HONORING THE FALLEN Fighter dedicated to Pampa flyer

BY DAVID BOWSER

dbowser@thepampanews.com

A Native American legend maintains that rain on days of mourning is a sign that the gods are saddened by the passing of great warriors. It rained Monday night following the candle light ceremony at Freedom Museum USA to commemorate Memorial Day.

Earlier in the day, the family and friends of James H. "Jimmy" Ayers and Charles W. "Chuck" Stratton gathered at the museum to dedicate an F-4E Phantom jet fighter to the pair.

"We are remembering one of Pampa's own sons," said John Triplehorn, board president of the Freedom Museum, during the dedication ceremonies.

Ayers, a Pampa native, was an Air Force pilot and Stratton was his weapons system officer when their F-4E went down Jan. 3, 1971, during the Vietnam War while on a night mission over Laos.

"Jimmy was born in Pampa," Triplehorn said, "raised in Pampa and graduated from Pampa High School in 1956."

Ayers graduated from Texas Tech in 1960 and joined the Air Force.

Sid's racer a hit at show

BY DAVID BOWSER

dbowser@thepampanews.com

AMARILLO - Sid Mauldin didn't win this year at the big car show here over the weekend, but it was only because he wasn't eligible.

The Pampa resident won Best of Show last year at the Amarillo Corvette Club's sixth annual Top of Texas Wheels Xtravaganza Car Show so he was ineligible to win the honor again, but his customized 1957 Corvette was certainly a hit.

And the Xtravaganza Car Show wasn't the only one he won last year. In 2008, he walked away with Best of Show, People's Choice and Participant's Choice.

"I think that's the only time one car got all three," Mauldin said.

Mauldin's Corvette features a Yenko Wildfire LS7 V8 that pumps out 554 horsepower.

"It was built as a race car," he said. "It's truly a full race car."

It was built by Bill Rea, who was the suspension man for Don Yenko's Corvette Racing Teams, to compete in vintage races against 1956 and 1966 Ford-powered Shelby American Cobra sports cars, but with a laugh, Mauldin said it got out of hand.

"He built this to kill Cobras," Mauldin said.

How fast will it go? It should top 180, but Mauldin said the lack of seat belts acts as a governor on the engine.

Hidden Hills Public Golf Course reopened Friday (May 22). It was closed down for a week after sustaining heavy storm and tornado damages earlier this month.

Hidden Hills back out of the rough

BY RACHEL STENNETT

rstennett@thepampanews.com

Hidden Hills Public Golf Course opened its doors last Friday for the first time in a week since storms caused major damage to the course.

The greens are still not in perfect shape, according to Harley Knutson, employee, but personnel have been working overtime to make the grounds playable.

"It's come a long way in a week, and it's looking pretty good," Knutson said.

The greens have required major repair, including the placement of 30 tons of sand on the greens to smooth in the grapefruit size holes left from hail damage.

Machines were brought in to smooth the sand, and then the grounds were reseeded and mowed to make them level for playing.

Knutson said in another month, the greens should be back to the condition they were in before the storm hit Friday.

"There has been a real good effort by everyone to get this place reopened," Knutson said.

Ken Norris, golf course superintendent, and grounds employees have worked long hours every day since the storm repairing the greens to a playable condition.

David Teichmann, Hidden Hills golf professional, estimated the damages so far to be somewhere between $15,000 and $25,000. That estimate includes the loss of revenue for being closed six days and a potential loss of revenue from people not playing there because of the damages.

That damage estimate will increase, Teichmann said, "we just don't know how much yet." The roof's on multiple structures will have to be replaced, as well as other structural damage repaired, and repair to golf carts.

"We've got it to where the course is fairly playable and it will just get better every day," Teichmann said.

Members of Hidden Hills have been offered an extended months play to After some 36 years of being listed as Missing in Action, the remains of the two men were recovered and returned to the U.S. in 2007. Ayers was buried in Pampa.

The F-4E Phantom, the model Ayers was flying on his final mission, was made available to the Freedom Museum by the Air Force free of charge, noted Andy Epps, curator of the museum, but the people of Pampa has to raise almost $60,000 to have it moved from Ruidoso, N.M., to the Texas Panhandle.

Epps, during the dedication ceremonies Monday afternoon, credited his father with raising the money.

"He said he'd put up $100 and challenged everyone else in Pampa to do the same," Epps said.

It took only a few weeks to raise the funds to move the plane.

Epps said the F-4 was never designed to have the wings removed, but they had to in order to truck the plane to Pampa. The plane now stands to the east of the museum's main building.

Monday afternoon, Ayers' mother, Lacy Ayers; his wife, Brenda Ayers; his son, Jim Ayers; and his sister Dorothy Davidson were joined by Stratton's widow, Sallie Stratton, and friends and supporters for the dedication of the plane.

Hosted by Pampa VFW Post 1657, the ceremonies included comments by Post Commander Danny Martin with a prayer by Dannie Miller, Post Chaplain, and the National Anthem by Don Thatcher.

City Commissioner Brad Pingel, represented the city, said that while he never served in the military, he had developed great respect for veterans after working with the VFW post last year to bring a traveling replica of the Vietnam War Memorial to Pampa for Veteran's Day.

VFW post members provided the honor guard for the ceremony and a 21-gun salute.

Taps was played by Larry Ray, U.S. Marine Corps veteran.

Ron Fernuik provided a flyover in a P-51D Mustang.

"The museum here today and the citizens of our town and area intend for our veterans to be remembered," Epps said.

Especially Jimmy Ayers, he said, when they drive down the street past the now silent F-4 Phantom jet.

Ayers, a Major at the time of his death, and Stratton, then a Captain, were promoted to Lieutenant Colonels posthumously.

Golf course damage compensate for the week the course was closed and the damage to the greens, making putting difficult, Knutson said.

A rain check has been offered to an green fee player who is not satisfied with the course. Those choosing to golf at Hidden Hills now have been asked to bring sand bottle with them, to fill in low places on the greens as they are found.

"Most people realize that we have to make the best out of this, and it will only get better in time," Knutson said of the damaged greens. Knutson said that warm weather and rain will help the greens to a quick recovery.

There no injuries at Hidden Hills when the storm and tornado hit. All golfers left the course and were at a safe distance from the storm. Employee vehicles at Hidden Hills suffered damage, including one vehicle that was reported as a total loss because of hail damage.

Knutson said that during the storm, the hail was so severe it sounded like someone was on the roof with a sledge hammer.

Mauldin bought it last year at a Barrett Jackson auction. He hadn't planned to go to the auction, but when he saw this car advertised, he knew he had to have it.

"I had slot cars when I was a kid," he said, "and they included '57 and '58 Corvettes. I always liked the single headlights."

The 1958 model had dual headlights.

While the sleek-looking two-seater is a show car now, Mauldin said that he's been known to make the drag in it down Cuyler.

It runs as good as it looks, he said.

Senate votes out TxDOT overhaul

JAUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Senate on Monday night approved its version of a major overhaul to the state's road-building agency, including allowing voters in counties in the state's largest metro areas to raise gas taxes to pay for road projects.

The Senate bill to renew the Texas Department of Transportation also would keep the agency's five-member commission, even though the governor-appointed panel would be subjected to closer scrutiny from lawmakers.

Those two provisions are major differences between the Senate and House with the June 1 end of the session looming.

The Senate would allow 30 counties in the Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, Austin, San Antonio, El Paso and Corpus Christi metro areas to hold local elections to raise gas taxes by up to 10 cents per gallon and raise vehicle registration fees.

Sen. John Carona, R-Dallas, said it will provide much-needed to money to build roads for those cities' bursting populations.

And while the Senate wants to keep the agency commission intact, the House wants to replace it with a single statewide elected commissioner and divert much of the embattled agency's power to local commissions.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I disagree with your response to "Needs Help Finishing Th ..." (Feb. 23), who can't complete her projects now that she has graduated from college. I could have written that letter, except that I graduated from college 30 years ago.

I have always had problems finishing anything that didn't have specific external consequences if it wasn't completed. Now that I'm in graduate school, this trait has become a real problem. I tried every mind game, motivation and organizational technique I could think of, while silently berating myself because no matter what I did, I could not finish writing my papers or complete my research projects.

Eventually, I was sent by student counseling to a psychologist who ran a battery of tests and found that I have the inattentive form (non-hyperactive) of attention deficit disorder (ADD). I am now on medication and making progress.

Not everyone who can't complete tasks has ADD. But for those who do, being told they are "self-indulgent" only adds to the despair and self-recrimination they already feel. "Needs Help" should read up on adult ADD/ADHD to see if some of the characteristics fit and then seek professional help. -- 50-YEAR-OLD GRAD STUDENT WITH ADD

DEAR GRAD STUDENT: While some readers felt that I was insensitive for telling "Needs Help" to "stop the self-indulgence," others, like you, shared helpful suggestions. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Didn't it occur to you that "Needs Help" might just be an idea person? I'm half of a creative team in advertising. I'm a writer, and I work with a designer to come up with cool new ideas for ad campaigns. We start those ideas and then pass them on to more designers, illustrators, developers, etc.

"Needs Help" should know that every negative has a positive. I, too, used to worry that I would never finish anything, but now I realize that I just have a passion for learning new things. -- CREATIVE, NOT LAZY IN KALAMAZOO

DEAR ABBY: Being disorganized and not a self-starter could be signs and/or symptoms of several psychological problems that interfere with personal growth and satisfaction in many areas of life. There could be a deep, underlying reason for that person's lack of motivation in getting on with life after graduation.

Talking to a therapist would get to the core of the problem. There are recognized disorders that prevent people from starting and finishing even the smallest project. -- PAULA IN ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: As a college professor, I often see students who thrive under the structure of formal classes have difficulty applying their talents to independent projects. The ability to conceptualize and complete unsupervised projects requires skills that can be learned and strengthened with practice. "Needs Help" recognizes that he or she has not yet learned these skills. A counselor who specializes in cognitive behavioral therapy may be helpful. -- PROFESSOR IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: The disorganization of some creative people is often chalked up as a side effect of their creativity because they do not seem to have trouble in school. These students often gravitate toward the arts because the climate is more accommodating of their "difficulties."

Because I was an excellent student who was considered creative, people set aside the fact that I was disastrously messy and disorganized. It wasn't until I was in my late 20s that I was diagnosed with ADD. That diagnosis changed my life and provided immense relief. -- BEEN THERE IN HAMILTON, N.J.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, May 27, 2009.

This year, touch base with your innate gifts. Do not dwell on insecurity and underestimate yourself or your abilities. Perhaps distancing yourself will allow better visualization. If you are single, you'll meet people with ease, especially in new settings, when traveling or following intellectual and spiritual pursuits. Take your time getting to know a special someone. A friend could be quite pushy about this person. If you are attached, as a couple you might want to make a major investment in your future. Your choice will reflect the bond. CANCER can be quite possessive.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Keep your intentions on the front burner, because if you are distracted, your fiery temperament could emerge. Recently, you've had a tendency to get angry quickly. Then it is hard to take back words. A meeting inspires you to follow through on an idea. Tonight: Head home.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  Express yourself with openness. You might have more than ordinary anger and frustration to deal with. If you discharge it, things will be better for you. If you discharge it in a palatable manner for others, everyone gains. Work on that skill. Someone key could be confusing and vague yet delightful! Tonight: Out and about.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Many people have to juggle their finances, not just you. Allow new and seemingly revolutionary thinking to knock on your door. Don't worry. Enjoy the sharing, and open up to another style or way. Give "new" a shot. Tonight: Treat yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)  No matter what goes down, you seem to radiate and handle what comes down your path. Though you might not realize it, you are setting an example. Many of you will display an extraordinary work ethic. A partner does distract you. How nice! Tonight: Be the magnanimous Moon Child.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Back off of a complex situation. You don't need to fix the world—remember that. However, you might want to internalize and do some outside-the-box thinking. A brainstorming session gives a better lay of the land. A partner has the ability to mesmerize. Tonight: Vanish.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  Meetings and get-togethers keep you dancing and full of spunk. Though serious-minded, you make your to-do list a fun, enlightening experience. Your creativity emerges, and the unexpected occurs. Honor your feelings. Tonight: So many choices. Just don't be alone.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  You might be surprised by everything that happens. What should you do to make a long-term wish a reality? Listen to your instincts with a loved one you care a lot about. A problem occurs when you least expect it. Tonight: Out late.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  Reach out for a distant friend. Your ability to look at a matter more carefully makes it possible. See where your thinking might have prevented you from achieving a long-term goal. Others might be extremely resourceful in creating a solution. Tonight: Read between the lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Don't get into ego wars or power plays; rather, work as a team with a key person in your life. Success marks the results. Agree to disagree. The unexpected occurs with a family member or around your home. Tonight: Refuse to get into an argument. Go for a walk.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)  Understand what is happening within the framework of a situation. Your ability to make a difference to walk through intense situations earmarks you day. Make sure to stop and relax with a key person in your life. He or she makes a difference. Tonight: Easy works.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Tune in to what must be done, and organize accordingly. True, you cannot do everything all at once, but do prioritize. Delight yourself with what you can really accomplish. Share an idea and get feedback. Others might be more supportive than you think. Tonight: Choose a favorite tension-buster.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  Are you having difficulty reinventing in your imagination? Use that gift to become a solution-finder. Harnessed, this ability could actually become a business. Your instincts work overtime. Feelings keep coming to the forefront. Tonight: Stay light and easy.
