arrests 3 on drug charges

Monday morning, an undercover officer from the Pampa Police Department purchased just under half an ounce of marijuana from James Donald Laden at the Mystic Manor specialty store at 1421 N. Hobart.

Then just after 1 .a.m. this morning members of the Pampa Police Department Special Response Team executed a narcotics warrant at 1136 Vernon, arresting two more people for possession of narcotics.

After the Monday drug purchase was made, officers entered the store and placed Laden under arrest. After Laden's arrest a search warrant was obtained for the business. Just under four ounces of marijuana was recovered from the business, bundled in plastic baggies. The street value of each baggie was said to be $20.

Due to the close proximity of the Pampa Youth and Community Center and the Community Day Care Center, Laden's charges were enhanced for being in a drug free zone,

He was booked into the Gray County Jail for delivery of marijuana, over .25 ounces but under 5 pounds, in a Drug Free Zone, a third degree felony and for possession of marijuana over two ounces but under four ounces in a Drug Free Zone, a state jail felony.

Laden also had an outstanding warrant for possession of marijuana under two ounces, a class B misdemeanor.

AMARILLO - The power lines that will stretch from Pampa south to join downstate electrical grids are just part of a larger project, according to Cameron Fredkin with Cross Texas Transmission, LLC

City of Pampa and Gray County officials were on hand to hear an update on wind energy construction

Monday in Amarillo. It all ties back to an effort by Congress to get wind energy to generate up to 20 percent of the nation's electrical power, Fredkin said, speaking at a wind conference here hosted by Class 4 Winds, a nonprofit wind advocacy group.

The power lines that Fredkin's company is planning to string are part of a statewide project to move electricity generated by wind energy from five Competitive Renewable Energy Zones, or CREZ, basically in West Texas into the regulated Energy Pampa Mayor Lonny Robbins talks with Pampa City Reliability Council of Manager Richard Morris during a break at the Class Texas, or ERCOT, market 4 Winds conference in Amarillo Monday.

BY RACHEL STENNETT rstennett@thepampanews.com

A traffic stop Friday evening led to the arrest of a Pampa man for multiple charges, including possession/transport of anhydrous ammonia, and possession of methamphetamine and marijuana.

Deputies stopped at vehicle at 9:21 p.m., on Farm to Market Road 749, north of County Road, on suspicious activity.

The driver, Richard Dale Stinnett, 51, of Pampa had existing warrant for allegedly stealing a car, according to Lt. Joe B. Hoard of the GCSO.

Stinnetts's vehicle was towed to the Sheriff's office and a search warrant was obtained for the Stinnett was charged with tampering with physical evidence for his apparent attempt to conceal the marijuana from deputies.

Officers obtained a second search warrant for Stinnett's residence. The search was conducted at 4:35 p.m. Saturday, April 25, and revealed a substance believed to be anhydrous ammonia, as well as several items used to manufacture meth. The search also revealed some additional white-powder substance, and an allegedly stolen firearm.

"Governments will need to start thinking about larger-scale care for a specific disease in accident and emergency wards," he said. "Do they have the infrastructure? Do they have the equipment? Do they have the medicines? This is the time, now, to prepare."

WHO raised the alert level to Phase 4, meaning there is sustained humanto-human transmission causing outbreaks in at least one country. WHO's pandemic alert system was revised after bird flu in Asia began to spread in 2004. Monday was the first time it has ever been raised above Phase 3.

Flu deaths are nothing new in the United States or elsewhere. The Atlantabased Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that about 36,000 people died of flu-related causes each year, on average, during the 1990s in the United States.

But the new flu strain is a combination of pig, bird and human viruses that humans may have no natural immunity to.

Tuesday, Mexico City Mayor Marcelo Ebrard ordered gyms, sports clubs, swimming pools and pool halls closed — extending a growing shutdown that already included schools, state-run theaters and other public places.

The city was evaluating whether to keep open a subway system that provides 5 million trips a day.

New Zealand reported Tuesday that 11 people who recently returned from Mexico contracted the virus. Tests conducted at a WHO laboratory in Australia had confirmed three cases of swine flu among 11 members of the group who were showing symptoms, New Zealand Health Minister Tony Ryall said.

Officials decided that was evidence enough to assume the whole group was infected, he said.

Israel's Health Ministry confirmed Tuesday the region's first swine flu case in the city of Netanya. The patient, 26, recently returned from Mexico and had contracted it. A such as Tamiflu, and make hospital official said the patient had recovered, but will remain hospitalized until the health ministry approves his release.

A hospital in the central town of Kfar Saba said a 47-year-old man who returned from Mexico two days ago and checked himself in when he felt ill had the strain and was being kept in isolation. He was expected to recover.

Meanwhile, a second case was confirmed Tuesday in Spain, Health Minister Trinidad Jimenez said, a day after the country reported its first case. The 23-year-old student, one of 26 patients under observation, was not in serious condition, Jimenez said.

With the virus spreading, the U.S. stepped up checks of people entering the country and warned Americans to avoid nonessential travel to Mexico.

"We anticipate that there will be confirmed cases in more states as we go through the coming days," Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano said on NBC's "Today" show on Tuesday.

The Food and Drug Administration late Monday issued emergency guidance that allows certain antiviral drugs to be used in a broader range of the population in case mass dosing is needed to deal with an outbreak.

Mexico, where the number of deaths believed caused by swine flu rose by 50 percent on Monday to 152, is suspected to be the center of the outbreak. But Mexican Health Secretary Jose Angel Cordova late Monday said no one knows where the outbreak began, and implied it may have started in the U.S.

"I think it is very risky to say, or want to say, what the point of origin or dissemination of it is, given that there had already been cases reported in southern California and Texas," Cordova told a press conference.

Mexico City Health Secretary Armando Ahued said three people died in the capital Monday, but it was unclear if they were included in the national toll. He said 6,610 people went to city hospitals Monday with flu symptoms, but only 29 were remained hospital-

Dr. Nancy Cox of the CDC has said she believes the earliest onset of swine flu in the U.S. was on March 28. Cordova said a sample taken from a 4-year-old boy in Mexico's Veracruz state in early April tested positive for swine flu. However, it is not known when the boy, who later recovered, became infected. A decision by WHO to put an alert at Phases 4 or 5 signals that the virus is becoming increasingly adept at spreading among humans. Phase 6 is for a full-blown pandemic, characterized by outbreaks in at least two regions of the Fifty cases — none fatal and most of them mild were confirmed in the United States. Including the New Zealand, Israeli and new Spanish reports, there were 92 confirmed worldwide on Tuesday. That included six in Canada, one in Spain and two in Scotland.

Amid the alarm, there was a spot of good news. The number of new cases reported by Mexico's largest government hospitals has been declining the past three days, Cordova said, from 141 on Saturday to 119 on Sunday and 110 Monday.

Symptoms include a fever of more than 100, coughing, joint aches, severe headache and, in some cases, vomiting and diarrhea. Many victims have been in their 30s and 40s — not the very old or young who typically succumb to the flu.

So far, no deaths from the new virus have been reported outside Mexico.

It could take four to six months before the first batch of vaccines are available, WHO said. Some antiflu drugs do work once someone is sick.

The best way to keep the disease from spreading, the CDC's acting director, Richard Besser, said, is by taking everyday precautions such as frequent handwashing, covering up coughs and sneezes, and staying away from work or school if not feeling well.

Russia, Hong Kong and Taiwan said they would quarantine visitors showing symptoms of the virus.

Texas treating swine flu as pandemic

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The head of Texas' health department tells lawmakers he expects some Americans eventually will die of swine flu.

Napolitano also said the Obama administration wouldn't wait for a World Health Organization declaration of a pandemic to deliver a pandemic-like response.

The secretary, who has taken a lead role in the administration's response to the flu breakout, went on morning news shows to assure the American public that the government was ready and able to respond to

"We anticipate that there will be confirmed cases in more states as we go through the coming days," she acknowledged on NBC's "Today" show. Noting that the WHO has moved the pandemic alert status to Level 4 of a 6-step process, the secretary also said: "We're prepared as if there were a pandemic. We're not waiting" for a WHO declaration.

Some 50 people have been infected in this country so far, but there have been no reports of deaths, in contrast to neighboring Mexico, where approximately 150

While the CREZ system is designed to deliver a total of 18,456 megawatts of electricity from wind energy into the ERCOT system, about 5,400 megawatts of that will come from the two panhandle

Fredkin said that most of the demand is in the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex, Waco, Austin and San Antonio and Houston areas. The CREZ system power lines is essentially the highway that will provide the transportation of wind generated electricity from the wide open spaces of West Texas to the urban markets.

The panhandle part of the CREZ system represents an investment of over $800 million."By the time you add in financing costs, it is close to a billion dollars on the transmission side of the business," Fredkin said. "What that means for the community here is great. We're going to have construction jobs. There will be some operation and maintenance jobs."There will be increased tax revenues for local communities."Really, the transmission is just the conduit," Fredkin said. "It's just the foundation for delivering the wind."The greatest interest, he said, is in the wind. "The wind energy facilities are really going to represent investment many times over this $800 million," Fredkin said. "If it fully gets built out, it will represent billions of dollars in investment, which will lead to more tax dollars, more construction jobs and probably more long term operating and maintenance jobs. There's great potential for benefits here in the community.' There will also have to be connections from the wind farms to the substations. That represents additional investments.

Fredkin admitted that there is still a little uncertainty in the timing of the projects, but slowly the pieces are coming together. He said the state has about another 30 days to come up with a sequencing plan to begin the power transmission project. He said they should have a schedule by June or July. While there are issues, Fredkin said he thinks those challenges will be resolved this year and the CREZ projects, along with wind farm construction, will move forward.

Mark Caskey Sharyland Utilities, which is building the adjoining CREZ system to the southwest of Pampa, said he expects to see wind farms being built simultaneously with the transmission lines.

Fredkin said Cross Texas defining their study areas. Once that's done, they will start identifying routes for the power lines and present those to the PUC. "Once we identify our routes," Fredkin said, 'we'll get into identifying the landowners on those routes. We'll hold public meetings."

The PUC will ultimately be responsible for selecting one of the routes that Cross Texas submits.

Landowners that could be affected by the routes will be notified by mail, Fredkin said. He said there will also be newspaper announcements notifying the public of the meetings. Those meetings, he said, will probably be in the fall. Fredkin said he expects the company's applications for the power lines will go to the PUC in early 2010. He said construction should start in 2011. Right now, Fredkin said, the company is looking for office space and locations for their substations.

Chance Douglas continued the rally with a triple. He scored when Zach Hill singled. Hill made two steals and came home on a Colton Thompson single. Thompson stole two bases and tallied on a passed ball making the score 7-0.

In the second inning a walk and a stolen base by Jason Velasquez, an infield out and a sacrifice fly hit by Powell and dropped by an outfielder brought in another run for Glo-Valve. Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR READERS: After the letter from "Frantic Mom in Philadelphia" (Jan. 30) was published, several physicians wrote to express concern that I was suggesting that doctors violate the HIPAA laws by talking to families without consent. This is not what I was suggesting. The goal of HIPAA (Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act) is to protect patient information and standardize the transmission of patient health informa-

The Health and Human Services Office for Civil Rights Web site (www.hhs.gov/ocr/hipaa) offers a variety of resources to help people understand HIPAA. The rules are complex and -- like any rules -- can have unintended consequences. They were NOT meant to discourage doctor-family communication, but only to give patients some control over their medical information.

Doctors are well within their rights to encourage patients to give consent for sharing information with family members, and they need to explain why it's important. Collaboration is needed when families are deeply involved in their loved ones' care. Research has shown that when family members are involved, patients with serious mental illness stay better longer and have fewer relapses. The patient and therapist TOGETHER can specify what information can and cannot be shared:

Parents like "Frantic Mom in Philadelphia" become more anxious and depressed when they have no information on how to help their children, which creates additional family stress.

Parents who are financially supporting a child over the age of 21 may decide the conditions under which they will continue their support and pay for treatment. They may decide that one of those conditions is that they have some basic information from the patient and therapist about how they can help. I am NOT suggesting that the family should get access to their son's full records, but only that they should be given basic information on how to help and what to expect.

DEAR ABBY: Over the past few years I have noticed a trend in the recorded phone messages of businesses I deal with over the course of a day. It is the use of the phrase, "We'll get back to you at our earliest conve-

Abby, is it just me, or does that phrase imply that it's about their convenience and not their customers'? There was a time when the sentiment was, "We'll help you as soon as possible." Am I being too literal here? -- BOB IN COSTA MESA, CALIF. DEAR BOB: Many businesses rely on automated phone answering systems as a cost-saver because it means they don't have to hire someone to do it. The fact that this offends you enough that you have written to me indicates that you are old enough to remember when customer service came first. I agree with you that given a choice I, too, would prefer to deal with a human being.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday,

April 29, 2009: This year, you speak, and others stop to listen. You need to be sure you are in touch with your feelings, or else your clarity could be muddled and confused. If you're in a creative field, you will want to manifest a concrete piece of work, though the going might not always be easy. Communication flourishes. Come 2010, you will be able to make a big difference wherever you decide to plug in your energy. If you are single, you see life through revised eyes. Relationships before January might not be as substantial after. If you are attached, trust your partner's feedback, as you will tend to suppress your feelings. Communication opens many doors. CANCER loves to hang with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Listen to news and start up talks. Communication flourishes at an unprecedented level. Others could be surprised by your focus and direction. You could be more angry than you realize. Stop before you say something you might regret. Tonight: Head home. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

* Keep talks going and open doors. You could be sitting on a lot of anger without knowing it. Speak your mind so that there are no questions. An easy flow could be established before you know it. Understand rather than judge. Tonight: Fun and games. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Expenses easily could tumble out of control. Could shopping also be soar-ing and you are the victim of inadvertent spending? A meeting could be loaded with hot energy. Remember, an argument is as easy as an agreement. Tonight: Easy does it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) * Your words are not falling on deaf ears, though a boss or someone you look up to could be a lot to bear. Mobilize others to help make what you want happen. An easy, steady approach draws success. Tonight: Sometimes not saying it all is smart.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Think rather than talk. Share rather than monopolize. What you are doing could draw shocking reactions. If you want, consider alternatives right now. Act in a few days. Trust that there is more emerging or coming up. Tonight:

Take some personal time. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 You could be more negative than you realize. Refocus; maybe a more detached approach would work. Look to others for suggestions. In fact, just observe if you don't want to ask. What is important is the long-term goal. Tonight: Where the gang is.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

* Understand what is going on behind the scenes. You could decide that you need to take charge. It isn't out of the question to allow a critical associate to take over. Let this person see what you are dealing with. Tonight: Don't even consider vanishing

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) * You might want to read between the lines. How you handle someone or what goes on behind the scenes might not be clear just yet. Detach and observe. Note what isn't being said as opposed to what is. Tonight: Choose a

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) * Work with individuals rather than groups if you want to succeed. What might be difficult at first eases up and becomes a possibility. Review a situation. Stay on top of your game. A boss could be a problem. Tonight: A must

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) * Defer to others, knowing that you might not be able to do what you want just yet. Keep smiling and watch how everything plays out. Let your creativity come into play. You might want to focus on more fun issues. Tonight: Sort

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

* Tap into your creativity, and get past a problem. You might want to revise your plans as a result. No matter what you are doing, do squeeze in some fun. You cannot suppress your innate self-expression, - so don't. Tonight: Take a midweek romp.
