierce advocate" of equal rights for gays.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-California: Feinstein is the incoming chairwoman of the Senate Intelligence Committee ,Äî the first woman to hold the post. She has served in the Senate since 1992. She will do the call to order and welcoming remarks on Inauguration Day.

John G. Roberts Jr.: Chief Justice of the Supreme Court who will administer the oath to Obama.

John Paul Stevens: Supreme Court Justice who will administer the oath to Biden.

The Rev. Sharon Watkins: Pastor of a Protestant denomination with about 700,000 members in the United States and Canada. She will deliver the sermon at the National Prayer Service on Wednesday that caps the inauguration activities. Watkins will be the first woman to give the sermon at the traditional event.

Elizabeth Alexander: A professor of African-American Studies and English literature at Yale and the author of four books of poems. She is America's fourth inaugural poet. She will read an original poem at the inauguration.

The Rev. Joseph E. Lowery: A black Methodist civil rights leader. He will give the benediction on Inauguration Day.

PAY ATTENTION TO

The crowd size: The number has been as high as 5 million. Estimates have since been scaled down to 2 million Äi still more than the 400,000 who attended the 2005 inauguration of President Bush.

The inaugural address: Obama's speech probably won't come near the length of William Henry Harrison, who spoke for about an hour, 45 minutes. (He caught a cold and one month later he died of pneumonia.) Watch to see what he says and how he says it. Top inaugural speeches include John F. Kennedy, Abraham Lincoln and Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The crowd reaction: Bush navigated the largest inaugural protests since Richard Nixon in his 2001 inauguration. Most were upset about the Florida election controversy. Four years later, thousands of people in dozens of cities across the nation protested, motivated by the war in

E. Gilbert, professor of political science at Northeastern University. "Bush was a very unpopular president and the

The trip from the Capitol to the White House: Jimmy Carter was the first president to walk all the way from the Capitol to the White House after the ceremony. What will Obama do? What will the Secret Service allow him to do? asks Gilbert.

Michelle Obama: Whether she wears a full-on ballgown or a sparse sheath, Aî which seems to be her favorite silhouette, Aî to the balls, it's sure to influence what the rest of us will wear. She's the darling of the fashion world right now and the color, style and designer she chooses will probably enjoy a surge of popularity.

Books to inspire and inform young people about President-elect Barack Obama and his historic inauguration include an artist's celebration of the American spirit, the life of the first lady to be and a look at our 44th commander in chief for preschoolers

Obama-mania has generated junior biographies and fresh presidential encyclopedias by the armload in time for the big swearing-in Tuesday, but parents beware: Splashy Obama covers or promised post-election updates may not pay off, so check inside.

In addition to the pre-inaugural fare, look for a comic book biography of Michelle Obama in April from Bluewater Productions. She's the latest to join the company's "Female Force" series with Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin and Hillary Rodham Clinton. Bluewater, based in Bellingham, Wash., plans to add Caroline Kennedy in June.

With a little help from a grown-up, there's "my first presidential board book" from Michaelson Entertainment in Santa Monica, Calif., "Barack Obama 101" by Brad M. Epstein ($10.95). It includes full-color photos of the smiling first family, Obama grinning at the wheel of a bumper car with daughter Sasha and Obama the boy, college guy and community organizer.

There's even a photo spread on the presidential wheels, Air Force One, the helicopter Marine One and the sleek black limos of many a motorcade to come. Little Obama watchers can trace where he's lived on a world map, slip their own photos into a frame as possible presidential contenders of the future and make a list of their heroes. Other standouts:

'Yes We Can!" (Scholastic, $4.99, ages 4-8) with numerous photo credits. This quick and simple picture book companion to the biography of the same name pairs colorful news photos of Obama, his family and young supporters with text from his victory speech. The borderless images and his plea for help are a powerful match for - "Don't Know Much About the Presidents" (HarperCollins, $6.99, ages 6-9) by Kenneth C. Davis.

In Q-and-A format, this update appeals with kid-friendly facts: While Obama is about 6-feet-3, another famous lanky lawyer from Illinois (Abraham Lincoln) remains the tallest president at 6-4. Is Obama the youngest president at 47? Nope. Theodore Roosevelt was 42 when he took over after McKinley's assassination and Presidents Ulysses S. Grant, John F. Kennedy and Bill Clinton were all younger than Obama when

"Change Has Come" (Simon & Schuster, $12.99, 9-12) illustrated by Kadir Nelson with the words of Obama.

Kadir captures Obama's messages of community, hope and change in black-and-white drawings in this small celebration of the American spirit for young people. Spontaneously drawn portraits of the president, everyday voters and Martin Luther King Jr. on the march reinforce Obama's message: "What began as a whisper has now swelled to a chorus that cannot be ignored."

"Barack Obama, People We Should Know" (Gareth Stevens Publishing, ages 9-12)

by Geoffrey M. Horn. Out in paperback this month, this slim volume from Weekly Reader offers the victorious highs but also details the tough stuff from Obama's childhood and young adult years: his mother's marital and financial struggles, his early election defeats and the bad impression he left on Michelle Obama when he was late for their first date. Latest in the "People We Should Know" series.

'Barack Obama, Our 44th President" (Simon & Schuster, $5.99, ages 9-12) By Beatrice Gormley.

Among the better biographies for young people recently updated with Obama's victory. Gormley describes the "Guess Who Coming to Dinner" moment when Barack's white American mother brought home is black Kenyan father to meet her parents for the first time. At Occidental College in well-to-do suburban Los Angeles, Obama transforms from Barry to Barack and his interest in politics surfaces out of the anti-apartheid movement on campus.

"Michelle Obama, Meet the First Lady" (HarperCollins, $16.99, ages 8-12) by David Bergen Brophy.

Drawing strength from the struggles of her disabled father and hard-working mother on Chicago's South Side, Michelle Obama's life away from home as a student at predominantly white Princeton is described with a steady hand, as is her first look at her husband-to-be in "bad sport jacket and a cigarette dangling from his mouth." Brophy relies nicely on the soon-to-be first lady's own words. "Michelle Obama, An American Story" (Houghton Mifflin Harcourt, $6.99, ages 8-2) by David Colbert Feels a bit like an instant but includes 16 pages of color photos and fun facts for kids: She was the first lawyer to Barney the dinosaur. When she first met Obama, she tried to set him up on dates with her friends. One of her favorite toys as a girl was her Easy-Bake oven. She was athletic growing up but shied away from sports so as not to compete with her star athlete of a big brother.

DPS seeks new tips in mansion fire case fundraising to repair the fire-damaged Texas Governor's Mansion continue, an investigation into who started the blaze more than half a year ago drags on with $50,000 reward money that has been in no arrest despite $50,000 in reward money.

So the Texas Department of Public Safety, whose Texas Rangers are leading the arson investigation, is making another plea for members of the public to come forward with any useful tips.

"We are continuing to pursue leads but there's been nothing fruitful thus far," DPS spokeswoman Tela Mange who was near the Governor's Mansion said in an interview about the mansion arson case this week. "It just takes one had conversations later that produced good piece of information to turn it information about it should call in.

AUSTIN (AP) — As construction and around, and the question is when we're going to get that.

Though few solid leads are coming in, there are no plans to increase the place since last summer shortly after the June 8 fire, Mange said. She said there is no reason to believe someone close to the arsonist would turn that person in for an additional amount of cash. Arson investigators are asking that anyone with information about the crime call DPS or the Crimestoppers tip line at 1-800-252-TIPS. Mange said anyone at the time of the fire or who may have

Review: 'Hotel for Dogs' is a little ruff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The premise of "Hotel for Dogs" seems foolproof: It's about a hotel ... for dogs! How cute is that? Soft sheepskin beds and bountiful bowls of kibble for all the four-legged guests. Say no more.

Unfortunately, that's all "Hotel for Dogs" is: a clever concept that quickly runs out of room to roam. Kids might be entertained by the canine antics, and certainly the film's ideas about loyalty and family are worthwhile for little ones to ponder.

But even serious dog lovers among adults in the audience, and that includes yours truly, will be severely bored. It's not that director Thor Freudenthal's film, inspired by the Lois Duncan children's book, sits up on its hind legs and shamelessly begs for approval; on the contrary, it performs a few tricks, then rolls over on its back and plays dead. (Sorry, had to go there, the metaphor was irresistible.)

Plucky Emma Roberts and precocious-Jake T. Austin co-star as 16-year-old Andi and her younger brother, Bruce, who've been bouncing between foster homes since their parents died. Now that they live with a pair of deluded, wannabe rock stars (an obnoxiously one-note Lisa Kudrow and Kevin Dillon), they've been forced to hide their resourceful and perpetually hungry Jack Russell terrier, Friday.

When the scruffy white pooch scampers off, and Andi and Bruce follow him into an abandoned downtown hotel, they find a 160-pound bull mastiff and an energetic Boston terrier already living there. Suddenly, they get an idea: Why not turn the rundown building, which just happens to have retained its electricity and antique furniture, into a full-time home for pups who have nowhere else to go, who are orphans just like them?

So they start rescuing furry friends all over town, much to the frustration of the mean local dog catchers. Then again, all the adults in "Hotel for Dogs" are cartoonishly antagonistic, except for the kids' social worker (Don Cheadle) and his wife. (Freudenthal's vision of an unnamed downtown, a mixture of the real Los Angeles and obvious back lots, is too spiffed-up to ever be believably menacing.) They also get help in the supply department from a couple of teens who work at a nearby pet store: Dave (Johnny Simmons), who forms a needless romance with Andi, and the flirty Heather (Kyla Pratt).

Bruce, the gadget guru, sets up some amusingly elaborate contraptions to entertain the guests and keep the place running smoothly: dinner bowls that rumble out on a conveyor belt, a door that knocks repeatedly to get the dogs riled up and give them some play time, even a car-door simulator that lets them pretend they're riding through the countryside, blissfully sticking their heads out the window. (We could have done without all the doggy poop-bag jokes.)

But once you've set all that up, where do you go from there? The script from Jeff Lowell and Bob Schooley & Mark Corkle runs out of steam once "Hotel for Dogs" runs through its various sight gags. Cheadle classes things up just by appearing on screen, but he's also stuck in a thankless role as the kindly voice of reason. And you don't need a canine's super sniffer to figure out the corny, contrived way he'll figure into the kids' lives. "Hotel for Dogs," a DreamWorks Pictures release, runs 100 minutes. Two stars out of four.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Ever since our baby girl arrived eight months ago, my husband and I have been inundated with baby gifts. Our daughter is the only grandchild on both sides of the family. My husband's parents and mine are divorced and remarried, so there are eight grandparents doting on our daughter. Consequently, we have received multiples of every baby item you can imagine.

Because we live in a small apartment with few closets, there is nowhere to put all these things. We have donated several boxes of clothes and toys to the local shelter. My parents become upset if they visit and we can't produce every single item they sent us. They want us to get rid of other people's gifts and keep only theirs. I don't like the tension this is causing.

Are we obligated to keep these gifts, Abby? Isn't there a way to encourage people to be more restrained in their giving? -- TIRED MOM IN THE CITY

DEAR MOM: There is, but it will require you and your husband to become proactive. Tell your parents that you do not have enough room to accommodate their generosity and request that they limit themselves to one gift per couple. To avoid duplication, ask them to coordinate with each other when buying gifts for their grand-

As to your parents, explain that you love them, but once a gift is given it is the recipient's to do with as she wishes (right now, that's you). And explain that if you give everyone else's gifts away and not some of theirs, the others will be offended -so it's not gonna happen. Period.

DEAR ABBY: My 15-yearold daughter, "Miranda," and I have always been close. We have talked about sex and about how it's always better to tell the truth. We have been open about things since Miranda was old enough to understand -

- until now. Miranda has been going with "Josh" for about a year. His mother found some very graphic sexual messages on his cell phone. When we confronted them, they swore they would not do anything and would wait until they're married. I even discussed birth control with Miranda and planned getting her an on appointment.

Well, I may have been too late. I found a letter to her from Josh. Some of the things he wrote were pornographic -- and they were things he said he wanted to do again! They are playing some of these games at school during breaks and in classrooms where they sit at tables.

I am not sure how to handle this. My husband would never understand. I'm torn about confronting her and the school for not properly supervising these kids. Please help me make the right choice. -- TORN UP

IN MISSISSIPPI DEAR TORN UP: Gladly. You are not giving your husband enough credit. He should be told immediately. He will understand only too well that your daughter and her boyfriend have been playing you like a fid-

The problem isn't lack of supervision at school. It is that Miranda has been lying to you and spends too much time with her boyfriend.

Your daughter should have far less free time on her hands and also have access to birth control and the knowledge of how to use it. Insist that she become involved in organized activities outside of school, including volunteer work. Right now, your daughter needs guidance and supervision, so please don't let her

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Jan.

19, 2009: This year, you will have a strong sense of direction and energy. Your friends often cheer you on. You'll discover what a difference your personal cheerleaders make in your life. Learn to communicate in a more dynamic and open manner. Add in originality, and you will be hearing a lot more. If you are single, you could meet someone quite out of the blue. Be sure this is the right person. Take your time dating. If you are attached, your relationship benefits from more activities together as a couple. Plan on more surprises for each other. You add a lot of fun into your relationship. Work on your friendship, as well as romance. SCORPIO helps you see the other side

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Togetherness proves to be the theme, but only on a one-on-one level. Your ability to move in a new direction and make a difference comes from others' suggestions. How you deal with a creative venture defines a relationship. Tonight: Chat over a meal.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * Defer to others more regularly. What you'll discover is the dimension of a problem and the possible different results. You could feel rather uncomfortable with an unexpected development. Defer to a boss or another powerful person. Tonight: Let someone else choose.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Stay even and consistent when dealing with those around you. When you lose your cool, so do others. Remember to look at the big picture. Your vision will help direct you in a decision. Let go of rigid thought patterns.

Tonight: Working late: CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* Your playfulness easily could be funneled into work, finding solutions and adding more dynamic possibilities. Surprising news tosses yet another idea or solution in your lap. Tonight: Act as if there is no tomorrow

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Basics count more than you think or realize. Prepare to take a different action or do something very differently. Build on fundamental security, understanding your limits and what needs to happen. Others start taking an even stronger role in your life. Tonight: As if you have a choice, let another person dominate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Don't hesitate to speak your mind, even if you are unusually uncomfortable. Your creativity bubbles forth, though there could be a problem with a child or loved one. Don't allow a problem to develop. Tonight: Get to know someone better

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Curb a tendency to go overboard. You might want to approach a situation differently. Note how your imagination plays a role at work, with friendships or when solving a problem. Tonight: Pay

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) * You are in prime shape and more than willing to pursue a situation head-on. Others might feel ever so slightly intimidated. Someone close could become abnormally stuck. Relax, and this person will relax too. Tonight: As SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Know when to back off and do something very differently. Your instincts are right-on when dealing with funds. You want to open up talks and share more. A boss rides you hard. Keep communication flowing, despite his or her attitude! Tonight: Take your time CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Zero in on what you want. A family member or friend helps to keep you focused by reminding you what is next and what is happening. You don't need the reminder, but you can be friendly anyway. Tonight: Hanging out with friends. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

* You might want to push a boss or someone else. Maintain an easy course. Don't be surprised if irritation keeps bubbling up. Listen to news that could have an unexpected insight. Tonight: A must appearance. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

* Reach out to others, making a difference. As you are open to change, you will be able to take a leap of faith. Understand the role of a friend you care a lot about. Tonight: Relax on the computer or listen to music.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Jan. 18, 2009:

Take a long, hard look at different possibilities and incorporating different ideas. Your creativity and ingenuity soar to a new level. Differentiating between a good risk and a potential disaster could define your success this year. Communication flourishes, especially concerning finances. You might even opt for a class to help you handle your money. If you are attached, the two of you have way too much fun as you play away. You act like newlyweds. If you are single, you attract many people. Through a friendship, a relationship could walk in the door, SCORPIO is always your

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Work with a partner directly. If you need to think through a decision, do so. You could be surprised by what heads down your path. Tonight: Minds finally

This Week: Work with others closely New ways of thinking will emerge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * Be smart and defer to others. Resolutions don't come easily. Stay open to a family member or boss who seems to have solutions, perhaps even better than yours. Tonight: You don't have to do anything.

This Week: Your popularity soars, or is it that others need you to pitch in? Which way are you going to look at the situa-

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Your physical efforts do make a big difference. Listen to what is being shared; you don't have to agree. Get into a project that you know needs to be completed. Be upbeat as someone drops spe-

This Week: Get as much done as you can by Wednesday, when suddenly you will want to relax and network.

cial news. Tonight: The more original,

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* Your creativity surges, and others love listening to your wild suggestions. A partner or potential one shows an unusual interest in your ideas. You can turn a problem around, and will do just that. Tonight: Time to romp!

This Week: Caring emanates from a child or special friendship. This person might even serve as a muse!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Basics count more than you can imagine. Rethink a hassle that involves partners and security. Be willing to defer to others, and see what they come up with. You don't need to always have the answers. Tonight: Relax and see what bubbles up

This Week: Express yourself, but also know when to quiet down and do some thinking. End this week celebrating.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Talk with others, even if you are working on a project. You'll learn a lot as perhaps someone spills more than he or she needs to or should. Be discreet but aware of when this person is stepping past his or her limits. Tonight: Get a head start on tomorrow.

This Week: Return calls and schedule meetings quickly. You are on a roll until Wednesday.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Take your time with a project that might be weighing you down. If you aren't careful, you easily could be overwhelmed. Listen to news that heads in your direction. A child could be a fountain of information. Tonight: Let your hair down!

This Week: Curb an innate possessive streak. Express your concerns midweek. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

* Know that you are in prime time. Using that energy appropriately will make all the difference. You don't need to have answers; you just need to be yourself and allow life to happen. You might enjoy some feedback, none the less. Tonight; You wish for it, and it could happen.

This Week: You are all smiles. Use this high energy and critical ability.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 Finally you get some much-needed time off. Decide what you really would like to do. Go for a walk or have a picnic. Know that you will not be happy around too many people. Be with someone who you can reflect with or not even have to speak. Tonight: Screen calls.

This Week: You move slowly until Wednesday, when you are a power that cannot be stopped.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Get together with friends before you discover that you have no time, as tax time is heading your way. For once, let your hair down with someone you really care about. Tonight: Where the action is.

This Week: Zero in on what you want at the beginning of the week. Do needed research or paperwork Wednesday on. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 Know that your best bet is to take a stand and step up to the plate. You could discover how very busy you are and how much you have on your plate. Your optimistic style draws many perple. Tonight: Be aware of your responsibilities.

This Week: A must appearance seems inevitable. The end result will be success.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) * Don't feel the need to join in with others. If you feel like heading out and pursuing a different direction, please do. You need to recharge your spirit, as well as your body and mind. No one can make better choices for you than you. Tonight: Reach for the stars.

This Week: Empathize rather than judge. Take on responsibility beginning Wednesday.
