Four arrested on drug, weapons charges

3 members of same family charged

by David Bowser dbowser@thepampanews.com

A woman, a father and his two sons are free on bond today after being arrested on drug charges

Rebecca Carpenter, 36; Jesus Manuel Santacruz, Jesus Manuel Santacruz Jr., 24, all of 835 Malone; and Andrew Santacruz, 21, of Oklahoma City, were arrested about 2:30 p.m., Friday, after Gray County deputies ran a search warrant on the Malone street address.

Carpenter was charged with possession of a controlled substance more than one gram but less than four grams and tampering with physical evidence. She was free today on $25,000 bond on each charge.

The senior Santacruz was charged with possession of a controlled substance more than one gram but less than four grams and illegal possession of a firearm by a convicted felon. He was free today on a $5,000 bond on each charge.

Jesus Santacruz Jr. was charged with possession of a controlled substance more than one gram but less than four grams and possession of a prohibited weapon, a sawed-off shotgun. He was free today on $2,000 bond on each

4th Cavalry to ride again

by David Bowser dbowser@thepampanews.com

It's been more than a century since the Fourth United States Cavalry rode this land, but next weekend, they'll be in the saddle again.

"We are a reenactment and living history group that is dedicated to accurately portraying the 1870s Indian Wars era," said Col. Northcutt of Jimmy Miami.

Specifically, he said their interest lies in the U.S. Army that operated in and around the Texas Panhandle during the Red River War of 1874-75.

Known as the Frontier Regiment of the High Plains, the Fourth Cavalry reenactment group, nonprofit organization, will be on hand for opening of an exhibition about the Red River War in the newly renovated White Deer Land Museum annex at the corner of Cuyler and Atchison.

They will give various demonstrations Friday morning for Pampa school students and then give demonstrations for the public Saturday beginning

Anne Davidson, curator of the museum, said seven new exhibit cases in the annex will be filled with items from the Red River Wars era. Most of them were excavated from nearby battle sites.

Beginning with a raid of combined tribal warriors on Adobe Walls in the summer of 1874 north of present day Borger and lasting through 1875 as roaming bands were still being rounded up by the cavalry, the Southern Springtime brings blossoms to some trees, but those located in the 1400 block of North Hobart Street will be ornamented by children's shoes this week.

Volunteers for CASA of the High Plains plan to hang the shoes today from branches of trees at United Supermarket, 1420 N. Hobart, as part of the organization's observance of Child Abuse Awareness Month, according to Ofelia Marszal, CASA volunteer coordinator.

CASA, or Court Appointed Special Advocates, is a non-profit organization which recruits, trains and supervises volunteers to be advocates for children who have been removed from their homes due to abuse and neglect. The volunteers work with the children, foster families and other foster care sources, the court system and others involved in child abuse and neglect to help seek the best care and permanent solution for the children. The Pampa chapter is CASA of the High Plains, housed in The Brown Alliance at 315 N. Ballard.

A banner showing the number of child abuse and neglect victims served by CASA this year will be displayed along with the shoes.

"This year, 690 were provided services by our agency," said Janet Watts, local CASA executive director. Three events are scheduled for Tuesday. Pampa schools are participating in "Wear Blue Day" Tuesday in recognition of Child Abuse Awareness Month, Watts said. "We hope the entire community will participate," she said.

Oil falls below

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP)— Oil prices fell below $49 a barrel Monday as investors reacted to slipping stock markets and an International Energy Agency report forecasting a drop in global crude demand.

In late morning trading benchmark crude for May delivery dropped $3.24 to $49 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, as U.S. stock markets began the week lower. Crude dipped as low as $48.84 earlier in the day.

Traders were able to ignore weak demand last week. "but that was only when the stock market was doing as well as it did," said Phil Flynn, an analyst at Alaron Trading Corp.

Oil had last settled at $52.24 on Thursday, finishing the week early because of the Good Friday holiday.

The Paris-based IEA, an energy policy adviser comprised of 28 countries, said Friday that demand this year will likely fall by 2.4 million barrels a day to 83.4 million barrels, or 2.8 percent lower than last year.

Rain brings wildfire relief, gives hope on Easter

ANGELA K. BROWN Associated Press Writer STONEBURG, Texas

(AP)— In a white-clapboard church spared by wildfires that ravaged this tiny rural community last week, a pastor offered words of hope to his congregation on Easter Sunday.

"Out of the destruction comes something good," the Rev. Larry Kennedy told about 40 people, including some children in pink and green Easter dresses, at Stoneburg Baptist Church. "It's devastating to see, but hope springs eternal."

Stoneburg was among the hardest hit areas of Montague County when eight fires sprang Thursday and, fueled by winds, quickly engulfed 75,000 acres of parched pastures and up to 100 homes. Three people died and two were injured in the county near the Oklahoma border.

As the fire raced through Stoneburg, it jumped across the street onto the Baptist church lawn, but firefighters put out the flames and saved the building built in the 1940s. The odor of burned debris lingered in the air Sunday from the blackened fields and heaps of ashes and charred cars in town.

"It's hard to see," said church member Marilyn Rater, wiping away tears as she looked across the street at the debris that had been her childhood home, "but it could have been worse." The couple who lived there had escaped unharmed.

The blazes were finally contained Sunday after early morning rainfall, said Montague County Sheriff Paul Cunningham.

Because the storms drenched most of North Texas, firefighters were close to containing several large blazes that have burned for days, Aî including a 27,900-acre fire in Young, 20,000-acre fire in Archer, 18,300-acre fire in Eastland, 16,500-acre fire in Jack and 16,000-acre fire in Shackelford counties, Texas Forest Service officials said.

Wildfires have burned more than 192,000 acres across the state the past several days.

"The rainfall is a tremendous relief for us," said David Abernathy, a Texas Forest Service operations section chief. "Mother Nature created the problem, and Mother Nature helped put it out.'

The rain also allows weary firefighters, many who traveled long distances to help other communities, to rest or return home, he said.

On Sunday some attended a brief Easter prayer service in the Emergency Operations Center in Montague led by chaplains with Victim Relief Ministries, a Dallas-based nondenominational group that provides support to crime and disaster victims.

The group's counselors spent most of their time the past few days giving fire victims water and information about services, and also listening to their stories.

"Where would Jesus be on Easter? With people that are hurting," said Pat Thorpe, a deputy commander for victim relief.

The news wasn't all good on Sunday, however. Firefighters in Jeff Davis County in West Texas were battling a 2,000-acre fire in the Davis Mountains, started Saturday night by a lightning strike, and a 100-acre fire in Hidalgo County in the Rio Grande Valley that threatened several homes, Abernathy said.

Obama beats first national security test

WASHINGTON (AP)— The U.S. economy is showing only glimmers of life and two costly wars remain in the balance, but President Barack Obama's "no drama" handling of the Indian Ocean hostage crisis proved a big win for his administration in one of its first critical national security

Obama's two quiet backstage decisions to authorize the Defense Department to take necessary action if Capt. Richard Phillips' life was in imminent danger gave a Navy commander the go-ahead to order snipers to fire on the pirates holding the cargo ship captain at gunpoint.

For Obama, the benefits were instantly clear: an American life saved and a major victory notched against an increasingly worrisome scourge of the seas off the Horn of Obama's handling of the crisis showed a president who was comfortable in relying on the U.S. military, much as his predecessor, George W. Bush, did.

But it also showed a new commander in chief who was willing to use all the tools at his disposal, bringing in federal law enforcement officials to handle the judicial elements of the crisis. The rescue appeared to vindicate Obama's muted but determined handling of the incident. What won't be known for some time is whether Obama will benefit politically.

When Obama campaigns for reelection, he may take Bush's approach of turning any such incident into evidence of his leadership acumen. On the other hand, Obama didn't go before the cameras Sunday to trumpet the success, instead releasing a written statement that saluted the bravery of the military and Phillips but claimed no credit for

Also, this crisis, while topping the news now, may fade into distant memory by the time voters get a chance to take any new measure of Obama and his party.

Still, it goes some way toward dispelling the notion that a liberal Democrat with a known distaste for war, Obama campaigned on his consistent opposition to the Iraq invasion doesn't have the chops to call on U.S. military power.

The sniper operation Sunday, with pirate guns aimed at Phillips, was a daring, high-stakes gambit, and it could have easily gone awry. If it had, the fallout would have probably landed hardest on Obama.

Indeed, the last Democratic president to unleash American military might against Somalis suffered miserably from the failure of that operation. Portrayed in the book and movie "Black Hawk Down," a U.S. peacekeeping mission in Somalia ended with a deadly clash in the capital of Mogadishu and former President Bill Clinton's humiliating withdrawal of troops.

The outcome this time was vastly different.

Since the standoff began last Tuesday, Obama made no public, inperson remarks on the topic, even declining to answer when questions were shouted at him during a press availability.

He didn't call in his Cabinet for a high-profile command meeting. He let military and top administration officials do the talking, but even they kept saber rattling out of the equatim Pa of White House chief of staff Rahm Emanuel said Obama's silence does not mean he wasn't deeply involved. The president's public posture was calculated to not raise the temperature or give the hostage-takers anything to exploit.

"Let's not confuse a public role with being on top of the situation," Emanuel said. "If you'd interjected yourself, you would make the discussions that were happening more diffi-

So what Obama did was receive regular briefings, sometimes as often as half a dozen times a day. He weighed in with two critical decisions allowing the military to take action to save Phillips' life. And he laid the groundwork for a federal criminal law enforcement response.

White House officials said the Justice Department is already reviewing evidence to determine whether to file criminal charges against the captured Somali pirate. The U.S. is treating the matter as a criminal case because officials have found no direct ties between East African pirates and terror groups.

Obama doesn't like labels for himself or catch phrases for policy. So it's notable that in an administration that has virtually banned the phrase "war on terror," no one called the pirates "terrorists."

A weak gov't troubles Afghanistan

WASHINGTON (AP) Presidential emissary Richard Holbrooke soaked up a lot of advice during three days of private meetings in Afghanistan and Pakistan this week. The lament of an Afghan lawmaker crystallized the problems facing the U.S. and its ally.

"The Taliban are not strong, we are weak" the lawmaker said, referring to the radical Islamic movement that has stalemated U.S. forces and the frail government. Afghan "That's why they look strong.'

The remark by the parliamentarian, who asked for anonymity because of concern over Taliban retribution, reflected a central paradox of the war: The insurgents cannot defeat the U.S. and NATO on the battlefield, yet they have drawn tens of thousands more American troops into the conflict and inflicted a growing toll in blood and election scheduled for August will lay the groundwork for a turnaround. Their way out of the Afghan conflict is pinned to getting the government on a more solid footing so that the country's army and police can grow strong enough to secure the nation without foreign troops.

Gen. David McKiernan, the top U.S. and NATO commander Afghanistan, believes that the Taliban's strength is easily overstated. Yet he predicts that even as 21,000 additional U.S. troops flow into the country in coming months, progress will not be imme-

"It's going McKiernan said, "not because the Taliban are stronger. It's going up because the insurgency is very resilient and very adaptive." Echoing the warning from the Afghan legislator, McKiernan expressed concern that already-low Afghan support for the government is declining further.

Randall sneaks past Pampa

by Kevin Hunt

Close games are becoming the norm for the Pampa baseball team these days, and so is being on the short end of score. For the third time in district 3-4A play, Pampa lost in the bottom of the last inning. On Friday against first place Randall, Pampa led the entire game until Randall scored 2 runs in the bottom of the 7th to defeat the Harvesters by a score of 4-

Pampa scored in the top of the first after Brett Powell drew a 1-out walk. Ryan Funderburg followed with single to right field and Powell took 3rd after the right fielder misplayed the ball. WIth Powell at 3rd and Funderburg at 1st, the Randall catcher tried to pick off Funderburg but the throw went to right field, allowing Powell to score and allowing Funderburg to go to 2nd. With 2 outs, Jeremy Maxwell would single to left field, and Funderburg scored after the left fielder misplayed the ball.

In the top of the third, and hanging on to a 2-1 lead, Blake Sieck led off the inning with his 4th home run of the season to give Pampa a 3-1 lead.

Randall added a run in the fifth, bringing the score to 3-2. The score would stay that way until the 7th inning, when Randall would score 2 runs to win the game by the final score of 4-3.

Blake Sieck pitched the entire game for Pampa giving up 4 runs on 12 hits. He walked 2, hit one batter and struck out 8.

Pampa did manage 7 hits but could not string anything together after the first inning.

It was the same song and dance for Pampa as they led the game throughout but were unable to finish the game. In 4 of Pampa's 5 district losses, Pampa has led during the game. Canyon and Caprock, Randall all scored in the bottom of the last inning to defeat the Harvesters. The loss drops Pampa's district record to 2-5 and leaves them searching for some much needed momentum as the 2nd half of district gets underway.

Pampa will take on Palo Duro on Tuesday at 5:00 at Harvester Field.

2 firefighters die

HOUSTON (AP) A veteran firefighter and a rookie who had served in Iraq died battling a Houston house fire.

The Houston Fire Department identified the victims as 50-year-old Capt. James Harlow of Pasadena and 29-year-old probationary firefighter Damien Hobbs, who grew up in Alvin.

Harlow had worked for the department since August 1979. Hobbs graduated from firefighter training in March.

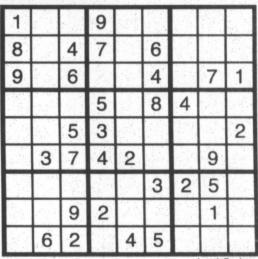

A news release from the department said the cause of the house fire, reported early Sunday, is under investigation.

Hobbs returned from a 14-month tour of duty in Iraq in July 2007. His sister, Janice DeShazer, said Hobbs was in the reserves with the Texas Air National Guard at Ellington Field Joint Reserve Base in Houston.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My parents have been married for 60 years. My father has always been physically, verbally and mentally abusive to my mother. My mother is also verbally and mentally abusive to my father.

Because of the violence, Dad is now on probation for two years. They will not divorce or live separately, but continue with their sick relationship. I know we can't help them, but what can we do to save ourselves from being drawn into it? They are both masters at drawing us into it. -- DEVASTATED ADULT CHILDREN OF CRAZY PARENTS

DEAR CHILDREN: As loving, caring children you cannot, at least on some level, avoid being drawn in to some extent. However, it may be less wrenching for you if you consider that both your parents have been getting something out of this sick relationship or it would have ended years ago.

Some people mistake pain and violence for love and passion, and your folks may fall into this category. But if their dysfunctional relationship is preventing you from enjoying your own lives, then what you should do is talk about it with a psychotherapist, because at this late date, your father and mother aren't going to

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, and a year and a half ago I was diagnosed with Type 1 diabetes. I must inject myself with insulin four times a day. If I am going to be away from home for more than a few hours, I must bring my insulin and other supplies with me.

When I'm in public -- like in a restaurant -- I feel as though going off alone to inject myself is denying a part of who I am, so I choose to remain visible when I inject. What is your take on this? I have never seen anyone else do it in plain view, but I would like to because diabetes is nothing to be ashamed of. People often ask questions when I do it, and I'm happy to answer them and to spread aware-

Do you agree that accepting a disease like this is more easily achieved when one is not isolating oneself? UNASHAMED SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR UNASHAMED: Yes, I do -- and I have seen someone with diabetes inject himself while seated at a dinner table. My initial reaction was one of concern, and I am sure that is how others would react as well. Having a disease like diabetes is nothing to be ashamed of, and whether you choose to inject your insulin in public is a personal choice, depending upon how comfortable a person feels about it.

DEAR ABBY: What is the proper way to eat bacon in a restaurant? My son says that bacon is finger food and can be picked up with your fingers.

I like to cut the bacon strips into bite-sized pieces that can fit on a fork to be eaten without getting my fingers greasy. -- MOTHER KNOWS BEST

DEAR MOTHER: It depends upon how you like your bacon cooked. According to Emily Post, bacon can be eaten as a finger food "when it is dry, crisp and served whole. If the bacon is broken into bits, served in thick slices (as with Canadian bacon) or limp, eat it with knife and It's not just fork as you would any other

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, April

You break the mold this year. You want to blaze a new trail, and that is exactly what you will do. You walk through areas that are so new, you might feel like a child. Knowing when to act will also be key. Sometimes your sense of timing is off. As an Aries, you tend to be impulsive. If you are single, perhaps your new experience could be one of commitment. Allow someone quite unique into your life. Ultimately, you will grow from the experience. If you are attached, understand the different currents that impact your bond. Choose not to allow them to become riptides. Agree to disagree. SAGITTARIUS challenges your mind.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Take in new vistas mentally Through reframing, you see life much differently. Empower yourself by accepting responsibility within a relationship and/or a financial decision. Tonight: Continue to bloom. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* Though you might be ready to work intensely on an issue with a key individual, he or she might not be. Here lies the frustration. Tap into a creative person who serves as a resource.

Tonight: Try a casual and light chat over GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

* Often you don't know when to say enough. You keep trying, despite hitting obstacle upon obstacle. Ask yourself if this behavior is determination or something else. Wherever you are, you beam, drawing in many. Use this magic to your highest good. Tonight: Do only what you

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 You might have a long list of errands. Someone piles work on you. Understanding just what is possible helps you say no. Others often demand a lot from you because of your innate abilities. Tonight: How about a night to relax? LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Investigate. You will notice that creative approach might be best. Understanding your limitations might be the first step. Try seeing events and people differently. Your logic might not work; be sensitive to alternatives. Tonight: Paint the town red. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Ouestion a basic premise. Perhaps it has timited you. Open the door by experimenting with a different type of thought. Somehow you could create a more ideal daily life, if you just work with what you have. Tonight: At home. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

* Speak your mind, and get past a self-imposed limitation. Nothing has to be the way you think it is. Much changes quite rapidly. Understanding the possibilities and then acting on the one you want can happen. Tonight: Hang out. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 Curb a tendency to think in terms of "mine." Possessiveness is unbecoming, no matter what the situation. Creativity comes from hanging with associates and opening up the many different doors. Which one do you want to walk through? Tonight: Be budget-con-

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Strong-willed as you are, you could eliminate an opportunity. Follow your intuition, and work on greater sensitivity. A family member proves his or her loyalty once more. Consider yourself lucky to have such a strong supporter. Tonight: All smiles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

* Honor that quiet voice in your mind Are you wondering what to do about a hot situation? Honesty and directness become allies. Make sure you don't have a harsh or demanding tone in your voice. Tonight: Sharing with pals over munchies or on the phone. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

* Your abilities to move forward and try different attitudes emerge Friends often help you see more. As a sign that values friendship, you count on these people a lot. Still, ultimately you need to take responsibility for what is happening in your life. Tonight: Where crowds are.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Others often successfully push you into the limelight and into handling responsibilities. Though you might be most capable, understand there is a time to say enough. You might be overwhelmed by everything that is on your plate. Practice saying no. Tonight: Don't allow another's charm to manipulate
