BY DAVID BOWSER

dbowser@thepampanews.com

AMARILLO - The defense attorneys in the Levi King murder case are asking the Seventh Court of Appeals here to lift a gag order imposed by the district judge in Pampa who is hearing the case.

Joe Marr Wilson and Maxwell Peck III, attorneys for King, 26, who is accused of killing a family south of Pampa in 2005, filed a petition with the appeals court here and have asked for oral arguments to overturn a gag order imposed by 31st District Judge Steven Emmert to prevent both defense attorneys and prosecutors from speaking publicly about the capital murder case.

Wilson and Peck argue that Judge Emmert failed to exercise proper discretion in issuing the gag order by not making specific findings of imminent and irreparable harm as required by the Texas Constitution or making specific findings of substantial likelihood of material prejudice to a fair trial as required by the U.S. Constitution.

"When both state and federal principals require a district court, in issuing a gag order, to make specific findings that the gag order is the least restrictive means available, does the district court satisfy its burden via a conclusion that less-restrictive measures 'have been considered by the Court but are found to be ineffective?" the attorneys asked in their petition.

King is accused of killing Brian Conrad, 31; his six-month pregnant wife, Michell Conrad, 35 and her son Zach Doan, 14, at their home between Pampa and Interstate 40 in the predawn hours of Sept. 30, 2005.

He was arrested on Sept. 30, 2005, as he crossed the border at El Paso, coming back into Texas from Mexico, on a warrant out of Missouri in connection with the murder of two people in that state.

King pleaded guilty a year ago in Missouri to the Sept. 29, 2005, murders of Orlie McCool, 70, and McCool's daughter-in-law, Laura Dawn McCool, 47, in exchange for two consecutive life sentences in prison without parole. In March, 2006, a Gray County grand jury indicted King on four counts of murder. King was returned to the Texas Panhandle in July where he is being held in the Hemphill County

Earlier this month, a jury sentenced Moya's common-law wife, Gloria Ramirez, to 10 years in prison in the case and fined her $10,000. Police came to the couple's home in 2007 after Moya called a Bassett said the plea spares funeral home about a casket for a stillborn infant. The fetus had been placed in a baby wipe box and in a refrigerator.

Moya's decision to accept the state's offer was based on the outcome of his wife's trial, said Cynthia Mendoza, his attorney.

"We believe that this is a fair resolution to his case,' she said.

Authorities also found decaying food around the home, overflowing trash bins, and rat and roach infestations. Agency investigators suspected the children were malnourished. The two youngest were hospitalized for suspected dehydration, and all seven had to be treated for head lice, documents show.

"Obviously the only reason we agreed to a plea was to keep her off the stand and hopefully get closure for all the victims," she said.

The youngster testified that her mother threatened her and her siblings' lives if they told anyone about the filthy conditions. The girl, 9 at the time of the removal, told jurors they all routinely ate only once a day and that Ramirez showed the dead fetus to all the children and blamed them for the miscarriage.

Moya and Ramirez had six children together Jennifer at the time of the children's removal. They had twins in May 2008 and Ramirez gave birth to her oldest child before meeting Moya. Ramirez is pregnant with her 10th child.

Five of the seven removed from the home the day of the miscarriage are in the state's permanent custody; The oldest girl is with her biological father and a family is in the process of adopting the youngest child. The twins are in temporary custody.

A family law judge in Lubbock will determine whether the children will visit their parents in prison, Child Protective Services spokesman Greg Cunningham said

Texas sect follower taught at Pulaski County Jail

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — A follower of the House of Yahweh sect in Texas taught classes at the Pulaski County jail for more than four years, giving inmates lessons designed by the ministry's embattled leader, officials told The Associated Press.

Sheriff Doc Holladay said the follower passed a background check and came with a letter of recommendation from House of Yahweh leader Yisrayl Hawkins. Hawkins faces charges in Texas that he performed polygamous weddings, practiced bigamy and forced about 40 children — some as young as 11 — to work.

Holladay said House of Yahweh follower David Knighten didn't proselytize during his classes at the jail, attended by at least 780 inmates over the past years. The sheriff even wrote Knighten a letter of recommendation before jailers realized Hawkins faced criminal charges.

course, called Peaceful Solution Character Program, focused on "the importance of asking" for permission in life, as well as on ownership, respect and self-control.

Knighten, 51, said the class discussed "not stealing" from others, whether that be physical objects or the intangible, like time or emotions. He said he volunteered his courses not only at the Pulaski County jail, but also within state prisons in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas, while also working professionally as a business courier and bill auditor.

He said he stopped the practice after jailcomplained some inmates felt uncomfortable with it. Jailers canceled Knighten's jail program in January, nearly a year after Hawkins had been charged in Texas courts. However, an Internet video features Knighten reading Holladay's letter, complete with a picture of the sher-

"We have so many other issues that this Legislature has yet to address," said becomes law will depend Rep. Jessica Farrar, chairwoman of the House Democratic Caucus. "Our concern is that those issues won't be addressed. What's being placed at the forefront of the agenda is a very partisan issue."

The biennial legislative session is set to adjourn June 1. The voter ID bill is expected to be in the House Friday, though that schedule had not yet been set.

"If the leadership chooses to bring this bill forward ... we are going to protect say is an unfair attempt to the voting rights of our constituents," Dunnam said. Dunnam did not say how they would stop the meaout of Austin.

The strategy to bring House business to a halt was famously used when Democrats fled to Ardmore, Okla., in 2003 to stop a congressional redistricting effort.

"I would hope that we could stay here and debate the issue, take care of the concerns and at the end of the day have an electoral process that secures and protects the right of every eligible voter to vote,' said Rep. Larry Taylor, chairman of the House Republican Caucus. "We have a lot of other important issues and the people of Texas expect us to stay here and get the job done."

The House voter ID bill, identical to the Senate version, would require Texans to provide a photo ID or two approved alternatives before casting a ballot.

Rep. Paula Pierson, D-Arlington, said she wouldn't be able to vote if the bill is adopted in its present form because she has different names, "married and maiden names", on her driver's license, voter registration card and Social Security card.

Republicans, who control both houses of the Legislature and all statewide elective offices, say new rules are needed to protect against voter fraud. Democrats complain that the GOP wants to suppress Democratic turnout by erecting hurdles that suppresses their base vote.

The bill's passage in the Senate had been a foregone conclusion after Republicans tinkered with the filibuster rules to ensure it could come up for a vote.

But the narrow 76-74 GOP majority in the House makes things trickier for partisan legislation.

Smith had criticized the Senate's approach and pushed for a bipartisan compromise that would be phased in over four years and contain millions of dollars for voter education efforts. Some Democrats warmed to the idea, introduced late last month, but it was blocked by conservative Republicans.

Highlights from the Texas Legislature

With less than two weeks left in the legislative session, Democrats are complaining that the House has yet to deal with a number of substantive issues.

Among the legislation waiting for consideration are an effort to overhaul the Texas Department of Insurance, cap college admissions through the state's top 10 percent rule and lower college tuition

Pampa— In an effort to reduce stroke risk, Accolade Home Care is offering a stroke awareness presentation and blood pressure screening to Pampa and surrounding area residents on May 27 from 10.m.-2.m. at Pampa Senior Citizen Center, 500 W. Francis Pampa, TX 79065

May is National Stroke Awareness Month. Each year in the U.S., about 795,000 people suffer a stroke. About 600,000 of these are first attacks, and 185,000 are recurrent attacks. High blood pressure is the most important risk factor for stroke.

Accolade blood pressure screenings will take approximately five minutes and the informative stroke presentation will take less than half an hour. Accolade will also provide individuals with blood pressure cards, risk factor handouts and stroke awareness handouts.

Irma Guerra understands the importance of educating yourself on stroke awareness. At the age of 82, her father had been suffering the effects of a stroke for the past five years. Lazaro Miranda, once an active farmer in Rotan, Texas, is now restricted to an

Oil drops below $61

Oil prices eased off sixmonth highs Thursday after rallying the day before to above $62 a barrel on a bigger-than-expected fall in U.S. crude inventories.

Benchmark crude for July delivery was down $1.16 to $60.88 a barrel by midday in Europe in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

In London, Brent prices fell $1 to $59.59 a barrel on the ICE Futures exchange.

Oil has surged about 75 percent since March on signs the global economy, while still struggling through a severe slowdown, may have avoided a worstcase scenario.

On Wednesday, the July contract rose $1.94 to settle at $62.04 after the government said U.S. crude inventories fell for a second week, suggesting demand may be improving.

Crude stockpiles dropped by 2.1 million barrels for the week ended May 15, according to Energy Department's Information Energy Administration. Gasoline inventories dropped by 4.3

million barrels. That was a bigger decline than analysts had expected, especially for gasoline. Still, oil supplies remain at 19-year highs, and some analysts question whether the recent jump in prices is justified when demand remains weak.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Cheri-Ann in Honolulu" (Feb. 21), who wanted to remind your readers that Hawaii is indeed one of the 50 states, reflects the lack of reasonable preparation on the part of tourists.

My son lives in Hawaii and over the years we have visited him many times. The questions I have heard travelers ask flight attendants as they deplane in Honolulu run the gamut: "Where do I go to change money?" Which side of the road do 'they' drive on?' "Is it safe here when it rains?" or "Is English widely spoken?" I think I've heard them all. --ALOHA FROM ALICE IN BERKELEY

DEAR ALICE: Some of the letters I received in response to Cheri-Ann's were surprising -- and amusing. I hope she will take comfort in knowing that Hawaii isn't the only state that has been "overlooked." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am from Oregon and when I would go to visit family on the East Coast, some people did not know where my state is located. When I told them it was right above California, more than a few would then exclaim, "Oh, you're from Canada!" -- DIANE IN PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I spent our honeymoon in Alaska. A girl on our cruise ship asked where we were from. When I "Vermont, replied, she asked what state it was in, "Maine or Massachusetts?" answer to which I politely pointed out that Vermont is the nation's 14th state. -- ERIC IN RUTLAND,

DEAR Twenty years ago I married a Navy man. We moved from our home state to Virginia, and I was asked where I was from. I replied, "New York." I was then asked, "What's it like to live in such a big city?" "No," I responded, "I live in upstate New York. I've never been to the city.' Then I was asked, "What is 'upstate'?" and had to explain that upstate means in the middle area of New York STATE. only to hear, "There's a state called New York?!" -- SANDY IN ITALY (THE COUNTRY)

DEAR ABBY: When people hear I'm from Kentucky's Appalachia region, they automatically ask if my boyfriend is also my cousin, if possum is my favorite dish and if I've ever heard of the Internet. Stereotypes still exist. Both Hawaiians and Appalachians have a long way to go before we will be accepted, in the eyes of some people, as "Americans." --KENTUCKY NATIVE

DEAR ABBY: I work for the tourism department in New Mexico and want Cheri-Ann to know she is not alone. We frequently have to respond to questions like,

"Do I need a passport or visa to visit?" or, "Can I drink the water?" We even received a letter from a wedding magazine requesting information regarding our "traditional" customs for marriage so they could run an article on our "country." And yes, you CAN drink the water here. -- MAX FROM THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO

DEAR ABBY: I once had to ask a bank teller here in Florida how much it would cost to wire money from my account to a bank in Minnesota. She said, "Minnesota? Is that in the United States?' The sad thing is this woman actually handled money and accounts. No wonder our banks have to be bailed out. -- JUDY IN NEW SMYRNA BEACH, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: People have asked me where I'm from. When I respond, "I'm from Delaware," I am then asked, "Is that a state?" To which I casually respond, "Yes. The first one." Maybe having a vice president from Delaware will finally "put us on the map." --FIRST STATE NATIVE

DEAR NATIVE: And having a president from Hawaii may help, too.

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, May 22,

You could change directions this year, as you realize in some ways you have been self-destructive. A partnership transforms, allowing you to update your views, if not your daily life. A change might come up in your home life, or you might decide to remodel or paint a room a new color. If you are single, you might move into a relationship slightly too fast. Slow down, for your sake as well as the other person. Tension seems to walk with you. If you are attached, you often feel out of sync. Let it go. TAURUS makes a great confidant.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

*** Update your opinion about a boss. Give this person space. Be clear about what you will tolerate and what you will not. Others will respond to your boundaries. Tonight: Treat a friend to munchies and a drink TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Look for a better idea, where you can avoid a problem rather than have one occur. Tension builds with a child or loved one. Perhaps stopping and buying a little gift will help loosen up the vibes. Tonight: Only what you want to do. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

*** Don't feel pressured by a partner. You could be somewhat out of sync or not sure of yourself. You know, as well as others, that this attitude isn't really you. A domestic or personal matter is out of whack. Tonight: Do for you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

*** Be sensitive to your potential when deciding what can happen or work for you. If you keep your focus but don't push, you will find that others will waver and adjust their stance, perhaps not immediately. Don't forget an important meeting. Tonight: Where your friends

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

*** You might want to rethink a stance. How you might be guiding a project could need some revision. Your willingness to greet new and different technology separates you from others. Say no to impulsive spending. Tonight: A must appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

*** Keep seeking out ideas and attempting to root out a problem. You could be overwhelmed by everything that you are hearing. Step back or take a walk to clear your mind. Ideas come as a result of brainstorming or chatting. Tonight: Take off ASAP. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

*** Be a team with a key associate or partner. This person depends on you more than you realize. Consider your options more carefully, and don't just nix a situation because of the people involved. Make needed adjustments on the home front. Tonight: Chat over munchies with friends. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

**** Others dominate. You need not feel challenged, as you are so much stronger than many realize. Let others discover the end result of their actions. A friend could disappoint you in an odd way. Revise your opinion or view of an immediate situation. Tonight: Sort through options, then decide. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

*** Making this a total workday shouldn't be a hassle. Some of you might even want to put in overtime. Strengthening your position and finances is smart. Others challenge you, making you feel as if somehow you missed the boat. Tonight: Get some exercise. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

**** You are changing - consciously or unconsciously. Allow your creative juices to flow. Share ideas with others. News from a distance could cause a change of plans. Relax. Don't worry. Tonight: Now let that naughty side out. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★ Do as much from home as possible. At work, you could feel as if someone is tormenting you on some level. No one can torment you unless you let them. Perhaps relaxing and taking a few days off could help revise your opinion. Tonight: Nap and then decide. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

**** Think about your words before they leave your mouth, or you could be quite upset with someone's reaction. Others are out of sorts, but they don't need to be encouraged to go on a rant. A friend presents a different view. Tonight: Talk through a problem.
